Money

What drove Mr. Roosevelt out of the inflation back to new taxes and sound money was the team of Douglas and Woodin. They are named in the order of their importance.

While Woodin has the front office job of Treasury Secretary, the Budget Director Douglas has already established himself as the Warwick of this administration. You cannot get anything done without him.

Other budgeteers were czars on the subjects of lead pencil scribbles and major expense accounts. It was a trivial business. General Dawes once quit for that reason.

Douglas has been given the power to play a billion dollar game. He is playing it hard.

Mr. Roosevelt has been calling Douglas into private sessions of the cabinet. He does not have a regular chair but he sits in the background and they ask him questions. He knows more about the intricacies of government finance than any of them.

In these meetings he and Woodin had the passive cooperation of State Secretary Hull for the sound money path. A majority of the cabinet unquestionably favors outright inflation.

The Douglas arguments were that inflation would hurt government credit, that it was not necessary and that a credit inflation would do just as well.

He is supposed to have had Mr. Roosevelt talked out of the public works bond issue program at one time. He and Woodin opposed it on the inside.

Their views were submitted confidentially by the president to certain congressmen. These men threw up their hands in horror. They whispered that you could not get this congress to adjourn without passing some direct re-employment measure. They were right about that. The public works plan was immediately put back on the program.

Gentlemen at the keyhole say Mr. Roosevelt played the monitor in the debate after that. He did not participate. He let the boys fight it out among themselves.

That is why you are getting the fifty-fifty compromise now being offered. It has the sound money support demanded by Douglas and Woodin. Also the employment theories of the inflationists.

Sales Tax—The democratic congressional leaders were practically unanimous against the sales tax in that private meeting recently with Mr. Roosevelt.

Speaker Rainey and Floor Leader Byrnes advised strongly against it. They said they would swallow their pride and put it through if the president demanded but he would have to demand it before they would budge. They pointed out it would be very embarrassing for the 180 members of the house who voted against the sales tax last session.

They were joined also by Senator Pat Harrison. His state has a sales tax. He naturally wants that method reserved to the states. Only Senate Floor Leader Robinson was non-committal.

Such an outpouring of congressional opposition put a crimp in Budget Director Douglas. He is one who thought up the sales tax idea. His confidential figures show a levy of 1.08 per cent would raise the $220,000,000 they need annually to amortize the public works bond issue.

Big Spring Woman, In Frail Health, Goes Into Lake Waters At Night And Saves Husband After Boat Capsizes

Friends of Mrs. Clinton R. Jenkins of Big Spring Saturday were urging that application be made for an award to her for bravery shown Wednesday night of last week when she rescued her husband from drowning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were members of a party on a fishing trip at the lake north of Highway 1 between Big Spring and Stanton. Mr. Jenkins and two other men were in a small motor boat to lay trot lines.

The boat capsized far out in the lake. Two of the occupants held onto one end of the craft, which floated. Mr. Jenkins only chance to escape was to swim ashore.

This he attempted. However, weight of his clothing and shoes and the long distance to shore were him down.

Hearing his cries for help out of the darkness his wife, a frail woman who has been in ill health, quickly stripped her dress from her body, kicked off her shoes, threw her eye glasses aside and went into the water.

She succeeded in bringing her husband, completely exhausted, ashore.

Mrs. Jenkins was reported to have become highly nervous after reaching her home here and was still confined to bed Saturday.

Clippings from newspapers in Texas of articles dealing with preparations and the holding of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here amounted to more than 18,000 column inches or 89 full pages of a regulation sized 8-column newspaper.

This is shown by the small sale of clippings received by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce from a clipping service subscribed to for three months in order that a direct check might be made of publicity actually used by daily and weekly papers of the state.

The clippings are being pasted on large boardboard slabs and will be exhibited.

Frontier Times Museum At Bandera Opened Saturday Made Possible By Hunter's Book On Sam Bass & Gang

BANDERA (UP)—Sam Bass and his gang of outlaws, dynamic personalities in a colorful period of Texas history, posthumously must receive some of the credit for the Frontier Times Museum dedicated here today.

For, ironically enough, there is a close connection between the badmen, whose watchword was "facination and whose lives never were secure more than a few hours, and the static collection of museum pieces, timeless in quality, established in this peaceful community 47 miles distant from the bustle of civilization as exemplified by the railroad.

A little more than 10 years ago J. Marvin Hunter left his job in the composing room of the San Antonio Express and came to Bandera to take over publication of a small country weekly. He brought with him little but vision and a scrapbook of authentic, first-hand accounts of events important in Texas history.

From his vision and the scrapbook he built "The Frontier Times," a magazine of national, and even international, circulation, published at Bandera.

Tales of winning the frontier from the Indians and the elements, autobiographical notes written by pioneers, and all the significant and colorful ana of a state in the making, found their way from the scrapbook to the magazine, winning devoted readers in every walk of life.

Several books, supplementary to the magazine, were born in Hunter's brain and published in the which. Elder Lyman Wright brought to Bandera in 1854 to grind meal for the Mormon colony which had settled here. Beside it is an infinitely more antique cousin, a grinding stone used by Indians.

Among the museum pieces are hundreds of relics of an early day including rifles, pistols, muskets, spinning wheels, saddles, cooking utensils and farm tools. Irises, spurs, powder horns, bullet moulds and photographs of early Texans including rangers, desperadoes, and other personalities of the frontier.

Among the books published under the imprint of the Frontier Times was "Authentic History of Sam Bass and His Gang," Hunter, in times when hardly anyone else was thinking of selling or building anything, decided to market enough copies of the book to pay for the museum building.

Friends of the magazine rallied around the book, bought copies of it, made Saturday's dedication ceremonies, including an all-day barbecue, possible.

Unique Building—The museum building, which after today will be open free to the public each week day, is built of field stone in Mission style. Built into the walls are stalactites and stalagmites, fossils petrified wood, and curious stones of all kinds gathered in the hill country.

An old well-top frames a window in which is fashioned a profile of Geronimo, the Apache chieftan. The mantel, constructed of fossils, is inlaid with Indian arrow-heads. Just over the mantel is a millstone which Elder Lyman Wright brought to Bandera in 1854 to grind meal for the Mormon colony which had settled here. Beside it is an infinitely more antique cousin, a grinding stone used by Indians.

The program opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag, in unison. Prof. Hutto related the facts in the case of the death of Raymond Mendosa.

The National Court of Honor has examined with sorrow and admiration the details of the accident in which your son Raymond lost his life in an effort to save the life of his brother from drowning in a ditch of hot water and acid; sorrow that this young life should have been sacrificed; admiration for the true Scout spirit which brought his instant response to the need of his brother in danger.

Please accept from the members of the National Court of Honor assurance of deep sympathy in the loss of your son, and of sincere pride in his brave manly spirit, which put his brother's need before thought of self.

Fraternally yours, BOYS SCOUTS OF AMERICA. (Signed): Daniel Carter Beard, Chairman, National Court of Honor and National Scout Commissioner.

Odessa Man May Receive Federal Job

W. R. Smith, Jr., Seen As Next Federal Attorney

ODESSA—W. R. Smith, Jr., district attorney of the 70th judicial district of Texas, and son of the late W. R. Smith, who served as congressman from the sixteenth district and as federal judge of the Western District of Texas, is considered the most probable choice of the Texas senators for recommendation to the post of United States district attorney for the Western district of Texas, to succeed John D. Hartman of San Antonio.

Mark Goodwin, Washington correspondent of The Dallas News, recently had the following to say in a dispatch to his newspaper:

"The Texas Senators probably will insist that Hartman be displaced by a Democrat as he already has had the office for twelve years. The probability is that W. R. Smith, Jr., of Odessa will be recommended for the appointment. He is son of the late William Robert Smith, who represented the 18th district in Congress for a number of years and following his defeat by Thomas L. Blanton, was appointed to the Federal bench in the Western district, serving until his death."

Joan Crawford And Gary Cooper Here In "Today We Live"

Greatly Anticipated Film With Popular Couple Doing Leading Roles Arrives Here

Stars Of 'Letty Lynton' And 'A Farewell To Arms' Have Never Appeared Together On The Screen Before

The greatly anticipated co-starring vehicle for Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper, "Today We Live," opens today at the Ritz Theatre as one of the major productions to come from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Miss Crawford, whose work in "Letty Lynton" and "Grand Hotel" definitely placed her as the outstanding emotional player on the screen today, and Cooper, who recently contributed a memorable performance in "A Farewell to Arms," have never appeared together on the screen before.

Their first co-starring appearance is an auspicious event in cinema history, for it takes place in a filmization of a story by the brilliant American writer William Faulkner, whose novels, "Sanctuary" and "Light in August," have created a literary furor. In "Today We Live" Faulkner has written a story about the dramatic experiences of an English society girl who offers her services to England during the World War in an ambulance unit, and falls in love with an American flyer. The production was directed by Howard Hawks, who produced the successful "Scarface," and the supporting cast includes Robert Young, the New York stage juvenile Franchot Tone,

Roscoe Karns, Louise Closser Hale, Rollo Lloyd and Hilda Vaughn. In "Today We Live," Miss Crawford finds herself the center of an emotional conflict between three men, two of whom lose their lives in her behalf. The powerful story shifts from the aristocratic country estates of the heroine to dynamic episodes in the battle zones of the war, with what is said to be one of the most terrific climaxes ever depicted on the screen occurring when one of the star's lovers gets a "death order" to blow up a ship from which there will be no return. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is said to have placed all the facilities at its disposal to Director Hawks in the filming of this picture, which is reported to be one of the outstanding talkie productions of the year.

Junior High Faculty Meets Together In Last Social Function

The faculty members of the Junior high school met at the Crawford Hotel Thursday evening for their annual get-together before the close of school. A delicious dinner was served, after which four tables of players engaged in bridge and forty-two.

Misses Lillian Shick, Frances McNew and Nell Hutton attended the dinner but did not stay for the games.

The men played forty-two and were each presented with a nice prize for making such good scores. Cut prizes were given to the women; the lucky ones were: Misses Evans, Antley and Mrs. Paulsen.

The players were: Supt. and Mrs. W. C. Blankenship, Prin. and Mrs. George Gentry, Prin. and Mrs. D. H. Reed, Mrs. M. W. Paulsen; Misses Lorena Huggins, Letha Anderson, Clara Secret, Agnes Currie, Marie Johnson, Ethel Evans, Eleanor Antley and Jeannette Pickle; and Mr. Ross Wright.

Neil Wright, well-known Lubbock insurance man, was here Friday.

On their return to town they stopped to visit a sick member, Joyce Croft, and took her a little gift.

Those attending the party were: Mary Francis Taylor, Emma Ruth Stripling, Ruth and Peggy Thomas, Billy Beas Shive, Joyce Terry, Dorothy Parmley, Frankie Martin, Lois Thompson, Kawana Smith, Maxine Howie, Jessie May Gill, Betty Lee Eddy, Rita Mae Bigony.

Ruth Chatterton Has Husband For Leading Man In 'Lily Turner' On R & R Ritz Theater Bill Thursday

Film Shows Magicians In Competition

Unique Plot Employed In 'Trick For Trick' At Queen

Following her brilliant success in "Frisco Jenny," which movie fans by their enthusiastic attendance proved that was the type of role they'd like to see Ruth Chatterton in, the First National studio again cast her in a down-to-earth role. This time she appears in the title role of "Lily Turner" which comes to the Ritz Theatre Thursday.

Advances reports from Hollywood says that Miss Chatterton has even eclipsed her extraordinary fine work in "Frisco Jenny."

"Lily Turner," which has been adapted to the screen from the New York stage success, is a story of a beautiful girl, whose beauty and figure are used as a "come-on" for yokels, by the owner of a traveling health exhibit, which she joins after a hard checked career.

Playing the title role, Chatterton, who amazed Hollywood by actually doing a "cooch" dance in lights instead of using a double, in the picture, is said to give a sublime characterization with her dramatic power, rising to great heights.

George Brent, for the first time since his marriage to Ruth Chatterton, appears with her in the same picture as the health exhibit's strong man. They had both appeared together in "The Crash" but that picture had been made before their marriage.

Guy Kibbee, last seen in "2nd Street," is cast as Dr. McMillan, the owner of the traveling health exhibit, while Frank McHugh plays the role of Lily Turner's drunken husband.

All told there are eleven splendid players who appear opposite Chatterton. These include Ruth Donnelly, Gordon Wesscott, Grant Mitchell, and Mae Busch.

'The Keyhole' On Tuesday At Ritz Theater

Kay Francis and George Brent In Park Avenue Penthouse Story

"The Keyhole," a Warner Bros production that brings a new motion picture team in Kay Francis and George Brent to the screen of the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday, is an enthralling different picture, presenting the gaiety and luxury of Park Avenue penthouses and the glamor of balmy nights under a Cuban moon, with native rechasras dispensing pulsating Spanish rhythms in every cafe to welcome Havana's pleasure loving crowds at the height of the season.

A picture that offers two such outstanding favorites in the principal roles, is in itself something out of the ordinary as an attraction. The popularity of the lovely, dark-haired Kay Francis has been growing by leaps and bounds the past year, while George Brent, who flashed into the limelight only a year ago as the brilliant author in "The Rich Are Always With Us" with Ruth Chatterton, has gone steadily on making good the promise of his early performances.

Now these two fascinating players are brought together in a story that is notable for its unusual situations and tense dramatic moments. The screen play by Robert Fressell, based on Alice D. Miller's story "Adventures," is all that the name implies. The plot concerns a dancer who marries a rich society man who is so jealous of her he engages a private detective to follow and spy on her.

The detective, of a higher class type than the usual private spy however, is portrayed by George Brent as a personable and charming man about town. He falls under the spell of the dancer's beauty and charm almost from the moment he meets her on the steamer that is taking them both to the Antilles. From that moment the drama takes unexpected twists and turns to a startling and surprising climax.

Kay Francis, as the dancer, according to advance reports is said to have her finest role. Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins supply no inconsiderable fun as a comedy team.

T. Allen, Annie Schull, Eva Fox, Stella Tyson, Elmo Henry, Edna Knowles, Daphne Smith, Gertrude Wasson, Mignone Crunk, Frank Powell.

Disappearance of Wild Flowers and Native Shrubs Under the Onslaughts of Choppers and Pluckers

Disappearance of wild flowers and native shrubs under the onslaughts of choppers and pluckers led to the offering of the bill. Most members treated it as a joke and assumed it was intended to prevent the spread of a great evil to the people's moral character.

"Don't let our children grow up to be a race of flower-pluckers," was the general tone of ridicule heaped in the measure.

One member declared he would not deprive children of today of the great pleasure he derived as a boy in stopping on the way to school to pick flowers for the teacher.

Amendments were offered to exclude the "Wild Irish Rose," to include "wild oats" and to protect various weeds and Johnson Grass.

One section of the bill that will have a very practical effect in preventing the disappearance of native shrubbery remains in the bill. It prohibits the display for sale of holly, yupon, smilax, dogwood, red bed, greybeard, jessamine, bluebonnets, Indian blankets cactus, galardias, gentians, gay feathers, evergreen of decorative trees, shrubs, vines, flowers, ferns or moss that have been picked, cut or dug in violation of the act.

Penetrating the mass of surface maneuvers in connection with the retention of reprimands, Jed C. Adams of Dallas as the Texas member of the National Democratic Executive Committee, the moves seem to have been:

State Democratic Chairman Mervyn Hughes seems to have persuaded Adams some months ago by announcing that Texas patronage would have to get the OK of the state democratic committee.

When Adams decided to resign and accept a federal appointment, news he was quitting got to James

Disappearance of Wild Flowers and Native Shrubs Under the Onslaughts of Choppers and Pluckers

Disappearance of wild flowers and native shrubs under the onslaughts of choppers and pluckers led to the offering of the bill. Most members treated it as a joke and assumed it was intended to prevent the spread of a great evil to the people's moral character.

"Don't let our children grow up to be a race of flower-pluckers," was the general tone of ridicule heaped in the measure.

One member declared he would not deprive children of today of the great pleasure he derived as a boy in stopping on the way to school to pick flowers for the teacher.

Amendments were offered to exclude the "Wild Irish Rose," to include "wild oats" and to protect various weeds and Johnson Grass.

One section of the bill that will have a very practical effect in preventing the disappearance of native shrubbery remains in the bill. It prohibits the display for sale of holly, yupon, smilax, dogwood, red bed, greybeard, jessamine, bluebonnets, Indian blankets cactus, galardias, gentians, gay feathers, evergreen of decorative trees, shrubs, vines, flowers, ferns or moss that have been picked, cut or dug in violation of the act.

Penetrating the mass of surface maneuvers in connection with the retention of reprimands, Jed C. Adams of Dallas as the Texas member of the National Democratic Executive Committee, the moves seem to have been:

State Democratic Chairman Mervyn Hughes seems to have persuaded Adams some months ago by announcing that Texas patronage would have to get the OK of the state democratic committee.

When Adams decided to resign and accept a federal appointment, news he was quitting got to James

Joe E. Brown, In 'Elmer The Great' Plays Real-Life Role As Baseball Star; He Owns Part Of K. C. Stock

Miss Lombard Has Lead For Queen Picture

'Supernatural' Weird Tale Of Girl Possessed Of Killer's Instinct

Followers of Joe E. Brown will see the versatile comedian in what is probably the greatest role of his long laugh-making career when his latest First National picture, "Elmer The Great," opens at the Ritz Theatre next Friday.

There is every reason why this hilarious comedy-drama of big league baseball should fit Joe E. Brown more perfectly than any role he has yet played. Joe's middle name should have been baseball, for if making millions laugh in his business, baseball is his hobby. In fact, it has been more than a hobby with Joe, for he was once a big league player himself. For several years he has maintained his own semi-professional team in Southern California, and recently he topped all his previous baseball activities by buying an interest in the Kansas City baseball club.

Ring Lardner doubtless didn't have Joe E. Brown in mind when he wrote, in dramatic form, the life story of Elmer Kane, as only Ring Lardner knows how to write it. But the role of the Gentryville, Indiana, boy who modestly admits that he is the greatest batter the world has ever seen, couldn't fit Joe E. Brown more perfectly if he had been the playwright humorist's official model.

Elmer Kane has three interests in life—eating, sleeping and baseball; and he's a champion at all three.

As if this were not enough to consume all of one man's time and energy, Elmer proceeds to fall in love, with side-splitting complications developing too fast for him.

How Elmer gets into jail, is liberated only to fall into a brand new disgrace and be ruled off the team on the eve of the World's Series games, and how he finally goes to bat and pulls the game out of the mud—literally as well as figuratively—is said to make one of the most uproariously funny pictures that the screen has seen this year.

Mervyn LeRoy, director of many Warner-First National hits, piloted "Elmer The Great" to its winning climax.

A splendid cast of players seconded Joe E. Brown's fun-making efforts. Patricia Ellis is the girl with whom Joe is in love. Frank McHugh, able comedian in such outstanding hits as "One Way Passage," "Parachute Jumper," "Wax Museum," "Ex-Lady" and "Grand Slam," has the role of Joe's buddy, "High-Hips" Healy. Preston S. Foster is seen as the manager of the Chicago club, and Claire Dodd, Begonia Charnell, Emma Dunn and Sterling Holloway have other important roles.

House Engrosses Bill Allowing Departments To Buy Prison Printing

AUSTIN, (UP)—The Texas House of Representatives engrossed a bill authorizing the state prison board to contract with state departments for their printing. The vote was 82 ayes and 41 noes.

The prisons now furnish shoes, clothes and food stuffs to state institutions but a provision of the state constitution says that the state printing shall be done on competitive bidding under contract.

Opponents declared the bill is an admitted effort to "get around" the constitution. Proponents said it will save the state large sums on printing bills that total around $700,000 a year.

A print shop has been installed in the Huntsville penitentiary where printing is taught. Rep. Preston Anderson, San Antonio, world's fastest Linotype operator, offered an amendment to set up a school in the prison with the prison manager as dean. The amendment was ruled out of order.

The Rev. Theodore Francis has returned from the Knights of Columbus convention at Corpus Christi.

Miss Lombard Has Lead For Queen Picture

"Supernatural," a weird tale of a beautiful young girl whose body is possessed by the avenging soul of a murderer, will be seen at the Queen Theatre, where it will open today. Carole Lombard, Randolph Scott, Vivienne Osborne, Allan Dinehart, H. B. Warner and William Farnum head the cast. The picture was produced for Paramount by Victor and Edward Halperin.

The action of "Supernatural" centers around Miss Lombard, who, on the death of her twin brother, becomes susceptible to the guile of Dinehart, a "phony" spiritualist planning to get money from her. Meanwhile, Miss Osborne, betrayed to the police by Dinehart, is executed in the electric chair for murder. Warner, a psychologist interested in psychic phenomena, believes he can prevent her spirit from wreaking further havoc, but his experiments go amiss, and the spirit enters into the body of Miss Lombard.

Immediately the latter becomes warm and tender toward Dinehart. While outwardly truthful and sincere, her inner self, controlled by the spirit of the electrocuted murderer, is awaiting the opportunity to take revenge upon him for his betrayal. On her invitation, they seek seclusion from the people who are trying to protect her. The picture reaches its climax in the attempt of the psychologist and the man who loves her to reach her before the evil spirit can wreak its revenge.

Mrs. Charles Kohberg left Friday night for Fort Collins, Colo., to attend the commencement exercises of Colorado A. & M. in which her son, Charles, will take part.

Nice Bridal Shower Given Miss Creath

Miss Smith and Mrs. Clark Are Hostesses For Pre-nuptial Party

Miss Loma Smith and Mrs. Jack Clark were the charming hostesses Friday night for a delightfully planned pre-nuptial shower honoring Miss Helen Creath whose marriage to Garland J. (Bill) Earley will be solemnized in June. The lovely rooms of the Clark home formed a pretty setting for the happy occasion.

A large mending basket, apparently filled with a week's mending, was set before the honoree, and she was put to work replacing buttons. After two or three garments had been mended, she found the basket full of lovely and useful gifts. While these were being admired and passed around, other gifts were showered on the bride-to-be.

The remainder of the evening was spent in working unusually clever contests. Mrs. Roy Green was fortunate, as she won the prize in the Floral Wedding. She and Mrs. V. L. Patrick also won in solving the anagram list of bridal necessities.

The prizes for the contests were useful kitchen articles and these were presented to the honoree.

Dainty refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, were served to the following: Mmes. Brown Rogers, Roy Green, G. H. Smith, V. L. Patrick, J. R. Creath, Joe Blount, Chas. Dunn, George McLearn, Jack Hammonds, J. D. Wallace, Tom Rosson, Nell Wallace; Messrs: Jack Clark and George Smith and Mrs. W. B. Martin.

The following sent gifts but were unable to attend: Mmes. Miller Harris, Seth Pike, Steve Baker, Walter Bell and Miss Elizabeth Owen.

TEAR GAS FAILS TO HALT WISCONSIN MILK STRIKE

In one of the outbreaks between farmers and deputy sheriffs in Wisconsin's milk strike trouble zone, tear gas was employed near Mukwonago, Wis., in an unsuccessful effort to disperse strike advocates who were halting milk truck drivers. these two countries have adopted almost identical vehicles. The development begun when James Watt put his steam engine on the market has carried mankind a long way, has brought it through some curious scenery and now, at last, seems to have brought it to a great fork in the road. Russia has gone one way, Germany is starting down the other; and the most important question before the race to see whether these are the only two paths available.

TODAY and TOMORROW
 By WALTER LIPPMANN
 Hitler's Speech

It was evident from the first impression of Herr Hitler's speech that he had chosen the path opened to him by President Roosevelt, and that the immediate crisis had, therefore, been surmounted. A close reading of the full English text of the address is even more reassuring. In so far as words can bind the actions of a people the Chancellor went further than any one had dared to hope in offering specific guarantees that he does not wish to disturb the peace. Not only was he definitely reassuring on those very points which are at the root of the European political disorder, but in the manner which he employed to present the German case no fair-minded person can fail to recognize that the bitter truculence of the Nazi propaganda was singularly lacking and that Herr Hitler remained strictly within the limits of honest indignation at the injustices and humiliations to which Germany had been subjected.

The specific assurances are to be found in his discussion of the problem of the frontiers. Thus, after saying that Versailles had failed to find a solution of the eastern boundaries, which "met Poland's understandable claims just the same as Germany's natural rights," the Chancellor stated that "nevertheless no German government will of its own volition break an agreement that can not be abrogated except by substituting a better one. However, this acknowledgment of the legal character of such a treaty can only be a general one. Not only the victor has claims to the rights granted therein, but also that any people is intrinsically outcast has no foundation except in ignorance and cupidity. It was an intolerable idea when it was applied to the German nation and written into the Treaty of Versailles, and it is an intolerable idea when it is applied now by the Germans themselves to an integral part of their own nation. To deny today that Germany can speak as a civilized power, because uncivilized things are being said and done in Germany, is in itself a deep form of intolerance. Like all intolerance it betrays a lack of moral wisdom, in this case the moral wisdom of religious insight into the dual nature of man.

Those who have that wisdom will pass judgment upon the actions of men but never upon their whole natures. Who that has studied history and cares for the truth would judge the French people by what went on during the Terror? Or the British people by what happened in Ireland? Or the American people by the hideous record of lynchings? Or the Catholic church by the Spanish Inquisition? Or Protestants by the Ku Klux Klan? Or the Jews by their persecutions? Who then shall judge finally the Germans by the frightfulness of war times and of the present revolution? If a people is to be judged solely by its crimes and its sins, all the peoples of this planet are utterly damned. Such judgments can produce only the deepest kind of anarchy. The civilized judgment, on which depends all the possibilities of a decent human life, requires that men while condemning and resisting evil deeds, should be unflinching in their faith in and their response to the healing impulses of their fellow men.

PILES

Suffer no more! Here's real relief at last for all forms of Piles—Bleed, Itching and Protruding. Fano Ointment does all the things necessary, in the manner necessary. First, it soothes—relieves the soreness and inflammation. Second, it heals—repairs the torn tissue. Third, it absorbs—dries up eczema, scabs and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles.

In other words, Fano doesn't merely relieve—it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole.

The method of application makes it doubly effective. Special File Pipe attached to tube enables you to apply ointment high up in the rectum where it will reach all affected parts. Thousands say Fano is the only thing that ever gave them real relief. Thousands say it saved them the need of an operation. Get Fano today and suffer no longer.

Two Experiments In Government

One more nation seems to have decided that the rights of the individual count for nothing in the highly-organized society of the industrial era. Germany, under a Fascist dictatorship, takes a leaf from Stalin's book and mobilizes labor, takes over labor unions and prepares to control all the big industries from top to bottom.

This scheme, which is nothing less than astounding in its scope, may mark the beginning of a new chapter in the history of human society. The combi parallel and contrast between Fascist Germany and Communist Russia is one of the most interesting sights the world has ever been permitted to watch.

Russia, acting by and for the man at the bottom of the ladder, turns an entire nation into one vast productive machine.

Germany, whose government seems to represent chiefly the man at the top, does precisely the same thing.

Cotton, Grain

(By George E. Berry & Co., Petroleum Building)
 NEW ORLEANS, La., May 20—Liquidation was on in cotton from the start to the finish today and prices moved off more than one dollar and half per bale, with but little reaction at any time.

There were momentary halts in the down trend when sizable trade buying developed, but there was no real support encountered until near the close. Big speculative buying orders recently so much in evidence were conspicuously lacking, weakness in grain and stocks had much to do with the spread of selling cotton and it was thought the market is in an overbought condition also exists pretty generally in all markets.

The weather was reported excellent in nearly all sections of the belt with some hard showers this morning in drouthy counties in western Texas. Considerable attention today was drawn to the gradual strengthening of the dollar during the last seven days and it was commented that constant betterment in the dollar was indications of waning belief in the possibility of drastic inflation in this country. At the same time it was believed further declines in the commodity markets would bring renewed efforts on the part of Washington authorities that might easily cause a resumption of climbing markets.

We believe the market is in a very much technical position and that it will get more adequate support on further decline and we continue to favor purchases when the market is under pressure.

What Is A G. P. A. To Do?

BIG BUSINESS has its laboratories and its bureaus of standards where products submitted to General Purchasing Agents may be tested searchingly. But Big Business has not all the intelligent G.P.A.'s nor has it any monopoly on big purchases.

The women of this country make eighty-five per cent of all retail purchases—and they influence the rest. They are G.P.A.'s for 25 million independent businesses, the households of America. Without charts, graphs, or laboratories, how are they to buy efficiently? How are they to be sure of securing honest, wholesome products for use by their families?

Their guide is advertising in the daily paper. They realize, sensibly enough, that the merchants of their town talk to them truthfully in advertisements. They watch these pages for news of advantageous purchases. They welcome the new or better product when informed of it through advertising.

The merchants and manufacturers who use this newspaper realize that your patronage, not only this year but next, is the life of their business. They test and criticize and study merchandise more rigorously than you ever could. You may read their advertisements with confidence. Guided by them, you may buy efficiently!

Initiated on was that the money should be raised with the least possible interference to business. He said no tax should be levied which would hinder the recovery in progress. Nothing was said at the time but the congressional leaders got to thinking later about the president's assertion. The only way they could figure it out was that Mr. Roosevelt was speaking indirectly for the sales tax because all the other proposals are conceded to be hard on business. They clearly realized then the sales tax idea was not as dead as everyone appeared to believe.

Control

They have quietly thrown water on most of the dynamite in the farm bill. The boys upstairs have decided only one of its features can be used soon. That is the one relating to marketing agreements. George Peek is working on that basis in his confidential preparations for administering the act. The idea is to fix prices by pool understandings. The Chicago milk case is furnishing the basis on which they are working. A fixed price agreement was made between producers and dealers in that case. Its effect was limited because some dealers refused to go in with it. With the farm bill powers, Peek can bulldoze the wayward boys into line by making them get a federal license. That fits in the Roosevelt industrial control picture. They will probably get around to the processors' tax in time to handle the next winter wheat crop. It is too late now to interfere with spring planting of most crops. The farmers might be persuaded to plough up what already is growing but that is a lot to ask. It would be about the same as to ask a builder to tear down what he has already built on the prospect that he might get a better price if he should put it up again.

Elbow H. D. Club Plans Allday Meet

All Women Of Precinct Three Are Invited To Attend The members of the Elbow Home Demonstration Club met Thursday afternoon for a program on "Meats and Their Value in the Menu" and Mrs. Ches Anderson on "Meat Substitutes, Especially Cheese." Cowboys Go To Ackerly

Mexicans Play Forsan Here, Col-Tex Meet Coahoma This afternoon Manager Sammy Sain, takes his Cowboys to Ackerly for the third Tri-County League tilt. The Cowboys have a .500 percentage, having lost to the Forsan club in the opening tilt, while Ackerly has a perfect record, a 14-5 win off the Coahoma Bulldogs. Ackerly and Col-Tex were rained out Sunday a week ago. The strong Mexican Tigers, having won one and lost one are due to tie in with Forsan this afternoon on the Mexican diamond which will likely terminate in a Forsan victory unless the Mexicans make a much better showing this afternoon than they did against the Cowboys. Col-Tex, having played one game and lost to the Tigers who in turn dropped last Sunday's game to the Cowboys 14-1, won't be favored at Coahoma today.

The High School P. T. A. will hold its last meeting of the school year Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 at the high school auditorium. An unusually splendid program has been planned by the sponsors of Mrs. Mary Bumpas' history classes. Good speakers among the pupils will give, not read, topics related to the trip around the world which they have just concluded. The topics will take up: "Conditions of Countries After World War," "Remaking of Europe," "Steps in Securing World Peace," "Historical Landmarks in England," "Outstanding Changes of Countries Since World War," "Changes in Turkey," "How Soviet Russia Is Working," and "Glimpses of Japan Today." Conservation Of Flood Waters In Howard County Proposed As Drouth Antidote And Protection Of Coast

When one man has a vision, people call it a "pipe dream." But when a large group of men become interested, it becomes an idea. A. R. Otterman, Big Spring, has been privately preaching conservation of West Texas rainfall by construction of artificial lakes for some time. Recently in the fifteenth annual meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce he heard John A. Norris, chairman of the state board of water engineers, espouse the same cause. What was more pleasing was that 600 West Texans listened with keen interest. Norris suggested the move for a double purpose. Each year, he said, rush of water from the West Texas region plays a large role in the flooding of coastal plains. While erection of dams would tremendously lessen the flood menace, it would also act as an offset to drouths, he said. Back in Nebraska and Kansas forty to fifty years ago, recalls Otterman, rainfall was about the same as it now is in Western Texas. Farmers in that region combated the condition in much the same manner as he thinks it can be combated here. They stretched dams across sloping draws, gulches, ravines, and dry river beds. When spring rains came, water poured down these outlets against the water barricades backed up to form lakes. Farmers utilized the water in dry years by irrigating their crops and planting trees around the lake bed, Otterman remembers. East Texas, according to him, did the same thing more than two score years ago, and the Appalachian region is doing likewise now, only with the view of keeping down floods. "In 1932," he says, "there was in Howard county alone enough water that ran off the hills—wasted—to irrigate half of the county in 1933." Even if the remainder of his scheme should be impractical, Otterman goes practical in suggesting a plan for erection of these numerous dams. "You can't just say we'll have a dam, and the dam will be dammed. It takes work, and labor costs money. If this section is to benefit under the reforestation program, this certainly," says Otterman, "is one of the most practical projects falling under the scope of the program." Then he adds a happy thought indeed. These lakes could be stocked with a supply of fish, and this section would have a place where it could go and forget "hard times."

Revival At Local Church Continues

The revival which has been in progress for the past fortnight at the Church of the Nazarene is to continue through another week; the members voted in session last night. Large crowds have come out each evening to hear the evangelistic party proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ. Thursday night, Rev. Thomas Ahern took his audience on a "Trip to Heaven," and revealed to them some of the glories of the celestial world where there was no tears or depression. And last night Rev. Will H. Lynn exposed some of the "Boogerboob" that is being passed off as Holiness. Sunday morning Rev. Ahern will preach from the topic, "The Glories of a Risen Lord." Tonight Rev. Lynn will preach on "The Dynamic Force of the Gospel of Christ." The Young Peoples' service will begin at 7 p. m. under the leadership of Rev. Cecil Ambrose who will speak on "How to Make the Most of This Life." Sunday School at 9:45 a. m. The public is invited to each of the services, the pastor, Rev. R. T. Smith announced.

On Skull Island "King Kong" the great ape who lives atop Skull Mountain and of whom every living creature is in terror, avails the sacrifice of a brown girl from the natives. Against him the natives have erected a tremendous wall. It is on the occasional day when the adventuring producer, Carl Denham, lands with his motion picture troupe.

"A white and gold bride for King Kong! The natives offer six of their dusty brides in exchange for Ann Darrow, golden blonde leading lady of the picture company. Jack Driscoll, in love with Ann, is for violence, but Denham and Capt. Englehorn realize they must keep the good will of the natives. Vowing friendship and promising to return tomorrow, they go back to their good ship, the Adventurer.

Alone on deck, that night Ann is seized and abducted by the natives. She is not allowed to scream. As they roughly put her over the ship's side in the dugout, she is afraid in a way that she has never known.

"Another bride for King Kong! The natives upon the huge defensive gulf and place her outside on an altar. They gather on the ramparts and strike the great ape, called in "King Kong." The "Frontier Times" reports that it has completed its Museum building. J. Marvin Hunter, editor, describes it in this issue and extends an invitation to every reader to visit Bandera and go through the Museum.

The leading article in this issue was contributed by Col. M. L. Crimmins, of San Antonio, who recently attended the meeting of the West Texas Historical Society in this city. Col. Crimmins tells of the experiences of General David S. Stanley in Texas.

The museum is described as follows:

The museum was constructed of field stone; in its walls appear many curious rocks, fossils, petrified wood, stalagmites. . . . The walls proper were built of stone taken from an old rock fence built in Bandera county in 1878 by Ike Stevens, Sr., a pioneer. In one end of the building appears a round stone four feet in diameter, with a hole in the center.

In this hole has been placed an art glass on which the profile of a noted Indian chief has been painted by Warren Hunter; this round stone was cut out more than fifty years ago by Christian Anderson, another Bandera county pioneer, and used by him as a well top for many years.

"Other plain stone from old rock fences was kindly donated by Mrs. A. L. Mansfield, Mrs. M. M. Fitzgerald, and Alex. Anderwald, of Bandera. Various kinds and colors of stone were brought from the J. W. Short Ranch above the head of the Medina river, and are of different and odd formations.

"One stone in the front wall, in which is embedded an ammonite of perfect design, was picked up more than fifty years ago by the late Charles Montague, and was donated by his daughters, Mrs. Rose Gardiner and Miss Margaret Montague.

"A petrified log of red cedar, which rests over the main doorway, was donated by T. H. Phillips, a ranchman of the upper river country. Another petrified cedar log, which has a place in the front wall of the building, was donated by Captain Eli Loyd, the hero of the Packaddle Mountain Indian fight.

"There are many curious rocks in the walls which were donated by friends, among whom we mention: Mrs. S. O. Loyd, Mrs. E. J. Cose, Mrs. Mark McRyde, Mrs. R. G. Mills, Mrs. Dominie Dugosh, Bill Hirsch, W. L. Hamlin, David Brewer, M. V. Farris, Mrs. Amsan Clark, Sr., Chas. Banta, Hal S. Hudapeth, Leslie Short, Levi Evans, Mrs. Sam Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. G. ## West Texas School Pupils May Attend Chicago Exposition

ABILENE.—Pupils in fully a dozen West Texas schools who will not be able to attend the World's Fair in Chicago this summer are assured of comprehensive accounts by their teachers of the wonders to be shown there. Teachers in that many West Texas schools already have applied to G. B. Sandefer, manager of the Simmons University Cowboy Club, for reservations on the West Texas section of the All-Texas special train which leaves June 11th for four days and nights at the World's Fair.

Arrangements for the West Texas section were completed here Wednesday by Sandefer in response to numerous requests by teachers and others to Texas & Pacific railway officials and Sandefer for low rates. These rates are available only on special trains.

The West Texas section of the special train is contingent upon 200 people making the trip. All reservations, including a five-dollar deposit, must be placed with Sandefer not later than June 3rd as one week is required to order the equipment to Abilene.

The West Texas section will make up at Abilene Tuesday at 9:40 a. m. as part of the Sabine Special, Texas & Pacific crack passenger train. The four-day stay in Chicago will terminate on June 16; Abilene will be reached the following evening at 6:20.

Although the section was arranged by Sandefer as an accommodation to school teachers and students it is open to every one wishing to visit the Century of Progress Exposition at a minimum cost.

Cowboy Reunion Invites City To Send A Sponsor

Big Spring has been invited to send a sponsor to the Texas Cowboy Reunion which will be held at Stamford July 3, 4 and 5. A letter directed to the local chamber of commerce says an elaborate program of entertainment is being prepared for the sponsors.

Three prizes are being offered for the most attractive sponsors who attend the reunion. Sponsors must be mounted and both horse and rider will be considered in judging for the prizes, points being given on the rider's horsemanship as well as on her mount and equipment. Sponsors must provide their own mounts, equipment and costumes, but the reunion management will provide grooming and feed for the animals.

First prize will be a handsome pair of hand-made riding boots given by the Nocona Boot Company of Nocona. Second and third prizes will each be a pair of silver mounted spurs, one given by the Nocona Boot Company and the other by the San Angelo Cowboy Boot Shop, San Angelo.

The judging will take place on the morning of the opening day of the reunion, July 3. Sponsors representing 35 cities and towns were entertained at last year's reunion.

Mrs. E. P. Binkley of Stamford, wife of a prominent West Texas surgeon, will serve as hostess for the sponsors. Miss Margaret Lyles has been selected as the Stamford sponsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Shine Phillips returned Friday night from Galveston, where they attended sessions of the annual Texas Pharmaceutical association convention held in that city the past few days. Mr. Phillips reported a small attendance, but the convention as a whole was very interesting.

Opening Revival

Rev. Elmer E. Kardatzke, young evangelist of Elmore, Ohio, will open a series of evangelistic services in Big Spring today. Services will be held during the coming ten days at the Neighborhood Chapel of the Church of God at 911 Main st.

Rev. Kardatzke is a graduate of Warner College, at Eastland, Texas. He is a thorough Bible student, and has a direct touch with the problems of present-day youth, being a young man nineteen years of age himself. His messages have all of the old-time gospel power, applying the religion of Christ to the problems of the modern youth.

Special singing and congregational singing that really calls to worship will be a feature of the meetings. Mr. J. Fred Whitaker, a local singer, will be in charge of the singing. Miss Nora Ferguson of Portersville, California, also a graduate of Warner College, will assist by bringing special songs.

This is a meeting sponsored by the young people for the youth of the city. All young people are encouraged to come and help out in these meetings, regardless of church belief. Come help to make these meetings a real benefit to the youth of Big Spring.

New Map Of Texas Highways Off Press

A new map of Texas highways is just off the press. It gives up-to-date information on Texas roads, showing the different types of road surfaces as the motorist can select his route with a better knowledge of road conditions.

Three thousand miles of concrete highways are shown—the Travelax Route. The new map is being distributed free, on request, to Texas motorists by the Portland Cement Association. Coming out as it does just ahead of the big summer motoring season, there is already an active demand for this new kind of road map.

The association is carrying on an extensive travel program built around the novel idea of "Travelaxation." This is a new word which has just been coined to describe "that freedom from driving strain, that feeling of comfort, security, safety and relaxation which comes to motorists when they drive on concrete highways" to quote a recent announcement.

Motorists who may be planning trips for the immediate or near future (and who isn't?) may secure this new highway map free by writing to Portland Cement Association at their office, 1306 Athletic Club, Dallas. Along with the map will be furnished timely information on the economies of building, maintaining and driving over concrete highways—information of interest to every motorist.

End Of Special Session Expected Within Few Weeks As President's 'Last Ace' Is Dealt To Lawmakers

(Special To The Herald)
WASHINGTON—With the last ace in the new deal—the administration's plan for industrial regulation—soon to receive congressional approval, termination of the special session is expected here within a few weeks.

The full effects of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's report to the nation of the work of his administration are now beginning to be observed quite generally in the east and the financial outlook appears to be more reassuring than it has been in many months. The entire emergency program will soon be well under way and it is thought that congress will then adjourn. Under the terms of the new "lame duck" amendment to the constitution, the next session of congress will not be held until January 3, 1934.

Of the major administration measures, only three will claim further attention of congress in the remaining weeks of this session. One is the railroad co-ordination plan, another is the public works program, and the third is the scheme advanced by the executive in his radio address for regulation of industry.

12 Weeks
In the 12 weeks that have elapsed since the president convened congress in extraordinary session, all records for legislative speed have been broken. With a minimum of dissent and hickering, congress has given whole-hearted backing to all of the president's recommendations, and the ordinarily cumbersome progress of congressional action has functioned with little or no delay.

Congress has conferred vast authority upon the president, but as Roosevelt pointed out in his address, it has surrendered none of its prerogatives nor constitutional powers in so doing. It has merely designated him the agent for putting the program into effect and placed the responsibility for effective action, as he requested, upon him.

The important measures enacted are those providing for reduction of government expenditures, reforestation, unemployment relief, beer, Muscle Shoals-Tennessee Valley development, banking reform, farm relief, aid for mortgage-burdened farm and home owners, controlled inflation of the currency, and revenue by means of continuation and slight readjustment of some existing taxes.

Problematical
Success of the entire program is, of course, problematical. The president himself has been frank enough to state that some of the measures are experimental, and he will be the first to acknowledge their failure if they should not achieve the results expected. Combined, however, they present one of the very few comprehensive systems of legislative planning ever enacted in this country. They only represent the rare occurrence of a political party's putting its pre-election platform into the statute books before even the full personnel of the new administration has been chosen.

Opinion here seems unanimous in believing that some, at least, of the Roosevelt proposals are going to prove effective in restoring a greater degree of uniform prosperity to the country. Many of the plans depend to a large extent, on the general co-operation that the president receives throughout the country, and if the citizenry at
