

Goodwill at Highway Convention

Constantine-Back Well now Drilling Below 1400 Feet

Location Near the Travis-Back

Early Developments Expected from New Test

The Constantine-Back oil test is now drilling at 1400 feet. This well is 3 locations west and 2 locations south of the Travis-Back and is one of the most promising tests in this section at the present time.

With ordinary good luck, this well should be completed in a reasonable short time, and the bringing in of a well at this location will mean the beginning of a real oil field at McLean, in the opinion of the oil fraternity.

The Chapman well in section 9, block 26, is reported flowing 75 barrels per day at the top of the line, with the understanding that drilling will be resumed as soon as pipe line connection is made.

GRAY COUNTY RETURNS $14 TO THE STATE

In checking up the money received for school purposes at the rate of $14 for each scholastic, it was discovered that Gray county had reported one more scholastic than she had.

A check for $14 was returned to the state superintendent, and while the official was greatly surprised, he kept the money and is using the incident in his after dinner speeches.

PICKWICK STAGES TO OPERATE HIGHWAY 66

Pickwick Stages Corporation will begin the operation of a continuous bus line from Amarillo to St. Louis over Highway 66, according to an announcement made at the Albuquerque convention.

The decision of the stage company was based upon the information that an all weather highway now exists over route 66.

Arrangements have been made to pave the highway from Chicago to the New Mexico line, with the exception of two counties in Oklahoma and two in Texas.

MRS. S. B. MORSE ENTERTAINS AT BRIDGE

Reported. The Bridge Club spent a most delightful afternoon in the home of Mrs. S. B. Morse last Wednesday. Miss Minnie Catherine was on hand to help receive the guests, but was relegated to the back ground when the games commenced, much to her annoyance.

Bridge was enjoyed until a late hour, when a delicious luncheon was served to each guest. Mrs. W. E. DeLins won the prize for high score, Mrs. Jot Montgomery second and Miss Kezzia Studebaker received consolation.

Members present were: Mesdames John Haynes, Sammie Cubine, C. P. Hamilton Jr., Roy Campbell, L. V. Lonsdale, S. O. Hall, W. E. Dollins, E. E. Dishman, Jot Montgomery, W. L. Campbell, and S. B. Morse. Miss Kezzia Studebaker was a guest for the afternoon.

Miss Mattie N. man of Fort Worth is visiting her sister, Mrs. Scott Johnston.

W. P. Rogers and daughter, Miss Mildred, were Amarillo visitors Monday.

Luncheon Planned Friday

Every Member C. of C. Expected to Be Present

By Pres. L. G. McMillen. Vacation time is over. The McLean Chamber of Commerce has been enjoying several months leisure.

We put over a big program during the early spring and felt sure that the thing would ride on the momentum until fall. Well, it has, but now that fall is here, we feel that we should pull ourselves together and get things up again.

What shall we do first? What is the most important matter to work on at this time? And how much interest will you take in the Chamber of Commerce work?

This is not a one-man job. Nor is it carried on by the officers and directors. Neither is it carried on by one body pulling in one direction and another in the other direction. We must agree on the thing that should be done and every last one put his shoulder to the wheel.

We will start with a noon-day luncheon to be held at the American Cafe Friday noon. Get your name in the pot right now. Either get in touch with L. V. Lonsdale, the American Cafe direct, or call the writer, in order that you may get the piece of chicken you prefer. If you feel that the Chamber of Commerce should get busy, only your presence at this luncheon, or a good deal, will convince me that you are really interested. If you are not there, you will not be entitled to register a kick if the Chamber of Commerce does not function properly. If you have any grievance, come out with the bunch and let it be known.

I feel that right now is the time to oil up; get everything running smoothly, and when something real encouraging comes along to start the ball rolling, we will be prepared to jump right in behind and push a good thing along.

Remember you are expected to be present Friday, October 14th, American Cafe, if you are interested in Chamber of Commerce work.

M. D. Bentley, McLean's delegate to the big highway convention at Albuquerque, N. M., last Monday, will make a full report of the convention at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Friday.

Mr. Bentley held an office in the old Postal Highway Association from its inception, and has attended practically every convention held by that association and the Highway 66 Association which absorbed the Postal association about the first of the year.

If proper attendance can be secured at the luncheon, we are told that the Chamber of Commerce will resume active work in McLean, looking toward the oil activity that seems to be eminent.

Guthrie Speaks at Luncheon

C. of C. Officers Hear Highway Man Last Friday

E. B. Guthrie of Oklahoma City was present at the officers of the C. of C. luncheon held at the Meador Cafe last Friday, and addressed those present on plans for Highway 66.

Mr. Guthrie was enroute to the big convention at Albuquerque, N. M., and had made short stops in towns along the route, in which he found much enthusiasm for the highway. Only one county in Oklahoma now remains without paving, or bonds voted, and an election is planned early in December for this county, with good changes of a favorable vote.

Mr. Guthrie told of the big Pickwick bus that passed through McLean the following day with notable road men from several states, enroute to the convention.

It was the sense of the meeting that a representative from McLean be sent to Albuquerque at the expense of the C. of C.

The meeting adjourned to meet Friday of this week, when it is expected that every interested member of the C. of C. will be present.

SEWER WORK TO BE COMPLETED SIX WEEKS

Largest Attendance on Record

Delegates 7 States in Attendance Monday

By M. D. Bentley

The fourth convention for this year of U. S. Highway 66 was held at Albuquerque, N. M., Monday, Oct. 12th. From the standpoint of numbers, good will and enthusiasm, this was the greatest convention yet. Delegates were there from seven states to the number of about 300. The convention was royally entertained by Albuquerque at the Franciscan Hotel, an 8-story building.

Among the items of interest was the offer of the Long Beach Boulevard Improvement Association of a 20 mile 100 feet wide paved driveway connecting Long Beach and Los Angeles as a terminal of the Main Street of America, which was enthusiastically accepted.

Reports of the progress of all sections were made, showing one county and 9 miles in Oklahoma, 75 miles in Missouri and one county in Texas not yet financed, which will make paved connections from Chicago to the New Mexico line. California is well fixed on roads. Arizona said they would pave through their state on 66. New Mexico, on account of some political situations, is not quite ready to pave, but as 66 must run through this state, no bad delays are expected.

The International Foot Racers Association of America will stage a foot race over 66, starting at Los Angeles March 3rd, 1928. One thousand people will enter this race. This run will be made from Los Angeles to New York. There will be accompanying this race, some 40 or 50 large trucks carrying the necessary equipment for the racers. They will run about 40 miles per day. This is something new in sport and will be the biggest event yet to come through McLean. 66, the Main Street of America, is fast evolving into the greatest trans-continental route in America. McLean is indeed very fortunate to be on this route, and nothing reasonable should be left undone that would add to the benefits to be derived.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Reported. The first regular meeting of the Home Economics Club was held September 29. The following program was rendered after the reading of the minutes and roll call: Reading—"Keep a Gair"—Irma Keesee.

Life of Florence Nightingale—Ruby Reeves.

Piano solo—Floye Landers. Play, "The Bachelor's Dream"—Flapper, Jane Campbell; Society Type, Alice Carpenter; Athletic, Dorothy Cousins; Home Economics Girl, Pauline Crabtree; Bachelor, Mildred Richardson.

A business meeting followed the program, and many interesting things were discussed and planned. The next regular meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 20.

Rev. R. R. Rives attended the Texas Synod at Breckenridge last week. This synod embraces the states of Texas and Louisiana, and Rev. Rives reports a good meeting with royal treatment from the citizens of Breckenridge.

The Leading Lady
By GERALDINE BONNER

THE STORY

PROLOGUE—While despondent over the enforced hiding of her fiancé, Jim Dallas, slayer in self defense of Homer Parkinson, member of an influential family, Sybil Saunders, popular actress, is engaged to play Viola in a charity performance of "Twelfth Night" on Gill Island, in the Maine coast. In the company are Sybil's bosom friend, Anne Tracy, Anne's brother Joe, young waster, and Aleck Stokes, an actor infatuated with Sybil.

CHAPTER I—After the play, which is a big hit, Wally Shine, official photographer, learns something of the jealousy existing in the company.

CHAPTER II—Hugh Bassett, director of the play, and Anne Tracy's fiancé, tells Joe he has heard he is spying on Sybil in an effort to learn the whereabouts of Jim Dallas and earn the reward offered by the Parkinson family. The boy denies it.

CHAPTER III—Joe Tracy is arranging for a vacation trip. To Anne he betrays his enmity toward Sybil. Stokes tells Sybil he has news of Jim Dallas, and to secure privacy they arrange to meet in a small summer house.

CHAPTER IV—The sound of a pistol shot startles the assembled company. Investigation shows a revolver has been taken from a desk in the library. Flora, Stokes' wife, bursts in with the announcement that Sybil has been shot and her body carried off by the tide.

CHAPTER V—Flora Stokes tells Bassett she saw Sybil shot but did not see her murderer. Bassett notifies the sheriff, Abel Williams. He arrives with Rawson, district attorney, and a man called Patrick. All the company is accounted for, with the exception of Joe Tracy, presumably on his trip. Flora gives her evidence, and the authorities arrange so that no one can leave the island.

CHAPTER VI—Discussing the tragedy with Rawson and Bassett, Williams voices the opinion that Flora Stokes is the guilty person, the deed being actuated by jealousy. While they are talking, the sound of a crash in the living room makes them hasten there.

CHAPTER VII—Anne Tracy, shocked at her friend's awful death, is also uneasy about Joe. Remembering his rage against Sybil, and realizing she is not sure he left the island, her imagination pictures him as Sybil's murderer, and hiding in the house, the upper story of which is unoccupied. Seeking him to inform him of the close watch kept, she descends to the living room. There she dimly sees Joe and warns him not to try to escape. He disappears and in her agitation she knocks over a lamp. She tells the three men she came downstairs for a book, and her explanation is accepted.

CHAPTER VIII—In the summer house evidence is found that Sybil had been there, and knowing of Stokes' infatuation, Rawson suspects him.

CHAPTER IX—Stokes denies all knowledge of the crime, and deftly throws suspicion on Joe. Rawson, somewhat impressed, goes to the mainland to investigate Joe's movements.

CHAPTER X—Tortured by her thoughts, Anne visits the unoccupied upper story, seeking Joe, but finds nothing. Rawson returns with the information that young Tracy had not left the island.

"For God's sake don't mind anything anybody says," implored Mrs. Cornell. "This is a murder case, not a social function."

They calmed down and presently, with no more ideas to exchange, grew silent, listening for the returning launch. The significance of what they awaited grew with the minutes till the coming of the launch seemed an event of fearful import upon which their fates hung.

The entrance of Williams shook them from their terrors. If his face told them nothing, his manner was kindly gruff—they must be tired, best thing for them to go to bed. As they rose and trailed limply to the doors he beckoned Shine to remain. He would wait him later, had a job for him, so he'd better go now and get some sleep.

Williams went back to the library, where Bassett still slept. He looked at his watch—a quarter to nine. He couldn't understand it—what could Rawson have got hold of on the mainland when it was as plain as printing Mrs. Stokes was the guilty party. He started and moved to the window; the throbbing beat of an engine came through the silence, a low spark of light was advancing from the opposite shore.

When he heard the boat grinding against the wharf he waked Bassett. "Rawson's coming. And it's nearly nine."

Rawson came in by the window, his eyes blinking in the room's brightness. He tried to look stern but satisfaction shone in his eyes and lit his long lantern-jawed face. He was like the bearer of good tidings who would have worn the high smile of triumph if a smile were fitting.

"Well," said Williams, "where the devil have you been?"

"Down the coast, twenty-five miles, on roads that would have put anything but a flivver out of commis-slon."

"You got something?"
"I did—this time. We're on the right track now if I'm not much mistaken."
Williams gave an incredulous grunt. He did not believe in new material and in advance placed himself in stubborn opposition:

"What did you go down the coast for?"
"To find a man called Gabriel Harvey."

Bassett, about to sit down, stopped in surprise:
"Gabriel Harvey? That's our launchman."

"Exactly. And I had a devil of a time to find him. Down in a place called White Beach, hidden away with friends in a shack without a telephone."
"But why—"

"I'll tell you. I went over there to look into Joe Tracy's movements. I couldn't find anyone who'd seen him come ashore and learned that the man Gabriel who took him over, had gone to this place White Beach for deep-sea fishing. Not being able to get hold of him I went to the station to see if I could gather up anything. And I did. The baggage man told me Gabriel had been there before he left for White Beach leaving a suitcase and fishing rod to be held till Tracy called for them. They're there now. I saw them."

Williams said nothing, not ready with argument till more was divulged. Bassett, in blank amazement, ejaculated:

"Why, that's the most extraordinary thing—"

"Wait, Mr. Bassett," Rawson raised a long commanding hand. "I hung round till the evening train came in: that's the train Tracy was to take. I saw the conductor—it's a small branch road and travel is light at that hour—and he remembered his passengers, two women and a child. Those were the only people who left Hayworth on the seven-fifteen, the last evening train. I went back to the village and made inquiries. Tracy had hired no vehicle at the garage or livery stable, nor had he been seen anywhere about the place. Then I got a car and went to White Beach. I was some time locating the old chap, but I finally ran him down. He said he had not taken Tracy across to the mainland last night."

Rawson dropped back in his chair. In answer to Bassett's expression he nodded soberly:

"Yes, it's a pretty queer business. Gabriel said he'd told the boy to be on time; made it clear to him that he wouldn't wait. When Tracy was not on the wharf he went to the house to look for him, saw his bag and fishing rod in the doorway and took them. No one was about and he left—not sorry, I inferred from what he said, to give the young cub, as he called him, a lesson."

Bassett got up:
"But it's incomprehensible," he exclaimed. "I can't make head nor tail of it. No one ever questioned that he'd gone."

"No one said they'd seen him go but his sister," came from Williams.

Bassett wheeled on him:
"Yes, you asked her. Didn't she say she'd seen him?"

"No," Rawson's voice was dryly quiet. "I've thought of that. What she said was that he went. In all fairness to her she probably thought so—look it for granted, as you all did—that he'd gone."

"But why? What's the meaning of it? If he'd missed the boat he'd have turned up, he'd be here now."

"Oh, he didn't miss the boat," said Rawson.

"Well, then, what was he doing? What made him stay?" In the turmoil of his amazement, this sudden precipitation of a new mystery, Bassett had not yet grasped the sinister trend of the other's thoughts.

"Why," said Rawson slowly, "he might have been staying for a purpose."

"What purpose?"
"Can't you imagine a purpose, Mr. Bassett?"

"Good God, you don't mean to say you think he did it?"

"I'm not saying anything yet. But I'd like you to tell me how you explain it. He says he's going, lends every one to think he's going, makes all the preparations for his departure, then secretly, without divulging any change of plans, doesn't go. Aren't those actions—well to put it mildly—questionable? And note this. He had cause for anger against Miss Saunders—she'd given him away to you—and you yourself have told us that he had an un governable temper."

"He had a devilish temper and a d-d mean disposition and I make no doubt he was blazing mad with her. But that he'd go to work to kill her in cold blood, lay in wait for her—no—you can't make me think that."

"Same here," said Williams. "You ain't got enough provocation. With Mrs. Stokes you have—a woman jealous of her husband."

"And you've got a man," retorted Rawson, "moved by one of the passions that lead oftenest to murder—revenge."

"Revenge?" echoed Williams.

"Miss Saunders' accusation, if true—and I think it was—would rub him in his profession. He learned what she'd done to him just before he was due to leave."

A chill passed through Bassett—revenge was a word that fitted Joe. But he cast the thought out, moving away from the desk and exclaiming with angry repudiation:

"Oh, it's unthinkable, preposterous. What but an evil intention could have made him act as he did?"

"Any number of things. It may be a prank—a practical joke we'll get an explanation of later. He may have invented the story of his fishing trip and gone off with a girl."

"Had he a girl?"
"I don't know—also he may have done something dishonest, got in wrong some way—he was capable of

She Stole to the Door and Opened a Crack.

it, I'm not defending him—and been frightened and lit out."

"How did he get off?"
Bassett's voice was raised in his exasperation:

"Good Lord, Rawson, we weren't jailed here then. He could have had a boat hidden in one of the coves. This place wasn't escape-proof till you turned up. He could have rowed ashore and landed anywhere, and that's what he's done."

"Unless he's here."

"Here on the island?" Williams spoke with an air of patient reminder: "Ain't we gone over it with a fine-tooth comb?"

Rawson pointed to the ceiling:
"How about that top story? A person—we won't say who—could have killed the woman, entered the house while the rest of you were on the beach, put back the pistol, and gone upstairs."

Williams made a motion to heave himself up from his chair.

"Well, if that's how you feel about it let's go up and have a look for the person."

"We needn't do that just now. They're as safe as if they were behind bars. There's something I want to do down here first—have a talk with Miss Tracy. She may be able to give us a little light."

"She can't help you," said Bassett. "They weren't on confidential terms. She'd be the last person he'd tell anything to."

He believed what he said, but his heart sank. Anne to be dragged through another interrogation, an interrogation with a hideous suspicion behind it!

Rawson rose:
"Perhaps so, but it's worth trying. She may know more than you think; sisters sometimes do. And she certainly must have more knowledge of him than any of us. We'll soon see."

He moved toward the door.
"I'll go up and get her now."

Bridge Work Will Begin at Early Date

Commissioner M. M. Newman says the material for the McClellan Creek bridges has been shipped from Omaha, Nebraska and Shreveport, La., and that work will begin just as soon as material arrives.

All timbers to be used in the bridges has been undergoing a creosote treatment, which has caused the small delay.

Mr. Newman has also been notified that $15,000 of the bond issue will be available for use by next Wednesday.

News from Heald

Weather has been fine here this week.

Cotton picking has begun, and some heading is going on. Crops are so late there will not be much work until frost.

The McLean Methodist Missionary Society came out and organized a society here last Thursday afternoon. District Secretary Mrs. Louis Clement and Mrs. Fields of Shamrock were also present. The first meeting of the society was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. T. F. Phillips.

REAPERS AND GLEANERS

When a business boasts that it is successful without advertising, it is proper to ask, "Is zat so?" The facts sometimes reveal that its success is really due to advertising—competitors' advertising. Other houses have created a market so active that it absorbs some of the unadvertised brands.

Even a well-reaped field leaves something for the gleaner. But the gleaner never gets as much as the reaper. And he depends for his business on something outside of himself. He is there on sufferance. The advertised brand pays fare, and occupies a cabin. The unadvertised brand is a stowaway. Sometimes it reaches the port, rumpled and undignified, and not altogether honestly, and sometimes it is discovered and thrown out.

A good article will always have some sale. A good article's sale will always be helped by a competitor's advertising. But a good article with adequate advertising can always secure a larger share of sales than the same article with no other advertising than that of competitors.—Calkins & Holden Inc.

A REASONABLE DOUBT

How his customer could have failed to see the sign bearing the words, "Beware of Fresh Paint," the grocer could not imagine. He hurried forward to placate the angry man.

"I'm very sorry indeed, sir," he began, "but surely you noticed the warning?"

"I did," replied the victim, looking at the board dubiously, "but I've often seen similar signs here announcing fresh eggs, butter, vegetables, etc., only to be deceived, and I suspected this sign was nothing but another 'able.'"

Advertising Rates upon Application

People who think too much of themselves really do little thinking.

It is impossible to make trouble for others without having some left over for yourself.

If we could get the other fellow's viewpoint, we would be more charitable of his mistakes.

As long as we think we are right, we never take the trouble to mend our ways, but the habit of taking blame when we are at fault is a good thing and can be acquired by rigid self discipline.

The out-of-town advertising solicitor takes the money out of town when he goes, and usually his so-called advertising scheme is worth very little to the local merchant. Advertising in the home paper produces the best results and the money is spent at home.

The census figures for Gray county show a crying need for smaller farms. Prosperity can only come to the community as the population increases, and smaller farms means more people and better crops than the present way of farming as many acres as possible. This has been proven many times in sections such as ours.

McLean needs a chick hatchery, and this is the time of the year for someone to become interested in this industry. If it will pay large numbers of people to buy baby chicks shipped into this community from long distances, it should surely pay to hatch the chickens in McLean.

"The man who does not advertise probably thinks he knows his business best—but few others do," said a Kansas City florist at the Kansas Florists annual convention the other day. It was Gladstone who first said that "only the mint makes money without advertising," and florists, as well as other successful business men, have learned that the newspaper offers the greatest results for the money expended.

The News is in receipt of a letter from the president of General Motors, in which he refers to a similar letter of last spring and the paid letter advertisement published in The News a few weeks ago. The gentleman says the company is well pleased with advertising carried by The McLean News this year, stating that the results of last spring's campaign have justified their faith in The News as an advertising medium.

There should be a large representation of business men present at Friday's luncheon. There is no good reason why the Chamber of Commerce should cease to function when there are so many things that need attention for the community's growth. It is hoped that those who are interested, but who will for some reason be unable to be present, will signify their interest in some way before the meeting in order that the body may know just what to plan for the future.

The pleasing concert given by the high school band under the direction of Prof. Davidson Saturday afternoon was appreciated by one of the largest street crowds seen in McLean for some time. The good work being accomplished by the band makes us realize the need of some way of perpetuating the organization, and no better way has been devised than to support the band by taxation. Such a tax would amount to very little to the dividual taxpayer, and would mean much to the town.

When McLean's streets are paved it will be time to think of a more acceptable way of parking cars than the one now in use. Angle parking causes more bent fenders and near accidents than any other one thing. Notice how some drivers will rush into the curb, trusting to their brakes to slide the wheels before going through a show window, and some back out of the parking space at high speed without looking to see if anyone else is coming. With other ways of parking, more time would have to be taken, making fewer accidents.

C. W. Watkins is a new reader of The News. Mr. Watkins is planning a modern tile stucco duplex apartment on the lots recently bought of the Methodist church.

Rats are on the decrease in the United States. However, this decrease is only just becoming apparent and farmers and others who are troubled with the pest should not let up on preventative measures.

In 1926 co-operative livestock shipping associations and other local associations, a cut 5,000 in number, handled approximately $400,000.00 worth of livestock for members.

In a test of representative farm areas in three States it was found that more than 60 per cent of the farmers were receiving bulletins from either the State agricultural colleges or United States Department of Agriculture. Are you getting yours? More than 60 per cent of these farmers receiving bulletins said they had adopted improved practices recommended in them. Are you getting your share of the benefit?

A bit of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl—just enough to give a mere suggestion of flavor—makes an acceptable improvement in flavor for many people.

AGREEABLE MANNERS PAY

Why should we know the laws of etiquette? Why should we know the way to do and say things? Why should we be agreeable? These questions rise in the mind of those eager to cultivate and refine their manners and speech. The answer is: to make one's own life happier—to bring into it a new sunshine, a new joy of living that was not even dreamed of when the mind and spirit were shrouded in the gloom of ignorance, of coarseness and vulgarity. For how can one face a sour disposition, complaining habits and lack of good taste and culture, he sees only the shades of gloom. People are repulsed by him, not attracted. Brilliant men and women, people of refinement and taste, will have nothing to do with him. He lives his own life—his ill-bred, complaining, gloomy, companionless life—an outcast from that better society of which we all long to be a part.

THE ODD FRATERNITY

Handicappers, lead pencil selling, moulful singers and others in the Panhandle, stealing and begging fraternities are back in business. They came in before the fair and must have found the way full of easy marks, for they are still cluttering up the city. The writer knows a mule skinner who has two wooden legs, a newspaper reporter who has two cork and mechanical arms, a lawyer who is blind, and a legless newspaper street salesman who makes five dollars a day legitimately. Anyone who is crippled or out of luck physically can get rehabilitated at no cost to himself. He is then taught workable trades and put in position to earn a legitimate living instead of being a beggar or a thief. False sympathy is played on by these people who don't want to work. Most of them wouldn't accept rehabilitation. They would rather be parasites and live on the hard earned money of just such people as this for their games. This editorial definitely does not include the honest man or woman who happens to be up against nature temporarily. It means the professionals and we have them—too many of them—in Childress this minute.—Unlabeled Index.

A PRIMER IN CO-OPERATION

Most of the current farm relief proposals rely to a greater or less degree on a broad expansion of co-operative marketing. It is generally recognized that co-operation, to be successful, must build from the bottom up, from the individual farmer to the local district, and perhaps national co-operative associations. Producers, wishing to familiarize themselves with elementary principles of co-operation, may find a helpful and simple discussion in Department of Agriculture Circular 403-C by Chris L. Christensen of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Mr. Christensen discusses and analyzes different types of co-operative organizations and their distinctions from commercial concerns, the membership relations and means for controlling marketing contracts, the financing of the co-operatives and of the crops, the management and obligations of the trustees, and the selling programs as affected by the type of product handled and the scope of the association.

KEEPING A TOWN SNAPPY

No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This applies to all kinds of business—general stores, dry goods, groceries, furniture dealers, manufacturers, dishments, automobile dealers, mechanics, professional men, druggists, and in fact all classes of business men. This does not mean that you should have a whole or half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two line space. A stranger picks up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town by looking at the business mention in the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. The life and the snap of a town depends upon the wide awake liberal advertising men. It's the truth.—American Bankers' Magazine.

This Tells You What to Eat

Dr. G. H. Ford of Los Angeles asserts that his newly-invented "quantometer" will answer all dietary questions for anybody. The machine has a number of vials filled with various kinds of food. Each vial is attached in turn to a wooden pointer; when this pointer is pressed again a person's flesh. It indicates whether that person may or may not safely eat the food in the attached vial—or, anyhow, that's the story. Dr. Ford is shown demonstrating with a fair patient.

Ever Follow One of These?

When gasoline buggies like this were, young people used to follow them around the streets to see if they'd blow up. Barney Oldfield is shown at the wheel of the car, which was part of a parade in New York recently, while his guest wears the snappy motor togergy of 1905.

IT'S INSURANCE

A reporter in a neighboring paper recently called attention to a number of instances in which failure to take a home paper cost the citizens real cash. One had failed to see a school notice and did not file an application for a change in his school district in time to enter his children in school; one forgot the assessor was coming; one is still lamenting that he did not know of a neighborhood reunion and picnic; another missed a stock sale. The list was not nearly so long as it might easily have been made. We hear the same kind of a story almost every week. Taking your home paper means more than just an opportunity to get the latest local news. It is really a sort of insurance against missing the business matters with which one must keep informed; bargains in buying and selling; legal information that comes only through the newspapers—and not the city papers, either. Every citizen who fails to take his home paper is dependent upon the charity or good nature of his neighbors to keep him informed on such matters.—Rogers (Ark.) Democrat.

Business is business, but men are men,
 Working, loving and dreaming;
 Toiling with hammer, brush or pen—
 Roistering, planning, scheming.

Business is business, but he's a fool
 Whose business has grown to smother
 His faith in men and the Golden Rule,
 His love for friend and brother.

Business is business, but life is life,
 Though we're all in the game to win it;
 Let's rest sometimes from the heat and rye,
 And try to be friends a minute.

Let's seek to be comrades, now and then,
 And slip from our golden tether;
 Business is business, but men are men,
 And we're all good pals together.

LOTTERIES

The federal courts have upheld the opinion of the Post Office department that any sales schemes which hold out a promise of obtaining merchandise in excess of what is paid for are lotteries, and must be excluded from the mails. One of these schemes was the endless chain hosiery proposition which promised to give the purchaser from $2 to $10 for a $1 investment.—Missouri Publisher.

THE MAN TO COME

Here's a toast I want to drink to the fellow I'll never know;
 The fellow who's going to take my place

When it's time for me to go,
 I wonder what kind of a chap he'll be.

And I wish I could take his hand just to whisper, I wish you were old boy,"

In a way that he'd understand,
 I'd like to give him a cheering word
 That at times I've longed to hear;
 I'd like to give him the warm hand-clasp

Wasn't never a friend comes near,
 I've learned my knowledge by sheer hard work,

And I wish I could pass it on to the fellow who's going to take my place

Some day when I am gone,
 Will he see all the battles I've made

And note all the battles I've made?
 Will he ever guess all the tears they caused,

Or the heartaches which they cost?
 Will he gaze through the failures and fruitless toil

To the underlying plan,
 And catch a glimpse of the real intent

And the heart of the vanquished man?
 We'll meet some day in the great unknown,

Out in the realm of space;
 You'll know my clasp when I take your hand

And gaze in your tired face,
 Then all our failures will be a success

In the light of the new found dawn;
 So I drink to your health, old chap,
 Who'll take my place when I'm gone.

—James Field Leeper.

CARE FOR THE DRY COW

The condition of the dry cow in regard to flesh should determine the amount and kind of feed to give her. Cows producing 10,000 pounds or more of milk will need a considerable amount of both grain and roughage during the dry period. Cut down on the roughage considerably a week or ten days before calving, as too much bulk may add to the discomfort of the animal. At this time feed a laxative grain ration. High producing cows, when dry, should have plenty of good legume hay or pasture, which is rich in protein and lime, and the grain ration should contain considerable quantities of bran and linseed-oil meal, which are rich in phosphorus.

The nighthawk, formerly wanted by shot for sport, is really one of the most useful of birds, and an insect catcher of great value. These birds scoop their prey out of the air on the wing. Biological survey experts have examined stomachs of nighthawks and have found more than 50 different kinds of insects, representing thousands of individuals, in a single stomach.

The best method of feeding salt to dairy cows is to mix 1 to 2 pounds of salt per 100 pounds of grain, or from 20 to 40 pounds of salt per ton of grain. In addition, have salt available so that the cows can get more if they desire.

FACTS

-AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

CHURCH ORGANIZATION

Recently a minister of several years experience in the work expressed the opinion that the churches were over-organized, consequently were not doing the work which should be done. Writers are taking the same position, and it is not infrequent that one will read an article in which the church is being condemned for what it is not doing instead of what it has accomplished. About a year ago a layman of one of the churches of Childress remarked that since the Sunday school had been organized and separated into departments, the children being taken into the many rooms of the building for instruction, the attendance was falling off, and especially was it noticeable that the attendance of children at church services had fallen off perhaps more than two-thirds. It is believed that this over-organization, if that be true, is the result of the world war, when the government was organized for every purpose. This is being followed by the church leaders of today, and while it will be kept for many years to come, yet there is an under current, with a sentiment that over-organization will become effective and the church will not do the work it should under that condition.—Childress Index
