Representative Warwick to Speak Roy Campbell Shoots 3 Under Par Local Golf Course

All Records Smashed on Local Course

Campbell Shoots a Snappy 33 on Club Course

Roy Campbell shot a 33 on the 36 hole course of the McLean Country Club last Friday, breaking records of the local club.

Mr. Campbell made an "eagle" on the 9th hole and "birdies" on 4 and 5.

Dr. C. B. Batson was a partner in the twosome and vouches for the fact that the play was made at each hole.

Following is the play made at each hole:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
4 4 5 4 3 4 4 3 5—36
4 4 5 3 2 5 4 3 3—33

Mr. Campbell shot a 35 again Sunday morning. He is considered one of the best players in the local club and shoots consistent low scores.

Several local golfers predict that the 33 record will stand for a long time in the club unless a professional visits McLean.

John C. Haynes parred the course Sunday.

McLEAN LOSES TO SHAMROCK GOLFERS

McLean golfers played the Cole Creek Club members at Shamrock Sunday, winning three of the 22 matches played. A feature of the game was a match entered against a Shamrock player by a McLean caddy, Billy Newman, who won his match. McLean ladies enjoyed the afternoon with swimming, etc.

This was the second tournament held this year in which McLean failed to win a majority of the matches.

GOLF GOSSIP

By D. A. Davis

Judge Rice is one of our committee-men to solicit new members for the club. He is undoubtedly the most enthusiastic golf member we have in the club, but think he is a bum salesman. He tried to sell Elzy Ayer and "Bringham" Young a membership. Next thing we know he will be trying to sell Jot Montgomery some stock in the McLean Gas Company. "Dock" Campbell, while teeing off from one of the five par holes at Shamrock Sunday, asked his opponent how many yards it was to the green. He remarked that it was quite a long way over there, but it was only a hundred yards to the flag.

Clint Doolen dreamed that he was in heaven. He noticed several angels flying in disparate fashion, each in turn kicking the other. Amazed at their actions, he called to John Haynes near by, asking what was the trouble. John answered saying, "Oh, that's Johnnie Back, Fenn Fourland and Madison Bentley. They just found out from St. Peter a little while ago that it wasn't any sin to play golf on Sunday."

Jesse Cobb has ordered a set of clubs that have "sliding handles" so he can reach the low ones.

Mr. Davidson was asked how his score was and he remarked that it averaged eight beats to the measure.

"Golf Minded" Donald Beall sure is golf minded. He went home the other day and found a score card on the table, and reading it over, remarked to his wife "Vera, I see you made a good score today. On No. 1 I see you made potatoes, No. 2 cabbage, No. 3 sugar, No. 4 pepper, No. 5 bacon, No. 6 bread, No. 7 butter, No. 8 lettuce and No. 9 squash." Vera said something about "being crazy," but we golf "fiends" call it "golf minded." (It was only a list of groceries she had ordered).

Our boys were badly defeated by the Cole Creek Club bunch at Shamrock Sunday. However, some of the matches were hotly contested and not lost until over 18 holes were played. They also report a nice time and fine treatment from the boys down there. Several birdies were made and some good scores were turned in. The only alibi they had was that Shamrock has simply got some dandy golfers.

Kelly Newman, one of our caddies, who plays once in a while, played at Shamrock Sunday and won his match. This shows what our youngsters can do with a little practice. We have several youngsters here that are going to develop into good golfers some day. Laurence Bourland has got old man Fenn badly scared right now, for fear "son" will soon be able to beat him. Just as well get ready for the disappointment. Mr. Bourland, for it's surely coming. Judge Rice, Uncle Bill Campbell and myself have already drunk the bitter cup.

The writer is some dreamer himself (hardly ever dreams about angels kicking each other around) but each time I go over the steps (or are they "stiles"?) I just can't help but day-dream of the time when we are able to build us a nice club house down in that valley and all set out with nice shade trees, flowers and the like, with a club lake stocked with fish, and a flock of tennis courts, croquet grounds and all kinds of "doodads" for the kiddies to enjoy. This is not impossible, folks, and some day you are going to see this very thing, and this is really what most of us members have in mind. It's not the things that are, but the final results that we are planning for in the future that cause us to spend our time and money.

Ruel Smith's rheumatism is much better. He won his match at Erick and Shamrock. If he keeps on improving he might be able to work some in his garden this fall.

Two new members, Mr. Allison, cashier at the American National Bank; and Owen Moore, one of our

Lions Hold Last Meeting of Fiscal Year

The last meeting of the fiscal year under the direction of present officers was held by the Lions Club Tuesday noon.

Most of the meeting was taken up by report of the picnic committee, planning for the installation of new officers next Tuesday evening.

President Boyd Meador was given a rising vote of thanks for his untiring efforts in behalf of the club during the past year.

Rev. Jno. H. Crow was made master of ceremonies for the picnic. Boyd Meador was appointed kitchen generalissimo in charge of the refreshment, with John W. Cooper as aide-de-camp. Claude Williams was appointed property man to see that all necessary equipment is in place at the picnic.

It was reported that Representative Clyde W. Warwick of Canyon would make the principal address and that "Old Tack" of Amarillo has also promised to be present if he returns home in time.

The committee reported that negotiations are under way to secure a magician to install the incoming officers and that the ceremony will be suddenly performed without a chance for long-winded speeches.

It was moved to invite all prospective members and families to the picnic; everyone to meet at 6 p. m. at the city park to go to the picnic grounds at Hackberry grove on the John Carpenter ranch, in a body.

Supt. G. C. Boswell explained a recent supreme court ruling in regard to high school matters.

Those present were Boyd Meador, W. A. Erwin, A. A. Tampke, C. S. Rice, Evan L. Sitter, W. E. Bogan, T. W. Gilstrap, Reep Landers, Ralph Caldwell, D. A. Davis, Jno. H. Crow, G. C. Boswell, John W. Cooper, Claude Williams and T. A. Landers.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS HAVE CALVES ON FEED

Seven 4-H Club boys and one girl have eleven calves on feed in Gray county for the 1931 spring shows, according to reports of County Agent Ralph R. Thomas. The list of feeders includes Andrew Wilson, Wilbur Lee Wilson and Billy Wilson of McLean. Other having calves on feed in the county are Betty Farley, Jim Farley, Joe Wagoner, Evert Vanderburg and John Mackie.

These animals were selected from some of the best herds in the Panhandle, including the R. T. Alexander herd near Canadian, and the Par-Lo herd owned by Geo. W. Sitter of McLean. It will be remembered that the senior champion, fitted and shown by Jim Farley in the 1931 Amarillo show, was bred by the Bar LO ranch, as well as other calves that were in the money.

HIGH SCHOOL TUITION LAW

The following letter from S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent, to Supt. G. C. Boswell of the McLean schools, is self-explanatory:

The recent decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Neota Camp et al vs. Dallas city schools, known as the Love high school tuition case, materially affects the administration of the rural high school tuition law.

The court holds that no one can receive the benefits of free high school tuition unless he has been enumerated on the high school census and is subject to be transferred. It will be necessary, therefore, to make from the benefits of this law the following classes of students:

1. Scholastics who reside in the rural school district but who were omitted from the scholastic census in March.

2. Scholastics who are of high school grade who have become residents of a rural, non-high school district, after the taking of the census, unless such pupils have been enumerated within the county or in an adjoining district of a contiguous county and have been transferred to the district of their new residence.

3. Pupils over seventeen years of age. These pupils are not subject to transfer and are not allowed to attend school, even in their home district, without the payment of tuition.

4. Pupils enumerated in one county who desire to attend high school in another county, unless the high school student resides in a county line district and desires to be transferred to a contiguous high school district in the adjoining county.

This decision is based upon the theory that only such children as have been enumerated are subject to transfer and that only those who have been transferred can receive the benefits of the high school tuition law.

The state superintendent has made a much more liberal interpretation of the provisions of the high school tuition law, but his construction must now be revised to conform to the decision of the court. He has uniformly held that all pupils who were under 21 years of age and who resided in a district were entitled to attend the free school maintained by the district. This has been the interpretation of the statutes since 1913.

When the high school tuition law was enacted, it naturally followed that it would be the responsibility of the district to pay their tuition if no high school was maintained in the home district. The Supreme Court seems to hold that the enumeration of the child and the subsequent apportionment of the funds is the basis of his right to the privilege of free high school tuition and not his residence in the district. This decision places the administration of the schools, in so far as the older students are concerned, on the same basis as prior to 1913, and there seems to be no practicable remedy except an amendment to the constitution.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MEET MONDAY

Next Monday night is the regular monthly meeting date for the chamber of commerce, and President T. W. Gilstrap says the meeting will begin promptly at 8:30 at the city secretary's office.

All members and others interested in civic matters are expected to be present.

Legislator On Program Lions Picnic

Big Affair Planned for Outdoor Picnic

Hon. C. W. Warwick, member of the legislature, from Canyon, will make the principal address at the Lions Club picnic and installation of officers next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Warwick will speak on the workings of the legislature. He has made an enviable record while at Austin, and will be able to interest everyone fortunate enough to hear him Tuesday.

"Old Tack" of the Amarillo News-Globe has also been invited to speak, as has Sam Braswell of Clarendon, district Lions governor.

Rev. Jno. H. Crow, pastor of the First Methodist Church, has been appointed master of ceremonies and will have full charge of the evening's activities.

The following report of T. W. Gilstrap, chairman of the picnic committee, to Lion officials, gives the plans for the evening:

"As explained to you in conversations today, the annual installation of officers of McLean Lions Club will be the occasion of a picnic to be held at Hackberry grove at 7 p. m., Tuesday, July 7, 1931. McLean's hand as well as a number of our friends, are being invited to be with us and our families.

"It is suggested that the master of ceremonies assemble the picnicers in the city park at McLean between the hour of 6 and 6:30, and that he lead the party to Hackberry so as to reach that place by 7 p. m. Our permission to use the grounds at Hackberry requires us to 'frisk' each member of the party to see that no guns are carried to the picnic. The master of ceremonies will please arrange accordingly. To assist the master of ceremonies, the following program is tentatively suggested:

"Music—McLean band. "Dinner—Generalissimo de Cuisine. "Field games—Lions, Lionesses and Cubs. "Lionism—Fern Landers. "Retirement of old officers—Club Magician. "Installation of new officers—Club Magician. "Address—Hon. C. W. Warwick editor Canyon News. "Music—McLean band. "Band music or special numbers by band members to be used wherever appropriate, arrangements to be made by master of ceremonies and Band Master Davidson. "It is suggested that the generalissimo de cuisine proceed to Hackberry a sufficient length of time ahead of the pictures to prepare a frugal meal by the time the master of ceremonies and his party reach the grounds. The following menu is recommended: "Weinerwurst—fix um like you want um. Bacon—likewise. Hard boiled eggs (no Lions included), butter, bread, pickles, lemonade, ice tea, cake by Caldwell (Lion), fried chicken, salt, pepper. "The committee approves the generalissimo de cuisine's selection of Lion John Cooper as aide de camp, who is charged with the duty of providing the picnic with sufficient supplies of good wholesome quality. "The Lion tamer is property custodian under the by-laws of the club. It is suggested that the Lion tamer proceed to the picnic grounds a sufficient length of time ahead of the generalissimo de cuisine's arrival to have all equipment in place and ready for the generalissimo's use. It is mandatory that he have the colors, the president's gong and other club (Continued in left-hand column)

Next Sunday's Lesson

THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT
Acts 1:6-9; 2:1-4

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff

The Sunday school lessons for the remaining part of the year will be made up of a historical study of early Christianity following the ascension of the Messiah. The lesson texts will be taken from Acts, written by Luke. He was probably a native of Philippi, and a physician by profession. He met Paul at Troas and after that spent most of his time traveling with Paul in his missionary journeys. Only a short time were they separated.

When Jesus had been crucified, the disciples had dispersed and gone back to some sort of business for a livelihood, with a great sorrow in their hearts. When the resurrection took place and Jesus began again to appear to His disciples, they began to gather together, and by the time of His ascension they were again in a sufficiently unified body that Jesus not only had them gathered together at the time of His ascension, but left them with a message that kept them as a unity for the following ten days until the coming of the Holy Spirit.

Even at the time of the ascension of the Master, the disciples did not understand the real nature of the Kingdom which He had founded, and of which He had assumed the High Priesthood. They asked Him if He would then establish His Kingdom. His answer was a promise of something they had not thought of, rather than to their question. The time for the Kingdom establishment was God's own secret, and they need not expect to learn it, but He would give them something better—power. Power to be His witnesses unto the uttermost parts of the earth. With that promise, a cloud came down under Him and bore Him away as the High Priest and King of a new and spiritual Kingdom. The word Jesus used for "power" is an interesting word. It is translated "power," but is the word that is not translated but anglicized to give us our words "dynamo" and "dynamite." Jesus then meant that the Holy Spirit would descend upon them to make them dynamite to blast out the rock ribbed sin in the stream of humankind, and then great dynamite to create a mighty eternal power for a civilization built upon Christian principles of Love, Godliness and Brotherhood.

It was ten days later, on the Jewish Sabbath, in the early morning, that there came a sound of a rushing wind and a cloud of fire that divided and rested upon each one. The Holy Spirit was present. He was perceived in four ways: the sound of the coming presence, the appearance of the tongues of fire, an inner experience of being filled with the Holy Spirit, and the miraculous gift of tongues. The joy of this new power brought immediate zeal to the hearts of those who had received it, and sent them out that they might testify and witness for Jesus. He had told them that they would be His witnesses. That word "witness" comes from the Greek word which means martyr. Before the coming of the Holy Spirit, not a one of them would have witnessed for Jesus in that light, but now to witness even to the point of being sent to prison, in prison, and on to martyrdom, and still thru death for Christ, was the supreme desire of those Spirit baptized followers of Christ.

At the sound of their preaching, the multitudes began to gather. It was the time of Pentecost and there were Jews and traders there from all the nations of the earth. And each heard the Gospel preached in his native tongue. And great was the ingathering. God had sent the gift of tongues for a special purpose, and it was used to that end. On that memorable day there were no interpreters. They were all baptized with the Holy Spirit and God gave them the gifts which they needed for the purpose of witnessing. If our Christian world would today seek the continual baptism of the Holy Spirit, and be satisfied not only to wait and pray for Him, but to take, when He came, the gifts needed in God's service and use them for the purpose intended, God's Kingdom would leap forward by great bounds. What is needed is for men to come close enough to God to cry for the Holy Spirit and forget to dictate to Him as to what gifts we must have and how we intend to use them.

BUYING EGGS ON GRADE

By Zella Wigent

There is not much money in an ungraded, mixed shipment of eggs, and the market for such shipments grows less favorable all of the time. Marketing farm eggs is more or less of a community proposition, whether one sells through a local dealer or through a co-operative marketing association, for few farm folks produce enough eggs to justify seeking a special market. All the eggs of the community are collected by some local dealer or some local organization for shipment to the city market. Eggs on the wholesale market are handled in carlots. The quality of the carlot determines the price.

The common method of buying eggs from the farmer "case-count" makes the good producers of the community carry on their shoulders all the poor, careless, shiftless producers. Local buying of eggs on a graded basis encourages better production, means fewer losses higher up the line, and correspondingly higher prices to the quality producers.

Buying farm eggs on grade is the only fair market system. It's already here in sections—it's coming to others. Any farmer who has a mongrel flock producing fertile eggs laid in dirty nests, who lets broody hens laze on the nests in the summer, who gathers eggs only when the spirit moves him, who markets them only when it is convenient to go to town, is rendering a poor service. He cannot expect quality price.

There is no serious opposition to the principle of buying eggs on grade. The question is "What is the best method of working the idea?"

Different methods have been evolved. One of the most successful is to pay the farmer "case-count" for the eggs when they are received. The receiving station is conveniently located in the trading section and one receiver can take in a great many eggs in a day. The eggs are then taken to a central station and candled where an additional or premium check is made out to those farmers whose product grades above the average.

Some of the advantages of this plan are:

1. Producers do not have to wait until their eggs are candled to receive a check.
2. Eggs are handled faster and are under refrigeration sooner.
3. Eggs are candled by competent operators under good supervision.
4. The producer receives the greater part of his payment immediately and the additional check comes as a sort of extra compensation.
5. It affords an opportunity for interchange of ideas on production and marketing problems.
6. The same plan can be used in buying eggs on a truck route.
7. It maintains a friendly feeling with the general merchant in a small community, since the egg buyer may arrange for the merchant to be the receiver.

THE SEVEN MISTAKES OF MAN

"There are seven mistakes of life that many of us make," said a famous writer, and then he gave the following list:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.
2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.
4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences, in order that important things may be accomplished.
5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading.
6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.
7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Erwin went to Amarillo Wednesday for a two or three days' visit.

HOW TO LOSE

One of the least thoughtful of men is the merchant who sends a boy out with circulars without warning him not to ring doorbells. Of all the misand and sighs of despair heard from housewives the last few weeks of warm weather, the majority were directed against the youngster who disturbs a much-needed afternoon rest, or rests one elbow on the bell and waits while the woman in the kitchen drops dishes and everything else in order to rush madly and answer it.

The first lesson in every kind of salesmanship is courtesy, and it takes only a little thought to realize that the worst hours of the day to sell a woman anything by circular or otherwise is in the morning when she is at work or right after lunch when she wants to nap. To wake up on a hot day and answer the door to find only an advertisement, makes one so annoyed that she usually throws it away without reading it. If a merchant is enough interested to conduct a survey on the matter, it is safe to believe he would find more success by sending out boys later in the afternoon, when work is over and the "lady of the house" is more easy to approach.

"I Never Read the Advertisements"

You know this person. He thinks he is telling the truth. But quiz him and he will recite the make of his motor car, his hat, his shirt, his suit, his shoes, his tooth paste, his towels, ad infinitum . . . with the accent on the "ad."

Why, he could no more escape the presence and the power of the printed word than he could evade eating or sleeping. The advertisements are a definite part of contemporary American life.

The important thing is not merely to "read the advertisements," but to read all of them. The one advertisement you "didn't see" may contain information you would have given a great deal to possess.

"Friend, guide and counselor"—the advertisements in this paper.

A leading local golf player says that a game or two each day is one of the best cures for the "depression blues" he has ever found.

It is a mighty good time to be thinking of building some more sidewalks. Building materials are cheaper than in many years, and labor is plentiful. There will be plenty of use for the walks during next winter's storms.

Representative Warwick of Canyon, who will make the principal address at the Lions picnic, is a real statesman. He has the interest of the people in mind, and his review of the work of the legislature will be well worth hearing.

There should be some uniform plan adopted for the town in observing national holidays. If we knew the first of every year just what holidays we would observe, there would be none of the last minute trouble in finding out the sentiment of the town.

Last winter's late freeze has handicapped many home owners, on account of losing evergreens and shade trees, but a number of places show the results of careful treatment this summer. The better yards and gardens movement has done much for McLean's beautification.

The city park might just as well be made a real asset to the town as to be turned into a cow pasture. It would not take any expense to speak of to make the park a popular place to hold picnic suppers and the like—if a little thought was given to people's comfort. Parks are a real problem to larger towns, and we have one that can be a place of pride to every citizen with only a little effort.

A city official was complaining this week of the fact that it seemed impossible to get folks to keep out of the way when there is a fire. The only people who have any business at a fire are the owners of the property and the fire department. All others are only in the way, and many times cause a much larger loss. Of course no one wants to be in the way, but thoughtlessness in failing to obey the city rules interferes with the work of the fire department.

It is often said that many people know more about running a newspaper than the editor does, but Rev. W. A. Erwin, in handing in an item the other day, said: "Change this to conform to your style. If you do not know more about how an article should be written than I do, you should be in some other business." However, Rev. Erwin said that he knew he could preach a better sermon than the editor. This same thing might hold true with many of us. The man who is familiar with his job usually knows better than others how to perform it.

Harris King was in Pampa Friday.

KEEPING BOYS ON THE FARM

By P. G. Holden
For years the government, through its various agencies, has been trying to encourage boys to stay on the farm. Much has been written on the subject, but nothing any better than the following furnished me by Clyde Duncan, a farm boy of Lake City, Ark., who writes:

"Parents should realize that their boy is something more than a mere machine; that he is one of the great factors necessary to make farm work both pleasant and profitable.
"A boy will take pride in growing plants and animals if he knows part of the proceeds from their sale will belong to him. But if he knows there is no money coming to him for his work he becomes dissatisfied and plans to go to town.
"All promises should be kept. If the father gives the boy a pig to raise, the money for which the hog is sold should belong to the boy. The father should play fair, as well as expecting his boy to be truthful. The father should encourage his son to attain higher things; should help him in every way possible. The son should obey his parents. The whole family should work together, for co-operation means success; through co-operation we lessen the burdens of each other, the family ties become stronger and the father soon realizes that his son is a man in thought and deed.
"I would suggest the following ways in which the farmer may encourage his boy to remain on the farm:
"1. Let him raise some livestock or have an acre of corn or some other crop.
"2. Give him some of the returns from his labor.
"3. Encourage him to higher things—such as entering college. The money he derives from his livestock or crop can be used to pay his way.
"4. Co-operate with him; let him know you are interested in his welfare.
"5. Discourage any idea he may have that he can do better in town.
"6. Provide good books for him to read."

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER MAN

William Southern, Jr., of the Independence, Mo., Examiner, admits he is a country newspaper man, proud of it, and enthusiastically proclaims: "Country newspaper men have more fun than any other class of newspaper men. They are free to do and say about what they please, they are personally known to their readers; their peculiar crankisms, if any, are known and appreciated and their supposed jokes are discounted."

"The country newspaper editor never was a mendicant. He had a fine courage and a tendency to make a joke rather than weep and was even willing to turn that joke in his own direction. Hence the corn, wood and turnip editorials which are sometimes still used. But times have changed and we have changed with them. More important, the people who read the country newspapers have also changed. Recently I have discovered among my readers men and women so serious minded that the supposed joke failed of its purpose."
"The country editor in these glorious days never trades, even for railroad transportation. His business is operated on a basis of strict accounting. He pays for what he gets and expects those who buy what he has to sell to pay also. He still is willing to smile and make a joke, and if it were not for the fun the editor of a country newspaper is able to get out of the job, the position of editor would not be worth while. I knew an eastern man, well qualified and equipped in every way for the business, who bought a newspaper in Missouri and could not make it a go because he could never understand our language, our seriousness and our jokes."

T. A. Landers and family visited Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Landers at Canyon Friday.

Dickens.—A cheese survey in Dickens county shows that home demonstration club members have manufactured 909 pounds of American cheese since January 1st, and that local drug stores have sold 1800 rennet tablets or enough to make 18,000 pounds worth $5,400 at local prices, Miss Jennie Osborne, home demonstration agent, reports. They have found that a gallon of milk worth 6 cents on the market makes a pound of cheese.

Knutt—"My wife and I had to go without our dinner last night. All the stores closed before we could get around to them."
Butt—"Why don't you always lay in enough food for the next day?"
Knutt—"Oh, we had plenty of goods on the shelf but my wife lost the can opener."

Dusty Ike—"Please, sir, I've a sick wife. Could you help me out?"
Business Man—"I can give you a job next week."
Dusty Ike—"Too late! She'll be able to go to work herself by then."
—Pathfinder.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Briggs of the Phillips Camp were pleasant callers at the News office Monday.

Nervous Nell—"Dear me, this room is awful high above the ground. I do hope you take precautions against fire."

Porter—"Oh, yassum, we take precautions. De manager's place insured fo' twice what's worth."

Hotstuff—"I fell down the yesterday and was knocked less."

Coldslam—"When do you expect to recover?"

Miss Sinclair Rice went to Canyon Friday to attend summer school.

Edited by pupils of the McLean High School

LIFE OF MRS. E. L. MINIX

By Madge Landers

Emily Paddleford, better known to the people of McLean as Mrs. E. L. Minix, was born in Henry county, Missouri, on February 15, 1850. She is the sixth child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paddleford, and has four brothers and three sisters. Emily's father was a cattle rancher and owned a large ranch in Henry county. In this ranch Emily and her brothers and sisters learned to enjoy outdoor life very much.

As a child, Emily was brought to Comanche, Texas. This journey was quite different from what it would be if she should make the same trip now. The journey was made in a covered wagon, which naturally took several weeks, every minute of which was spent in suspense of being attacked by the dreaded savages. While in Comanche, Emily was in the midst of many Indian raids. Though she was, at this time, only a child, she has many experiences to relate concerning the Indians and their many raids.

As there were eight children in the family and Emily's father was by no means a rich man, Emily was not fortunate enough to get an education. There were few schools in the country at this time, and it took a good deal of money to keep a child in school even for a short time. So, that little knowledge Emily got was derived from her parents, and from her own experiences and associations with other people. In her later years, however, Emily has managed to receive more education and is, at this time, an educated woman.

As a young girl, Emily was skilled in the art of dressmaking, which was her vocation she followed for several years, and found it to be a great help to her mother, and later her married life. In 1876, at the age of sixteen years, Emily was married to D. A. Sinclair of Comanche. She was young in years, it is true, but she seemed to be because she always formed her associates with older people. Emily's first husband died after only five years of married life, leaving with her their only son, who is still living.

In 1883, Emily married Mr. Carpenter, and to this union were born six children, three girls and four boys. Mr. Carpenter died in 1901, after a married life of eighteen years.

In 1904, Emily married Mr. Carpenter, former's husband's partner in business. He died in 1907, living only three years after their marriage. Mrs. Minix has, for the last 23 years, been living alone, or with some of her children. She is a Democrat in belief, but she has not always voted Democratic ticket, for she believes voting for the man rather than the party. She votes for the man whom she thinks is best fitted for the particular office, regardless of the party of which he is a member.

Fifty-eight years ago, the fourth of July in October of this year, Mrs. Minix was united with the Baptist church in Missouri, at which time she was only twelve years of age.

Mrs. Minix has taken an active part in all church activities from the time she first joined the church. She enjoys doing church work and is a good friend of the Bible.

She has been a kind, loving and sympathetic wife and mother, and has always worked for her loved ones to the fullest extent. Her children have been reared in a Christian home, and their environment has been the best anyone can know. Mrs. Minix has tried to instill within their hearts the importance of doing right. Also, she has resolved to give her children every opportunity that those which she had; consequently, most of them have had a good education.

From the time when she was brought from Missouri to Texas, Mrs. Minix has spent much of her life in teaching, and has made her home in different places. In 1884 she made her home in New Mexico, where all of her children were educated. In 1903 and 1905 respectively, she went to Colorado and Texas, and in 1910 and 1912 she went to Arkansas and Ohio to visit her relatives and friends. The winters of 1914 and 1916 were spent in Houston. She has also visited in the state of Louisiana and also in Dequincy, Texas.

Mrs. Minix has been living in McLean for about twelve years, but most of the time has been spent in visiting her children here and elsewhere in the Panhandle. She is, at the present time, making her home with her daughter, Mrs. George Cole.

Mrs. Minix is at the present time seventy years old, and still takes an active part in all church and social activities. She is in excellent physical condition, and is as "spry" an old woman as can be found anywhere. She still gets as much pleasure in doing things that will help her loved ones and others as she ever did.

ANVIL PARK RODEO

Canadian, Texas, June 30.—The Anvil Park Rodeo which will be held this year on July 4 is recognized as one of the largest and most outstanding western contests of its kind in the Panhandle. Now in its ninth year, the fame of this show has been broadcast to every corner of the Panhandle. Visitors are attracted each year from adjoining states.

A program of real cowboy contests will be offered in which the riders of the range are familiar. The Anvil Park Rodeo is in no sense a "Wild West" show. None of the various events will be "staged."

The bronchos secured for the bucking contests are the most unbroken, untamed and untamable in the ranges of the western state.

A number of years. The steers used are of the fiery, wild Brahma blood, and are the best of the cattle coming the range today. Likewise, the steers used in the bullhogging contest come direct from the open ranges of Chihuahua and are as they would be if encountered in their usual haunts.

This show is typical of the old west, and it is here that clean, wholesome, inspiring and sensational western sports are unequalled in all the world. It will be fitting to celebrate the 4th of July by enjoying the romantic and picturesque sports of the Knights of the Range. The day will be filled with exciting, thrilling entertainment, which you will find unequalled any place on earth.

In addition to Bronco Riding, Calf Roping, Wild Brahma Steer Riding, participated in by some of the best talent to be secured, there will be Steer Bulldogging, trick and fancy riding and roping. Ted "Suicide" Elder has been contracted to trick ride, and jump two Forses Roman style over an automobile.

Of cowboy sports, Theodore Roosevelt said: "I am glad to see the sports of the range reproduced. The sports are clean and wholesome, and depicts the real life of our people."

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Dingle left Saturday for a visit with relatives at Zebulon, Ga. The News will follow them.

SAFE
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

THE "HITCH-HIKER" LAW

The law to relieve motorists of liability to free passengers in his car, called the "hitch-hiker's" law, which was passed by the regular session of the Forty-second Legislature, goes into effect August 27. After that date no free passenger of an automobile in Texas will have a cause of action against the owner of the automobile because of injuries which may be sustained by the free passenger. Exceptions are made, of course, in cases where it can be shown that the injuries resulted from malice or recklessness on the part of the owner.

The law corrects a situation which contained possibilities of outrage. There have been damage suits by hitch-hikers against car owners because of injuries sustained in accidents for which the owner of the car was not to blame, and owners have been forced to pay. There have been, perhaps, more suits of this kind by persons riding in an automobile as invited guests of the owner. In the future it will be necessary for such complainants to show that malice or recklessness existed, in order to get their claims entered by a court.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

GOLF UNIVERSAL GAME

Golf in its original form was considered the game for the rich, old men. Today it is the game of the rich and poor alike, and is decidedly the game for the young men. Formerly the old men played to get young; now the young men play to keep young. Around the municipal golf courses you will find ninety per cent of the players under forty-five years of age. The fact that local champions in most of the towns are exceedingly young men shows that the game has undergone quite a change during the past few years. Furthermore, it is not much of a town that does not have a golf course, indicating that the city people have no longer a monopoly on this fast-becoming national pastime.—Canyon News.

Restless CHILDREN
CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper, mild and bland as its taste. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.
That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Black Mask Nearly Upset Johnny

By Y. E. KATES

HERE was quite a group standing near the electric switch when it all began to happen—Rita Marr and Johnny Montgomery, and their hostess, Mrs. Stone-Morris, and a cluster of young girls, and butler at side.

Throughout the room the guests were dancing to the radio music, or talking in groups, or pairing off in cozy corners.

Mrs. Stone-Morris had been telling the history of the matchless string of pearls that encircled her lovely neck. It had been the proud possession of queens. Crime and bloodshed had followed in its wake across the continents. Its price could build a small empire.

"They are so beautiful," exclaimed Rita. "But if they were mine, I'd be afraid to wear them, with the history they have. Aren't you afraid of thieves?"

Mrs. Stone-Morris smiled calmly. She was an unusual woman.

"Thieves," she repeated in amusement, and shrugged, as though at an inconceivable likelihood.

Johnny Montgomery eyed the neck face contemplatively.

"Now, if they were mine," he said, with the humorous candor that made him so dear to Rita, "I don't think I'd wear them around my neck."

"I'm sure you wouldn't," put in his hostess.

"I'd sell them," he said, "pearl by pearl, and I'd buy us a castle of amber and roses, with a sky hung low with moons, and a brand new—a brand new—"

"Ukulele," assisted Rita.

Mrs. Stone-Morris laughed, and was about to speak, when suddenly the lights went out. In the silence that followed broken only by the wail of a waltz from the radio, there came a sudden crash of glass and the sound of suppressed tumult.

Some one struck a match, and Rita cried out in terror as she saw Mrs. Stone-Morris struggling with the figure of a man in evening clothes, a shadowy silhouette of a man, with but one outstanding feature—a black mask that covered the upper half of his face.

There was a sudden rush as a number of the men joined in the fray. Then as suddenly as they had gone off, the lights were flashed on.

"I've got him!" shouted several of the men at once, only to discover that they had captured their own fellow guests in the struggle for the intruder.

Rita turned to her hostess, Mrs. Stone-Morris' hands were at her throat. The pearls were gone!

There was a rush to the telephone. The police were called. Johnny Montgomery and several other young men ran out to search the grounds. But the pearls had vanished, and Mrs. Stone-Morris, with the staidness of one to whom life meant more than the jewels she wore around her neck, helped the party resume its gaiety.

Rita and Johnny sought a corner in which to discuss the excitement of the theft.

"Just think," said Rita, "No one even knows what the thief looks like except that he wore a black mask. How can they hope to catch him?"

Johnny nodded thoughtfully, and Rita, chancing to look down, was suddenly aware of a queer piece of black silk that protruded from his pocket. Her heart skipped a beat. Her senses whirled.

There came to her ears the shrill wail of a police car—the answer to the telephone call of alarm. At any moment the police would burst into the room, questioning, perhaps searching the guests.

Swiftly, stealthily, she removed the black mask from Johnny's pocket. She was about to crumple it in her palms when Johnny's voice arrested her.

"Rita," Johnny muttered, "where did you get that? We've got to hide it! The police—"

But at that moment the police burst into the room. Rita leaped to her feet in excitement. For, disheveled, handcuffed to an officer, stood a sun-eyed stranger in evening clothes, from whose pocket another officer was producing the precious necklace of pearls.

The police, in making a thorough search of the grounds before entering the house, had discovered the thief lying under the back veranda, whither he had crawled to await the opportunity for a safe getaway.

A confession followed, implicating the butler as the accomplice who switched off the lights at an agreed-upon time, thus giving the thief the opportunity to rush in and make off with the pearls. Finding the mask a hindrance in the unexpected struggle that followed, the criminal had deftly removed it and had slipped it into the pocket of his nearest assailant.

"Rita," asked Johnny with sudden jealousy, "out of whose pocket did you get that mask?"

"Yours, Johnny!" she answered. "Mine!" he stammered. "Good grief! And thought—and I thought—"

But Johnny had nothing more to say. He embraced Rita with a fervor that betrayed his oblivion to his surroundings, and Rita, equally oblivious, sighed happily.

Noblesse Oblige

"The dealer advertises these as shoes of character."
"Then you mustn't let them get run down at the heel."

YOU'VE HEARD THE OLD GAG!

—THAT if your business isn't worth advertising—advertise it for sale.

—THAT may sound like a newspaperman's dig at the non-advertiser. It isn't! It's a ten to one bet that if your business isn't worth advertising you don't have much trouble taking care of all your customers with mighty, mighty little help.

—ADVERTISING won't make you rich unless you help it. There's a lot of poor boys who've made millions through advertising. Wrigley is one and Ford is another. You may not make a million, but a few thousand would help right now. Plan your advertising intelligently and run it consistently, and it will do everything you've ever heard it would. Try us for a few months and see how you come out.
