Dawes - Briand Conference Is Arranged

Final Understanding By United States Is Sought

PARIS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes made an appointment to confer with Chairman Briand of the League of Nations council to bring the American government into full understanding with the final details of the league's peace resolution effecting Manchuria.

It is now generally expected that the plan to establish a neutral zone in the Chishow area will be ignored since the Japanese have refused to agree to such terms. The league probably will simply express the hope that the two nations will allow a comparatively peaceful situation in that area to remain. Dawes had only an indirect communication from the council during the past two weeks. He conferred with Washington by telephone before making the appointment with Briand.

Democrats Back Him

Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama will have the support of his democratic colleagues in the contest over his right to take the oath of office.

Cosden Wins Off Faculty

Pedagogues Termed Very Rough Opponents By Winners

The high school faculty team was beaten by the Cosden basketball club Monday evening in every department of the game except "roughness." The final score was 18 to 10 in favor of Cosden.

Cosden men described Ohio Bristow as a wonderful tackler, who downed Steelman twice on the Cosden free throw line. George Brown was termed an outstanding guard who hit the Cosden guards and forwards for striking gains. George Genry, it was declared, exhibited a powerful right arm, with Ben Daniels keeping them as they went by. Tiny Reed, the 220-pound faculty guard, ran wonderful interference.

Cosden will play the fast Loraine team Wednesday and the Big Brothers, a local club, next Monday.

Mrs. Stegner Is Leader In Third Faculty Session

"The Rating of Teachers" was the topic discussed by the faculty of the high school at the third monthly meeting Monday afternoon. It was led by Mrs. H. E. Stegner.

Topics to be discussed are: training for efficient study; extracurricular activities as a means of improving teachers' value to community; what a teacher should be rated on; teachers' place in a program of school publicity; training of pupils for efficient study; measuring the results of the teaching art; the scoring and interpretation of tests and measurements; newer methods of class room instruction; and what a teacher may do during the summer that would make toward professional advancement.

The other, "At the Stroke of Twelve," is a farical comedy and is under direction of Ralph Houston. No charge will be made for admission.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Terrell, of Friona, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Terrell, of this city.

San Benito Family Has One More Boy For Gridiron Play

SAN BENITO, Dec. 8. (AP)—When Roscoe Welch, captain of the San Benito high school football team, hung up his football togs the day after Thanksgiving, he turned eyes to his younger brother, L. B. Welch, the burden of carrying on the football tradition of the Welch brothers of this city, which is now 17 years old.

It started back in 1914, the year that San Benito put out its first football team.

Eight Welch brothers have grown up during that period of time, and all of them but one have played football. The last of the line is L. B., who is now 13 years old and is playing on the San Benito junior high school team. He is expected to be on the high school team the next four years, and to carry on the tradition of the family.

D. L. Welch was the first of the brothers. He started as a tackle and ended on the San Benito team of 1914. He played four years.

Jesse, who followed him, was the only one of the Welch brothers who did not play football.

In 1919 the Welch name was represented on the football team by Edgar, who also played in 1920, and 1921. He was also a tackle.

Then came LeRoy, who started playing in 1922, and kept on through 1925. He played at end and in the backfield.

Along with LeRoy, the last two years he played, was Johnny, another backfield man, who played or through 1926. At the end of his football career Earl Welch took up the burden, playing in 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Before Earl had finished Roscoe was bidding for a place on the team and got it. He played four years, at end, and the last year was captain of his team.

He has just finished his football career for San Benito and following him will be L. B., who is expected to be on the team next year. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Welch, pioneer San Benito citizens.

Home Talk by Betty

We are making a second appeal for a young mother who is earnestly, and almost frantically seeking work. She has one dollar left, a baby of 18 months and another child, three years of age to support. She is well-educated, has a permanent teacher's certificate in Oklahoma and wants to work and not have to call on charity. If you have any kind of work for her please call The Herald.

Business men as well as other citizens should consider it their duty to belong to the Chamber of Commerce.

There is no logical argument against belonging. There is less argument for "cussing" the organization.

Most every person who helps to spread the message of one absolutely false thing about what the C of C did or did not do pays not one cent toward supporting the organization and, therefore, really has no kick coming.

In this as well as all cities business men should be made to know that unless they belong to the Chamber of Commerce and contribute their own ideas and energies to it they will not be considered fully useful citizens and cannot expect the public to treat them as such by according them the patronage given those who do try to do their parts for the community.

The man who spreads false rumors about what the Chamber of Commerce did or did not do and refuses to contribute something to its support in reality is knitting himself to some extent.

We have heard a thousand "kicks" against Chambers of Commerce in general. Nine hundred and ninety of them were without foundation, had no basis of fact and were slanted by some person with a personal axe to grind who got sore at some individual connected with the organization.

Big Spring has a lot of jobs confronting her. She always will have. It is important and of value to every citizen who has the money to contribute something to the support of this organization—which has as its only object the promotion of the interests of the community as a whole, which includes every individual in it—regardless of what you may hear from a few individuals who are always soured on the world.

No useful organization ever escaped being criticized. The criticism usually comes from folks who are personally drawbacks instead of aids to the community.

The annual membership campaign for the Chamber of Commerce will be conducted soon. Let's do our duty and provide a fund sufficient to allow for broadening of the activities of OUR OWN organization—it belongs to everybody who will help to support it.

File and the Dole

EDWARD A. FILENE, the well-known Boston merchant, is one business man who is not frightened by that dreadful expression, "the dole." Appearing before a senate committee recently, he declared that every employer should be required to provide employment insurance for his workers, either on a private system or on one established through the government.

The chief benefit of this, he believes, would be indirect. The man out of a job would have an income to be sure, but Mr. Filene holds that the chief effect of this system would be to make employers take extra pains to stabilize business so that unemployment would be materially reduced.

Whether you agree with him or not, you must admit that he is at least a forward-looking business leader who has devoted some serious thought to one of the nation's most pressing problems.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

A Debt of Honor

Ablene News:
REPRESENTATIVE R. EWING THOMASON of the El Paso district will ask congress to Appropriate to reimburse farmers of 25 West Texas counties for the cost of fumigating line cotton as a precaution against the spread of the pink bollworm.

"These farmers," explains the Finsonian, "were forced to pay out this money by the federal government before they could sell a pound of cotton lint or seed. This expenditure was not made for their own particular benefit but for the protection of the entire cotton industry and I do not feel that they alone should be penalized. As well charge them for the salaries of the inspectors, whose duty it was to examine their fields."

The reason why this protection was for the benefit of the entire growing region and not especially for the region under quarantine is that the pink bollworm does not thrive in the high dry climate of West Texas. To prevent spread of the pest to other regions, where its effect is devastating, the federal and state authorities clamped a quarantine on several counties.

The farmers were given the solemn promise that they would be reimbursed for the cost of their fumigation and other work in connection with the quarantine.

The legislature of Texas once passed a bill to repay these farmers, but Governor Moody vetoed it.
Again, the legislature passed the bill, and Governor Sterling vetoed it.

This is a debt of honor. It should have been paid long ago.
It is to be hoped Representative Thomason swings sufficient support behind his measure to insure its passage. The state has failed to make good; let us hope the federal government does better.

Plans have been started for the growing of hemp on more than 4,000 acres in Columbia, and it is hoped to produce 1,000,000 bags a year.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by Dr. Iago Gohiston, Academy of Medicine

Colds Are Infectious

Though the specific cause of causes of the common cold still remains undetermined, it has been established beyond doubt that colds are infectious.

Any one who takes the trouble can observe the spreading of a cold in an office, class room, work shop or family when adequate precautions have not been taken.

Unfortunately, too many persons think of the common cold as an insignificant ailment.

They fail to see the connection between colds and other diseases of the respiratory tract.

They fail, particularly to appreciate the hazards of colds to children, in whom they may prove to be the forerunners of broncho-pneumonia, diphtheria and other more serious conditions.

Elders who suffer from respiratory infections should avoid, as far as possible, intimate contact with young children and infants.

Where such contact is unavoidable every precaution possible should be taken to avoid infecting the child.

Soap and water are our best allies in this.

If the baby is to be fed, dressed or otherwise handled, and there is no one else to do it but mother, or some adult who is suffering from a cold, such a person should first thoroughly wash the hands in warm water, using plenty of soap.

An added and useful precaution to be taken consists in wearing a gauze mask over the face and mouth.

Paper kerchiefs possess distinct advantages.

They can be destroyed immediately after being used, and hence do not tend to spread infectious material, as is the case in cloth handkerchiefs which are kept in the pocket and handled frequently.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER WASHINGTON — It's a rather pleasant thought that "Old Per Schedule" might return to Washington and install himself in an office on capitol hill as a member of congress.

"Old Per" is scheduled to run for congress has been started in Florida, the general's home state. Florida's legislature failed to redistrict following the last census and her fifth congressman must be elected at large.

The general is not announcing as yet. His friends, however, believe he will become a candidate if the demand is strong enough to warrant his making the race.

Much At Home

Sumnerall probably would feel very much at home as a member of congress. During his years in Washington as chief of staff of the army he was in a position to observe the congressional mind at pretty close range.

It was his job to appear at various times before congressional bodies during consideration of war department appropriation bills and argue the case of the army. Experience gained on these occasions and in his other dealings with members of congress would stand him in good stead were he to become a member of the house.

Then, too, the general is fond of speechmaking and the like. While chief of staff he was continually making speeches about such subjects as preparedness, citizenship and the freedom of the United States from ambition for military conquest. He would probably have a lot to say about such things in congress.

It would not be the first time that generals of the army have been sent to congress. It would be, however, the first time that a man of his rank and career as a soldier came to the house.

Sticks To Schedule

The senate has had two generals in recent times, but both were below Sumnerall's rank. Vice-President Dawes was a brigadier-general as was the late Senator Tyson of Tennessee. No four-starred general, as is Sumnerall's distinction, however, has been on the hill.

"Old Per Schedule" might bring new ideas to the house were he to be elected to congress. That sobriquet was not given him for nothing.
He served it because he insisted that things be done "per schedule." Many a staff or line officer has found this out to his sorrow.

More than likely, however, he would find that army habits do not work so well with congressmen.
He'd probably have to give a lot of 'em up after a while.

Look what the senate did to its distinguished general—"Hell, an' Marin" Dawes—when he tried to get hardballed.

LADY with a PAST BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir's search for an interesting reputation reaches success when Rene de Thenardier commits suicide, and his love for her is believed to be the cause. She is spending six months in Paris, planning to return to New York and storm society. New York has formerly considered her dull. Guy Bryson is acting as a friendly gigolo.

Chapter 26 AN AFTERNOON OF SURPRISES

"Oh, Guy, nothing more to do with Rene!"

"No. Purely in connection with my humble self."

"Oh, well, I hope it's not too uncomfortable."

"So do I!"

"Whatever can you mean! Stop for me at half-past seven, Guy?"

"Right."

Venice put down the receiver and glanced at her watch. Just time to get over to the Bankers Trust for mail before they closed. She hurried out to the back entrance in the Rue St. Honoré. Two letters from Nolly and one from Lola written on the Laocnia. Nolly's letters were postmarked a week apart.
The operation must be over now.
Venice eagerly opened the earlier one, reading as she walked back towards the Rue Mont-Thabor.

"August 11th."

"Darling Venice,
"The operation was a failure. At first I thought my heart would break. But the relief in being alive to tell the tale comforts me.
And why should I grieve at being back where I was before? I had let my mind run riot at times though and had seen myself dancing at parties and in swimming in the summer and having lots of men attentive to me. But there, I might have missed the nice quietness Pango gives me and perhaps he, the old dear, would have tripped me up at every turn for having him changed. Of course that's all pure bravado, Venice. I'm bitterly disappointed."

"Lola wrote some one at home who told mother about your Marquis and the American who is always at your heels. I do think it's wonderful, but I knew titles would adore you."

"Earnest is still sweet to me; but of course, he has to come and see me every few days anyway—I'm still in bed—so I guess he's just a nice kind doctor and not a beau after all. Probably when I'm up and about again he'll drop away completely. I could be unhappy, but I won't. After all, I've enjoyed several months of him, and a young man, even for several months, was beyond my farthest dreams."

"Do write me all about yourself —everything. Aren't you coming home soon?"

"Your loving,
NOLLY"

Venice stumbled at a curb and sighed. Poor Nolly, always to lead a dull, sequestered life. Back in her room at the Louis-Le-Grand she opened the second letter. Nolly was engaged to Ernest Price!

How simply marvelous. I must cable her. Venice rushed out again her mind singing with the happiness of Nolly.

"No, I don't," Venice managed, fact I think I'm going to be again.
"I was just wondering about his wife. I never knew her. Don't they get along? She felt as if some one else's voice was speaking out of her own mouth. Guy, the frank, the easy. He had been married all this time and never even mentioned it.
This hurt, for she had enjoyed his friendship, and friendship is worthless without honesty.

"No. I don't know her either.
She's an American, I believe. But I fancied Mrs. Coates was horribly upset at your going about so much with a married man. A nice girl like you, Venice. This last was added with a little laugh. It was as though Lita had suggested that they were members of the same club and no one suspected.

"That was it then. Mrs. Coates' kindly warning. That explained the 'all things considered' of Mrs.
Coates at Rene's party.

"I suppose I shouldn't" Venice murmured sulkily. She was deflated. It was the old, shy Venice drinking a cocktail in the Ritz Bar with a woman that made her gauche and uncomfortable.

"Don't be intricate," begged Lita.
Venice glanced at her watch.
"I've got to hurry," she said in that flat, uninteresting manner of her when gayer words evaded her.

Venice walked quickly back to the Louis-Le-Grand. She felt very hurt with Guy and a bit angry.
This was a nelement of cheating in their companionship which disgusted her.

Lola's letter lay unopened on her bed. She listlessly tore the envelope's flap. The afternoon had worn her out with its diversity of emotions.

"Dearest Venice,
"You certainly are stepping high, wide and handsome these days.
Imagine, a Marquis killing himself for you. Congratulations. And Guy Bryson still on your trail, I believe, darling, you once told me you were a dud. Were you fooling me or yourself?"

"As you see by the paper Jerry and I are on the uncertain deep.
We've both been ill a good bit. In on the table, "don't feel that way about it, Venice. It hasn't hurt you in any way, really."

"Yes, it has, Guy. It 'shurt my feelings. I thought we were friends.
You're not friends if you're dishonest with each other."

"That's quite true, Venice. But that first afternoon at the Cafe de la Paix I never gave it a thought and later, when I did, I was afraid you might have had Puritanical scruples and I did think the whole experiment was such a bingle."

"If I could have mentioned knowing your wife once in a while it would have been better."

"You're right. But you wouldn't have let me be your gigolo, Venice."

"She thought a moment.
"Yes, I would have. I'd have let any one be my gigolo at that point."

They both laughed.
"Friends again?" begged Guy, holding out a hand.
They shook and Venice acquiesced warmly. The hurt was gone and she realized that it was only the surprise of the thing that had rank-led.

"What's your uncomfortable bit?" she asked.
"My wife's on her way over."

"No!"
"Yes. And you're the cause."

"Guy, how dreadful!"
(Copyright, Harriet Henry)

Guy's wife arrives, in the next installment, and Venice prepares to enjoy a victory.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

"Tack" Dennis, though idle for two weeks and held scoreless in his last two games of the season, still remains the leading scorer in Texas as interscholastic football, and if a somewhat safe statement is permitted, the entire country. (At least no records introduced so far tell of players who have surpassed Dennis' record of 140 points.) But the local boy will not remain on his pedestal very long, for Bob Wilson of Corsicana has cleaned 127 through last week's game and with the Tigers doped to go to the state final at least he should have three more chances to leave "Tack" in the rear.

But the scoring sensation of this football game of ours that set such a dizzy pace through the earlier months of the gridiron season is David Hopper, tackle. Not since the days of "tackle back" formations has a lineman advanced the ball as many yards as did Hopper in the first six games of the season, when he scored five touchdowns. And there is no fluke about the accomplishment, all came as result of blocked punts.

Something even dizzier about this district football however is the strange case of Schuward San Angelo end. A third-string man most of the season Schuward was started in the Sweetwater game in two contests became an all-district end. The only two games in which he performed as a regular were the Sweetwater and Big Spring contests.

And another funny thing. Stroth er was practically a unanimous choice for an all-district guard berth, and yet when the Sweetwater Mustangs met the Abilene Eagles last week end he was relegated to the secondary on the defense while Woods stepped into his place in the line. It would seem that the expert was not a success, for the Eagles completed several passes in his territory. Woods, who almost made all-district because of his ability to back up the line, played at guard and Rer Sheridan took up the defensive fullback position. Inidentally Sheridan is not a world beater at that post.

Conches Bristow and Brown officially opened their 1931-32 basketball season yesterday afternoon at the high school gym with a number of candidates reporting for practice. Dyer is able to get around without his crutches now and displayed a smooth, lobbing shot that will no doubt sink many a basket for the locals this year. The recently formed "Red Belt" basketball league will no doubt add to basketball enthusiasm this year.

Several of the intramural players were "invited" out for the varsity as the result of their play in the round-robin tournament staged by J. A. Coffee under the watchful eye of the coaches. None of the trio would make an all-star selection, but the fact that Roger Franklin, Fred Townsend, Otto Grief, Hiram Little, and several other received requests to contribute their services to the candidates for a first string berth may mean something. The writer's choice would be: First team, Noel (Freshmen) and Townsend (Junior) forwards, Smith (Senior) center, Franklin (Junior) and Woods (Freshmen) guards; second team, Schwarzenbach (Seniors) and Cecil Phillips (Sophomores) forwards, Lafever (Juniors) center, Grief (Juniors) and Driver (Sophomores) at guards, Honorable mentions: Little (Sophomores), Flowers (Freshmen), Pickle (Seniors), Van Open (Seniors), Thomas (Seniors), and Gordon (Juniors). Bill Flowers took off shooting honors in the first day's practice as candidates did little more than become acquainted with the feel of the basketball. Closely trailing were Dyer, Morgan, Forrester and a promising youngster who will re-enter school next semester, Jack Dean. Dean is eligible for basketball and with this year's experience should be a valuable man before graduating.

J. W. Forrester, brother of Lloyd, is another who is returning to school in time to be a basketball prospect. Forrester has gained valuable experience on amateur clubs in the last two years and has developed a scoring accuracy that might be utilized to a great extent this year. The Sunday school team on which Forrester played last year was no bad assortment of casters itself.

'Old Family Sock' Not Yielding Many Large Bills Now

LUBBOCK, Dec. 8 (AP)—The "old family sock" has not been yielding up so many of the old time large sized bills recently as it did a year or two ago.

Local bank tellers report that the big bills this year are becoming less and less common.

"Once in a while we get several hundred dollars in the big sized bills," C. O. Gammill, assistant cashier of the Lubbock National Bank said. "That is not very often, either. We seldom see the big bills except when somebody turns in a number at a time."

S. G. Wilson, assistant at the Citizens National Bank, picked up a twenty dollar bill the other day that was old enough to vote. "It was dated March 2, 1904 and that is the date of its printing at the mint," he said. "It was on the Citizens National Bank of Waco. This is the first one I have seen for months."

WILL ROGERS CLOSES THREE DAY RUN HERE

If you have failed to see Will Rogers in his latest picture which opened here Sunday for a three-day engagement you have a real treat in front of you. The Ritz Theatre in setting a policy to bring to Big Spring the very best in entertainment recommends this picture as one of the best attractions offered in many months.
