Ike Supporters Are Happy With General's Tour

By JACK BELL. ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL, Sept. 16 (U.S.)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower carried his campaign into politically-vital Minnesota today with a call for a "consistent" farm program.

same in a speech prepared for a luncheon of the American Hospital Association in Convention Hall.

Truman came here by train from Washington for the address, billed by the White House as "non-political."

While he didn't mention compulsory medical insurance in so many words today, he declared:

"You can't make the best modern medicine available to everybody—as it should be—unless there is some way for people to pay for it."

Truman's national health program, embracing pre-payment of medical, hospital, laboratory and even some dental costs by increases in social security payments, has kept a controversy going between him and the American Medical Association (AMA) for seven years.

The President told the hospital group that good health is of "first importance" to the general welfare, and added:

"That is why, ever since I have been president, I have recommended programs which I believe will provide better medical and health services for all our people."

Chest Campaigners Leadership of the 1952 Community Chest organization plans campaign work which will start Sept. 29.

GETS GOING SEPT. 29

Chest Leadership Maps Drive Plans

Top leadership of the 1952 Community Chest campaign Monday night mapped additional plans for getting this year's drive under way Sept. 29.

General Chairman Elmo Wasson met with heads of the various solicitation groups. A few appointments to team captaincy positions and chairmanships were verified.

Howard County's annual Community Chest drive will be for $49,952 this year, the same as 1951 except for addition of a $3,000 item for a servicemen's center or USO.

Other agencies which co-operate in the "one-drive" Chest program are Boy Scouts, UMCA, Girl Scouts and the Salvation Army.

Additional organizations planning solicitation will be held regularly by various groups between the announcement of the final drive plan and the start of the drive.

President Monday meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Krause and Elmo Wasson, co-chairman, and Lewis Prange, Douglas Orme, co-leaders of the business and industry division; Maj. Rinden B. Wall, Webb Air Force Base chairman;

Russian Moves In Manchuria 'No Surprise'

HONG KONG, Sept. 16 (U.S.)—Russia will retain her position in Manchuria despite a new agreement to get out of the area, according to a source here.

Many foreign observers in Hong Kong believe that the new agreement will have a bigger impact than ever.

The agreement between Russia and Moscow lets Russia keep her troops in Manchuria until the end of the year.

It is believed that the Russians will lose rail revenue, but they probably will retain their right to use the railway.

The consensus of opinion here is that the Russians will continue to remain in Manchuria, at least for the time being.

Russia had to make some major concessions to save face for her ally, so she gave up her right to use the railway.

The September Allied pilots also reported three MIGs probably destroyed and 26 damaged.

The sleek Sabres were flying protective cover for F-84 Thunderjet fighter-bombers near the Manchurian border when 55 MIGs swarmed out of their Manchurian sanctuary.

In addition to the four Red jets destroyed, Sabre pilots reported two damaged.

The fighter-bombers attacked a military base concentration on Korea's west coast in the Sinui Island area near Sinuiju.

Pilots said one 35-foot boat was destroyed and two damaged, and six smaller boats were destroyed and 22 damaged.

Farther south, other fighter-bombers attacked two troop concentrations near Sarilwon. The Air Force reported 45 buildings levelled and others damaged.

The air battles over North Korea came after Allied bombers plastered Aed targets across the battered Korean Peninsula last night with tons of high explosives.

Truman Charges Tougher Labor Law Under GOP

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (U.S.)—President Truman today told the American Federation of Labor that plans are afoot to "make the Taft-Hartley Law even more oppressive and unfair" to labor if the Republicans win in November.

In a message to the AFL's convention, the President said that "special interests are already grinding their axes for a fresh attack on labor in the event of a Republican victory."

He said he had "seen indications" that such "plans are afoot in Wall Street."

The message was read at a session at which W. Averell Harriman, Mutual Security Administrator, was introduced as "the next secretary of state" by AFL President William Green.

Harriman, who at the Democratic convention in Chicago threw his delegate strength to Adlai Stevenson to help give him the nomination, has often been mentioned as a prospect for such a post.

Truman's message was a direct attack on the Democratic administration's plans to ease the Taft-Hartley Law, which has been in effect since 1947.

The endowment to the new resolutions was introduced by Green.

"We suffered certain losses, but the main attacks and the main progress, I do believe, will be made in the future, but I am sure that the result of the election this year."

That is one big reason, the President said, why he is campaigning for "the election of Governor Stevenson and Senator (John) Sparkman and for a real Democratic Congress."

"It is little doubt in my mind that the definite plot was hatched at the close of the war," he said, "to reach, or at least cripple, our trade union movement in a period of post-war reaction."

"This conspiracy was developed by a little cove of politicians, and it is the responsibility of the people to see that it is crushed."

The Republican Party was pictured as seeking to "crush and destroy the labor movement in America" and "to destroy the rights of the American worker."

Validity Challenged In District Court

AUSTIN, Sept. 16 (U.S.)—Attorneys representing Presidential Nominee Adlai Stevenson today attacked validity of a "Texas Democratic Party" convention which certified Republican Nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower as its presidential candidate.

Allen Wight, Dallas, testified that Eisenhower was nominated at a convention held in Dallas last week attended by 10 persons at his invitation. He said there was no notice to the secretary of state that the convention would be held to organize a party and nominate candidates.

"The people who attended were those selected by me and who share my political views," Wight said.

Judge Jack Roberts of 126th District Court was hearing a suit brought in behalf of Stevenson and Vice Presidential Nominee John Sparkman to bar the names of Eisenhower and Richard Nixon from the general election ballot under the label of the "Texas Democratic Party." They were nominated at the 10-man convention testified for by Wight.

Wight testified that the plan put forward by his convention would permit Democrats of Texas to take their choice in November between one of two tickets under the Democratic label.

"I do not recognize the national party's nominees as Democrats," Wight said in reply to a question from John Coffey, Austin, one of the Stevenson attorneys.

Coffey also developed from Wight's testimony that the new party has not yet set up a statewide organization, that it has an executive committee, and that it has never held county or district conventions.

Secretary of State Jack Ross testified that Stevenson and Sparkman had been certified as nominees of the Democratic Party by officials of both the national convention in Chicago and the state convention at Amarillo last week.

Fagan Dickson, Austin, Stevenson counsel, emphasized that the Texas certification had been made by J. E. Wheat, Woodville, and Walden Hart, Austin, chairmen and secretary respectively of the State Democratic Executive Committee of Texas.

Ross said he had accepted these certifications and would put the names on the ballot "unless the court directs me otherwise."

Ross also said he had received certification of Eisenhower and Nixon as candidates of the "Texas Democratic Party" and that he intends to put them on the ballot if he is not restrained by the court from doing so.

Ross is now under a temporary restraining order issued by Judge Roberts and today's hearing was on the issuance of a temporary injunction which if granted would have the effect of extending the ban on

In commercial building, Regulation X imposed a 20 per cent down payment requirement, no matter what the cost of the structure.

As a guarantee that the down payment requirements would not be sidetracked, Regulation X forbade second mortgages.

The 1952 Defense Production Act gave authority to the government to continue requiring down payments of at least 5 per cent even after it lifted Regulation X, but the Federal Reserve Board suspended the regulation yesterday without any reference to the 5 per cent provision. A federal reserve source said the board felt few lenders, if any, would arrange house sales for as little as 5 per cent down.

This pointed up the fact that suspension of Regulation X does not mean that the would-be home purchaser now has only to select the house he wants and begin monthly payments, without putting up a sizable chunk of his own cash. Suspension of Regulation X simply removed the Federal Reserve Board as the limit-setter on housing credit.

Lovett Scores On Small Business War Contracts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (U.S.)—Taylor, resigning as head of the Small Defense Plants Administration (SDPA), told President Truman today Secretary of Defense Lovett has shown a "lack of enthusiasm" for placing of military orders with small companies.

Taylor said Congress may have to take the SDPA direct authority to place a "fair share" of military orders with small manufacturers.

Taylor's comments were made in a report to the Senate on the SDPA's operations during the past year.

At Least It's All Settled Now

LONDON (U.S.)—Winifred Haggerty, blonde, beautiful and 21, could not make up her mind whether to marry Leslie Hook, who worked in the same office, or laborer William Brooks.

She pondered for months. Finally Brooks acted. He stormed into Winifred's office, swung her around by the hair, and beat up his rival, fracturing Hook's skull.

He eventually was carted off to jail after a fight with three policemen.

The fracas got Brooks 21 months in jail—and made up Winifred's mind for her. As soon as Brooks left the courtroom to begin his sentence, she announced that he was the winner.

"He has shown he loves me even if he showed it the wrong way," she declared. Of the defeated Hook, she said, "He made no attempt to get in touch with me since he came out of the hospital. I don't want a man who doesn't want me."

Stevenson Changing Campaign Strategy

By RELMAN MORSE. SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (U.S.)—Adlai Stevenson stepped into the campaign on Monday, Sept. 15, with a new strategy, one that he said would be a "great crusade" to win the White House.

Up to this point, he has been campaigning on the claim of "disunity" among the Republicans, arguing that the Taft backers and Eisenhower supporters constitute a two-headed elephant. He has used many phrases to twist his enemies on that score.

Correspondents asked him, in a news conference yesterday, whether he will continue that line now that Taft and Eisenhower have held the long-awaited meeting. He replied: "That remains to be seen."

The atmosphere here now that Stevenson's principal advisers have had time to examine the position in the GOP camp contains mixed reactions.

On the one hand, the strength of Taft's organization is well recognized. The governor's aides—insisting that Taft is in the driver's seat—believe he will bring over to Eisenhower a good deal of Republican support the general did not have before. And they feel that some backers, heretofore lukewarm and half-hearted, will become active now.

But they hope to counter that by appealing to the independent voters and to the "Republican progressives." Stevenson said in a prepared statement to the news conference:

"From what I've read and the messages I've received, I gather that the Republican progressives who fought so hard for the general at Chicago are wondering what has become of the 'great crusade.' So am I."

The governor said he has not, up to this point, been focusing his campaign on the independent voters, except to hope that "what I had in mind was being sympathetic."

Juliana Seeks Quick Approval Of Europe Army

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Sept. 16 (AP)—Queen Juliana asked the Netherlands Parliament today for quick ratification of the European Army Treaty and the legislators began consideration of a budget providing nearly 400 million dollars for defense in 1953.

Introduction of the budget came immediately after the queen's annual speech from the throne opening the new parliament. For her address to the joint session of both chambers, the monarch drove through the Hague's crowded streets in her golden coach of state.

The budget called for one and a half billion guilders for defense ($295,400,000), the same amount originally allotted for that purpose this year and 25 per cent of the total estimated expenditure of 3,618,000,000 guilders ($1,480,377,000). Since adoption of the last budget, however, defense spending has been increased by about 45 million guilders ($11,802,000).

The new budget, presented to parliament by Finance Minister J. Van de Kieft, estimates revenues at 5,126,000,000 guilders. This would give a deficit of 492 million guilders ($129,091,300). The 1952 budget had a deficit of 611 million guilders.

The queen spoke strongly in favor of West European unity, both to bulwark the safety of the west and to contribute to a high level of prosperity. Cooperation between the nations of the free world, she said, has taken a more concrete shape. She strongly urged rapid approval of the treaty to join Netherlands forces with those of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg in the one-uniform European army.

Ready For Prospecting

J. O. Jarman, Colorado City oilman, examines his passport which makes possible his departure for the Israel on Wednesday. He will prospect there for oil and water. Slowness of his passport papers delayed his departure for this new three-year assignment by several weeks.

C-City Oilman Will Leave For Israel Job Wednesday

COLORADO CITY, Sept. 16—J. O. Jarman, Colorado City oilman, will leave Colorado City Wednesday morning for three years in Israel.

Jarman has a contract with the Israeli government to develop oil and water resources for the new Jewish state. He plans to use cable tools to check the subsurface geology and rotary rigs for oil. Any water found while exploring the subsurface structure, will be developed and used for irrigation.

"Geologically speaking," Jarman says, "the formations should be about the same as in Saudi Arabia, where they've found so much oil. Yet, he says, the only well drilled for oil in Israel was drilled to 2,600 feet in 1929. It was dry."

Jarman has been in the oil business since 1918, and in a supervisory position since 1936—specializing in exploration work in Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana.

Premier Leaves Little Hope Of Iran Oil Peace

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 16 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh told Parliament today Iran is willing to let the World Court decide what compensation Britain should receive for her now-nationalized oil properties. He added, however, this is the only compensation Iran is prepared to pay.

The iron-willed but hard-up premier on Aug. 30 rejected a settlement proposal made by President Truman and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill that called for submission of the question of compensation to the World Court.

The joint Truman-Churchill offer, however, included submission of all claims and counter-claims of both parties to the International Court sitting at the Hague, capital of The Netherlands.

This would include compensation to the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company for the cancellation of its contract to produce the oil and its loss of earning power. The company's billion and a half dollar properties in southern Iran were taken over by the Iranian government 18 months ago.

Mossadegh's flat statement that Iran was willing to pay compensation only for the physical properties of the AIOC seemed to leave little hope for immediate agreement since Britain has firmly demanded settlement of the additional claims.

Mossadegh's new move was announced in a statement read to the Majlis (lower house of the Iranian Parliament), in which the premier asked for a vote of confidence in his entire oil policy.

Britain has boycotted Iranian oil since nationalization and the AIOC has threatened other possible buyers with court action if they purchase any Iranian oil production has virtually ceased.

Mossadegh's statement warned Iran might consider breaking off diplomatic relations with Britain if the boycott continued.

The Iranian government has not announced exact figures on its claims for damages as a result of the British embargo but have said it comes to "tens of millions of pounds."

Early Soft Coal Strike Is Due As Lewis Reports No Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis appeared today to be shaping up an early strike of about 300,000 Eastern soft coal miners in a divide-and-conquer strategy against coal producers.

But the United Mine Workers chief said a walkout isn't likely to produce a national emergency among coal users.

Breaking his silence on a month of private negotiations, Lewis sternly reported to newsmen yesterday he has reached a "most disturbing" impasse with Northern soft coal operators, with only four more days to go before their present contract expires Saturday.

Similarly, Lewis said, "no conclusions" have been reached in frequent talks with Southern soft coal producers, whose contract expires Sept. 30.

Lewis plainly implied both groups of mines would be shut down as their contracts run out. Traditionally, the miners don't work without a contract.

Together, the two groups turn out about 70 per cent of the nation's coal—or seven million tons a week. About 200,000 miners work in the Northern group, 100,000 in the Southern.

Contrasting with this grim picture the mine chief stressed that Western and Midwestern soft coal mines which are not members of the (Northern) Bituminous Coal Operators Association "will be permitted to work."

Also, Lewis reported, he expects to reach an agreement this week with the Pennsylvania anthracite (hard coal) industry, whose contract also expires Sept. 30. His plan is for both these groups, which he said employ about 140,000, to continue producing. They would accept whatever terms are negotiated later with the bigger Northern and Southern soft coal associations.

Lewis declared the present national coal stockpile of about 79,214,000 tons—plus continued if not expanded production in the Western and hard coal mines—would "preclude any possible national emergency." The stockpile alone would supply normal needs for 83 days.

The mine chief apparently had an eye cast to skirting the Taft-Hartley Law, which permits the government to get court orders against a strike that creates a national emergency.

Also, by permitting the generally smaller Western mines to operate,

Lewis obviously hoped to put the screws on the competing big Eastern commercial mines and the "captive" mines owned by the steel industry for that industry's own use.

Lewis talked to newsmen after meeting behind closed doors for an hour and a half with union district presidents and then for another two hours with his 200-man Policy Committee. Another brief session of the Policy Committee—plus talks with hard coal operators—were scheduled today.

The mine workers boss said he "reached an accord and a meeting of minds on a new contract" Sept. 8 with Harry M. Moses, president and negotiator of the Northern Bituminous Coal Operators Association. But Lewis said the mine operators had rejected this agreement at a meeting in Pittsburgh last Wednesday.

Moses told reporters: "Perhaps Mr. Lewis understood that we had a meeting of the minds Sept. 8. I didn't."

Scouts Ready Drive To Get Out The Vote

Approximately 750 Boy Scouts from the Lone Star District will turn out next month to call upon homes in Howard, Martin, Sterling and Glasscock counties in a campaign urging citizens to vote.

Scouts will leave a Liberty Bell cutout on the doorknobs of district homes on Nov. 1. The message on the cutout will be, "Vote as you think. Think when you vote, Tuesday, Nov. 4. Today's youth counts on you. Use your freedom to vote."

"We're going to make a brave effort at putting a cutout on every door," Gil Jones, district chairman, stated. "The cutouts will not refer to any candidate or party. The campaign will be completely non-partisan."

Scouts from the Lone Star District will not be alone in the campaign. Other Scouts from all over the nation will be doing the same thing. There will be an estimated 4,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers in the 17-county Buffalo Trail Council—including the local district—in the campaign.

"The Scouts are not old enough to vote, so we figured this was the next best way for them to do their part," Jones said. "We are interested in getting people to vote, but our primary interest is to make the boys conscious of their voting duties when they come of age."

Jones said that 650 Scouts will participate in Howard County. "People in Big Spring should know there is an election on Nov. 4," he said.

Jones pointed out that only 50 per cent of eligible citizens voted in 1948. It is believed, he said, that the boys can strongly influence their parents, relatives and neighbors.

He pointed out that in Scout training, good citizenship is second only to good moral training.

Mexico Notes 142nd Birthday Of Independence

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16 (AP)—Mexico's 142nd independence day celebration got off to a damp and watchful but enthusiastic start last night.

Presidential Miguel Aleman, at 11 p.m., appeared on the central balcony, tolled Mexico's Liberty Bell, unfurled the national flag, and shouted the traditional grito—"Viva la independencia, viva la libertad, viva Mexico."

It was the signal for celebration for thousands massed in huge Public Square below. With a blast, the fireworks started and there was music and dancing. The crowd, including many Indian families who had camped there since the previous night, were soaked from a four-hour downpour, but happy.

In quiet groups near the square police and army troops were ready. There were rumors that followers of losing Presidential Candidate Gen. Miguel Henriquez Guzman might try to stage a protest demonstration. And the government was taking no chances.

Inside the national palace there was a state reception for diplomats, officials, and politicians. The guests of honor included Jose Antonio Remon, president-elect of Panama, Paul Cotre, mayor of Paris, and a delegation from Cuba.

The celebration was repeated throughout the republic where the "grito" was heard by radio. There were special ceremonies at the little town of Dolores, Hidalgo state, scene of the original grito. There, in 1810, Father Miguel Hidalgo, a Catholic padre, gave the cry that aroused the countryside and eventually led to independence from Spain.

Pulse-Jet 'Copter Surprises Army

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP)—A tiny aluminum helicopter, the "Jet Jeep," yesterday performed acrobatics that surprised Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr. and others watching the demonstration.

It was the first public flight of American Helicopter Co.'s HX-26, a one-man pulse-jet copter designed for military reconnaissance work.

Pilot Lou Hartwig zoomed straight up, swung back and forth in pendulum curves, hovered in the air, climbed on only one jet motor and descended to a graceful landing with both jets off.

The 300-pound craft has a small pulse jet engine at the tip of each rotor.

Bullworm Quarantine Clamped In E. Texas

CROCKETT, Sept. 16 (AP)—A pink bullworm quarantine has been clamped on three East Texas counties, a ginner said yesterday.

Leonard Arnold of Crockett said the quarantine was placed on Houston, Anderson and Madison Counties last week. Arnold owns four gins in Houston County. He said all gingers were notified.

Earlier this year adjacent Leon County was quarantined and it was believed the bullworm invaded adjoining areas, Arnold said.

Wake Island Covered By Sea During Storm

HONOLULU, Sept. 16 (AP)—A raging typhoon with winds up to 140 miles an hour lashed tiny Wake Island yesterday, demolished living quarters and communications and sent the sea crashing over the entire island.

58 Students At High School In Bible Course

Despite the fact that state law forbids expenditures for the teaching of religious philosophy, approximately 58 students in the Big Spring High School are enrolled in a Bible course.

W. C. Blankenship, superintendent of schools, states that the course is privately financed by the Big Spring Pastor's Association—thus circumventing the state law.

A teacher—the Rev. Ed Welsh—has been employed by the association. At the present he is teaching a course dealing with the Old Testament. With the beginning of the second semester, he will teach the New Testament.

Blankenship says that the school has no connection with the Bible courses. "All we do is furnish a room for the classes and give credit for the courses," he said.

Boy Worley, High School principal, says that the state allows credit for Bible courses so long as they are privately financed and are taught from a non-denominational viewpoint.

Worley states that the local Bible courses are not according to any denominational slant. "Pastors from all over the city contribute to the fund for the course, and it would be impossible to teach any one doctrine."

Bible course credit belongs to the social science field, Superintendent Blankenship said. "The pupils in the Bible course work just as hard as any others for their grades. They have to know it just like history."

North Texas Dairy Hearing Underway

DALLAS, Sept. 16 (AP)—A hearing opened here today on the request of North Texas dairymen for an emergency increase in milk prices for producers.

The dairymen are from 40 counties in the North Texas milkshed. They are proposing an amendment to the price of Class 1 (chiefly fluid products) milk under order No. 43 regulating the handling of milk in the North Texas area.

Drought conditions have made it imperative that the producer get a stable price for his milk," said J. O. Woodman, head of the North Texas Producers Association.

Jack Bain, hearing officer from Washington, D. C., presided. Evidence collected will be forwarded to the Department of Agriculture in Washington for further study.

Kefauver Plans Active Campaign For Demo Ticket

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver telephoned Democratic National Committee headquarters today to say he'll be back in the United States next week ready to conduct a vigorous campaign for the party ticket.

"I want to work vigorously for the election of Gov. Stevenson and Sen. Sparkman," Kefauver said in a trans-Atlantic call from France.

Kefauver was Adlai Stevenson's principal opponent for the Democratic nomination for president at the Chicago convention in July.

The Tennessee senator's campaign swing will start Oct. 2 with speeches at Centerville and Cedar Rapids in Iowa.

Then he'll tour through South Dakota, Washington, Oregon, California, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Connecticut. He won Democratic presidential primaries in most of those states.

The Tennesseean will campaign, too, in his home state on behalf of the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket as well as the Democratic candidates for governor and senator.

DESIGNING WOMAN Smart, Tall Lamps Can Do Wonders For A Room

By ELIZABETH HILLIER

A change from dinky, do-nothing lamps to smart tall ones does wonders for a room. This change alone can snap a lagging room to attention, not only because it provides new decoration, but because it improves the lighting so much. Have you stuck to small lamps because the room and the furniture are small, and big lamps look too bulky? They needn't look bulky at all, even at 30- to 35-inch heights, as the fall crop of big beauties definitely proves. For a lamp that is tall enough to be dramatic and shed more useful light, look for those which have open and airy bases. Wrought iron is exactly right and very much in fashion. Here are two wrought iron base lamps soon to be seen in the stores, one shaped like a football, (34 inches tall), the other like a pineapple, (34 1/2 inches). The third lamp sketched shows how even a 30-inch ceramic base lamp can slim down when it's designed for a lighter look. Notice, too, when you look at them that a lamp gives more light when rays aren't cut off by a bulky base.

Reich Split Is Seen Permanent By Soviet

By BRACK CURRY
 BONN, Germany (U.S. Press)—The Kremlin appears to regard the division of Germany as permanent, according to leading American officials here, and now is finishing the transformation of Eastern Germany into a full-fledged satellite state.

The Soviets apparently have given up hope of uniting Germany on their own terms, these officials believe, and have no intention of allowing free elections as the forerunner of unification. Instead they have embarked on the creation of a one-party state in East Germany on the same pattern as the Communist-dominated puppet states in Eastern Europe.

American here point out that the Russians have steadily widened the gulf between West and East Germany—while exchanging notes with the West over the future of Germany.

The Russians demand that talks on a peace treaty should be placed as the first item on the agenda of a Big Four conference on Germany. In the American view, the Soviets then would insist that the peace treaty forbid Germany to form any alliances with her wartime enemies. This would kill the elaborate program for the political and military integration of Germany with the West.

The Western Powers insist that a neutral election inspection must come first. This would determine if really free elections to set up national German government could be held in the four zones of Germany.

A peace treaty would be negotiated only after this national German government was operating.

The Russians apparently realize that a freely elected German government would wipe out Communist control in East Germany and thus end their hopes of neutralizing all of Germany. Such a government might also challenge Moscow's hold on the East European satellites.

So Soviet policy now is to mobilize the resources of East Germany to help counterbalance the economic strength and the planned rearmament of Western Germany.

Kim May Turn Out To Be Lost Wyoming Lass

FORT WORTH, Sept. 16 (U.S. Press)—The self-designated Indian girl who was found Friday in woods near here, may be a youngster who disappeared two months ago from a girls camp in Connecticut.

Both Connecticut state police and the father of Connie Smith, who left the camp July 15, were checking into the possibility late last night. She is the granddaughter of Nils H. Smith, former governor of Wyoming.

Connie is only 10, but is well-developed for her age and in other physical respects bears a resemblance to the girl who was found here.

Peter Smith, father of Connie, called the Star-Telegram by telephone last night from his ranch at Newcastle, Wyo., seeking information about the case. Told about Kim's appearance, he said the resemblance was striking and he planned to check into the matter today.

Kim, who said she was a member of an Iroquois Indian tribe living on a St. Regis River island between the United States and Canada, was at home on the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bowen, near Antelope. Their Jack County ranch has no telephone, and Kim was unavailable for comment. Smith was to try to make contact with the Bowens.

He also indicated there was a strong possibility he would come here in search of his missing daughter.

Smith said that Connie had had an injury and that she may be suffering from amnesia.

Connecticut state police also were checking into the case. Lt. Victor Clark, of state police department headquarters at Hartford, told the Star-Telegram that steps were being taken to institute a check here.

He said the descriptions of the two girls were similar, although Kim gave her age as 12.

Connie's mother is Mrs. Helen Smith, who lives near Sun Dance, Wyo., but spends considerable time in the East. She is presently in Greenwich, Conn.

Connie was the object of an intensive two weeks search by land and air after disappearing from the girls camp.

JayCees To Survey Traffic Near School

Big Spring JayCees made final plans Monday for a barbecue to be held Thursday night on top of scenic mountains.

Originally set for last week, the barbecue was re-set for this week so as not to interfere with the Longhorn League play-off games here earlier.

George Weeks, chairman of the party committee, announced that food will be served around 7 p.m. Initial plans were also laid for the JayCee-sponsored Howard County Pig Show Oct. 1 and 2.

Directing general planning for the show is Durward Lewter, county agent. A Chinese auction was agreed upon and Cain Grigsby will handle the auction. In charge of the sales committee will be W. L. "Squeaky" Thompson. Also serving on the committee are George Elliott, M. D. Sims, C. C. Ryan, Jack Buchanan and Glen Gale.

Visitors may see the animals during the day and night of Oct. 1. Judging will be during the day of Oct. 2 with the sale scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

A motion was passed that the club conduct a traffic survey of its own at the intersection of 11th Place and Birdwell Lane. Several members complained about lack of traffic control during the school hours.

Various JayCees will check vehicular traffic during the day today and will present its findings to the City Commission meeting tonight along with a request for more adequate control.

the City Commission meeting tonight along with a request for more adequate control.

The club also agreed to cancel its meeting next Monday in order to meet with the American Business Club on Sept. 26. At this time, Delmar Roberts, president of the New Mexico Farm Bureau will speak as a part of a local observance of "Good Citizenship Week."

Massachusetts Primary Today

BOSTON (U.S. Press)—Massachusetts holds its primary election today with the interest of the voters stirred by a legislative battle over a rich pension program the legislators voted themselves last July and repealed earlier today.

There are few contests for the top nominations in both contests but widespread interest in the legislators' action is expected to draw out the biggest vote since the 1948 presidential election.

There are 2,450,000 voters in Massachusetts. Followers of state politics say today's turnout may exceed the 33 per cent who voted two years ago and may even approach the 47 per cent turnout of 1948.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, has no competition in his bid for re-nomination. Neither has his Democratic opponent, U.S. Rep. John F. Kennedy.

Gov. Paul A. Dever (D), seeking a third term, also is unopposed as is his GOP opponent, U.S. Rep. Christian A. Herter.

There are Democratic contests in eight of the 14 congressional districts and Republican contests in four.

Polls close at 7 p.m. (EST) at the latest.

Radio-TV Leaders Testify At Probe

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
 WASHINGTON (U.S. Press)—Radio-television industry spokesmen told a congressional committee today that what they are trying to teach is a clean living and good morals, rather than "hoochy kootchy" and liquor drinking.

Leaders in the radio-TV field were called before a House Interstate Subcommittee investigating the content of programs now on the air waves.

The inquiry was ordered by the House after some Congress members had complained that too much objectionable matter was being broadcast and telecast, with emphasis on the art of pouring liquor and on "hoochy kootchy."

To keep the record in balance, the committee called hearings for today and tomorrow to obtain the comments of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, American Broadcasting Co., Mutual Broadcasting System and Dumont Television Network.

Industry views were summed up in a statement by Hollis M. Seavey, director of Washington operations for MBS.

Seavey said the industry seeks diligently to keep objectionable matter off the air and to "produce programs that are psychologically and morally correct and acceptable."

The things considered in making up programs, he said, include "good taste, proper social concepts, education and entertainment," with the emphasis "everyday virtues of clean living, good morals, fair play."

While making a play for the attention of 44 million Americans who are mystery fans, Seavey said, programs depicting crime "are planned with a great deal of thought and care and in strict adherence to the code voluntarily adopted by the broadcasting industry."

In crime programs, he said, "the cardinal rule is that 'crime does not pay.'"

Attorney Wins GOP Bid In Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (U.S. Press)—James O. Watts, a Narragansett attorney, won the Republican nomination for U.S. Representative yesterday to oppose incumbent John Fogarty, unopposed for the Democratic nomination, in November.

Watts received 9,744 votes to 1,183 for Howard Nelson, Charlestown carpenter. Watts had the backing of the GOP State Central Committee while Nelson was endorsed by labor organizations.

This was strictly a Republican primary.

The Democratic primary will be held Sept. 24. Under state law, respective primaries must be held on different dates.

Lack of state-wide contests resulted in a very light vote.

College Ought To Be Renamed For Trout

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (U.S. Press)—Trout are going to help build a college here.

Gerald Olson announced he would throw his trout farms here open to fishermen from Thursday until the end of the month. Fishermen will pay 10 cents an inch for any they catch and payments will go into the building fund of Northwest Michigan College.

The community college opened a year ago in temporary quarters with approximately 150 students.

Prisoners Recaptured After Fatal Shooting Of A Federal Officer

TUCSON, Ariz. (U.S. Press)—Two prisoners fatally shot a deputy U. S. marshal in downtown Tucson yesterday and escaped, but they were recaptured 30 minutes later.

Edmund L. Schweppe, the marshal, had taken the pair to a dentist's office on the seventh floor of the Valley National Bank Building for treatment.

Schweppe was shot in the back with his own revolver, apparently after he removed handcuffs joining the men.

The prisoners are Arthur Eugene Fuller, 27, born in Illinois, and Thomas W. Abbot, 20, born in Ohio. They were charged with killing a federal officer and escaping.

Northeastern Borden Venture Completes In Mississippian

A northeastern Borden County venture in the Fluvanna area has been completed. The Mississippian field, it made 131 barrels in 24 hours.

Attempts to get Spraberry production in central Dawson were abandoned temporarily, but operators of Malco No. 1 Mitchell have not finally plugged.

Cosden squeezed off a second set of perforations in a northeast Howard shallow test and studied whether further attempts would be made to obtain low gravity production found in two other wells in the area.

Burglary Probed At High School

Juvenile Officer A. E. (Shorty) Long and city police today are investigating a burglary at the Big Spring High School. Approximately $80 in currency, $90 in checks and two wrist watches are missing from Principal Roy Worley's vault.

Long stated that the burglary took place sometime Sunday night. Authorities investigated Monday and found several fingerprints. Faculty members and some students are now being fingerprinted by the officers.

Entry into the building was made through a back door. Long stated that a window pane was broken to open the door from the inside. He said that the persons breaking into the building found the combination to the principal's vault in a desk.

Long said the fingerprints found were small, and authorities believe the burglary was made by children.

TRUMAN

American medicine outstripped the world on a voluntary basis and on that basis, plus voluntary insurance plans, together with locally administered intelligent medical care programs for those unable to participate—the needs of Americans will most adequately be met.

Truman was already on record as saying that if opponents of compulsory medical insurance can come forward with a better plan, or even one almost as good, he will go along with it.

A presidentially appointed commission, headed by Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, former medical director of the Veterans Administration, is now making a study of total health requirements with authority to make recommendations on all federal health insurance and all other health matters.

Truman said he did not know what the commission will recommend and "I have not in any way sought to control the work of this commission."

The president pointed to the growing program of constructing hospitals and said behind all advances "is the underlying force of medical resource."

Right now, he said, the federal government is supporting by research grants about a quarter of all research done in medical schools "without any control at all over the scientists or the schools."

"Our atomic apothecary in Oak Ridge has made about 27,000 shipments of radioactive isotopes to 922 institutions in the United States," Truman added.

He said many of the hospitals were using these materials for diagnosis of patients with thyroid disease, heart disease and cancer.

But, he said, "you can't take care of sick people just by putting them in a building."

"The building is a shell and doesn't become a hospital until it is equipped and staffed. You can't make the best modern medicine available to everybody — as it should be — unless there is some way for people to pay for it."

STEVENSON

thetic" to them. But he said, "If there are 15 million or more independents and the spread between the parties for normal votes is somewhat less than that, the independents would decide it."

Another point has come into the forefront of the discussions in Springfield.

In Stevenson's camp, it is recalled that in the pre-convention struggle between Taft and Eisenhower, the general's supporters argued that Eisenhower could attract the independent vote in the election and that Taft could not. Stevenson's advisers indicate that he will now center his fire on Taft and his views, arguing that the Republican "Old Guard" is dictating Eisenhower's position, in an effort to draw off the non-party voters who, presumably, were prepared to follow the general.

They are making a strong point here, as well, over the fact that Taft came to the meeting with Eisenhower bringing a prepared statement.

Stevenson said yesterday, "Taft says he prepared his statement before he saw the general. This must be the first time that the vanquished dictated peace terms to the victor."

While Stevenson is watching developments in the opposition camp, there is speculation here on his position with respect to some Democratic senators who are up for election.

The governor said with emphasis in the news conference, when asked if he endorses all the Democratic candidates:

"I do not. I will endorse individuals."

border-line between Democratic and Republican control, that were larger than this correspondent has seen for any presidential candidate in a comparable area.

At Aurora, for instance, Police Sgt. Casper Neiser said the crowd he estimated at 45,000 persons was the largest he ever had seen assembled in the city in 27 years of service in the police department.

It was about the same size crowd which had greeted the Republican nominee at South Bend, Ind., where the CIO is strong, at a mid-day meeting in the County Courthouse square.

The Republican nominee had his biggest show of the day in South Bend. He charmed an audience of about 2,500 persons at the University of Notre Dame by addressing all of his remarks to incoming freshmen. Then he detoured to shake hands with Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's famed football coach.

Violence Flares At Steel Plant In Fort Worth

Mitchell

Cosden No. 1 Kincaid, et al, C SW NW 60-20, LaVaca, drilled to 2,420.

Violence flared today in the six-day old strike of CIO Steelworkers at the American Manufacturing Company here.

A bomb exploded under a company worker's car, wrecking the rear of the vehicle, shattering windows and showering debris on the employee's home.

No one was hurt in the blast which rocked the residential neighborhood about 1 a.m.

Police Chief Roland R. Howerton, who investigated the mishap, said the bomb apparently was the type explosive used for underwater demolition in World War II.

Mrs. L. F. Williamson, about 55, the worker's wife, accused members of the striking union of planting the bomb. Her husband has been crossing the picket line to go to work. The Williamson's were asleep at the time.

Mrs. Williamson said she and her husband noticed an auto passing their house several times last night, a few hours before the bomb exploded.

The bomb ripped the rear fender off the car and damaged the axle and tire.

Chief Howerton said "We're not going to tolerate this sort of thing. We're going to run this down, whether it comes from labor or from any other source."

Labor officials could not be reached for comment immediately.

This is the second report of violence in the strike that began last Thursday when negotiations over a new contract broke down.

Edward S. Greiner, 61, of Grapevine, was hit in the mouth by a rock as he walked the picket line Monday night.

Harlingen, San Antonio Picked Hospital Sites

AUSTIN, Sept. 16 (AP)—The State Hospital Board decided today to seek establishment of two tuberculosis hospitals—one at Harlingen and one at San Antonio—as replacements for its Weaver H. Baker Memorial Tuberculosis Sanatorium near Mission.

The decision followed the recommendation of a four-member board committee.

It leaves to the legislature the final action of either approving both sites or deciding between the two. The board is without power to move the hospital without legislative authority.

The Harlingen and San Antonio branches would each have a capacity of 400 to 600 beds under the recommended plan.

The board also adopted a committee recommendation to undertake rebuilding of the temporary facilities used by the East Texas Tuberculosis Hospital near Tyler.

"This committee believes that if these recommendations can be carried out and these three hospitals can be built, the state will be in excellent position with respect to state-operated tuberculosis hospitals," the committee report said.

On the panel were board Chairman Claud Gilmer, Rock Springs; Durwood Manford, Smiley; James M. Windham, Livingston; and Dr. Walter C. Goddard, Austin.

At a public hearing yesterday, a San Antonio delegation urged location of the sanatorium there, citing that a U. S. Public Health survey showed San Antonio to be the worst big city in the nation in respect to tuberculosis.

Six Marine Pilots Die After Flying Into Shrouded Hill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Marine Corps reported today that six fighter pilots flew into a cloud shrouded hillside in Korea last Thursday and were killed.

An announcement said the pilots, flying Panther jets, were returning from a combat mission in bad weather and were trying to approach a strange landing field.

No further details were given.

On return flights from combat missions, pilots frequently fly in follow-the-leader order. This may have been the case with the six.

All of the pilots were members of the "Able Eagles" Squadron.

Bicycle Is Stolen

Theft of a bicycle from a parking space near the Ritz theater was reported Monday night. J. T. Grantham reported loss of his son's bike.

Lamesa's Fiesta Queen

Queen of the Lamesa Fiesta which observed the 148th anniversary of Mexico's freedom Monday was Senorita Janie Cazares of O'Donnell. Her attendants were Senoritas Mary Salinas and Rose Cazares, also of O'Donnell. The queen was selected by the Latin American citizens of Dawson County and the Mexican nationals who are presently employed in the cotton harvest in the area. It was not until the last minute that the Lamesa sponsors of the fiesta were told who the queen would be.

Lamesans Sponsor Observance Of Mexican Independence Day

By FRANKLIN REYNOLDS

LAMESA — This West Texas community once looked upon with disfavor by the Mexican Government because of claims of discrimination against Mexican nationals and persons of Mexican descent, came back with a magnificent and sincere gesture of international good will and fellowship yesterday in sponsoring a county-wide observance of the anniversary of Mexico's independence.

Yes, Lamesa threw out the welcome mat, rolled out the royal purple carpet of the equality of man and in the style of good old-fashioned West Texas hospitality "hung the latching on the outside."

While the Anglos participated in the program, many of them colorfully arrayed in the traditional costumes of fiesta days, it was still the Latin American's festival with the Anglos doing no more than playing the part of the gracious host and hostess, and paying their respects to the fiesta queen Senorita Janie Cazares of O'Donnell and her attendants, Senoritas Mary Salinas and Rose Cazares, also of O'Donnell.

The Latin-Americans picked their own queen.

Much of the credit for the success of the event, according to Lamesans, must go to Mrs. Matt McCall, former manager of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, with whom the idea originated, and to DeWayne Davis, present manager, who was active in turning the McCall suggestion into reality. Assisting Davis were Anglos and Latin Americans alike. Among those participating in arranging the program were Bill Ybarra; Tim Cook; Doyle Hankins; Flavio Aguilar; W. D. Arnett; Ray Gonzalez; John Flache; Mrs. W. J. Beckham; Richard Crawley; LaSara Landin; Mrs. Fal Villalobos; J. D. Williams; Bob Carter; Don Rogers; Valente Gonzalez; Ricardo Guzman; Alfred Guzman; Mrs. Noble Price; Mrs. Earnest Moody; Ronnie Shepherd; Dr. O. H. Nance; Leonor Gomez; Aurelia Aguilera;

Margarita Favella; Amella Ramirez; Demetrio Cosillas and Ramon Hillburn.

Also Mrs. Matt McCall; Stansell Clement; Trinidad Cano; Father Vincent Daugitis; Trinidad Ybarra; Margarita Espinosa; Guadalupe Casillas; Fernin Chagalla; Howard Maddox; Tomas Gomez; Cecil Grimes; Luis Amaro; Eduardo Landin; Pascual Casillas and Alejos Salazar.

Also Jose Ramirez; Gustavo Labbea; Don Emory; Bill Ybarra; John T. Agee; Ray Gonzalez; Ricardo Villalobos; Jack Mitchell; Bill Anderson; Clemon Montgomery; Juan Ramirez; Charles Lusk; Jose Garcia; Santos Salazar; Guillermo Tremino; Luz Garza; Dick Collins; Bob Crawley; Henry Norris; Valera Pratt and Mrs. Edna Peterson.

Also taking a very active part in creating the program and in its presentation were the members of the Lamesa GI Forum.

The festivities got under way about 3 p. m. with the colorful parade which included many in traditional fiesta costumes; the Lamesa High School Band; the Lamesa Junior High School band; the O'Donnell High School band; the Dawson County Sheriff's posse, fancily decorated cars and floats.

The parade was brought to an end at the corner of the Square where the queen, her attendants and guests were seated on the reviewing stand.

Bob Goodberry and Bob Harris officiated as masters of ceremony, and the invocation was said by Trinidad Cano.

Major J. W. Bryant welcomed the large crowd and the response was delivered by Joseph F. Walker, United States consul at Juarez. Another welcome was extended by Henry Norris, president of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce and the response was made by the Mexican consul at Amarillo, Joel S. Quintones.

One of the most popular figures attending the fiesta was Arturo Martinez, Mexican motion picture actor, and the Trio Los Aragueños, musicians who accompanied him. Distinguished visitors were entertained with a dinner in the Mesa Room. Special entertainment included the presentation of Mexican folk dances by students of the Lamesa schools and students from the Kate Morrison School in Big Spring under the direction of Mrs. Elmo Davis.

Following the playing of Mexican games the celebration was concluded with a street dance on the square at night.

Stansell Clement served as master of ceremonies at the Mesa Room dinner at which Waggoner Carr of Lubbock was the guest speaker.

Nathan Jones Is Given Another 3 Year Prison Term

A 60-year-old man serving two years on a swindling conviction drew an additional three-year prison term yesterday after pleading guilty to mail fraud charges.

Nathan P. Jones was accused of bilking people out of down payments on homes. Some of those people were in Big Spring.

Jones was sentenced in United States District Court in Dallas. Elton L. Gilliland, district attorney, indicated that some of the evidence in the case was forwarded to Dallas from his office.

He said that Jones, operating locally through Ernest L. Lombard, used the mails to advertise his "developments," took money for down payments, and never built a house. Jones operated the Town and Country Builders.

Gilliland said Jones also operated in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Louisiana. Jones has also been indicted on 23 counts of mail fraud in Kansas. He was taken to trial in Dallas from Huntsville.

Man Yells Loud To Get Rid Of Burglar

Charles Miles, who resides at Coleman Courts, hollered loud enough to shake a would-be burglar loose from part of his equipment Monday night.

Miles told police he spotted the prowler outside the window of his apartment about 10:30 p. m. Monday. He watched the man awhile, hoping to ascertain his identity.

The night being poor, Miles finally shouted at the man who fled, dropping a screwdriver, a pair of lineman's pliers and a heavy pocketknife when he stumbled on the getaway.

Three in Family Are Hurt In Car Mishap

Mr. and Mrs. Jose Ramirez and daughter of Stanton received minor injuries about 2:30 a. m. today when their car was in collision with one operated by Willie Swafford of Odessa, sheriff's officers reported.

The three were given first aid treatment and dismissed from Copper Hospital this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Dub Weatherford said the mishap occurred as the Ramirez car turned toward Stanton near Morilla.

MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—Moderate buying put the brakes on a stock market decline today.

Initial losses were shaded and some railroad and industrial issues turned to the upside.

Prices were well mixed, with few advances or declines ranging to as much as a point.

Trading hit an active pace at the start with several sizable blocks changing hands unchanged to slightly lower, then subsided to a more sedate walk.

National Distillers, which was the most active stock Monday at lower levels, staged a recovery today and traded fractionally higher.

Others reaching higher ground included Northern Pacific, Southern Railway, Nickel and Coal, Goodrich, Chrysler, Radio Shilco, International Paper, Kennecott, St. Paul, and American Telephone.

Depressed at times were Union Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.), General Motors, Consolidated Natural Gas, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, Homestead, Anaconda Copper and Stone Mountain.

Building material issues were narrowly mixed, in the wake of the government's relaxation of housing credit controls.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—Noon cotton prices were 20 to 40 cents a bale lower than the previous close. Oct. 30-15, Dec. 30-11 and March 30-8.

Man Gets 10 Years For Fondling Minor

Samuel A. Hill, former taxi-cab dispatcher, was given a 10-year sentence in the penitentiary this morning in the 118th District Court on charges of fondling a minor.

The sentence was pronounced by Judge Charlie Sullivan after three other men had been assessed prison terms in the court. Joaquin Medina, tried Monday on a charge of assault with intent to murder, was given one and a half years in prison on a jury verdict.

Paul Begay, Jr., tried Monday night before the court, was given a two year sentence for car theft. James W. Gibson, facing his second charge of driving while intoxicated, was given a two year suspended sentence.

Hill waived a jury in his trial and pleaded guilty. Testimony revealed that he had lured two small girls—age nine and 12—into his hotel room on August 9. He said he promised the girls show money if they would submit to sexual intercourse.

Police arrested Hill after he had fondled the minors when informed by a bell boy at the hotel that he had children in his room. One of the little girls took the stand and said she received a dollar for the act. Hill is 44 years old.

Medina, resident of Sterling City, was found guilty of shooting Andres Alcantar Jr., on the night of July 18. Testimony revealed that the two, along with several others, had attended a dance. After the dance Alcantar and another boy—Ramon Torres—had a scuffle.

Medina was with Torres. After the fight Medina and Torres started to leave in an automobile. Medina testified that Alcantar and about "six or seven" others started throwing rocks at the car. Medina said he fired at the boys with his 22 automatic pistol.

Dr. Arch D. Carson, being questioned by District Attorney Elton L. Gilliland, stated that the bullet entered Alcantar's back. Another Latin American to take the stand—G. M. Lara—said he was also shot in the leg during the incident.

Members of the jury who found Medina guilty were J. W. Dodrey, John Nobles, Burle E. Dennis, W. L. Brown, Matt Harrington, W. L. Gage, Roy C. Hester, J. R. Fortenberry, J. B. King, Carl Bates, W. D. Green, and C. V. Warren.

Jurymen deliberated five hours, starting at 4:30 p. m. Monday.

County Fair Canceled Here

Executive committee of the Howard County Fair Association decided Tuesday morning that this was no year for staging a fair. However, they confidently planned for resumption of the series next year. The last Thursday, Friday and Saturday of September was fixed as the permanent dates for the fair.

Plans for broadening some of the activities were discussed, and committee members will convene again on Nov. 12 to discuss more fully a possible program for next autumn's show.

A dearth of exhibit material due to "extenuating circumstances" (drought) was given as the reason for passing up the fair. Agricultural production this year is perhaps as bad if not worse than at any time since Howard County broke sod for farming operations.

Dallas Officer Due To Take Man Here

Dallas authorities were expected here today to assume custody of a man apprehended in possession of a stolen automobile Monday.

The man is being held in city jail. He was arrested by police shortly before noon Monday as he approached the city from Snyder in a stolen 1951 Plymouth, property of Guthrie Castle, Memphis, Tenn.

He told officers the car was stolen in Dallas and that Tennessee license plates were removed and tossed into a lake near New Boston.

Marchbanks Said To Be Improved; Binder Also Better

Condition of John W. Marchbanks, 67, long time Big Spring resident, continued serious at Copper hospital Tuesday, but he had shown remarkable improvement.

Barring unforeseen complications, Mr. Marchbanks now is given a fair chance at recovery. He suffered a bullet wound through his head last Thursday evening.

Also showing satisfactory improvement, but still not out of danger, is Martin Binder, his son-in-law, who had a bullet wound through his abdomen. Binder is at Medical Arts Hospital. The incident occurred when Mrs. Binder said she saw her father with a pistol and that he did not seem to be his usual self at all. Binder was shot when he opened a door to investigate noise of a scuffle in which Mrs. Binder sought to take possession of the pistol.

Man Pleads Not Guilty To Assault

Jack W. Bryant, charged over the week end with aggravated assault on his wife, Ruth Bryant, pleaded not guilty today in arraignment before County Judge Walter Grice and was released on $1,000 bond.

Bryant was arrested last Saturday by Sheriff Jake Bruton and deputy A. C. Abernathy. His wife claimed that Bryant beat her on the head, inflicting serious injury, Friday night.

Mrs. Bryant has filed for a divorce in District Court, and Judge Charlie Sullivan has granted an order restraining Bryant from threatening or molesting Mrs. Bryant and their children.

using the term "Texas Democratic" on the ballot in competition with the customary "Democratic" column.

Wright told the court that he considered a resolution passed by the state convention at Amarillo as an invitation by that convention to form another party with Eisenhower as the candidate. He referred to a resolution which urged the Democrats to vote for Eisenhower on the Republican ticket or that of any other party which had the same electors as the Republicans.

He said he notified the new State Executive Committee Chairman Wallace Savage, Dallas, of his intentions to organize such a party and quoted Savage as saying, "If you're going to do it, you'll have to move fast."

Wright insisted that the ballot as his party contemplates it would make it impossible for a voter to be confused between the Democratic Party of Texas with Eisenhower as its candidate and the Democratic Party with Stevenson as the candidate.

"Anybody who gets confused about that ain't fit to vote," he testified.

He insisted that the new party was not attempting to usurp power or the prerogatives of the Democratic Party but was just trying to make the issue clear on the ballot. He said the issue simply was "Socialists coming in and diluting the Democratic Party." That, he said, is what he is fighting.

Gideon Night At Revival
Tonight is Gideon night at the Tent Revival at 15th and Nolan Streets. Evangelist Lester Roloff stated that he would like to see a packed tent in the service honoring the Gideons.
"Last night the tent was full, and people were on both sides," he said. "Tonight we plan to have some chairs and benches on the side of the tent for the overflow."
The revival services start at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Virgil James, pastor of the Hillcrest Mission, will lead the prayer meeting tonight previous to the service.
Evangelist Roloff said that the response during the Monday night service was greater than ever before. He said that more than a hundred were converted or re-dedicated.
The evangelist stated that if anyone did not have a way to attend the revival service, someone would be available to furnish rides. He said for people to call 1048-J for transportation.

Morse Drafts Talk To Present To AFL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse began drafting a speech today for the American Federation of Labor National Convention which may point up a major difference between him and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Oregon Republican told newsmen he would not complete the text of his address until after he reads Eisenhower's speech before the AFL Convention in New York tomorrow. Morse's talk is set for Thursday.

Morse, who describes himself as a constitutional liberal and frequently is in the opposite camp from many of his Republican Senate colleagues, was an early booster of Eisenhower for the GOP presidential nomination.

But he has announced he is highly dissatisfied with the turn the general's campaign has taken recently, particularly with the hearty reception given to Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Morse says that as matters now stand he will vote for Eisenhower and believes the GOP nominee will win the election, but that he plans no active campaign for him.

Morse lists the labor-management issue as one on which he has sharp differences with the Eisenhower camp. And he puts Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson on the back for his stand on this same question.

Morse favors a drastic rewriting of the Taft-Hartley Act. Stevenson has come out for Taft-Hartley repeal followed by a fresh start on a labor-management relations law, a position Morse said was "sound".

Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and an old friend of Morse, came here from Eisenhower headquarters in New York after Morse had indicated Saturday his coolness toward the GOP nominee.

After his talk with Stassen, Morse said his decision not to campaign actively this fall remained unchanged. The same went, he said, for his refusal to sit on the platform with Eisenhower at the AFL Convention.

TV Could Be Used By Railroaders

CHICAGO (AP)—Pint-sized television went railroading today to show how it might save wear and tear on both rolling stock and personnel.

The new uses of television were under exploration here in tests conducted this afternoon by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the RCA Victor Division of Radio Corporation of America.

Placed into service were three small Vidicon industrial TV systems which are supposed to permit men in fixed locations to do jobs which normally would require extra movement of both men and freight cars.

Normally a freight car checker must walk among trains and over tracks to list car numbers on an incoming train to assign the cars to other trains headed for various sections of the country.

The new wrinkle has the checker sitting quietly before a television screen listing the numbers as the cars pass before a small, unattended camera.

ABOARD USS WASP (AP)—Sixteen U.S. planes engaged in NATO's "Mainbrace" maneuvers claimed today to have damaged an "enemy" raider as a big international task force set powerful air-sea blows to eliminate the threatening warship.

The 18 planes from the huge American aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt located the "enemy" vessel last night 50 miles from the task force. The role of the raider in this big naval exercise is taken by the Canadian heavy cruiser Quebec.

A vast fleet of 160 ships and more than 80,000 men are involved in the test of Allied operation plans. From this armada, a 52-vessel task force is moving northward in the North Sea. At the heart of the force are three of the world's biggest carriers, Britain's HMS Eagle and the American Midway and Roosevelt.

The Quebec represents a fast-moving attacker seeking to pick off capital ships in the force.

A bigger force of air fighters was scheduled to attack the raider today while three Allied cruisers raced to engage her. Bad weather may hold up the operation, however. Winds of up to 65 miles an hour were predicted for the battle area.

The task force is speeding to the aid of NATO's northern-most member, Norway, menaced by an enemy which theoretically has conquered much of continental Europe. The games will range also south to Denmark.

US Planes Say They 'Damaged' Vessel In Games

ABOARD USS WASP (AP)—Sixteen U.S. planes engaged in NATO's "Mainbrace" maneuvers claimed today to have damaged an "enemy" raider as a big international task force set powerful air-sea blows to eliminate the threatening warship.

Russians Return Manchurian Railroad To Communist China

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today that it is handing back control of Manchuria's vital Changchun Railway to Communist China this year but that Russia will continue to use the Manchurian naval base of Port Arthur—190 miles west of Korea—until Japan signs a peace treaty with the Communists.

The new agreement, announced here by the Soviet news agency Tass, came at the conclusion of top-level Soviet-Chinese talks which have been going on here since Aug. 17.

The Tass announcements included three important points:

1. The new agreement on Port Arthur, which was occupied by Soviet forces at the end of World War II. Under the 30-year Russian-Chinese treaty of friendship signed in Moscow on Feb. 14, 1950, the Soviets agreed to get out of Port Arthur by the end of 1952. In a note published today, Red China's Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai asked the Soviets to stay because in the absence of the Japanese peace treaty with the Communist Powers, "conditions have arisen dangerous for peace and favorable for a reiteration of Japanese aggression."
2. A communique said that "important political and economic questions concerning the relations" between the two countries were discussed. Details were not given. Under the 1950 pact, Russia granted China 300 million dollars in credits toward the purchase of materials and equipment from the Soviet Union. Western observers was asking for additional aid because he suggested that China probably cause of her expenses in the Korean War.
3. Return of the Changchun Railway by the end of 1952, as provided in the 1950 agreement. A separate communique said the railway would be returned to full Chinese administration by the end of this year, without any Russian payment of compensation for its use. A mixed Soviet-Chinese commission will handle details of the hand-over.

There was no reference to the port and rail center of Dairen, 25 miles east of Port Arthur. The 1950 treaty provided that the future of this city (and presumably of Russia's rights there) would be considered after the signing of a Japanese peace treaty. The lack of any mention of Dairen apparently means the two nations are standing pat on this understanding. The city, meanwhile, has been under Chinese administration. The communique said the negotiations had been conducted by Prime Minister Stalin, Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky and Trade Minister P. N. Kurykin for the Soviets. The Chinese negotiators headed by Chou included Deputy Premier Chen Yung. Li Fu-chun, vice chairman of Peiping's Economic committee; Chang Wen-tien, Chinese ambassador to Moscow, and Su Yui, deputy chief of the Chinese general staff.

The Changchun Railway is the shortest rail route from Central Siberia to the Russian port of Vladivostok, and extends south to Dairen and Port Arthur on the strategic southernmost tip of Manchuria.

A branch line extends from Mukden down to Antung, on the border between Manchuria and North Korea.

Under the 1945 treaty with the Chinese government of Chiang Kai-shek the lines were to be under joint Russian-Chinese ownership and operation for 30 years, after which they were to revert to China without compensation.

In the 1950 agreement with the Red Chinese regime, the Russians promised to transfer all ownership in the railway and all administration to the Peiping government in 1952.

The new Soviet-Chinese agreement on Port Arthur was covered in two notes—Chou's request that the Russians stay on, and the Soviet acceptance of this request. Vishinsky signed the latter.

All public announcements stressed the negotiations were conducted in an atmosphere of cordiality. Stalin gave a great banquet in the Kremlin last night to celebrate the end of the talks, the first such entertainment since his 1950 banquet in honor of Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung.

More Than 21,000 'Dips' Taken In The City Pool

The number of swims taken in municipal swimming pool during the summer just about equalled Big Spring's population.

Records of C. R. McClenny, city secretary, show there were more than 21,000 "dips" taken in the mummy pool during the approximately two months it was open. That doesn't include the "season" swimmers and holders of 10-swim ticket books.

Revenue from the summer's operation amounted to $6,412.18. The pool wasn't opened until early in July, due to the shortage of water this summer. Cosden Petroleum Corp. furnished water for the pool during the two months it was in operation.

Swims included 12,876 adults, 5,435 children, and 2,985 taken by members of various clubs and organizations. In addition, there were approximately 100 season and 10-swim ticket books sold.

The amount of water which flows out of the Mediterranean Sea is much less than the amount which flows in because of high evaporation from the surface.

'Wonder Drug' Chloromycetin Sale Has Decreased In City

The sale of Chloromycetin—one of the new "wonder" drugs—has decreased by about 15 per cent in Big Spring since the adverse publicity it received a little over a month ago.

Druggists here report local doctors write prescriptions for Chloromycetin only on rare occasions now. It was just a little while back that the drug was being prescribed more frequently.

The bad publicity came when several national magazines carried stories claiming that the drug was the cause of numerous deaths. Various medical and drug journals also carried articles warning doctors as to the proper use of Chloromycetin.

"Doctors around here have been quick to take the hint," one druggist said. "Since there is doubt about the drug, most doctors do not want to take a chance."

The drug is used to treat virus infections such as influenza and pneumonia. One druggist said it could be used for any infection in the blood stream.

"That's just the trouble," he said. "Some were using it for practically anything as a cure-all. Chloromycetin is much like penicillin and can be used to cure many ailments."

Several druggists point out that while the sale of Chloromycetin has dropped off, the sale of similar "wonder" drugs is still great. Terrormycin and Aureomycin are selling in slightly higher quantities than usual.

The average citizen cannot buy any of the wonder drugs without a prescription. "It isn't the people who have cut down on buying Chloromycetin. It's the doctors," a druggist said.

One pharmacist said that he used to sell about an equal amount of Terrormycin and Chloromycetin. "Now I sell only around 15 bottles of Chloromycetin to every 100 bottles of Terrormycin."

Another druggist stated that Chloromycetin sales had been "stopped cold" in his store. "I haven't sold a one since the reports of death, and my assistant has filled only one prescription for them."

By them, the druggist meant the capsules in which the drug is contained. Each capsule costs about 50 cents. At the peak of the drug's popularity in early 1950, each capsule cost around $1.25.

Recently the Parke-Davis Company, which makes Chloromycetin, issued a list to doctors outlining the diseases which Chloromycetin is best suited. A new label required on the bottle containers warns that the drug should not be used for minor infections because of possible repercussions.

Though doctors are not over-using Chloromycetin, the drug is used in proper cases. Druggists explained that it is used to cure diseases that penicillin and other antibiotics cannot reach.

The small percentage of sales now being made show that doctors are still using the drug. "The doctors here know what they are doing," a druggist said. "They will use the drug when they think it is necessary, but probably not before."

District Court Suit Seeks To Set Aside Earlier Settlement

Lee Bowman filed suit in the 118th District Court Monday against the Texas Employees Insurance Association to set aside a compromise settlement for an injury he received on March 10.

Bowman had previously settled with the insurance company for $275. He was injured when he slipped carrying a piece of timber weighing nearly 500 pounds. At the time of the injury, Bowman claims that a doctor said he would suffer no permanent disabilities.

The injury was to Bowman's back and hips. He now claims that the injury was permanent and that he is totally incapacitated, unable to hold a job. He is asking further settlement.

A Bible Thought For Today—

It is easy to coast down hill, but look out for the ravine. Where will you land? "Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof."—Ecc. 7:8.

Professional Pacifists Can Do A Lot To Encourage Aggression

"This Week," a magazine supplement for many of the nation's leading newspapers, last Sunday carried an article by Henry Wallace titled "Where I Was Wrong." He is described by the magazine as "for years a Russian apologist."

It is the same story a great many idealists of the Wallace type have had to tell—a story of complete and utter disillusionment. It is characteristic of idealists to be slow in recognizing glaring faults in men and institutions which are perfectly obvious to anyone less trusting.

Wallace says that up to 1949 he sincerely believed Russia "really wanted and needed peace." This was after Russia had backed the entire United Nations, after the rape of Czechoslovakia, after Russia slowly absorbed Eastern Europe, opposed the U.S. and the Western world every step of the way in even minor matters, and given every evidence of its imperialistic ambitions. It was after Wallace's Progressive Party, whose presidential nominee he was, had given clear evidence of Communist infiltration, and some of its most blatant fellow travelers, sympathizers and members had embraced Wallace's cause as their own.

"After 1949," writes Wallace, "I became more and more disgusted with the Soviet methods and finally became convinced that the Politburo wanted the Cold War continued indefinitely, even at the peril of accidentally provoking a hot war." The activities of Russian atomic spies, plus the testimony of American ex-Communists, reports from friends in Czechoslovakia and other factors finally chilled his faith in Russia's peaceful intentions.

Wallace admits he was naive enough to visit one of the great Russian slave-labor camps in Siberia without realizing its nature. He learned later that the camp had been thoroughly camouflaged to conceal its real nature for his special benefit.

"What I wanted was peace, but not at the price of Communist domination," says Henry Wallace. Professional pacifists "sometimes do more to encourage aggressive wars than so-called warmongers."

Only Three States Appear To Be Constants As Election Time Near

There is almost no such thing as a constant in the political complexion of the 48 states. Only Georgia and Arkansas have stuck to the Democratic Party through thick and thin, decade after decade; and among Republican states, only Vermont has maintained its original constancy.

You often hear Maine placed alongside Vermont as among the Republican vestal virgins. Few remember that Maine stubbed her toe and fell ingloriously into the Democratic column no longer ago than 1912.

It is true it took an extraordinary situation to wean Maine away from her Republican rock-ribbedness, but it happened all the same. That was the year T. Roosevelt took his Bull Mooseers into the fray, split the GOP wide open, and opened the way for the Democrat, Woodrow Wilson. In that year Maine gave many more votes to Roosevelt (10 on the third party ticket than it gave to William Howard Taft on the straight GOP ticket.

The result was that Wilson pocketed the electoral votes of the riven State of Maine.

In 1949 Wendell Willkie barely squeaked through in Maine, and in 1944 Tom Dewey found FDR breathing down his neck every foot of the way.

Only once in recent times has the Solid South been fractured. That was in 1928 when Florida, North Carolina, Texas and Virginia voted for Hoover in preference to Al Smith. The Dixiecrat rebellion of 1948 produced four maverick states, but this was a sheer case of Democrats beating Democrats; the Republicans which didn't have a look-in. None of the 1928 four was among the quartet who revolted in 1948.

So, on the record, the only pure and unrefined constants among all the states are Georgia, Arkansas and Vermont. This can be said as of now. What can be said after November 4 is something else again.

Merry-Go-Round—Drew Pearson

High-Powered Publicity Campaign Is Planned By The Republicans

WASHINGTON.—The Republican command has worked out a high-powered publicity campaign which will be unique in the history of American politics, and is calculated to bring victory in November.

The plan is to ask national advertisers, most of them friendly to the GOP, to surrender radio and TV advertising "spots" to the Republican National Committee during the last three weeks of the campaign, and then saturate the airways with "platters" or transcriptions from General Eisenhower.

The "spot" announcements, usually one to two minutes long, would consist of a question asked of Eisenhower by a voter, with his reply.

"The general's answer," according to the GOP plan, "would be his complete comprehension of the problem and his determination to do something about it when elected. Thus he inspires loyalty without prematurely committing himself to any strait-jacket answer."

The high-powered publicity scheme was first evolved by Fred Rudge of the consulting firm of Fisher, Rudge and Neblett of New York, who first sold the idea to Walter Williams and Jack Whitney. It was discussed by various GOP leaders on Aug. 25, and on Sept. 2 Gen. Eisenhower himself gave his personal O.K. He is setting aside half a day when the transcriptions are to be recorded.

Republican leaders felt they would have no trouble getting big advertisers to relinquish their radio and TV spots three weeks before elections, since all but two of the big advertising agencies in New York are considered Republican, and most of their clients.

The text of the GOP publicity plan, which speaks for itself, follows:

"Getting spots on radio and TV can be accomplished by asking national advertisers to surrender their spots for these three weeks, thus throwing their purchase open to the Republican and Democratic parties from the stations and the networks. Since the Republican plan would be organized and the Democratic would not, the Republicans could obtain the lion's share of the good time.

"It has been proven over and over in the course of radio-TV experience in this country that spots are the quickest, most effective and cheapest means of getting across a message in the shortest possible time.

"It is recommended that $2,000,000 be spent in three weeks on this campaign. This is at the rate of $34,000,000 a year for a national advertiser—an unheard-of saturation campaign in the radio-TV field. Then again when it is remembered that this $2,000,000 would be spent in only 49 counties, the pressure probably increases to that equivalent to spending at the rate of $135,000,000 a year—a tremendous message-leverage in key areas.

"The spots themselves would be the height of simplicity. People from each of the 49 areas would ask the general a question. Apparently they would be speaking directly to the general, though actually to simplify production and reduce the load on the general's time, they would be filmed separately.

"These spots will consist of questions raised by people speaking in the accents of the various areas, answered by the general with all the warmth and charm of which he is capable. They will be aired at the rate of roughly once an hour over the pick of 56 TV and 244 radio stations in these 49 areas.

"This ties in with a further recommendation that the spots not be made until the first week in October. This permits the greatest latitude in assessing what the problems are at that time, rather than risking political changes ensuing after the spots are made."

The publicity survey then proceeds to outline the "critica," the key, the index—states as follows: California, Oregon, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania.

"If the Republicans took all these states, the publicity plan continues, "they would end up with 308 votes, more than enough to win. However, they must take a good part of them, and it is the purpose of this plan to suggest those which must be taken, as well as the way in which their taking may be assured.

No Avalanche Of Buying Expected, But Stores See Good Business To Yuletide

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—Stores expect the dollars to roll in more merrily from now until Christmas. They don't look for an avalanche. But they figure the public at last is ripe for buying more. And they have some well-sounding arguments.

Only once in recent times has the Solid South been fractured. That was in 1928 when Florida, North Carolina, Texas and Virginia voted for Hoover in preference to Al Smith. The Dixiecrat rebellion of 1948 produced four maverick states, but this was a sheer case of Democrats beating Democrats; the Republicans which didn't have a look-in. None of the 1928 four was among the quartet who revolted in 1948.

So, on the record, the only pure and unrefined constants among all the states are Georgia, Arkansas and Vermont. This can be said as of now. What can be said after November 4 is something else again.

After the average man, however, pays the high food bills, makes the payment on the costlier house his family wanted, and on the new car he wanted, gets the kids ready for school, pays the higher fares, rates and needed services, he hasn't much left for things he may want but could do without.

Merchants know that. But they think that this fall potential customers are going to have more money to spend—and more compelling reasons for parting with it. Their reasoning runs this way:

Employment is high. Some think it may increase by a half million before Christmas.

Wage increases granted this summer—and others on the fire—should swell the sum of money available for spending.

And it's been almost two years since the public had its last big filing at buying. Some goods purchased then need replacement. And final payments on installment debt incurred then are being made—releasing part of the family income for renewed buying. Also curbs on credit are dead now, and on-the-cuff purchasing is rising again.

Against these arguments to show that retail trade should be on the "rade until" Christmas are some caution signals:

Price resistance is still strong among customers, and they don't panic easily as they did early in the Korean War.

Retail prices average out four per cent lower than a year ago, meaning that a greater volume of goods must be moved if dollar sales are to surpass last year's totals.

Much of the present boom rests on the defense program—both the tax spending for military goods, and the private spending to expand plants to make defense items. And the time-table for this defense build-up has changed several times already—and could again after election.

Store operating costs keep edging higher in many cases, so that sales volume increases don't necessarily mean much profit-wise.

Still, many retailers are feeling better this fall.

After months of painful mark-downs and hand-to-mouth buying, most stores now have inventories back to favorable working levels. Over-all retail inventories are running 10 per cent below a year ago. Some stores have succeeded in either paring costs or stopping the rise of operating expenses.

Such devices as night openings have brought more traffic through store aisles in many places. And the customers are coming back.

Retail sales hit their low point in April, then started to rise. There was a bobble in mid-summer, due to the steel strike and torrid temperatures. But sales are on the increase again.

The Department of Commerce says retail sales for the first seven months are running two per cent ahead of a year ago, with September expected to show much better than that.

Ole' Satchmo Could Give Gabriel Lesson On Horn

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—Hepcats today agree that Louis Armstrong has only one rival as a trumpet player—and he's out of this world.

He's an angel named Gabriel, and some Armstrong fans say:

"If Satchmo can take his horn with him when he goes, he'll blow some notes even old Gabe never heard."

At 52 "Satchmo"—a contraction of Satchel Mouth—shows no interest in making that long vertical journey just to join Gabriel in a jam session. He is a living symbol of the whole Jazz age, and he's still having the time of his life.

The bugle he started with long ago has turned into a golden horn—the 15 cents he got for his first night's playing has been followed by many a $15,000 week. And he enjoyed his old honky-tonk days as much as his later concerts in famous Carnegie Hall. Probably even more.

"I got peace of mind," he said. "I'm able to do my work, get my pay, and eat—and all I want to do is keep on going."

"I been blowing that horn 39 years and I never looked back once. You can live on this earth without putting all the time."

"I bet I made more than a million dollars, but I don't know. I just blow that horn and let my manager count the money. When a man's in love, what else can he want?"

Louie, who is also called "Pops," is in love with what he is doing, and his remark about making a million dollars is the understatement of the year. Besides his band income, Armstrong figures he has made some 2,500 records—"more than any musician alive."

Wrapping a towel around his whale-rivalling abdomen—he weighs nearly one-eighth of a ton now—he sat down in his theater dressing room and recalled how as a skinny boy of 13 he blew chow call on his bugle in a Negro walk home in New Orleans.

"Sometimes, just for fun, I'd hold off a few minutes," he said, "and the kids'd holler, 'Come on, Satchel Mouth, blow that horn. We want to scarf.' They meant they were hungry."

At 15 he picked up a trumpet in a honkytonk band, and he never really has put it down. In those days when a jazz artist really got in the groove, he started "moppin' the horn," and the more handkerchiefs he had to mop the perspiration with the more prosperous he was.

Today Satchmo is the laundryman's best friend—he uses 60 to 70 handkerchiefs on a busy day, and he never has to mop his brow with the same one twice in a row. To him that is the great luxury of his success.

Satchmo said a band, like an army, travels on its stomach.

"Bad stomachs and not enough sleep have ruined more good bands than bad music," he said. His solicitude for his own vast stomach has a maternal quality, and he can fall asleep "even with the dentist drilling on my teeth."

Armstrong says there are only two things that make a fine musician—ability and living.

"We can all take the book and go 'do-re-mi,'" he said, "but you got to find the other notes for yourself, and that takes time. You got to live. It takes years."

"The higher I go on that trumpet the lower I think 'a's I won't split a high note. I look up with my eyes, but I think low."

Satchmo soon is leaving for his fifth tour of Europe, where, if anything, he is even more popular than in his homeland. On a previous visit to Rome, Satchmo, who is a Baptist, had an audience with the Pope while wearing his favorite good luck charm around his neck—a gold six-pointed star, a Jewish emblem.

"What's wrong with that?" Satchmo demanded, when friends joked about it afterward. "The Pope didn't mind."

Satchmo is proud of his audience with the Pope, and of one other thing:

"I got credit on Broadway."

Pinocle Players Drink Up All Evidence Against The Prisoner

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

This is another story of a stud boss' man, but a different sort of stud boss' man from the old cowboy I wrote about a few weeks ago.

Whenever a man can imitate the nickering, neighing and snorting of a stud boss' well enough to fool an old West Texas cowboy like Lorin McDowell, and a bunch of Kansas mares, there's hardly anything you can call him except a stud boss' man.

Well, that's what happened, and here's the story.

Because of the drought, Lorin had had to do a lot of traveling looking for grass for his cattle, and then going back and forth to look after the cattle after he found the grass.

It so happened that he was in a Little Kansas town and listening to the regular weekly concert of the town's band. The fact that a lot of the members of the band were mighty cute girls with sunburned legs and dressed in shorts didn't have anything to do with Lorin being there, it should be mentioned.

The band gave rousing performance of the National Emblem March with the audience parked around the Court House Square in cars, and some old-fashioned buggies and surreys and wagons were there, too, with a few saddle mares hitched here and yore.

When the band finished the March everybody honked their horns in applause except one fellow who, having no horn, whined and neighed and nickered and snorted instead—just like a real stud boss' might have done. When Lorin heard this he said to himself: "Lord, what a boss' that must be. I got'ta look that fellow over. He sounds like he's just what we need down in Glasscock." So Lorin started looking.

He could still hear the "stud boss' but couldn't locate him. The West Texan's interest was aroused all the more when he heard the mares hitched around the Square all answering back. A horse that could stir that much enthusiasm among those old mares, Lorin thought, must be a wonder.

After he had traveled around the Court House yard a couple of times, then crossed the street and rounded the Square a couple of more times from a distance and couldn't find the stallion, he asked a native where the horse might be tied.

"Up there," said the Kansan pointing to a jail window on the second floor of the Court House. And then the man explained that the prisoner was a sort of town monkey—and bootlegger who was having a lot of fun.

"I ain't ashamed of being fooled," Lorin says, "because that fellow was good enough to fool the mares, too. They ought to have known better than me."

Lorin got interested in the stud boss' man and asked more questions the next day. He learned that the man was the only prisoner in the jail, and that since he was lonesome the sheriff had been letting his friends come in and play pinocle with him. The liquor being held as evidence against the man was in a nearby cell. These friends, and there were a great many of them who called on the prisoner, had rigged up a long wire and had been stealing the whiskey a pint at a time.

"No wonder he was snortin' like a stud boss' that night," Lorin explains, "the pinocle players had drunk up all the evidence against him."

Gallup Poll

One Voter In Three Indicates A Willingness To Be Party Worker

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 16—American political parties have a great opportunity, as yet largely untapped, to foster more citizen participation in presidential campaigns.

As many as 33 per cent of the nation's voters indicate their willingness to work as volunteers for their political parties during the Eisenhower-Stevenson campaign.

While many of these people might not follow through if given the opportunity to work, the potential for volunteer effort is nevertheless enormous if practical and effective recruiting methods can be found.

Another largely untapped opportunity for the parties lies in collecting small sums in campaign contributions from the rank and file of voters, instead of depending mainly on large contributions from a few.

A substantial number of voters say they are willing to contribute $5 each, as the Institute has previously reported.

To find out how many might be willing to help their party by doing volunteer work, Institute interviewers put this question to voters throughout the country:

"Would you be willing to work as a volunteer (without pay) for your political party during the coming campaign, or not?"

November are willing to work, than are those who want the Democrats to win, as follows:

PERSONS WHO WANT REPUBLICAN PARTY TO WIN
Would be willing	38%
Would not	56
Don't know	5
Already a volunteer worker	1
100%

PERSONS WHO WANT DEMOCRATIC PARTY TO WIN
Would be willing	35%
Would not	57
Don't know	7
Already a volunteer worker	1
100%

The challenge is whether party leaders can find practical ways of enrolling the potential volunteers.

It is obviously not just a matter of printing notices in the newspapers asking for workers, or mailing out campaign folders, but of organizing a real drive to get people enrolled and working.

Drives for Campaign Funds

With television costs making presidential campaigns more expensive than ever, the leaders of both parties are putting on determined drives for funds.

When the Institute, in June, asked voters whether they would be willing to contribute $5 to the party of their choice, 34 per cent said they would, while 54 per cent would not and the rest were undecided.

Beardsley Ruml, Adlai Stevenson's campaign treasurer, has since decided, according to newspaper reports, to try a $5 fund raising drive.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Village Older Than Jamestown

The name "Nova Scotia" came from the Latin language and means "New Scotland." Some of the early settlers were Scottish, but French families lived in this province before any Scotsmen arrived.

The first lasting white settlement in Canada was made by Frenchmen who founded the village of Port Royal in Nova Scotia. This village was started two years before Englishmen settled at Jamestown in Virginia.

The Port Royal succeeded but its people came close to despair. They passed a hard winter, and were in a mood to give up, when a vessel loaded with supplies came from France.

The months which followed were pleasant. Samuel de Champlain, French explorer and pioneer, had helped to start Port Royal. Now he formed a club called "The Order of the Good Time."

There were 15 charter members in the Good Time Club. Their program called for each member to act as Grand Master for a day. It was his duty on that day to provide a feast. Often he would go on a long hunting trip to obtain food for the feast. He might obtain fish by trading with nearby Indians.

It was usual to serve several kinds of meat (at the feast), as the flesh of moose, caribou, rabbits, bears and geese. Often there was a fish course of codfish or trout.

Indian chiefs were invited to be guests at many of the dinners. This helped to make the natives friendly toward the French settlers.

When Indian squaws came to the village with their children, they were given food. They were fond of wheat bread, which they never had tasted before the arrival of the whites.

Port Royal had troubles as time went on, but its life was kept, and it was the chief center of whites in Nova Scotia for about three quarters of a century. When it was 65 years old, a census showed that it contained 363 people.

To this day Port Royal exists, but the name was changed long since to Annapolis Royal. It is a village on an inlet of the Bay of Fundy.

125,000-Man Armed Force Is Aussie Goal

SYDNEY (AP) — Australia soon should have armed forces of some 125,000 men enlisted for overseas service, ready to go anytime to any part of the world in event of war.

This is the manpower objective of Australia's three-year defense program, now in its third year.

Provisions by the federal government that all permanently enlisted servicemen, all volunteers for the citizen forces of any of the services, and all national service trainees in the Navy and the Air Force should enroll for service anywhere in the world in war time, have given Australia a bigger standing force of men available for overseas service than the nation has ever had before.

When the three-year program is completed next year, Australia should have in the three services the numerical equivalent of 10 infantry divisions, volunteered to serve overseas.

The defense program provides the following target forces enlisted for service abroad:

Navy—17,000 permanent officers and men and 10,000 citizen force and national service personnel, a total of 27,000.

Army—33,000 regular soldiers and 30,000 citizen force volunteers enrolled for overseas service—a total of 63,000.

Air Force—16,794 permanent personnel, 1,843 citizen force personnel, 10,000 active reservists and 5,000 national service trainees.

In addition there will be a general reserve for the air force and a reserve of officers and men for the army who could be drafted for overseas service after training.

There also will be 67,500 national service trainees completing training or on reserve, who, although not enlisted for overseas service, would be available for home defense call-up.

Latest surveys of the three forces indicate that about 90,000 men are listed for overseas service already available.

The federal government estimates the total cost of this program will be at least $125,216,000, more than half of which has already been authorized.

Woman Gets Oil Royalties As Top Winner In Contest

Mrs. John Smith of Sheffield, Alabama, was handed royalties in 44 East Texas oil wells in Dallas Monday night by Governor Allen Shivers of Texas at the launching of a program by Dr. Pepper Company to awaken the nation to the need for investment in, exploration, and conservation of our natural resources for the benefit of today's children and the children of the future.

Mrs. Smith, 38 year old housewife, won the royalties after being selected from 100,000 grass-roots families who indicated their interest in owning a piece of the country in response to a six-month, $150,000 program undertaken by the soft drink company in 30 states. She will enjoy a life-time income, according to conservative estimates of leading geologists, of a minimum of $100 to $300 per month with increases dependent upon government regulations and the price of crude oil.

"Now I can pay off our mortgage and give my three children an education," she said after making a tour of the producing oil wells in the "fairway" of the East Texas fields in Rusk County.

County Judge Walter Grice announced today that sealed proposals for furniture and equipment in the new Courthouse would be received until 2 p. m., Oct. 16.

Each bid must be accompanied by check or bond payable to the Commissioners Court for five per cent of the total bid. Judge Grice stated that the court had a right to reject all bids.

Plans and specifications can be viewed without charge in the offices of Puckett and French, 505 Petroleum Building, he said. The plans can be procured for a deposit of $25 to guarantee safe return.

LIBBY'S

CROSS-EYED BRICKLAYING?

That's one way referring to this unusual pattern which showed up in the demolition of the old Wheeler home at 5th and Main. Ben Miller, patriarch of bricklayers in this area of West Texas, says that the house was there when he came here after the turn of the century. While twisting the pattern around, such as this chimney's quarter turn from the direction the fire box is facing, is hardly common, Mr. Miller doesn't think it's too difficult. "You've got to know what you're doing, of course," he said, "or it'll fall on you and kill you. Usually the turn is made to avoid placement of timber in the superstructure. I've laid them where the chimney would be in one room and the fire box in another." The twisted pattern is emulated today, he thought, quite unintentionally by too many layers.

family and heirs, honorary citizens of Texas."

As soon as the independent judges of the program selected the winner, Esther Smith was flown to Dallas from her home near Birmingham, Alabama with her husband (a Southern Railway trainman) and her 2-year old and 16-year old sons and 11-year old daughter to receive the royalties. Prior to the presentation of the royalties certificate by the Governor, she and her family toured the wells located 100 miles east of Dallas.

Governor Shivers, who came to Dallas for the occasion, stated while making the presentation of her royalties, "One of the greatest assets of our country is its natural resources. The far-seeing Dr. Pepper Company is to be complimented on this dramatic method of underlining the need for their preservation. Ten Spanish fighting bulls from Tomas Valles' famous Rancho Tierra Blanca herd are slated to be the first Mexican cattle to be imported into the United States through El Paso customs since the quarantine embargo was lifted the first of this month.

They were to have been trucked across the bridge yesterday by Alejandro Del Hierro, well known to Big Spring people as the trainer of Patricia McCormick, the Big Spring co-ed who swapped her books for bulls and who has become famous as the world's greatest woman bullfighter.

These bulls from the Valles Ranch, about 40 miles south of Chihuahua, will be trucked to San Francisco where they will appear in a bloodless battle in the Cow Palace during the Grand National Livestock Exposition the first week in November.

Hierro will meet them in the ring there as a special entertainment feature.

Purebred Hereford breeders over the nation set a new world's record for registrations during the fiscal year ending August 31.

A total of 548,418 calves were given names and numbers and entered in the official registry of the American Hereford Association. This total represents an increase of 42,357 registrations over last year.

Applications poured into the Association headquarters at the average rate of about 2,180 for each working day. The year's volume amounted to nearly three times the total of registrations for other major beef breeds combined during the last fiscal year reported.

Registrations of Herefords for the year were 22 times greater than during the fiscal period 40 years ago, over five times greater than 30 years ago, six times greater than 20 years ago, and more than two times greater than the recordings 10 years ago. During the first 30 years of the Association the number of registrations recorded were about the same number as those listed in the last fiscal year. Approximately 10 new breeders a day became members of the association. Transfers for the year amounted to 399,501, and this represents cattle sales at both auctions and private treaty.

The recent story of the people charged with selling oleomargarine on the Big Spring market as fresh country butter reminds me of a personal experience last fall.

I was a guest at a convention banquet of Milking Shorthorn breeders out in New Mexico. Oleo was served in squares like butter. None of those seated at the tables were in on the stunt. These dairymen and their wives were about whether they were eating butter or oleomargarine.

They tasted it, smelled it, spread it, worked it with the point of their knives and experimented otherwise. Several expressed a "guess opinion" but not a single one of them made a positive statement as to whether it was butter or oleomargarine. Some of them, in fact, probably didn't believe the truth when it was revealed to them.

As the banquet was concluded the manager of the hotel passed the most expensive cigars he could find as a peace offering.

That trick was just like shooting fish in a barrel or feeding a good Angus or Shorthorn steak to a Hereford breeder.

Skin out the carcasses of three bulls — a Holstein, a Guernsey and an Ayrshire of comparable size and what breeder can tell the difference in them?

In these days of ranges limited by fences, of convenient water supplies and of cattle that have learned to come at the honking of an automobile horn, more of cattle preference than many people may suspect is mainly a preference for color so far as the three major British beef breeds are to be reckoned with.

But back to the matter of the fresh-country-oleo-margarine.

The feud between the dairyman and the cotton farmer on the butter-oleomargarine front has about faded out. Milk that formerly went into butter production is now being used to make other dairy products. A great interdependence between the dairy and cotton economies is being built up. The cotton farmer supplies the dairyman with an essential protein feed and the dairyman supplies the cotton grower with a market for this product.

Things are adjusting themselves into a balance on the agricultural front and this balance will become more perfect with the passing of time as the population increases and more and more food must be produced from fewer and fewer productive acres as wind and water erosion takes its toll.

Syrian Dictator Is Fond Of Jets, Tanks

By WILTON WYNN
BEIRUT (U)—Jet planes and tanks are the way to the heart of Syria's military dictator.
American diplomats in this area are beginning to realize that unless that path is taken, the heart of Syria strong man Col. Edib Shishbekly will continue to be cold toward the United States.
In many respects, Col. Shishbekly is a godsend for the West. His coup last December overthrew a regime which sought to reject outright a Western-sponsored Middle East Command in favor of a Soviet plan.
Shishbekly has repudiated Syria's leftist and produced the kind of political stability which must precede co-operation with the West. A high-ranking State Department official recently named Syria as the brightest spot for Western hopes in the Arab world.
On the other hand, Syria has proved just about the toughest Arab country to deal with in attempts at Arab-American co-operation. Syria is the only Arab state which has not signed a Point Four agreement. An American official in Damascus recently moaned, "It seems utterly impossible to persuade Syria to agree to any economic program of mutual benefit to Syria and the United States."
The explanation of this paradox lies in Syria's feeling of weakness and fear of neighboring Israel. Syria's 25,000-man Army made a wretched showing in the Palestine War. Since the Army took over Syria, the military budget has been increased but the Army still is woefully incapable of defending Syria against attack, and Col. Shishbekly knows it.

From Shishbekly's point of view, it is ridiculous to discuss Point Four programs where, as he sees it, Syria is left in danger of invasion by the Israelis. Israel's obvious need for expansion keeps the Syrians worried.
The only convincing display of American good will possible at this moment is to permit the Syrians to buy the arms they need—specifically jet planes and tanks. If they get enough of this equipment, Syrians will be able to breathe more easily in the face of the Israeli threat.
While many Syrians continue to call for a "second round" in the Palestine War, those who know Shishbekly are convinced that he wants modern arms primarily for defense.
Once he gets his defenses bolstered, Col. Shishbekly will be more charitable toward economic co-operation with the United States. But until the planes and tanks roll in, American policy can expect nothing but frustration in Syria.

Record Volume Of Crop, Stock Products For US

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (U)—The United States is producing a record volume of crop and livestock products this year, but not all farmers are sharing in it.
In its September crop progress report, the Agriculture Department said livestock farmers in some sections of the South and Southwest face serious shortages of feed for their cattle and other livestock next winter because of drought damage.
The volume of crops indicated on Sept. 1 was close to the second largest of record, produced in 1949, the department said. The production of livestock products—meat animals, dairy and poultry products and wool—will be the largest ever produced. As a result the combined production of crops and livestock products will set a new record.
A feature of this year's production is the fact that it is well balanced. That is, the prospective big production does not reflect record outputs of a few crops offset by small volumes of other crops. Only in the case of winter wheat and rice are production records indicated.
The severe drought which affected wide areas in the East and Southeast as well as the Southwest during July has raised concern among officials lest farmers be forced, by lack of feed, to sell off much of their livestock.
The new report said it had not turned out that way. Instead, livestock was said to have held up well, except in the very driest areas. Marketings have not been unusually heavy.
The vital hay crop was said to be turning out better than had been expected. The corn crop estimate was boosted 50 million bushels above the August estimate, putting it at 3,185,000,000 bushels or 8 per cent more than last year.
The wheat crop remained virtually unchanged at 1,298,000,000 bushels, the second largest of record and 311 million bushels more than last year.
The potato crop increased slightly to top last year's short crop by 12 million bushels but still leaving it short of the government's production goal of 350 million bushels.

Scandal Is Part Of India Growing Pains

By SELIG S. HARRISON
NEW DELHI, India (U)—The story of Muchhaki Kosa is a striking case of India's democratic growing pains.
The story began in the months before the 1951 general elections. The former Maharajah of Bastar, a princely state in the British Indian days, told luckless Kosa he must stand for election to Parliament in the Bastar tribal constituency.
Although this is independent, democratic India, the power of princes remains great in the areas of their onetime rule. So Kosa entered the elections as an independent against the candidate of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party.
Kosa won the election. The Maharajah assigned an underling, Gopal Das, who had learned the Bastar dialect, to serve as Kosa's translator and adviser in the new life ahead. Kosa had never experienced an auto or train ride until he came down from the hills to take his seat in Parliament.
Though Kosa couldn't understand a word of the proceedings, he felt honored and seldom missed a session. He simply voted in the same way as the member who happened to be next to him at any given time.
Congress party officials say Gopal Das launched forth on his duties with a vengeance, accompanying Kosa to the Parliament office when the daily 40 rupees ($8.40) allowance was drawn and taking possession of the money. Kosa applied his thumb-print to all necessary documents.

Gradually, however, the secretary's superior attitude together with Kosa's growing sense of his own importance as a member of India's highest political body wrought a change. At the first signs of self-assertion on the part of his charge, Gopal Das grew furious and decided to show who held the whip hand.
Writing in "The National Herald," Congress Parliamentary secretary H. K. Mahatab recounts that Gopal Das denied food to Kosa for an entire day, then scolded him roundly when he protested such treatment. The upshot was that Kosa broke down in Parliament the next day and gladly accepted the offer of accommodations with another member.
"His Parliament acquaintances couldn't understand his language," Mahatab said, "but his gesture and posture could say something about some cruel treatment he had received from somebody."
Kosa's fear of beatings or confiscation of his property by the Maharajah as a result of his tiff with Gopal Das led to the intervention of sympathetic Congress officials.
Mahatab visited Kosa's rightful residence, threatening police action if the secretary did not produce complete accounts of all funds drawn in Kosa's name.

Farouk Seems Bored With His Life On Isle Of Capri

ISLE OF CAPRI (U)—A forlorn Farouk, once King of Egypt, appears bored to death with life on this flowered island.
The exiled monarch has nothing to do but play on romantic Capri, where a year ago he spent his honeymoon.
Like a caged lion, he shuffles about, his 285 pounds covered with loose-fitting sport cloths.
He wears trousers and sandals. His hairy chest is sometimes bare, sometimes covered with an open-throated white shirt.
He smokes big cigars one after another. Possessor of an enormous appetite, he easily out-eats all the rest of his family. This includes what he calls a light breakfast. One morning he put away 10 eggs.
Farouk gets up at 7 almost every morning. Usually until noon he can be found with his young ex-Queen Narriman, the baby king, and the two princesses at the pool of Grace Fields' Canzone del Mare beach restaurant.
Narriman was scantily cut, fashionable bathing suits. The young princesses spend hours in the water.
Farouk sits and watches. After lunch the ex-king busies himself for some time with his extensive correspondence. The rest of the time he reads all the newspapers and magazines he can find or sits, silent and alone, gazing over the blue Mediterranean from his hotel balcony.

Evenings he goes with Narriman to one or another of Capri's fashionable restaurant night clubs.
Invariably present are his two swarthy Albanian bodyguards and an Italian plainclothes policeman. Farouk is known to fear possible political enemies. Capri police particularly watch for the arrival on the island of other Egyptians.

Five Mid-Atlantic States For Ike By Small Margin

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP)—Five politically potent Middle Atlantic states—New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware—are expected by editors and political writers at this stage of the campaign to go narrowly Republican in November as they did in 1948.

An Associated Press survey, based on county-by-county and section-by-section estimates of editors and correspondents, indicates there is a composite belief that if the election were run off now, Republican presidential nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower would roll up bigger margins of victory in most of these states than Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York did four years ago.

Even so, the margins still are so slender that two of the states—Maryland and Delaware—must be considered doubtful, although they are regarded as tilting toward the GOP at this point.

Campaign developments between now and election day could upset present calculations as to winning margins and easily toss any of these states to the Democratic nominee, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

The 105 electoral ballots of the five states are a prize political package. They represent nearly one fifth of the total of 531 and almost two fifths of the 266 electoral votes needed to win the election.

The political soundings in this survey, and those to follow for other states, are being taken through the co-operation of Associated Press member newspapers and radio stations, other newspapers and local correspondents.

On the basis of talks with voters, research, their own knowledge of their counties, actual polls wherever possible, they were requested to estimate the percentage of the vote individual counties will cast for Eisenhower and Stevenson.

These estimates were weighted to take into account the difference in voting strength among counties, then combined into state estimates. The surveys were undertaken in late August or early September. Another state-by-state survey is planned for October.

With few exceptions, trend estimates for the Middle Atlantic states. Indicated that the political appraisers thought Eisenhower would run ahead if people had been voting two months before the actual election date.

Eisenhower's personal popularity was described generally as a more forceful factor in the campaign than time-for-a-change sentiment and such specific issues as high taxes and corruption in government.

Here and there, editors noted that Republicans who had preferred Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio as the presidential nominee seemed to be holding back from Eisenhower, perhaps with intentions of not voting at all. Others reported that some independent voters appeared to be turning toward the general.

Stevenson's greatest strength, as is usual for Democratic candidates, was assigned to industrial and urban areas.

State by state, this is the picture: New York (45 electoral votes) Estimates put together from 85 participating newspapers indicate belief that Eisenhower should take Stevenson's measure by some 360,000 votes, whereas Dewey edged out Truman by 61,000 in 1948. That's on the assumption that the total vote this year will be about the same as the 6,131,000 ballots cast in 1948 for the Republican, Democratic and Progressive party candidates. Actually, the vote may be considerably larger than four years ago.

The editors and writers believe Eisenhower will make a stronger showing than Dewey did both in the five counties making up New York City and the 37 upstate counties outside the city. They see Stevenson as running ahead of Truman in the city but behind upstate.

The outlook, on the basis of combined estimates of five of the eight New York City newspapers, is that Stevenson will carry three of the five counties in the city and pace Eisenhower by a little more than 400,000 votes.

Most editors upstate figured that in their areas Eisenhower would run ahead of Dewey, who had a 1948 lead of 549,000 upstate popularity.

Upstate papers thought Stevenson would get only one of the 57 upstate counties — Albany, which is usually overwhelmingly Democratic. Truman took Albany and three other upstate counties in 1948.

New Jersey (16 electoral votes) The combined opinions of 27 newspapers throughout the state add up at this stage of the politicking to a comfortable lead for Eisenhower, with the GOP nominee pocketing 17 of the 21 counties, scoring heavily in rural and residential areas and making some strength in industrial districts.

Yet New Jersey editors believe the margin could be narrowed, even reversed, depending on the twists and turns the campaign may take.

Dewey polled some 85,000 votes more than President Truman in 1948 and got 15 of the 21 counties. Pennsylvania (22 electoral votes) Editors in the Keystone State consider Pennsylvania fairly safe for Eisenhower. Their composite opinion is that he may run a shade better than Dewey, who won by 150,000 in 1948.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the state's two great metropolitan centers, are regarded as likely to go Democratic — Philadelphia by around 70,000 votes, Pittsburgh by some 60,000. Nine other counties are put in the Democratic column, but the editors regard 96 more as Republican territory for 1952. The state has 67 counties.

Maryland (10 electoral votes) It's normally Democratic Baltimore against 23 generally Republican counties. And Maryland editors consider the state a toss-up but leaning slightly toward Eisenhower. Some of them say the general may do a fraction better than the New York governor, who won by only 8,300 votes four years ago.

Delaware (three electoral votes) Republican but so close as to be doubtful is the combination estimate of editors of three papers covering the three counties in Delaware.

Their calculations would give Eisenhower a November victory by some 3,000 votes against a Dewey margin of 1,775 four years ago. The state cast 139,000 votes in the last presidential election.

UN Debate Seen On Time Despite U.S. Elections

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—High UN sources predicted today general policy debate of the seventh U. N. Assembly would be held as scheduled at the start of the Assembly in mid-October despite strong efforts by France and Britain to postpone it because of the United States elections.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie is expected to return to U. N. headquarters tomorrow or Wednesday after a quick trip to London and Paris to discuss this subject and other assembly matters with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Dispatches from London and Paris reported that Eden and Schuman were urging Lie to postpone the general debate until after the elections on Nov. 4. This view already was known at U. N. headquarters and had been reported here because the French and British delegations have been working behind the scenes to persuade other countries to agree to a postponement.

However, a poll of the delegations by the secretariat revealed an approximate 50-50 split, with the division extending to the big powers themselves. The United States, when the question first came up, said the general debate, at which delegates lay down the broad policy views of their governments, could be held as usual immediately after the Assembly elects officers and handles routine opening matters. The British and French, it was reported, attempted to persuade the U. S. to change that position but all Washington would do was to decide it would be neutral and abstain if a vote is taken.

At the station, Werner was charged with resisting arrest, drunken driving, failure to have driver's license and with ignoring a stoplight. He was freed on bond.
