Gov. Preston Smith told Texas lawmakers they can balance a $6.8 billion budget without new taxes -- by deficit financing, bond issues and federal assumption of welfare costs.

While legislators like to hear that they can escape a tax bill, many found the Governor's approach contingent on too many ifs. "Voter approval of bond issues, they noted, is highly uncertain and congressional assumption of welfare is doubtful.

Here, in brief, is what the Governor proposed:

- * Financing of welfare programs for only 10 months anticipation that Congress will take over full funding by then.
- * A maximum $450 million public free school bond issue, to be retired from school and income now going by constitutional decree into the untouchable permanent school fund. A constitutional amendment would be required to create both the fund and payment plan.
- * Temporary deficit financing of a $50 million emergency aid-to-welfare appropriation which would require a four-fifths vote of the Legislature.
- * A $71 million revenue bond program (secured with tuition income) to build new colleges, medical and dental schools authorized in 1969.
- * He also proposed three more constitutional amendments:
- * Removal of the $80 million year welfare ceiling.
- * Raising or removing the war development bond interest lid.
- * Creation of a $100 million fund for state aid on waste treatment facilities.
- * Smith pledged an all-out effort to encourage a federal take-over of welfare financing. Lawmakers don't like his ideas, said the Governor, they should bring me a plan.

COMMITTEES NAMED House Speaker Gus Mutscher named his committees late last week, signaling the start of actual bill production and processing in the lower house.

As expected, he picked veteran Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah for another session as chairman of the budget-writing appropriations committee which promptly launched hearings of pending requests.

To the hot-spot revenue and tax committee chairmanship, he again appointed Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas.

But Mutscher estimated he achieved 74% turnover in all chairmanships.

Rep. Rayford Price of Palestine was bumped from the hard-working state affairs panel chairmanship. Rep. James Slider of Naples got that job. Rep. Delwin Jones of Lubbock got Mutscher's assignment to chair the congressional and legislative districts committee which must reapportion boundaries on the basis of the new census. Jones estimated a loss of 10 or 12 rural seats.

Rep. Dewitt Hale of Corpus Christi kept the judiciary committee chair, and Rep. John Berger of Sequin retained the constitutional amendment committee gavel. New rules committee chairman is Rep. James G. Kissack of Dallas, who sponsored the liquor-by-drink constitutional amendment, will head Mutscher's liquor regulations committee. Rep. Frank Galloway of Abilene is chairman of the criminal jurisprudence panel.

WELFARE MEASURE ADVANCE The first major measure to clear a state committee was a proposed constitutional amendment by Sen. Charles Wilson of Pampa to remove the $80 million state welfare ceiling, Governor Smith said the curbing of expenditures would fund the state up against an $11 million lid by June 1, and that cuts in aid to families with dependent children would be required. Welfare Committee Chairman Burton G. Kackney estimated AFDC average payments of $113.60 a month would be slashed to $90 May the ceiling is not raised.

MARY DWYER APPOINTED COMMISSIONER

The first woman commissioner in Gray County was sworn into office this morning by County Judge Don Cain during a ceremony at Gray County Court House.

Mary Hess Dwyer, widow of the elected Precinct 4 Commissioner the late John E. Dwyer, McLean, was appointed to fill the term of her husband who died suddenly Jan. 21 after serving only 21 days.

Judge Cain appointed the new commissioner following an executive meeting of the Commissioners Court yesterday. Another conference with Democratic Chairman Harold Comer and a meeting with Committee woman Ruth Osborne, 31st District, preceded the announcement.

Under Texas statutes, the county judge is delegated to appoint commissioners when circumstances prevent an elected official from serving a full term of office.

Judge Cain stated that the commissioners, chairman, and committee woman were consulted as well as several voters in Precinct 4 before the appointment of Mrs. Dwyer was confirmed.

In making the announcement, Judge Cain said: "On January twenty-first Gray County and Precinct 4 lost an able public servant.

Today I have appointed his wife, Mary Hess Dwyer, to serve in his place until the general election in 1972."

Mrs. Dwyer attended McLean schools and is a graduate of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.

She is the mother of three children, Nelson, a student at Texas Tech; Ray, a student in Clarendon College and Rose Helen, a student of McLean Junior High.

Mrs. Dwyer will meet with other commissioners in a scheduled session at 10 a.m. Monday.

GOVERNOR PRESTON SMITH signing a proclamation declaring "3.76 in '76 Week" with Dr. John E. Hutchinson, Director Texas Agri Extension Service looking on.

A program to increase Texas agricultural income by more than a billion dollars by 1976 was announced by Dr. John E. Hutchinson, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in January of 1970.

This goal calls for $3.76 billion in total cash receipts by the end of the 1976 crop year, not including government payments; and was determined from projections by Extension specialists and individuals in the agricultural industry. A committee of agricultural economists with the Extension Service studied past production reports and made projections for 1976 based on current trends and expected improvements in technology and marketing.

Projections on an individual county basis were made by program building committees, made up of businessmen and producers. The expectations were then organized along county, Extension district and economic area lines to give producers across the state something to shoot for.

In addition, annual goals are determined for the various agricultural commodity groups to allow a yearly measure of the program's success.

Texas presently accounts for about five percent of the total national agricultural cash receipts. But to achieve the goal of "3.76 in '76", the state must claim almost ten percent of the projected national increase in the coming years. Extension specialists and county agricultural agents are scheduling meetings with producers throughout the state to help them with new advancements in technology and marketing in their particular areas.

Gray County's projected agricultural income for 1976 looks most impressive. Foster Whaley, county agent and the Gray County program Building Communities projects the Agricultural income to be twenty seven million dollars by 1976. This would more than double the 1968-69 average agri income that totaled slightly less than thirteen million dollars.

I am told John Dwyer experienced more happiness Wednesday January 20, than he had for some time. He had assumed his new job as Commissioner of Precinct 4, had held the reins long enough to feel some security in the driver's seat, and had accepted an appointment to attend a meeting in Wellington the following evening wherein he would represent Gray County.

That night he, Mary, and their two children - Ray and Rose Helen - had visited with their older son, Nelson who was in school at Texas Tech. Everybody was happy.

Then early Thursday morning tragedy struck and before noon John was gone and his family and friends were shocked and grieved. The many floral offerings, the great number of memorials set up for various charities, the mass of friends and relatives from over the Panhandle who came to express their sympathy and attend the church services were various ways all of us tried to say, "We are sorry!"

John E. Dwyer was a member of our oldest families, his grandparents coming here around 1905 and settling northwest of town. From then on till the present time, the family has stood for what is right and was a part of the development of our town and county.

John's marriage to Mary Heas joined two of our most revered families. Only those of such sturdy stock and profound faith could "weather the storm" as Mary, comforted by her children, is doing. She, who was forced to give up her father so suddenly and her mother tragically, has shown great physical strength and spiritual faith. To Mary and her three wonderful and understanding children, we wish we could say more than "we are sorry."

John's mother, Druce to all her friends, too, knows what it is to give up a loved one suddenly, but her faith and understanding is helping her to carry on.

Life must go on. We do not know why John was called away at this time but - as the two women in his life have done his friends and other relatives bow to the will of the Almighty who taketh away the sting of death.

Patty Harrison and Lee Hinton attended an avon Representative in Shamrock Friday Jan. 22.

will be the big factors in the increase for Gray County. Wheat and milo will be the other two major agricultural enterprises.
