

NATIONAL GUARD MOBILIZED

West Texas Editors Choose Big Spring For 1932 Meeting

Well, the West Texas press gang voted unanimously to come to Big Spring next year.

First thing Charlie Guy, the new president, said after being elected was "we're going to get a record crowd for Big Spring."

Some very interesting round-a-bite discussions were held during the convention in Lubbock and the folks up there, who have been past masters at entertaining conventions, performed in characteristic style. Everybody went away with a more friendly feeling for Lubbock.

A lot of people can't see much use in conventions. We have found them a lot like some other things in that you get out of them just what you put into them. There's always a gang of course, but comes for the social features only and dodge business sessions.

But when a delegate hops in and takes part in the business of the meeting he invariably will gather some things that will benefit him. A fellow gets a renewed interest in his own work and gathers greater determination to attack his own problems energetically after swapping experiences and ideas with men in the same line of endeavor.

Conventions benefit a city greatly in several respects. First, convention goers spend money. Second, the town gets a chance to make friends by showing the visitors real hospitality.

They tend to prevent any community from becoming provincial. Infusion of new people for a few days affords opportunity for learning how things are being done elsewhere and the visitors learn how you're doing things in your own town.

China built a wall around itself and has suffered through the centuries, her development restrained because she had no opportunity of comparing with other peoples. She became stagnant, and went backward instead of forward.

Communities suffer similarly when they fail to associate with people of other communities.

El Paso, the other contestant for the 1932 West Texas Press Association convention, was in the expressed opinion of many delegates "just too far away." But, Dorrance Roderick had hard luck, had to leave for New York and couldn't attend. El Paso shot 300-word telegram to the convention, making a lot of strong arguments to substantiate her claim for the session.

Along about dusk Friday we got a telephone call from home. It was Cal Boykin. "Need any help?" he asked. "Sure, come on up," we replied. And old Cal with M. W. Sprinkle, of the Crawford Coffee shop, stepped in a car and landed on the scene about 10 o'clock.

We appreciated Calvin's interest and his aggressiveness. The newspaper boys did too. And, therefore, to make the Crawford convention headquarters next year. This practice instituted in most all cities with more than one modern hotel suited for conventions will be used here. At Lubbock they sort of take time about designating the Hilton and the Hotel Lubbock as convention headquarters. Of course, the delegates split up and one hotel has about as many delegates as guests as the other, and

New Constitution Adopted, Odessa Man Becomes Vice-President

LUBBOCK, Aug. 15 (AP)—The West Texas Press Association selected Big Spring as the 1932 convention city at conclusion of its annual convention here today.

At the closing session Charles A. Guy, publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche and Journal, was elected president. He formerly was vice-president.

Ralph Shiffner, Odessa, was made vice-president and Miss Trena Miller, Rotan, secretary-treasurer. Miss Miller had been serving two months' by appointment to an unexpired term.

W. S. Cooper, Colorado, the retiring president, automatically became a member of the board of directors under terms of a new constitution and by-laws adopted Friday at the opening session.

Members of the board of directors selected were: Max Hartley, Abilene, and Luther M. Watson, Sweetwater, a three-year term; Wendell Bedichek, Big Spring, and W. W. Whipple, Colorado, two-year terms; J. C. Smyth, Snyder, one-year term.

The association voted to ask the Heart of Texas Press Association and the Panhandle-Plains Press Association to join it in an amalgamation to form a new organization to be known as the West Texas Press Association, which would have as its territory the same area covered in the activities of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The convention was closed with the annual golf tournament, in which editors competed for the Bill Parker trophy, offered annually by Will Parker of the Olmstead-Kirk Paper Company.

Resolutions adopted at the closing session memorialized the late Herbert Quinn, formerly publisher of the Avalanche and Journal here, who perished in the sand which 75 miles of the city several months ago after he became lost while going for aid to get an automobile out of a sand bed.

A feature of the convention, which was not as heavily attended as usual but produced what many veteran members declared were some very helpful discussions, was the banquet given at the Hotel Lubbock Friday evening by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. A luncheon Friday was tendered by the Avalanche and Journal at the Hilton Hotel.

The editors used most of the Friday afternoon session in a general discussion of methods they had used to meet existing business conditions.

Among the speakers were Gene Howe, Amarillo; News-Globe, known as "The Tactless Texan"; Marvin Smith, Farmersville; and Joe Kempton, Dallas, representing the executive committee of the Texas Press Association; Colonel R. H. Mackay, Albany; The Sage of the Shackles, Hill; and Mary Jerry Clements, Lubbock.

Indications were Saturday that preliminary hearing for Louis Whisenand, 22, charged in connection with the death of Policeman H. F. Howie, August 10, would be held near mid-week. ### Stribling Makes Short Stop Here Enroute To California

W. L. "Young" Stribling, ranking heavyweight boxer of the south, stopped here Saturday morning for twenty minutes enroute to Los Angeles, California, for a two weeks' vacation. He was accompanied by Mrs. Stribling.

Apparently fully recovered from the first knock out he ever received in a ring, and at the hands of Max Schmeling, Stribling appeared fresh and in good shape. He stood nearly six feet tall, and a reporter he weighed 194, and was extremely modest. His wife, who stayed in the back ground as much as possible, was smartly clad, very attractive and friendly.

The Striblings were apparently unopposed by a deluge of publicity and did not try to shun the crowd. Immediately on alighting from the plane Stribling, took his wife by the arm and started in search of something to drink and eat. He was directed to the airport terminal where he spied some sandwiches.

"Good old cheese," said Stribling, rubbing his hands together and smiling. His wife laughed and joined in with the group of American Airway passengers in getting a sandwich. Stribling munched his finger in opening a "pop" box and after rubbing it a minute he began looking around for the kind of drink he wanted. Finally taking one he addressed the reporter, "Now, what kind will you have?"

"What do you plan to do now?" he was asked.

"Well, I don't know anything definite yet. But I think I'll box again."

"I don't have anything signed up yet, but I'll probably box either Mickey Walker or Carnera this winter in Florida," he said. "I am in pretty good shape now and haven't any surplus fat. I think maybe I'll go into training about October the first, but I don't know where yet. That all depends on where the bout will be staged."

When asked if it would take much work to whip back into condition he said, "No, I don't think so. I'm not over weight—about 186 pounds—and feel fine. All I'll need is to work up my wind. No, I won't take a whole lot of road work."

Schmeling has gone home and

Ritz Announces "Ten Cents A Dance" As Hit Of Week

Show Based On Popular Dance Tune

Barbara Stanwyck Plays Unusual Role In Characterization

Every veteran of the entertainment world knows that atmosphere, an elusive something which gives a production background, color and the quality of being convincing, is essential to the success of a motion picture. It is the spark that has given life and reality to most of the dramatic offerings of great producers. This element is not injected into a picture by accident. It is carefully planned from the very beginning.

The settings are naturally the first requisite. Then comes the selection of types that are in keeping with the background and the story development. Ever since the advent of talking pictures, the blending of rhythmic scenes and action with the other atmospheric details has been given painstaking attention.

An illustration of this way atmosphere has been blended with sound and action is Lionel Barrymore's direction of the Columbia picture, "Ten Cents A Dance," featuring Barbara Stanwyck, which will be seen at the Ritz theater for 3 days starting today.

The important sequences occur in a dance pavilion, in order to convey the joy crazed restlessness of the characters, their desire for dancing lights, for jazz music, for the intoxicating embrace of the dance, a large crystal ball is used to gain an unusual effect.

This brilliant globe of light revolves incessantly, its reflections shimmering with the same rhythmic syncopation as the insistent notes of the tantalizing saxophones. And the characters are swept part in a wild procession. . . . a bacchanalia of light and music. The entire story has been told with the use of varying rhythms to express the moods of the characters.

This Columbia picture, was based upon the popular song "Ten Cents A Dance."

New 'It' Girl Plays Opposite Dick Arlen In Ritz Performance

Paramount presents a new dramatic "film" of the showing, beginning Friday next, at the Ritz, "The Secret Call." Action-packed thrill-drama of modern city life.

Her name is Peggy Shannon. A few years ago she was just a beautiful girl, living with her family in Pine Bluff, Arkansas. Today she is a beautiful girl with an equipment of rich experience in stage work in stock companies and on Broadway.

Miss Shannon got the "stage bug" several years ago when she was in New York on a visit with her mother and her sister. The girl in an adjoining apartment, who was to show business, took her backstage one day to meet Florenz Ziegfeld, impresario beauty, the famous producer offered her a part in his next show. She accepted.

Called as "Pinch-Hitter" — This began her career. She was in Earl Carroll's "Yankees" and later played in stock companies from Brooklyn to Buffalo. Followed a season of legitimate stage work on Broadway. It was while she was playing opposite Ernest Truax in "Cops" that she was offered a contract with Paramount.

A short time after she accepted this bid, Clara Bow was taken sick. It became necessary to fill her part in "The Secret Call," on short notice. Miss Shannon was rushed into the work of production. "The Secret Call" is based on an original story by William C. Dietrich. It concerns the lives of prominent personalities in a series of political intrigues.

Called as "Pinch-Hitter" — Miss Shannon is the daughter of a politician who is made to be the "goat" in a primary election campaign to save the honor of the "machine" which runs the town. The big boss of the "machine" causes her father's disgrace and death. She had been in love with Richard Arlen, son of the big boss, but when she learns how this reptilian man had brought about her father's death, she swears vengeance upon the whole family.

In order to make a living she is forced to work as a telephone operator in one of the big hotels of the city.

As an operator she becomes the confidante of newspapermen and politicians. It is not long before she learns enough "inside dope" on the activities of the big boss to pull his whole "machine" into general disrepute with the voters.

Arlen Tries to Regain Love — Meanwhile Arlen, who is ignorant of the shady operations of his father, and who knows nothing of the scandal which Peggy could tell, loses if she so desired, tries to win back his love.

The final scenes bring all these vibrant forces of drama together in a highly absorbing climax—tempered with a romantic re-union of the lovers.

TO RECEIVE DEGREE — Among those who will be awarded certificates and degrees by Sul Ross State Teachers College, At PMS, the evening of August 22 is Mrs. Chastance McIntire, Big Spring, and Myrtle Oregon, Westbrook.

Max Ada Ramsey left yesterday for a two weeks' visit in Kerrville with her daughter who lives there.

Comedy Team Is On In Queen Hit Gary Cooper To Be Star At Ritz

The editor of the Weekly Chronicle—the mayor—the town band—Meta Oliver who clings tenaciously to her old-fashioned geraniums, her starched sunbonnets, and her mid-Victorian ideals—Phil the village drummer—Mrs. Joe Boyd of the unsurpassed plum preserves and the garden planted in bachelor buttons and straw flowers—members of the Ladies Aid—the home grown Italian princess—and many other delightful people appear in "Misbehaving Ladies," the first National picture which comes to the Queen Theatre Wednesday.

The picture presents a small American town of a decade ago in tenderly amusing retrospect. It is like a visit back home, to those of us who played marbles, went to Sunday school, had our first love affair, and spoke our first piece in a little town, says William Baundine, director of the picture.

Louise Fazenda, who has made a specialty of quaint characters and who has first-hand information on the subject from her early years in a small Indiana town, declares that folks are essentially the same the world over. "Ice skating may be the popular thing in Vermont while people are swimming in the water off Florida, but the differences are mainly geographical. Small-town life," Miss Fazenda says, "leaves one with a lasting interest in people. I suppose I'll always be a small-town at heart. It is even now, after years in Hollywood, I'm given to neighborly visits and swapping recipes over the back fence. And I wonder if this knowing everyone else's little affairs is such a bad thing after all. The fact that you know everyone in town is interesting in your every move, may inspire you to put your best foot forward. I think small-town life begets confidence in oneself. John Smith looks around and decides that he's far better in his line than anyone else in town, and tries his skill in broader fields."

Billie Dove Is Opposite Con Tearle

"The Lady Who Dared" Features Smartly Clad, Beautiful Star

Billie Dove has been recognized wherever motion pictures are shown as one of the best dressed women in motion pictures, or out of them, for that matter.

In "The Lady Who Dared," her latest First National and Vitaphone starring vehicle, which comes to the Queen theater on Monday and Tuesday, Miss Dove wears only five changes of gowns, but every woman who sees the picture will at once recognize that they are the last word in smartness of style. Although she has an expert who designs her clothes, she always gives him her ideas on the costume to be created before he makes the sketch.

"I feel," she says, "that in my personal wardrobe as well as the clothes I wear in pictures, I have evolved a style of my own, which, while it may be unsuitable for other women, has certainly satisfied me far better than stereotyped costumes. Few women can really wear the same type of clothes. Irene Castle told me once that she could look her best only in very short-waisted gowns, which would assuredly be funny on me. Nowadays there is much ado about long and short skirts—as if it mattered. The main thing is for a woman to wear what best suits her build, height and personality.

"Of course, a tall, attenuated woman should never wear abbreviated skirts, lest she appear like a guinea pig against the National Highway—nor should a petite miss affect trailing gowns, like the child of no more than sixteen, whom I saw recently in a theater, literally smothered in trailing folds of pink chiffon, much to the irritation of the onlookers, and the girl usher. The length of skirts will always vary, but the sensible woman will habitually wear what her mirror

In South America there are many magnificently gowned women at the opera and the theater, but all in all, the women of no nation are more universally smart and tasteful in their costuming than Americans.

Brave Buck Jones Gets Lady Sky In "Fighting Sheriff"

Real he-men movie heroes, who glory in giving daring exhibitions of fine horsemanship and what not, invariably win the approbation of lady picture fans, whether they be timid little school teachers from Keokuk, Iowa, or New York society debs. Naturally, part of the fascination of these dare-devils is due to their unconcerned disregard of danger, but there is another element that enhances their attraction: their diffidence in the presence of members of the fair sex. It's a curious thing, but invariably true—the holder the man, the shyder he is with the ladies, and, while not all ladies like this, a good percentage of them do.

Thus when Bob, the good-looking sheriff of "The Fighting Sheriff," Columbia's new Western which comes to the Queen Theaters Friday, gets all hot and bothered in the presence of his pretty sweet-heart, Mrs. in this picture he is running true to form. Bob is brave enough to leap a ten-foot chasm on horseback without turning a hair, or to face a whole score of desperate bandits single-handed, but he cannot summon sufficient courage to ask the girl he loves to marry him. The upshot is that she has to do the heavy work of the courtship herself, by flirting with another man to make Bob jealous. Which is absolutely true to life, as any woman with a knowledge of men of Bob's type will tell you.

"Many Thousands Gone" By JOHN PEALE BISHOP (Chas. Scribner's Son)

This book has for its title the story which won $5,000 in a Scribner contest. A story worth that much money would be worth the hour it takes to read it, for curiosity's sake, if not for art.

It is a cross section of the Civil War as a cross section of a southern village occupied on a Sunday morning by Northern troops. One could easily imagine that few old southern veterans could bear to read it; but the young ones, who have achieved detachment will be stirred as much by its ardency as by the emotion it evokes.

The author is a young man who is not ashamed to write of the country and time he knows best and feels the most. That it is a delectable subject does not phase him.

Like Etchings
The stories have the sharpness of etchings and very much the same two-line dimensions. The characters are alive enough, against the background of war and pillage and rape, but we see them like transient people. Reading the book is like looking at a country from train windows, bits of this and that, unforgettable in some cases. One has the feeling that even after one has gone by they will be doing the same things.

This is not a criticism of the writer, so much as a comment. There are people who like etchings and people who do not.

This is primarily a writer's book. How well the author has escaped the hazards of war for him, only another writer knows. Readers who are tired of the sentimentality which obscures the minds of many who write or even think, about the Civil War, will find the stories equally refreshing.

Mr. Huxton is another of those authors we advise you to watch.

PRICES DIP TO A LOWER LEVEL

There is a decided trend in prices to a return to normalcy. But these prices do not by any manner of means infer that the quality of our merchandise has been lowered. In fact, one may judge that if anything, values now are greater than ever before. Nationally advertised merchandise can only mean one thing... a definite background against which the buying public can see that they are being offered the best the markets afford, at prices that conform themselves to the present day standard of the dollar's buying power.

With the coming of the new Fall season we continue our policy of offering our patrons the very best that can be obtained, thus assuring them of Quality, Style, and Value, and at prices attuned to the present days purchasing ratio, which is lower now than ever before. So forget former prices. They are a thing of the past, yet quality, style and value remain unchanged.

Oats and the Barber

A LITTLE incident that happened in Tiffin, O., the other day furnished a revealing insight on the plight of the farmer.

A farmer living near Tiffin wanted a shave and a haircut. A barber in the town happened to want some oats for his chickens. So he agreed to shave the farmer and take his oats.

But it took the farmer four bushels of grain to pay for his shave and haircut—and even then he had to add three cents in cash to make it come out right.

When the price of grain is down
so low that it takes four bushels to get a farmer through a barber shop, it is rather obvious that the farmer is in a tough spot.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Stopping the Mob

Brownwood Bulletin
BAYONETS as a preventive of lynching seem to have their good points in at least some instances.

They stopped a lynching party up in Springfield, Tennessee, the other evening, when national guardsmen stubbornly refused to permit a mob of five thousand infuriated persons to seize a man who had shot and seriously wounded the county sheriff.

The prisoner was removed later
to another county, so that the mob spirit could evaporate, and in due time he probably will be given an orderly trial.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for mobs to "overpower" officers guarding persons accused of serious crimes, and that is one of the good signs of the times. It is of interest to note that while the attempted lynching was in progress at Springfield, there was in session at Chattanooga, not far distant, a convention of the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching.

whose purpose is to suggest uniform legislation for all the states to curb the mob evil. The drafting of effective anti-lynching laws will be undertaken by the commission, and the product of its labors then will be offered to the various states
for study and adoption.

Lynching is a most serious offense, but even in Texas there isn't much that can legally be done about it. In the few instances in which alleged lynchings have been brought to trial in this state they have been charged with arson or assault or some similar offense, because the statutes seem not clearly to define the offense of lynching or of participation in mob disorders leading to lynching. Amended legislation to clear up this situation should be undertaken in the next legislature, to facilitate the punishment of persons who participate in mob actions of all kinds. Sheriffs and other peace officers need the protection and assistance of more adequate laws when they dare stand before mobs of infuriated citizens and discharge their duty of protecting detestable criminals whose offenses
have aroused the passions of the people.

HEART DISEASE
In the United States heart disease is responsible for more than 175,000 deaths annually, killing more men and women than tuberculosis, pneumonia or cancer.

Approximately one out of every seven deaths is due to this condition, and heart disease deaths are on the increase.

Heart disease also is responsible for a great deal of disability. It is estimated that two out of every 100 persons in the United States have
heart disease.

In the world war draft examinations three out of every 100 men examined had some form of heart disease.

It is calculated that 200,000 children of school age in the United States have defective hearts.

The death rate for heart disease
is greater for men than for women, though between the ages of 5 and 35 the rate is slightly higher for females.

City population has a higher heart disease mortality rate than rural. Negroes have a higher death rate than white.

The causes of heart disease are numerous. Foremost are acute and chronic infectious diseases, particularly rheumatic fever and syphilis, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

Contributing to the causes are intoxicants and poisons of various sorts, bad personal hygiene and improper living methods.

Control of heart disease is indicated in part by its causes.

Common symptoms are shortness of breath following exertion,
formerly made with ease, undue weariness, pains about the heart or in the left arm, tightness in the chest, palpitation and irregular or rapid heart beat, swelling of the feet and legs, cough and occasional blood spitting.

Appearance of any of these symptoms does not necessarily establish the existence of heart disease, but should lead one to secure a careful medical examination.

...and Nelly Bealaise took the diamonds from her neck. "They never bring me luck, Lorena. Nor the pearls either. I'll wear the sapphires again."

Delphine had helped her father
choose the sapphires in Paris.
Somehow Nelly Bealaise could not remember Delphine as she looked after her marriage. Somehow she saw her only as she was that summer in Paris, or coming down the curved stair yonder as a bride.

The sapphires were perfect. Lorena fastened the necklace, clasped
the earrings in the pierced ears,
held out the tray of the silver jewel casket that the small veined hands might choose their rings.

Nelly Bealaise rose at last in the full ivory satin gown that fell about her feet, the sun-ankle and small pearl slipper glimped and veiled again. Lorena sprayed perfume on the jeweled hands. Proudly Lorena watched her descend the stair.

Kirk Stanard met his grandmother in the hall. He was not unlike her. Brown hair graying at 30, the same fine blue eyes and slightly aquiline profile, her smile
they went into the drawing room
his arm about her. Two men rose.
One was a portly person with a frown carved between black brows,
a man of perhaps 50. Kirk Stanard presented him.

"Senor Basara. Mother. You remember meeting Senor Basara in Mexico City? We went to a ball at his home."

"Yes, ma'am," agreed Lorena,
who really understood. Her mistress had not changed for Lorena in these 30 years of company. Lorena stood back now, contemplating the rubies on her lady's breast.

Mrs. Bealaise shook her head, fumbled nervously with her godwinnetts. She was always deliciously nervous on the evenings she played roulette. It was the nearest thing she had felt to youth in 40 years.

"Rubies look common," she said,
"since they have learned to reconstruct them. Genuine pigeon-blood these are—Take them off. Try the diamonds. I never know what a new dress will like best."

Lorena held the links of platinum-cupped light tentatively about her mistress' neck. "You look like a white angel, Mrs. Bealaise!" Nelly Bealaise thought of the first time she had worn them, of the sensation they had caused. Thirty one years ago at the old French Opera House, Delphine, her daughter—was a bride. She had grieved over Delphine's leaving, and Arch-Bealaise had sought to comfort her with these. He had spent his inheritance on gems for her. Sometimes she had scolded him. "But these are investments, Nelly," he would say.

Senor Basara was kissing the fragrant hand, Nelly Bealaise remembered. She remembered when Kirk spoke of Senor Basara's house.

"The senor has just returned from a trip around the world," Kirk explained. "He has only this evening in New Orleans, but he is sharing it with us and with his consul."

Senor Basara smiled. His frown did not disappear even when he smiled.

Ah, and there was Adrian Fouche
who had introduced her to roulette
and made life a different thing!
Adrian with his youth, his black soft eyes and languid grace, bent his dark head over the hand of Nelly Bealaise. Even to her he must make his murmurs significant, as if touched with love.

"I hope you have luck tonight."
"Ah, but I shall. I am wearing the sapphires."
"Pompey, the old colored butler, draw back the portieres. Mrs. Bealaise put her hand through Senor Basara's arm and led the way to the dining room."

"Tell me about this roulette," Basara begged. "Have you just discovered it?"
"A month ago," Mrs. Bealaise answered. "Adrian the naughty boy has known the place a long time."
"It was no resort for you, glorious one—before the days of Little Buttercup and her magic touch."
"Touch is not bad," laughed
Kirk. "All the same, I miss Little Buttercup. She used to beguile me while Mother played."

"Do you not play yourself?"
Basara asked.
Kirk shook his head. "I am a cotton man. Senor. Gambling is no recreation. I get my fun watching Mother. She's happier in Divitt's than at the races."

"And roulette lasts all year," said Nelly. "Senor Basara, won't you join us tonight?"
"But there is my boat, and my call on my consul—and if Little Buttercup is gone—"

Adrian lifted a slender hand.
"You should see Little Buttecup successor. Such eyes! Such a body.
But me, she does not notice. I say to her, 'Beharita, I have a wager what your lips are like.' You see she wears a veil."

"A veil?" Basara was all interest. "Where is this place?"
"The old Crouselle house," Nelly informed him.

"Ah, yes! That beautiful home.
And this lovely decoy is covered with a veil."
"Not covered," Adrian assured
him. "Only the lips, the nose. Tran-quilizing. I ask her to lift the veil.
She does not even glance at me,
but hurries by."
"Perhaps she didn't understand,"
said Nelly.

"That is it. And she seemed afraid. But the next night she is different. She carries her cigarette like in a dream. She looks at me calmly. And so the next night
the next. She has found Americaines are not so terrifying. Only she is silent. French, Spanish, English, we try them all. She does not understand."

"I approach Divitt about her.
But unfortunately I spoke to him
once about Buttercup, and she is his wife." Adrian sighed. "He has not liked me since. Little Buttecup is not gone. She sits in the sage taking in cash. She says instead one escaped from a harem,
and I must speak to her in Turkish."

"And of course you can not romanticize Basara."
Against the graceful lift of Adrian's hand. "But wait! Eric Ledbetter, who spent five years in Turkey,
has promised to be there tonight."
"He will talk to her in her own tongue. He will give her my invitation."

Kirk knew Eric Ledbetter. He had an engaging wit and he spent money with a certain negligence. Adrian would bet he became a caretaker.

"I know what you are thinking," Adrian said. "It is true that Eric is successful with women."

"Not with me," Nelly remarked.
"I think he's awful."
"It is his audacity that intrigues
the indeliberating," he observed.
"He knows a little trick for lifting veils. He promises to show me the lady's face. It will be worth seeing, Senor Basara. Let us drop us at the consul's on the way. You can join us later."
"I may miss my boat," Basara answered, smiling, "but I shall join you."

Leader Like Murray Needed To Get More For Heifer and Pullet Production, Declares Will Rogers

By WILL ROGERS
All I know is just what I read in the papers, and I haven't had much time to peruse the prints here lately. Being a Governor, Alfalfa Bill's staff means action. These Wars of his were coming so fast there were swells that they were over-lapping. We finished licking Texas over the Free Bridge late one afternoon and before dark that same night why Bill had one matched with the Big Oil People. And he told me that that was nothing to what he had in view for the future.

You know no one in Oklahoma or anybody else's State we haven't had a fighting Governor for years. Most of em have just been plain old every day Politicians that didn't look for any more excitement than the next election. But with Bill it's different. He knows Oil isn't what it ought to be, and so he just loaded up his old Musket and started out to put it on a paying basis.

The Standard Oil and all those big fellows ain't monkeying now with Injunctions, and Habus Corporations, and all that old Hooley; they are up against bullets now. Us Oklahomaans don't mess with all the ordinary procedure; we go about it our own way. If Bill gets away with this, why it will be the road to a lot of industries loading up and trying to get $1.25 a bottle for Peppermint, or 75 cents per gall for Sloans antiseptic mouth wash. I would like to see the old Butler and Eggen men go out for a higher revenue on the output of the Heifer and Pullet. Trouble is there ain't any of these that have got another Bill Murray. You got to have Leaders, and Bill ain't enough to go round. Just our own industries alone is going to keep us boys in the Trenches till Xmas.

Bernard Shaw and Nancy Astor, two of my old London friends, been to Russia and got back a couple of weeks ago. Shaw was so impressed that he couldn't tell the Reporters a thing. (Free), he was waiting till he could get home and write it himself. (I have done that same thing many a time.) Bernard and Astor and Calvin got to live in our "Cracks" wise or otherwise, and we can't be handing out a lot of information on where we have been and what we have seen.

Shaw seems to have got over mighty big up there. He has always kinder pulled for em, and it was a great thing for their country when they landed him to come up. And taking Lady Astor and her. Her husband, who have a lot of money, and favorably impressing them, why that was a big job. Cause if Nancy don't think its working why she will sure beat it out. There is none of the fourflusher in her; she is the plainest spoken Woman you ever saw.

Bernard told em if he was a young man he would stick with em. That was a mighty pretty compliment; it didn't bind him to anything. He was always old so he didn't have to stick by it, so he can go back to London to all his luxury and don't have to worry about the five year plan only from a distance. I been reading a lot of books on that thing and it sounds so big it almost scares you; a whole Nation of 150 million people all working, no profit, no board of Directors, no Dividends, No Wall Street to support.

Just think for a minute what would be the profits on products in this Country, if there was no Grain or Produce Exchanges or Wall Street to provide for. Look what a Farmer would get if he got all that the consumer payed. Then all the Big Industries being run with no profit, turning everything out at cost. Their own steel mills, their own Ore mines, Ower water power, and an unlimited supply of coal, Wood, the greatest Forests in the World, all productive. No Dealers. You see they are playing with the biggest natural resource fountain in the World.

If Italy started the same thing it wouldn't mean so much for they could work as hard but they wouldn't have to buy raw materials from other Countries. But these folks have everything that any other Nation has only more of it. Now they are buying brains, people to show em how to get all this organized. We have thousands of trained men over there, working to show them how to work with different machines. Now when they learn they want leave us any corner on it, for No Nation has a monopoly on brains. The thing sure is worth watching for just the idea of everybody working and producing something is going to have colossal effects.

What we produce, and there is only about one third of us producing anything. The two thirds are living off the one third, and then we got more than we can sell. So just imagine what price they will be able to sell stuff for. No, you can't laugh em off, they sure got some weird ideas, and things that a people like ours would never see in the world tolerate. But they have got some ideas that if carried out properly is bound to make the world do some changing in this unusual division of wealth.

For that whails the matter with us. No Country ever had, more and no country ever had less. Ten men in our Country could buy the World, and ten million can't buy enough to eat. So the salvation of all that might come out of these Cuckoo Russians. If it does, it will have paid for itself whether the whole five year plan works or not. So we ain't going to get nowhere cussing em. We better watch em, and if they got anything

Donley County C. of C. To Market Cantaloupes Crops By Carloads

CLARENDON, Texas, Aug. 15 (AP)—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been called on to help find a market for the Donley county cantaloupe crop. This county is so situated that it can supply cantaloupes at a time when no other district can meet market demands, according to G. L. Boykin, secretary of the chamber of commerce. The early season melons come from the Rio Grande Valley, and what is known as the second crop from the vicinity of Decatur, Boykin said. Clarendon, then, is in a position to supply the market before the Colorado crop comes on, he said. Chicago buyers have agreed to enter the field if they can obtain melons in carload lots. An increase in the crop is seen for next year on the strength of this offer.

TIRE VALUES versus TIRE DEFINITIONS

WE KNOW that car owners are interested in real TIRE VALUES, but are not particularly interested in tire definitions which manufacturers and distributors of special-brand mail-order tires had the National Better Business Bureau adopt that they could use to their advantage in their advertising.

When the National Better Business Bureau realized that the public was being misled—and an attempt was being made to keep the truth about real tire values from car owners, they issued a bulletin July 10th which in substance restricted their sponsorship of tire definitions.

Firestone extra values are the result of great savings in buying—great savings in efficient and economical manufacturing and distributing, plus the patented process of Gum-Dipping—the patented two extra cord plies under the tread—and a more efficient non-skid tread, which makes them safer than any other tire.

We have sections cut from Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires and Special-Brand Mail-Order Tires, and invite you to come in and judge for yourself the extra values we give you—values that you can see and understand instead of "definitions." Then we know you too will buy Firestone Tires as thousands of other car owners have done to the extent that during May, June and July they bought more Firestone Tires than during any like period in history—Drive in today!

FARMER DISPLAYS FOWL WITH THREE GOOD LEGS CHILDRESS, Texas, Aug. 15 (UP)—James Henry Rule is displaying a chicken with three legs which was hatched several days ago by a hen in his flock. The chick, a brown Leghorn bantam, appears to be normal in every respect excepting for the third appendage. The third leg is slightly shorter than the other two and appears useless for walking. However, Rule says it may come in handy later for scratching.

MAY LOCATE FISH HATCHERY SITES IN CONCHO VALLEYS SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 15 (UP)—Inspection of suggested fish hatchery sites in the Concho River valleys will be made soon by the superintendent of the federal fish hatchery at San Marcos. It has been announced by Lewis Radcliff, acting commissioner of the bureau of fisheries at Washington. Location of a $35,000 fish hatchery near San Angelo may be the outcome of the inspection, according to Culberson Deal, manager of the San Angelo board of city development. Congress appropriated money for a West Texas hatchery in 1929; the hatchery to be installed in 1931. The San Marcos hatchery is the only federal one in the state, although there are seven state hatcheries, one located here.

POLITENESS USED BY WACO COPS TO SOLVE TRAFFIC SITUATIONS WACO, Texas, Aug. 15 (UP)—Politeness is the new oil with which Waco police hope to lubricate the wheels of traffic. Policemen of the city have been supplied with cards which courteously inform a motorist that his car is parked improperly and inform him in what particular he has erred. "This notice," it reads, "is not a summons and does not require your appearance in court. However, a second offense will result in a summons. We ask cooperation."

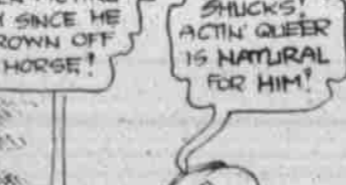

PLANS BEING MADE TO SAVE GOODNIGHT BUFFALOES, RANCH AUSTIN, Aug. 15 (UP)—West Texans here today took steps to aid the state in saving the state's last herd of Buffalo on the Goodnight Ranch near Canyon. Fred L. Haskett, West Texas newspaper man, called a meeting of West Texas and state officials, to be held at Goodnight in the Farhuddle Sept. 7, to make plans to buy the 11,600 Goodnight ranch. The legislature has authorized the state game commission to condemn and purchase the herd of 225 buffalo. They were to be slaughtered in the fall before sale of the ranch to new owners. Haskett said West Texans want to buy the ranch where the late Colonel Chas. Goodnight started and developed the herd, and present it to the state as the preserve for the herd's perpetual stamping grounds. Governor Ross Sterling has been invited to attend the meeting at Goodnight. Lieutenant Governor Edgar Witt told Haskett he would attend if he could. Gene Rowe, editor of the Amarillo News-Globe, is working with Haskett in planning the meeting. Members of the legislature and the game commission will be asked to attend. The pen with which Governor Sterling signs the buffalo conservation bill will be given to the Panhandle Historical Society at Canyon, Haskett said. Rev. Joe Jeffres, evangelist, and Dr. J. W. Cox, of Jonesboro, Ark., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Fyeatt.

Al Simmons Takes Lead From Ruth

Grove Heads Pitchers of American League Circuit

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (SP)—Al Simmons crowded himself into the individual batting leadership of the American league during the past week, giving Connie Mack's Athletics control of everything except the team batting averages, according to semi-official averages which include Thursday's games.

Big Al hammered the baseball as an even 500 clip to bring his mark to 288, eight points higher than that of Babe Ruth, who lost four points during the week and was second with 280. The A's already owned the pitching honors, what with the accomplishments of Bob Grove, George Earnshaw, Rube Walberg and Lefty Mahaffey, as well as the team fielding leadership, which they have held since the beginning of the campaign.

Simmons also led in hits with 174, total bases, of which he had 292 to take the lead from Lou Gehrig, and triples, with 13. Gehrig held three leaderships, with 30 homers, 113 runs and 121 runs batted in. Earl Webb of Boston failed to hit any doubles, but his 51 was safe for second last week, while Ben Chapman's 44 stolen bases was just about out of reach.

Other leading regulars following Simmons and Ruth were: Webb, Boston, 363; Morgan, Cleveland, 362; West, Washington, 357; Cochran, Philadelphia, 345; Gehrig, New York, 340; Goslin, St. Louis, 339; Averill, Cleveland, 327; Haas, Philadelphia, 326; Alexander, Detroit, 325.

New York and Cleveland each lost a point in team batting and remained tied with 295. Washington, which also was involved in the tie last week, dropped three points to 293. Philadelphia's team fielding effort was good for 577, a point off from last week, with the Senators second at 575. The St. Louis Browns were far out in front in double plays with 123, Philadelphia coming second with 105.

Bob Grove continued to edge closer to a collection of 30 victories, gaining one decision for a record of 23 triumphs and two defeats. Walberg won another and went into a tie with Earnshaw, who lost two games, at 17 victories and 7 defeats. Fred Marberry of Washington ranked next to Grove with 13 victories and two defeats. Earnshaw continued to lead in strikeouts, his mark of 135 in 33 games shading Grove's collection of 121 in 31 contests.

Thirty-Four Candidates To Report To Sweetwater Mentor Monday

SWEETWATER, Aug. 15.—Thirty-four gridiron warriors, averaging more than 161 pounds and overflowing with energy to bring Sweetwater its first football championship, are to report to Coach E. A. Hennig next Monday to start a season that beyond a doubt will carry the Mustang farther than ever before in quest of glimick laurels.

Coach Hennig, the former University of Illinois star who now is attending the Wade-Phelan coaching school at Lubbock, will put the best-conditioned eleven in the district on the field by the time of the first game. Such a remark is no boast, but a result of the training, which started last spring when football practice was held at the high school field. During the summer months the boys have kept in trim playing baseball, the high school boys taking first honors during the initial half of the city league here.

A couple of pre-season non-conference games have been arranged, one of which will serve to the rest of the state any warning that may be necessary. The first is with Snyder, at Sweetwater, on Sept. 27. The next, with Abilene, here, on Oct. 3, should give the fans somewhat of an idea as to what to expect of the Mustangs when the time for conference games roll around.

Subetwater is out of the Oil Belt district this year, being paired with McKinney, Midland, Big Spring, Colorado and San Angelo, in a newly created district. Sweetwater fans realize that the Mustangs could lose to the Abilene Eagles in the pre-season game, then progress to win this district and be able to win over Abilene, should the Eagles take the flag in that division of the Texas intercollegiate league.

Gross weight of the 34 who are to report next week is 5,484 pounds, though it is not known what new aspirants may stray into the Mustang corral after that time to bolster the average of more than 161 pounds to the man.

Capitaining the team this season is Bob Brooks, who plays the pivot position and is one of the seven returning letter men. Though the number of experienced players may seem small, last year's eleven was almost a freshman team and most of those who played through the first season here.

Of the 24 squadmen, eight are backs, seven are ends, two are centers, nine are guards and eight are linemen in control with 27 passes in 283 innings. However, the best pitching average goes to Whitlow John Wyatt of Beaumont who has a percentage of .87 to an average of .82 for Dick McCabe of Fort Worth.

Cory Selph of Houston continues to pace the league in runs scored with an even hundred. Joyner White of Beaumont is Selph's only rival with 93.

Not only does Buck Stanton lead the league in hitting, but he is in front in number of hits with 177. Stantons in San Antonio is second with 163. Stanton also leads in doubles with 56. "Duck" McDuck of Houston is second with 33.

Lowly Reds Take Honors In National

Seventh In Batting, Team Members Push Leaders

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (SP)—Although they are eighth in the batting list, the Cincinnati Reds are giving the more highly rated teams of the National League a real battle for some of the circuit's individual batting honors.

The Reds and the Chicago Cubs each have three batters among the first ten "regulars" in the semi-official average list which includes last Thursday's games. Philadelphia still has the first and second men on the list, Virgil Davis and Chuck Klein, while New York and Brooklyn complete the list with one man each.

Two St. Louis batters just miss places; neither Bottomley nor Rootger, has played often enough to be classed as "regular."

The race for the topmost honors between the two Philles is almost unchanged. Davis has the higher average, .352 to Klein's .345, but the second place batter has most of the slugging honors, leading in three departments with 95 runs, 25 homers and 90 runs batted in.

Third place among the regulars goes to Bill Terry of New York, with an average of .343. Then come Grinn, Chicago, .339; Cuyler and Hornsby, Chicago, at .334; Stripp, Cincinnati, .331; Hendrick, Cincinnati, .330; O'Doul, Brooklyn, .328; and Cuccinello, Cincinnati, .324.

In addition to his three first places, Klein has a total of 154 hits to take second, just one blow behind the leader, Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh. Rogers Hornsby of Chicago and Bill Terry, New York, are the only other batters to figure in two columns. Hornsby has hit 37 doubles to take first place and is second to Klein with 80 runs batted in. Terry, Babe Herman of Brooklyn, and Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh have hit 14 triples apiece to share the lead while Terry's 83 runs are good for second. Sparky Adams of St. Louis and Mel Ott of New York are the other runners-up in hitting. Adams with 56 doubles and Ott with 21 homers.

Frankie Frisch of St. Louis has 15 stolen bases to his credit, three more than Kiki Cuyler of Chicago. Chicago lost the club leadership both at bat and in the field last week as New York forced to the top in hitting with a 394 average and St. Louis and Cincinnati tied for the fielding lead at .974.

The two pitching leaders, Jess Haines of St. Louis and Guy Hottel of Chicago, recorded one more victory apiece last week. Haines now has won ten games and lost two for an .833 average while Bush has a .786 average from 11 victories and three defeats.

RARE VOLUMES, THOUGHT STOLEN, ARE RETURNED

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (INS)—Mysteriously missing for more than a month, four priceless volumes of early California history now are back in the library of St. Joseph's Church of this city. They were the work of the noted California Churchman and Mission builder, Father Junipero Serra, who lived in the early days of the Don. The books were entirely written by hand.

The books had been loaned to a Catholic Church organist in Los Angeles, and the transaction forgotten by the priest who approved of the loan. When the volumes were found to be missing it was feared that they had been stolen by a band of thieves preying upon museums and libraries containing ancient volumes.
