FIRST NUMBER LYCEUM COURSE SATURDAY NIGHT

The first number of our Lyceum course will be given at the Legion Theatre Saturday night. This number is an exceptionally good one and a big crowd is expected to be present on the opening night. The Gale Company is a better class of entertainers than is usually included in a circuit of this kind, and we are assured that everyone who attends will enjoy the evening.

The Lyceum course has been placed under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association, and any profits made on the sale of tickets will be turned over to the P.-T. Association.

The price of season tickets has been placed very low this year, in order to enable everyone to enjoy the programs. $1.75 will admit an adult to all of the programs, and $1.00 for children. Single admissions to the number Saturday night will be 50c and 25c. Buy your season tickets this week and enjoy the whole series and at the same time help the Parent-Teachers Ass'n.

The News extends sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

HALLOWEEN SOCIAL

Tuesday night about twenty-five friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Coffey for a Halloween social. The guests were met at the door by spooks who directed them to the back door, where they were admitted to a room decorated in the usual Halloween style. Refreshments suitable to the occasion were served.

BIG RODEO MEET AT MEMPHIS

Memphis, Oct. 31.—The American Legion is staging a big Cowboy's Frontier Celebration for Memphis on Nov. 9th, 10th and 11th.

Quite a list of special features are being planned, and some of the most famous bronc riders and broncs in the west will be present to entertain the big crowds expected. The Memphis Legionnaires are a live bunch, full of pep and energy, and there will be something done every minute of the three big days of celebration.

HOPE OF OPENING

On account of the Lyceum number at the Legion Theatre Saturday night, the pictures will start normal at 8 o'clock. The Lyceum number will start immediately after the pictures. This number promises to be a good one, and a big crowd is expected to attend the Lyceum performance.

Local Station, the popular Rock Island Agent, has bought a new Ford Sedan from Bentley Motor Co.

A. W. Haynes left Wednesday for Oklahoma, on business.

On the Road of Good Intentions

OIL WELL AT ALANREED HAS BEEN CAPPED

The Smith No. 1 test of the Harvey Oil Co. at Alanreed has been temporarily capped and the gas piped outside the derrick, where the noise of the escaping gas can be plainly heard. The gas is lighted at times for the inspection of visitors and a blaze of fire about six feet long shoots from the pipe.

The fishing job has been completed, and it is understood that just as soon as the company makes some changes the well will be pushed to completion.

McLEAN WINS FROM WHEELER

The McLean Tigers played the Wheeler football eleven last Saturday, the game resulting in a score of 55 to 0 in favor of McLean. It is an admitted fact that the McLean High School has as good a football team of its class as any school in the Panhandle, and we expect to develop some championship material before the season ends.

MONUMENT TO OLD TRAIL DRIVERS TO BE ERECTED

San Antonio, Oct. 30.—The Old Trail Drivers' Association, with headquarters at this city, has started a movement to raise funds for the erection of a $30,000.00 monument to the memory of the men who "went up the trail" to Kansas in the early days. These men had a big part in the making of Texas history, and it is befitting that they should be remembered in a worthy way. Geo. W. Saunders, Union Stock Yards, San Antonio, has charge of raising the funds.

TEXLINE MAY HAVE HOSPITAL

Texline, Nov. 1.—There is talk of issuing bonds for the building of a municipal hospital for Texline. All property owners who have been approached on the proposition are in favor of the bond issue.

CLARENDON COLLEGE PLAYS WELL ATTENDED

The plays offered by the Dramatic Club of Clarendon College at the Legion Theatre last Thursday night were well attended. Clarendon College has a reputation of giving your money's worth in offerings of this kind, and Thursday's play was no exception. Two of the plays showed rare ability, and all did their best to please.

The new plant will be modern in every detail, being as near fire proof as possible. The front of the office will be of brick, with plate glass windows, and the sheds will be of corrugated iron construction.

Dr. Lear M. Jones, dentist, of Childress was a business visitor in McLean several days this week.

RABBIT DRIVE PLANNED FOR CHRISTMAS WEEK

A number of rabbit drives are being planned for Christmas week. County Agent R. O. Dunkle tells us that plans and organization will be perfected Monday night at the Community Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Everybody will be welcome to participate in the drives, and those who, for any reason cannot be present Monday night, are requested to give their names to Mr. Dunkle, so that it can be known just how many can be depended on to take part in the drives.

Rabbit drives are of great benefit to the farmers, and contribute quite a bit of wholesome fun to those taking part in the drive.

McLEAN TO PLAY CHILDRESS

The McLean football team will play the fast Childress squad on the Childress grounds today (Friday). Childress claims an undefeated team on their own grounds for the last 12 years, but Coach Baxter says the Tigers are going to Childress with a fighting spirit that will win. This game is expected to be the hardest fought game of the season.

A QUIET HALLOWEEN

Halloween passed off without the usual destruction of property. A number of Deputy City Marshals were sworn in and the lights in the business district kept burning all night, with the result that the boys had plenty of fun without damaging property.

ANNUAL SALE PUREBRED HOGS NOVEMBER 25TH

The McLean Pure Bred Livestock Association will put on a hog sale Saturday, November 25th. Nothing but top hogs will be allowed in this sale. All hogs not up to standard for breeding purposes will be sold on the open market. Some of the best hogs in this country will be offered in this sale, and it will pay anyone to secure some of these fine animals for their breeding pens. A great many breeders over the Panhandle are having to sell their hogs on the open market and take a loss. This means that there will be a good demand for breeding stock next fall. The man who stays in the hog business now is the man who will win next year.

PAMPA WATER TANK SHIPPED

Pampa, Oct. 30.—The 75,000 gallon steel tank, which will be the reservoir for Pampa's water works, has been shipped from Pittsburg, and will be placed on the big concrete foundation which is now almost complete, immediately upon its arrival here. The tank alone weighs 46 tons and is being shipped knocked down. Two flat cars are required to transport it.

NOTABLES TO BE IN BIG HUNT IN WHEELER CO.

Arrangements are now being made for a big quail hunt in Wheeler county in December, and among those who will be here will be W. W. Boyd, State Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, Senator W. H. Bledsoe, Col. Bill Sterrett of the Dallas News, Representatives Satterwhite, Young and Jennings, and several members of the committee for the game preserve and fish hatchery for the Panhandle.

While this distinguished party is here a meeting will be held and plans will be made toward securing a fish hatchery and game preserve for the Panhandle. It is thought that by holding this hunt here interest will be created in securing the game preserve for Wheeler county. At the same time the county will receive a great deal of publicity through the pen of Col. Sterrett, who is one of the greatest writers in the South.—Shamrock Texan.

AMARILLO EXPOSITION

Amarillo, Nov. 1.—The Jobbers & Manufacturers' Association of Amarillo will, on November 23, 24 and 25, stage in this city what is conceded to be the greatest industrial exposition ever attempted in the Southwest. It has been announced by officials of the organization.

Amarillo jobbers and manufacturers are urging the retail merchants of the entire Panhandle to lend their co-operation in making the exposition truly representative of the industrial activities here, and many of the merchants and business men are responding, and will urge their customers to attend the exposition.

The financial budget for the enterprise has been assured and commitments from the association are at work arranging the details. In connection with the showing of manufactured products and merchandise jobbed through this point, a program of music and entertainment of exceptional merit is being arranged, including band music, orchestra music, vaudeville performances, dancing and other forms of entertainment.

And Mother didn't say anything about Paul Mayhew—then. But only a few days later she told me to invite him again to the house (this time to a chafing-dish supper), and to ask Carrie Heywood and Fred Small, too. We had a beautiful time, only again Paul Mayhew didn't "show off" at all in the way I wanted him to—though he most emphatically "showed off" in his way! It seemed to me that he bragged even more about himself and his belongings than he had before. And I didn't like at all the way he ate his food. Why, Father didn't eat like that—with such a noisy mouth, and such a rattling of the silverware!

And so it went—wise mother that she was! Far from prohibiting me to have anything to do with Paul Mayhew, she let me see all I wanted to of him, particularly in my own home. She let me go out with him, properly chaperoned, and she never, by word or manner, hinted that she didn't admire his conceit and braggadocho.

And it all came out exactly as I suspect she had planned from the beginning. When Paul Mayhew asked to be my escort to the class reception in June, I declined with thanks, and immediately afterward told Fred Small I would go with him. But even when I told Mother nonchalantly, and with carefully averted eyes, that I was going to the reception with Fred Small—even then her pleasant "Well, that's good!" conveyed only cheery mother interest; nor did a hasty glance into her face discover so much as a lifted eyebrow to hint, "I thought you'd come to your senses sometime!"

Wise little mother that she was!

In the days and weeks that followed (though nothing was said) I detected a subtle change in certain matters, however. And as I look back at it now, I am sure I can trace its origin to my "affair" with Paul Mayhew. Evidently Mother had no intention of running the risk of any more courtships; also, evidently she intended to know who my friends were. At all events, the old Anderson mansion soon became the rendezvous of all the boys and girls of my acquaintance. And such good times as we had, with Mother always one of us, and ever proposing something new and interesting!

And because boys—not a boy, but boys—were as free to come to the house as were girls, they soon seemed to me as commonplace and matter-of-course and free from sentimental interest as were the girls.

Again, wise little mother!

But, of course, even this did not prevent my falling in love with some one older than myself, some one quite outside of my own circle of intimates.

My especial attack of this kind came to me when I was barely eighteen, the spring I was being graduated from the Andersonville High school. And the visible embodiment of my adoration was the head master, Mr. Harold Hartshorn, a handsome, clean-shaven, well-set-up man of (I should judge) thirty-five years of age, rather grave, a little stern, and very dignified.

But how I adored him! How I hung upon his every word, his every glance! How I maneuvered to win from him a few minutes' conversation, on a Latin verb or a French translation! How I thrilled if he bestowed upon me one of his infrequent smiles! How I grieved over his stern aloofness!

By the end of a month I had evolved this: his stern aloofness meant that he had been disappointed in love! his melancholy was loneliness—his heart was breaking. How I longed to help, to heal, to cure! How I thrilled at the thought of the love and companionship I could give him somewhere in a rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd! (He boarded at the Andersonville hotel alone now.) If only he could see it as I saw it. If only by some sign or token he could know of the warm love that was his but for the asking! Could he not see that no longer need he pine alone and unappreciated in the Andersonville hotel? Why, in just a few weeks I was to be through school. And then—

On the night before commencement Mr. Harold Hartshorn ascended our front steps, rang the bell, and called for my father. I knew because I was upstairs in my room over the front door; and I saw him come up the walk and heard him ask for Father.

"Oh, joy! Oh, happy day! He knew, He had seen it as I saw it. He had come to gain Father's permission, that he might be a duly accredited suitor for my hand!

During the next ecstatic ten minutes, with my hand pressed against my wildly beating heart, I planned my wedding dress, selected with care and discrimination my trousseau, furnished the rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd—and wondered why Father did not send for me. Then the slam of the screen door downstairs sent me to the window, a sickening terror within me.

Was he going—without seeing me, his future bride? Impossible!

Father and Mr. Harold Hartshorn stood on the front steps below, talking. In another minute Mr. Harold Hartshorn had walked away, and Father had turned back on to the piazza.

As soon as I could control my shaking knees, I went downstairs.

Father was in his favorite rocking-chair. I advanced slowly. I did not try to keep the shake out of my voice.

"Was that Mr. Hartshorn?" I asked, trying to keep the shake out of my voice.

"Yes."

"Mr. H-Hartshorn," I repeated stupidly.

"Yes. He came to see me about the Downer place," nodded Father. "He wants to rent it for next year."

"To rent it—the Downer place?" (The Downer place was no rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd! Why, it was big and brick, and right next to the hotel! I didn't want to live there.)

"Yes—for his wife and family. He's going to bring them back with him next year," explained Father.

"His wife and family!" I can imagine about how I gasped out those four words.

"Yes. He has five children, I believe, and—"

But I had fled to my room.

After all, my recovery was rapid. I was in love with love, you see; not with Mr. Harold Hartshorn. Besides, the next year I went to college. And it was while I was at college that I met Jerry.

Jerry was the brother of my college friend, Helen Weston. Helen's elder sister was a senior in that same college, and was graduated at the close of my freshman year. The father, mother and brother came on to the graduation. And that is where I met Jerry.

If it might be called meeting him. He lifted his hat, bowed, said a polite nothing with his lips, and an indifferently "Oh, some friend of Helen's," with his eyes, and turned to a radiant blonde senior at my side.

And that was all—for him. But for me—

All that day I watched him whenever opportunity offered; and I suspect that I took care that opportunity offered frequently. I was fascinated. I had never seen any one like him before. Tall, handsome, brilliant, at perfect ease, he plainly dominated every group of which he was a part. Toward of living was entirely new to me, and correspondingly fascinating. From the elaborately uniformed footman that opened the door for me to the awesome French maid who "did" my hair, I adored them all, and moved as in a dream of enchantment. Then came Jerry home from a week-end's trip—and I forgot everything else.

I knew from the minute his eyes looked into mine that whatever I had been before, I was now certainly no mere "Oh, some friend of Helen's." I was (so his eyes said) "a deucedly pretty girl, and one well worth cultivating." Whereupon he began at once to do the "cultivating."

In less than thirty-six hours I was caught up in the whirlwind of his wooing, and would not have escaped it if I could.

When I went back to college he held my promise that if he could gain the consent of Father and Mother, he might put the engagement ring on my finger.

Back at college, alone in my own room, I threw a long breath, and began to think. It was the first chance I had had, for even Helen now had become Jerry—by reflection.

The more I thought, the more frightened, dismayed, and despairing I became. In the clear light of calm, sane reasoning, it was all so absurd, so impossible! What could I have been thinking of? I must forget Jerry.

I pictured him in Andersonville, in my own home. I tried to picture him talking to Father, to Mother.

Absurd. What had Jerry to do with learned treatises on stars, or with the humdrum, everyday life of a stupid, small town? For that matter, what had Father and Mother to do with dancing and motoring and painting society queens' portraits? Nothing.

Plainly, even if Jerry, for the sake of the daughter, liked Father and Mother, Father and Mother certainly would not like Jerry. That was certain.

Of course I cried myself to sleep that night. That was to be expected. Jerry was the world; and the world was lost. There was nothing left except, perhaps, a few remnants and pieces, scarcely worth the counting—excepting, of course, Father and Mother. But one could not always have one's father and mother. There would come a time when—

Jerry's letter came the next day—by special delivery. He had gone straight home from the station and began to write to me. (How like Jerry that was—particularly the special-delivery stamp!) The most of his letter, aside from the usual lover's rhapsodies, had to do with plans for the summer—what we would do together at the Westons' summer cottage in Newport. He said he should run up to Andersonville early—very early; just as soon as I was back from college, in fact, so that he might meet Father and Mother, and put that ring on my finger.

And while I read the letter, I just knew he would do it. Why, I could even see the sparkle of the ring on my finger. But in five minutes after the letter was folded and put away, I knew, with equal certitude—that he wouldn't.

I had been at home exactly eight hours when a telegram from Jerry asked permission to come at once.

As gently as I could I broke the news to Father and Mother. He was Helen's brother. They must have heard me mention him. I knew him well, very well, indeed. In fact, the purpose of this visit was to ask them for the hand of their daughter.

Father frowned and scolded, and said, "Tut, tut!" and that was nothing but a child. But Mother smiled and shook her head, even while she sighed, and reminded him that I was twenty-two whole years older than she was when she married him; though in the same breath she admitted that I was young, and she certainly hoped I'd be willing to wait before I married, even if the young man was all that they could ask him to be.

Father was still a little rebellious, I think, but Mother—bless her dear sympathetic heart!—soon convinced him that they must at least consent to see this Gerald Weston. So I sent the wire inviting him to come.

Jerry came—and he had not been five minutes in the house before it might easily have seemed that he had always been there. He did know about stars; at least, he talked with Father about them, and so as to hold Father's interest, too. And he knew a lot about innumerable things in which Mother was interested. He stayed four days; and all the while he was there, I never so much as thought of ceremonious dress and dinners, and liveried butlers and footmen; nor did it once occur to me that our simple kitchen Nora, and Old John's son at the wheel of our one motorcar, were not beautifully and entirely adequate, so unassumingly and so perfectly did Jerry unmistakably "fit in." (There are no other words that so exactly express what I mean.) And in the end, even his charm and his triumph were so unobtrusively complete that I never thought of being surprised at the prompt capitulation of both Father and Mother.

Jerry had brought the ring. (Jerry always brings his "rings"—and he never fails to "put them on.") And he went back to New York with Mother's promise that I should visit them in July at their cottage in Newport.

him every face was turned—yet he never seemed to know it. (Whatever his faults, Jerry is not conceited. I will give him credit for that!) To me he did not speak again that day, am not sure that he even looked at me. If he did there must still have been in his eyes only the "Oh, some friend of Helen's," that I had seen at the morning introduction.

I did not meet him again for nearly a year; but that did not mean that I did not hear of him. I wonder if Helen ever noticed how often I used to get her to talk of her home and her family life; and how interested I was in her gallery of portraits on the mantel—there were two fine ones of her brother there.

Helen was very fond of her brother. I soon found that she loved to talk about him—if she had a good listener. Needless to say she had a very good one in me.

Jerry was an artist, it seemed. He was twenty-eight years old, and already he had won no small distinction. Prizes, medals, honorable mention, and a special course abroad—all these Helen told me about. She told me, too, about the wonderful success he had just had with the portrait of a certain New York society woman. She said that it was just going to "make" Jerry; that he could have anything he wanted now—anything.

I saw Jerry myself during the Easter vacation of my second year in college. Helen invited me to go home with her, and Mother wrote that I might go. Helen had been home with me for the Christmas vacation, and Mother and Father liked her very much. There was no hesitation, therefore, in their consent that I should visit Helen at Easter time. So I went.

Helen lived in New York. Their home was a Fifth Avenue mansion with nine servants, four automobiles and two chauffeurs. Naturally such a scale

FOR YOUR SCRAPBOOK

He that loses his conscience has nothing left that is worth keeping. And in the next place, look to your health; and if you have it, praise God and value it next to a good conscience, for health is the second blessing that we mortals are capable of—a blessing that money cannot buy. And as for money, which may be said to be the third blessing, neglect it not, but note that there is no necessity of being rich, for there are as many miseries beyond riches as on this side of them; and if you have a competence, enjoy it with a meek, cheerful, thankful heart.—Isaiah Walton.

Four issues make an advertising month. When five issues occur in the calendar month, charge will be made for the extra edition.

From present indication there will be no unemployment problem this winter. There is plenty of work in the great industrial centres now, and it is thought that bread lines will not be necessary this season.

The report of the year's work from the different churches in McLean show an improvement over the previous year's work in all of them. This is a healthy sign. The community cannot be far wrong when the churches prosper.

The purebred hog sale for McLean is to be staged on Nov. 25th. There are some mighty fine animals in this country that will be offered on that date. The action of the committee in barring all undesirable animals will mean much to the buyers.

The proposed monument to the Old Trail Drivers should be of interest to all who live in the Panhandle. The influence of the early cowboys is still felt in our part of Texas. The civilization we enjoy today we owe in great measure to the hardy spirits who blazed the way for us.

The action of the American Legion at Memphis in sending the editors of this paper a complimentary ticket to the big cowboy celebration they are to have in that city on Nov. 9, 10 and 11, is worthy of mention in this day of free space grafters. The chances are we will not be able to attend the celebration, but the thoughtfulness of the Legion boys will be remembered, and we hope their Rodeo will be a success in every way.

The rabbit drive proposed by the County Agent will be worth good money to the farmers of our community. If a market can be obtained for the rabbits, the proceeds from the sale could be used to buy wire for the traps used in the drives. The News suggests that the ladies of the various communities visited provide a picnic dinner for those taking part in the drives. This suggestion is made because we intend to be present.

It is strange how otherwise good men will violate some particular law that they do not see the wisdom of. Many of our good citizens are violators of City ordinances that were passed for the benefit of all concerned. These very citizens would be the first to help their neighbors in case of sickness or misfortune, but through stubbornness are not willing to abide by the laws of their city. The man who has the right viewpoint will obey all laws, even while using his influence to have objectionable laws removed from the statutes.

The Lyceum committee is to be commended for their offer to the Parent-Teachers Association. The P.-T. Association is to have any profits made on the sale of tickets to the Lyceum course and the Lyceum committee will pay all losses. The numbers offered in the course this winter seem to be better than usual and instructive entertainment is to be desired at any time.

The sheriff of Cottle county has ordered all filling stations in the county to close at 12 o'clock Saturday night and remain closed until Monday morning. No violation of the Sunday laws will be tolerated. We have not much use for the church member who will violate both moral and State laws at his own convenience. The men who sell gasoline have just as much right to a day of rest as anyone else, and with very few exceptions, would not open their places of business if the public did not demand it. We have men in our community who wait until they come to church on Sunday to buy their gasoline and liver oil. They do not think of the rights of the garage men and druggists. It is easy enough to anticipate our needs and allow our fellow men the same rights and privileges we take for ourselves, if we will only use our brains a little.

A little warning at this time may be opportune. A move is now on foot by business men of Wellington, assisted by a promoter, to build a railroad from Childress to Canaan. The first effort will be to raise a cash fund to complete the survey. The cost of surveys of this kind are usually more than should be, and this paper believes our people should be careful in raising an extraordinary sum, should one be requested. The Index would like very much to see a railroad constructed over the route proposed, but does not believe in seeing the people deceived and made to pay for their deception. A preliminary survey will cost no large sum and if such is talked then it will be wise not to give at all—Childress Index.

THE ADVERTISING GRAFTER
An advertising grafter hit town last week, and canvassed the merchants so he could raise enough money to carry him along thru the week as he journeyed in the Panhandle.

He came to the Record office with a contract for having the printing done. When he found that he couldn't get the work done for about one-half the price it was really worth—and which would have been a loss to us—he took his little contract along with him and said he would get it printed at some cheap mail order house.

Ever since we have been in the newspaper business we have had experience with these transient advertising grafters. They are usually some fellow who is broke and who works the game to get a stake with. One fellow came to Canadian and asked our price on a few thousand envelopes. The job amounted to $35. He laughed and said: "I am going to get orders from Canadian merchants for envelopes. If I can get the orders this job will bring me $115." There was no merit to his scheme except to pick up some easy money. We wouldn't do the work and he left Canadian without the orders.

So it goes in the printing business. Advertising is publicity, and publicity which doesn't put the idea across with the buying or employing public is money thrown away. Beware of the stranger who is in town only a day, gets your order for some trick advertising scheme, and then leaves before the work is even delivered. We don't know what became of the advertising solicitor in town last week. If he put his scheme across he picked up a handsome week's wages in a few hours, and then took the work out of town to have it printed.—Canadian Record.

The lure of the big cities is said to ruin more lives than any other thing in this day and age. While the temptations for wrong doing are greater in the cities, and, perhaps, a larger per cent of the population is inclined to break both moral and State laws, the fact remains that there are a great many who are forced to live the artificial life of the city who still keep their spirits untrammelled and free from the taint of wrong doing. A person of this kind has a much stronger character than one who never had to face the temptations the city offers.—McLean News.

We notice in the press a short time ago where there had started a movement, "Back to the city." Only a few years ago a campaign was conducted which had for its purpose, "Back to the farm and farm life." Much was written and many pictures made on farm life and improvements in order to hold the boy and girl on the farm, and we are at a loss to know why there is a tendency to go back to the cities. The country life today is more attractive than it was a few years ago. There is less inducement for the country boy to go to the city, and more inducements and reasons why he should remain on the farm. The automobile has done away with distances and added to the attractiveness of country life. We have better schools in the country than we used to have. We have better community centers, and it is an undisputed fact that we have better morals among the country people than in the cities and towns. They have more religion in the country than in the towns; in fact the country people are the best people on earth. Anyone is foolish to deliberately give up a country life for a town life. We have always envied the man who lives in the country, close to nature and where he has room to stretch himself.—Lockney Beacon.

"THE OMAHA LOVE CALL."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gale of the Gale Company on our Lyceum course are shown here in "The Omaha Love Call" in the costumes of the Omaha Indians. Mr. Gale has made a study of over thirty of the now remaining tribes, recording their songs and legends and collecting specimens of their handicraft. He has gone to some of the most remote of these tribes and secured melodies never before heard by the white man. The purpose of the program songs and stories of the Red Men to be presented is to familiarize white people with the natural characteristics of the Red people, to show the better side of the Indian life to visualize the costumes of different tribes, to help America to realize that the Indians are thinking, feeling loving human beings, reaching out to grasp opportunities given to every alien coming to our shores and denied only to the Indian. To let the people see the Indian as he really is, a child of the great out-of-doors, responding to every varying emotion, expressed mostly through his music and so through his music he may be most truly interpreted. This company consists of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gale and an assistant entertainer in a miscellaneous program of Indian songs and legends, with a variety of other entertaining features. The costumes and exhibits alone for this production weigh 500 pounds.

"A newspaper is quite a bit different from any other line of business. When once established in a good, live, thriving community, it goes on forever. While other lines of business may change management occasionally, the same old paper is issued and read day after day and year after year. There is no use getting peeved at the editor. If he starves out, there is always someone to take his place. You may kill off all the editors you please, but when you come to kill off a well-established newspaper you may just as well give up, for some day it is going to publish your obituary."—Lincoln (O.) Leader.

WORK A LAW OF NATURE

This law of nature is that a certain quantity of work is necessary to produce a certain quantity of good, of any kind whatever. If you want knowledge, you must toil for it; if food, you must toil for it. But men do not acknowledge this law, but strive to evade it, hoping to get their knowledge and food and pleasure for nothing.—John Ruskin.

A DISCUSSION OF THE POLITICAL SITUATION

On last Sunday at the eleven o'clock services at the Methodist church we were lectured on our obligations to support the nominees of the Democratic primary, in which lecture some very erroneous impressions were made, which, if true, would be most detrimental to the purity of politics. In as much as that was no time or place to reply, I wish to take advantage of the kindness of your good paper to reply to same.

The impression was made that no honest, upright man, having gone into the primary, would scratch a nominee, regardless of what might be proven against said nominee after the primary was held. Now if this was true it would drive from our political primaries the best and most conscientious men and women of our country and any reasonable person can readily see what this would do for the politics of our country. It is a universal rule in law and all courts of justice that when fraud develops afterward that was not known at the time the contract was made, vitiates that contract and no one is bound by the same. It might so develop after the primary that one of our nominees was a most wanton violator of the laws of our country, and no good citizen could afford to vote to send such a man to an office of public trust. I have been a Democrat all my life and I have no recollection of having ever scratched a Democratic ticket, but I never have felt like I have ever obligated myself to support a man whom the courts of our country have proven to be a violator of the laws of our country and then under oath purged himself to cover up the same. I suppose this lecture was given in the interest of Mr. Mayfield for senate, as he is the only nominee in controversy, so far as I know. Now if this testimony was coming from his enemies I would be disposed to discredit the evidence, but in as much as the courts are proving his guilt by the testimony of his closest friends, as would and did set out and make up free will offerings to contribute to his campaign expenses, although we very much deplore having to do so, from every sense of reason we are bound to give credit to the testimony. The office of U. S. Senate is one of the most important offices of our government. A man's political influence is worth more there than most any other position in our government, and above all we want true, good men in that position. If a man proves untrue before he gets there what may we expect of him when he gets there, where he has all the aluring offers of the combinations of puditory wealth to sell his influence to do evil?

Yours for good government and civic righteousness, C. E. Anderson. (Paid Advertisement).

RED CROSS HEALS WOUNDS OF WAR

25,000 Disabled Ex-Service Men in Hospitals After Four Years of Peace.

CHAPTERS' FIELD OF SERVICE

Every Veteran Needing Help Gets Individual Attention of Sympathetic Workers.

When on November 11 the world halts to observe the fourth anniversary of Armistice Day, and the American Red Cross inaugurates its Annual Roll Call for the enrollment of the 1923 membership, the people of the United States may well pause to think of the unparalleled contribution to the cause of peace made by our Army and Navy in the World War. The glory of it is a common tradition; but the wounds of war remain. They are not healed in a day, in a year, nor in four years. And on Armistice Day there will be under treatment in Government hospitals over 25,000 ex-service men, broken physically by wounds, exposure, nervous strain and exhaustion incident to their service in the war.

The Government without stint is undertaking to furnish these disabled men with the compensation and medical care to which they are entitled, yet their especial care is a duty of the Red Cross. Why? Because the Government cannot handle the cases of ex-service men individually; it must handle these men in bulk under a standardized policy. The Government has neither the authority, the funds or the equipment for working out the problem of the individual man. There is where the American Red Cross finds its greatest field for service, aiding through its very active Chapters in reaching the disabled man with immediate practical help, assisting his family while his claim is emerging from the process of adjustment, furnishing articles of comfort, funds to tide over the difficult periods, the friendly touch of personal encouragement, helpful recreation and worry-dispelling amusement. It is the warm hand of sympathy and understanding which the American Red Cross extends to the majority of these disabled ex-service men, some of them friendless in the whirl of life, thousands of them with wives and children dependent upon them, and hundreds of them frequently helpless in the face of grim necessity.

2,679 Chapters Aiding Veterans
In this work, upon whose accomplishment the American Red Cross is arguing a record-breaking enrollment in the Roll Call which opens on Armistice Day and closes with Thanksgiving Day, 2,679 Chapters in all parts of the country are engaged. This is 350 more than were working for ex-service men last year when approximately $10,000,000 was expended by the National Organization and the Chapters working together in harmonious unity. For the current fiscal year National Headquarters appropriated $3,000,000, an increase of $305,500.84 over the amount spent for the work among ex-service men in the year ended June 30 last. Since it is estimated that the Chapters will expend close to $7,000,000 from their own funds, the grand total of Red Cross expenditures for this single work is expected again to reach the $10,000,000 mark by June 30, 1923.

Hospital and District Office Work
During the fiscal year a total of over 1,000 persons, paid and volunteer, has been engaged in Red Cross duty in hospitals or district offices of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. An average of 8,000 new cases requires definite and particular attention each month. The demand for Chapter-made articles for hospital patients is constant.

During last year Service Claims and Information Service at National Headquarters handled 37,200 compensation and insurance claims, 24,500 allotment and allowance cases, and 9,700 miscellaneous claims. Since February, 1919, it has disposed of 64,174 allotment checks payable to veterans which the Post Office Department reported undeliverable.

The Chapter is the unit of the Red Cross organization which is accessible to every disabled veteran or his family. Between July 1, 1921, and June 30, 1922, the Chapters had reported 1,905,079 instances of service to ex-service men and their dependents, at a cost estimated from reports, now at hand of more than $5,340,000.

The basis of this far-reaching work of the Red Cross is the individual needs of the disabled veteran to the end that he may obtain his rights under the law, that his especial wants may be immediately supplied, that his own and his family's situation may be rendered happy and cheerful, and that their outlook for the future may visualize incentives for independent and fruitful effort.

Spread Christmas Joy Abroad
More than 100,000 Christmas boxes for the children of Central Europe were packed by the Junior Red Cross last year. The spread of Christmas joy through these boxes will be largely increased this year because of the plans already under way.

Your Peace-Time "Bit"
Not "all you can," but your "bit," $1, makes for strength of the American Red Cross in peace-time service. Strength in numbers multiplies very soon. Join today.

TEACHERS MUST COME CLEAN ON TOBACCO QUESTION

Will H. Brown
The sentiment against employing teachers in our public schools who use tobacco is almost reaching the proportions of a tidal wave. In several states teachers who use tobacco are turned down, regardless of how capable they may be.

Lorraine E. Wooster, State Superintendent of schools in Kansas, has issued a drastic order, in part as follows: "No recommendations for school positions will be made for teachers, instructors or superintendents who use tobacco in any form. No State certificates or institute certificates will be issued tobacco users. Schools and colleges which permit the use of tobacco by administrative heads, instructors or pupils cannot remain on the accredited list. Credits sent to the State Department from normals, schools, colleges and universities where the heads of these institutions, faculty members or students use tobacco in any form, will not be accepted for certification."

The Board of Education of the State Normal Schools of Nebraska has adopted a resolution that hereafter instructors in any of the Normal Schools of the State will be refused leaves of absence to study or attend the Universities of Columbia, Chicago and Northwestern, "because cigarette smoking is common among women in these institutions." A member of the Board says of the action: "The tobacco evil is so great that it should be utterly discountenanced by every institution that trains teachers."

The Michigan State Normal School recently dismissed four women students for smoking, not even permitting them to graduate.
