Talking about cutting expenses, there are many seemingly useless expenditures that could be mentioned that if cut out would support a municipal band in good style.

It is in times like this that the "small advertiser" gets his money's worth. A small advertisement consistently and regularly run brings in more money than the big spread run only once and occasionally.

Penny wise and pound foolish is just as true of some things today as ever, and it has never paid to strain at a gnat and swallow a camel; however, there is a question sometimes of just what constitutes the gnat.

There is no way to stand still; we must either progress or go backward. We need the best thought and the best efforts to overcome the effects of the depression, and we should plan for a going forward in the future.

The best thought of the community is needed at this time more than at any time in the past. Men sometimes are not capable of making the right kind of decisions in times of stress, and we should be slow to make changes that might be regretted in normal times. And that times will be normal again, we all agree.

The editor had an opportunity this week to sample a cake made from a recipe appearing in the Household Hints column of last week's News that was as fine as any we ever tasted. If you are not trying some of the choice recipes appearing each week, you are missing something. These recipes are all copyrighted and are tried out by successful home makers before being published.

Brisbane uses the story of a man who recently jumped out of a window on the tenth floor of a building because his friend refused him a drink of whiskey, as an argument against prohibition. This is a sample of the propaganda against prohibition that Mr. Brisbane is indulging in frequently of late. As arguments, they might be an indication that the gentleman is getting old and quarrelsome, but little else.

Several home town newspapers have been forced to quit business the past year, and it is an established fact that when a town gets to where it cannot support a newspaper, it has reached the place where it has no traffic problem. The local newspaper depends usually upon the support of a handful of business men who strive earnestly to maintain the business prestige of the town, and it is to them that the town owes all of its growth. If the entire personnel of the business district was represented, nothing could keep the town from progressing.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By Betty Webster
THINGS WORTH KNOWING

A Handy Way to Open an Asparagus Can
Instead of opening my asparagus cans at the top, I turn them upside down and cut the bottom. In this way, no matter what bad luck I have in opening the can, the tips are never injured. The smooth end also comes out easier than the rougher tips.

To Remove Paint from Window Pane
Dip a cloth in hot vinegar. Wipe spots with this and they will disappear.

To Remove Grease Spot from Floor
Sprinkle dry soda on spot. Pour boiling water over this. Let stand. Then scrub and spot will disappear.

COOKING HINTS

Chili Con Carni
½ lb round steak (ground).
1 onion.
1 No. 2 can of tomatoes.
1 can of kidney beans.
A lot of black pepper.
A little cayenne.
A little water.
Cook at least 1½ hours.
Method: Put some grease in a skillet and brown ground round steak and cut up onions together. Add the remaining ingredients. mix well. Cook slowly.

Any Season Marmalade
2 pounds apricots (dried).
1 large can crushed pineapple.
3¼ pounds of sugar.
Method: Soak apricots over night, add pineapple and sugar and cook.

Fresh Apricot Marmalade
1 basket apricots.
1 can crushed pineapple.
4½ pounds of sugar.
Method: Stone apricots, then mix sugar, pineapple and apricots together and cook.

BAKING HINTS

Spinach Leaf with Cheese
½ peck of spinach.
1 cup grated cheese.
1 egg.
1 cup crumbs.
½ green pepper.
2 tablespoons fat.
1 teaspoon salt.
A little paprika.
A little onion.
Method: Wash spinach thoroughly. Cook spinach carefully with just a little water. When done chop fine and add the other ingredients which should be chopped. Bake in a small bread pan ¼ hour in a moderate oven. Grease the pan, serve with tomato sauce.

Molasses Cookies
1 cup sugar.
1 large cup shortening.
2 eggs.
A little salt.
1 cup molasses.
2 teaspoons soda (level).
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1 cup hot water.
4 large cups flour.
1 cup raisins if desired.
Method: Cream sugar and shortening. Add 2 eggs well beaten. Add salt. Beat soda into molasses and add to mixture. Stir in spices and flour, then hot water. Flour the raisins well and add last if desired.

Hint for Making Cookies
Sometime, make your cookie batter ahead and place in the ice box over night. In the morning, the process will be much simpler, as they will roll easier, will not stick and will have very little flour.

S. S. CLASS GIVES SHOWER

The Junior girls of the First Baptist Church entertained their Sunday school teacher, Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, with a surprise party and shower Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Colebank, with Mrs. O. E. Lochridge acting as assistant hostess.

After playing several games, the class president announced that they would play a game with Mrs. Caldwell as "it." She was to find the five gifts that had been hidden about the house.

Refreshments of gingerbread, whipped cream and cocoa were served to the following: Margie Lochridge, Jessie May Lynch, Ermadel Floyd, Willie Louelle Cobb, Frances Landers, Adeline Riddle, Thelma Jo Gray, Laura Elen Kunkel, Georgie Colebank, Glenda Joyce Smith, Mesdames Ralph Caldwell, T. N. Holloway, Ruel Smith, Geo. Colebank, O. E. Lochridge and John Cooper.

The Methodist Women's Missionary Society met at the church Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. for the purpose of installing officers for the year, which was very impressively conducted by Mrs. W. E. Bogan.

Devotional services were led by Mrs. Geo. W. Sitter, and the following were installed:
President, Mrs. W. B. Upham; vice president, Mrs. Geo. W. Sitter; treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Cousins; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jno. Crow; recording secretary, Mrs. D. A. Davis; local treasurer, Mrs. Callie Haynes; supt. of study, Mrs. G. C. Boswell; supt. of publicity, Mrs. W. W. Wilk Kirby; supt. of local work, Mrs. J. E. M. Noel; supt. of social service, Mrs. A. B. Christian; voice agent, Mrs. S. W. Rice.
Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Huckabee of Amarillo were visitors at the meeting, and Mrs. Huckabee offered the closing prayer.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The McLean Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. A. A. Tampke last Friday. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Mrs. Tampke, in a very interesting way, told of the four day recreation meeting she and Mrs. E. J. Gething attended at Amarillo. We are indeed proud that our McLean members were always present and never tardy. The director from Washington, D. C., gave many songs, recreation on home life, social games, and games of music, story telling, singing games, folk games and dramatic stunts. A trick charade was given by Mrs. Gething. A most excellent reading "I'm Sorry," was given by Mrs. O'Neal. A motion picture of the club gave a Washington Birthday party. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. O'Neal on Jan. 27, when Miss Adams, county agent, will be present.

Miss Edna Montgomery of Clarendon is visiting in the Fred Smith home this week.

THE STORY

CHAPTER 1. Linda Haverhill's father, impecunious ne'er-do-well, died when the girl is seventeen. Of remarkable beauty and with no disturbing illusions, Linda faces the world with very little money or prospects, but relying on her cleverness, youth and beauty to smooth her way through life.

CHAPTER 2. Linda's sole possessions are a handful of practically worthless stock certificates. Her father's old friend, Senator Converse, agrees to dispose of these, and tells her not to worry about money. She instinctively dislikes Converse but allows him to take care of her affairs. For several years she lives with a cousin, Amy Ralston, and then, after a whirlwind courtship, marries Courtney Roth. The day after the marriage Linda learns that her husband is a penniless adventurer. He lives by his wits and initiates her into the plays and bluffs of the game. They live unhappily until Roth dies in Switzerland.

CHAPTER 3. Linda continues to live like a woman of wealth. The senator supplies her with money occasionally, keeping up the fiction that her stock is yielding it. On a trip she meets Brian Anstey, a young lawyer, who helps her out of an embarrassing situation when she finds herself without money.

CHAPTER 4. Converse in an unguarded moment reveals to Linda that he has had in mind in befriending her, and she almost regards ultimate surrender as inevitable. She meets Anstey again, while with Converse. The senator appears to resent Linda's friendship with the young man and the fact that she has put herself under financial obligation to him.

CHAPTER 5. Linda has a few days of happiness in Anstey's companionship in New York and the two find they are strongly attracted to each other. Knowing that Anstey has little money and is hardly started on his career, Linda realizes that their closer acquaintanceship is fraught with danger, marriage being apparently out of the question.

CHAPTER 6. Brian's appointment to a diplomatic post is being pushed by Converse. He tells Linda of his acquaintance with Simon Pentressington. She knows of his friendship with Pentress' daughter, Daisy, and though telling herself that her marriage with Anstey is impossible because of their mutual lack of money, she is conscious of a feeling of jealousy.

CHAPTER 7. The management of the New York hotel where Linda makes her home is uneasy at the size of the bill she owes, but she is unaware of this. Almost her only possession, of intrinsic value, is a strand of pearls given her by Courtney Roth. She goes to Washington. Converse displays jealousy of Anstey, and to Linda's disgust warns her he intends to have a voice in her choosing of lovers. She realizes to the full her anomalous position.

She tried to warn Brian subtly against Converse's seeming friendship, but she discovered at once an unlooked for opposition.

"You are all woman in your judgment," he told her. "He is rather unlovely, I'll admit, if you consider externals, but as man, he's big! Think of the things he's done. To be sponsored by him is a guarantee of one's sincerity."

Linda lowered her eyes. Were men always blind to one another? She wondered. Could they never see with a woman's eyes? She caught her breath with a sensation of dread, remembering back to the time when she had first known Converse. Had it been she who led the way, tantalizing him with glimpses of desire that would never come to fruition? She was appalled by the fleeting vision of what she saw. Love was unveiling her eyes. "Am I like that?" she asked herself with sharp contempt.

The appointment was a settled thing. Brian was going to Madrid. Brian had stepped over the heads of men who had spent years in the service. It was a beautiful appointment, far enough away from the seats of the mighty to veil his inexperience; close enough for him to benefit by the mistakes and failures of others.

Daisy Pentress, the one objector, was becoming reconciled.

"Father says that if Brian makes no mistakes, no false moves, he will be made in a few years," the young girl said wistfully.

Her secret was there in her eyes for all to read. She was a humble little hero worshiper in spite of her millions and her undoubted charm. She would have been quite content to be a doormat for the man she loved, if he had wanted to walk upon her.

"If he makes no false moves," she repeated as if the words had some baleful charm.

Linda stirred restlessly.

"What possible mistake could he make? The stage is all set for him," Daisy chanted. "Father says there are so many pitfalls for a young statesman—extravagance, the wrong friends, the wrong woman."

Their eyes met. Daisy's were as innocent as her name. She had meant nothing.

Something melted in Linda's heart. A flood of sorrow that she could never offer the gifts that this young girl possessed without knowing that they were hers. From the years one event leaped out at her which seemed to remove her for all time from the aura of youth and happy innocence. The blow across her face from Courtney Roth's hand seared as if it had been struck yesterday.

"Let us believe, if we can, that the woman he loves will be the right woman," she said gently.

CHAPTER 8

Call to Action

From Washington Brian wrote in a way that revealed his heart with almost cruel clarity. Linda could find no doubt there; only the humility and reverence with which some men approach the women they love. This attitude touched her profoundly. Tenderness was new to her.

But what was to come of it all? When that question persistently arose to torment her she tried to put it aside with all the easy excuses that are the habit of the procrastinator. Brian would go away. Circumstances would separate them; they would both forget. But in these reflections there was no solace; instead, far from forgetting, she found the need for him growing day by day.

There were other troubles. Money. The delayed check arrived from the broker with a stiff notation of the deduction that was credited to Senator Converse. Her cheeks burned when she saw that, and recalled her humiliation. For a moment she felt a stinging desire to look the truth in the face—to be honest with herself. She was not deceived with this elaborate pretense, but unless she accepted it nothing remained but chaos.

The check was comparatively small, but it came at a moment which exaggerated its importance. As if warned by telepathy, poor Linda's creditors seemed to have chosen that morning for a united foray. She was facing a pile of letters and bills, some of them even threatening in a deadly polite sort of way, when the dove of peace dropped the blue slip bearing the signature of Stevens into her lap. The money vanished.

How did it happen? Linda, who thought she had learned the lesson of prudence, found her purse almost empty once more. Some new pride within her rebelled against subterfuge with these people who had trusted her, and she paid it freely out to dressmakers and milliners while it lasted. They were placated, and urged her to buy again, but she would not, although spring peeped temptingly through the new little leaves of the gray trees in the park. The shops were full of lovely things, but she bought nothing. The hat she had chosen on that walk with Brian had been the last purchase. A feeling that in some manner an invisible net was closing around her persisted, and there was nothing in the immediate outlook to raise her spirits.

Time crept by, and brought March. She was still in the city—alone, so far as her circle of friends was concerned, for the frightful weather had driven every one away. But she did not miss them. She was marking time until Brian would be gone.

Then, she believed, she would be safe. It would be possible then to come to some conclusion—to look things in the face; return to her old way of living and thinking, or to find that other channel her soul was dimly striving for.

But not while Brian was there with his pedestals. That would make it much too hard; better to be silent; far better to let him think of her as cold, indifferent, while he was near. Converse wrote her a brief note from Washington, where he had gone into session.

"Why not run down here for a few weeks? There's lots going on and you might amuse yourself playing chaperon to your friend Anstey and little Miss Pentress."

She was astonished at the surge of feeling those few sentences aroused in her. She had coupled Brian and Daisy in her own thoughts, but this was different. This was seeing them through the world's eyes. This made possibility of conjecture.

Together they had everything. Youth, wealth, ambition. Their future was limitless. Suddenly she felt old and on the shelf. What was she doing, immured in her solitude, under gray skies, when the others were finding life gay and happy together? She had been cheated of her girlhood and now womanhood had as little to offer her. But if the senator's letter plunged her into deeper depression on the other hand it aroused her from lassitude, and made action imperative.

She went to see Stevens, and laid a long manila envelope on the desk before him.

"I want to leave New York," she said. "These are the last. Will you see what you can do for me?"

The broker, a dry, flat man, drew the corners of the crackly parchment papers from the flap of the envelope and glanced at them. Light and Power . . . Traction . . . Little Maug Oil . . . He smiled imperceptibly.

"Well, we have placed a great deal of this stuff . . . Perhaps . . ."

"You said this was good, and I have kept it until the last," she interrupted him impatiently. She was biting her lip . . . an amazing sign of nervousness in her. (Continued next week)

ACCIDENTAL POISONING

By Dr. William J. Scholes

A young woman took a teaspoonful of tincture of iodine by mistake. She attempted to take a dose of medicine in the dark and picked up the wrong bottle.

An elderly man took a teaspoonful of mixture of iodine instead of a cascara mixture. He failed to read the label on the bottle.

A woman gave a two-year-old child a teaspoonful of camphorated oil instead of castor oil. She guessed at the contents of the bottle which had no label.

A box of tablets was left within the reach of a baby. The baby ate some of the tablets, which contained strychnin, and died.

To Prevent Accidents

Many cases of accidental poisoning could be prevented by:

1. Never taking or giving medicine in the dark.
2. Throwing out all medicines, drugs and poisons which are in bottles without labels.
3. Carefully reading the label, and following directions to the letter, when giving or taking medicine.
4. Keeping all medicines and poisons safely beyond the reach of babies and small children.

If poison has been taken—or you think it has been taken:

1. Immediately send for the doctor. When you call the doctor, tell him what kind of case it is.

First Aid Antidotes

In order to lose no time:

2. Give the whites of three or four eggs (unbeaten).
3. Produce vomiting by giving a teaspoonful of mustard in a glass of warm (not hot) water.
4. Keep the patient warm.

BANK TALK

Quite naturally it caused some excitement when our neighbor bank failed to open on the 13th, and a few of our small depositors drew out their money. However, we received several new accounts and our deposits increased for the day about $6,000. The day following we lost two or three small accounts, but none since that time. There was not a dollar drawn out by our large depositors.

We do not censure anyone, nor feel offended for the small withdrawals, because we realize that there are a great many people who do not know, nor have had occasion to consider or observe, the personnel of our board of directors and officers, and are therefore, excusable for acting on the impulse of the moment and permitting their temporary fear to persuade them. To them, "We welcome you back and no questions asked."

I wish to express my deep appreciation of our many loyal depositors and other friends, in all walks of life, who so staunchly supported us with their money and influence.

It is my opinion that the depositors of the other bank will receive 100 cents on the dollar in due course of time. During the meantime we shall be glad to render them any assistance we can, and cordially invite them to come and make themselves at home with us.

Examinations are over and the new term has started with a vim. Every teacher has a full schedule and pupils are working harder than they did last term. The new courses were filled.

A new term's work in home economics was begun. The girls will study interior decorating. Sociology and salesmanship have full enrollments. Trigonometry has a good class. No required subjects were begun. It is the hope of the administration to get the curriculum straight by next year. There will be no more mid-term promotions.

TALK ON TEXAS CONSTITUTION

On Monday morning a most interesting talk was made in chapel by Supt. G. C. Boswell. He chose as his subject "The Texas Constitution." He very capably traced the development of the constitution and contrasted the different constitutions of Texas. He advised everyone to inform himself about the constitution.

STYLE SHOW

The home economics department had charge of the program at P. T. A. last Thursday afternoon. The program was as follows:

Reading, "An If for Girls"—Mary Emma Back.

"The High School Girl of Today:" Martha Mathis, dressed in a very attractive costume of long ago, with hoop skirt, tight waist and a large hat, demonstrated the inactivity due to dress, of the girl of long ago. She was followed by a group of girls dressed in sports costumes of today. These demonstrated the freedom that girls of today have. The girls were: Juanita Coleman, Kathleen Lacy, Syble Causey, Lucile Morse and Martiline Riddle.

"Art in Dress:" A stout girl, Dorothy Jean St. Clair; a slender girl, Doris Myatt and Emma Jean Ayer; appropriate hats, Lucile Morse and Lucile Scott; "fussy" hat, Kathleen Lacy; a girl dressed more appropriately for tea than for school, Oleta Holloway; a girl dressed appropriately for school, Juanita Coleman.

"The Blonde and Brunette Style Show." The pupils of the IB class modeled dresses that they made in class. These dresses were suited to type. They were neat, attractive, and fitted the girls well. They were appropriate for the high school girl. They were made of cotton material. Girls who modeled dresses were: Pearl Glenn, Juanita Wade, Juanita Brooks, Pansie Pickett, Willa Mae Graham, Mary Reneau, Annie Pugh, Sybil Young, Irene Smith and Bernice Johns.

After the style show was over the dresses were judged by Mesdames O. E. Lochridge, John Butler and J. E. Kirby. These ladies judged on the following points: a. Design and color. b. Workmanship. c. Individuality. d. Material.

Bernice Johns won first place, Juanita Brooks second, and Annie Pugh and Pearl Glenn tied for third place.

Margaret Hess, president of the club, announced the program. Miss Seal and the girls are to be congratulated on the good work and the interesting program. Members of the P. T. A. and visitors enjoyed everything immensely.

BASKETBALL TUESDAY NIGHT

On last Tuesday night the McLean Tigers played the squad from Dozier school. The game was a fast one and the teams were evenly matched. The score at the final whistle was 31 to 30 in favor of McLean. The girls' game was lost by one point.

Odd—but TRUE

THE PENGUIN MUST LIVE WITHOUT FOOD FROM SIX TO NINE WEEKS EVERY YEAR— DURING THE TIME THEY ARE MOULTING THEY ARE UNABLE TO DIVE AS THEIR LOOSE FEATHERS BUOY THEM UP AND AS THEIR ENTIRE FOOD SUPPLY IS CAUGHT UNDER WATER THEY MUST STARVE DURING THE MOULTING SEASON

TREES ARE BUILT—NOT GROWN— WHEN NATURE CREATES A TREE NEW CELLS ARE CONSTANTLY ADDED— IN MUCH THE SAME MANNER THAT A BRICK BUILDING IS PUT UP— IF A WIRE BE FASTENED TO A YOUNG TREE THE TREE WILL BUILD UP AROUND IT AND ABOVE IT BUT THE WIRE WILL NOT CHANGE ITS POSITION

IN ANCIENT CHINA CONTRACTS WERE WRITTEN IN DUPLICATE ON OPPOSITE ENDS OF A SECTION OF BAMBOO THE BAMBOO BROKEN IN TWO AND A SECTION RETAINED BY EACH OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES— THE FITTING OF THE BROKEN ENDS WAS AUTHENTICATION OF THE CONTRACT

THE OPTIMIST

STAFF MEETING

A new staff will be organized this term, so we shall not give the names of the old staff members. This report will be given by the faithful members of the staff who have worked so earnestly this past term.

THE NEW TERM

The outlook seems very bright now. The classes have been changed and the new schedule started with very little confusion. There is a new sparkle in the eye, a new spring in the step. The students are eagerly poking into their new books, for there are really untold treasures.

THE BOAT

By Marie Hornsby
 Once there was a little boat which sailed on the blue waters along the beach. One day it sailed too far; it was said it sailed so far away. One day a little girl saw the boat. The girl didn't know to whom the boat belonged. She asked nearly everyone who came near if he knew to whom it belonged. The little girl found out to whom it belonged. She went to see the little boy. He was glad to see his boat. He thanked the girl. Then she went home happy again because she had made someone else happy.

5B

The 5A Peps are now 5B Peps. We are going to work hard, and all keep together. All of the peps passed, and five are on a trial of one week. We surely hope they make it. When school started in the fall we couldn't cram them all in our room, and had to transfer some to Miss Hayes. Now we have lost most of them, and need to gain some. We have three new pupils. They are Elvin Kite, Finos Glenn and Junior Woods.

POEMS

By Margie Lee Lochridge
 Poems, as we know, are all beautiful. The poem "Trees" is the one I love best. I have tried to write poems, but I could not write one like that.

FAIRY LAND

By Ermadel Floyd, 4B
 I love to go to fairy land, for I can see many beautiful fairies. One day I went to fairy land. What do you suppose I saw? I can't wait for you to answer, so I will tell you. I saw the wonderful rainbow. The colors were violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red.

THE HOUSE

By Edna Babbitt
 Once upon a time there was a house by the road. I was a pretty house. There were trees on both sides of the road and behind the house. There was a stream of water by the road which was clean and clear. Perhaps the house is still there.

THE WATERFALL

By Dorothy Sitter

This picture has two or three waterfalls in it. It has a beautiful mountain in the background. There are some rocks too. There is a bank that is dark purple. People have to go down to watch the waterfall.

SPORTS

There have been several volley ball games between the teachers and boys. The junior basketball boys went to Mobeetie last week. Although they fought hard, the Mobeetie team won by 13 points.

THE UGLY PRINCESS

There was once a princess so ugly no one could look upon her. This made the princess very unhappy, for she was sweet and kind. But they didn't know this because they never spoke to her. One day her god-mother gave her a wish. She wished to be beautiful and for her people to love her. Her wish came true.

OUR GANG

By W. C. Stotts
 We start "Our Gang" meetings at four, and if you are late we certainly get sore. We run and scuffle about the house. But when someone comes near we are as still as a mouse. We keep all our secrets to carry out our plan. But the gang sticks together just like an old man. There is Spencer Bell Sitter, who seems very hoarse; We elected him president, of course. And Jesse Dean Cobb, who is not very tall. He is our secretary, although very small. There is Mike Wingo, who is a fine old lad; Although he is a fighter, he is not very bad. And Raymond Dalton, who is very fat. But is very handsome, outside of that. There is Stanton Gardner, who has black hair. Aid goes with us everywhere. There is Harry Barnes, who is very slow. And if he didn't work he would never grow. And there is Tom Jack Wade, who takes a part. And because he does, he thinks he is smart. Junior Wood is just one stick; He is not very tall and not very thick. There is L. C. Flowers—they misspelled his name— He is just one flower, but he is not to blame.

No Other Dime

BUYS SO MUCH AS THE DIME SPENT FOR ELECTRICITY

Electricity for ten hours' vacuum cleaning costs less than a bottle of ink.

Electricity lights the clothes closet 90 ing costs no more than an ice cream soda.

Electricity lights the clothes closet 90 days for the price of a ball of twine.

Electricity is the cheapest thing you buy. The more of it you buy, the less it costs per kilowatt-hour.

Draner Huff is a fine old lad; A pretty good thing he wasn't like his dad. I am W. C. Stotts, if you must know it; All I am is treasurer and poet. This is all our gang, so say what you may; But the gang sticks together in fight or in play.

MY GREATEST WISH

My greatest wish is to have great fame; Not only a foundation, but a frame. And now, dear friends, that you've read it through, I ask you to help me make it come true.

CAN YOU IMAGINE

6B Class
 Averill Christian walking straight? Mavis Brewer with black hair? Frankie Mae Bell being lean? J. D. Back knowing English? Wilson Shaw being tall? James Emmett Cooke playing ball? Wilbur Lee Wilson wearing boots?

Rose Margaret Tolliver with dresses? Iantha Pollis not running with Rose Margaret? Hershel McCarty knowing his sons? Can you imagine Odell Calkins liking girls?
