Authority Wanted To Decide Application Of Wage-Hour Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (4P)-The wage-hour administration may ak congress for broader authority in applying the new labor stan to specific industries.

This prediction came today from high-ranking officials, who were swamped with inquiries from employers as to whether the statute regulates minimum wages and maximum hours for their particular businesses.

Now that the wage-hour program actually has gone into effect, Administrator Elmer F. Andrews and his staff are giving more of their day and Sunday shutdowns attention to these appears for assistance,

Their opinions will be only advisory, however, for the courts must through November. determine finally whether an individual industry is in interstate commerce and therefore subject to the federal law.

There is also the possibility that business men will request clarifying amendments to the act and possible extension of the classes of exempted workers. Some employers, on the other hand, argue that the courts should pass on the law as it now stands before any changes in its provisions, the first day of the act's operation, Andrews reported last night that most branches of industry were complying fully with the new standards, even though many companies were not certain whether it applied to all their employes,

Unofficial estimates indicated that more than 80,000 persons were thrown out of work by shutdowns of scattered plants. Most of the layoffs occurred in the south, particularly in pecan-shelling plants, lumber mills, and tobacco stemming factories.

Workers For Pecan Processors Lose Jobs

Relatively few workers found themselves without jobs today as and those on Saturdays for several Texas industries adjusted themselves to limits imposed by the wage-

San Antonio reported approximately 15,000 persons were at least temporarily out of work. Of these, 12,000 were in the pecan shelling industry and between 2,500 and 3,000 in garment manufacture. A representative of the pecan processors was in Washington seeking an adjustment.

Sherman, a milling center, reported the new law shortened hours at two plants from 48 to 44 and put from six to eight persons back on the payrolls at five factories. Most manufacturing plants there already had conformed.

At Abilene, the Southwestern Peanut company was virtually shut down as 38 women and 10 men were laid off. One clothing factory let out 10 women and another 14, but these were still operating on a piece work basis.

Charles Robertson, Fort Worth pecan processor said it would be "absolutely impossible" for that industry to conform. He predicted collapse of the pecan market and the continued unemployment of 1,000 workers. Similar difficulties were seen at Dallas, Tyler, and other

Western Union Closing An Hour Earlier

In order to comply with terms of the wage-hour act, the Western Union office in Big Spring is shortening its day by an hour, it is announced by Jack Jackson, manager. The office closes at 9 p. m. instead of at 10 p. m. as heretofore, Jackson said additional messenger boys had been employed, and some pay increases were granted. Big Spring's two banks also are closing an hour earlier, because of wage-hour limitations. They operate now from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

"Too much baseball," he explain d, was the reason Sam Chapman, the Athletics' leftfielder, blew up after a promising season.

Mack's idea is to "keep them way from the park. Pack them off to the mountains, or even get them a job doing something else for a few days. Anything to keep their minds off baseball."

READING WRITING

THE BACK DOOR," by Julian R. It is possible that northern re-viewers, who have had no experience with such problems as exerise the gifted Julian R. Meade in his new novel, will see the whole matter as propaganda, and the fact that "The Back Door" is beautiful and unforgettable study of the negro and the white as they mpange upon one another in the middle South. This would be a sad mistake. The author has tried to show things as they are, quite evidently, and has not exaggerated either the ights or the wrongs to make a ase. He has done a novel, and not a propaganda book. He has done it so simply and so surely that its impact is a good deal heavier than it possibly could be otherwise. You know this if you have seen what

Mr. Meade has seen. It's a simple story, too. There, is bright-skinned Mary Lou, serious and quiet, desperately in love with her Junie and quite content if only fate and the world she knows will ive her and Junie a bare livin they may be married and happy. Junie is not much given to "studying" about abstract rights and wrongs either. He loves to sing, to do generous things for his friends. is a good worker. His mother is Aunt Ada, a magnificent realiza-tion of what we call the "old time" egro-shrewd, stubborn, kind, reigious and mildly superstitious. Mr. Meade is a little less con incing with his whites, although Mary Lou's employers are real, particularly "fdr. Warner," the oung Southern intellectual ious to do something for the Negro and is able to reach them on a less exalted plane. Mary Lou's persecutor, "Mr. Chinch Ander-son's boy," is another familiar type, and credible From the first the reader knows that Mary Lou and Junie ask so little of life that they will not get it. He knows that Junie's cough neans, and that an ironic situation is being prepared in which the husband of "Mr. Warner's" servant is to die of the disease Mr. Warner is fighting to cradic the negroes. But the otter truth of the pictures of negro life may reader unaware, and
