

HOG BREEDERS MAY FORM STATE ASSOCIATION

Canyon, Feb. 20.—Texas swine growers may withdraw from the National Recording Associations and form their own Texas association, according to statements made at the Panhandle Swine Breeders Association in Brownfield the middle of February. One of the big breeders in the state stated that last year he spent over $1600 for registration dues and that in spite of this amount of money sent out of the state the various swine breeders' associations refused either to give Texas growers a field man or to make donations to supplement premium lists in Texas fairs. It was pointed out that a recording association in Texas would make it possible for Texas growers to keep a field man within the state devoting all of his time to the production of purebred swine.

REPLIES TO MERCHANTS

An answer to the merchant who claims he does not have to advertise to bring customers to his store:

One of the most discouraging conditions that a newspaper man runs up against is the non-advertiser who says, "Everybody knows my place of business and can come to me when in need of my goods, therefore, why should I waste my money to advertise?"

Of course, the newspaper man might say in rebuttal, "Everybody in the community knows everything that happens here, so what's the use of reporting news; what's the use of printing a newspaper?"

If a community can get along without a newspaper it can get along without a lot of other things. The adults are educated and can teach the children, thus doing away with schools. The parents, being religious, can train the younger ones in the creeds, thus doing away with ministers and churches. People can loan their money to one another, and thereby eliminate the banks. They can swap their old clothes or learn how to make home-spuns, thereby greatly reducing expenses and actually putting the clothing merchants out of business.

All trade is based upon a desire for goods. Necessity is, mostly, but augmented desire. Advertising has the function of reminding people of their requirements, but its greatest function—a prime factor in all progress and prosperity—is the creating of new desires; thereby stimulating trade and production and making the greatest possible degree of employment.—Stroud (Okla.) Democrat.

COST OF GIRLS' CLOTHING

Matador.—The impression that modern girls are unduly extravagant is not borne out in the records kept by 30 Motley county 4-H club girls, for it cost them an average of only $41.54 each to clothe themselves last year. The highest cost recorded was $96 by a girl who was forced to hire her sewing done due to the illness of her mother, and the lowest cost noted was $16.70 by a girl who sewed every stitch of her own clothes. These girls are farm girls ranging in age from 12 to 17 years, and the cost records were kept at the instance of Miss Ruth Bloodworth, home demonstration agent, who is using the data as a basis for demonstrations in 1930 in budgeting clothing expenditures in advance.

The records show that the wearing of silk hose all day and every day may please a girl's vanity, but is an expensive habit, for it costs more than twice as much as it does to wear cotton hose for school and sport wear and silk only on dress occasions. Ten girls who wore cotton hose for ordinary wear used an average of four pairs during the year, and two pairs of silk hose. The former cost 60 cents a pair and the latter an average of $1.49 a pair, making the total cost for hose for the year $5.36. The remainder of the girls wore silk hose exclusively and used an average of nine pairs last year, costing a total of $13.32. The variation in number of pairs of silk hose varied from six to 22.

In connection with this work the girls learned that the wise selection of material, choice of appropriate colors, good finishes and simple designs make money spent for clothing yield the greatest satisfaction. Fast colored prints, for instance, were found better than gingham for most everyday purposes, because the prints do not shrink, have a finer finish, and launder more easily.

Shopping tours developed the fact that when it comes to buying silks, it pays to pass up silk substitutes in favor of pure silks, if one can afford the cost, and if not, to choose rayons.

The Sister—"Captain Randall proposes in this letter. I wonder if he really loves me—he's known me only a week."

The Brother—"Oh, then, perhaps he does."—The Humorist.

LIVE WIRE OFFICERS

"We will now hold the insulation of officers."
"Installation, not insulation."
"You may be right, but these are 'live wire' officers."

The wife and daughter of Colonel Berry, camp commander, came to the gate after taps and demanded admission. The sentry refused.

"But, my dear man, you don't understand," expostulated the older woman, "we are the Berrys."
"I don't care if you are the cat's whiskers," retorted the sentry, "you can't get in at this hour."

LITERAL

The new teller's first day had just ended, and things were in a mess. "What do you mean," shrieked the exasperated bank president, "by telling me you have had five years' experience in banking when you never had a job before?"
"Well, you see, sir," replied the trembling young man, "You advertised for a man with imagination."

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Wolfe of LeFors attended the Cousins funeral here last Wednesday.

"HE, TOO, MUST ADVERTISE"

By Will Ferrell, in the Conoco Magazine

God placed the stars upon the valuted skies.

The blazing trail that leads to Paradise.

He set the moon, the sun, the morning glow

Where all could see—that all of us might know

That, somewhere, out beyond that crystal sea,

Is Life Eternal, friend, for you and me.

How often do we find Life's biggest themes

In trees or flow'rs or swiftly plunging streams.

A quartz outcrop from some secluded hill.

Leads down to gold, awaiting human skill.

Or, little sign-boards, scattered in the soil,

Perchance may point to hidden lakes of oil.

As 'tis in Life, so 'tis in things Divine.

A rose attests the power of the vine. And other things, no difference how small.

May hide something, worth while, behind them all.

In everything wherein a value lies, God paints a sign—He, too, must advertise.

THE IDEAL DOG

"I'm looking for my ideal dog," said the lady in the canine fancier's shop.

"I'd like one with a head rather like a collie and a body after the style of an Irish terrier, only with longer hair and nice, distinct markings. Do you keep dogs like that?"

The dog fancier shook his head sadly. "No, ma'am," he said. "I drown 'em."

PRESS EXECUTIVES MEET AT MEMPHIS FRIDAY

Meeting of the officers and board directors of the Panhandle Press Association were guests at a luncheon at the Memphis Hotel last Friday afternoon, courtesy of the Memphis Democrat.

April 18 and 19 were the dates set for the 1930 meeting of the association, and a tentative program, including speakers from over the Panhandle as well as those with state and national reputation, was made.

Several banquets will be given the visiting newspaper men and their wives during the convention, and other entertainment features are planned.

The McLean News editor attended the luncheon Friday.

JENKINS GRADUATES FROM ARMY MECHANICS SCHOOL

Fort Sill, Okla., Feb. 25.—Private Lee R. Jenkins, son of Mrs. Dora Lee Jenkins, McLean, Texas, was among those who were graduated from the Motor Mechanics Course of the Field Artillery School, U. S. Army, here this week.

Jenkins, who is serving as an enlisted member of the Field Artillery School Detachment and regularly stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., completed four and one-half months' course in the theory and application of modern motor principles. His course included a study of the famous Liberty motor, ignition systems, and transmission assemblies. Use, care, operation, maintenance, repair and construction of standard types of gas engines were also taught.

ASHBY GIRLS PLAY AT TRINITY UNIVERSITY

Waxahachie, Feb. 25.—Misses Lorena and Letha Ashby of McLean are playing on the junior and freshman girls' basketball teams at Trinity University.

Miss Lorena Ashby played on the sophomore intramural team last year and is playing this year on the junior team at the guard position.

The younger Miss Ashby is attending Trinity as a freshman and played with the freshman team as running guard in their first contest with the senior girls' team.

The junior team has played two games, overcoming the sophomore team 17 to 5, and defeating the freshman 19 to 10. The junior girls are expected to win the championship.

SAYRE LEVIES HEAVY TAX ON POOL ROOMS

Sayre, Okla., Feb. 20.—An ordinance levying an annual tax on pool halls operating in Sayre of $25 for the first table, and $5 each additional table, was passed by the city council at the regular semi-monthly meeting Monday night. The rule will become effective at once, it was said.

Action on the matter was taken after a delegation of Sayre ministers accompanied by County Attorney Robert Ivester, appeared before the council asking that an ordinance be passed prohibiting pool halls to operate in the city.—Sayre Headlight.

WATT-BRELSFORD

Miss Dorothy Watt and Mr. J. W. Brelsford were married Feb. 9, 1930, at the Methodist parsonage at Clarita, Okla., Rev. Sam E. Allison performing the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. J. J. Watt of McLean, and has been employed in the office of the Humble Pipe Line Co. at Pampa for the past two years.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brelsford of Houston, and has been employed as chief clerk of the Humble Pipe Line Co. at Pampa for a number of years.

The young people are making their home in Pampa.

BETTIS-BEAR

Miss Dora B. Bettis of McLean and Mr. P. H. Bear of Borger were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage Saturday evening, Feb. 22, 1930. Pastor B. W. Wilkins performing the ceremony. The immediate relatives of the bride, as well as a few friends of both parties, witnessed the impressive ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Bettis. Mr. Bettis is employed at the Prairie Pipe Line station.

The young people will make their home at Whitenburg.

HEAD YOUNG PEOPLE HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

The young people of the Head community will have charge of the singing service at the Methodist church Sunday, at 7:30 o'clock.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

P. T. A. PROGRAM FRIDAY NIGHT

A program will be given at the high school auditorium Friday night, beginning at 7:45, honoring the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Rev. W. A. Erwin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will make an address, music will be furnished by the high school band, and refreshments will be served.

METHODIST W. M. S.

The Methodist W. M. S. met at the church Tuesday afternoon.

A very helpful and interesting Voice program was rendered. The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Wilkins, using as a scripture lesson Matt. 21:30. Prayer was led by Mrs. Sitter.

Very interesting talks on Community Service were made by the following: Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. D. C. Carpenter, Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Upham.

A business session concluded the meeting, with closing prayer by Mrs. Alvah Christian.

The society will meet at the church next Tuesday afternoon for Bible study led by Mrs. Blake.

It may take one year of cotton buying by grade before everyone is convinced that it will pay to plant better cotton, but one experience has proven to be enough in other communities. It seems certain that cotton will be bought on grade in McLean next fall, and the man who has the long staple product will get the most money.

It is high time to be thinking of better yards and gardens for this year, and setting trees, vines and shrubbery will do more than any other one thing to beautify the home grounds. What is considered by many to be the very best time of the year to set trees in the Panhandle is right now, and no mistake will be made by planting trees and shrubbery during the first weeks in March.

The coming of spring should find plans already made for new paving of streets and sidewalks. The habit of waiting until fall usually means that another season will roll around before the paving is in. Spring weather is better on concrete than the hot summer months, and those who wish to improve their property with walks or street paving should be making plans now, as the usual red tape takes some month or two before actual work can begin.

Sixty-four Federal enforcement officers have been killed in liquor raids during the past ten years. These men are just as much heroes as any soldier who died for the flag. Among the wet newspapers we hear little of the bravery of the officers, but sob sisters let out a howl when a law-breaking bootlegger is injured in a raid. No man who is a law violator deserves any sympathy when caught, and every consideration is due the officer who respects his oath and defends the laws of his country.

EXECUTIVE ABILITY WILL OUT

Here is a story on himself told by General Charles G. Dawes, new ambassador at London: When he (Dawes) was examined for his commission as Lieutenant-Colonel in the Engineering Corps he knew little or nothing about engineering. Asked the question: "What would you do if you were ordered to survey a field?" he replied: "I'd send for a surveyor." And he passed.

"That's fine, George; find out if Admiral Byrd is single, won't you?"

Miriam—"Was Ralph much cast down after he spoke to your father?"

Prisella—"Yes, three flights of stairs."

LIVE TOWNS DEPEND UPON ADVERTISERS

The Oswego (Ore.) Review runs the following interesting quotation from the American Banker's Magazine, using it as an advertisement: "No business in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go to press without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns."

"This applies to all kinds of business and professional men. It does not mean that you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two-line space."

"A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town. This is the best possible town advertiser."

"The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The life of a town depends upon the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business man."

Cruel Neuritis Finds Its Foe in New Konjola

Happy Lady Enthusiast Praise of Famed New Medicine

MRS. HARRY A. UNRATH

"No words can describe what great medicine, Konjola, has done for me," said Mrs. Harry A. Unrath, 1474 Lark Avenue, St. Louis. "Five years ago I was afflicted with this marvelous remedy put me to a case of neuritis that I had feared of ever shaking off. The pain settled in my forearm and fingers for days at a time I was helpless, the frightful agony and could not move my hands. My kidneys were weak and added to my intense misery."

The first bottle of Konjola I bought was expected to be a cure, continued the treatment for weeks and my health troubles were at an end. Every vestige of pain left my arms and fingers, there was no swelling and no stiffness in them. My kidneys responded weeks ago and no back pains or dizziness. It is difficult, even now, to believe that one medicine could do all that Konjola did for me."

Konjola is sold in McLean at Montgomery Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns through this entire section.

SHINING LIGHTS OF M. G. S.

CLUBS

Bonnie Kuhl—Editor

The Vocational Guidance Club met in the club room last Thursday to write up the trips that they have made. No future trip had been planned. An attempt is being made now to get some slides and a stereopticon machine to present something really worth while to the members of this club.

The Public Speaking Club has made a noted advance into the "good speech world." This week has been devoted to the elimination of those students who are not the very best in declamations. The ones who are not eliminated will be trained for inter-scholastic league declamations.

The Dramatic Club will present a few short plays in assembly soon. Assembly was not held last week because of things that could not be avoided.

The Woodcraft boys are making flower stands, tables, book racks, porch swings and other useful things.

The Music Memory Club members are getting a deeper appreciation of music.

The Shining Lights are turning into another channel. Instead of editorials and essays, these "bright members" are studying the essentials of the short story. Excellent short stories are being composed by some.

The primary children have been weighed. The weights show that normal averages are made. On account of this showing, there is no epidemic at present.

All students of the intermediate department have just finished a course in the framing of pictures under the direction of Miss Bringham, art instructor. These frames are made with texture and are tinted with water colors. The framed pictures are very attractive, indeed.

Examinations are scheduled for this week. If you should see some of the hard working students bent over examination papers with frowns on their intellectual brows, you would know that the six weeks examinations were being held.

The Crippled Lady of Peribonka

By James Oliver Curwood

WNU Service
© 1929, Doubleday
Doran & Co., Inc.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, particularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants, and heroine of an epic destined to live long in the village annals.

CHAPTER II.—How the romance of Molly Brant, sister of the great Indian chief, Joseph Brant, and Sir William Johnson, in pre-Revolutionary days, comes down to today with the birth of a son, Paul, to Molly Kirke, wife of a powerful New York financier, and her death when Paul is thirteen years old. Molly Kirke was a descendant of Molly Brant, and her boy has many of the Indian characteristics. At thirty-two Paul marries Claire Durand, daughter of his father's business partner. He is in charge of an immense engineering work on the Mississippi river, near Peribonka, which his millionaire father has undertaken, but his Indian blood declares the destruction of the wilderness, and his thoughts are more of the Crippled Lady than of his work.

CHAPTER III.—Paul's wife is in Europe, she having no inclination to live in "those horrible woods." He comes to see in Carla, daughter of a central European immigrant, with her devotion to her invalid mother and her work of educating the village children, his ideal of womanhood.

CHAPTER IV.—Paul writes to his wife, urging her to join him, though Carla is the inspiration of the letter. Later that evening, passing the Indian home, he hears Carla crying. He shares the cottage. Mrs. Hanson, long a hopeless invalid, is dead. Paul's efforts to comfort Carla, he feels, bring them closer together.

CHAPTER V.—Claire announces her intention of joining Paul on the Mississippi in a short time. She also writes to Carla, of whom she has heard from Paul a letter of kindly sympathy, on the death of her mother.

CHAPTER VI.—Paul goes to Quebec to meet Claire, and brings her to his temporary home. Though she is apparently glad to be with him, and since warm friendship for Carla and Paul's other friends, he feels she is only there because she feels it her duty. She is not really happy. He becomes aware of a gulf between him and his wife.

They stood close to the sheer edge of the table rock and saw the log as it struck the water. There was an oily splash, and for a few yards the wood drifted away as smoothly as the plate had gone. A smile of triumph, carved Claire's lips, then swiftly a frightened look gathered in its place. A hand had reached up, a terrible woman hand that had gripped the log like a living thing and dragged it down until no chip or shadow of it rode the liquid serpen under them.

"Hold your eyes near the rock!" commanded Derwent.

Breathlessly they watched. Half a minute later, as it speared up to the monster who had swallowed it the log reappeared near the huge ring which split the stream, struck against it, and climbed half its length out of the water, then sank back and deep-poured again, this time to be seen no more.

"Gone," said Derwent. "And if you stood at the other end of the gorge, or six miles from here, you would never see that log come through. It is ground to pieces, goes out of existence in whatever there is between the walls of the chasm, which no man has ever explored, and none ever will. Are you satisfied?"

Claire was staring, wide-eyed.

"I believe it—now," she said.

Lucy-Belle had turned a little white.

"Still—I would jump in," she main tained, looking at Derwent.

Again Paul looked at Carla. The calm and placid beauty of her face seemed accentuated by what they had seen.

"And the wonder of it is there are so many who believe that Nature and God are not One!" she said, only for him. "Is it possible that in the blind ness of our egotism we shall always fail to understand the significance of such things as that? It is a written word, in the hand of God, just as the Peribonka, with its gentleness and sunshine, is another and different mes sage for us. That is what I be lieve."

Paul nodded. "So do I," he said, and felt the desire of all the world to take Carla's hand against his breast and hold it there.

Gullt fastened itself upon him, and a little later, inspired by the sweet ness of her manner toward him, he whispered to his wife: "Claire, you are wonderful! God knows I hope some day to make you happy!"

"You will," she answered, and the gentle mystery in her voice and eyes stirred him with a deep emotion.

Until the play grew tiresome they brought sticks and chunks of wood from the edge of the timber and fed them to the hidden hands of the stream. The result was always the same, except that chips and grass and very light pieces of wood raced swift ly and safely away, like the paste-board plate, as if they were too in significant to attract attention from below. But with the heavier objects there was a variation so small in what happened that the watchers on the bank were amazed and fascinated and started a little game of guessing how many seconds would pass before Lucy Belle's huge snake spat up an object and then swallowed it again.

To end their sport Paul and Derwent staggered from the edge of the timber with a forty-foot log, which had lain so long in the drying sun and wind that they could bear its weight on their shoulders, and before this was tossed over the five made their guesses, the loser to entertain the other four at dinner the next day.

"I've a notion to ride this log through the gorge," exclaimed Lucy Belle. "I want to know what is under and between these walls which you say no one has ever explored. Colin, what do you suppose can be there?"

"An inferno of devils, I imagine," replied her husband.

"Possibly not. Fairies might live there," suggested Claire.

"A black and sunless place where lovely water mounds without eyes frolic in the darkness," added Paul.

"Or a kingdom of Micomton, where dreams are made and sent out into the world," said Carla.

Derwent was preparing his end of the log for a final heave. "I insist it is a place of devils and death. Still, like Lucy-Belle, I'd like to see what's there. After all, it's fifty million years of—mystery! Are you ready, Paul?"

"Ready!"

The log pitched down, and as it went the end of it swung like a living thing and struck Paul. Even before the blow—in the lightning flash of time when eyes behind could see it sweeping upon him—a sudden scream filled his consciousness, and as the timber caught him he saw it was Claire whose cry had tried to warn him. Then he was over. With photo graphic clearness his eyes beheld his fate. The water seemed to reach up and catch him on its oily breast, and for a brief instant after this there was a sensation not unpleasant when he felt no sense of fear or terror even when forces that were irresistible but gentle pulled him down. He knew it was death, the death they had played with and lightly talked about, yet its presence closing about him did not rob his mind of its vision and judgment, nor frighten him into senseless wrestling with it. He would come up again, alive, near the jagged tooth of rock; after that would be his end, and in such an hour as this seconds became eternities of life. His wife Carla, Lucy-Belle, and Derwent were still nearer to him than the final stroke of death; he would see them, especially Claire and Carla, when he looked back in those few moments of grace which the monster of the un derwaters would give him. These two, and the supreme faith which had wrought a comradeship between him and all the forces of Nature, gave him, instinctively and without effort, the courage not to be afraid.

The undercurrent's indraughts and refluxes carried him with a quiet and deliberate leisureliness, which gave him no physical discomfort except that of holding his breath. Yet they were so powerful, so utterly sure in their grip, that when he made an experi mental effort to reach the surface it was as if he were struggling against a wooden wall. To save the air in his lungs he restrained himself from further exertion, and when, at last he came up near the rock, and felt fresh air in his face, he had suffered no greater inconvenience than if he had taken a long dive. His first thought was of the log, his second of the granite snag. Against this, after a moment, he felt himself being slowly lifted, and throwing out his hands he was thrilled by the fibrous, slimy touch of a rope-like substance which had gathered thickly about it just under the surface of the water. River weeds and flag had wrapped them selves in a tough belt about the rock, and so firmly had they attached them selves to it that he knew they would for a time at least, hold up his weight from the sucking undertow which was already beginning to drag at his limbs.

He looked toward the cliff and raised one hand to wave at the four who stood there. With the distance and to another: "Are you going with him?"

The woman spoken to gazed wide-eyed—motionless—voiceless—and after a moment of tense waiting the other said: "Then—I am!"

VITAMINS

Most vitamins are to be had in vegetable and fruit markets, in grocery stores, in gardens, or from the milkman, but not from the drug store.

Vitamin "A" is found in milk, cream, butter, ice cream, green leafy and yellow rooty vegetables.

Vitamin "B" is found in whole cereal foods, chiefly the germ cells which are the growing parts of seeds, spinach, raw cabbage and tomatoes.

Vitamin "C"—fruits, berries, toma toes—both raw and canned.

Vitamin "D" is found in cod liver oil, some fish livers, milk, and egg yolks. Sunlight may take the place of vitamin "D" to some degree.

HONOR AMONG—

A ruckus had developed between rival sewer construction bosses, and harsh words were flung.

"That there ladder belongs to our gang, I tell you!" the first boss bel lowed.

"The — it does!" the second yelled —or words to that effect. "One of my men stole that ladder from the telephone company with his own hands!"

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

R. W. Wilkins, Pastor
Our services were far above the average last Sunday, in both attendance and interest. Sunday school attendance was near 160. Two new couples were enrolled in the class recently organized, making the membership now consisting of 29 young people among the younger married set. There are others yet who have promised to join. A hearty welcome is extended.

The drama of the prodigal son was appreciated, and the attendance far surpassed that of any regular evening service held during the past several months. Those assisting in this service were: Momer Wilson, scripture lesson; Mrs. Willie Boyett, offertory and accompanist in all musical numbers; Mrs. W. E. Bogan, musical reading; "Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me"; Mrs. A. B. Blake, solo, "The Prodigal" and "A Child of a King"; C. C. Bogan, A. B. Blake and R. N. Ashby took the evening offering; J. H. Bodine pronounced the benediction.

The preaching service next Sunday morning will be in charge of Rev. Reginald Hardy, pastor at Albreed. The evening service will be conducted by the young people of the Heald church.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

W. Hickman, Pastor

We were very much encouraged last Sunday because of the good attendance at Sunday school, which showed that the interest in the school is increasing and our people are getting greater visions of the work of saving souls and spreading the Gospel, than ever before. The Lord is doing great things for us, whereof we are glad. We rejoice in the fact that God still delights to pour out His Spirit upon His people, and we are looking to a real pentecostal shower. We are trying to meet the requirements that will bring the blessing.

Our subject for next Sunday morning will be "The Secret of a Well Protected Life." At the evening hour our Junior N. Y. P. S. will render a missionary program. Come and hear this good program. At this time we shall take an offering for missions. "Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth laborers into His harvest."

Sunday school 10 a. m.
Morning worship 11 a. m.
Evening worship 7:30 p. m.
The pastor will preach at both services. The choir will furnish special music at both services. In the evening the pastor will continue the series of sermons on the Book of Revelation. Last Sunday night there was a good audience and much interest manifested.
Come and worship with us.

BAPTIST W. M. U.

Twenty-one ladies met at the church Monday afternoon, when a quilt was quilted. Those present were: Mesdames Finley, Berry, Stewart, McHaney, Appling, Lochridge, Scott, Billingslea, Holloway, Andrews, Colebank, D. E. Johnson, H. Kunkel, Boyd, Petty, Wilson, Carpenter, Brynoff, George, Dan and Homer Abbott.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. Brynoff on the subject of "Woman." After the devotional, a surprise was given Mrs. Brynoff when the president presented her with a gift from the society in appreciation of her faithful services with them.
The next meeting will be an all-day meeting beginning at 10 o'clock, with lunch at noon. The "Week of Prayer" program will be carried out, and the Lefors ladies are expected to meet with us. A full attendance of all the members is expected.

AN INITIAL BID

"Tom," said Bill, as he caught up with him on the way back to the camp, "are the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?"

"Yes."
"And are the six of them quite safe?"

"Yes, quite safe," said Tom.

"Then," said Bill, his chest swelling with pride, "I've shot a deer."

AW, NOW!

Coleslaw—"My wife was a wonderful vocalist in her younger days. Why, she would hold her audience for hours."

Cavlar—"Get out!"

Coleslaw—"After which she would be laid down in the cradle and rocked to sleep."

SCOTCH INVENTION

Hopkins—"I hear you have invented a new machine. What is it?"

Inventor—"It's a revolving nest. When a hen lays an egg, the nest revolves and the egg falls into a receptacle underneath. Then the hen turns around, and seeing no egg, thinks she has made a mistake, and promptly lays another." — Weekly Outlookman.

KIND GARDENER

She was on one of her few visits to the country and was very attentive to the trees and flowers.

"This plant," said the gardener, "belongs to the begonia family."

"I see," said the lady. "How kind of you to look after it while they are away."

CASE DISMISSED

Judge—"The charge is speeding. How many times have you been before me?"

Speeder—"Never, Your Honor. I have tried to pass you on the road, but you see my old bus will only do fifty."

Judge—"Get out of here. And don't try to pass me again."
