M. D. BENTLEY NEW
SECRETARY-MANAGER
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

At a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce Friday night, M. D. Bentley was elected secretary-manager to fill the unexpired term.

Mr. Bentley has been on the board of directors of the organization for a long time and is familiar with the duties of his new office.

Current bills amounting to a little over $9 were allowed and the 1926 assessment of the Postal Highway Association of $100 was ordered paid.

The question of selling or renting the fair buildings was discussed but no definite action taken.

News from Lefors

Mrs. Charlie That recently returned from a trip to Denver, Colo. District Court was officially opened Monday, Oct. 3. Due to the inclemency of the weather, Judge Ewing adjourned court on Sept. 27, the schedule time for meeting, to be reassembled a week later.

Judge Ewing, during his visit to Lefors, seemed well pleased with the progress that has been made. The Judge says that the county should build a hundred thousand dollar court house, as the one which is now serving the county is far too small to accommodate those wishing to transact business. Judge Ewing commented upon the hardships that he has in the past been compelled to undergo while holding court in Gray county, but that is now a thing of the past, for with the recent opening of the Caudill Hotel and the Cummins Cafe those wishing to transact business can do so with ease, and forever absent will be the fear of having to camp out during their stay at the county seat.

Lefors is experiencing quite a building campaign. Some twenty-five buildings are to be constructed within a short time.

Judge Wolfe has a five-room bungalow under construction.

George That is contemplating the building of a duplex bungalow in the That Heights addition.

Miss Miriam Wilson recently let the contract for the building of a three-room dwelling.

Tom Turner, the city engineer of Lefors, has completed the laying of the gas main into Lefors, and never more will the people be compelled to shiver around an unsatisfactory coal or wood stove.

Miss Louise Miller spent last week end in Amarillo. She was accompanied by Miss Dee Breeding.

School was discontinued for two days of the past week due to not having heat in the old building. This will soon be eliminated, as the new building will soon be ready for occupancy.

J. C. Short has let the contract for the building of a three-room bungalow which, upon completion, will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thompson went to Amarillo to spend the week end. Mrs. Thompson will go on to New York for an indefinite visit with her sister, while Mr. Thompson will return to Lefors to continue his work with an abstract company.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Amos and Mr. Leslie were Lefors visitors Friday. Messrs. Amos and Leslie are connected with the promotion of the That Heights addition.

The Rexana's Finley No. 1, which is located 14 miles north of Lefors, is now drilling at 2100 feet. It will only be a short time until this test will be completed, and from present indications, it looks as though the test will be successful.

The roads for the past week have been in a frightful condition, especially between Lefors and Pampa. As yet the bridge which was destroyed about four years ago has not been replaced, causing the road to be almost impassable. It seems a shame that no faster progress can be made in the replacing of this bridge. The Commissioners Court passed on this question at its last meeting, and it was agreed that the bridge should be replaced, but as yet no action has been taken toward the replacing of it.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Landers of Abilene returned Wednesday from a visit with relatives at Tezola, Okla.

CITY ELECTION

CALLED OCT. 15

A city election has been called to fill the vacancy on the council caused by the resignation of O. G. Stokely.

The election will be held at the city hall on Friday, October 15. A. T. Young has been named presiding judge.

Several names have been suggested for the place, but as this is a place in which the office usually seeks the man, it will not be generally known just who are candidates until the ballots are printed.

The successful candidate will fill an unexpired term which ends next April.

JONES ELECTED DEACON BAPTIST CHURCH WEDNESDAY

D. C. Jones was elected to the active board of deacons at the regular monthly conference of the First Baptist church Wednesday night.

Mr. Jones is a regularly ordained deacon, having served as an active deacon at West Frankfort, Ill., for a number of years.

The church voted to observe Cooperation Sunday on Oct. 24, 1926, when a collection will be taken for all statewide causes.

M. D. Bentley, R. L. Appling, J. C. Jones, G. J. Abbott and L. O. Floyd were appointed to set the local budget for the coming year.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

A birthday party celebrating the sixth birthday of little Miss Leta Mae Phillips was given Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 5, by Mrs. D. M. Davis.

After a number of games were played, refreshments were served to the following: Sarah Virginia and Junior McGowan, Juanita and Clyde Carpenter, Billie Cash, Wilma Sue West, Junior Coffey, Tinney and Snookie Thompson, Margaret Kramer, Mary Etta Young, Shirley Johnston, Joe Billie Bogan, Abriel Christian, Joyce Crockett, James Emmett and Billie Cooke, Nerine Smith and Leta Mae Phillips.

MRS. HENRY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. T. W. Henry entertained a number of ladies with a dining Wednesday. Those present were: Mesdames Plummer, Gaunt, Willis, Moody and Vannoy.

B. I. Carpenter, former McLean boy, is now studying for the ministry at Simmons College at Abilene.

JONES GIRL INJURED IN CELLAR CAVE-IN Reported.

Miss Eva Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Jones of the Liberty community, sustained a crushed ankle Sunday morning when the roof of a cellar in which she was working collapsed.

The heavy rain of Saturday night had caused the cellar to cave in, and the Jones family were moving the contents when the accident occurred.

Neighbors were called in to help extricate the young lady from the debris, which had completely covered her body, leaving only her face exposed. She is reported recovering nicely.

COTTON PICKERS INJURED AS TRUCK OVERTURNS ON HILL

The Hobbs family of Amarillo were injured when the truck they were driving turned over on the Campbell hill Wednesday afternoon.

A small child was thrown from the truck uninjured, but two other children were skinned and bruised, and Mrs. Hobbs suffered painful injuries about the head.

The family was able to proceed to Lela by train Thursday morning.

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE AND HAY OF JESSE J. COBB

Fire destroyed a garage filled with about fifty bales of hay at the Jesse J. Cobb residence, just east of the city limits, last Thursday afternoon.

The fire department answered the alarm with the chemical truck and kept the fire under control, so that no other buildings were endangered.

The fire is thought to have started from children playing with pistol caps in the hay.

A TACKY PARTY

GIVEN BY W. M. S.

One of the most enjoyable affairs held recently was a tacky party and pot luck supper given by the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist church at the home of Mrs. E. E. Dishman last Thursday evening.

Those present were kept in an uproar of merriment all evening over the funny costumes worn by the different ladies present.

Mrs. E. J. Lander won first prize and Mrs. T. A. Landers second for the tackiest costumes.

A silver offering amounting to a nice sum was taken for the society.

Among those present were: Mesdames T. W. Henry, C. S. Rice, E. J. Lander, Norman Johnston, Haskell Smith, T. J. Coffey, Scott Johnston, Harold Rippy, Vester Smith, S. W. Rice, A. Stanfield, John B. Vannoy, L. F. Coffey, Chas. Guill, Chas. Morrison, Chas. E. Truitt, T. N. Holloway, H. H. Lee, Roy Campbell, Porter Smith, Bee Everett, W. L. Haynes, T. A. Landers, A. A. CONFERENCE PRESIDENT METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Nat G. Rollins of Abilene, president of the Northwest Texas Methodist Woman's Conference, will speak at the Methodist church Sunday evening. Mrs. Rollins is known throughout Southern Methodism as a forceful speaker, a woman of exceptional platform ability.

Mrs. Rollins will be accompanied by Mrs. Frank Potts of Abilene, Mrs. J. G. Merrit of Colorado, who are also conference officers; and Mrs. Louis Clement of Shamrock, district secretary of Clarendon district.

Everyone is invited to be present.

BINKLEY WELL 35 MILLION GASSER

The Binkley well is now estimated a 35 million foot gasser. When the well was capped this week the casing was lifted about three feet by the pressure of the gas.

The Morse No. 3 is drilling again at 1935 feet after several days shut down on account of the weather and repairs to their gas supply line.

The Dial No. 1 is standardizing their equipment, having drilled to the present depth with a rotary rig.

ENGLISH CLASS STUDIES NEWSPAPER WORK MONDAY

One the High School English classes studied the workings of a newspaper office at close range Monday, when the 33 members of the class, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Ruth Dauer, visited the News office.

The students saw every step in newspaper making, getting such general ideas as was possible in the thirty minutes allotted to their stay at the office.

Every member of the class manifested a lively interest in the mechanics of newspaper work, and while lack of space and the big crowd made it difficult to secure the attention of the whole class at once, their deportment was excellent and reflected credit upon their instructor.

At the close of the visit a special souvenir was printed and distributed to each member of the class.

Those present were: Misses Trilby McCracken, Frances Noel, Beatrice Cash, Clara Anderson, Lucille Rice, Joellene Vannoy, Jewell Turner, Laura Gossett, Marie Browning, Doris Corbin, Johnnie Newman, Laeuna Holloway, Hazel Patty, Zella Mae Lankford, Robbie Howard, Naomi Curry, Levie Nelson, Mildred and Floye Landers; Messrs. John B. Rice, Landon and Orville Donnell, D. B. Biggers, Dallas Waters, Vassel Richardson, Roscoe Morgan, Chester Savage, Elton Johnston, S. A. Cousins Jr., Glenn Wolfe, Frank Corum, Ben Howard and M. D. Curry.

BASKETBALL GIRLS ORGANIZE

The High School girls met last Thursday afternoon and organized a basketball team for this year.

With the coaching of Miss Fort, a good, peppy team with many victories is sure to be the result. The following officers were elected: Captain, Lena Sparks; secretary, Rachel Stratton.

MRS. RAY BUYS HOME

Mrs. N. S. Ray has bought the old Sam Hodges place from Luther Willis.

Mr. Willis had only owned the place for a few days.

Sam Hodges made a business trip to Sayre, Okla., Thursday.

ART EXHIBIT AND PROGRAM ENJOYED FRIDAY EVENING

The art exhibit and program given at the high school auditorium by the Child Study Club last Friday evening was enjoyed by a large crowd.

The walls of the building were lined with about 175 copies of art masterpieces, and a number of people took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the pictures.

Supt. Tummins opened the exercises by expressing appreciation to the Study Club for their efforts in behalf of the school, and spoke on the wonderful things that may be enjoyed by those living in this age. "It is a most wonderful thing to live today," said Mr. Tummins.

A piano duet was given next by Misses Lola Ruth Stanfield and Laeuna Holloway, followed by a reading by Miss Margabelle Veatch. Miss Carmen Ulm then favored the audience with a vocal solo and Miss Ruth Patching gave a reading. A piano duet was rendered by Misses Lois Kirby and Sybil Graham; Miss Letha Ashby gave a reading, followed by a piano solo by Miss Floye Landers. A reading by Miss Margaret Johnston closed the program.

Supt. Tummins then exhibited the new stage settings recently installed and spoke in appreciation of the McLean business men who made the purchase of the curtains possible. Mr. Tummins said that catalog houses had nothing to do with furnishing the equipment, and insisted that local business men be given preference in purchases, saying that as far as he is concerned, he will do without rather than buy out of town.

Mr. Tummins announced a meeting Friday of this week at the school auditorium when a parent-teacher association will be organized.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS ELECTED

Last Thursday morning, at the suggestion of Prof. Tummins, the senior class met for organization. The following officers were elected: President, Lena Sparks; vice president, Roger Powers; sec.-treasurer, Floye Landers; yell leader, Lorena Ashby; reporter, Beatrice Cash; Sponsor, Miss Ruth Dauer.

The class has not selected its motto or class colors, but expect to do this week.

The senior class is composed of eighteen members.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS ELECT OFFICERS

The Junior class of McLean High School was organized, on Tuesday, Sept. 28, with Miss Ulm sponsor. The following officers were elected: Glenn Wolfe, president; Frances Noel, vice president; Orville Donnell, secretary-reporter; Ben Howard, treasurer; S. A. Cousins Jr., yell leader.

Gold and white were chosen as colors, and the daisy as the class flower.

SOPHOMORES ORGANIZE AND ELECT OFFICERS

The Sophomore class of 1926-27 met and organized Friday, Sept. 24. The following officers were elected: President, James Cobbs; vice president, Winnifred Howard; secretary-reporter, Margaret Johnston; treasurer, Noah Cunningham; yell leader, Roland Wingo; sponsors Mr. Tummins and Mr. Chancy.

Watch us go!
The ninth grade has already taken upon themselves the problem of placing some new front doors to our building.

GIRLS GLEE CLUB ORGANIZED AT SCHOOL

The High School girls organized a Glee Club on Wednesday morning, Sept. 30, under the direction of Miss Carmen Ulm.

The following officers were elected: president, Beatrice Cash; secretary, Lorena Ashby; business manager and treasurer, Lena Sparks; reporter, Clara Anderson.

Fifty-five girls were enrolled and all are full of pep and ready to sing at any time. Miss Ulm is well experienced in music and singing. She will have all the girls singing like larks. If you don't believe it, come and hear us.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

Begin Here Today

JOHN W. BROOKE, hard-ware magnate and widower, leaves the city after arranging with a firm of efficiency engineers to operate his home. This without the knowledge of his three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice. They learn of their father's arrangements, however, when

H. HEDGE, efficiency engineer, takes over the cares of running the Brooke mansion. Hedge has made himself at home in the private suite of John W. and turned the library into an office. Hedge has cut off Billy's allowance because he refuses to work and reinstated Constance's since she became his secretary. Alice draws an allowance because she is still attending school.

Alice and Billy are indignant because Constance has apparently gone over to the enemy, especially in view of the fact that Hedge prevented Constance from eloping with Tommy Treadwell. Today Hedge is accompanying Constance on a shopping expedition. They have just started. Constance has purchased several pairs of gloves, which Hedge insists in charging, contrary to all expressed rules of "efficient management."

Now Go on with the Story

As they left the gloves and re-entered the car Constance was trying to get a grip on herself.

"Steady," she whispered to her beating heart. "This is only a little skirmish. It's not even on outpost taken. Don't be too sure."

"Where next?" he demanded.

Constance pursed her lips doubtfully and studied the extended tip of her shoe.

"Shoes?" he asked.

"How wonderful you are at guessing," she murmured. "Really, I need a pair of walking shoes."

H. Hedge left her in the shoe-shop while he returned to the sidewalk and delivered a sharp lecture to Frank, the chauffeur, for allowing the motor to idle and thereby consume gasoline.

"It saves the starter, sir," explained Frank. "Using the starter runs out the batteries."

"Use the crank," advised the efficiency man. "It's good exercise."

Frank said that he would, but did not explain how he would most like to use it.

Back in the shop, he found Constance regarding three pairs of shoes with fond eyes.

"I don't know which to take," she said, looking up with a smile.

"Which are the walking shoes?"

"That's the trouble. They all are."

He examined the shoes critically.

"You do a good deal of walking," he observed at length. "I've noticed it."

"Yes," she admitted ruefully.

"It's economy not to wear a single pair of shoes continuously," he added. "That has been demonstrated."

"I—I think I have heard that."

"Of course." Then to the clerk, "Wrap them all up."

Constance bent her head and began fidgeting in her purse with dutiful anxiety. She did not care to look up, fearing that the efficiency man might truly interpret the gleam in her eyes.

"And charge them," she heard him say in his usual crisp tones.

Back in the limousine, they rode in silence for several minutes, the ogre frowning at the bundles that lay on the seat in front of them. He had made another entry in the note-book.

Constance judged that it was time to test the defense again.

"I—we have already spent more than I've saved," she said sadly.

"The purchases are being charged," he reminded her, still glaring at the bundles.

"It's—it's very kind of you."

"Not at all. Understand, Miss Brooke, that economy and efficiency are not synonymous with a policy of never spending any money."

"Truly?" Her astonishment was by no means feigned.

"Of course. I thought you understood. There is a complete chapter on that feature in the book I loaned you."

"So there is. I'd forgotten."

"Necessary expenditures, in order to preserve efficiency, are always economy. You needed gloves and shoes, did you not?"

"Indeed, yes!"

"Very well. Then we have been practicing economy and living up to our principles. Economy, I may add, in mere dollars, frequently costs more than extravagance. Note the case of your New Year party. It would have been extravagance to pay two hundred dollars, say, for the employment of musicians and the purchase of indigestible refreshments. But it was economy combined with efficiency and the principle of safety first, to spend three hundred dollars for a specialist and nurse in order to protect the health of the household!"

Constance opened her eyes wide.

but was too amazed to speak. So he had spent three hundred dollars on that! She made a mental note that H. Hedge would pay dearly.

"You appreciate the force of it, do you not?" he demanded.

"I? Oh, assuredly!"

"Of course. It's obvious."

But as he glanced at the bundles again, his frown returned.

"Well, where next?"

"I wasn't sure there was going to be any next."

"It's a waste of time, gasoline and tires to spend an afternoon merely shopping for gloves and shoes," he declared with emphasis.

"Scientific shopping contemplates the purchase of all necessities within the shortest space of time and with a minimum of travel. What else?"

Constance stole a glance at him and paused irresolutely. Unconsciously she patted her hat.

"Not that?" he exclaimed in alarm.

Now she looked at him squarely and smiled.

"No, not that," she agreed.

"Was it—terribly expensive?"

"Moderately so," he admitted. Then hastily, "But not extravagant. There is a marked difference. I draw the line at extravagance. But, as I said before, economy is not wholly gauged by dollars. I consider the hat an economy, all things taken into account. Do you find it a useful, practical hat?"

"Oh, tremendously so!" she assured him.

He had spoken quite solemnly, but when Constance next ventured a glance she detected a faint grin on the efficiency man's features. He froze it immediately when he discovered that she was observing him.

"Well, where next?" he repeated.

Constance decided upon another strategic movement.

"Honestly, I don't know," she said, "what do you think I want—I mean need?"

He studied her until the scrutiny became a trifle embarrassing. There was a penetrating and inclusive quality in his survey that caused her to flush faintly. She wished H. Hedge was not quite so thorough in his examination, yet she was conscious that his painstaking was not displeasing.

"I think you need a set of furs," he said.

She beamed at him in sudden bewilderment. How could he possibly have guessed? How could he be so wonderfully human?

And why—oh, why couldn't he always be like that?

"You are a mind-reader, Mr. Hedge," she affirmed. "You almost frighten me." "I am not a mind reader," said the efficiency man positively. "But you see, the other day I noticed that your muff and boa might easily, even profitably, be replaced with a set more in harmony with your fur coat."

"When in the world did you notice that?" she asked in surprise.

"On the back stairs."

Constance turned pink. It was the first time he had even alluded, in the most indirect manner, to the morning when he had robbed Tommy Treadwell of a bride. She never had brought up the subject since, by mistake, but H. Hedge had never reopened it.

"I did not know you were so observant," she said for the sake of speech.

"It is my business to observe. Where do you buy your furs?"

She gave a direction to the chauffeur and presently the efficiency man found himself in one of those Fifth Avenue shops that resemble nothing so much as a palatial private home.

Half an hour later, truly dazed, Constance emerged with a silver chain around her neck and a great muff that matched it. Furtively she pinched herself to make sure it was not a fantasy of the brain.

"It's five o'clock," announced the efficiency man. "Shall we drive in the park or take tea?"

"You decide," she murmured.

"We'll drive."

It would have seemed logical, after his amazing afternoon's record, that the efficiency man should be in a gay and trifling mood. He was not. He indulged in long silences, broken only by monosyllables, yet marked by frequent and disconcerting inspections of Constance. Sometimes he glowered at the bundles on the front seat. There was something grim in his look.

Once he turned to her abruptly and said almost sharply:

"I wish you would wear blue more frequently."

Constance widened her eyes, then stammered:

"Wh-why?"

"Suits you."

"And—do you like it, Mr. Hedge?"

He did not appear to hear, having his eyes fixed on another of his silences.

The number of parcels which were removed from the car as it stopped at last in front of the Brooke mansion caused Horace to display a surprise that is inexcusable in any experienced butler. H. Hedge did not notice this, however.

He walked directly to the library and began going through the afternoon mail. Constance hurried to her rooms, where she soon had battleda bringing out for inspection every dinner gown that she possessed.

She chose a blue one.

The efficiency man had little to say during the evening meal.

He did not fail to observe the gown, but made no comment, as Constance rather hoped he would. He was unnaturally preoccupied so that he forgot to tell Horace that he had taken several unnecessary steps in walking from the sideboard to the table.

NEXT CHAPTER.—Constance makes a discovery.

Flappers Flapped and Bobbed 3000 Years Ago, Ancient Relics Reveal

FLAPPERS have flapped for ages even as far back as 3000 B. C. Inscrutable ladies, haunting at their parents' graves and wearing their hair in the fashion of Dr. William F. Bade, dean of the Pacific School of Religion, graduate college of the University of California, at Berkeley, who has just returned from Palestine, where since last January he has been engaged in archaeological research of ancient ruins.

Dr. William F. Bade, dean of the Pacific School of Religion, graduate college of the University of California, at Berkeley, who has just returned from Palestine, where since last January he has been engaged in archaeological research of ancient ruins.

3000-Year-Old Story
The relics, Dr. Bade said, tell a story more than 3000 years old. Dean Bade's excavations were at Tell-el-Nasbi, seven miles north of Jerusalem, scene of the Biblical murder of Goliath by pliers for the hand of the ancient king's daughter. The cistern into which the murdered man was thrown was uncovered by Dr. Bade's workers, many of whom also were employed in the excavation of King Tut's tomb.

the excavation, Dr. Bade says, he found relics which may reveal a hitherto unknown history of the people of Palestine.

Solid gold beads, probably stolen from the "flappers" of Jerusalem by the workmen who built the great wall around that city, are among the collection. Carnelian stones, flint masonry and various types of stone masonry indicate different civilizations of that country during the centuries past, Dr. Bade said.

His collection, Dr. Bade said, is the largest group of pottery ever found in this section of the country. More than 150 pieces from two tombs of the Miphah of Benjamin date back to 2500 B. C.

Will Write History

Next winter, reinforced by $50,000 worth of donations and endowments from the University of California, Dr. Bade will return to the Holy Land to continue his excavations and explorations.

The archaeologist will write a history based on his findings during three years of research into the sequence of pottery, which he claims is the only true means of tracing history.

Dr. Bade last year finished his book "The Life and Letters of John Muir Naturalist" which was adjudged one of the 10 best books of the year. In Jerusalem, he was honorary lecturer at the American School of Oriental Research.

Grotesque Vases
It includes bronze and copper vases, some painted, some hammered into grotesque shapes. Dr. Bade says these vases tell a tale of the evolution of the races. At different levels in

RAIN INTERFERS WITH STREET WORK

The city street department started work Friday, and a number of streets were put in fine shape, but the rain Friday night made some of the work wasted. However, some work has been done since, and the principal streets are in better shape than they have been for a long time.

O. G. Stokely has returned from a few days' visit with his parents in Richmond, Kans. Mrs. Stokely, who is staying in Dallas, met Mr. Stokely in Oklahoma City and accompanied him to Kansas.

It All Depends

It all depends whether you want the best meat, or just any kind of meat; whether or not the price of the cut is taken into consideration.

Cheap Meats are usually cheap cuts. Good meat, scientifically handled, does not have to compete in price with cheap cuts. The quality shows in the better grades.

Our meats are McLean grown and home dressed. You know what you are buying, and the price is always as low as the quality will justify.

Gas Contracts

We will be ready to furnish contracts for gas to customers on and after Monday, Oct. 11th.

Plans of the system of mains through the city are now being drawn.

Pipe and materials are enroute to McLean and work of installation will be rushed to earliest possible completion.

Those who wish to use gas should make arrangements for having their houses piped in accordance with terms of gas ordinance passed by the City of McLean.

One-inch pipe should be used, and an accessible place for the company's meter should be arranged, preferably on the south side of the house.

Even Greater Beauty, with Performance Still Years Ahead

Today, Chrysler announces evolutionary style changes in its new and finer Chrysler "70", with new appearance, a superb smartness, a resplendent beauty of line, a new vogue in motor car design.

Standardized Quality

A fixed and inflexible standard of quality is enforced in the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four Chrysler cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

Let us demonstrate.

LADIES' COSTUMES

Skirts that adorn ladies are to be coaxed down considerably. That is due, however, to commercial manufacturers rather than an outburst of modesty. The result will be restful to the eye, however. Taken as a whole, those shapeless little-girl costumes are without distinction. The most beautiful gowns of women were of the period just before the war—along in the vicinity of 1914. They had lines and an "air." True, they couldn't walk in them, but where is there to walk to?—Bowie Booster.

Sub S. P. does not understand the fashion outlook from Montague county. This antediluvian critic refers to the gowns of the 1914 or primordial era and states that they had lines and an "air." Sub S. P. has a memory that is kind of hazy as he grows older, but he is anxious to know how any gown permitted by the police to adorn the female on public thoroughfares in 1914 could have had more air than the somewhat skimpy allotment of dress goods she refers to as a dress today. Air seems to be the chief thing about the 1926 models—we were accustomed to see stretches of voile, organdie, calico, wool or silk. Now all you see is air—and lines. Sub S. P. does not propose to invade a field in which, by reason of gender, he is necessarily handicapped, and it seems to him a matter of rashness on the part of the Booster to attempt to select the specimens of any given period as the best product of the female costumer. Suppose they gave him a pair of shears and the goods and told him to produce a model! The female dress is a peculiar thing. It is always immodest. No matter whether the wearer is covered from ears to toes in some impenetrable material, just so long as it is different from the costume of last year, it is an immodest garment. Five years from now, when they are wrapped in furs, some good fundamentalist will be preaching sermons on the immodesty of a lady who no longer exposes her kneecaps. It's the way we think.—Dallas News.
