Dr. Hill Makes Educational Address School Teaching Highly Spiritual Matter Lions Told

Teacher Worth Much to District

Quality Cannot Be Measured in Money

Quality of a good teacher is a spiritual matter and cannot be measured in terms of money. Dr. J. A. Hill, of the Canyon Teachers College, in an address to the Lions Club Tuesday, said that the teacher is the most important person in a community ever made.

Dr. Hill spoke at length on the spiritual system, insisting that the mind and equipment mean nothing unless properly prepared for employment. "You hear what is wrong with the world," he said. "The thing wrong is poorly prepared. The weakest spot in your mind is the weakest teacher. We waste every year on schools that do not require trained teachers. Regarding a poor teacher costs, it is too much for him."

Dr. Hill said that many rural schools are in deplorable condition and the gap between the fairly good and the very poor is widening each year, obliterating the middle class that has been the backbone of American progress.

Geo. W. Sitter Solves Cheap Feed Problem

Geo. W. Sitter, owner of the Bar Lo Ranch and president of the American National Bank, has solved the cheap feed problem for milk cows with a home made ration of ground cotton hulls, ground corn cobs, cotton seed meal, cotton seed cake, bone meal and salt.

The ration, after being mixed in proper proportions, costs about five cents per feed for a dairy cow, and that it produces results is evidenced by a heifer giving one gallon of milk before being put on the ration and two gallons per day after a week's feeding.

The cows are fed all the roughness they will eat in addition to the ground feeds. Mr. Sitter says the ground hulls make excellent cow feed, in addition to being one of the best soil fertilizers possible to obtain.

Highway 66 Left Out of Bond Election

The commissioners court recreated road district No. 5 at a meeting last week, calling for a $1,600,000 bond election and leaving the paving of Highway 66 through precinct 3 out of the proposition.

A petition asking that an election be called was circulated in Pampa by J. N. Duncan, and Commissioner Cox went to Austin to ascertain if the highway department would pay their part of the paving of Highway 88, the Clarendon-Pampa road.

The only difference in the proposed issue and the one recently defeated is that Highway 66 and the McLean-Lefors road are left out.

Commissioners Cox and Kirby voted for the proposition and Mr. White voted against it. Mr. Newman was not present at the meeting.

Home Ec. Class Gives Dinner Honor Dr. Hill

A dinner was given Tuesday evening at the high school by the Home Economics class under the direction of Miss Neal, honoring Dr. J. A. Hill, president of Canyon College.

A number of men connected with school affairs, together with some representative business men, were invited, and Supt. G. C. Boswell acted as toastmaster.

L. N. George, secretary of the Canyon chamber of commerce, and field man for ex-students of the college, was called upon for the first speech, and stated that 8 million dollars were spent by Texas tourists in other states last summer, when the Palo Duro Canyon offers more and better scenery than can be found in any other state.

Tourists who have traveled extensively have told Mr. George that the artificial attractions of California do not begin to compare with the wild, natural attractions of the canyon, and that they had rather visit the canyon than any attraction in any state in the union.

Mr. George said that it is now understood that regular vacations are a necessary part of one's business, and time taken off for vacations with regular worship each Sunday will enable anyone to do better work.

Following Mr. George's speech the college quartet, consisting of Emmet Smith 1st tenor, Eureth Compton 2nd tenor, Alfred Jamison 2nd bass and Noel Gollahan 1st base, rendered a selection, after which the following were presented for short talks, in the order named: F. H. Bourland, J. S. Howard, C. C. Bogan, Rev. W. Hickman, Rev. W. A. Erwin, T. A. Landers, Jesse J. Cobb, Rev. Cecil G. Goff.

After another number by the quartet, Geo. Colebank, Raymond Glas and H. W. Brooks were presented as school board members. Mr. Brooks making a short talk. W. E. Bogan, treasurer of the school board, was presented and made a few remarks followed by the presentation of Prof. John Harding, Prof. A. R. McHanev, R. H. Corum and Prof. Robt. C. Davidson.

Dr. Hill was then presented, and made a short address, in which he congratulated the McLean schools upon the leadership and co-operation shown, and gave some good advice upon the selection of the proper school faculty.

John H. Crow M. E. Pastor McLean Church

Rev. John H. Crow, for the past two years Methodist pastor at Groom, is the new pastor of the First Methodist Church, and will preach his first sermon here Sunday.

Rev. Crow was pastor at Mobeetie at one time and was in charge of the Shamrock circuit with work at Heald and Dozier for a time, and is well and favorably known to many of our residents.

Rev. and Mrs. Crow have a son who is taking a medical course at the State University. Rev. B. W. Wilkins, who has rounded out his quadrennium here, has been assigned to the Claude church, where they have a $25,000 church plant and a large parsonage completely furnished.

RED CROSS DRIVE HAS GOOD BEGINNING

The drive for Red Cross memberships began Wednesday afternoon in the business district and workers met with hearty response from practically everyone. According to Roll Call Chairman Cecil G. Goff, the residence districts will be canvassed just as soon as the weather permits.

With proper response from everyone, a school nurse is assured for a few months of this term of school.

CO. AGENTS ATTEND INSTITUTE AT MEMPHIS

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas and Miss Myrtle Miller, home agent, attended a recreation institute at Memphis conducted by P. W. Jackson of the National Recreation Association of America, on Nov. 11 and 12. A meat butchering, cutting, curing and canning demonstration was held at the Williams farm near Memphis under the direction of Roy Snyder, E. M. Regenbrecht and Miss Zetha D. McInnis, specialists in that line of work. A hog, beef and lamb were dressed on Tuesday, and the demonstration completed Wednesday. A beef was cut and in cans in three hours.

The county agents are available for meat work.

Thanksgiving Service to Be Next Thursday

A community thanksgiving service will be held at the high school auditorium next Thursday, beginning at 10:30 a. m.

It is expected that the stores will close for most of the day, many of them all day, and a large crowd is expected for the service.

Rev. John H. Crow, new Methodist pastor, will preach the sermon. Mrs. Cecil G. Goff will have charge of the music, and the following program has been arranged: Song, Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow—Congregation. Prayer—Rev. W. Hickman, pastor Church of the Nazarene.

SCHOOL PLAY WELL RENDERED FRIDAY

The play, "The Brat," staged by the school dramatic club under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Hill, last Friday evening, was well rendered. Individual members of the cast received well deserved plaudits.

The high school band under the direction of Prof. Robt. C. Davidson furnished music, and between acts features were a vaudeville skit by Lola Ruth Stanfield and Mackie Greer, a reading by little Miss Margaret Caldwell, and a dance number by little Miss Joyce Turner of Pampa.

Members of the cast were: Fern Landers, Marvin Gardner, Fred Durham, James Anderson, Idabelle Newman, Edna Wilson, Charlie Mae Carpenter, Frances Boyle, Duard Lynch, Louise Pollis and Geneva Corbin.

McLEAN BAND TO BE AT PAMPA FAIR

By Ralph R. Thomas, Co. Agent. Final arrangements are being made in the shaping of the program of the Gray county fair and Pampa poultry show to be held in the new city hall at Pampa, on December 4, 5 and 6. A well balanced program is being outlined for both night and day. Among the features is a program to be put on by the McLean band the evening of December 4th to be held in the auditorium of the new city hall. On the evening of Dec. 5th the Pampa band will have charge of the program.

Education Week Closed With Program

Dr. Hill Urges Support of Foundation Principles

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, made an address at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening, closing the National Education Week exercises for the McLean schools.

Dr. Hill spoke on the Constitution of the United States, insisting that we need to get back to foundation principles. "Our country calls for heroes of peace no less loudly than it does for heroes of war," said the speaker. "Many now tell us that the framers of the Constitution were wrong; that 'all men are not created equal,' but the fact remains that all should enjoy equal rights to 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' God is as much interested in the lowest as in the highest. We should not forget the blessings inherited from our forefathers."

Dr. Hill declared that life and property rights are less respected in the United States today than at any time in its history, due to forgetting the foundation principles of our country. "Too many people make light of the prohibition law," declared Dr. Hill. "Anyone who breaks any law is aligning himself with the anarchist, and is just as much of a slacker as the man who deserts his country on the field of battle. Violation of law strikes at the very foundation of government, and we need to think soberly before breaking, or making light of any law."

Dr. Hill attributed much of the laxity in the prohibition law to the fact that the closing paragraph in practically every chapter in the school physiologies, dealing with the result of using alcohol on different parts of the human body, was left out of the new text books when the prohibition law was adopted, and the present generation is not educated to the harmfulness of the habit, as was the preceding one.

However, the speaker insisted that the American people will never repeal the prohibition law, but "we must give maximum loyalty to the home, school and church as the chief bulwarks of civilization." The speaker also paid his respects to the divorce evil, giving some interesting statistics. He also said that no nation in the world's history has ever been as wealthy as America is today.

H. H. MEADOR BUYS McLEAN CAFE

H. H. Meador is the new owner of the McLean Cafe, having bought the business from Boyd Meador. The new management will continue to give the best possible service. Read their announcement on another page.

STRICTLY BUSINESS

A McLean business man remarked to the editor of The News that he likes the advertising service given by this paper and wanted it understood that he buys advertising strictly upon the results obtained, regardless of his opinion of the paper or editor.

The News is glad to sell advertising just this way, and a glance through our advertising columns each week will convince anyone that News advertising gets results. If it did not, business men would not use its columns year after year. For advertising is bought on its merits by successful business men.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Returning to London, practically penniless, after an unsuccessful business trip to South America, young Sir George Sandison takes dinner with his widowed stepmother, his old nurse, "Aggie." He has not approved of her marriage to his father, but she makes an explanation that satisfies him. There is little left of the estate, and Lady Sandison proposes they go to the United States to visit her brother, Robert MacBeth, a wealthy contractor. With no prospects in England, Sir George agrees.

CHAPTER II—With his young daughter, Roberta, MacBeth is living on his estate, on an island. The girl longs for city life, and is dissatisfied. MacBeth is a victim of arthritis and almost physically helpless. Leaving her father, after an interchange of words, Roberta meets Lady Sandison and Sir George, and assumes they are the new cook and butler, who had been expected. She directs them to the house, realizing with some surprise that the man is the handsomest she has ever seen.

Robert MacBeth had finally made up his mind. He would put matters plainly to Roberta on her return and then, if she would not do as he wished—he corrected himself—if she would not take the sensible course he pointed out to her, and remain contentedly on the island for a year, then she should feel the heavy hand of authority. Yet somehow that did not quite satisfy him—either his conscience or his arthritis gave him a twinge.

Not being by any means the "back-number" Roberta thought him, he knew that the heavy hand of authority was considerably out of date. He must be very careful not to make himself ridiculous. Once put himself in the "heavy father" position with Roberta, and he lost all chance of influencing her, or gaining his point. He thought regretfully of the good days of his own youth, when a parent's word was law.

Then he smiled, for he remembered how little heed he had paid to that law. The moment he was fifteen and knew his trade, he had fled from the overcrowded MacBeth household and struck out for himself.

While he had been at home he had bowed down before to his father, and a fine, tyrannical, old blackguard and humbug that parent had been. Robert never wanted his daughter to think of him in just that way. Yet how was he to make her see the error of her ways? MacBeth knew that girls of eighteen, however intelligent and sophisticated, were scarcely to be trusted to navigate their own little boats on life's crowded river. He had seen a few shipwrecked in his time and he meant to pilot his girl.

He looked up and saw Joe Ligor's car coming down the road toward the island. He rang with impatience, and also rapped loudly with his stick on the floor of the terrace. Then he remembered seeing the chauffeur and the maids leave the island. It dawned on him that he was quite alone.

He remembered now that Roberta had alrily observed that they would have to get along somehow until the new servants came from the city, and it was possible they might not arrive at the island until tomorrow. The unpleasantness of this morning had begun with a statement from Roberta that in this place it was impossible to get or keep a decent staff of servants. It was too far from everywhere. The servants brought from the city would not put up with its remoteness, and as for temporary help, which was all one could get in this place, it was beyond speech.

Robert, the millionaire, groaned, and turned to watch the car cross the bridge and make its way toward the house. It came to a standstill just beneath him, and he saw Joe lift out two or three traveling bags and then turn to speak to the first of his passengers who alighted. This was a tall young man with golden brown hair, which gleamed in the sunlight as he took off his hat and looked about with interest. He turned to help out a middle-aged woman with a round and dumpy figure. Bob MacBeth looked at her idly.

Must be the cook-housekeeper and the butler Roberta expected, but she had not told him they were Scots. Robert MacBeth prided himself on his ability, gained from years of handling immigrant labor, of unerringly recognizing nationality, even city or district, at a glance. The woman was talking to Joe Ligor, who evidently did not quite understand her. He saw the young man gently touch her arm, as though to bid her be quiet, and himself address Joe. Robert saw that Joe nodded and grinned with pleasure, climbed back into the front seat and composed himself to wait. The man and the woman came toward the door. They rang several times, but there was no response.

He raised himself painfully in his chair, rapped loudly with his cane and called out:

"This way!"

They turned and came toward him. There was no doubt the dumpy little woman was a Scot. Robert MacBeth, so long a resident of this country that he had ceased to think of himself as anything but an American, felt a warm feeling of kinship, strong as only clanish Scots and possibly the equally clanish Jews can feel at the sight of another of their race in a strange land.

She was typical, this little woman. A good-looking woman at that! But what clothes! He found himself eager to hear her speak. He knew beforehand she would have a glorious burr, and maybe something of a dialect. It was music to his ears. After all these years of Americanization, Robert MacBeth still thrilled to bagpipes, or the burr in a Scot's voice.

But She Had Not Told Him They Were Scots.

He glanced at the man to whom she was talking, and whistled, low. Scoldom had been seen such a handsome man. The fellow was striking, both as to his height, the clear-cut beauty of his features and his fine head with its brown hair, gleaming gold in the sunlight. Under his broad brows his brown eyes, large and finely formed, looked out with a curious directness.

Oh, this man will never do! Robert said to himself decidedly. Have all the maids neglecting their work to look at him.

The woman came forward with a quick, decided step. She planted herself solidly on her feet as she walked, as though each small plump foot was a flutran. Robert had an odd feeling of liking for her. There was nothing servile in the way this woman walked toward and looked at him. She was directly opposite him now.

"Pardon me, but I am unable to rise, owing to a bad attack of rheumatism. Won't you sit?"

She did not move, but kept looking at him oddly and finally said:

"Rob, do ye no know me? I'm Aggy!"

He stared at her, speechless. His eyes searched her face for traces of the young and blooming sister he had left, so many years ago, in Scotland. It couldn't be Aggy! Yet, when he looked again, this might be Aggy—an Aggy that the years had stunted and thickened and rounded out a little too much, and put gray in the great mass of red hair which Sister Aggy used to have.

"Aggy!" He said it aloud. "Is it you? I cannot rise."

Aggy, if this was Aggy—this strange woman—came nearer him and took his hand in hers.

"It will be a surprise to you, no doubt, Rob, after so many years, and after my refusing your kind offer so decided-like; but I'm Aggy."

Robert, his eyes still on her said softly: "Aggy?" Then he smiled. "It's like you, coming this way without warning." He laughed. "Why, I thought you were the new cook or the housekeeper."

Aggy smiled. It was a slow and reluctant smile, but it was pleasant. "So did your lady-daughter, who passed us on the road here. She told you driver that you were at home and would see us."

"You didn't tell her—"

"Gud Sakes! No! I didn't tell her anything about who I was." She looked at him again. "Rob, is it no convenient? You need not stand on ceremony with me."

All the old protective feeling that he, as elder brother, used to feel for "wee Aggy" came over Rob MacBeth. He forgot the years they had lost—somewhere, somehow. He forgot that this was a middle-aged, strange woman, almost as old now as the mother they had lost so many years ago. He forgot that he was a middle-aged man with a grown daughter and a million or two. He saw himself once more a strong young man leaving Scotland, while a red-haired girl clung to him and cried: "Oh, Rob, I cannot let you go! What'll I do without ye?"

He reached out his hand and said: "Aggy, I'm glad to see you. Did I not tell you that? Except for Roberta, there's nobody left but you and me."

The little woman stooped over, smoothed his hair and kissed him. "Dear Rob," she murmured.

He indicated a chair beside him and she sat down.

"What brought you, Aggy," he asked her, reverting unconsciously to the almost appalling directness of the true Scot, "and who's that?" He indicated Sir George, who was standing at the edge of the terrace and looking off toward the river.

"That's Sir George," said his sister quietly.

"What?" roared Bob MacBeth.

"Sir George Sandison," explain-

THE SOFT PEDAL

When a doubtful situation arises in a town it is quite the fashion to remark that "the paper ought to say something about that." The average citizen feels quite certain that he could run a newspaper better than the editor does, and if he were publisher of that sheet he'd show 'em, you bet!

As a matter of fact, if he has horse sense, he would do just as the editor does: put the soft pedal on family rows, church squabbles, scandals not involving principles, and such matters of minor importance as will adjust themselves with the passing of time.

The newspaper critic ought not to expect the newspaper to advance or attack any proposition which he himself hasn't the courage to support or assail over his own signature. The editor is willing, even eager to push any project in the public interest. But he is not willing to pull chestnuts out of the fire for individuals or for minorities.—Sudan News.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unexplained Deaths That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

What Became of Harvey Wentworth?

Civil war brought about many mysterious disappearances, one of the most remarkable of all was that of Harvey B. Wentworth, New Hampshire farmer, who went away on a furlough one day in July, 1862, and was never seen again. Naturally, from that time on, a number of cowards who were of the colors either because of dissatisfaction with the way they were treated, but even pointed to the fact that this was the case with young Wentworth, as a result, all possible ways were made to discover what happened to him. But in vain. He apparently vanished as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him.

In July, 1862, a new regiment of volunteers was mustered into service in the vicinity of Suncook, N. H., and sent to the Nineteenth Maine volunteers. One of the most enthusiastic members of this regiment was young Wentworth, a private in Company D. He was a farmer, exceptionally good habits, intelligent and inquisitive. Therefore, the regiment encamped on the north side of the Potomac, near the bridge, and Wentworth received a furlough to see the sights of the Capital, it was granted without the regiment's hesitation. In company with a number of others he left and was never heard from again. At the next roll call he was "not present" and some days later he was entered as having "mysteriously disappeared."

Some ever believed that Wentworth deserted. He was not built up, and every circumstance in the case pointed away from such a possibility. A special court of inquiry was held, and, after considering the evidence in the case, reported that Wentworth had "disappeared" but, in view of his character and antecedents, we clear up the charge of desertion and find that his military record closed as without stain.

Opinion was principally based on the fact that Wentworth had been heard to complain of the loss of an army life even during the march southward from New York. In fact, he had been too ill to be in the service to tire of it and had been treated with the utmost consideration, his cousin being of the company of which he was a member. Moreover, there was no evidence that the New Hampshire boy had been extremely anxious to reach the front and see the sights of real war.

When he left camp he was full of enthusiasm over the prospect of seeing the sights of Washington, apparently, had never left the sentries had been posted along the road that led out of the Capitol as along its leading avenues, and no one could get away without having his pass reviewed. The records of these guards that the missing youth had his pass on entering the limits of the city, and they in his progress along Pennsylvania to the Capitol. But, after the trace of him was lost.

A thorough investigation which his unaccountable disappearance showed that he had last been seen at the brow of Capitol hill, looking over the city spread out before him. About him were masons and stonemasons, working on an extension of the Capitol. Below him was a partly covered excavation of the subbasement of the new building. Would he have become of him? Would he meet with foul play, and if so, was his body concealed? Did he fall prey to the bullet of some assassin? Was it possible that he was exploring the labyrinthine passages of the new portion of the Capitol, overcome by the heat and some dark abyss, where his body was later walled up and deserted, Wentworth would naturally returned to New Hampshire, if only for the purpose of touching with conditions that nothing was ever heard of any section of the country. Only mark to his memory is a monument in the little church at Suncook, New Hampshire, with the lettering:

Harvey B. Wentworth—Mysterious disappearance from the knowledge of Washington, D. C., July, 1862. (By the Wheeler Syndicate.)

War Memorial
 At a moot point as to where some encounters the smallest detail, writes "Looker On" in the Daily Chronicle. They have come across a glass pane in front of a block of work on an Albert embankment. It is a simple, home-made engraving only about a foot square, showing a group of men living in the trenches of the war, with a banner against those who fell. The engraving was apparently made during the war—it has been found by the tenants; there are one or two blooms in glass in front of it. A humble but quite of remembrance.

With the Churches

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

W. Hickman, Pastor
 Last Sunday was a good day with our people. We were well pleased with the attendance and spirit of each service, and several expressed their appreciation of the good music Sunday night. We appreciate very much the work of the orchestra and pray that God may pour out His richest blessings upon them. Come and hear this good music and enjoy the fellowship of our people as you worship with us.

Our subject for next Sunday morning will be "Seven Reasons why Jesus Loved the Rich Young Ruler."

We shall preach at the Liberty school house again next Sunday at 3 p. m., the Lord willing. We preached there last Sunday and assisted in the organization of a fine Sunday school which we trust will be a great blessing to the community. They have a wonderful band of young people in that community and we are expecting great things of them. May the Lord bless them.

Let us give our young people of today the best of training and discipline if we want good citizenship tomorrow. Well cultured young people are the greatest asset of any community. Give us your boys and girls and we will do our best to help them and bear their souls to a throne of grace. We desire that heaven may smile upon them.

Remember the services each Sunday. Sunday school at 10 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., N. Y. P. S. 6:30 p. m. each Sunday. If you desire to have your soul made warm by Divine Grace, just come to prayer meeting each Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria have him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

MISTAKES

Mistakes are so many and so varied that it may be wise for us to profit by some "Mistakes of a Life" that we found not long ago in an old scrap book. Here they are:

It is a great mistake to set up your own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly.

It is a mistake to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.

It is a mistake to expect conformity of opinion in the world.

It is a mistake to yield to trifles of no consequence.

It is a mistake to worry ourselves and others with that which cannot be remedied.

It is a mistake not to make allowance for the infirmities of others, to consider everything impossible that we cannot perform, to believe only what our own finite minds can grasp, or to expect to be able to understand everything.—Selected.

STUDENTS ATTACK FALSE ADVERTISING

Students in the University of Oklahoma physics department are carrying on a campaign against misleading advertising. The department is co-operating with the Consumer's Research of New York, a national noncommercial organization which gives consumers the truth concerning values of advertised goods.

Dr. Homer L. Dodge is head of the department which is carrying on laboratory experiments with fountain pens and sending to the Research a list of commercial pens with criticisms by the users. From this data, and with the aid of technical experts, the Research compiles tabulated lists of good, bad and mediocre products, and furnishes this information to consumers upon request. Information of this kind may be obtained on practically every class of advertised product, Dr. Dodge said.

Many who are old enough to know better wish they were young enough not to know better.

Eye-strain can usually be remedied unless it is caused by people trying to look down on others who are really above them.

The man who boasts that he "runs things in his own home" is probably thinking of the washing machine and floor sweeper.

Red Cross workers are finding the membership drive easy due to the favorable publicity given the drive this season.
This is one thing that everyone should co-operate in, and the drive will be continued until everyone has a chance to come in on the work.

A business man stated to the News editor last week that he disliked to attend programs, but he enjoyed reading about what happened at local programs in The News. The News tries to cover all programs that its readers might be interested in, as a part of the service rendered by the home paper.

Next week we celebrate Thanksgiving Day, and this is one year when we need to take a day off and count our blessings. McLean community has much to be thankful for this year, and a little time spent in comparing our state with many other places not so far away might give us a different outlook that would be of benefit to all of us.

State records show a million dollars less fire loss for the first ten months of this year than the corresponding period last year. People are slowly learning that the lower fire loss a town has the cheaper their insurance will be. High fire losses mean increased insurance cost, and fire prevention methods should be practiced by everyone.

Much money has been lost
by this community on the delay in paving Highway 66, and certainly we have a valid reason for protesting any election held in our neighboring precinct that fails to include the paving of this highway. McLean's future prosperity depends more on the finishing of the highway than, perhaps, any other one thing.
A town without a paved highway cannot expect to progress very much in these times.

There is no question of the need of a community chest fund, or some similar fund, to take care of charity cases in McLean. The present plan of using the chamber of commerce money for that purpose cannot be entirely satisfactory, as the C. of C. is not a charity organization and the dues cannot be listed as donations on income tax reports. Efforts to organize a chest have failed in the past, but conditions now should make it possible to have such a fund.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most populalar laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.
In thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish.
It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripped, children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

MR. RICE IN CHAPEL

On Monday morning, Mr. Rice, the local undertaker, made a most instructive talk on the art of embalming. Mr. Rice explained that many people, especially older people, are opposed to embalming. He gave their reasons for this, and explained how modern embalming is done.

The process of embalming used several years ago was compared with the present methods. The results obtained by the Egyptians were also compared with results obtained today in embalming the human body. Embalming keeps the body in a natural state for some length of time, and adds much to the last appearance of our dead loved ones.

Talks such as this are instructive, and occasionally our attention should be called to more serious things.

MR. LANDERS SPEAKS TO HIGH SCHOOL

On Friday morning, at the regular chapel hour, Mr. Landers, of The McLean News, addressed the students. He chose as the theme of his address "I Serve," and explained how this ideal is used as a motto of the business men throughout the country.

We greatly appreciate the messages brought us last week by Mr. Gilstrap and Mr. Landers as a part of the observance of National Educational Week.

MR. GILSTRAP IN PROGRAM

Thursday morning, Nov. 13, Mr. T. W. Gilstrap presented a lecture, along with pictures portrayed on a silver screen, to the faculty and student body of the high school.

The study hall windows were darkened by blankets and the machine for inserting the slides was stationed mid-way of the large room. Mr. Gilstrap and his assistants managed the machine, and some very interesting lessons were learned as a result of the period's exercises.

Some of the pictures dealt with the ways in which Europe is ahead of the United States in the development of the airplane. Others dealt with the rise of the telephone and other inventions in the U. S. Some of the other subjects discussed with pictures to illustrate were the development of the automobile, the development of electric motors for use in ships, airplanes, and factories.

In every instance the advantages of electricity were shown and emphasized.

The lecture was educational, and everyone enjoyed every moment of the entertainment. We can easily say that Thursday's program was one of the most enjoyable of those presented during National Educational Week which has just closed. We appreciate Mr. Gilstrap's coming to us with the thoughts he brought forward.

"THE BRAT"

On Friday evening "The Brat," a royalty play, was presented in the auditorium of the high school by Mrs. Hill's Dramatic Club. An appreciative crowd attended the play, and those who did not come missed one of the best plays presented by the high school students. Geneva Corbin as the Brat, kept the audience laughing almost every moment she was on the stage, and the other characters played their parts equally well. The cast was well chosen for the parts represented: the genius, Marvin Gardner; Jane and Angela, Charlie Mae Carpenter and Frances Boyle; the bishop and his wife and daughter, James Anderson, Idabel Newman and Edna Wilson; Timson and Margot, Duard Lynch and Louise Follis; the Brat, Geneva Corbin; Mrs. Forrester and the wayward son, Fern Landers and Fred Durham.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club met on Friday, Nov. 14, in the regular meeting time and place.

Maudelle Corum made a talk on "Why We Have Home Economics Clubs." Each new member was asked to give her reason for joining the club. Some very splendid reasons were given. Our club is rapidly increasing its membership. New members last meeting were Pauline Ledbetter, Margaret and Ruth Hess.

Dues or fees for each member were decided to be ten cents a month.

Mrs. Lochridge was chosen to meet with us each meeting to assist us in our problems. Our next meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 20.

Monday was our initiation day. The new members were very noticeable because each wore an onion around her neck.

The foods classes have found some very good recipes. Two very appetizing ones are salmon loaf and pineapple bavarian cream.

Salmon Loaf

1 can salmon (pink), 1 cup Irish potatoes, bread or rice; 1 cup carrots (chopped), 1 large onion (chopped), 2 cups medium white sauce.

Season with salt and pepper. Mix all ingredients and bake until all vegetables are tender. Cook about 15 minutes in a shallow baking dish.

Pineapple Bavarian Cream

2 tsp. granulated gelatine, 1/2 cup cold water, 1 can grated pineapple, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 tsp. lemon juice, 1/2 pint cream.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Heat pineapple, add sugar, lemon juice, and soaked gelatine. Chill in pan of ice water, stirring constantly; when it begins to thicken, fold in cream beaten until stiff, mould and chill.

DR. HILL ADDRESSES FACULTY

On Tuesday of this week, members of the faculty of McLean schools had the pleasure of hearing a splendid address by President Hill of West Texas State Teachers College. Dr. Hill brought out very clearly and forcefully the opportunity and the responsibility of the public school teacher of today. The church and home still exert a great influence upon the life of the child. It is doubtful whether the parents, the teacher or the minister get the hold upon the young life, or exert the influence which was exerted twenty or thirty years ago. The members of the faculty are more scattered at daily task than formerly, and do not have such a great influence upon the character of the young child. With modern conditions of living in the average home environment of our average American home quite different from the home environment of our fathers, the problem of character building is greater. The public school teacher has the child at an earlier age. He is in school for a large number of his waking hours. This being true, we have a responsibility and opportunity for getting into the lives of our students. We must either answer the challenge, or confess that we are too little to teach and guide the future citizens of the country.

DR. HILL ADDRESSES STUDENTS

November 18 at 2 p. m., the student body assembled to hear Dr. Hill, president of W. T. S. T. We were all indeed happy to have this distinguished man with us.

Dr. Hill told us in his introductory remarks that he had children of his own, and that he had been associated with boys and girls for a number of years. He told us that he really understood us and knew the problems that we confronted.

The first problem was choosing a life vocation. He stressed the importance in knowing what one wants to do and of always striving toward that end. Dr. Hill thinks that one should choose his life work at an early age. The speaker also stated

LIVING ROOM DEMONSTRATION

The home demonstration members are beginning on a new demonstration—improving the living room.

A living room improvement contest in Texas is entering the third year. Many rooms have been improved on a small expenditure of money. Many small improvements have been made with no expenditure at all.

Women wishing to work under the contest plan will be interested in the rules, which follow:

1931 Improved Living Room Contest In this contest it is agreed by the Semi-Weekly Farm News and the Home Demonstration Department of the Co-operative Extension Service of the Texas A. & M. College, and the United States Department of Agriculture, that:

This Improved Living Room Contest shall be under the direction of the Co-operative Extension Service of the Texas A. & M. College and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Aims of the Contest

- 1. To encourage interest in better living rooms by making them more comfortable and attractive. 2. To demonstrate the best use of what is on hand. 3. To demonstrate wise expenditure of money. 4. To demonstrate wise selection and arrangement of furnishings.

Contest Plans

1. The Improved Living Room Contest will be under the direction of the Extension Service of the Texas A. & M. College of Texas and the United States Department of Agriculture co-operating.

2. The Semi-Weekly Farm News will offer prizes for the contest.

3. This contest is to be conducted by the Extension Service of the Texas A. & M. College, the home demonstration agent having direct charge in her county, including the selection of the county committee of judges, the Semi-Weekly Farm News not taking part in the appointment of such committee or the rendering of such decisions as are to be made in regard to the winners of the contest.

4. The contest will begin immediately after the Farmers' Short Course at the A. & M. College. A list of those enrolled must be sent to the chairman of the state committee on or before December 1, 1930.

5. Any farm woman (in a county having a home demonstration agent) may enter the contest by registering her name with the county home demonstration agent and working under her supervision, provided she has not won first, second or third place in a previous county, district or state improved living room contest.

6. The contestant may enter one of two classes, namely: Class 1, the living room making the greatest improvement in proportion to the expenditure (cost not to exceed $50); class 2, the living room making the greatest improvement in proportion to the expenditure (cost exceeding $50).

a. In both class 1 and 2 the scoring shall be done on the basis of greater accomplishment in proportion to the cash expenditure.

b. A woman must register in class 1 or class 2 at the beginning of the contest. As her plan develops, if she finds that the expenditure will be greater or less than that prescribed in the class in which she has registered she may be transferred to either class 1 or class 2, provided she makes application to her county home demonstration agent.

7. Enrollment cards for demonstrators will be furnished the county home demonstration agent, on which she will register the contestant, giving her full name and address, and indicating the class which she desires to enter. This enrollment card will be filed in the office of the home demonstration agent and the names and addresses of those enrolled will be sent to the State Committee at the College, not later than Dec. 1.

8. A county committee consisting of one or more members shall be appointed by the county home demonstration agent. It shall be the duty of this committee to assist the county home demonstration agent in conducting this contest. This committee shall grade the living rooms at the beginning of the contest, according to a score card which is sent out by the college.

9. At the end of the contest, the original committee shall make a final score of the living rooms. The final judging in the county must be done between April 15, 1931 and May 1, 1931.

10. Each district home demonstration agent will visit the two winning living rooms in each county of a prescribed district and select the winner in class 1 and class 2 for the district. The district judging will begin immediately after May 1, 1931, and will be completed as rapidly as possible by the district agent.

11. After the winning living rooms in each district have been decided upon, the state honors will be awarded by the state committee which shall be appointed by the Extension Service.

This committee will visit the prize-winning living rooms in each district. The state judging will follow the district judging immediately, beginning not later than June 1, 1931.

12. Announcement of the state prize winners will be made, if possible, during the 1931 Farmers' Short Course at the A. & M. College.

13. The names of the county winners must be made public before the arrival of the district agent for the purpose of judging.

14. In no way must the district agent or members of the state committee be asked to assist with county judging.

15. The district agent or state committee will notify the county home demonstration agent as to the time of arrival in the respective counties for judging, and the time asked for must be reserved for this purpose alone. The county home demonstration agent must not plan other work for this time.

16. No expense need be recorded for voluntary labor performed or the use of materials on hand, all of each.

17. Gifts shall be valued and considered as that amount expended.

18. If a new living room is built during the contest period, whether it is in a new house or in a remodeled house, its score should be compared with that of the room actually used as a family living room at the beginning of the county contest. Due to the difficulty of estimating what part of the cost of building was spent on the living room the contestant may be allowed the following without considering the cost: a. bare room, b. bare unfinished floor, c. unfurnished wall, d. any furnishings used previously. Anything additional must be counted at exact cost.

19. The following information regarding each living room shall be filed in the office of the Home Demonstration Agent. Copies of these records and pictures shall be given to the district agent upon her arrival for district judging. a. Story of the activity, b. simple floor plan before improvement, c. simple floor plan after improvement, d. kodak pictures after improvement, e. kodak pictures after improvement, f. lists of improvements made, g. use of materials on hand, h. gifts and value of each, i. voluntary labor performed, j. cash expenditures. It is suggested that the judging committee and the contestant assist as far as possible in collecting this data.

20. The county home demonstration agent will offer suggestions for improvement.

21. The Semi-Weekly Farm News through its columns will give information regarding the contest and reports of the accomplishments of the contestants.

SOME DARE NOT

Usually the argument is made that every business concern should advertise. Generally speaking, this is true, but there are exceptions. In fact, some concerns hardly dare to advertise, because they cannot make good according to the requirements of modern business practices.

When advertising is untruthful or misleading, it does more harm than good. Only an enterprise which fulfills the promises made in its advertising can stand the spotlight of publicity. Hence, when we find a store or other business establishment boldly advertising its wares or service, month after month and year after year, we may generally conclude that it can and does give real values.

Observing the advertised business of any community, large or small, will enable one to identify the most dependable concerns in that community. Only efficient and reputable establishments dare to advertise.—Vernon (Aia.) Democrat.

A FARMER'S VIEW ON WAR AND PEACE

(A worthwhile editorial selected by the National Editorial Association) It is carnival night in the home town, and chief of attractions is the big parade of 20 Legion posts. All honor to the legionnaires! Smartly tailored uniforms in bright and varied colors, shining helmets, music, rhythmic action—all these fascinate young and old and the small boy on the sidewalk links up the idea with war and decides he will be in on the next one.

Twenty miles south of the home town is a huge government hospital where are quartered veterans to whom the gods of war have been less kind; veterans, some of whom may never again walk, others who may never again see, and still others who may never again think with clear minds. This is the other side of the picture, sight of which unfortunately escapes the small boy on the sidewalk.

This war business is getting a lot of attention nowadays, and rightly so. Since the dawn of history war has been regarded as inevitable, but the last conflict was so much more of a war than anything in the past that men and nations have been jolted out of their complacency and are now looking for a better way to compose international differences in the future.

Judged by any standard, war is a failure. When a dispute arises between two countries, it is futile to take up arms if right be the objective sought. War will establish the fact that one nation has a bigger and better army or more food or more money, but the one sure thing it will not do is establish right. There are several aspects of war which have our downright disapproval. One of these is the system whereby one set of men creates the war, and another lot is sent out to fight the war. In no man's land the boy from South Dakota meets the boy from Saxony. Back home there is much they have in common; mother, perhaps a sweetheart, friends, work, play and the right to live. Yet here they are face to face with fixed bayonets, boys between whom there could be no natural quarrel or enmity, and yet one will presently kill the other "in defense of the fatherland" or to "make the world safe for democracy" as the case may be. Monstrous scheme at best!

The last war was said to be a war to end war and the claim may not prove empty when one considers the progressive movements of the last decade such as the world court, the Kellogg pact and repeated attempts at naval limitation. But Mars having reigned long and supreme will die hard and his destruction remains a big job. In Germany a large society hinges its activities around the slogan, "nie wieder krieg" which translated literally is "never again war." This society has a fruitful field for work, and like About Ben Adhem, and in all lands, may their tribe increase.—C. F. Preston, Chester County, Pennsylvania, in Capper's Farmer.

PAUL GRIFFIN WINS TRIP

By Ralph R. Thomas, Co. Agent Paul Griffin of the Alanreed 4-H club has been selected as one of the winners of a trip to Chicago to attend the 4-H Club Boys' National Encampment to be held Nov. 28th to Dec. 5th, according to a letter received from State Boys' Club Agent M. T. Payne. This trip is given by the Santa Fe railway with all expenses paid, to boys making the best showing in club work during the year. Boys enrolled in the 4-H demonstration clubs in accordance with the rules of the Extension Service and living in counties touched by the Santa Fe lines are eligible to compete for the trip. Nineteen trips are given, but only one trip is awarded to any county. Three of these trips are given for cotton demonstrations.

Paul enrolled in the Alanreed 4-H club soon after the county agent work was put on in Gray county last May, and selected cotton for his demonstration project. His father, T. T. Griffin, let the boy have three acres on his farm six miles north of Alanreed for the demonstration. The land was planted May 27th with pure line cotton seed. Soon after the field was planted a hard rain washed out the seed in places, making skips in the cotton. These skips were planted by hand to have planting the entire field. The crop was kept free of weeds throughout the summer, and picking started the first part of October. The demonstration made a yield of one and a third bales per acre.

The trip was awarded less than six months after Paul enrolled in the 4-H club. The basis of awards of all state 4-H prize trips is as follows: (a) production per unit—30% (b) profits per unit—30% (c) history—20% (d) effects—20%

The J. C. Penny Company made a contribution of $10 to be used for incidentals for the trip.

McLEAN GAS RATES COMPARE FAVORABLY

According to a bulletin issued by the Railroad Commission of Texas, McLean enjoys as low a gas rate as any town in the state with the exception of Allen, a small town peopled by employees of an oil company.

According to A. J. Tillery, manager of the McLean Gas Co., local rates are lower than Amarillo, and when the different steps are figured, McLean, Pampa, Amarillo, Sanford and Deal are the only towns with a 50c rate, the great majority beginning with a 75c rate, and many of them 90c.

The bulletin is issued free by the Railroad Commission, and anyone can get a copy by writing for it. It contains all available information from every town in the state using natural gas.

BIGGER AND BETTER

PRESENTING THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, more impressively than ever before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

For—without departing from the basic features which have won the enthusiastic approval of over 2,000,000 buyers—Chevrolet has produced a six-cylinder car which represents an entirely new standard of quality, value and refinement in the low-price field.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never were Fisher's fine artistry and finished craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six!

Not only are the bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements—many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership—improvement has been made. See the new Chevrolet Six—for here is the Great American Value!

DANCERS MUST PAY PIPER

It may be said of the governor of Minnesota as Shylock said of Portia, that he is "a Daniel come to judgment." Confronted with a general demand for a reduction of state taxes, he says: "I may be a little old-fashioned, but I am ready to support the contention that the only way a state can reduce taxes is to spend less money."

That is a hit that puts the ball squarely into the bleachers, where the people and their legislators mostly sit. It is homely self-evident wisdom, but it shines like a proverb from Solomon—Atlanta Constitution.
