Allred Files Suit To Cancel Charters Of Fifteen Leading Oil Corporations

And that slogan Big Spring adopted before the game, one that struck responsive chords in the hearts of Sweetwater's fans too, still holds for us—there shall be no respite.

The boys gave their best in that game Wednesday. The teams were well-matched and the crowd saw one of the finer high school games West Texas has ever provided.

The fact that 5,043 persons paid to see the game shows just how high school football is developing out here.

As things turned out the fear that many fans and scribes over the state had expressed for the Steers was well founded—the opposition had not been strong enough earlier in the season. We are confident that our team had gone through a couple of tough games prior to Wednesday it would have beaten Sweetwater, simply because our line would have been more liable to stop the mass interference Sweetwater showed at the ends—which was the deciding factor.

We must give our neighbors credit for having a wonderful team and a group of boys who certainly shined in these and fight. And it was very easy to see in Sweetwater after the game what the folks over there thought of our team.

When a team puts out all it has and is beaten we cannot get so far down in the dumps about it. We are more proud of those boys today than we have ever been. We are proud of their coaches and of the great host of fans who stood by them through the entire game.

Our pep squad and band certainly made a great showing. Their support meant a lot to the team.

Our pride in the team was even more last night when a lot of old friends from various parts of West Texas kept coming around and complimenting it. "You've got a great team," "It was the best high school I ever saw," "I am convinced that you folks out there in town 'em up more than you actually deserved, but you certainly are a credit to the school," "All you've said about it is correct," "That hope mainly is a great player," "I saw a boy display more nerve."

The Abilene scribe certainly made a motiful when he said "out of it."

"Blondy Cross, in all seriousness, has said that when the times arrives San Angelo will defeat Sweetwater and Big Spring. We hope that the Bobcats whip Sweetwater November 21 at Angelo. And then on Thanksgiving Day we'll whip the Bobcats and throw the district race into a three-cornered tie.

NATIONAL CONSPIRACY TO DOMINATE MARKETING OF OIL PRODUCTS CHARGED

Standards Of New York, California, New Jersey With Shell, Humble, Texas, Gulf, Sinclair, Magnolia, Simms, T.P., A. P. I., Defendants

AUSTIN, Nov. 12 (AP)—Alleging violation of the state anti-trust laws, Attorney General James V. Allred today sued to cancel the Texas charters of fifteen large oil companies and two other organizations within the industry.

Corporations sued are the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Standard Oil Company of California, the Shell Petroleum Corporation, the Cities Service Oil company, the Texas & Pacific Coal and Oil company, the Texas Petroleum Marketers Association, the American Petroleum Institute.

Allred charged that the companies are in a nation's conspiracy to dominate the marketing of gasoline and other petroleum products.

Allred charged that the companies since 1929 had been acquiring independent filling stations in Texas, fixing prices of their products and eliminating competition.

The suit asked forfeiture of the charters of the domestic corporations and cancellation of the Texas permits of the others, as well as liens on the property of all and fines for approximately 700 days, totaling for all defendants a minimum of $995,000 and maximum of $17,850,000.

The attorney general has been investigating oil companies several months under authorization by the legislature. He sued parent companies of various subsidiaries operating in Texas, as the Standard of New Jersey, controls the Humble, the Standard of New York, the Magnolia. It was claimed that the parent companies seek through their connection with other concerns to avoid jurisdiction of Texas courts.

THE CAPITOL WHIRLIGIG

By R. W. BARRY, AUSTIN, TEX., Nov. 12 (AP)—"They swarred him."

That's Mildred Hedrick's description of the inauguration last January when R. S. Sterling, Houston business man who beat his way up from lowly boatman, became Governor of Texas.

Mildred is five and the governor's granddaughter. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wynn C. Hedrick of Fort Worth. She likes this business of having a grandfather sit in the chief executive's chair.

She visits in the mansion frequently, coming all by herself most of the time from her home in Fort Worth. She scampers across the capitol grounds to the executive offices on the last provocation. Arrived, she drags up one of the heavy, sedan-like chairs as close as she can get it to her grandfather's gubernatorial seat and interferes with his business of state trying to talk with him.

Mrs. R. S. Sterling says she's merely "keeper of the mansion." She hob-nobs in the capitol corridors when she isn't busy in the ancient colonial home on the hill that serves as a roof for the governor and family. One wouldn't know she was "the governor's wife." She is that demurely. Also, she admits frankly that "we are not politicians."

She was telling a good story on herself the other day.

She did a little state shopping in an Austin department store.

"Please charge this to the mansion," she told the girl who waited on her.

"Do you work there, please?" the saleslady asked as she started to inquire for credentials.

Mrs. Sterling says the "sales girl was right."

"I certainly do work there," she reflected. "I do plenty of work over there trying to make and keep that big nose like home."

Miss Norma Sterling, the Sterling's only unmarried daughter, is not of the "society" type, although she has moved in select circles ever since she was a little girl. She never has made her debut, and her mother does not believe she ever will. She had been impromptu on more than one occasion to join the debut during various seasons in Houston, but each time she selected to stay out of the limelight.

"I certainly do butantes and admire all the pretty things that go with debuts, but simply does not choose to have a debut herself. She isn't provincial in any sense of the word but thinks all persons who like the social whirl should be permitted to whirl to their hearts' content."

Oil Comes Back
MID-CONTINENT oil companies, bidding the price of crude fifteen cents to a top of 85 cents, probably had good reason for so doing.
The United States Bureau of Mines announced that the oil output in this country reached the lowest point in five years in the month of September, when the total was only 63,000,000 barrels, or about 2,100,000 barrels daily.

Most of the decline was attributed to curtailment of the East Texas flow, where the September total averaged 17,000 barrels daily less than August.

Gasoline output in September was $5,000 barrels daily below the August level.

Texas produced almost half of the nation's oil in September, with a total of 28,000,000 barrels. However, the daily average declined in that month to 936,000 barrels as compared with more than a million barrels daily during August.

If the plan to place East Texas on an acreage basis is put into effect, still further curtailment of the flow in that field is expected—and that may be counted on to bring still higher prices for the industry.

Along with the recovery of cotton grain and other products, the upward climb of oil is a highly encouraging factor. For a time Texas was selling its oil at a dime a barrel or less. As the price approaches one dollar again, it will restore an ailing industry to good health—and that will be a fine thing for the six million people who call Texas home.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Garner's Opportunity
Wichita Times:
"The speakership of the house at Washington is a queer sort of job. The holder of it is outranked in the public estimation, only by the president and the vice president.
Inevitably, the speaker is a presidential possibility."

Only once, however, has the presidency been attained by a former speaker. James K. Polk was that one. Two other speakers, Henry Clay and James G. Blaine, were nominated by major parties. Another, Schuyler Colfax, laid down the house gavel to pick up that of the senate, as vice president in Grant's administration. A few others, including Blaine and Carlisle, stepped from the speakership to cabinet positions. But for most of the 38 men who have presided over the house, the speakership has been the limit of political attainment.

More than once, presidential ambitions have impaired the efficiency of some speakers. Tom Reed was one of the ablest men ever to hold that office until the presidential bid stung him. Champ Clark kept his eyes on the building at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue, so much so that he neglected the scene immediately before him.

If, as now seems certain, John Garner of Texas, is speaker of the house, there probably will be no ambitions to distract him from the immediate task. The Texan probably is too wise a politician to give ear to those who hint of higher things for him.

He has an exceptional opportunity to serve his party and to improve its prospects for next year.
That opportunity lies in leading the house Democrats skillfully through the labyrinth of legislation that confronts the approaching session. The party has the chance to convince the country that it can be trusted.
Its responsibility is exceptionally heavy just now as it assumes control of the house. The difficulties of the speaker's task are formidable enough without being complicated by his own ambitions.

Texas is proud of the honor in store for him and will look to him as the first Texan ever to wield the house gavel, the sort of leadership the situation demands.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by Dr. Inigo Goldstein, M.D., D.Sc., of the New York Acad. of Medicine

HYSTERIA

One of the exceedingly important functions of the brain and nervous system is to repress certain stimuli which seek expression in actions, liable ultimately to prove "unsuited" to the demands of the situation. This repressing function can be readily appreciated by anyone who has learned to play a game of skill requiring nicely timed and adjusted motions.

At the beginning the player is likely to be quiver with eagerness. The young baseball enthusiast swings his bat before the ball is out of the pitcher's hand. Later, as skill is acquired, there is a co-ordination, a summing up of many stimuli, and in consequence better response and action.

In achieving this the nervous system is obliged to restrain certain impulses and to re-enforce others.

This is what the great neurologist Sherrington terms the integrative action of the nervous system. Mental "growing up" is in a sense the acquisition of skill in dealing with the affairs of everyday life.

A large part of the skill consists in the ability to repress certain impulses, to blend them, or to integrate them with other impulses, and to secure ultimately a line of action serving the best interests of the individual.

Hysteria is in a large measure a loss of this skill.

It shows itself in an infeebliment of mental control and in a weakening in the directing powers of the mind.

The person suffering from hysteria is readily influenced by suggestion.

He has a tendency to exaggerate and magnify ordinary happenings, he is subject to long flights of fancy, and to dreamy states.

Together with this purely mental state the hysteria sufferer may show certain physical disabilities such as partial or complete paralysis, blindness, speechlessness, and the loss of memory.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Popularity is the stakes for which Venice Muir has been trained and groomed, but she sees no chance of winning. Her mother, prominent in New York society, cares only for Venice's social success. Venice realizes that she has the light cases that her friends possess. She is unusually lovely, but her face is both immature and wistful. "I look too pure," she decides. "Purity is out of style." The Goadby's party is for Venice merely another instance of her lack of appeal. Her friend Lola Goadby provides her with partners, but she cannot interest them. Attempting to imitate the methods of the other girls, she fails miserably. The next morning, Venice considers trying to write a novel. Continual inspection has given her ability to analyze the emotions of others. Mrs. Muir comes in, and looks anxiously at Venice. "How was the Goadby's party?" she asks.

Chapter 4 SELF-REVELATION

"It was really beautifully done," Venice told her mother. "Excellent music. Lush foot, lots of people."

"Did you have a good time?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Oh, Mother, I got stuck as usual."

It was these repeated post-party catechisms that heightened the urge within Venice for popularity. They lent her failure added significance.

There was a silence. Mrs. Muir looked distantly perplexed. "I can't understand you, Venice," she complained.

"I'm so easy to understand, Mother. That's probably one of the troubles. No one's intrigued by the obvious. We've gone over it too often. I just don't happen to have any social graces. I like to talk books and things like that. No one wants to talk books at a party. I try for airy persiflage. It simply won't come to the tip of my tongue. And the knowledge that I'm stupid that way makes me self-conscious and dull." Her words fairly tumbled over each other in the bitterness of self-revelation. "You can't turn a violet into an orchid no matter how you cultivate it. Mayn't I take some courses up at Columbia? I'd love to write. I have plenty of plots in my head. Mayn't I, Mother?"

"One of those intellectual girls! Nonsense, Venice. Writing isn't going to keep your life warm and filled as you grow older. It's entertaining and being entertained that fills the nook and crannies. A husband, children, your own home. Plenty of friends, plenty of invitations. That's the essence of life. Don't be absurd, my dear."

"I wonder."

"Don't wonder," snapped Mrs. Muir. "Be satisfied with what has satisfied generations before you. Wondering is the undoing of the modern generation."

"Or the making," suggested Venice.

"There!" said Mrs. Muir disgustedly. "That's the kind of remark, I suppose, you make at a party. Deep. Never try to be clever with men, Venice. They want you to think them clever but they shy clear of brains in the weaker sex."

"Dear mother! You're so south-of-the-Mason-and-Dixon-line, if you know what I mean."

"I'm glad to say I don't." She tal bowl, Venice unburdened herself.

"I'm all wrong," she burst out. "What's the use of pretending? I never make a hit anywhere. No one hardly ever takes me home. Don't you think I might back out of it all, study something?"

"Heavens, no! Why? What you want to back out of is the only thing, Venice. You'll get into your stride suddenly one of these days. You're shy, that's all. Stick it out. It'll be worth it. It's fun."

"Yes, if you're popular. I'm not. It's agony then. Hanging about and watching other people enjoy themselves. What makes one popular, do you think?"

Lola nibbling a roll, reflected. "Well, there're various types of popularity."

"For instance?"

What is the recipe for popularity? Lola's classification provides a choice for Venice, tomorrow.

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—When historians record the year 1930-31 in American politics, there's certain to be a great deal said about three political divisions of the United States:

"Seventh Missouri, first Ohio and eighth Michigan."

It was these three congressional districts that caused democrats and republicans to spend many sleepless nights and anxious days.

Upon the outcome of the bye-elections in these areas perhaps depended numerical control of the national house of representatives.

Not since 1916 has such doubt existed as to which of the major parties would control a branch of the government. In 1916 it was almost a week before the country knew definitely that Woodrow Wilson had defeated Charles Evans Hughes for the presidency.

But as to who would ultimately control the seventy-second house of representatives, the country had to wait on the mourners' bench a whole year for the answer.

Democrats On Top
A democratic victory in the eighth Michigan appears to have answered the question.

The democrats by marshalling their full strength can organize the house in December—if they want to, as the situation now stands.

The republicans were fighting with their backs to the wall on election day, November 3. They had to win in every instance to have even a chance at this stage to elect a speaker of the house.

Conditions Loom
As to the senate, the situation remains unchanged. No seat was at stake. There is one vacancy—that of the late Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey—but Governor Larson will send a republican down to serve out the term.

Nevertheless, all is not smooth sailing for the republicans. The loss of a single "progressive" senator's vote, or the decision of Senator Shipstead, the only farmer laborite, to vote with the democrats might easily upset the apple cart.

One fact, however, seems evident. If this next congress hopes to send to the white house measures which President Hoover will sign or which it can pass over his veto, it can only be done through temporary coalition.

Webb County Stops Its Road Building
LAREDO, Nov. 12. UP—Because there is approximately $100,000 in delinquent taxes due in Webb county and there is a lack of funds in the county treasury for road and bridge purposes, road work in Webb county was ordered suspended by the commissioners' court. Numerous petitions for additional road work will be held in abeyance, but the county maintenance crew will be kept busy keeping a road in good condition. A total of 120 miles of good roadway, including cost materials, bridge supplies, salaries, etc., was constructed in Webb county by the county road building forces at a cost of $29,156.23 during the period from January 1 to October 1, 1931.

Kiwanis Club Has Armistice Day Program

To Entertain Steer Squad Next Thursday At The Crawford

The Kiwanis club at its regular meeting today at the Crawford Hotel enjoyed an Armistice Day program in charge of Dr. C. D. Baxley. The members and guests were entertained by the recouping of their war-time experiences by Legionnaires Carl Blomsheld, L. W. Croft and G. W. Deats.

Dallas Whaley, commander of the local post of the American Legion spoke to the club on the organization and work of the Legion. He made an appeal for a concentrated effort of the Legion members to enroll every man in Big Spring eligible for membership in order that the work of the organization may be strengthened.

The club will entertain the members of the football team and the coaches with an appreciation dinner at the Crawford Hotel next Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

"We want to show the boys that we think as much of them now as we ever did. As long as they fight as they did against the Mustangs we will always be for them," a Kiwanian said today.

Reports From Three County Club Women

Review Of Home Demonstration Work For Year

November closes the year for home demonstration work. Demonstrators and cooperators make totals of the work they have kept records on for the past twelve months. 4-H Pantry achievement programs are being carried out in the women's clubs.

Mrs. Jim Appleton of Vincent showed a good display of canned foods in a meeting at her home last Tuesday. She showed a display of leafy, starchy, and succulent or "other" vegetables which she has canned during the growing season. She had a assortment of canned meats, pickles, and relishes, preserves and jellies, canned fruit and tomatoes. She will serve daily one of each of the three classes of vegetables and at least one kind of fruit. This may be tomatoes, two kinds of protein food, meat, cheese, dried beans or peas, eggs or fish. One container of pickle or relish and one of preserves or jelly will be used weekly. These foods serve only as trimmings to the meal, and do not take the places of fresh vegetables and fruits.

She has canned beets without vinegar, thus they will furnish valuable minerals and vitamins which would have been lost in pickling. She has a hot bed which will furnish leafy vegetables throughout the winter months, therefore she will not have to open a can of leafy vegetables each day. She raised garden plants in a hot bed last spring. She had 1"x12" boards to make pantry shelves in her cellar. These shelves will enable her to assort her canned products.

Canned Products
Mrs. Lawrence Anderson of Luther showed canned products at a demonstration in her home the following day. She did not have sufficient containers of pickles and relishes to open one a week. She said "We will not eat that much relish and pickle. I serve fresh fruits, canned fruits, and fresh vegetables made into salads daily, in which is nutritious, and flavors it so it will serve as an appetizer as well."

She added another phase of pantry work to her demonstration that of kitchen improvement. She has put a sink in her kitchen. Her kitchen furniture is painted green. She did the work herself, making the room lighter, and the surfaces more easily cleaned. She will follow up this work next year by making further improvements in the room.
Her emergency shelf is well supplied with a good selection of canned fruits, sa-dines and salmon, and other foods she bought to go with that she canned. She has jars of mixtures for various quick breads and will have to add only the milk and stir the product, and it will be ready to cook.

Value of Hotbed
Mrs. W. A. Langley of Fairview has canned 250 containers of vegetables and meat, but she values her hotbed even more than canned foods. Last February after hotbeds were discussed in the club she had one built 1x60 feet. This was constructed according to plans sent out by A. G. M. department of extension. She raised mustard, radishes, lettuce and spinach in it for fresh eating. She raised her own tomato plants having some ripe fruit from these vines by July the fourth, and plenty for the family use until the fifteenth of July. She raised pepper plants in it, and the ones she did not transplant are bearing now. Her family enjoys the vegetables and always eat them if they are fresh.

The Langley also cured 1,000 pounds of pork and saved their own lard.

There are nearly 5,000 structures ten or more stories in height in American cities.

Relates Trip To Dallas Fair

Tells How 4-H Girls Were Entertained; Relates Club Work At Home

By NELLIE MAE ROBINSON
I won a trip to the educational encampment at the Dallas state fair for having one of the three 4-H prize-winning records, in this county.

With Mrs. Allgood and Arteria Minton, I left Monday morning, Oct. 19, for Dallas. Upon arrival we were met by the fair committee who showed us to the educational encampment dormitory where we were enrolled and assigned rooms. While we were in Dallas, everything possible was done for our comfort and enjoyment. We were taken through all of the exhibit halls where we found many interesting things.

For amusement and entertainment we were taken to the play, "Three Little Girls," the rodeo, the circus, the Battle of Gettysburg, the zoo and many other places of great interest.

The Girl Reserves of Dallas, visited us at the dormitory one afternoon and I presented a puppet show. On Thursday afternoon, before we returned home, the P.T.A. of Dallas made it possible for us to attend a show at the Palace theater.

Was Assembly Pianist
In our assemblies, at which time we would sing, I had the pleasure of playing the piano. We learned to know each other better there.

I certainly enjoyed my trip to Dallas and appreciated the efforts of the fair committee and others who made it so enjoyable.

Columbus, O., boosters of Burgess Whitehead are predicting he will be an even greater player than Frankie Frisch next year with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Norway's first factory for the manufacture of toys has been opened at Trondheim.

I joined it in 1929 for the purpose of learning more about cooking, canning, gardening and the different things that are taught in such clubs. I chose poultry my first year and gardening as my productive demonstration this past year.

In caring for my garden I kept it irrigated and the weeds cut. I staked my beans and pruned some tomatoes. I found that more tomatoes grow on a pruned vine than on an unpruned one.

In cooking, I learned to make boiled, French and mayonnaise salad dressings; and fruit and vegetable salads. I made yeast breads at several different times.

I also learned how to prepare other vegetables dishes which are necessary for a well-balanced diet.

Canning Record
In canning, I learned to be very careful to have all utensils sterilized and to see that all were sealed tightly. I have canned 54 quarts of tomatoes, 86 quarts of peas, 63 quarts of corn, 23 quarts of beans, 20 quarts of corn relish, 3 quarts and 1 pint of tomato preserves, 40 quarts of chili sauce, 7 quarts of chow chow, 12 pints of apple jelly, 58 pints of grape jelly, and 30 quarts of cucumber pickles. At 6 different times I have helped women in the community canning.

In clothing, I learned to fit my clothes, to make a napery hem and to overcast edges to keep them from unraveling. I have made most of my clothes, window curtains for all the windows, and sheets and pillow cases. I have learned to care for linens.

In improving my room I repapered a clothes closet, made curtains for the windows and rearranged the furniture.

In outdoor improvements I cleaned the yard, set out rose cuttings, moved the washplace and moved the lawn several times.

Won Prize For Calf
Beside working under the direction of the home demonstration agent, I fed a baby feed under the direction of the county agent. My calf won 3rd place in the Howard County fair and I received a prize of $10.

I won 9 first places at the county fair in the 4-H club work and several 2nd and 3rd places which brought me $250.

I want to encourage every girl in the county to put her best in club work next year. Let's see if we can't have 30 or 40 girls entering exhibits in the county fair. I can recommend 4-H club work, for it has certainly made a different girl out of me.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter Entertain At Bridge
Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Porter entertained with a delightfully informal party Monday evening for three tables of bridge players.

Chrysanthemums and winter daisies made attractive decorations. Mrs. Stephens made high score and received a hat rack and a novelty whiskbroom. Mr. Edwards made men's high score and received an ashtray.

The guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Liburn Coffee, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ford, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Strange and Mrs. J. L. Webb.

6,000 Expected At Teachers' Meeting
AMARILLO, Nov. 12 (AP)—This city is making preparations to entertain more than 6,000 school teachers and educators of Texas when the State Teachers' Association meets here November 26 to 28.

The Amarillo chamber of commerce, local school men, and colleges of the Panhandle-Plains have united in sending invitations. Those in charge of commercial exhibit booths say the interest is greater than in former years and that a larger attendance is anticipated.

ORGAN CONCERT NEXT SUNDAY

First Presbyterian Church at Seven Thirty P. M. Mr. Samuel J. Reed, who has recently moved here from Los Angeles, California, to establish a School of Music, will be presented in an organ recital next Sunday night at the First Presbyterian church at 7:30 o'clock.

For the past six months, prior to coming to Big Spring, Mr. Reed has been associated with Fox West Coast Studios in Beverly Hills as Recording Organist.

He began the study of organ in 1918 under Mr. David Grove, then organist and choirmaster of St. Matthews and Scottish Rite Cathedrals at Dallas. In 1921, he attended a summer class in master organ playing, being conducted in Kansas City by Pietro Yon, one of the world's finest organists. Following this he studied with Dr. Ray Hastings and Ed-

Grand Champion Bull Sire Is Cow Winning Prize In Same Show

AMARILLO, Nov. 12. (AP) - For what dairy experts say was probably the first time in history, the grand champion bull of a dairy show was sire of the grand champion cow in the same show when Marie Oxford's You'll Do and You'll Do Gypsy Girl won these honors at the recent Panhandle-South Plains Fair at Lubbock.

The senior bull defeated his double grandson, Golden Maid's Volunteer Second, who was junior champion of the Lubbock show. You'll Do Blanche Gypsy, sister of the grand champion cow, was first in the three-year-old class, and had won senior and grand champion honors at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo. The two sisters won first in the produce of dam competition at both Lubbock and Amarillo, and with Oxford You'll Do, won first for get of sire at both places.

Tierra Blanca farms near Canyon, Randall county, were outstanding winners at both fairs, although the dairy divisions were larger at both Lubbock and Amarillo than in former years.

Three Texans On Army Club

Abilene Boy Promoted To Starting Center After Yale Game

By BILL PARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Texas On Army Team
A reader who trails football results in the East recently mailed the following data concerning Texas on the Army team this season. "They are four Texans on the team and every one is first string. But for a leg injury to Sebastian in the Yale game, four elevenths of Army's starting line-up would be composed of Texas boys. As it is only three Texans start now as Sebastian may be out for the season. "Robert Carver, former Dallas Oak Cliff star, is starting quarterback. Tom Kilay of San Antonio former St. Edwards player is regular fullback. Oscar Senier of Waco O. Senter on the formal roster is regular starting center, having been promoted to first string for his work in the Yale game. Senter was a former Abilene High School star who played on the great teams of 1929 and 1927, winning all-state honors. Henry Sebastian is a former Sherman High School star. Sebastian Kilay and Senier have another year at West Point. Carver finished this year, Carver weighs 165 lbs. Sebastian and Kilay 185 each and Senier 175.

BUNKROOM IN AIR LEVIATHAN

Comfortable double-deck bunks, heated by electricity, provide sleeping accommodations on the navy's new dirigible, the Akron. Above are shown a couple of the ship's crew of 52 responding to "reville," or whatever they blow to get sky-going sailors up in the morning.

This and That

for 38 yards and a touchdown to win for the Ponies but almost any inmate of the old men's home could have negotiated the distance behind the Red and White wall running interference for him. He did nothing during the p. m. but carry the ball behind the aforementioned interference and he did this well, but as for being a real football player in all departments we can't rate the gentleman at all. He plays safety about as well as a wooden Indian and we do not remember any tackles made by the big back during the game. He rammed when rambling meant winning a ball game but we give the Mustang line and the other three backs the big credit for that disastrous run.

Strother, Grimsley and Jones in the Mustang line really played ball. Coach Hennig today can thank his front line defense for a well earned victory. We did not expect to see such a fierce bunch of Mustangs in the forward wall but we readily admit our error. They were there and the Steers weren't and what more can we say.

The highly touted Sam Baugh failed to wait until his pass receivers were in the open to shoot the oval into their waiting arms as we had been informed he would do. In fact during the battle only one time did he succeed in completing one of his tosses for a total gain of 7 yards. Schwarzenbach was a pain to the Pony passer as time after time he went up to pull the bullet like shots down. Dennis carried two tosses through to completion for a gain of 45 yards.

Don't get the idea we do not think Baugh is a sweet player for we do, but he did not shine yesterday as we expected him to. There was another field general on the gridiron who was just as good as the Pony. But more of that later.

This Red Sheridan is worth a row pen full of men like Mike Hicks. The Pony with number 14 on his back plays football as we like to see it played. His 72 yard run for a touchdown yesterday was a beauty and even though this department is plenty glad that one of the Mustangs was overly anxious on the play we give the boy credit for a beautiful run.

Speaking of that run however we want to inform one and all that Tack Dennis, cutting across from the far side of the field, outran the fleet Mustang and had he had 10 more yards to go Red would not have crossed the goal. As it was...

Tack's flying tackle missed Sheridan by inches as he slipped over the line. Tack showed a world of speed in trying to overhaul the flying Pony.

It would seem that the little fellows are death and destruction to the Rambler. It is to be remembered that McClinton is the boy who first put the Mighty One out of commission and yesterday when little Schwartz brought one of his jaunts to a sudden stop we thought the big fellow was through for the day. Then, too, we remember seeing Strother hit the Steer quarter full tilt and go down for the count while Schwartz remained on his feet. Must be power somewhere, folks.

Coots in for Harris at left end showed a world of fight and played a nice game during the time he was on the field. The little end is just as tough as a boot and hard to take out of the play.

Forrester at the other end also played a nice game. He was hunting and P generally took a couple of three Mustangs to get him on the ground. Dyer and Hopper were pained to the Hennessey and stopped Pony threats before injuries forced them from the game. They two together with Roberts, who broke his hand on the first play after entering the game have what we call lots of that ancestral fortune.

It was a sad sad picture yesterday to see Tack start off around those Mustang ends all by himself. We do not remember seeing the Steers clear the way for him. He was a marked man from the opening whistle but above it all he stood out as the best man on the field. We give Tack credit for a wonderful defensive game which without doubt saved we know not how many Sweetwater touchdowns. He took more punishment than any man on the field but stood up under it like a real man and not once from the beginning to the end of the thrilling battle did he get down. Ladies and gentlemen, we take our hat off to Tack Dennis, the greatest back in West Texas and one of the gamest fighters we have ever seen.

We tried to tell the world that Dennis has no equal in high school circles when it comes to punting and we have yesterday's results to further substantiate our claim. Kicking into a high wind 8 times and with the wind 3 times Tack booted the old pigskin for an average of 46 2/3 yards. He was rushed on his kicks several times but he always got them off for nice yardage. Just another little item which helped hold down a Mustang score.

Job the National Commission managed to keep the work from retrograding, and when the fall rainy season is over it is expected that the surfacing will have been completed as far as Villa Juarez, Tamaulipas, where a byroad turns off to Tampico. The latter highway has been graveled for a part of its length and in dry weather will be an entirely practicable thoroughfare for motorists attracted by the salt and fresh water fishing for which the port city is noted.

Three crews are at present at work oiling the highway between Monterrey and Llaneros, Nuevo Leon, and that section is to be completed within a few weeks. Although not dirt-free, the remainder of the highway to Victoria has been graveled and rolled until it is excellent.

Uniting Tampico with the National Highway to the Southwest at a point near Valles, San Luis Potosi is a graveled road upon which rapid progress is being made and which although subject to occasional floods such as the recent ones in that area, will in most years permit all-weather travel.

Work on the coast-to-coast highway from Matamoros to Mazatlan is still under way west of Saltillo in several places, although little has been done on it east of Monterrey. Between that Coahuila and Nuevo Leon capitals there is an all-weather road, the west half of which is first class and the remainder good. The Coahuila half of this road was recently inaugurated at Saltillo by General Juan Andreu Almazan, minister of communications and public works, and on its completion cut the driving time between the two capitals, 58 miles apart, by at least 40 minutes.

A tourist highway which draws most of its traffic from the Mexicans themselves has just been completed between Mexico City and Tepic, Nayarit, standing in the necessity of a bridge detour, now eliminated, this highway has been heavily traveled since May 1.

The Nuevo Leon state highway commission exhausted its funds before the year was half over, but as soon as possible expects to renew work on the road connecting Monterrey with Reynosa, Tamaulipas where it will join the Meridian Highway of the United States, one of the Pan-American routes now being projected.

From the number of inquiries which have reached travel information bureaus of Mexico and the Southwest since it was erroneously reported that the highway from Llaneros to Mexico City had been completed, the Mexican Government has concluded that when it really is finished the traffic over it will be enormous, and is preparing a service of maintenance which will be adequate.

At present the route of the National Highway to Mexico City lies through a widely picturesque but sparsely settled region, and were the road opened today it would be almost impossible to make the trip.

over it without taking along gasoline, food and other supplies, but there will be plenty of time for the establishment of filling stations, hotels, and tourist camps after the date of completion is set.

Coin in slot machines that sell oil-paper umbrellas when the equivalent of 15 cents in them have been installed on Berlin streets.

Motor ships now aggregate 9,146,000 gross tons, or 14 per cent of the world's shipping, compared with 7,814,000 tons, or 12 per cent, a year ago.

A trophy cup has been offered as a trophy for the winner of Hawaii's prep school football tournament. The cup becomes a permanent possession of the team winning it three times.
