Alanreed Man Killed When Struck by Automobile

ONES KILLED BY AUTO

Car Fatally Injures Man Walking on Highway

E. W. Jones, aged 63 years, 9 months and 15 days, was killed when struck by an automobile on the old highway near Alanreed last Friday. Mr. Jones, accompanied by T. E. Gaskins and Atron Holt, had been to Alanreed and had left their car at the left home and were walking to Alanreed to get the mail when a car driven by Ivey Miller, accompanied by Glenwood Harris and Clyde Winkle struck Mr. Jones, who died later on the way to McLean, without ever waking again after being hit. The boys went on a way and then returned to find that the body had been removed. They went on to Alanreed in search of the injured man, and then came on to McLean, where they found that a truck had brought the body to the Rice undertaking parlors. The boys were placed under arrest, and at the inquest held Saturday before Judge C. S. Rice, the driver was placed under an appearance bond for the Grand Jury, charged with failure to stop and render aid. According to Gaskins and Holt, they were walking abreast on the right hand side of the road when the car was heard approaching, and Gaskins jumped to the left and Holt to the right, calling to Jones, who was hard of hearing, to get out of the way, but he was struck and fatally injured. Funeral services were held at the Alanreed cemetery Saturday, conducted by Rev. C. C. Warford. Arrangements were in charge of Mortician C. S. Rice.

MAYOR PROCLAIMS FATHER AND SON WEEK

Mayor Jot Montgomery has issued a proclamation for the observance of Father and Son Week November 3rd to 9th, and calling upon the fathers of the city to co-operate by attending with their sons at least one meeting to be held during that week. "The purpose is admirable. Anything that tends to bring father and son closer together in friendly spirit cannot but be beneficial to themselves and the community," says the mayor.

RADIO DEPARTMENT IN THIS ISSUE

Beginning with this issue of The News, a regular feature will be a radio department, where questions will be answered by a competent radio mechanic. The first question is answered this week. Readers are invited to ask any question desired about the operation of their set, regardless of make. There will be no special equipment recommended, as the column is not advertising any certain manufacturer, but is intended to be of service to the radio owner. Telephone or write The News any question you want answered.

SITTER BUYS FINE JERSEY BULL

Geo. W. Sitter has just received a one year old Jersey bull from Des Moines, Iowa. This animal has been on the show circuit and has a number of prizes to his credit, and is fat and in show condition now. Mr. Sitter says he will keep this fine animal in his barn in the south part of town for three days, before removing him to his ranch, in order that anyone interested may see him. MacDonald's Work Lesson for Farmers
Two Fine Girls
Mr. Mellon Stays
Ramsay MacDonald's work in America is well done. The United States and Britain have solemnly pledged themselves against war as between the two countries, and to the promotion of peace by all proper means everywhere.

What the future will bring forth, what the British government following the present labor government, or what American public opinion may desire in the future, no one can say. But at least war has been classed as barbarous. The two most powerful nations in the world have declared against it, and that is progress.

It took human beings thousands of centuries to abandon cannibalism. Often, undoubtedly, they resolved to eat men no longer. And over and over the resolution was broken, when hunger came and the edible man was easily caught.

And war will disappear. Nevertheless, in days when the more civilized men were giving up cannibalism, they kept themselves ready to repel those that might come to eat them.

The United States and Great Britain, denouncing and abandoning war as between Britain and America, should keep ready and able to repel others that might seek to enforce war upon them.

Farmers, crying for "relief," may learn from New York's striking truck drivers that real relief can be found in organization.

The drivers haul farmers' produce and wanted an increase in pay representing as much as the average farmer earns. It was not difficult. The agreement was made that any farm produce hauled into New York must be unloaded from the farm truck and reloaded into a truck operated by a member of the Market Truckmen's association before it could be delivered to a commission house.

Who pays for that reloading, for the second truck and the services of another truckman, all unnecessary? The farmer pays, of course.

There are some serious young women left in the world, thank the Lord. Therefore future generations may hope for more Lincolns and Edisons.

Miss Isabel MacDonald, daughter of the Labor Prime Minister, spends her time in New York investigating children's courts, as she does in England. She thinks "if we gave children good homes, sanitary conveniences and generally good conditions, their morals would take care of themselves."

That's one fine young woman. Another is the daughter of Mr. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and younger sister of Mrs. Lindbergh.

When she reaches Mexico City, Miss Morrow will teach in a Mexican public school.

The fact that her father has millions does not concentrate her attention upon herself, or diminish her interest in the welfare of children.

NEGROES IN KNIFE SCRAPE LAST WEEK

A negro was bound over for the Grand Jury in Judge C. S. Rice's court last week under a charge of assault with attempt to murder another negro with a knife. The altercation took place in an alley near the business district. A white man was also bound over in this court when a half gallon of whiskey was found in his car. The Grand Jury will probably pass on these cases early next week.

Lions Discuss Advertising Sign Boards

Discussion as to the advisability of sign boards placed at each edge of town on Highway 66 giving the name and some of the advantages of McLean was had at the regular luncheon of the Lions Club Monday. A committee consisting of W. A. Erwin, Sam Hodges and Boyd Meador was appointed, and a motion carried instructing the removal of the Lions sign at the west side of town and erecting on the new highway route near the school building, and to ascertain the cost of advertising signs.

The proposition of marking all creeks and rivers with appropriate name signs was also a part of the discussion.

Lion T. W. Gilstrap was requested by President Meador to read an inspirational article from the current number of the Lions magazine that was an appreciated part of the program.

Lion W. A. Erwin asked the co-operation of the club in the series of "friendly meetings" now in progress at his church.

Among those taking part in the discussions were: Boyd Meador, Dr. Coleman, E. L. Sitter, A. A. Tampke, Sam Hodges, Reep Landers, W. A. Erwin, T. W. Gilstrap, Arthur Erwin and T. A. Landers.

Presbyterian Revival Services Interest Grows

Interest is growing in the "Friendly Services" now in progress each evening at the First Presbyterian church under the direction of Pastor W. A. Erwin.

The messages brought by Rev. Erwin are practical and inspiring, and the big chorus choir is attracting favorable comment as is the special music and the piano playing by Mrs. Erwin.

The meetings will continue each night, except Saturday, all next week, and everyone has a cordial invitation to attend the services. Other churches have announced that they will dismiss their Sunday evening services for the meeting next Sunday, and it is hoped that the church will be packed that evening, when a special message will be given by Rev. Erwin.

CAR LICENSE SLOWER FOR NEXT YEAR

According to an announcement received Saturday from Austin, car licenses will be much lower next year due to the increase in gasoline taxes. On lighter cars the fee will be less than half and the medium weight cars will be lowered exactly one-half.

WILKINS RAISES FINE SWEET POTATOES

J. O. Wilkins, who lives north of town, presented the editor with the biggest sweet potato seen this year. The tuber weighs 6 pounds and 10 ounces, and was raised on upland without irrigation.

The old fees were based on weight and horsepower, while the new fees will be based on weight alone.

GOLF CLUB TO BUY GROUNDS NEAR CITY

The McLean Golf Club is planning to buy the grounds now being used for a course near the city. A number of interested parties are subscribing $100 each for this purpose.

Highway Order Passed by Co. Commissioners

Accepting a proposition of the state and federal highway departments, the commissioners court passed an order Monday to buy the right-of-way for Highway 66 through the remaining part of Gray county not affected by precinct 4.

The state and federal departments offer to do the dirt and drainage work if the county secures the right-of-way through the 9 miles affected. It is understood that some of the route will be donated by property owners, as the paved highway will be an asset to every piece of property it passes.

Preparatory work in precinct 4 is practically all done, some 6 miles now being ready for paving that will be laid as soon as the route is completed through McLean.

Commissioner M. M. Newman stated that a statement of the receipts and expenditures on the highway in this precinct will be handed in for publication within a few days.

Band Concert Will Be Held Friday Night

A free band concert will be given at the high school auditorium Friday night, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, using the program that will be used at the Dallas Fair next week.

The band has been a consistent prize winner since its organization, and it is hoped that a good crowd will encourage the players Friday night.

Following is the complete program that may be clipped for use at the concert:

GINNERS' REPORT SHOWS GRAY CO. INCREASE

The report of cotton ginned prior to October first in Texas shows Gray county 2% bales against 105 last year. Wheeler 1985 against 1077. The total for the state shows 2,130,065 against 2,430,885.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

Reported. During the first week in September, thirty-six girls enrolled in home economics classes weighed and compared their weights with standard weights. There were only six girls who were up to standard weight. The group as a whole was 261 pounds underweight.

Again the first of October these girls were weighed with the following results: A total of 52 pounds was gained by them, and three more girls came to standard weight.

This shows that as a rule girls of high school age do not place enough importance in practicing health habits. Not only do they need good foods, plenty of rest and exercise, but they need more regularity in obtaining them. A strong healthy body is better prepared mentally and physically to meet the world.

Commissioners Decide to Hold County Agent

At a meeting of the county commissioners Monday, W. C. Cheney, W. T. Wilson, J. E. Biggs of McLean; Ed Castleberry of Alanreed, and others appeared in behalf of a county agent. The court advised that the state department had been notified that Gray county would employ a county agent Jan. 1, 1930.

The commissioners had gone on record as favoring the county agent some time ago, but it had been reported that an adverse action was contemplated by the court, and a number of interested sections of the county were represented.

M. D. Bentley represented the McLean chamber of commerce in behalf of a bridge over Northfork, and is optimistic over the outlook.

GRADE WALKS & CURBS

Engineer to Establish Grades for Walks and Curbs

At a meeting of the city council Wednesday it was voted to employ an engineer to establish grades for side walks and curbs to conform to the city ordinance, affecting distance from property lines, etc.

It was also ordered that the building and sidewalk permit ordinance will be strictly enforced and violators fined in the future.

The tax levy was raised from $1.25 to $1.50 on the $100 valuation, to take effect on the current year's renditions.

Four hundred dollars was voted to pay the expense of the band trip to Dallas.

A committee was appointed to see that the city jail is put in comfortable condition for winter weather.

Action was deferred on the paving petition and the negro segregation plans; however, discussion was had on the negro question that should have definite results in the near future.

A list of property owners adjacent to the sewer lines was furnished, and it was ordered that all must be attached to the sewer within the next 30 days or suffer the penalty of the ordinance affecting same.

AN INGENUOUS IDEA OF FOOTBALL

President Angell of Yale seems to be one of those old-fashioned educators who still believe that the object of football games between college teams is to strengthen the bodies and develop self-reliance on the part of the players. Everybody else knows that the real purpose is to prove that one school is superior to another. The Yale prexy would like to see the professional football coach retire at the beginning of the contest and have no further contacts with his players until the final whistle blows. He thinks that "there is a wide and well-grounded sentiment that the control of our games should be put back more fully into the hands of the players," presumably so that the young men who engage in the sport will be thrown more on their own resources and will not respond, like puppets on a string, to tugging from the sidelines.

Dr. Angell is not alone in this view. The New York State High School Athletic Association has already ruled that the coach shall not be active during the game, and a number of high schools throughout the country have adopted a similar policy. However, so far as is known, no college of football pretensions has followed the lead, and it does not appear that any of them will show up with cheers for Dr. Angell's proposal. The cold and hard truth about football is that everyone wants to see a football team that is out for victory, and that no one wants to see a football team which is primarily concerned with self-development of the players. The gentleman in the stadium who cares a whoop whether Tackle Jones out on the field is cultivating the sterling quality of self-reliance so long as he smother the opposition is a rare bird. It is not observable that a great many persons of the average football crowd are very seriously concerned over whether the quarterback makes his own decisions on the gridiron so long as those decisions are right as shown by ground gained or points scored. The turnstile mob which pays the freight in football wouldn't risk a thin dime on formal setting up exercises for the manly virtues.

Dr. Angell's idea is probably sound and good, but unfortunately it is not the public's idea of football. And the football public, whether the schools like to admit it or not, is pretty thoroughly in charge of the game's destinies.—Star-Telegram.

MARRIED WOMEN AS TEACHERS

By Haverlock Ellis

A large proportion of teachers are today women, often for not only children of their own sex, but for boys. There cannot be the smallest doubt that married women who have children of their own are incomparably better fitted to deal with the special difficulties of children than those who have not. A few gifted women may be found who can make up for personal inexperience by insight and artificially acquired knowledge, but they are rare exceptions. This is a fact that should be fairly obvious even to one who knows nothing about schools and education. But it becomes conspicuous when we observe the actual conditions that prevail. The teacher who has had children of her own is seen to possess an almost instinctive comprehension of children which is seldom present in her unmarried colleagues. The scholastic attainments of the latter may be of the highest, and yet they may be unable to meet even the simplest emergencies of child life, themselves little more than children, and sometimes, indeed often, more ignorant of the facts of human life, and more afraid of them, than are their pupils, whom they are supposed to be competent to "educate." Children today are apt to be acute critics of the abilities of their teachers, and if children had a voice in the selection of their teachers the level of education would certainly be raised. At present a large majority of elementary teachers (in England nearly 80%), and a considerable proportion in secondary schools, are women. Yet how many of them are encouraged by the official authorities, or even allowed to acquire the essential experiences of motherhood? In spite of the recent progress of science, the depths of human imbecility have not yet been plumbed.—Interscholastic Leaguer.

HENS MAKE GOOD RECORD

Throckmorton.—John Massey, local 4-H club boy, got 18 eggs daily through August from a flock of 23 hens. He built a small house on Extension Service plans, paying one-half down on the lumber and doing the work himself. He is making his egg production foot the balance of the bill, and plans to increase the flock to 50 soon.

Miss Clara Anderson of Canyon spent the week end with home folks here.

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS

Superstitions regarding the prevention and cure of disease have persisted from time immemorial, many of them being still prevalent in the more backward sections of the country. A few were called to mind by a recent writer, in noting the death of an aged Kentuckian who continued to wear earrings to the last, in the belief that they were good for his eyesight.

Another old-time notion was that wearing a mustache was beneficial to weak eyes, just as it was thought that carrying a buckeye or a potato in the pocket would prevent or cure rheumatism.

One doesn't have to be so very old to remember when children were caused to wear a little bag of asafoetida strung around the neck as a protection against "catching" diseases, and when in many homes bunches of various dried herbs were hung around for the same purpose. Some believed that keeping a goat around the house was a prime health measure.

The writer remembers being warned when a boy not to wade in water when afflicted with hives, lest they "strike to his heart and kill him." He waded, nevertheless, and lives to tell the tale.

These superstitions, like the belief that a horsehair placed in the rain barrel would turn into a snake, are gradually dying out—but many presumably intelligent persons to this day will refuse to take the third light from a match or walk under a ladder for fear of dire consequences.—Shamrock Texan.

ON A CREDIT BASIS

Little Patty's doll needed a new dress, so she went to a near-by store where she purchased some red calico. Upon receiving her merchandise, she inquired the cost. The salesman, chuckling, replied, "Just one kiss." Patty picked up her package in a business-like way and said, "Granny will pay you the next time she comes to town."

Lena Thatcher of Evanston, Ill., was landed in jail after she had whipped five members of her employer's family.

DIDN'T SEE THE HARP

Those who attend burlesque shows will appreciate the situation of the Texas farmer in the story and not wonder that he overlooked so important a thing as a harp on which a chorus girl twanged.

A Texas farmer and his wife went to Chicago on business, and while there they attended the theatre several times.

One of the attractions was a modern musical revue in which were scenes where, following present styles, various actresses wore little if any clothing.

In one scene a woman harpist twanged at the strings while several maidens danced about her. On the way back to the hotel, the farmer's wife was reviewing the performance in her mind.

"By the way," she said, "what was that tune the woman played on the harp?"

"Good gosh!" her husband exclaimed, "was there a harp?"

PERFECT AGREEMENT

An aviation lieutenant had his father up for a spin and could not resist the temptation to brag a little. "Fifty per cent of those people down there think we'll never get down alive," he said.

"That's nothing," his father answered, "fifty per cent of us up here think the same thing."

The Charivari
 by A. J. Dunlap

In the good old days in the old home town
 How we plotted and planned the charivari,
 For we knew them both and we wished them well
 And he gladly paid us the bride groom's fee.
 I can see them still through the mist of years
 As we called them out in the pale moonlight—
 There was Ed and Henry and Dick and Joe,
 How they laughed and paid us and said good night.
 Though their youth has waned and their children flown,
 You are sure to find in their memory
 A most friendly spot for the old home town.
 And the boys who gave them their charivari.

"UP IN THE AIR"

This department is for the benefit of radio owners, regardless of the make of set used, and anyone is invited to send questions to the radio editor with the assurance that their questions will receive prompt attention.
 Your name will not be used unless requested.

"I can get them but I can't hold them."

Ans. The most usual cause of this trouble is atmospheric "fading." You can check this by turning to another station to see if it comes in with normal volume, or by leaving the set tuned to the station which faded.
 If the program gradually builds up again to normal volume, then the difficulty is atmospheric and not with the set. In battery sets if the signal lowers in volume on all stations a minute or two after the set is turned on it is caused by either a weak A battery or a weak B battery. The B batteries should test not less than two-thirds their rated voltage with the set turned on. In electric sets varying in volume may be caused by fluctuation in line voltage which will be accompanied by a noticeable dimming of the panel light or other lights in the room. A variation in volume at a regular period of from thirty seconds to one minute is caused by a defective '27 type tube. On inspection it will be noted that this tube varies in brilliancy in step with the varying volume. A new tube is the obvious remedy.

A bill is before the senate to have cigarettes put under the pure food and drugs act in order to curb reckless statements in advertising.

McLean should be represented at the El Paso convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, as it is pretty generally understood that a number of changes will be made, and the large membership here entitles us to four votes.

We are told of a young man in a neighboring town who a few Sundays ago was playing bridge, and between plays studying his part in the program for a young people's church society that night. That appears to be going the limit to combine business with pleasure.

It is necessary every once in a while to remind folks that The News must make a charge for anything that is of a commercial nature that appears in its columns. A good rule to remember is if you would charge the editor for what you have to offer, the editor must charge you for his services. This is only fair on both sides.

The News needs correspondents from all communities and schools not already represented in its columns. Every church and social organization should have news reporters, and we are glad to furnish postage and stationery to those who will co-operate for the benefit of their community. Every school in this territory should be represented in the columns of the home paper each week. We make only one rule, and that is that all such items must be in our hands by Tuesday to insure publication.

A Shamrock cafe man claims that eleven salt shakers were missing from his place of business after a football game recently, and only one was recovered when he enlisted an officer to help him recover his property. There is no excuse for happenings of this character, and the offenders should suffer the penalty of the law when apprehended. There should be no "fun" in appropriating property belonging to another, and school kids of proper age should fare no better in this regard than older persons.

A Texas college coach states this week that "a good yell leader can be just as much help to a football team as a good player." This idea can be carried out in all lines, for all of us work better when we are given a little encouragement, but unfortunately, an individual's success is usually taken for granted and a man is only mentioned when there is something to criticize. How nice it would be if we could engender enough enthusiasm for good deeds that we would encourage our friends to go on to success in all their undertakings.

Parking space in front of stores is being given up for the benefit of their customers in many nearby towns. There will have to be some such plan worked out in McLean if we are to expect people to trade here on Saturdays and other busy days. With cars double parked on Main street there is little inducement for one to try to buy a bill of goods with any chance of getting merchandise to his car. Every foot of space in front of the stores should be for the use of customers, and no one should park a car for any great length of time in this space.

Once in a while the editor is asked why he does not jump on someone who is indulging in some unjust criticism of some kind. The truth is we are anxious to jump on anything that is not for the betterment of the community, but we never expect to take advantage of anyone for personal gain. No editor worthy the name will use his editorial expression to get back at anyone. If we have any friends who would like to criticize they need have no fear that we will hand them a package through The News. This paper is for the upbuilding of the community, and as such plays fair with everyone alike, regardless of whether they like the editor or whether the editor likes them—it does work both ways, you know.

It is a pity that there should be any controversy as to where any street improvements should be placed. If the existing ordinance governing curbs and walks is not right, it should be changed at the earliest opportunity and a suitable ordinance passed and strictly enforced. It is not right for some people to obey the law in this regard and others allowed to do as they like, as it detracts from the value of all property, and the appearance of the town. Uniformity is the only way to build attractive towns, and the sooner a set rule is adopted the better for all concerned, as it will come to this in the end and someone will be put to a lot of expense and trouble in making their property conform to the law. Unfortunately most all towns make the same mistake in the beginning, but in McLean we have not advanced so far that it will cause much inconvenience to get right in this matter now. The full 80 feet of streets belong to the city, and the council can make and enforce any ruling in the matter they desire, but it is hoped that a uniform rule will be adopted and enforced in the interest of all.

CONTROLLED VOLATILITY...
What have tank cars to do with motor cars? Just this. Every day, tank cars filled with Phillips 66 are shipped North, South, East and West. The volatility of the gasoline in each of these tank cars is scientifically controlled to fit the climatic conditions of the locality in which it is sold. The result? Instant starting, quick warm-up, rapid acceleration, remarkable power and mileage—regardless of weather—at no extra cost! For best results try a full tank of Phillips 66... or 66 Ethyl.
Phill-up with Phillips 66
WHEN THE THERMOMETER GOES DOWN THE VOLATILITY GOES UP
Gasoline must vaporize before it can be fired in the cylinders of your motor. Volatility refers to the ability of gasoline to vaporize. With volatility controlled, Phillips 66 vaporizes as quickly in cold as in warm weather.

OIL OUTPUT DECLINES

Austin.—Output of crude petroleum in Texas declined in September, according to the Texas Business Review.

"A total of 26,970,000 barrels of petroleum was gathered in the state during September, compared to 28,082,000 barrels in August, and 21,979,000 barrels in September last year," Mr. Nichols said. "In the third quarter, 81,960,000 were produced, which is a new high record for the quarter. Last year, in the same three months, 67,395,000 barrels were gathered."

"Field work was less active. New wells completed numbered 662 in September, against 717 in August and 534 in September, 1928. There were 343 producers, compared with 301 in September last year. In the third quarter, 2,185 new wells were drilled, of which 1,219 were producers. This compared with 1,671 completions and 961 successful wells in the corresponding three months of 1928. Field work is expected to show further seasonal decline the next few months."

WHY PREACH?

I once met a preacher, one of those broad-minded religionists who don't know what they believe or why. He said, "Henry, you are too narrow. Now, I could preach as acceptably in your pulpit as in my own." I did not contradict him; in fact, I couldn't, for I don't know how acceptably he fills his own pulpit. One thing I do know: The man without a definite, clear-cut, positive message has no business preaching at all. A man must stand four-square upon what to him is truth, or we don't want to hear him preach. I have heard men in the pulpit who reminded me of a "blind man in a dark cellar looking for a black cat that wasn't there." Such a preacher is a hiatus in a hole; the cube root of nothing. We respect a man who disagrees with us exactly as much as though he did agree with us. Men as sincere and as intelligent as we are, believe something else, and, if they have the courage of their convictions, all is well. But deliver us from the man who does not stand for anything in particular and tries to preach about it. In case like that, why preach? "Give me of your faith, my friend; I have doubts enough of my own." A good rule is not to discuss publicly a question that one cannot answer, at least to one's own satisfaction. If in doubt the preacher should seek the answer in the Word of God, and this is the final authority where the christian religion is concerned.—Rev. Geo. Henry.

DOGS OWN TOWN

Dogs are all right, in their place, but the trouble is that dogs rarely know where their place is, and choose our back yard for a camp meeting ground. Now if we could only throw straight—there would be fewer dogs singing to the moon in our private quarters. But what do dogs care for private property or the rights of others! We do not mind dogs taking their day, but when they take the whole night, that's going too far and we object. But what's the use! This psalm on dogs may as well not be written as this is a dog town, and that is that. Or rather, we should modify that statement by saying that the dogs own the town, and that is a rather sad thing for the people.—Higgins News.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—In the usually quiet town of Joplin, Missouri, in the small town of Joplin, Iowa, his motherless daughter, Marjory, and Ellen—Ginger, Miriam, and Ellen—were busy "grooming" their father for participation in the "pageant" that evening. With Eddy Jackson, prosperous young farmer, Marjory leaves for the city to triumph.

CHAPTER II—Overwork and nervousness attendant upon the building of a new church to replace the old one, had affected Mr. Tolliver to the point of threatened insanity, and he is forbidden to use his hands. He has tried in many ways to get his mind off his work, but he is not discouraged. Marjory, Eddy Jackson, and a friend he has met as Tub Andrews, returns to Joplin, Iowa, with a check for $500, which she gives to her father as part of the expense for the treatment of his eyes by a specialist.

CHAPTER V

When Miriam went to Chicago with her, Miss Jenkins moved across the parsonage to remain with the girls. Miss Jenkins was glad to do so. The girls felt it was for that and followed them about through the city. Three charges, that now then, in emergencies, she could largely into the household and in its management. She came discouraging reports from the city. Mr. Tolliver was "run" on a high nervous tension. Miriam's orders were more spicily strict than ever. The doctor would not offer any possible hope for the ultimate recovery of his sight, but for absolute rest, an abundance of fresh air, good wholesome food, and complete mental freedom. The girls home, in conference with Miss Jenkins, considered this bitterly.

"How can a man rest when he has to support a family, and keep peace in a whole church?" wondered Marjory. "Of course, later on, I shall be able to take care of him," said Ginger. "He seems to need taking care of."

The girls were so well used to Ginger's largeness of expectations that remark called forth no discussion of ways and means. Besides, they were too depressed for argument. Grief and horror preyed upon their spirits—permanent blindness—a horror which they tried to kill by ignoring.

When Eddy Jackson called on the phone, it was a welcome diversion. "I thought perhaps you would like to go alone with me in the car," he said, "and tell me all your secrets. I'll ask my advice about investing your fortune of yours."

Eddy Jackson had been her only confidant concerning her hoped-for fortune.

Ginger promptly accepted the invitation, delicately passing over the hint to her confidence.

"Now you are not invited, Marjory," said Eddy, when Marjory offered to join them. "I want to talk business want chance I have to talk business when you and your complexion are around."

Fearful that she sight of the car would drive her sister to more open desire, she was waiting at the curb when Eddy drove up. And to a moment they were rolling off to the country.

"You see, it is a long time since you bought those bonds," he said, "and I thought you might need help in clipping the coupons."

"If you are trying to be funny," she said, "I don't mind telling you that—my business—is off to a very good start. Unfortunately, the first returns are not large ones. And right now is when I want it most." She sighed a little.

"What's the matter? Bad news from your father? What do the doctors say?"

"Just what they have been saying for five months. He is worn out, nervous and weak. His eyes can't get well until the rest of him is stronger. A nervous shock may make him blind—forever. Oh, Eddy, I'm going to give him everything he needs—time to play, the best things in the world to eat, and fresh air, and mountains, and seashores—everything, after while. But he needs it now!"

"How soon do you expect to be able to do these things?"

Ginger figured, painfully, counting on her fingers, her lips moving. "Well—I'm afraid—I couldn't do very much—not so very much—for maybe six months. Maybe longer. I don't exactly know. And he may be entirely blind by then."

They drove for a while in silence. "Ginger, your inspiration is catching. I have a good idea myself. A quiet atmosphere, fresh air, good country food, pure milk. Well, what's the matter with Pay Dirt?"

Ginger did not understand. "Why, send him out to Pay Dirt for a rest. He won't have any salt air, but he'll have complete quiet and a rest. He won't have any mountain breezes, but he'll have unadulterated Iowa. He won't have any French menus but plenty of fresh eggs and good milk, and chicken three times a day if he wants it. And it won't cost him a cent. You can come along, to read to him, and walk with him, and sort of jolly him along. You can have the right wing—two little bedrooms and a bath. He shall rest until he is sick of resting. He shall not marry, bury, or preach. He shall just lie around in the sun, and lounge in the hammock, and eat and sleep—and you can make him laugh."

"But Eddy—the church?"

"Oh, hang the church. Give 'em a vacation—do 'em good. The best way to make some people appreciate their religion is to take it away from 'em for a while. But anyhow, if we can't go to such extremes, and I dare say your father would object, we can get a student preacher to fill in for a month or six weeks. Best thing all the way round. I'm a member myself, and I'll go to old Jop this very day, and get things started. We'd better have it all fixed before your father comes back, for he just might have an objection or so. Now you be ready to come out with him—"

"Miriam will have to go with father. Remember—I have my own personal business to look after at home."

"Oh, is that the way of it? Well, Miriam then—anybody. And the rest of you must come out and visit very often to keep him from getting lonesome. I wonder we didn't think of this before. Why, it is just the thing all the way around. It will tickle mother to have some one around for her to make a fuss over, and your father—You see, Ginger, when he is at home, he can't rest. He lives every minute five times over, once for himself, and once for each of you girls. Oh, there are only three of you now. But there's Jenky. And when you want things he can't afford, it simply makes him sick. And when the bills come in, and he hasn't the money! Rest! How could any man rest! Get him away from it, that's the ticket."

"Oh, Eddy!" Ginger was spellbound at the depth of his understanding. "Isn't it too bad you haven't got a family of your own? Why you'd be perfectly wonderful with children—just like father."

So Eddy, with some reluctance, turned the car back from the pleasant lanes, and went into consultation with Marjory and Miss Jenkins.

"I asked Ginger to come out with her father," he said frankly, "for she looks pale and tired, and I thought the change might do her good. But she says Miriam. Ginger has affairs of her own which require her continued presence in the city—at least, she says so, though she did not take me into her confidence. At any rate, I shall make arrangements for Miriam and your father at Pay Dirt."

"And Ginger—and the rest of us—will come and visit," promised Marjory, with a sly smile for the young man. But she added, with great seriousness, "Eddy, I think you are a dear good boy. You are so sympathetic and so generous it simply isn't fair, it leads us to expect too much of human nature."

"And it will be the best thing in the world for father," interpolated Ginger proudly. "And something we can well afford—since it doesn't cost anything."

"Eddy, believe me," added Miss Jenkins almost tearfully, "you shall have your reward for the good you are doing."

"Well," he said facetiously, "I hope the reward happens to be the thing I want. The worst thing about rewards is that they are usually just what you want least."

"What do you want, especially?" demanded Ginger, her thoughts drifting to the future affluence attendant upon her home for the blind.

"Something that I dare say will disagree with me if I ever get it," he replied, laughing. "But I want it."

"Don't eat anything that will give you indigestion," she continued. "I had it after the strawberry festival. It's terrible."

Quietly then they made their plans for their father's return. Eddy promised to go that same day to Joplin Westbury, treasurer of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal church at Red Thrush, trustee, steward, and vice chairman, to ask for a month's vacation for Mr. Tolliver, to take effect the following Saturday. This would allow a full month after his return for winding up affairs in the old church before the formal dedication of the new.

When Eddy broached the subject to Joplin Westbury, that influential man acquiesced with an alacrity which rather disconcerted than pleased him. He was prepared for arguments, expostulations, complaints about expenses. Instead of this Joplin Westbury listened gravely, with his shrewd eyes reflectively narrowed, nodding his head in tacit agreement. Indeed, there was something very much akin to relief in his manner.

Only one minor detail he wished altered. Mr. Tolliver needed more than a mere four weeks of rest, he must have eight weeks—his vacation must continue until the formal dedication of the church.

"We've got things well in hand, now, and what's left can wait until we've moved over. If a little rest will do him good, a big rest will do more. And that will bring us up nearly to the fall conference, and if he is well, why, good. And if not—why, there's no harm done."

A somewhat cryptic remark, but when Eddy Jackson asked for explanation, Joplin Westbury was non-committal.

"Oh, nothing—nothing at all. But it's good to be prepared for any possible emergencies—both in the church—and out."

Joplin Westbury was as good as his word. He had the district superintendent on the long-distance telephone by nine o'clock the next morning, and upon statement of their needs, was gratified by a piece of rare good fortune. The superintendent had at his disposal a brilliant young minister, a graduate of Drew Theological seminary, who had just returned from a year's special study in England, and was even now awaiting the convening of the conference for his assignment. The practice in active ministry would be a very fine thing for him, and he could be secured at a nominal figure.

In the meantime, Mrs. Westbury had telephoned the members of the board, announcing a special meeting to be held that evening, which was a mere matter of routine to legalize the arrangement, for Joplin Westbury had already sent a telegram to Hiram Buckworth, stating the details of his proposition, and had received an acceptance that very afternoon. Hiram Buckworth promised to arrive in Red Thrush on the afternoon train, on Saturday, ready to officiate on the Sabbath, and requested them to arrange for his room and board in Red Thrush, with the parsonage family, if possible.

Joplin Westbury considered this a particularly lucky stroke, and reported his success to Eddy Jackson with great gusto. Eddy hastened to announce his progress to the girls at the parsonage.

"You see, by boarding this Buckworth chap, you can pay all of your expenses in the parsonage. Mr. Tolliver and Miriam are company at Pay Dirt, so that you can save the whole two months' salary to pay for his treatments in Chicago."

"I wish Helen were here," said Marjory. "Why, I will have to sort of—be the head of the house myself—and I am not used to having ministers around—except father. But you are quite right. We must do what we can, and we shall take Mr. Buckworth gladly. What can we charge him?"

"We are to pay him fifteen dollars a week. I think 'en of that could go for his room, and board."

"That would leave him but five dollars a week for laundry, and collections, and—"

"We can do his laundry with ours," interrupted Ginger. "And I dare say he doesn't tithes as father does—it isn't as fashionable as it used to be. And we can't run the house on less than ten a week."

"Well, ten a week then. And if he objects, we'll come down to eight. He can have father's room, with the books—Miss Jenkins, you'll have to tell him about the money, and the laundry, and everything. I simply couldn't do it."

President Hoover's announcement that Secretary Mellon has promised to remain in office until 1933 is good news. The public appreciates the willingness of Mr. Mellon, one of the two or three richest men in the world, to neglect his own business for the public business.

It requires not much intelligence to realize to what extent Mr. Mellon's work has contributed to national prosperity.

Himself a heavy taxpayer, directly or through corporation ownership, Mr. Mellon has paid off already many billions of the national debt. He continues the "pay as you go" policy, not shouldering war debts on future generations that may be less able to pay than today's prosperous generation.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, as dry as the deepest spot in Death Valley, suggests amending the Volstead act to make purchasers of liquor as guilty and criminal as bootlegging sellers.

Such an amendment, of course, would strengthen prohibition enormously. Respectable prosperity would refuse to buy, fearing jail and blackmail after buying.

But Senator Sheppard's amendment probably will not pass; many legislators are themselves bootleg customers and don't believe in taking prohibition too seriously.
