

Dr. Burma Makes Lions Club Talk

Community Chest Organization Plans Made Friday

Committee Appointed at Meeting

Committee to Solicit Funds for Charity Organization

Preliminary steps were taken last Friday evening toward the organization of a community chest to disburse charity to needy cases in this community.

M. D. Bentley acted as chairman and W. E. Bogan secretary at the meeting, held at the city secretary's office, and Mr. Bentley was appointed chairman of the investigating committee, with Boyd Meador and C. A. Strandberg members of the committee.

Several talks were made by those present favoring the plan, and Mr. Bentley outlined the charity work planned for by the chamber of commerce the past year at a cost of about $21.00 per month.

It was pointed out by different speakers that an investigating committee is needed with power to disburse funds for needy cases, and that all charities should be grouped under the one head in order that this work may not be duplicated, and that every case may have the same attention.

It is expected that another meeting will be called at an early date, at which all churches and civic bodies will be represented, and final plans made for the organization.

Those present at the meeting were: M. D. Bentley, Boyd Meador, C. A. Strandberg, Ed Wehba, F. H. Bourland, Evan L. Sitter, John Mertel, W. E. Bogan, O. W. Caussey, Geo. Celebank and Jesse J. Cobb.

WILKINS THANKS McLEAN FOLK

Claude, Texas, Dec. 3, 1930.

Dear Mr. Landers:

According to my promise, I am writing you briefly of our work here. The people of Claude have received us in a most beautiful and cordial manner. We have had two very fine Sunday services. Each Sunday morning we had 190 present in Sunday school.

Dr. Tucker, the pastor of the Baptist Church has been extremely courteous and so anxious was he to extend greetings and good will to our people and worshiped with us on our first Sunday evening. Of course this was highly appreciated. Claude has some very fine people, and they appear anxious to show a spirit of friendship everywhere.

I attribute much of this immediate kindness and courtesy to be due to the fact that words of good will had preceded us. You had no small part in this. We shall always feel indebted to you for this fraternal spirit and for the interest manifested in our work and its success.

You, your paper, the people of the Baptist Church here, the Lions Club and our own people, all inspire us to the best that is within our power in our ministry and service with the people here. We could not say enough by way of praise of the people of McLean.

Our work is beginning nicely. The people are enthusiastic. We have here one of the best working plants that I know anything about in a town anything like this size. We should have a successful year.

I had a very fine letter from Bro. Jeff, which was much appreciated. With all good wishes to you and the people of McLean, I am yours sincerely,

B. W. WILKINS.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Casarillo were guests in the Witt Springer home Wednesday.

Young People Not to Blame, Says Dr. Burma

"The younger generation is not to blame for the condition of modern youth," said Dr. Burma, president of Trinity University, in his address to the public at the First Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening. "They did not make themselves; they are just what older people make them. The older people make the styles for the flapper to wear, she did not ask for extreme styles. Young people do not buy cars and gasoline—they do not have the money—they are furnished by older people. Every generation is the product of the preceding one."

Dr. Burma took as his text the 6th verse of the 22nd chapter of Proverbs and stressed the idea of giving the child the right kind of training. "There is no such animal as a self-made man," said the speaker. "We are what our early surroundings in home, church, school and community made us."

Dr. Burma referred to conditions forty years ago when most people lived on the farm and children came in contact with few people other than the immediate family, with church attendance on Sunday. The school did not play a very important part in that it held only about three months in the year. "But now things are different," said he. "Today the child is almost entirely dominated by the school; even the family life must adapt itself to the child's school life. The school dictates the"

Faculty Play Friday Night at High School

The Lions-faculty play, "Mary Made Some Marmalade," will be staged at the high school auditorium Friday night of this week, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The play is a royalty play given in three acts, and is built around some lovable characters and some not so lovable, but it comes out all right in the end. Enough good comedy is introduced in each act to make the play acceptable to everyone.

Will Riding, the California rancher, in whose home the scenes are laid, is played by Prof. John Harding, who is directing the play.

Rev. Wilkins Wires Lions Club Tuesday

The following wire from Rev. B. W. Wilkins, former pastor of the First Methodist Church, now holding a similar position at Claude, was received by the Lions Club Tuesday: "Greetings to the Lions Club today. Accept thanks for every courtesy and favor shown me. Letter and dues follow." The message was received with applause and much favorable comment.

Lion T. W. Gilstrap was presented with a key emblem by Lion G. C. Boswell, Lion Gilstrap being the first member of the club to win that honor.

Dr. Burma, who addressed the club.

DR. HILL APPRECIATES NEWS

In this issue of the Tiger Post, on another page, will be found a letter from Dr. Hill of Canyon, in which he states that he appreciates the way The News handled his speeches here.

A letter from A. M. Blackman, state supervisor of high schools, also appears, complimenting students on their articles in the Tiger Post, as is a letter from J. B. Rutland, assistant supervisor of agricultural education, thanking the school officials for the way the McLean boys reflected credit on the school at Kansas City.

DAIRY TEAM SELECTED

By Dr. A. A. Tampke

The boys of the vocational agriculture department at the high school, have been working hard training and trying out, striving to gain places on the dairy team for the coming year, and many of the students competed in this tryout, most of them showing unusual skill.

There were over twenty boys trying for the places, and prospects point toward McLean having one of the best dairy teams they ever had. Due to so many trying for the places the instructor believes he will be able to develop a first class team by elimination in future contests.

The six highest scoring students will compete in the contest next week. They are: I. D. Shaw, Jr., Cagle Hunt, Earl Breeding, Clyde Andrews, Clark Stockton and Haze Waters.

SANTA CLAUS LETTERS WILL BE PRINTED

The News will print letters to Santa Claus again this year, as has been our custom every Christmas for the past several years. Old Santa reads The News, and tells us that he will be on the lookout for the letters again this season.

Just mail your letters at the post-office addressed to The News, or to Santa Claus, and we will take care of them.

We received one last week that contained nothing but what appeared to be only crooked marks, and this was forwarded to Santa Claus direct. If you can't write, ask that some of the older persons in the family write for you.

M. D. Bentley was in Pampa Tuesday.

Milford Sutton was in Amarillo Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulon Collier and son and Mrs. J. L. Collier of Groom were McLean visitors Sunday.

Poultry Show Will Be Held in Cook Building

By Dr. A. A. Tampke, Show Director

The second annual poultry show will be held in the S. O. Cook building on North Main street in McLean, on Dec. 12 and 13, under the auspices of the chamber of commerce and the agricultural department of the high school. The show will be open to any exhibitors who have standard bred fowls. Everyone is urged to try to make this show a success. Bring your birds—they are in as good condition as any one's.

A fee of 10c per bird will be charged to pay for feed, hay and rent on building. All coops will be furnished.

You may enter single cocks, cockerels, hens or pullets. Also enter pens of five, which is one cock and four hens, or one cockerel and four pullets. Any bird under one year old is referred to as young. Over one year old is an old bird.

Birds should be entered at least by 10 a. m. the first day of the show. If you have any birds you do not care to put in for competition, bring them anyway.

Cash prizes will be offered for all standard breeds and also for classes of eggs. Brown and white eggs will standard breeds, and also for classes get separate classes. (12 eggs in a class).

Don't fail to call on the county agent or vocational instructor to help you select your best birds, and let's have a real poultry show.

MODERN SCHOOLS RUN BY COACHES, SAYS ERWIN

"Many modern public schools are run by the athletic coach and not by the superintendent," said Rev. W. A. Erwin of the First Presbyterian Church, in a short talk following an address by Dr. Burma Tuesday evening. "We need the right kind of folks to direct school activities, and we need to elect the right kind of men on the school board. Right thinking people should see that school activities and moving pictures are of the right kind, and be on guard against Sunday shows and other like attractions."

Mrs. L. Sliagar and Misses Irene Hayes, Isabel Baley and Jewel Cousins visited the Pampa and Panhandle schools Wednesday. Misses Grace Bidwell, Fern Landers and Ida Bell Newman took their places for the day in the McLean school.

Lions Speaker Says Service Clubs Needed

President Trinity U. Addresses Lions Tuesday

Dr. J. H. Burma, president of Trinity University at Waxahachie, was a guest of the Lions Club Tuesday noon and addressed the body, saying that service clubs are an essential element in modern life.

Dr. Burma compared the club to the "pep squad" at school, and said it is needed to keep up the spirit and morale of commercial life.

"Modern professional and business life becomes at times so tense that one almost explodes," said the speaker, "and it is at times like these that the service club furnishes a safety valve that tends to create a feeling of optimism."

Stating that the spirit is what counts in life, and that there is not so much difference in the intelligence of men, but in their spirit, Dr. Burma used the illustration of the magnetized piece of steel that is able to lift eight times its own weight, comparing the spirit that moves men to the magnetism in the steel.

"No town can die as long as there is hope in its citizenship," said Dr. Burma, "and the same thing applies to churches, or any organization."

In referring to the present depression, Dr. Burma said that it is a strange thing that we now have hard times in the midst of plenty; in fact too much materialism has ruined the so-called good times. "The progress of material prosperity in the United States the past 25 years has never been equaled in the world's"

FOOD INSPECTOR FINDS NORMAL CONDITIONS HERE

T. J. Salmon, food inspector from the State Department of Health, was in McLean Monday, and stated that conditions in McLean were in line with other towns this size. Not everything was found in strict accordance with the law, but on the whole he found everyone willing to co-operate with the department.

Following is the notice given to dealers in food products by the state department of health:

"Art. 707, sec. 6, of the Texas Food and Drug Law, declares an article of food to be adulterated, if it consists in whole or in part of a FILTHY food." The same section defines the word "filthy" as follows: "The term FILTHY shall be deemed to apply to FOOD not securely protected from flies, dust, dirt, and as far as may be deemed necessary, from all foreign or injurious contaminations."

"Art. 717. Penalty for Violating Pure Food Laws. Whoever shall do any act or thing prohibited, or neglect or refuse to do any act or thing enjoined by the preceding articles of this chapter, or in any way violate any provision thereof shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $200.00. It shall not be necessary for the indictment to allege or for the State to prove that the act or omission was knowingly done or omitted. (Acts 1911, p. 76.)"

"It is clear from the law, that fruit vendors, vegetable peddlers, meat peddlers, and sidewalk dealers, cannot sell food exposed to flies, manure dust of the streets, or other contaminating influences."

Mr. Salmon furnished The News with an article from the Director of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs, that appears elsewhere in this paper.

CAKES FOR THE HOLIDAYS

By Miss Myrtle Miller, Co. H. D. Agt.

A Famous Old Fruit Cake

1 lb grapefruit peel or citron.
 1 lb pecans or black walnuts.
 1 lb candied pineapple.
 1 lb candied red watermelon rind or cherries.
 3 lbs. seeded raisins.
 1 1/2 lbs. currants.
 1/2 lb butter.
 1/2 lb brown sugar.
 1/2 cup fruit juice or sweet pickle syrup.

6 eggs.
 1 lb flour.
 1 tsp. cinnamon.
 1 tsp. cloves.
 1 tsp. nutmeg.
 1/4 tsp. allspice.
 1/2 tsp. salt.

Directions: Wash and dry currants. Cut grapefruit peel or citron and pineapple in 1/4 inch cubes, leaving the cherries and nuts whole. Cream the butter and sugar and beaten egg yolks. Mix flour and spices, add our and fruit juices alternately. Add fruits and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Last of all add beaten egg whites. Mix dough thoroughly and place in baking pans which have been lined with butter paper, which has been oiled. Cover the top of pan with heavy brown wrapping paper which has been oiled. Tie the paper securely over the pan to prevent water getting into the cake. Place the pans in the cooker and pour boiling water into cooker, half way up the pan. Place the top on cooker, but do not fasten clamps. Keep water boiling 55 minutes; after that clamp the lid down securely, close the petcock and raise the pressure to 15 lbs. for 15 minutes. This insures cooking the cake in the center. Remove from cooker, take off paper cover and place pans in a slow oven for 15 minutes to dry out the crust. This makes 11 lbs. Some nuts and fruits may be saved for decorating the top. This is done before putting the cake in the oven.

White Fruit Cake

1 lb white raisins.
 1 lb candied pineapple.
 1/2 lb candied cherries or candied red watermelon rind.
 1 lb shelled almonds or butter nuts.
 1 whole coconut (some of milk may be used).
 1/2 lb dried grapefruit peel.
 1/4 lb lemon peel.
 1/4 lb orange peel.
 1 lb shelled pecans.
 3 1/2 cups flour.
 2 cups sugar.
 1 cup milk.
 1 cup butter.
 Whites of 5 eggs.
 3 tsp. baking powder.
 1 tsp. vanilla.

Directions: Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and beat thorough-

SUPERSENSITIVE PEOPLE

It is the easiest thing in this world to become offended. People who wear their feelings on their coat sleeves usually get jostled around their full share. Supersensitive people invariably read malice in remarks that were not really meant to be piercing. Many of these remarks are misconstrued and the meaning entirely detoured from the original intent.

The "good natured soul" perhaps derives more enjoyment out of his associations than others because he is not always ready to pick out the faults and flaws and feel that he has been cheated out of his just dues. Getting worked up over the pratfalls and rattling chatter of people we contact is not worth the effort. Sometimes the criticism we get is due, perfectly just, whether we think so or not, and when it is not, the case fails to warrant second thought or bother.—Mangum Star.

 pleasures and recreation of the community. No parent expects to raise his own child in a day; there are too many influences to be considered. It is true that there are more young people than at any time in the world's history. The speaker insisted that a parent leading families in any community could change conditions to suit the children could have the right kind of influences thrown around them. "You can only accomplish needed reforms through cooperation," said Dr. Burma.
 In paying his respects to the moving picture industry, Dr. Burma said: "Our children do not belong to the Hollywood crowd; they belong to us and we should see that moving pictures and other amusements are of the right kind."
 Dr. Burma insisted that only Christian teachers should be employed in schools, and stated that there are now plenty of teachers and no school board should consider any but the right kind of teachers for their school. An example was cited: California last year had 5,000 more qualified teachers than there were schools in the state, and a two teacher school in Ellis county has a vacancy and teachers applied for the job.
 "Three-fourths of the reading in the old McGuffey's third reader in use years ago was on morals and religion," said Dr. Burma, "while today the reader of corresponding grade has less than one-fourth about morals, and nothing about religion."
 Dr. Burma closed his remarks by saying that condemning the present system would do no good; steps must be taken in each community to remedy local conditions.

JUDGE SAYS NOT TO CALL DEAD ON JURY

"You cannot get service on dead men, you know," said Judge W. R. Ewing, Monday afternoon in giving instructions to the new jury commission that selects the grand jury and petit jurors for the April term of court.
 "Every term a number of men are appointed to serve on juries who are dead and in their graves when selected by the jury commissioners," said Judge Ewing. "Try to confine your selection to living men. Lay off of preachers, publishers and school teachers—all professional men. Also try to pick jurors under 60 years of age, because if they are 60 and over they are exempt from jury service."

 as ours, is much older. It is inferior to American civilization, he realizes, yet he produces arguments as to why it is better for him. His religion he also defends earnestly, as the worship of his forefathers, and therefore rightfully his above others.
 Chinese study is composed mainly of reading and memorizing. Since every word of the Chinese language is, in writing, a different character, one Chinese is known to have memorized over 72,000 different Chinese characters. To have a Chinese education places one above work. His finger nails grow long and he becomes a beggar or pauper. Because of this, American education, because of its well rounded development, appeals strongly to the Chinese youth.
 Chinese worship is made up of fear. Fear, in the main, of the elements and natural results of little or no sanitation. One can find in one Chinese temple often more than 10,000 different idols. Rev. Cheek exhibited one he had purchased in such a temple for less than a dime in American money. A number of models of Chinese life were shown and the half hour was made most interesting, not only by startling facts about the Chinese, but by the speaker's wit and humor.

Lions Speaker

 history, and our acquisition of material property has been so rapid it has outrun our mental and moral capacity to cope with the problem.
 Saying that the present hard times are not so hard, but are only less good than in boom times, and insisting that the so-called good times were abnormal and we are only now getting back to normalcy, Dr. Burma gave a number of illustrations of hard times in the past.
 The speaker brought out the fact that the idea of progress in any line is a new thing, as formerly it has been the custom to keep up the customs of the past. Progress in transportation, cattle breeding and other things were mentioned, but if the men who possess all these modern things are not better than their forefathers who had to undergo hardships, progress has not helped humanity.
 The present state of world turmoil was said to be unprecedented, but an optimistic note was sounded and the speaker closed by saying that "we must quit making things of which there are now too many, and live for humanity."
 Dr. Burma was presented by Rev. W. A. Erwin, minister of the First Presbyterian Church.

There is only one way to have a successful community chest, and that is to have every organization and everyone represented, and make the fund large enough to end all other drives for charity; letting the one fund take care of all classes of charity cases.

Supt. Boswell's plan of allowing teachers to visit other schools and see other classes engaged in their line of work should work for the benefit of the whole school. There is only one way to keep up with the best methods, and that is to see them in actual practice in our best schools.

The chamber of commerce is sponsoring the poultry show, and while it is expected to pay its own way, the fact remains that any deficit must be made up by the C. of C. members and any others interested. A liberal patronage of the show will mean that it will be self-sustaining—a condition to be desired.

Every town is anxious to attract needed new industries, but many times established industries are forgotten. An established industry is more valuable than a new one, as a rule, and it should be supported just as enthusiastically as a new one would be. In grasping for future interests we sometimes overlook things just as good that are already within our grasp.

Shamrock community chest directors have decided to help only local cases. Brownfield, who organized an Associated Charities fund last week, with all churches and civic organizations represented, voted to have the local pastors act as the investigating committee and asked that the news of the organization be kept out of the daily press, in order that transients might not be attracted to their town. It will be much better for poor folks to stay at home this winter, for it will be hard for the transient beggar to get assistance in a strange town.

John L. McCarty, editor of the Dalhart Texan, will hold his second annual "Cuss the Editor Week" next week. The Dalhart editor originated the idea of cussing the editor for one week in the year in the hope that they would lay off of him for the rest of the year, and evidently he has had some little success, or he would not lay himself liable for another week of concentrated "cussing." It is mighty nice of an editor, after boosting everyone's business in town for a year, to invite them to "cuss" him for everything that they expected him to do and for everything that the "cusser" thought was wrong. Very little has ever been accomplished by cussing anyone, and the Dalhart subscribers will do well to tell their editor to do things just as he thinks best for that is what they would do if places were reversed, and they would resent being cussed for their good intentions.

The Vagabond's Christmas

by HELEN GAISFORD

CRAINS scarcely slowed as they passed through Brayton, but the hobo was watching and dropped off in the snow. He picked himself up whistling, and approached the crossroads station. How well he remembered that station! Even the group of arguing old men seemed the same. Oh, but it was good to be home again, to spend Christmas where he had been so happy as a boy!

One of the men pointed a finger at him. "That," he said, "is what this country is coming to. Able-bodied men roaming the country in rags and tatters. Likely looking fellow, too. I tell you, it's high time congress—"

The vagabond chuckled and proceeded lightly down the road. Suddenly he checked himself. "George!" he said, "there's old Aunt Agatha's house. Why, Aunt Agatha was another mother to every boy in town. I wonder—"

He sprang up on the porch and knocked.

A sharp-faced woman opened the door. "Well!" she gasped; "no, I ain't giving victuals to tramps what can't come to the kitchen!" The door slammed, but he rapped again persistently.

Presently the woman reappeared. "I beg your pardon, ma'am, I'm looking for Miss Agatha Oberman. Do you know where I can find her?"

"She's been dead and buried these eight years. You an old friend of hers?"

"Yes, I'm Ben Martin—used to live in that house on the corner. I'm sure she's gone." He moved down the steps. "Thank you anyway, ma'am and a Merry Christmas."

A little of the zest had gone out of Ben Martin's return. He recognized the town drug store, just ahead, but now it carried a new sign—"Thompson's Pharmacy"—and in smaller letters, "W. J. Thompson, Prop." Inside—

"No, Thanks; Too Used to Freedom," He Said.

—why, of course! "W. J. Thompson Prop." was Bill!

"Bill," he called, "it's me—Ben Martin!"

"Ben!" Their hands clasped. "How well you look! But what on earth let me give you a job."

"No, thanks; too used to freedom—"

"Jove, Ben, you were a sickly kid—how did you do it?"

"Oh, it's careless sleep under the stars; going where adventure calls and doing what comes; eating plain food—and— But what of you and the rest of the boys?"

"Me? Oh, I'm married now and settled down. Tom's our doctor, but I away for the holidays. Bert and Pat have both married and moved away; and Fred is studying in New York. I say, I'd sure like to ask you out to Christmas dinner tomorrow, but, well, Martha's queer about some things."

"That's all right. I'll mosey around to the old homestead. My dear cousins still there?"

"Yes, Your uncle's gone, I suppose you know, but otherwise the family is the same as when the black sheep nephew took off on his own. You'll surprise them."

"No doubt," Ben Martin replied, and made his farewells.

The old house on the corner was much the same. His knock brought a comely young woman to the door. "My dear Cousin Fanny," he said, "it's Ben. Give me a kiss, my dear, and announce to the family that the prodigal has returned."

The family had evidently already learned of his nearness and gathered in the hall. "I was wondering," he said at last, when the first greetings and questions had been exchanged, "whether you could put me up for a few days. I could, of course, sleep outside, if necessary."

"Unfortunately, Benjamin," his aunt replied, "every room is taken, as the family is all home for the holidays. Besides, there is the question of whether or not a wanderer—might have a proper effect on the younger members of the family, let alone the good name of us all. I think you'll understand—"

"I do." He drew himself up. "It was simply the sentiment, I felt I would like to spend Christmas here. But I shan't impose on you. Glad to have seen you all again."

He strode back up the road. "Hang sentiment," he decided, "I'm going south." That night's express bore an extra passenger.

GARDENING VS. GOLF

Is not political and business interest in the United States inversely as the number of home gardeners? Much business is transacted on the golf courses, but golf courses are places of competition and rivalry. The business done there is a business of mergers and trades and deals.

But the man who goes home late in the afternoon to cultivate his beans and cabbages has no thought of rivalry. There is no envy in his heart no wish to gain an advantage over his neighbor. He has a peace that passeth all understanding and is glad to see his neighbor's garden grow.

The recent meeting of the National Gardeners Association led a business man who read of its proceedings to say that at forty he started his first home garden.

"It was a very successful garden," he said, "and I didn't have a single bulletin from the Department of Agriculture. Of course, I have had my ups and downs since that time as all home gardeners will. But I have done pretty well. And as a contribution to peace and contentment I know of nothing that equals the plucking of the luscious roasting ear in your own home grown garden."—Nation's Business.

WOODPECKERS FRIENDS OF MAN

That woodpeckers primarily are friends of man, being especially adapted to ridding trees of borers and bark beetles which no other birds are able to destroy, is the happy conclusion arrived at by Edward Drane Crabb, zoologist, in "The Woodpeckers of Oklahoma," biological survey bulletin recently published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

With the exception of the yellow-bellied sapsucker, woodpeckers are beneficial, according to Crabb. The hairy and downies are the most useful for they are the most common woodpeckers that habitually specialize in the work of excavating boring insects, and they are not as destructive to the tissues of green trees as are the larger species and the sapsuckers.

"Man can appreciate the work done by woodpeckers more fully when he is brought to realize the futility of efforts to rid apple and other trees of the flat headed borer and others, and then is compelled to recognize these birds as the only potent vertebrate enemies of such insects," wrote Crabb.

Radio dealers have their little troubles, too. One of them reports from Birmingham, Ala., that a lady customer called on the telephone to say: "The program coming in on my radio is way too fast. Send someone to slow it down right away."

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which quickly neutralizes acids. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali neutralizes instantly man's excess acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia, the kind physicians have prescribed for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

MICKIE SAYS—

WHO EVER HEARD OF AN AVIATOR SAYING, "NOW THAT I'M UP HIGH ENOUGH, I MIGHT AS WELL SHUT OFF THE GAS AND SAVE MONEY." YET IT IS NOT UNCOMMON FOR A MERCHANT TO BUILD UP A BUSINESS BY ADVERTISING AND THEN SEND IT INTO A "NOSE DIVE" BY AN ILL ADVISED ATTEMPT TO SAVE MONEY BY CUTTING OUT ADVERTISING.

WHO PAYS FOR PUBLIC WORKS?

The pushing of public works in order to supply more jobs may be advisable in a time of unemployment, but there are dangers in it. One danger is the stimulation anew of that old and erroneous idea that work done by the Government "doesn't cost anybody anything" or that the major expense of public works is borne by the wealthy.

The truth is that the large part of such expense is borne by those least able to pay. In 1924 the Secretary of the Treasury in a book entitled "Taxation: the People's Business," said:

"The history of taxation shows that taxes which are inherently excessive are not paid. The high rates inevitably put pressure upon the taxpayer to withdraw his capital from productive business and invest it in tax exempt securities or to find other lawful methods of avoiding the realization of taxable income."

At the time the secretary wrote this he had in mind the burden of high taxation imposed by high surtaxes. But what he said will apply to any tax rate that is too high, no matter in what way it may be achieved.—Nation's Business.

COMMITTEE THANKS NEWS

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 12, 1930. Editor McLean News, McLean, Texas.

Dear Sir: We want you to know that this committee appreciates very much the space that The McLean News devoted to discussion of the amendments that the people of Texas accepted in the last election.

Texans have been loath of late to change their fundamental law, and have within recent years rejected what we believe to have been worthy and meritorious measures. The fact that they have voted in favor of the five amendments submitted this year was due to a better understanding of the purposes of these changes, and their better understanding was brought about by the splendid cooperation rendered by the newspapers of Texas in discussing the amendments. Had the newspapers not aided in the dissemination of information about the amendments, these, too, would doubtless have failed.

The McLean News received weekly requests for publicity from our committee during the campaign. The campaign has now been successfully concluded, but we do not think it would have been properly concluded without expressing to you our gratitude for the consideration shown us by your paper.

Yours very truly,
EDGAR E. WITT, Chairman,
CHAS. S. McCOMBS, Secretary,
Legislative Amendment Committee.

When you hear the voice of a knocker as you list to his hammer fall, Remember the fact that the knocking act Requires no brains at all.

ADVERTISING GRAFTERS

Several papers are trying to find out why it is that the business pockets of many a town will allow for selling advertising or some other card, church directory, book cover or something of the kind at approximately 1000 per cent profit. It is some old kind of a freak advertising scheme of practically no advertising power is good for $100 generally gets about $15 for the job, leaving the balance as the toll which the solicitor collects for a few hours' work. If the printer attempted to put over one of these time-worn stunts, he would be branded as a robber—and ought to be.—Morris (Minn.) Tribune.

The worms will turn. The Federal Radio Commission is predicting a "revolution of the American public against the 'overdose' of advertising on the radio," unless radio broadcasters mend their ways.

Mrs. Lear M. Jones and baby Abernathy visited their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Watkins, last week.

Miss Eileen Nell of Amarillo spent the week end with home folks here.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Mysteries That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

Without a Clue

IT WAS on Christmas night, in 1910, that the first news was made public that what is probably the most baffling and mysterious disappearance of its kind in the police annals of the United States—the unexplained and apparently insoluble vanishing of the apparently healthy and young Harriet Camille Arnold, the daughter of Francis R. Arnold, a wealthy importer.

The facts in the case were few and entirely devoid of sensationalism, thus making the climax stand out with all the force and contrast of lightning against a pitch black sky. On the morning of December 12, thirteen days before any inkling of the affair reached the newspapers, Miss Arnold had left her home at 108 East Seventy-ninth street, New York, supposedly on a morning's shopping. She was in the best of health and spirits and, among the errands which she intended to do, was the purchasing of a dress at one of the Fifth avenue shops. As soon as she found what she wanted she was to call her mother on the telephone and the final decision would then be made.

The thorough and searching investigations of the police and the reporters later developed the fact that Miss Arnold had walked from her home to a store at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, where she purchased a box of candy, which she charged to her personal account. The sales check showed that it was about noon when she left the store and, some two hours later, she was at Brentano's book store, Fifth avenue and Twenty-seventh street, where she bought a book which she stated was to be given away as a Christmas present.

Just as she was leaving Brentano's, Miss Arnold met a woman friend and, in response to the usual question as to how she was feeling, replied: "I never felt better in my life," and then, as she was leaving, she added: "I'm going to walk home through Central park. Want to join me?" But the friend declined and Miss Arnold continued on her way—never again to be heard of. Had the friend accompanied her it is possible that one of the greatest mysteries of modern times might never have occurred but, as it happened, Dorothy Arnold went on alone and vanished.

Wishing to avoid publicity as much as possible, the Arnold family purposely suppressed the news of their daughter's disappearance until, at the request of the police, it was given out in order that the publication of her picture and a full description might develop possible clues to her disappearance. But, although there were a number of apparent inconsistencies about the case—probably due to the natural shrinking from the nationwide attention which the affair attracted—nothing definite was ever discovered. The most striking point elicited by the investigations of the newspaper reporters was that, despite the Arnold family's definite statements that their daughter had had no love affairs, she had been carrying on a secret correspondence with a bachelor in Pittsburgh. But it was quite evident that the man in question could have had no connection whatever with the disappearance of the New York heiress and this lead was dropped both by the police and the press.

White slavery, which was at that time very much in the public eye, was popularly blamed for the unsolved mystery but when it came to details even the most astute detectives were at a loss to explain how a strong, athletic girl like Miss Arnold could have been kidnaped and concealed without leaving the slightest trace, while, if she had been made away with, it would have been practically impossible to hide all signs of the body and her distinctive clothing—descriptions of which were flashed to all parts of the world. That Miss Arnold had not planned to leave home was evident from the fact that she left all her jewels and a considerable sum of money in cash behind her and that, on the very morning of her disappearance, she had written several letters relative to a tea in honor of a number of her former schoolmates at Bryn Mawr.

The theory of suicide was untenable because her body would have been found. Premeditated flight was hardly to be considered, while sudden flight would have undoubtedly led to recognition somewhere in the country. Foul play was the only alternative remaining, but in the event that Miss Arnold was either kidnaped or killed, how did those responsible succeed in hiding all traces of their crime from the police of two continents?

This is the question which has puzzled the minds of master detectives like William J. Burns, Chief Flynn of the secret service, Sir E. R. Henry, chief of Scotland Yard, and hundreds of others who have endeavored in vain to solve the riddle without a clue.

Robot Writes Message

Berlin, Germany, has been much interested in a full-sized dummy of a woman, which writes the exact reproduction of the handwriting of the sender operating some distance away. The operator pens the message on a device which transmits the impulses to the robot, which in turn transfers these impulses to a blackboard or chart.

What Roger Brought Home

A Christmas Story
by MYRTLE KOON CHERRYMAN

was always bringing home something. His twelve-year-old ideas of fun, household benefit and chivalry were sometimes embarrassing to the family. This time, it was a foreign looking woman, and luckily Mr. Damon was busy in the library, so he didn't have the shock of seeing her first.

Mrs. Damon, as she lay in bed, recovering from an attack of flu, had the news broken to her gently by Roger, who came in and closed the door after him.

"Mother, when I went down to the station to mail that letter on the train for Dad, I saw a woman sitting there crying, and I found out she'd come to work for some family, and they hadn't met her. She'd lost the address and could not remember their name— isn't that dumb? So I brought her home to have something to eat—she hadn't had any breakfast, and was afraid to go to a hotel."

"But, darling, did you tell her you was sick, and that our maid had to go home for a funeral?"

"Yes, I explained that we were in a pickle, too, and were trying to decide whether Dad and I should go to a hotel for our dinner."

"Well, you are going! It's foolish of you to stay home because the doctor won't let me get up yet. The turkey will keep, and if my fever doesn't return today, I can get up tomorrow. Mary will be back next day, and we can have our Christmas dinner then."

"Well, we'll see—but now I'm going to take her into the kitchen—she's Mrs. Schwartz—German, I guess—and get out the eggs and things for her. I told her I'd make her some toast, but that I wasn't very good on coffee. Dad could make it fine, but I was afraid he wouldn't be enthusiastic."

"Hardly!" exclaimed Mrs. Damon, remembering her husband's complex against doing anything not on the program. "Well, do the best you can, dear—but I hate to think of the way that kitchen must look after two days of male housekeeping."

She went back to her reading, and as the house was quiet, she finally fell asleep, making up for the hours lost worrying in the night about what her "boys" would do for holiday festivity in this bleak situation.

Two hours later she was roused by a gentle tap at her door, and in response to her "Come?" Roger entered, carrying a dainty tray, with a cup of steaming chocolate, and some attractive little cakes.

"She made it—the chocolate—and these are some kebabs, or whatever you call 'em—she had in her bag, like they make in the old country. And she's got all the dishes washed. I helped put 'em away—and now, what d'ye s'pose?"

"She has unfolded her wings and flown back to heaven!" guessed Mrs. Damon, sipping the most delicious cocoa she had ever tasted.

"No! She's got the turkey in the oven, and is getting the dinner! I'm going to the phone now to see if I can locate the folks that sent for her. She remembered the name—Martin. She told me half an hour ago, but I didn't want to hurry too much, because I wanted her to get the dinner cooked first."

"Oh, you swamp!" laughed his mother. "Go right to the phone and call up all the Martins. There are so many it may take until the turkey is done, anyway."

"Yes, it's pretty near ready now!" Whether Roger artfully timed his search for lost employers or not, they were located just as dinner was ready, and were so jubilantly grateful that they told Mrs. Schwartz to serve the dinner and eat her own; they would send for her in an hour to cook their own evening meal. It seemed they had expected her at another station, and had worried all morning over what had happened to the poor woman, as well as what would happen to their own poor dinner.

When the angel-cook left at four o'clock, she would take no pay for her work, saying: "I had a gut Christmas, and dis little boy vas my Kris Kringle."

HEALTHY HENS MEAN CHRISTMAS EGGS

By Ralph R. Thomas, Co. Agent Pampa, Dec. 1.—If you expect to have any Christmas eggs it is well to look into the worm proposition in your poultry flock. You cannot expect a hen to feed a dozen or so worms, and absorb the toxic substance given off by the worms, and then have the vitality left to lay many eggs. Besides the hens not laying, the mortality during the winter months is likely to be high in wormy flocks, due to the susceptibility to colds, roup and the like, due to the worms bringing down the vitality of the birds.

It is best to be safe and see for sure if your flock has worms or not, as most flocks have that have not been wormed this fall. Kill an unthrifty bird, string out the intestines and split the intestine from end to end and look for tape worms and round worms.

The treatment most recommended is a combination round worm and tape worm capsule containing nicotine sulphate and kamala. These capsules may be obtained from your drugist. Two pounds of fresh tobacco dust to one hundred pounds of mash is also recommended to be fed to the flock for three weeks, stop feeding the dust for a week and repeat another three weeks. The dust method costs nearly as much, however, as the capsules, and does not rid the flock so soon.

FOOD CONTAMINATION

By E. G. LeMay, Director Bureau of Food and Drugs, State Department of Health

Judging from observation and food and drug inspectors' reports, the average consumer accepts foods which have been exposed to contamination either in preparation or when displayed for sale, with indifference. In fact, the average consumer pays less attention to the quality and character of the foods he buys than any other article he purchases. This lack of interest on the part of the public presents a difficult problem for the state and city food and drug officials in enforcing the Food and Drug Law and sanitary regulations requiring the proper protection of foodstuffs from contamination.

Chain store managers state that their volume of sales of candies and certain prepared foodstuffs are greatest in those states which place no restrictions upon open displays. Apparently the customer wants the goods so displayed that they may be handled or sampled, never giving a thought to the contamination they may produce in the food.

Food and drug inspectors report constantly the observance of happenings in connection with open displays of easily contaminated foodstuffs which are not only repulsive but highly dangerous. Children have been seen to touch with their tongues candies displayed on tables on a level with their mouths. Restaurants display pies, baked apples and other sweet foods on counters at which the customers eat, and, of course, breathe, cough and sneeze directly on these products. Customers in cafeterias often take foods, examine them and return same for someone else to eat. Customers in bakeries have been observed to handle bakery products with filthy hands and to even touch those goods with their nose and lips.

Almost all cases of food poisoning reported as caused by ptomaines are in fact caused by bacterial contamination, or by poisons produced by bacteria which could have been prevented by the proper protection of the food. Some of our most fatal contagious diseases are transmitted by vermin, rats, or mice, crawling over easily contaminated foods. Such contamination is not apparent until after the food is eaten and the symptoms of disease occur.

The open display of candies and as pies, cakes, etc., where colds, flu and other respiratory diseases are prevalent offer a serious hazard to children and adults as well. The display of candies in show windows is a serious hazard. Candies are often poured in bulk into the window. Always the containers are uncovered. It is well known that most stores are infested with roaches, rats and mice. Public opinion should be such that displays of this character and for that matter the open display of any food subject to contamination would bring the severest criticism and refusal to buy on the part of the consumer.

Apparently a large per cent of the public favor such displays, as very little criticism of these practices is heard. Restaurant and cafeteria proprietors frankly state they cannot sell pies and other sweet foods unless they are openly displayed in close contact with the customers. Sufficient law already exists to prevent such exposure of foods as outlined above. In order to effectively enforce this law, it requires frequent inspections and the backing of strong public opinion.

The State Bureau of Foods and Drugs is conducting a campaign against the handling and display of foods in such a manner as to cause dangerous contamination.

In order that this campaign may be successful, the co-operation of all city and county health officers, as well as the food industries themselves, is requested. Some of the food industries are already co-operating with the Department by eliminating the objectionable practices. The public should be educated to the dangers of unprotected foods to such an extent that they will refuse to buy any foods that are exposed to contamination.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

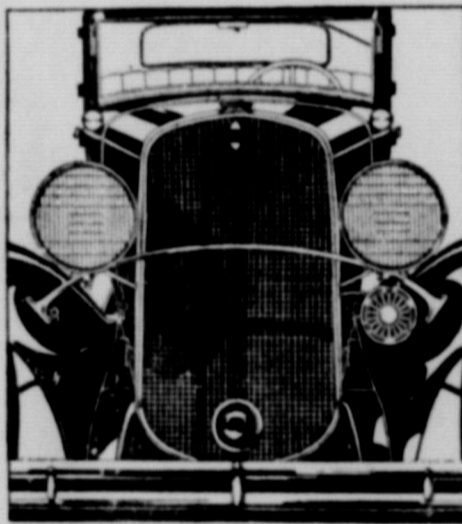

*Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart
—a masterpiece of Fisher styling*

In the entire field of modern coachcraft no symbol has come to mean more to the buyer of a motor car than Body by Fisher. And never has Fisher's superiority been more strikingly exemplified than in the beautiful new bodies of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six!

Working with the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to achieve in the new Chevrolet a degree of smartness, comfort and impressiveness hitherto considered exclusive to cars far higher in price.

Inside and out, you will discover scores of refinements that stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar have been artistically grouped to create an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back from the graceful new radiator in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new colors, in carefully devised combinations, lend a new individuality.

Front view of the new Chevrolet Sport Coupe

Interiors, too, are exceptional in every way. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is tailored with exceptional smartness. Seats are wider and deeper and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision for both driver and passengers. And beautiful new hardware, of modern design, lends a final note of charm.

The greater quality and beauty of the new Chevrolet-Fisher bodies have a counterpart in the many improvements which have been provided in the chassis of this Bigger and Better Six. Among these improvements are a longer, deeper, stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother-shifting transmission; and engine refinements which make the new Chevrolet a car you will be happy to drive—as well as proud to own.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display in our showrooms. See it today—drive it—and learn for yourself that it is the Great American Value!

The Handsome Man

by MARGARET TURNBULL Illustrations by LEWIN MYERS

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Returning to London by pension, after an unusual business trip to South America, George Sandison takes dinner with his widowed stepmother, Mrs. Aggy. He has not spoken of her marriage to his father since he was a boy. She makes an explanation that was not contrived to marry a baronet!

CHAPTER II—With his young stepmother, Lady Sandison is living on an island. The girl is a victim of arthritis and is physically helpless. Leaving her, after an interchange of letters, Lady Sandison meets Aggy, who had been her cook and butler, who had been sent to her by her father. She directs them to the man in the handsome shaven.

CHAPTER III—Aggy's lips had closed. She was not one to approve measures, and was in full with her brother's determination that things should not go on for the girl's own sake. "What do you think so, Aggy? You're a great comfort," then he turned to Sir George. "I'd like you to stay here, Sir George. If it suits you. It will be best for me, and there's plenty of room."

CHAPTER IV—Robert MacBeth looked puzzled. He had forgotten that Roberta knew nothing about this aunt, except that she was a poor and obstinate Scotch woman, who foolishly refused the money he had offered. How would she take this new element he was introducing into his home? Would Roberta see her aunt's real worth or only her odd ways and clothes and queer modes of expression?

CHAPTER V—"If I could only keep it from her," muttered Robert MacBeth. "I might try it as an experiment." "I wouldn't," declared Sir George quickly. "It's hardly fair. If we're to be in the house, she should know all about us, I think, sir."

CHAPTER VI—"It would be a grand lesson to her if we kept it from her," declared her Aunt Aggy. "Roberta isn't that kind," retorted her father indignantly. "She's not a snob. She's just a naughty child."

CHAPTER VII—"Hello, Dad!" Roberta called. "What's happened? No lights in the garage. No sign of Willy. No one in the kitchen. Where are the maids?" "They went away with Willy, as soon as your back was turned," her father told her. "Didn't you expect it?"

CHAPTER VIII—"I did not." The flippant Roberta's eyes roamed for just a moment on the conspicuously handsome young man who happened to be standing near her father's chair. She bent over her father and said in a voice that though low, reached Sir George: "What's Phœbus Apollo, or is it Adonis, doing here?"

CHAPTER IX—"Then before her father could prevent her, she turned to Sir George. "It isn't, of course, included in the regular duties of a butler but still in an emergency—if you would put my car in the garage for me—"

Both looked up at her, and Sir George sprang to clear a place on the table and take the tray from her. "You should have called me, Aggy," he said reproachfully. "You're a wonder, Aggy," declared her brother, looking at the toast. "I've been offering Sir George the post of secretary, private secretary, a sort of liaison officer between me, in my crippled state here, and my New York office. I have a secretary there, but I want him at the office. I need a man who can go to the city and get things done for me and at the same time take a look outside at the various jobs, and come here and give me an idea as to whether my plans are being carried out or not."

Lady Sandison looked at him and nodded approval. "You have done well to take Sir George here. Have a bit of toast, Rob, and let me put jam on it. It will set you up. And to think you two have planned it out all yourselves, without any help!" She looked at them both admiringly. Sir George returned the look warily. He knew his Aggy of old, but her brother smiled broadly. It was warming to him to find how much he liked Aggy again. Despite her handicaps—poverty, her lack of family—had she not contrived to marry a baronet!

CHAPTER X—"While we're sipping our tea," said Lady Sandison, comfortably aware that Sir George was admiring her, "you'll maybe be able to tell me, Rob, where your daughter generally stays out when there's dinner to get and none to get it?" Robert MacBeth looked worried. "She ought to be home. We quarreled, of course, this morning, but I hardly thought she'd leave me alone so long."

CHAPTER XI—"Something by-ordinary's detained her," declared Aggy. Ever since she had glimpsed Roberta this morning, she had had her mind made up about that young lady, but she was not telling Roberta's father. "Don't put yourself out, Rob. She's no run away. She'll be home soon."

CHAPTER XII—"Oh, do you think so, Aggy? You're a great comfort," then he turned to Sir George. "I'd like you to stay here, Sir George. If it suits you. It will be best for me, and there's plenty of room."

CHAPTER XIII—"If I could only keep it from her," muttered Robert MacBeth. "I might try it as an experiment." "I wouldn't," declared Sir George quickly. "It's hardly fair. If we're to be in the house, she should know all about us, I think, sir."

Restless CHILDREN CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper, mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine. That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Fletcher's CASTORIA

Students and friends of McLean high school will be pleased to know that, not only "The eyes of Texas are upon us," but our school is favorably known in another state. Supt. Boswell has just received the cordial letters published below. We are indeed glad to read these words of appreciation and favorable comment from such men as A. W. Blackman of the state department of education, and President Hill of the West Texas State Teachers College. We are glad to know from Mr. J. B. Rutland his opinion of the boys who made the trip to Kansas City with Mr. Tampke. This was a national meeting, and I. D. Shaw, Racy Morse, Clark Stockton and Arthur Ivey are the boys who represented this section of Texas. On behalf of the faculty and student body of McLean high school, we wish to thank these men for their good words.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 25, 1930.
 Mr. G. C. Boswell,
 Superintendent of Schools,
 McLean, Texas.

Dear Mr. Boswell:
 I want to thank you and your school board for sending such a fine group of boys to represent your section of the state at Kansas City. The boys behaved themselves nicely and showed that they were gentlemen in every respect. It is not only a credit to your school, but also a credit to the State of Texas to have boys of such caliber to represent the state at a national meeting.

We appreciate very much your cooperation in helping Mr. Tampke put over his program at McLean.
 Very truly yours,

Dear Supt. Boswell:
 I thank you most heartily for the copy of the McLean paper. Mr. Landers was certainly gracious in his treatment of my visit. I greatly appreciate the splendid hospitality of yourself and the citizens of your city. I enjoyed the association with you people, and trust that I may have done a little good.

Please express to the members of the various classes my deep appreciation of their letter of Nov. 21st. Mr. George and the boys in the quartet join me in this expression of thanks.

With every good wish, I am,
 Sincerely yours,

REV. GOFF IN CHAPEL

On Wednesday morning Rev. Goff of the First Baptist Church spoke to the students at the regular chapel hour. He chose for the theme of his interesting talk "What We Have to Be Thankful for." We appreciate the good messages brought to us each Wednesday by the loyal ministers of the town.

DR. JOHN HARMON BURMA

At two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, Dr. John Harmon Burma, president of Trinity University, addressed the faculty and students of McLean high school. The theme of Dr. Burma's interesting talk was the value of an earnest spirit and perseverance. He brought out clearly the following facts: That the world is full of good commences who never finish; the day of brawn and mule-power is gone. We are living in a day when there are more college graduates than there were high school graduates when he was in school. In illustrating these facts, Dr. Burma said that the lumber camps use a large per cent of college trained men; that what we need is more intelligence in every walk of life.

He said that the fellow who cannot be told anything will never learn. The only difference between man and machinery is the ability to think. The real progress, according to Dr. Burma, is in humanity and in personality. "The world is not asking what we know, but what can we do. Happiness does not depend upon what we have, but what we are. If we combine an earnest spirit and perseverance with whatever talent we have, we can go far. There is still much room at the top."

Dr. Burma came to us, as did Dr. Hill, through the courtesy and planning by members of the Lions Club and other public spirited men of the town. Bishop Seyman will speak to the Lions Club and to the general public on January 13. We appreciate having with us these outstanding men of our state, and the messages they bring us.

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The Study Club has placed many good, beautiful and interesting pictures in the auditorium for the school to study and examine. Tuesday the junior English class looked over these pictures and selected one each, of which they will write a theme. We enjoyed these pictures a great deal and feel that they have helped to enlarge our appreciation of art, and we wish to thank the Study Club for them.

Christmas "Surprise" to the Wrong Person
 by Blanche Tanner Dillis

"ARE the napkins all right, Mrs. Barker?" handing the package to the other woman.
 "Beautifully done, Mrs. Barker," paying her for the newly hemmed napkins. "And a very Merry Christmas."
 "Thank you so much. I am sure I shall have a happy day, for the nicest thing has happened."
 "What was it?" her hostess asked.
 "I have wanted my sister with me for Christmas, but I didn't see how I could afford an extra expense. There has been so much lately," Mrs. Barker explained.

Mrs. Barker knew the little woman had had a struggle to meet expenses. "I never buy much from Mr. Atwood's grocery, and this morning I ordered some flour and a few things, nothing very Christmasy. I did want a turkey and all the trimmings, but I couldn't afford it," she sighed.
 "After I had been home a while I found a turkey, cranberries and everything for a Christmas dinner. I was so delighted!" wiping tears of joy from her eyes. "I thought there was a mistake perhaps, but there was a package of dried fruit was a Merry Christmas from the Atwood Market" and the ticket had my name on it.
 "What a happy surprise," Mrs. Barker cried.
 "I must stop and thank Mr. Atwood, for I couldn't do it over the telephone," moving to the door. "I telegraphed my sister and she will be here in the morning, I suppose. A Merry Christmas," she called as she went down the path.

Mary, the cook, came into the room. There was a mistake in the order. The line was busy—she couldn't get the market. "What did they send?" Mrs. Barker asked.
 "Flour and some things like that," Mary answered.

Mrs. Barker, looking at the order saw what had happened. The ticket for "F. H. Barker" had gone on the order for "F. H. Baker."
 "Just keep the order, Mary; I want to telephone." After telephoning first to the grocer and then to Mr. Barker, she told Mary that she might have Christmas day off, as she and Mr. Barker would be dining out.

MATTER OF LOCATION

Small Boy—"Father, what do they mean when they say 'Civic Pride'?"
 Father—"Well, it's something like this: If the state institution for the demented is located in our own city we refer to it as the state hospital. If, however it is located in another city, we call it the insane asylum."

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

CHRISTMAS, Merry Christmas, what magic lies in your name—what joy and happiness are associated with your coming! Every corner of the earth thrills to the sound of your voice—every heart is made glad by the message you bring! City and town await your coming with the same eagerness and happy anticipation; rich and poor give you the same hearty welcome. The old and the young, the great and the humble, know that you will not fail them. Through changing years and times always you have brought the same glad joy; the same welcome message of love and peace and good will. The happiness that you bring lights up every face; under your influence every home radiates good cheer and the Christmas candles shine as a symbol of the love and joy within. With some kind of magic you transform us all into the men and women we would wish to be; with a power that no other day possesses you prompt us to deeds of love and service and giving. Cares are forgotten in the joy you bring; sunshine fills every heart as the spirit of love and friendliness spreads itself abroad. And with one voice the whole world bids you welcome and all bless you for the joy and the happiness you bring.—Katherine Kefelman

A SHORT STORY

By P. J. Kierman

Years ago there was a boy in our neighborhood who amused himself by bringing down birds with a sling-shot. Whenever one of his feathery victims was lucky enough to escape death from the slugging, he would pull off its wings as it lay helpless on the ground and then would chortle with ghoulish glee when the little creature wiggled its stumps in a futile effort to rise.

It was great fun for the boy. It wasn't much fun for the bird.
 The good people of the community predicted a dire end for that boy. They were certain that, in some manner, justice would catch up with him and treat him a hallow'en party—that is, if he avoided being struck by a bolt from the blue in the meantime.

Nothing of the sort has happened. He has grown right on up, like weeds, on a basis of doing, and travels, contaminating everything he touches with the bacteria of pestilence and ruin.

He is now a professional bear—he sells all things short.

His mission in life is to depreciate, underestimate and pull down everything and everybody.

To him, nothing is ever worth as much as you and others think it is. To see anyone or anything making headway causes him a pain amidship.

He is always pessimistic and heavily laden with gloomy forebodings.

While things are prospering, he thinks it's all a mistake, and so he waits around the corner with his new toy—more deadly than his sling-shot—the short sale.—Heavy Stuff.

NOT ACCORDING TO GAY

It was reported to the McLean News, while president of the University, that a party was held in one of the dormitories on "hou." Thither the good wended his way to investigate his knock at the door came response. "Who's that?"

"It's me," replied the doctor. "Who's me?" came the question. "Dr. McCosh," answered the doctor. "You're a liar; if it is I, I would say 'It is I.' Go about your business," which doctor McCosh did, on tip-toe, and refrained from telling the story for at least a year.

FAMILY DOCTOR
 MADE MILLIONS OF FRIENDS

Fifteen years ago his graduate Dr. Caldwell became famous on a single prescription, which now, forty years, is still making him

Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup is the world's most popular medicine. Millions of people never think of using anything else when they are constipated, headachy, bilious, or weak; when their breath is bad, or coated, or they're suffering from nausea, gas, or lack of appetite.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup is made today according to the original formula, from herbs and other ingredients. It is pleasant and thorough in the most obstinate cases. It is especially effective for women and children. Above all, it is the doctor's choice of what is suitable for bowels.
