

MAKING MORE MONEY BY WHISTLING FOR IT

There's an old adage to the effect that "A whistling girl and a crowing hen seldom come to any good end"—but that the saying is as faulty as its rhyme is weak, is evinced by the career of Florence Garrison, who, when all else failed her, fell back upon her ability to whistle and made more money from it than she had been able to obtain from "regular" work of any other kind.

When, as a girl, Miss Garrison found that she had the rare ability to imitate the complicated whistling stunts of her boy friends, she did not have the slightest idea of turning this gift into money. She practiced it merely for her own amusement and as a means of silencing the taunts of boys that "no girl can whistle right." Long before she reached the age of 15 years, Miss Garrison had all the thrills and scales, all the high notes and the flutelike combinations down to a fine point. Then she went to work in a store and forgot all about her accomplishments—until she was discharged because of her whistling proclivities.

Her next attempt to earn her living was as a stenographer, but here again her unconscious habit of whistling led to the loss of her position. Within the year she made—and broke—six separate resolutions never to whistle again. The love of music had been born in her and insisted upon expression through the medium of pursed lips and high soaring notes.

Good fortune, however, had not entirely deserted her. Her last position and the one which turned out to be the stepping stone to "real money," was that of typist in the office of a theatrical manager. The moment he heard her whistle, however, the manager inquired if she could do it for twenty minutes at a time. "I can do it for an hour if necessary," was the reply, and the following week her name appeared on the program of a local vaudeville house with a salary of $50 a week. Now she is sending her brother through college and supporting her mother solely by whistling.

Grandma Rogers went to Shamrock Tuesday for a two weeks' visit.

FEEDING TEST SHOWS VALUE OF GRAIN SORGHUM

"Grain Sorghums Versus Corn for Fattening Lambs" is the subject of Bulletin No. 269, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, which has just come from the press.

The bulletin describes feeding tests with six lots of lambs, which show that corn cannot be shipped into Texas and successfully compete with the grain sorghums for fattening lambs, especially in the semi-arid sections of Texas, so well adapted to the production of non-saccharine sorghums. It was also shown that a ration of ground milo heads fed with cottonseed meal and alfalfa hay is more economical than ground threshed milo or ground threshed feterita fed in the same way. Lambs fed on the ration including ground heads made slightly less gain, but at less cost also, than those fed on the ground threshed grain ration.

An interesting result noted is that the grain sorghums used in these experiments showed a productive value higher than any established calculated productive value given them heretofore. Ground threshed milo, with a calculated productive value of 18.5, actually gave in this test a productive value of 20.6, or practically the same as corn.

In this bulletin and more fully in bulletin 170, issued in 1914, is an explanation of the method of comparing feed values by determining the productive value stated in terms of fat, which a given food can produce when fed to an animal already receiving enough food to take care of its bodily needs. The productive values of the several feeds are calculated and compared, which renders the bulletin valuable to hog and cattle feeders also. This is, so far as known, the first extensive feeding test in which productive feed values have been calculated and published. The information will, therefore, not be obsolete when the markets shift, as indeed they have already done since the experiment began.

This bulletin will be mailed free, on request to B. Youngblood, Director, College Station, Texas.

"GET AWAY FROM THE CROWD"

Robert Burdette, in a talk to young men, said, "Get away from the crowd for awhile and think: Stand on one side and let the world run by, while you get acquainted with yourself and see what kind of a fellow you are. Ask yourself hard questions about yourself. Ascertain, from original source if you are really the manner of man you say you are; if you are always honest; if you always tell the square, perfect truths in business detail; if your life is as good and upright at eleven o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as good a temperance man on a fishing trip as you are on a Sunday School picnic; if you are as good when you go to the city as you are at home; ask yourself if you are the kind of man your father hopes you are and your sweetheart believes you are. Get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and, believe me, every time you come out of one of these private interviews you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, and it will do you good."—The Old Scrap Book.

THE GYPSIES

George Burrows relates that the first Gypsies made their appearance in Moldavia in 1417, and no one seems to be very certain about whence they came. The original 3,000 increased to formidable proportions in a century or so and Maria and Joseph II tried to civilize them, with no success.

In the early days each little band had a captain whom they honored with the title of count. To secure the coveted, the leader had to be valiant and courageous in the pillaging expeditions for food and sagacious and crafty enough to settle their disputes. For this he was allowed a third of anything the band stole.

Despite their marauding tendencies and their more or less contemptuous attitude toward people not "of the blood" they have a code of morals which contains many excellent characteristics. A true Gypsy must not have a quarrelsome disposition, and he never reveals the secrets of the brotherhood. Though they make the rest of mankind their lawful prey, they are capable of great sacrifices for each other. They pledge themselves never to marry out of their own sect nor will they teach their language to anyone not a Gypsy by blood or adoption.

Their daredevil spirit perhaps has had a passing influence on most of the countries in which these wanderers have lived. At least, England is accredited with having contracted her love of horse racing from them, and they are nearly always to be found among her jockeys and in attendance upon her derbys.

These might be children of Cain or the wandering Jew. They are among the most beautiful races of the world in their youth. Their complexions are dark with a warm rich color underneath, their faces are oval, their features regular and their bodies lithe and graceful. But the exposure to sun, sleet and snow in a short time transforms them into hideousness that a beautiful youth who might have possessed a St. Michael or Raphael finds himself a fit model for the devil who contended with his earlier self as the angel in the picture.

Pretending a knowledge of the metaphysical and dabbling in fortune telling have always been within the province of Gypsy women. They have claimed that they could switch away troublesome ailments of the heart and have propounded queer love philters which, instead of imbuing the unfortunate with a steadiness of aim with his love arrows, have poisoned his digestive tract. But they realize the monetary value of the myth concerning their ability to divine the future, and have, since the beginning of history, capitalized it. In Spain where a large proportion of the race now lives, travelers say they find neatly whitewashed caves, lighted by electricity, and that even the Gypsy royalty will caper and career around in fantastic dances for the coin of a casual visitor.—Geographic Magazine.

"BOX DWELLERS" MAKE NEW PROBLEM FOR R. C.

Cliff dwellers of old are finding a parallel in Hungary with the development of thousands of "box dwellers," according to a reports from the Paris office of the American Red Cross. Eight to ten thousand refugees of war, for the most part prosperous members of the middle classes—teachers, government employes, clerks—are now living in 2,500 box cars, of the small European type, hardly larger than the packing boxes.

These people attempt to shelter their families from the snow and wind in and beneath the box cars, improvising stoves from bits of tin and stones. There are no blankets for the babies, who are kept from freezing by the warmth of their mothers' bodies.

Purebreds Bring Prosperity

Many stockmen in the Panhandle are getting rich, breeding Polangus cattle, a bull of which breed is shown above. The Polangus is without a superior as a beef animal, and we would be glad to see McLean breeders producing some of these, as well as more fine White-faces, Shorthorns and Jerseys.

It is the policy of this Bank to co-operate in every way possible in building the individual fortunes of its customers, and in the general development of the community. We will be glad to talk the matter over with you and help you formulate plans for more extensive purebred cattle raising or breeding other high grade animals.

COAL VEIN UNDER OF SCRANTON, PA.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 19.—A redhot vein, ten feet in thickness and 500 feet in length, is blazing 100 feet under Scranton.

The vein is located in the abandoned workings of the old Central West Scranton, and is steadily creeping eastward, consuming thousands of tons of coal. All efforts of 200 firemen to extinguish the flames or check its progress, have, up to the present, been of no avail. Streams of water have been pouring upon the burning coal with no apparent result, the cause of fantastic vapors in the mine, and white heat which serve only to hamper the work of the fire fighters, already hampered enough by the heat and poisonous gases issuing from the burning coal.

The firemen enter the mine through a shaft two miles away. They are unable on account of the terrible heat to venture any nearer the fire than 500 feet. A perpendicular air shaft, located directly above the vein, and communicating with the open air 400 feet above affords a way greater than that of the most smothering smokestack. Grave dangers attend the men fighting the flames, as a sudden depression in atmospheric conditions above may send the sulphurous gases downward, resulting in suffocation. From a distance, with the aid of binoculars, can be seen an inferno in the old Pluto himself might luxuriate in. There are in a wilderness of trees with low-hanging ceilings, wide spaces from which issue blue and white flames. The heat is unbearable.

Full faith in the efficacy of water to extinguish the flames has been abandoned, and the erection of walls to exclude air and cause the fire to burn on inert gas is the plan of the fire fighters, following an investigation by a commission of the state department of mining. Concrete walls four feet thick are being built in all tunnels and crevices leading to the fire.

In sections of adjacent veins, remote from the source of the fire, temperatures of 170 degrees Fahrenheit have been recorded as a result of the fire.

The abandoned mines of the People's Coal Company, communicating with the Central mine, where the fire is located, contain large quantities of gas. If the fire should come in contact with this gas, an explosion would result, the effects of which are incalculable, according to experts. There is no immediate danger of this, the experts add comfortingly, and it is predicted that within a few weeks, through the present method of fighting the flames, the fire will be smothered.—Denton Record-Chronicle.

NEW HARNESS FOR WIND WORKED OUT

That we are going to get more work from the wind that blows so freely in Texas seems probable now, advises M. R. Bentley, Farm Engineer, Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas. Ever since electric generators and storage batteries came into common use on the farm, inventors have been working on a practical method of generating electricity from wind power.

It looks like an easy matter to attach a windmill to an electric generator and that to a storage battery, and that is what has been done; but to get this outfit to run in a very light wind and on the other hand to withstand a gale, has not been so easy. There has been another problem in the production of a marketable machine, and that is getting it simple enough and so dependable that the average person could give it the little attention that it needs.

Some of the first machines have been in use for as much as seven or eight years so that the manufacturers consider that they have passed the experimental stage. Not until recently have the machines been placed on the market, and they are not yet advertised to any extent, as the manufacturers are not prepared to supply them in quantities.

It is very probable that several companies will be in the field with a windmill electric outfit before many months. The demand for them on the farms will doubtless be great. Farmers have learned by the use of the gas-engine-driven electric lighting and power machines how very useful electricity is around the house and barn. And the farmers, of West Texas at least, know that the windmill will work at pumping water with practically no expense or attention.

Farmers will, of course, be cautious at first, in buying a machine that is new on the market, but they will not be hard to convince that the idea is great. In fact, farmers have been calling for a machine of this kind, not knowing that anyone was working on it.

It may be necessary to warn farmers that they should investigate the company that is selling a machine of this kind before turning loose of any money, but the same rule will apply to this as with other machines. This rule being, to buy only from reliable firms.

To those who live in the west where the wind blows to an excess much of the time, it will be sweet revenge to put it to work doing the washing, ironing, sweeping, milking, churning, sewing, cooking and lighting the house and barn as well as running the various machines about the barn.—Extension Service Farm News.

RED CROSS TO BUILD
ROAD 80 MILES LONG FOR CHINESE RELIEF

Construction of a road linking two important cities in China has been undertaken by the American Red Cross, with the sanction of the Chinese Government, as the best way of relieving famine sufferers in a province of Shantung, the territory allotted to the Red Cross for relief work, according to an announcement by Ernest P. Bicknell, acting director of foreign operations, which describes in detail the plan of the organization in its Chinese famine work.

John Earl Baker, an American who has for a long time acted as technical adviser to the Chinese Government Railway Administration, has been placed in charge of this work. As there is no food to be purchased in Shantung, it was deemed useless to give money grants to the famine sufferers, and instead they will be employed on the construction of this road and paid for their services in food supplies in lieu of cash. The Red Cross will purchase these supplies in Manchuria and other distant places and transport them to Shantung for paying out to the Chinese unemployed. An appropriation of $500,000 was recently made by the Red Cross to be used in Chinese famine relief operations.

Down With the High Cost of Living

We cannot control prices throughout the country, but we can and will keep them down in our store.

With its large organization, with stores throughout several Southern States, the Industrial Transportation Company has a tremendous buying power, which enables us to get quantity discounts on everything we handle. The Company manufactures a number of the food products we sell, and other goods are bought direct from the producer, enabling us to eliminate the middleman's profit.

Our store is operated on the most economical basis possible for a Grocery establishment. No expensive clerks to pay out wages to—you serve yourself. "To be well served is to be self served." No flivver to make deliveries in town and inflate the cost of doing business; our customers make their own deliveries and are well paid for doing so. No bookkeeper to keep credit accounts, eat up the candy and draw a salary. No bad accounts to be charged against operating expense and be added to the price of the goods. We sell cheaper because we can run our store on this plan at less expense, and when you purchase your groceries from us you know positively that you cannot get the same product elsewhere for less money. Can you do as well?

Always remember one thing: When we are looking after our interests we are looking after yours. The two are inseparable.

And remember also, that we do not keep any charge accounts. Our terms on every purchase, to every person, whether of high or low estate, are CASH. Because we sell for cash is one of the reasons why we can sell cheaper. And we treat 'em all alike. We propose to show no favoritism whatever.

AUTO DRIVERS' REGULATIONS
IN SHORT MEASURE

Experts in motoring and motor manners connected with the United States Tire Company have drawn up a decalogue of nineteen instead of ten commandments for motorists, as follows:

- Keep to the right of the road. Slow down at crossings.
- Signal for a stop or turn to the cars behind by holding out the left hand.
- Apply brakes slowly. Change speed rates slowly. Drive carefully.
- Be prepared to help any motorist in trouble on roads distant from garages.
- Be prepared to give pedestrians "lifts" on country roads.
- Stop car and engine when meeting drivers with sheep, swine or cattle on country roads.
- Park only at side of roads, leaving fair way.
- When buying produce in the country, park alongside road, not on the road.
- When parking at night leave warning lights.
- Have headlight dimmers and use them when meeting and passing other motorists at night.
- When picnicking carefully put out picnic fires.
- When picnicking do not trespass to gather wild flowers, tree branches, blossoms, fruit or shrubs.
- When picnicking clean up thoroughly, removing from sight all cans, papers and rubbish.
- Give all vehicles, especially loaded trucks, a good half of the road.
- Take bill on the right side of the road. Go over the crest carefully. Avoid coasting or speeding around curves at foot of hills.
- Be courteous to pedestrians. Do not drive your car at them full tilt and laugh when they jump. Do not splash water on them as they stand at crossings or near curbs, waiting for you to pass.
- Avoid street cars carefully at stops.
- Learn and follow the local traffic rules, speed limits and driving ordinances. These are made for the common good of all drivers, including yourself, and of all pedestrians.
- "With these practices universally followed by drivers, motoring will maintain its safety, its freedom, its standing and its favorable acceptance by the community," the experts suggest. "Five years ago such suggestions as these were unnecessary. Today, when each eleventh person owns a car, it is vitally necessary to have drivers recall the days of chivalry. Crowded and still more crowded streets and roads have produced a nation-wide problem whose simplest solution is a return to the courtesy of the days when knighthood flowered.

The automobile is too vital to the nation, too much a part of the blood and bone of the country's economic life to have its use curtailed through the failure of its users to follow the rules of simple courtesy and safety."

ABOUT BAD CHECKS

The Signal cannot understand why the legislative body of Texas does not pass a law providing adequate punishment for persons who give worthless checks. There is a so-called law against giving worthless checks, but it is about as worthless as the checks, for the reason that it exempts from prosecution people who once had money in the bank on which they later gave checks. The man who had five dollars in the bank last year and drew it out, may give a check on the same bank this year and escape prosecution.

The giving of fraudulent checks is now a daily transaction in every city or town in Texas. Every merchant in Honey Grove has checks at the banks, and is either trying to get his money on them or has given up in despair and charged the checks to the loss account. The tender of a check is the same as the tender of a five-dollar bill and the man who knowingly gives a fraudulent check is just as guilty of obtaining goods unlawfully as the man who tenders a counterfeit bill. To be sure, the merchant can refuse to accept checks, but ninety per cent of the country's business is conducted with checks, and there should be a law with teeth in it for the protection of the public and the punishment of those who defraud in this way. Certainly no one desires to see anyone punished who gives a check, believing he has funds to meet it, for those who do this are always ready and anxious to make their checks good, but a law against giving worthless checks would make all of us more careful in keeping our accounts. The merchants tell us, however, that a very large per cent of the worthless checks given are never made good. —The Honey Grove Signal.

ORTHOPEDIC SHOES FOR WOMEN ARE POPULAR

Austin.—Through the efforts of Miss Eunice Aden, physical training director for women at the University of Texas, practically all of the 1500 or more women students at that institution now own and wear the approved or orthopedic shoe, as endorsed by health authorities.

These shoes are made to conform to the natural lines of the foot, with broad toe and long, flat heel. A campaign in the interest of sensible shoes was started last spring, the Y. W. C. A., working in connection with the physical training authorities. At the beginning of the present session, ruling was made that all girls registered for physical training, three years of which is compulsory, would be required to obtain a pair of the approved shoes and wear these for all athletic work done for credit. Under the provisions of the Women's Athletic Association, also, the wearing of such shoes for all outdoor sports is urged. The shoes were at first purchased under protest in many cases, it is said, but they have grown in popularity, and are now used for general school and street wear, as well as for the change is attributed to the fact when the girls have once experienced the foot freedom and comfort of orthopedic shoe they continue to wear them even when not required to do so.

Miss Frankie Mae Upham returned Monday evening from Canyon and Amarillo, where she had been on a pleasure trip.

Fordson
TRADE MARK

For thirty-five years Henry Ford, a farmer's boy, has been working on the problem of a successful tractor for the farm, and for the past fourteen years has devoted much time and a vast amount of money to the development of the present Fordson Tractor. Today that Tractor is in use on nearly 200,000 farms and if you have any doubt as to the satisfaction it gives to those who are using it, call and get the booklet just issued by the Ford Motor Company, and called "The Fordson at Work" and read the testimony which is there given by the multitude of owners of Fordson Tractors. No evidence can be more conclusive than that of the man who actually knows by personal experience, and this is the line of testimony carried in this little booklet. If you cannot call for it, write, drop us a postal, and we will mail it to you without charge. It is so valuable you ought to have it because it is the open door through which the farmer will pass from the hard working drudge to the comparative comfort of the manufacturer.

The Fordson makes it possible for the farmer to plan and direct, while the machine will do the work. It presents the widest latitude for the farmer to exercise his brain power and plan how he can get the most from the soil, knowing that the tractor will do the hard work, do it better, do it quicker, and therefore, do it more profitably. This means not alone in the cultivation of the soil, in the harvesting of the crops, but in a hundred and one different demands that are made for labor, cutting of ensilage and the filling of the silo; cutting of wood; operation of the washing machine; in the lighting of the house with electricity; supplying the house with running water; bringing to the farmer's wife and daughters the conveniences of the city, relieving them of much of the hard, unpleasant part of housework.

WHEN TO ORDER REPAIRS

Repairs for farm implements and machinery may be divided into two classes:

- Class 1. Those that wear out.
- Class 2. Those that break, on account of unusual or unavoidable accidents.

Any farmer of experience can tell just about how long his farm machinery will run before the parts that need replacement will wear out. These include, with many others, shares, shovels, guards, knives, sections, blades, teeth, etc.

All these items should be listed and ordered early, far in advance of the time when they will be needed. You will save time and money by ordering all the repairs in Class 1 at one time. This will save you money later in the season, when you may be obliged to pay for long distance telephone calls, and express charges on numerous small orders.

The well known P & O implements are built to stand the rough wear. Let me explain the merits of this well known line.

TERMINATION OF PANHANDLE TO GET FEET ON GROUND AND GO TO WORK OBSERVED BY JAMISON

BY FRANK R. JAMISON
Secretary-Manager Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce.

"You Panhandle Weather" L. P. Loomis in his splendid paper, the Canadian Record, remarks, "The thermometer read 80 degrees above zero Monday, a remarkable day for early. The coldest registered winter was nine degrees above zero," and gives as authority for his remark the record as made by U. S. Weather Observer R. M. Hibbard.

The Panhandle record will do to stand on any time and we compliment Mr. Loomis on calling to the attention of his readers the records as made by the weather observer in his community. Every day and every hour people are becoming better informed on the affairs of the Panhandle and are learning its truths by having the same called to their attention.

If the papers in this state would make use of the government records for their statements about this section, there would be more truth in the public press and unnecessary prejudice would not be set up in the minds of the reading public.

As far as we know, there is no perfectly satisfactory place on this continent as far as climatic perfection is concerned. There are disagreeable days in the Panhandle, but according to the government reports we have more days pleasant and agreeable weather in this portion of the state and less of the undesirable sort than any other portion of Texas, and in fact, make a better showing than any of the so-called climatic region. Every day people are making inquiry into the possibilities of this Panhandle country and are being furnished real and substantial information. Not the spectacular type which places a strain on the credulity of the inquirer, but that which is backed up by the bank statements in the financial realm and which stands recorded in government observers' stations with relation to the climatic claims.

Having just returned from a week out over the Panhandle, I observe in the minds of the people of this section of the country determination to immediately get their feet on the ground and go to work. At Wellington last Monday night at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce a county fair movement was launched and 75 per cent of the required $10,000 was pledged and many had spoken for a part in the financial program who were not present at the dinner. It is not unreasonable nor untrue to say that the proposition has been carried over.

Hemphill, Wheeler, Collingsworth, Adress, Hall, Donley, Randall, Fisher, Hale, Deaf Smith, Dallam, and many other counties have already made arrangements for county fairs this fall, and preparation is already begun in the minds of these people. They are planting with the fair idea in mind; they are making their poultry ready; breeding hogs and making selections from herds of cattle with the program of the fair in mind.

There is one great desire in the minds of all these Panhandle folks and that is for Amarillo to hold an all Panhandle exhibit to which could be conveyed the prize winning products of soil and herd. This will be a possibility in the which bonds have been voted in the city of Amarillo. When that is completed it will make possible an all Panhandle show that will attract attention from all parts of the compass and will constitute one of the biggest dividend producers ever introduced into this city.

Agricultural conditions over this section are well nigh perfect. The wheat acreage in the Panhandle for the year 1921 figures 1,264,000. According to present indications another wheat crop is assured. There are yet some hazards to be encountered but it is assumed that the crop is 75 per cent assured.

The snow which has fallen this week has been general. Drouth has not been overshadowing us but the late moisture afforded by this precipitation has banished what future fear that might prevail and also predicts that our winds will not be so severe.

Owing to the sharp reduction of price in agricultural products the income of the farmer has been shortened very materially. Likewise the cattle man has been hit hard in price reduction, but everybody has that spirit which is peculiar to the Panhandle and they have no thought of becoming discouraged and are now at work on future plans with that vigor and determination which will succeed.

This has been a great week likewise in the affairs of the Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce. Its sustenance and influence has been reassured from every angle. Its saving to the Panhandle in the past has been appreciated and its proffer of things for the immediate future bespeak a pleasant and profitable future.

TO OPEN PRINT SHOP

Wheeler, Feb. 16.—Wheeler has been without a print shop since the News-Review burned in December, but John T. Hilburn, former editor and owner of the Wheeler Sun, is now installing machinery for a new print shop, and within a week of so will be able to handle commercial printing. A paper will not be started now, but probably later on.

Mrs. Frank Bailey and Miss Fannie Bailey went to Amarillo Saturday night to visit the former's mother, Mrs. J. A. Haynes, who is in the sanitarium at that place.

E. H. Kramer and Walter McAdams went to Amarillo Saturday on business.

Duncan Graham went to Amarillo Monday on business.

NOT SO DOGGONE BAD

A woman in New York was granted divorce on the grounds that her husband made her eat with the faming dog. This causes Ben Smith to work in the Lockney Beacon that man who will make his wife eat the dog is a dog-gone sorry husband; that it is not an entirely unpardonable sin for a man to spank his wife once in a while, but for him to compel her to eat with the dog is the height of forbearance. "The judge would have compelled this husband to walk on his all-fours all his days and not only eat like a dog but bark like one," says Ben.

But wait before passing judgment, Ben, and let's see the man's side of the case. The woman was a society creature, and had no time to be bothered by children. She purchased a lap dog of the prevalent breed, named it Reginald, and called it by the familiar and endearing terms of "Honeybunch," "Lovey Dove," "Baby Ootsie Wootsie," and similar sacred baby expressions. She dandled it, kissed it, carried it under her arm and kept it on her lap. When ever the patient, plodding Hubby wanted to associate with his wife he had to do so over the malodorous body of the dog. Hubby didn't love the dog. He didn't love the odor of dog flesh. He longed for the attractions of the presence of a baby, for which there is no substitute in the world. His nature craved a little laughter who would some day look like the woman he had led to the altar; he yearned for a son who should some day be strong and stalwart like papa. He wanted children with children's laughter, children's developing minds, and children's belief in dad. He wanted a share of children's joys as they grew stage by stage from babyhood to womanhood and manhood.

Instead of these faries from joy-land he had always before him a mass of hair, legs, claws and tail. A thing devoid of usefulness, and in the eyes of which was always the insipid, silly meaningless expression of the imbecile. When he wanted a bath he found the tub taken by an attendant giving the dog a daily scrub. When he wanted to kiss his wife he found on her lips the dog flavor, and he knew the life that dogs lead, he knew the habits of dogs.

He looked into the eyes of his wife and saw there a brain that had no other ambition than to fondle a lap dog, a thing without a heart, a brain or a soul. He knew that as the ideal of life is, so is the life; a life that has no other ideal than the fondling of a lap dog develops the nature of the thing itself. He absolutely could not separate his wife from her lap dog life.

So he reasoned with himself thus: If my wife devotes herself, her time, her affections, her ideals and her maternal instincts to the culturing, the manieuring, the fondling and the developing of the so-called attractions (Heaven pardon the hyporritical term!) of a society lap dog as the first purpose of her life, then I will that she should go the life the full length and either eat with the dog or let the dog eat with her. If she objects she can get a divorce and I will seek a natural woman for my life-mate.

Honest, now, Ben, wasn't his philosophy good?—Canadian Record.

MANUFACTURERS AND UNION LABOR HAVE "GROUP MARKETING;" FARMERS DO NOT

A great deal is being said about the cut in wages in the industrial world, these cuts usually being around 15 or 20 per cent.

The farmer, on the other hand, has had a cut of 50 to 66 2-3 per cent in the value of his products, and this has in some cases wiped out practically all wages for labor. For example, a short time ago Dr. W. W. Long, of the South Carolina Extension Service, said:

"Recently, in urging increased acreage in cover crops to enrich our soils, I pointed out that our fertilizer bills would total $50,000,000, and that it would take 670,000 bales at 15 cents to pay this fertilizer bill. This last figure is over 50 per cent of the crop to pay the fertilizer bill alone. Add to this 180,000 bales to pay for pickling and 60,000 bales to pay for ginning, and we have a total of 910,000 bales, or 73 per cent of the estimated yield."

War-time wages of industrial labor climbed higher than wages of farm labor, and yet industrial labor, as a rule, has its wages cut only 15 to 20 per cent, and farm labor two to three times as much.

Why this discrimination? One of the chief reasons is that industrial labor has co-operative marketing of the only thing it has for sale—the daily labor of its members. The farmer sells what he has to sell individually.

We need always to keep in mind the truth which Mr. George W. Russell, of the Irish Homestead, has so often pointed out—namely, that a labor union is really a co-operative marketing association. It sells the one thing which the town workers have to sell, their labor, and gets the best possible price for it.

Of course, it is plain enough, as are saying elsewhere, that while the farmer sells individually, the manufacturing world has group marketing. One single agency not only sells the product of several hundred or several thousand laborers in a factory, but often of several factories—possibly several dozens, scores or hundreds of factories. The farmer is the only man still doing his marketing as Adam did—we are saying elsewhere, that while to market for himself what he has to sell. The manufacturing world would not think of continuing such each individual farmer attempting a system, and industrial labor would be helpless and poverty-stricken if it depended on it.

"Group Marketing" is the only system which maintains either for manufacturers or industrial labor. How much longer will the farmer try to get along without its help?—The Progressive Farmer.

Wellington, Feb. 24.—R. H. Coker, Sr., pioneer citizen of Wellington, died at his home here yesterday.

Mr. Coker was almost 79, and has been a resident of Collingsworth county for some thirty-three years, coming to this county when there were only three or four families in the county. He has always been of good health and very lively until he became sick in December. He took a keen interest in the late war, cheering every man that left for the training camp, giving advice to them from experience in the Civil War, where he proved himself to be a hero. Mr. Coker was a charter member of the Masonic lodge here. He leaves seven children.

POST BOY AWAKENS FROM 25-DAY SLEEP

Lubbock, Feb. 24.—Beckum Fortune, the 15-year-old youth from Post City who has been under treatment at this place for the past week, awoke from his twenty-five day sleep this morning and took food and talked for a few minutes.

The boy is reported to have gone to sleep twenty-five days ago and that this is the first signs of being awake he has given in that time.

A second case under treatment at this place for the same sleeping sickness is that of a 16-year-old girl, Amelle Guthrie from Crosbyton, who has been asleep fourteen days, also woke up today and is sitting up.

The boy is still paralyzed in part of his limbs, according to reports, but is doing well.

FACTS ABOUT COTTON

More than three bales of cotton, averaging 500 pounds in weight, have been grown on a single acre in South Carolina.

The estimated number of working cotton spindles in the United States is about 35,000,000, of which 15,000,000 are in cotton growing states.

The largest cotton crop ever planted in the United States was 37,458,000 acres in 1913, which yielded 14,156,486 bales, 500 pound equivalents, of lint.

America's greatest crop of cotton—16,134,930 bales—was grown on 36,832,000 acres.

The knowledge of cotton growing wild in islands of the West Indies is as old as the history of their discovery by the Spaniards in 1492.

Arkwright, Hargreaves and Crompton are the great names connected with invention of cotton spinning machinery. They were Englishmen.

Eli Whitney, an American, invented the saw-gin. The original patent was March 14, 1794.

On account of the labor involved in separating the lint from the seed by hand, cotton was of unknown commercial importance prior to the invention of Whitney's gin.
