Three Cash Prizes Offered in Clean-up Campaign

Work Done by Monday

Donates Prizes and Hauling for Clean-up Week

Prizes are offered for the home surroundings in the clean-up week now in progress. First prize, $3.00 second, $2.00 for third place. This action was taken at a meeting held at the secretary's office, in charge of Marshal Boyd Meador, and attended by representatives of the civic organizations.

It was planned to prorrate the collection of the prize money among the districts, but Mayor Massay has offered to donate the money from the city funds.

Greene, Boyd Meador and Landers were appointed to see that the work is done, and it was decided to have members of the Parent-Teacher Association divide the town into districts, with three judging each district, with three best in each district and then making the final selection Monday, when the three best will be decided.

Work will be done on cleanliness, neatness and freedom from fire hazards and will include the street, home premises.

FARMERS INTERESTED IN IRRIGATION AND FEEDERS

The exhibits on the Santa Fe demonstration train which interested the Gray county farmers most were: The irrigation of gardens, creep feeders for baby calves, and hog self-feeders, if the inquiries that have come to County Agent Ralph Thomas' office are any indication. Since the visit of the demonstration train to Pampa and Miami, numerous inquiries have come to the office of the county agent in regard to more information for sub-irrigation of gardens, and there has been a great demand for blue prints for building creep feeders for calves and self-feeders for hogs. A few inquiries have also come in regard to terracing of orchards, and the large hitches for teams.

THE OPTIMIST

Sponsor, Miss Hayes
It has been so hard to have regular staff meetings since everyone has been so busy with interscholastic league work. Now that the contests are over, everyone has done his best, some have won, all have gained by their efforts, some have lost prizes, but they have gained knowledge, experience and special training that can never be taken away.

We can tell that spring is here because the second grade girls are building a playhouse.

Dear Historian:

I have been thinking very hard on your question. Sometimes it is very hard to answer questions exactly. I sometimes believe that Pocahontas didn't save John Smith's life. He was a very big "bragger". I read in one book and I'm sure she did. Then I read in another book and I'm sure she didn't. I guess after all it is grand that people can have their own opinions.

Yours truly,

OPT.

We fight, quarrel and always tease. We have pillow fights, and sometimes I get hurt. We knock over, scatter and carry in the dirt. This joy we couldn't do without—When Ma goes out. We go to the ice box, eat pie, cake and pickle. For this time when Ma goes out I wouldn't take a nickel. We eat all the cake to try and get sweet; If you look at the house you wouldn't think it neat. Then Ma comes walkin' in. The bad part is about to begin—What we had done to the house Ma thought was a sin.

Can you imagine: S. J. having a pencil? Edna having short hair? Mabel having long hair? Ruth wearing bobby pins? Jack with his hair combed? Willie Louelle singing? George having straight hair? TREES

By Mary Alice Wilson
Trees remind me of people. I like to think when the leaves rustle they're talking to the wind as it passes by. People change from babies to old folks. Trees change, too. They change their costumes as people do theirs. Trees have lovely green leaves in summer; in winter their branches are bare. You would think they would clothe themselves in winter, would you not? I like to sit on the banks of a brook, on cool green grass under the shade of a beautiful tree where birds are singing, and have no cares in the world. A brook would not be pretty without any trees. There would be no shade. Trees not only give us shade, but they are used for lumber. When the early settlers came here, they used logs for their homes. We have machinery now to cut the logs into smooth boards. Pretty homes are made of them. I thank you, Heavenly Father, for giving us trees for our comfort and use. As Joyce Kilmer wrote in his poem, "Trees," "Poems are made by fools like me, but only God can make a tree."

KEEP SMILING

GROW THEM IN YOUR GARDEN

By Dr. William J. Scholes
The selection of the proper kind and amount of food is one of the most important pieces of health business in one's life. Everyone makes some kind of selection. Sometimes the diet selected contains everything that is essential to the nourishment of the body. If the quantity of all the food elements is approximately correct, good health will be favored as far as it is dependent on diet. But, sometimes, the diet is lacking in certain important elements. The quantity of food appears to be sufficient, but the diet is not well balanced. Signs of ill health appear. The ill health may be the result of a lack of something in the food. Or, it may be caused by eating an excessive amount of some one kind of food. The hunger may be satisfied with too much meat or by filling up on sweets.

Meat Necessary

Let it be understood that meat is an extremely valuable food. This is not a plea against vegetarianism. It is generally accepted by scientific dietitians that a well balanced diet should include some meat. At least, for people living in temperate or cold climates. Sugar and sweets of the candy kind may also have a place in the diet. But certainly not in excessive quantities. Fruits and some variety of vegetables should have an important place. Vegetables contain starches, sugar and proteins besides mineral salts and vitamins. They are not only healthful and valuable foods, but often leave some fibrous residue in the intestine. This favors a normal action of the bowels and helps prevent constipation.

Vary the Vegetables

Besides potatoes, turnips, beets, carrots, onions, and the leafy vegetables such as lettuce, spinach, cabbage, chard, and brussels sprouts offer some variety. Eat some one of them every day. Vary them. You will require less tonic containing iron, lime and phosphate and will be able to get along without the use of so many laxatives.

Few municipalities of her size can boast of so few liquor law violations, considering the types comprising her population."

GRAY COUNTY FARMERS

s been employed to terrace nearly aces.
Although the terraces that are "high, wide and handsome" as the races thrown up with heavy achinery, most of the farmers fig-e that they should make a start s year to stop soil erosion and loss moisture from runoff on the land.

The horse-drawn tools used in conduction of terraces are: the small ad grader, commercial terracing achines, and the turning plow, folwed by the v-shaped drag. Satisfactory terraces have also been built th large tractor-drawn disc plows.
Most of the terracing in Gray
nty has been done in the south
d east side of the county.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

The most frequent comment we hear about the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby is that "hanging is too good" for the perpetrators of this heartless, brutal crime.
We are inclined to agree, not only in this instance, but in general, that our present methods of punishment for crime are "too good" for the criminals. We have tried being tender-hearted with criminals for a good many years, in most parts of the country. The net result is an enormous increase in crime, over-crowded prisons conducted at heavy cost to the taxpayers, and the belief of every "smart" crook that he can "beat the rap" if he only gets a lawyer smart enough and crooked enough to find the loopholes in the law. We have carried to the limit of absurdity the principle that it is better for a thousand guilty men to escape punishment than for one innocent man to be convicted.

Certain facts seem to us incontrovertible. One is that the death penalty is no deterrent of murder where it is not promptly and certainly enforced. Another is that imprisonment does not reform criminals
nor the fear of it frighten them.
Other methods of punishment, other means of preventing crime, must be discovered and applied.

Let sociologists deal with the causes of crime, the influences that make criminals out of boys. But let us all take a practical, common-sense view of the punishment for crime. At all costs let us back up our law-enforcement agencies, let us speed up our criminal trials and place men on the bench who will show no mercy to those who deserve none, and then let us consider whether the old-fashioned whipping-post, the stocks and the pillory, which held the convicted criminal up to public disgrace and shame, may not be as effective det-erents of crime as the gallows, the electric chair or the penitentiary.

The outstanding characteristic of the modern criminal gangster is his vanity. Destroy that and you have destroyed his chief incentive to crime.
"Two-Gun Crowley went to the electric chair a hero in his own eyes and in those of his child-minded admirers. Gerald Chapman, murderer, is a figure of greatness among youthful crooks because he smiled when the trap was sprung. Would crime seem heroic, criminals heroes, if Crowley had been flogged in public and Chapman exposed to public contempt in the stocks? We think not. We think that punishments to be effective should be so shameful that dread of their disgrace will deter even the

When Governor Murray pleaded for the re-establishment of the Scotch banking system in this county, the Oberlin (Kan.) Herald objected strenuously on the grounds that "we don't know much about the Scotch system as a whole but personally we're against the idea of Scotch personnel in the bank; it's hard enough now to secure a loan."

Panhandle Press Association

The distressed condition of agriculture the past year, according to county agents, has increased interest in their work and a getting back to the fundamental principles of safe farming. Farmers operating on the plan of plenty of food and feed grown and packed at home are in no danger of bankruptcy in any kind of times.

Our golf columnist tried to poke a little fun at the editor last week, but we were revenged this week when he met H. F. Wingo in our office and was told of the evils of the tobacco habit. Mr. Wingo used the weed for forty years and knows both sides of the question, and he pretty nearly persuaded Mr. Davis to throw away his cigar—at least he made him feel very uncomfortable for a while.

Gasoline carries the heaviest tax of any commodity, with the exception of cigarettes, and the beauty of the gasoline tax is that it goes toward road building, with the exception of the constitutional one-fourth allotted to the school fund. Any appropriation of the tax for any purpose other than road building should be opposed by every citizen. Better roads mean less expense to the motorists, and as the motorists pay the tax they should have the benefit.

If the Lions Club can put in a wading pool at the park with the co-operation of the city, it will mean much to the comfort of the little fellows on hot summer days. Clubs all over the country put in pools last year that were appreciated by the communities, and no better investment could be made in our city park this year. Plans will be made so late that it will be problematical as to shrubbery, however, much shrubbery could be secured free of charge when it is known just how it is to be planted.

According to the weights and measures division of the department of agriculture, computing scales that are out of order are generally in favor of the customer, but it is different in the matter of gasoline pumps. At least 20% of the pumps tested are out of repair and 75% of them favor the dealer. These figures are taken from reports of those legally out of order, and do not take into account any that may be "jimmied" to short measure.

Short-weighting by merchants is on a rapid decline. Scales are being kept correct, according to reports of state inspectors, and violations of all kinds are much fewer than a few years ago.

While we have never seen a copy of the home paper in the postoffice wastebasket, we sometimes see, along with other papers, a copy of some church paper. This is to be regretted, for no matter what church a man belongs to, he cannot be an informed member of his denomination unless he reads his church paper. A great deal of unjust criticism of church leaders would not happen if each member was informed about his church work. Of course, there are so-called church papers whose editors are working strictly for themselves and not for the best interests of the denomination, that can very properly find a resting place in the wastebasket. But the paper that represents one's own denomination should be taken home and read by every member of the family.

We note that one school down state has been refused participation in interscholastic athletic meets on account of failure to observe the rules. It is hard to understand how any school can get by with such practices and it not become known to the school authorities, and harder yet to understand why any school authority would countenance any shady practice. Schools should teach good sportsmanship and good character, and any game or official that teaches otherwise should have no place in school work.

President Hoover, in attempting to raise the standard of American housing, offers the report of the conference on home building with the experience of scores of public and private groups of individuals in "Planning for Residential Districts." Many common failures of homes are mentioned, among which are no parks or playgrounds in walking distance and lack of city zoning.

The lack of proper zoning is noticeable in all of the smaller towns. Old automobile junk yards are, perhaps, the worst offenders in residential districts. Filling stations and other businesses are out of place in residential districts, and many other things can take the value of homes not protected by zoning. The lack of parks is keenly felt in many towns, and the movement now on foot to improve our city park is a long step toward better living conditions in McLean.

The first balmy days of spring have arrived. Everyone feels better. Some feel better than others. Money is going to be put in circulation for new goods, garden and farm supplies. Of course every merchant knows that "settin' an' waitin' fer customers" has long since passed away. Consistent advertising in the home paper has spelled success for many a merchant. There is no experiment in the use of newspaper advertising. Your customers are never offended, as many are by some forms of advertising attempted. Advertise merchandise that your customers are interested in, use sufficient space to attract attention, back up your advertising with quality, bargains and service, and you need not fear any kind of times, or competition. This is easy to prove. Your home newspaper is your business and advertising counselor, and you should work closely with the newspaper in seeking new and holding old customers.

GOLF GOSSIP

By D. A. Davis

Some folks can go on and on through life and never learn anything. Some folks can play golf and play golf and still not learn anything. They get up on the teeing off place, look wise a little and foolish a whole lot, wiggle their club fifteen or twenty minutes longer, spring up and down like a jack-in-the-box, paw up the ground like a mad bull, take a few hitches at their belt, then raise their club over their shoulders and bring it down slow and deliberate like within a fraction of an inch of the ball five or six times, thus scaring the poor little ball to death and giving the tee nervous prostration; and after all this performance they will squat like they were fixing to jump over the moon, raise their club away back, come down with a vicious stroke and step back just as the club head is coming in contact with the ball, and "blooie!" they take it. They miss the ball entirely or barely hit it on the head or "knock its feet off," one or the other, and after all this performance is over they look foolish some more and wonder why they did not make a clean hit for a straight drive right down the fairway. The thing to do, folks, is just simply walk up and put your tee down in a good spot, place the ball on the tee, steady yourself, raise your club back, stand where you are hitched, take a steady swing, keep your eye on the ball and give it a good firm steady "hit," and there you are, right straight down the fairway for plenty of distance and a good job well done. Now ain't this just like some people? Now why can't we all do that way, not only in playing golf, but in playing the game of life as well. Ain't this something to think about, folks?

Dr. Batson, though, has learned that he can throw his driver farther than he can hit the ball with the bloomin' thing. And this is something else to think about.

And this reminds me of another class of people that's always and everlastingly accusing me of being "out playing golf" every time I ain't where I'm supposed to be at. Just let me be missing at Sunday school or preaching or choir practice, day or night, or just let someone phone down to the office and fail to get me, or come down and I happen not to be in—they go to rarin' and ravin' about me being "out playing golf." Folks, this ain't fair, because I don't never let business interfere with my pleasure, so all you got to do in case you want me, Judge Rice or Dosh Bentley, is to come out to the golf grounds, and we will be perfectly delighted to deal with you in any sort of a business way, and if you care to learn anything about the "grand old game" we will be more than delighted to learn you all we know.

On April 1, there appeared a new golf ball which is hailed as the greatest improvement in ball manufacture since the Haskell sphere routed the old gutta-percha. This ball, made by a leading sporting gods concern, is entirely without paint. For three years this concern experimented with a rubber that was white enough to cover the ball without paint. Now it announces success. With no paint to clog the recesses of the ball, it is claimed that the sphere travels truer and is tougher than the painted balls. It is also claimed that the ball travels five yards farther than the ordinary ball on drives. Bobby Jones introduced the ball at the North and South Open at Pinehurst recently.

MANY BEEVES CANNED IN GRAY COUNTY

When asked if there had been much beef canning in Gray county this year, County Agent Ralph Thomas replied: "I would name over the farmers that have not canned beef this winter rather than to try to name the ones that have."

Since the first of the year County Agent Thomas has put on a total of 29 demonstrations showing the improved methods of cutting beef for canning. Nearly 300 farm people attended and took part in these demonstrations. These people in turn assisted neighbors in cutting beef for canning in nearly every community in the county.

In addition to the meat work in Gray county, Mr. Thomas assisted Miss Margie Lyon, home agent of Carson county, in conducting a beef cutting and canning school near Panhandle, which 36 people attended, representing the respective communities of Carson county.

A beef cutting and canning demonstration was also held in Roberts county by County Agent Thomas and Miss Ruby M. Adams, home agent of Gray county. At this demonstration 30 farm men and women were in attendance. After learning the cutting and canning methods, eight additional beeves were canned in the community during the week by people attending the demonstration.

A Laketon farmer states that with the canning of beef his family will consume three times as much beef as when they could only have beef in cold weather.

CITY DRUG STORE DISPLAYS PITCHFORK

The City Drug Store has a unique French pitchfork in their show window as a part of a perfumery display. This fork was grown by a family in the south of France who make a specialty of training young trees into pitchfork shape. It takes seven years to grow one and they last 100 years. They are used to pitch cut roses to the wagons for the perfume makers.

Mr. Springer, manager of the City Drug Store, says he personally inspected the rose fields while in France during the world war and saw the natives use the wooden forks.

Sunday's Lesson

SIN BEGINS

By Cecil G. Goff
Matt. 26:41. Lesson 15-17; 3:1-8.

placed man in the garden for the purpose of caring for the garden of Eden. He was not created a creature of sin, but rather a creature of service. We know very well that the garden of Eden was a good place in which to live. It was a place in which man would find all that he needed for his happiness and well-being. It was a place in which man would find all that he needed for his happiness and well-being.

Man was to eat of the fruit of the tree of life, but he was not to eat of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Man was to be obedient to God, but he was not to be a slave to God. Man was to be a free man, but he was not to be a lawless man. Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin.

Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin. Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin. Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin. Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin.

Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin. Man was to be a creature of service, but he was not to be a creature of sin. v 7. Satan was right about their eyes—their knowledge of good and evil. Their innocence was gone, before each other and before God. Satan was not a pleasant thing, but rather one of stinging remorse.

Then toward evening God came and called for the pair. But where were they? Their wisdom and knowledge had separated them from God—the great spiritual death. Terror seizes the two as God approaches, and they hide because of a guilty conscience. The world still today is hiding from God because of a guilty conscience.

God has wrought, through Jesus Christ, a great plan of reconciliation. But men don't want to meet God's terms. And whether the excuse is lack of proper clothing, lack of sufficient time, indifference, too many churches, infidelity, unequalled wickedness, frivolity in card playing and dancing, too busy—or any one of the thousand other excuses—they are one and all just a yielding to a guilty conscience and hiding from God when He calls in the cool of the evening.

Prepare to meet thy God. Meet His terms and He meets you with unequalled saving power and grace.

No high school student can do the sort of work that he should unless he studies some at home. School is not out until the last day. Regular work will proceed.

TRADE IN McLEAN

Reduce the Acid

SICK stomachs, sour stomach, indigestion usually mean acid. The stomach nerves are stimulated. Too much acid means stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, harmless, tasteless dose many times its volume in acid. It is the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and an unhappy condition will probably be relieved in five minutes.

Then you will know what to do. Crude and harsh methods will never appeal to you. Prove this for your own sake. It saves a great many disagreeable ailments.

Get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, the kind physicians prescribed for 50 years.

Cold Drinks

made from pure ingredients, served from a modern sanitary fountain.

STEFFEN'S ICE CREAM

in bulk or brick. No better quality made.

Caldwell's Bakery,
 McLean, Texas.

Dear Mr. Caldwell:

I wish to call your attention to the fact that the words "summer" and "spinning" on the attached sheet are misspelled. Your cakes, in addition to being delicious, are economical.

I wish to thank you for your reference to oil lamps and in behalf of the company, I wish to thank you for this free advertising of electric lights.

Yours for bigger and better cakes,

CARL O. GREENE.

And How About These—Some Sayings:

"Always fresh," "truly named 'delicious,'" "just like mother made."

Though we can't publish all the many many letters we receive, we surely appreciate them anyway.
