Best Year's Crop Shipments Make Large Showing

Last year's shipments of poultry and eggs amounted to $84,800, according to figures given by E. J. Under, Rock Island agent. There were 18 cars of poultry shipped from McLean last year and 2,000 cases of eggs. Other products shipped were: 1 hides, 170 cars cattle, 25 cars sheep, 2 cars sheep and goats, 2 horses and mules. There were 5,471 bales of cotton ginned here last season; 72 of corn sold on the local market; 232 cars of grain sorghums, 2 cars watermelons, 18 cars hay. All of the above figures are from the railroad records, and do not include about 10,000 bushels of fruit produced and something like 1,000 bushels of potatoes. The estimated total value of products mentioned amounts to $9,741. This sum, together with other minor items, represents a considerable amount for a year's output. The value of cotton produced was something less than one-third of total.

CITY ENGINE NOW RUNNING AT POWER PLANT

The new four cylinder, super-charged engine recently installed at city light and power plant was tested up last week and is now giving its share of the load. The new engine has an exhaust for each cylinder, and takes care of the noise better than any yet used. The exhaust is hardly noticeable except in very near vicinity of the plant. With the addition of this engine, it is thought that the power of the city will be amply in care of for this season.

Large Class Graduates from High School

With the exception of last year, there will be a larger class of graduates from the McLean High School this term than ever before. Twenty-two members of the senior class graduate this year, as against twenty-four last year.

This year's class is composed of fine, serious minded young Americans who prove their fitness as loyal citizens by ordering their class invitations of the home printer. The News has printed 700 of what is said by everyone who has seen them, to be the finest line of invitations ever used by local graduates. We are also informed by officials of the class that diplomas would have been ordered at home had they been consulted in the matter.

Plans for the various class activities incident to graduation are now being perfected.

The graduation exercises will be held Friday evening, May 21, when diplomas will be presented to the following: Misses Bobbie Hodges, Ruth Clark, Mildred Rogers, Bonnie Miller, Sinclair Rice, Lorena Ashby, Margaret Glass, Catherine Corum, Eunice Huff, Vina Stratton and Lena Davidson; Messrs. Tom Clark, Leslie Huff, Charlie Mars, Arthur Dwyer, LeRoy Landers, Earl Brannon, Emery Crockett, Russell Grogan, Miles Davis, Oran Robinson and Lenard Howard.

MAD DOG SCARE FRIDAY

According to City Marshal J. A. Sparks, a supposed mad dog bit a dog belonging to J. E. Cubine, a hog of C. M. Carpenter's and all the dogs on the J. M. Carpenter place last Friday.

J. M. Carpenter killed the mad dog and all his dogs, we are told.

It is not known how many other animals may have been bitten, and Mr. Sparks is serving notice on dog owners in town to have all dogs put up by next Monday morning, when he will begin shooting all dogs that are found running at large within the city limits.

Prompt action is thought to be necessary to protect the people, and valuable dogs should be kept up until the danger is over.

ANOTHER RAIN THIS WEEK

Another rain fell on Tuesday of this week, and while the moisture was not badly needed, the rain fell gently, adding to an already good season.

Dr. Montgomery left Sunday to attend the meeting of the American Medical Association at Dallas.

Change in School Curriculum Made Next Year's Term

Vocational agriculture will be taught next year at the McLean High School. This subject takes the place of Spanish that is being taught this year.

A teacher for this subject has not been secured as yet, nor has an English or commercial teacher been employed, but all other positions are filled.

Prof. Geo. Tummins of Canyon superintendent, A. B. Chancey will be principal and coach, which place he now holds. Mrs. Geo. Tummins will teach the 7th grade. Miss Vera Roberts, who is teaching at Alanreed, has been employed for the 6th grade; Miss Marguerite Merriman will teach the 5th grade; Miss Fort, who is teaching near Silverton this year, will have charge of the 4th grade; Miss Essie Payne teaches the 3rd grade; Miss Vera Carpenter 2nd grade, and Mrs. Bill Bentley, who is teaching at Skillet this term, will teach the 1st grade.

Applications are before the board of trustees for the remaining places and other teachers will doubtless be employed at an early date.

Important Change in Subscription Rates

Beginning June 1st, the subscription price of The McLean News will be $2.00 a year in Texas, and $2.50 per year outside the state.

We are sure that this announcement will be no surprise to most of our readers, as there are few $1.50 papers any more. In fact, if the subscription price was advanced in proportion to the cost of supplies when the old price was made, The News would be $6.00 per year.

June 1st is set as the dead line in order that as many of our readers as care to may extend their subscriptions at the old rate; however, we must restrict such subscriptions to not more than five years in advance.

The difference in price for state and out-of-state subscriptions is made on account of the extra postage to distant points. Many papers make such differences in out-of-county postoffices, but as McLean's trade territory is in several counties, we thought best to make the price the same anywhere in the state. Less than a year's subscription will be: 6 months in state, $1.25; 3 months 65c. Outside state, 6 months, $1.50; 3 months, 85c.

The News is as good a paper as can be found in towns many times the size of McLean, and we have some contemplated improvements that will make it a still better paper.

The increase in price will only mean 4c per week for our state readers, which will barely pay for the white paper and postage used.

We will appreciate the co-operation of our readers; any mention you may make to your neighbor about the impending change will help us. We expect to continue to give you more than your money's worth each week.

Don't forget that after June 1st, it will be too late to renew at the old rate.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Fishing in idle fashion from a private dock, Dick Van Ness watches a ship, the Pelican, which he recognizes as the Beacon, his father's yacht before his death and financial reverses forced him to part with it. A man whom he hears a girl who accompanies him address as Mr. Blake, lands from the yacht. The girl drops her handbag in the stream, and Dick recovers it. Thinking him, she gives him her visiting card. She is Alice Cutler, niece of Stephen Cutler, successful business rival of the elder Van Ness.

CHAPTER II.—Dick overhears a conversation between Blake and Captain Brent of the Pelican which gives him the impression that the yacht is bound on a voyage of adventure to an island the name of which he does not hear.

CHAPTER III.—Acting on impulse, Dick, footloose and ready for any sort of adventure, remembers a hiding place in the main cabin of the yacht and determines to conceal himself and await a stowaway—with the party. Stephen Cutler, invalid, comes aboard, with his niece, and the ship sails.

CHAPTER IV.—In his retreat Dick overhears conversations between Blake and Captain Brent which appear to denote something sinister. Believing the cabin empty, Dick emerges from hiding and encounters Blake. Blake, Cutler's French maid, getting back quickly, unrecognized, the girl insists she has seen a "ghost," and is ridiculed. The yacht reaches its apparent destination, an island. Dick swims ashore.

CHAPTER V.—On the island next day Van Ness witnesses an exchange of mysterious signals which he realizes are between Blake, at Cutler's house, and Captain Brent, on the yacht. He is present, unseen, while Blake and Marie speak in heated terms of things which add to the mystery of the situation. Sleeping in a boat-house near the dock, Dick is discovered by Alice. He admits he was on the yacht, and she reveals the fact that the servants who should have been at the house are mysteriously absent, only her uncle, Stephen Cutler, Doctor Alster, Blake and herself being on the island. Dick's presence is known only to Alice. The yacht sails, leaving the party.

CHAPTER VI.—Floating on a life-raft, a sailor is assisted to the shore by Van Ness. He asserts he is one of the crew of the Pelican, which is on a reef, fast breaking up, and that he volunteered to swim ashore and seek aid. Neither to Dick nor Alice, who hears the man's story, does it ring true, and Dick is more than ever convinced that some plot, engineered by Blake and involving Stephen Cutler, is afoot.

CHAPTER VII.—Exploring the island, Dick discovers a wireless apparatus from which messages are being sent and received. They are in code and he can make nothing of them, though he is convinced Blake is communicating with the yacht. Continuing his investigations, Van Ness is surprised and knocked senseless by McGee, the sailor whom he had helped ashore. The fellow leaves Dick bound and helpless, in a cave, while he goes to inform Blake of Dick's presence, and his captivity.

CHAPTER VIII.—Blake, visits Dick, recognizing him as the man he had seen on the dock, but attaching little importance to his presence on the island, Van Ness succeeds in freeing himself from his bonds.

CHAPTER IX.—Escaping from the cave, Dick overhears a heated conversation between Blake and Alice Cutler, in which the man threatens her with violence if she will not agree to marry him. She indignantly refuses. Dick makes his way to the house and arranges with Alice for an interview with Doctor Alster, Cutler's physician. Dick's reasoning has convinced him that if, as he suspects, Cutler is the victim of a plot which Blake has engineered, Doctor Alster is the man upon whom the conspirators must rely for the successful working out of their plans.

Before he could recover his balance, she was running in the opposite direction, tripping as lightly over the beach as a child, and with nearly as much speed as a man. Blake essayed to follow, but her long lead in the race to the house discouraged him, and he stopped midway to vent his wrath in muttered threats.

Dick had once thought of interfering, but when the girl defied the man, and threw him backward, he felt like applauding. "Don't believe she needs me yet," he grinned. "Psychologically that would have been the wrong moment to butt in. Women don't like to be helped in such affairs until there's real danger. But"—musing seriously—"I'm afraid it's coming when she'll need all the help she can get."

Blake's revelations concerning affairs up at the house had disturbed him. If Steve Cutler was unconscious, slowly dying without chance of regaining his senses, what companionship had the girl? There was Marie, her maid, but Dick knew she was in love with Blake, and more or less involved in the plot. There was Doctor Alster. But what sort of man was he?

So far Dick hadn't met the family physician, and there seemed to be a ray of hope in the thought that Alster would prove a friend and help to Miss Cutler. "I'll have to get in communication with him," he muttered, "and establish some sort of entente cordiale. Between us we might get Blake and McGee to rout."

With this idea in mind, he waited until Blake left the beach, and then slipped down the rocks to the level below. Following a wide crevice that led to the rear of the cliff, he worked his way gradually up to the house, using every caution to conceal himself behind trees and shrubs. His theory was that Blake would be in the front, and by approaching from the rear he could slip into the kitchen unobserved. McGee, he reasoned, would still be at the cave on guard duty.

He was successful in his ruse, reaching the rear of the big house without attracting attention. He tried the back door, and finding it unlocked opened it and slipped inside. The kitchen was a large, pretentious affair, suitable as a workshop for a large army of servants.

It was completely deserted now, giving it a forlorn, unpleasant appearance. All the latest appliances for cooking and serving dinners and banquets were present, but without cooks or waiters they seemed a hollow mockery.

"What is a home without a cook?" Dick murmured in passing.

He entered the butler's pantry adjoining the big, commodious kitchen, and nearly ran plump into a pair of flour and dough-covered arms. Alice Cutler, under the stress of necessity, was making tentative experiments in cookery, with her sleeves rolled up to her elbows, showing a pair of plump arms, and a fancy boudoir cap covering her head. An ample apron protected her dress. Her cheeks were flushed to a rich carmine, with small patches of flour and dough distributed here and there in irregular patterns.

She glanced up with startled eyes, and then, as calmly as if meeting an old friend, she said: "Well! What is it you want now?"

"To see you, first," he said, "and, second, to see Doctor Alster."

"What do you want to see Doctor Alster for?" she queried.

"To find out what sort of a man he is—to see if he's for you or against you."

She was quiet for a long time, watching and appraising him. Finally, she nodded her head. "I'll take you to him," she said quietly. "Perhaps you're right. We ought to know whether he's for us or against us. I have my doubts sometimes."

CHAPTER X

Dick thrilled a little when she used the word "us"; he had distinctly used the singular pronoun, and it was her own choice of the plural. He reasoned that, consciously or unconsciously, the word implied a trust in him that he had not dared to believe before.

He watched her graceful movements, as she cleaned and washed her hands and arms, dried them on a roller towel, removed the apron, touched her hair with deft hands, and then, after adjusting her boudoir cap, nodded to him.

"Follow me. I'll take you to him."

Doctor Alster was a short, thick-set man of perhaps forty, with black hair and beard, and dark, shifty eyes. Dick's first impression was not very favorable. When he stepped forward to meet him, the eyes under the staggly brows widened in surprise, and then narrowed swiftly to small pin points.

"I'm glad to meet you, doctor," Dick said, advancing with extended hand.

The other grunted and stared back suspiciously. "Who are you, sir?" he demanded truculently.

"A friend of Miss Cutler's. You heard her say that."

"But your name?"

"For the present, names are immaterial. I'm greatly concerned about Mr. Cutler's health. How is he?"

"Bad, sir—very bad," was the reply, accompanied by a solemn shake of the head.

"Can I see Mr. Cutler?" Dick asked.

"See him?" repeated Alster in surprise. Then, frowning and shaking his head, he added, "No, sir, I couldn't grant that request. It might prove dangerous to him in his weakened condition."

"If he's unconscious, what harm could come of it? You can't surprise or shock an unconscious patient."

"He might regain his senses for a moment, and the sight of a stranger—"

"—a friend."

"Well, even a friend he didn't expect to see here might give him a shock that would kill him."

Dick smiled with exasperating coolness. Alster's face slowly mottled and turned red. Losing his polite manners, he asked abruptly, "Who are you, sir? Aren't you the stowaway that came down here unbidden?"

"I came down on the yacht. If you choose to call me a stowaway, all right."

"Mr. Blake was telling me about you," added the doctor. "He's been very anxious to see you. I'll summon him."

"It isn't necessary," replied Dick. "I've met Mr. Blake several times."

"I'll summon him at once."

He moved toward the door. Dick made no attempt to detain him. It opened and closed behind the man, the lock clicking in response to the turn of the key on the outside. Dick smiled.

On the other side he could hear voices in an altercation. Alice Cutler was speaking authoritatively.

"You must give me that key, doctor—at once."

"I can't, Miss Cutler," replied the other. "He's a dangerous man, and I must summon Mr. Blake."

"I'll be responsible for him," cut in the girl. "Are you going to give me that key?"

"No, Miss Alice."

There was the sound of heavy retreating footsteps, gradually dying away in the distance. Then a voice called softly through the keyhole.

"You must escape! Mr. Blake will be here soon."

"Don't worry about me, Miss Cutler," Dick called back. "I can take care of myself. But"—hesitatingly—"I wouldn't put too much faith in Doctor Alster. I don't believe he's for us."

Dick had surveyed the outlook through the window with just such a possible contingency in view, and it required little exertion or hazard on his part to climb out on the roof of the back porch and slide down one of the pillars. Before Blake and Doctor Alster appeared in the room he was in the woods, watching the window at a safe distance.

"Blake will know by this time I've escaped from the cave," he meditated. "Therefore, he'll set McGee on my trail again. Perhaps this time I'll be prepared for him."

His visit to the house had satisfied him on two doubtful points. The first, and what seemed the more important to him, was that Alice Cutler had come to believe and trust in him. She no longer viewed him as an enemy or troublesome interloper. The second point he had cleared up in his mind was that Doctor Alster was a friend of Blake's and in league with him.

"That means three to one against me, not counting Marie," he reflected. It was noticeable that he did not include Miss Cutler in this grouping, but that was because he had personally assumed her burdens and intended to relieve her of all responsibility.

He decided his next move was to pay another visit to the wireless plant, and learn if possible where the yacht was located. There was no question in his mind that Blake was communicating with Captain Brent, exchanging messages of some sort or another.

Dick remained a long time watching the window and the back of the house. If any one emerged through the doorway, he could see him in ample time to get away.

There was no sign of any one stirring about, and he finally abandoned the watch. Retreating into the woods, he made his way cautiously to the beach and from there to the face of the cliff, which offered so many advantageous hiding places.

Concealing himself in the mouth of a small sea cave where he had a clear view of every line of approach, he fell to meditating upon his next move. If he destroyed the wireless plant, he would cut off their last chance of getting a message ashore or to a passing vessel. On the other hand, if he left it intact, he permitted

"Which," He Reflected With a Scowl, "I'm Still Ignorant Of."

Blake to hatch up any sort of a plot with Captain Brent or to carry out his original scheme.

"Which," he reflected with a scowl, "I'm still ignorant of."

The minutes slipped away swiftly. After his exertions, Dick felt tired and sleepy. The reaction from the excitement made him doze in catnaps. Arousing himself from one of these, he heard voices over his head. They came from the top of the cliff, which was just visible from his hiding place. They were angry words, spoken in a high-pitched, feminine voice.

"I saw you with her! You needn't deny it! I'll scratch your eyes out if you touch her again!"

It was Marie, venting her jealousy upon her unlucky lover. Dick smiled, enjoying the conversation. Blake spoke in a lower, more guarded voice.

"No, I won't keep still!" the maid added a moment later. "You got to promise to leave her alone, or I'll tell her all. You've deceived me, and—" "I tell you to shut up!" came from her lover in a menacing voice. "If you don't, I'll—" "What will you do?" mocked the maid. "You're a coward, and don't dare touch me. I know you."

"Be careful!" Marie laughed defiantly, taunting him only as an aroused, jealous man could; but in the midst of it came a new note, which made him glance upward hurriedly. It was if the laugh had suddenly turned to a scream—a frightful cry of fear and horror.

BANK SAFE TIME LOCK REFUSES TO OPEN

The safe at the Citizens State Bank refused to open one morning this week at the proper time, and it was thought for a while that the time lock had been set for a longer time than customary, but as the day passed it was learned that the mechanism was stuck and advice was secured from the makers as to the best way to break into it. Early Thursday morning the money was still safely locked in, despite attacks with a big wrecking bar and other similar instruments.

A good many years ago a similar instance occurred here and the safe was completely wrecked before it gave up the money.

KACHELHOFFER OIL WELL IN SOFTER FORMATION

The Kachelhoffer oil well east of town is now drilling at the rate of about ten feet per day and is now around 2400 feet and the formation is getting softer.

Indications are good for a paying producer at this location, and we are told there will be no cessation in drilling, barring accidents, until the well is complete.

CIRCULAR ADVERTISING

Have you ever noticed what the average person does when they receive a piece of "direct advertising" through the mails? If you have not, observe the next person you see opening a batch of letters containing one and a half cent stamps. Mr. Business Man, when you open your batch of mail, how do you dispose of the score of letters you receive daily from companies wishing to interest you in their products? If you are like the majority of people we have observed, you will give it a quick glance, observe what it is, and with a sweep of the arm shove it and all similar letters and circulars received by mail into the wastebasket. You are no different from the million of other persons who receive similar advertisements. But when you glance at an advertisement in a newspaper, do you consign the entire paper to the wastebasket? Of course you do not. You read the entire paper and your attention is attracted more than one time to the advertisements on that page. It keeps bobbing up before your eyes and each time it flashes you see something different and if you are interested in the item mentioned, some certain statement which impresses you will cause you to peruse the entire advertisement, sometimes even unconsciously, but the impression remains nevertheless. Several persons will no doubt read the same copy of the paper, while the piece of direct mail advertising which you consign to the wastebasket with a sneer is only half-way read by one person. This should be evidence enough that newspaper advertising is the most profitable and the most desirable. —Paris News.

OH, THESE PLUMBERS!

The young plumber had proposed to the girl and had been accepted. Several hours later they parted and he went home.

At three o'clock in the morning a loud ringing was heard at the front door bell of the girl's home. Her father, roused from slumber, went to a window, and, sticking his head out, inquired who was there. "It's John," said a voice from below. "I asked Agnes to marry me and she said she would, but I forgot to kiss her."

At this time of the year, the man with the hoe may be only digging bait.

It would be a great old world if we were only as good as we wish our friends were.

It sometimes takes a horse to pull your car out of a ditch, when a little horse sense might have kept you out of trouble.

If every merchant in a town was a systematic advertiser and there were none who depended upon the trade attracted by others, how fast that town would grow!

The best season for planting crops since 1911, is the opinion of old timers. With the best start in 15 years, and diversified planting, the outlook is good for a prosperous year for farmers.

Texas stands 35th among the states in regard to public schools. This is not an enviable position and every step should be taken to remedy this condition. Good teachers can only be secured by paying living salaries, and proper equipment is needed before teachers can present facts as they should. The next Legislature will probably be much occupied with school matters.

The printing industry ranks third in this country, being exceeded only by steel and packing plants. Automobiles are fourth. Printing has reached third place within the last few years, being tenth in the list some years ago. There are new uses for printing every day. No business can exist without the aid of some phase of the printing industry.

A school teacher, like everyone else, who is worth most to the community is the one who takes an interest in everything that is for community betterment. A teacher not only sells ability to impart knowledge, but community influence as well. Many communities are better because of the teacher's influence, and this is as it should be.

At Carter, Oklahoma, an election was held recently to ratify the sale of the town electric light plant. 100 votes were cast in favor of selling the plant, to one against. We cannot understand why anyone in a small town would vote against a measure of this kind. It is all right to put in municipal improvements when they cannot be had otherwise, but when the proposition will be taken off the taxpayers' hands by a private concern, it would appear to be the part of wisdom to dispose of them. Unfortunately, towns cannot operate a business economically. The law provides that books shall be kept in good shape and regular statements published, but it is too easy to follow the lines of least resistance in such matters, forgetting that the law is for the people's protection and that they have a right to know just how their business is being conducted by their servants.

FOR LAWYERS, TOO!

Ethics have long been a thorn in the flesh for the medical doctor. Ethics, to a great extent, are a lazy man's weapon of defense. The fellow who does not want to make progress and keep abreast of the world likes to hide behind a barricade of ethics. Ethics is all right to discuss and talk about, but it is far from a millennium in a business way. The fellow who has a product worth boosting certainly has a right to tell the world about it, and he ought to tell the truth, too.—Childress Index.

THE COUNTRY PRESS

The average farm home looks to the local newspaper, to the small-town daily or country-weekly, with its story of "You-all's house," a story such as the great metropolitan papers can never tell, for information which is of interest to the entire family. Yet, notwithstanding the value of the country paper, postage rates have been increased. Not satisfied with this, the government insists upon continuing its business by supplying printed envelopes in competition with the local newspaper publisher or job printer, who pays taxes in his home community and contributes to its upbuilding.

Never has there been a time when small towns and rural communities were in such need of the leadership of well edited papers, with vision and understanding. With the government going in strong for uplift—at so much per uplift—it would seem that it ought to relieve the local newspaper, one of the greatest of all rural uplift agencies, of unnecessary burdens.—Congressman Nelson of Missouri in a speech in Congress.

SCORE CARD FOR FARM HUSBANDS

We suggest that each Mr. Farmer score himself by the following five-question score card, allowing a maximum of 8-13 points for a question to which he can answer "Yes," without qualification.

At the same time, Mrs. Farmer should be asked to score her husband also, and see whether her score agrees with his. The ideal husband can answer "Yes" to each of the dozen questions provided by our "Score Card for Farm Husbands," and we wonder how many such "100 per cent good" husbands there are among our readers! Here is the list of questions:

1. Are you a "good, safe provider?" Do you maintain worthy standards of living in your home as your finances warrant, and avoid extravagance and "time" debts, such as might prevent your being "a good provider" on? Have you made a will taken out some insurance to protect your wife in case of your death?

2. Does your wife have for her some fund, such as the butter egg money, and do you let her do this as she pleases without criticism and without expecting it to pay two dollars' worth for every dollar?

3. Have you provided proper cleaning equipment for the home as fully as you have bought it for your own work? Is your wife supplied with such labor-saving equipment as an oil stove, a less cooker, a washing machine, running water and electric lights you are supplied with two-row plows, disk harrows, reapers, combine engines and trucks?

4. Are you interested in the insurance of your home and home contents? Do you have the house and outbuildings painted, if possible? Do you help cheerfully with the heavy work of keeping the home and grounds clean, attractive and well cared for? Do you keep your calves and poultry away from the front yard and your wife's neighbors?

5. Do you assume responsibility for the fuel supply, seeing to it that your wife always has plenty of dry wood, and does not have to carry out the ashes?

6. Do you provide "mind food" as well as body food for the family by providing such papers, magazines, books and educational recreation as you can afford? Do you average spending at least "a dollar a day" for mind food?

7. Do you come to your meals regularly at the hour you expect them to be ready?

8. Have you done your part to have a year-round garden, a good supply of feed for your wife's poultry?

9. Do you assume your full share of the responsibility of bringing up the children—in training and instilling in them to be honorable, industrious and courteous, encouraging and stimulating them in school, club work, Sunday school and church attendance?

10. Do you provide recreation for your wife and children—not only fishing means for recreation at home but entering cheerfully into holiday plans and making it possible for them to attend community festivities and neighborhood things and to enjoy an annual vacation?

11. Are you a cheerful, companionable person to live with? Do you really try to avoid "grouching," ill temper, and fussiness with your wife and children, and try to be something like as cheerful and genial as you were your "courtship days?"

12. Do you know how to help with the housework in emergencies—do you help willingly and cheerfully when such help is needed?—The Progressive Farmer.

MYSTIC MULTIPLICATION

Ask a person to write down the following:

2 3 4 5 6 7 9

Then ask him which is his favorite figure among those written. Suppose he says three. Tell him to multiply the row of figures by three. He will be surprised at the result—a row of threes!

The secret is this: If he gives you his favorite figure, tell him to multiply by nine. If he says three, he must multiply by twice three or 18. For three, multiply by four, multiply by 36; five, multiply by 45, etc.

ELIMINATION

When a woman motorist holds the steering wheel, then you can be certain that she is either going to the right, turn to the left or stop.—Life.

BUSINESS IS SAFE

When you shake hands with your competitor and mean it—when you can work hard in your business and love it—then business is safe.

When you advertise service and give it—when you can build reputation and keep it—then business is safe.

When you can sense competition and not knock it—when you can fight competition and still boost it—then business is safe.

When you can meet opportunity and know it—and aim for what is right and then pray for it—then business is safe.—Wisconsin Press "Howler."

stop that CARBON KNOCK

CARBON KNOCK or motor detonation aside from being annoying greatly reduces power efficiency—combustion taking place before the complete rise of the piston. The mechanical method of correcting such knocks is to retard the spark which again reduces power efficiency. Many gasoline mixtures have been devised which in a way might eliminate the knock but oftentimes the remedy is worse than the ailment. In NO-NOX Motor Fuel we have the remedy without a single harmful feature—it positively takes the carbon knock out of the motor, and any motorist knows that this means easier and quicker acceleration, smoother running motor and More Power, less gear shifts and generally a more satisfactory operation of the car at a lower repair cost.

ONE CAN'T GO FAR FAST

Who of us hasn't fumed at traffic jams—then "stepped on it" immediately we were loose of the jam?

It is extremely doubtful if the time saved by hurrying, exceeding the speed limit, pays for the extra gasoline, the racking the car receives from emergency stops, and the brake lining being ruined by those who try to slip one over on Father Time. Not only is the time saved fractional, but the speeding motorist endangers not only his own life and car but thousands of other lives and tens of thousands of automobiles.

I was fortunate enough to be in Los Angeles recently when the Automobile Club of Southern California put on a series of tests that proved—go slow if you want to speed.

Records of scouting cars that were operated on three different routes through the city limits furnished these conclusions. In order to make the tests impartial and accurate, each route was first traveled at highest speed possible and yet escape arrest, the car exceeding the limit in 15 and 20 mile zones by 5 miles whenever possible and taking advantage of every occasion to make time.

The same driver went over the same route a second time, observing speed laws absolutely and conforming strictly to the mandates of the law and rules of safe and efficient driving.

A summary of these trips over different routes across the city and back again shows that the driver who hurried and endangered life limb and property saved only a total of ten minutes out of two hours driving, or a fraction over five minutes to the hour. The total distance of the three routes across the city was 31.5 miles, or an average of 10.5 miles to the trip, one showing a saving of five minutes, another ten minutes, and the other two minutes.

Police department officials and traffic experts from these tests point out that in driving to save a possible five minutes over a ten mile trip, drivers are using extra gasoline, wearing out break linings, throwing courtesy to the winds, risking arrest with a fine or jail sentence, and inviting accidents, not only to their own persons, but forcing hazards in the way of thousands of other cars and threatening limb and life of pedestrians, many of whom are children.

These tests seem to prove convincingly that high speed in congested districts is not only a highly dangerous practice from many standpoints, but is an economical loss.

A MATTER OF CASTE

As one of the great trans-Atlantic liners came up to New York harbor the other day, a grimy coal barge floated immediately in front of her. "Clear out of the way with that old mud scow!" shouted an officer on the bridge.

A round, sun-browned face appeared over the cabin hatchway. "Are ye the captain of that vessel?"

"No," answered the officer. "Then speak to yer equals. I'm the captain o' this one!" came from the barge.

"Advertising is pretty much like running a furnace. You've got to keep on shoveling coal," is a statement of William Wrigley Jr.

Capes Lend Grace to Utility Coats

The graceful cape finds many a place for itself in spring fashions, both on coats and frocks. Sometimes it is a mere hint of a cape, but again, it appears in all its debonnaire glory—as in the handsome coat shown here. This model of plain cloth, will commend itself for all-around wear.

GAS FRANCHISE LOW RATES FOR SHAMROCK

Shamrock, April 1.—According to P. Hammitt, the Miller Gas Company, owners of the Schenck well three miles northwest of town, will again petition the city council for a franchise at the next regular meeting Tuesday night.

The original franchise asked by this company has been revised to allow a rate never to be higher than 40c per thousand feet, with a ten per cent discount on all bills paid within ten days of rendition. Mr. Hammitt says the industrial rate asked is the lowest in the state. This rate provides a sliding scale in proportion to the amount used from 20c to 5c per thousand.—Wheeler County Texan.

THE YOUNG FOLK

"What," asks one of our editors, "is the trouble with the young folk?"

Glad you asked us. We know the truth down to the gnat's heel. The first thing is that they are young.

The second thing is that they are contaminated by association with their parents.

Otherwise, the young are all right, in spite of the company they keep—at home!—Emporia Gazette.
