Local Farmers Union Elects New Officers

The annual meeting of the Bailey County Farmers Union was held in Bula at the Farmers Union Insurance Office on Monday, November 12, according to Nolan H. Harlan, county president.

The main business of the meeting was to elect new officers and pass resolutions to be sent in to the State program committee for consideration by the annual State convention.

C.E. Grant To Receive Yield Award

C.E. Grant, Jr., of Muleshoe will receive a special award for his outstanding sorghum yield in Funk's-G Project: 25 high yield sorghum growing program.

Grant is being recognized for his irrigated yield of 7,359 pounds to the acre with Funk's G-522, according to Monsanto of Farwell, representing the Producers of Funk's G-Hybrids.

Grant's Project: 25 field was harvested on October 20 at 13.2 percent moisture. He planted the field on May 5 in 40 inch rows at the rate of 7.9 pounds to the acre. Fertility per acre included 248 pounds of N, 69 pounds of P and 0 pounds of K. A herbicide and insecticide were used.

Project: 25 challenges producers to increase sorghum yields on their land for greater productivity and profit. Each grower benefits through increased knowledge of high yield sorghum production.

Participants agree to harvest a minimum of 25 acres on one parcel of land and submit harvest weights, moisture test and land area measurements. All information is validated by a disinterested witness.

City Council Passes Three Ordinances

The Muleshoe City Council met in regular session Wednesday morning, November 21, at 8:30 a.m. in the city hall.

The council passed three ordinances, a Fire Marshall ordinance, a Pro-Rata Ordinance and an ordinance creating a Park Board.

The city council also passed a resolution establishing a procedure for appointing a fire chief.

Thanksgiving visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Eagle were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T.C. McWilliams of Sudan; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Schlack and Kimberly of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Michael McWilliams of Lubbock; Miss Patti McWilliams and David Terry of Lubbock.

Committee Completes TFU Policy Statement

An 11 member resolutions committee has completed its work on a draft of the 1974 policy statement for the Texas Farmers Union. The Program Committee of the statewide general farm organization meeting in Waco last week, has combined the key issues which will be debated at the state convention in Lubbock, December 7-8.

Several of the principle resolutions deal with the proposed new Texas Constitution. Other resolutions which are expected to spark floor debate at the convention include the farm organization's position on the impeachment of President Nixon, the administration of the 1973 Farm Program, revamping of peanut and rice commodity legislation, state regulation of utilities and the Farmers Union's stand on the one dollar a bale check-off for cotton research and promotion. The farmer and rancher delegates will also take a look at proposed plans for rural zoning, state property taxation and environmental restrictions on the use of agricultural chemicals.

Members of the Program Committee who have developed the program draft from county resolutions and who will present the recommendations to the Lubbock Convention are: Co-Chairmen: Jerry Blacketer, Trenton, and Mrs. Delores Starr, Cisco; John Denton, Axtell; Bobby Tolliver, Merkel; Adrian Taylor, Ralls; Jerry Solomon, DeLeon; Mrs. Marilyn Samuelson, Manor; Freddie Vanderburg, Pampa; Joe Rankin, Ralls; Dwight Holub, El Campo; August Frysak, St. Lawrence.

assistant secretary; and Betty Harlan, Bula, reporter. Policy resolutions considered the most important of this county organization are: That during the present energy crisis farmers be exempt from fuel allocation.

Bailey County Farmers Union opposes year around Daylight Savings Time during the summer months.

The local Farmers Union favors exportation of farm products rather than stockpiling at home.

They also believe that contracts on any agriculture products by as binding on the contractor as on the seller, and the contractor be required to put up bond to cover his performance.

Delegates were elected to attend the Texas Farmers Union Convention to be held in Lubbock at the Koko Palace on December 6, 7, and 8. Delegates elected were Ruby Weaver, Faye Jones, Ila Faye Rowland, Delbert Watson, Beth Watson and M. L. Fine. Six alternate were also chosen.

A report meeting will be held in December on a day a place to be announced at a later date.

October Price Index

WASHINGTON -- The Wholesale Price Index for All Commodities declined 0.5 percent from September to October, before seasonal adjustment, it was announced by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The downward movement was due to lower prices for farm products and processed food and feeds for the second consecutive month.

The index for farm products and processed foods and feeds was 3.9 percent lower than in September, principally because of price declines for livestock, oilseeds and meats.

Industrial commodities were up 1.2 percent, as most categories increased, particularly fuels and metals.

Consumer finished goods, a selection of food and nonfood commodities similar to those in the commodity component of the Consumer Price Index, increased 0.4 percent.

Of the 15 major commodity groups measured by the Wholesale Price Index, 10 increased from September to October, four declined, and one showed no change.

In October, the All Commodities WPI was 139.5 (1967-100), 16.3 percent above a year earlier; the industrial commodities index was 9.1 percent higher than in October 1972, and the farm products and processed foods and feeds index was up 35.3 percent over the same period.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the All Commodities Wholesale Price Index decreased 0.3 percent in October. Farm products and processed food and feeds declined 3.3 percent.

Industrial commodities rose 1.1 percent. Consumer finished goods were up 0.9 percent.

In the six month period ending in October, the All Commodities Wholesale Price Index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 15.2 percent. Prices in the last three months of the period advanced more than in the first three months because of the sharp August increase for farm products and processed foods and feeds.

Prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds declined in both September and October. The October increase for industrial commodities was larger than in the summer months and about the same as earlier in the year.

Both indexes for agriculture-related commodities (farm products and processed foods and feeds) declined for the second successive month in October after reaching record levels in August.

Higher prices for fuels accounted for more than one-third of the overall advance for industrial commodities.

Price rises accompanying the introduction of new 1974 model passenger cars and trucks explained most of the advance for transportation equipment. Apparel prices were up substantially.

Cotton and man-made fiber textile products, textile house furnishings, and miscellaneous textile products were higher, but wool products declined.

ASCS Assists In Fuel Allocation Program

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and the Texas Railroad Commission have joined hands in an effort to increase efficiency in the handling of the mandatory allocation of middle distillate fuels, reports John Fuston of the Bailey County ASCS office. An agreement between the state and federal agencies should speed up the program.

Beginning immediately, ASCS County Office personnel will verify fuel needs for hardship cases on Form OOG-PAP-20 for all applications prior to their submission to the State Allocation Officer (Texas Railroad Commission), stated Fuston.

Previously, it was planned that needed verification would be obtained after the form was submitted to the Austin office. Form OOG-PAP-20 is to be used by wholesale purchasers to request emergency allocations for immediate use. The form has been supplied to ASCS County Offices throughout the State and was made available to County Clerks' offices.

Also available is Form OOG-PAP-17 which is for the use of purchasers of middle distillate fuels in bulk supply to adjust their monthly allocation for the year or for obtaining a new allocation. Further information may be obtained from the Bailey County ASCS Offices.

Cotton Harvest Gaining Momentum

The South Plains cotton harvest is gaining momentum daily as stripping operations increase in all counties, according to Paul R. Dickson, in charge of the U.S.D.A. Cotton Classing Office in Lubbock. This great increase in harvest activity is reflected in the increasing number of samples being received daily at the four U.S.D.A. classing offices. Approximately 32,000 samples were received at the four South Plains offices on Friday. This was the largest number of samples received any day this season and this volume is expected to increase daily if favorable weather continues.

During the peak of the harvest this volume usually reaches 50,000 to 60,000 samples per day. Classers from other areas are being transferred to the local classing offices to take care of this increased volume.

The U.S.D.A. classing offices at Lubbock, Brownfield, Lamesa, and Levelland classed 170,000 samples last week and had approximately 69,000 on hand Friday afternoon. Total classed so far this season now stands at 353,000. This is far ahead of the volume at this date last year when 64,000 samples of the 1972 crop had been classed.

Quality of cotton continued excellent and is considerably higher than last year. Grades 31 and 41 continued to be the predominant grades at Lubbock, making up 72 percent of all classed. Grade 31 made up 34 percent, Grade 41, 38 percent and Grade 32, 10 percent.

Staples were predominantly 30 to 32. Thirty-seven percent had staple lengths of 30 and shorter and the remaining 63 percent stapled 31 and longer. Average staple length was 31.4/32nds of an inch.

Pat Vinson, the president of the Bailey County Farm Bureau said this week that some farmers in the county are unable to buy diesel and other middle-distillate fuels because of red tape in the mandatory allocation system.

Vinson said the County Farm Bureau sent a telegram to Eli T. Reich in Washington, D. C. asking for relief. Anyone who is affected by this fuel shortage may want to write the following people and explain their situation:

Eli T. Reich, Administrator of Petroleum Allocation, Interior Building, Washington, D.C. 20240; John A. Love, Assistant to the President, Executive office of the President, The White House Office, Washington, D. C. 20500; George P. Schultz, Secretary of the Treasury, 15th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington D.C. 20220.

Seven Entries Now Lined Up For Parade

Saturday, December 1, is the date of the annual Christmas Parade in Muleshoe. The parade will begin at 2:30 p.m. The Business Activities Committee of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture sponsors the parade each year. In charge of the parade this year is the Llano Estacado Civic Club.

All floats entered in the parade are to meet at the Babe Ruth Ball Park on South Main Street at 1:30 p.m. the day of the parade.

Rev. H.D. Hunter will be the announcer at the parade and will be announcing from the corner of Main Street and Avenue C.

This year's theme for the parade will be "Happiness is Christmas".

Featured in the parade this year will be floats, area bands, sweethearts and of course, Santa Claus. Accompanying Santa will be elves who will be passing out candy to spectators along the parade route.

This year there will be no stipulation as to size of floats. Prizes will be awarded in amounts of $100 for first prize; $75 for second; $50 for third; and $25 for fourth place.

Area bands have been invited to enter the parade as have local organizations and civic clubs. Deadline for entering the parade will be Wednesday, November 28.

To enter, contact Mrs. H.E. Reeder at 272-3183 or Mrs. Gary Toombs at 272-3811. At the present time, seven floats are entered in the parade. They are the HERO Chapter of FHA; The Muleshoe High School FHA Rosebud Chapter; The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture; the Girl Scouts; The Boy Scouts, Pack 622; Epsilon Sigma Alpha; and Beta Sigma Phi.

Farm Bureau Shows Increase In Members

1973 has been a banner year in membership for the Texas Farm Bureau, reports TFB President J.T. (Red) Woodson. The organization scored its biggest membership gain in history, he said.

Total membership as of October 31 (end of the organization's fiscal year) was 152,380 member families, a gain of 15,437 over last year, making the 21st straight year for the TFB to show an increase in members. Tabulations were completed November 6.

All of the 209 organized county Farm Bureaus registered an increase in membership, Woodson said. The five largest counties in membership size are (1) Harris--2,541; (2) Ellis--2,302; (3) McLennan--2,253; (4) Fort Bend--2,117; and (5) Fayette--2,000.

Woodson said farmers and ranchers have enjoyed the most favorable prices for their product, on Page 2, col. 4

Farm Bureau Urges Fuel Program Change

the government's program allocates these fuels on the basis of purchases made 12 months ago. This rigid formula makes the program unworkable, Vinson said.

He explained that many farmers did not buy diesel, butane and propane fuels this time last year because it was too wet to get in the fields. Also, he said, better prices this year enabled some farmers to trade in their old gasoline-powered equipment to new diesels. Since they have no history on buying diesel fuel, it is not available to them now.

Vinson said although the government had issued so-called 'commonsense' directive for distributors to assist in hardship cases, the distributors are afraid of making a decision that could cost them a heavy fine.

Therefore, "Vinson said, 'Farm Bureau in Texas and across the nation is calling for the Interior Department to assure distributors they will not be punished for selling to hardship cases."

Woodson Sends Telegram To Rogers Morton

Texas Farm Bureau President J.T. Woodson has asked the federal government to move immediately in making farm fuels available in hardship cases. He said tractors and harvest machines are standing idle in many areas.

In a telegram to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, Woodson said Texas farmers urgently need fuel now to finish harvesting grain and cotton and

The Oil Shortage

More important to U.S. consumers than oil developments in the Middle East was Venezuela's recent hike in oil prices—a 56 per cent increase, the tenth announced this year.

Added to other oil acquisition and price problems, this development greatly increases the need for the United States to develop other sources of power, to acquire more oil from new sources and for the American people to save fuel in every possible way.

There's now little doubt—because of events in the Middle East and elsewhere—that an oil shortage exists and threatens to remain a problem for several years. That being the future, the proper role of the federal government is to hold price increases to reasonable levels, to bar sharp and excessive hikes, always a temptation to sellers in shortage situations, and to order allocations when necessary.

The U.S. supply of petroleum products will continue to be quite large, relatively, though not always enough for everyone everywhere; thus the development of new energy sources and the conservation of energy by families, businesses and the local, county, state and federal governments, are a must.

A Cold Winter?

A government study predicts this winter will probably be colder than last, that heating bills will likely be higher—the forecast of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is not a certain thing.

NOAA expects the winter to be colder because it thinks a trend has set in toward colder winters in the past fifteen years. But if that is not a trend and just an unusual swing over a longer period of perhaps fifty or a hundred years, the NOAA forecast might prove wrong.

If average winter temperatures since 1931 are used as a base for the 1973-74 prediction, another mild winter could be expected, for recent winters (from 1957 on) have been unusually cold. If, on the other hand, a trend began about 1957, colder weather lies ahead. (A recent six-inch snowfall as far south as north Georgia might or might not be an indication of things to come.)

NOAA says the following five regions will probably have a colder winter than last year: New England, Middle Atlantic, East North Central, East South Central and South Atlantic. The following regions should have it warmer: West North Central, West South Central, Mountain and Pacific.

Woodson...

to prepare land for next year.

Woodson said that "bureaucratic mishandling" of fuel allocation is the cause of this immediate problem.

"The government's mandatory program that allocates diesel, butane and propane fuels on the basis of purchases made 12 months ago is not working because it does not provide for common-sense flexibility.

"Last November was extremely wet in Texas and many farmers did not buy fuel then. Also, many farmers made a little money this year and traded in gasoline-powered equipment for diesels.

"Your so-called 'commonsense' directive issued recently to distributors is not working because no one has defined common sense. Distributors are afraid to make decisions that could cost them heavy fines.

"We urge that you immediately clear the air by assuring distributors they will not be punished for selling to hardship cases. These farmers urgently need fuel now to harvest this year's grain and cotton crops and to prepare land for next year. To delay any longer is to invite economic disaster."

Average prices paid for the most predominant qualities in the 3.5 to 4.9 premium micronaire range were: Grade 31, Staple 30 - 48.65 cents per pound, Grade 31, Staple 31 - 52.40, Grade 31, Staple 32 - 57.40, Grade 41, Staple 30 - 47.70, Grade 41, Staple 31 - 51.25, and Grade 41, Staple 32 - 55.95.

Cottonseed prices were steady and farmers received $96 to $110 per ton. Average price was $101.50 per ton.

"But they have felt themselves under fire by intermittent threats of price controls on raw farm products and embargoes on farm exports," he explained. "These fears have caused them to rally behind an organization which could effectively speak for them against such threats," he added.

WASHINGTON REPORT BY Lloyd Bentsen, United States Senator

NEED TO CONSERVE AND INCREASE ENERGY SUPPLIES

It is important that efforts to resolve our nation's energy shortage be directed toward two goals. The need to conserve existing energy supplies is of immediate concern but is equally urgent that we develop a program to increase those supplies.

In his recent message on energy, President Nixon said that our country will fall short of meeting its energy needs by 10-17 percent this winter, depending on the severity of the weather.

But even with a mild winter the shortage will be critical. Translated into petroleum, the projected shortage will amount to anywhere from 1-1/2 to 3 million barrels of oil a day. That's a lot of oil.

The shortage is made critical by the embargo of oil from the Middle East. But the underlying cause is our failure to develop a rational, comprehensive energy policy as I have advocated for several years.

Belatedly, our nation's leaders have been made aware of the urgent need to develop such an overall policy. But, unfortunately, the realization comes too late to be of much benefit during the coming season.

The current shortage is so severe that, in spite of our best efforts to conserve energy and boost production, some type of energy allocation programs will be necessary to see our nation through this winter.

Two mandatory allocation programs have already been implemented, and others may follow.

One of the existing programs allocates supplies of propane and butane, and has been in existence for about a month. The other program allocates such fuels as heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel, and went into effect on the first of November.

ALLOCATION PROGRAMS POORLY ADMINISTERED

Since the Administration was caught unprepared, though, both programs have been poorly planned and poorly operated, and neither has been fully effective.

As an example of poor planning, the fuel and diesel oil program originally provided that allocations would be based on month-to-month usage during 1972. This meant that during the current month, fuel suppliers would be permitted to sell customers no more diesel fuel than they sold them during November, 1972.

The month-to-month allocation system was particularly bad news for Texas farmers. Because last November was a wet month and they used little diesel fuel, they were able to obtain very little diesel fuel this November, even though they have been trying to harvest bumper crops.

One towboat operator in Corpus Christ -- who hauls petroleum barges -- was refused diesel fuel in Corpus Christ because he had not purchased from that distributor in November, 1972. Under terms of the allocation program, it made no difference that he had purchased from the distributor in September, 1972.

The fuel oil allocation program has now been given some flexibility, but neither it nor the propane-butane program is working as it should. The Office of Oil and Gas is woefully understaffed and since it had to borrow workers from other Federal agencies to do this job, most of the employees carrying out the programs are uninformed about petroleum matters and unable to deal with problems relating to oil and gas.

A prime example of this deficiency occurred when the original allocation program for propane-butane was unveiled. It did not grant priority status to energy-producing activities, such as oil drilling. I cautioned the Office of Oil and Gas that such commissions would only add to the energy shortage, and learned later that the people who designed the allocation program were not aware that drilling rigs operate on butane and propane. Energy-producing activities have now been granted priority status, DIESEL FUEL FOR HOSPITAL

The Maverick County Hospital in Eagle Pass buys one barrel of diesel fuel each year to use in the event of a power failure. They were advised by their supplier this year that, since they had not purchased their single barrel for 1972 in November, they could not make the purchase during that month this year. This decision was finally reversed, but only after intervention by my office.

The energy shortage is serious enough to require some form of mandatory allocation programs. For only in this manner can we be assured of an equitable distribution of our existing energy supplies.

But the current allocation programs leave much to be desired, and in many cases are worse than no programs at all. They must be better planned, and the agency which administers them must have a staff that is knowledgeable enough and well enough equipped to carry out the programs in a manner that will reduce the problem, not add to it. I will continue to insist that this be done.

Bentsen's Request For 90-Day Farmer Exemption Gets Nod

Washington, D.C. -- Senator Lloyd Bentsen said he is pleased that the Office of Oil and Gas has made a positive response to his request that agriculture be granted a 90 day exemption from the Mandatory Diesel and Fuel Oil Allocation Program.

Bentsen has been informed that the allocation program has been amended to give an immediate preference to farm users in the allocation of diesel fuel for 90 days.

"Permitting oil companies to sell available fuel to our farmers regardless of their purchases during these months of 1972 should lessen the harmful impact the fuel shortage is having in Texas and other states," the Senator said.

"I feel the 90 day exemption would have been more beneficial, but this step will give some relief to the American consumer who is already wearied by the recent dramatic rise in food prices," he said.

The Office of Oil and Gas notified Bentsen that it has amended diesel fuel allocation regulations to give preference for 90 days to farm and ranch activity, oil and gas drilling activities and public transportation, effective today.

Office spokesmen said that farmers must continue filling requests for allocations in excess of their 1972 purchases for use at the end of the 90 day period.

In a speech on the Senate Floor Thursday and in a letter to Governor John Love, Director of the Administration's Energy Policy Office, Bentsen said suppliers have diesel fuel on hand but are afraid to sell it to farmers because of confusion over the allocation program.

"Farm use accounts for only three percent of the fuels covered by this program, yet I have received numerous calls from Texas farmers who report their tractors are stopped, their grain and cotton stand unharvested in the field and their wheat is going unplanted," Senator Bentsen said during the Senate speech.

He said planting for 1974 is already underway in the Rio Grande Valley and has been disrupted by confusion over the allocation program.

Senator Bentsen said today's action should ease the situation, but he cautioned against over-optimism, warning that the energy shortage remains a critical, long-term problem.

Officials of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., were notified from Washington November 16 that the Office of Oil and Gas was moving to alleviate what had been described as an "almost incredible amount of confusion" in the acquisition by farmers of fuel for harvesting 1973 crops.

A spokesman for Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas reported that Duke Ligon, Director of the Office of Oil and Gas, had agreed to grant a "priority preference" for 60 days on the allocation of diesel fuel to (1) farm and ranch activities, including feed lots, (2) drilling rigs for oil production and (3) public transit operations.

The "preference" was to be effectuated, according to Ligon, by an Advisory Notice in the Federal Register of November 16. Notices in the Federal Register, for practical purposes, carry the force of law. The notice will amend Section 12 of the Federal Mandatory Allocation Program for Middle Distillates which became effective November 1, "to avoid the unintentional misinterpretation of the regulations which stopped the flow of diesel in Texas," Bentsen's office said.

Shortages and fear of shortages began to appear immediately after the Mandatory Allocation Program went into effect, and PCG has been in daily contact with Congressmen and Senators and with Federal and State officials attempting to free up what appeared to be an adequate supply of diesel.

Until November 16, according to PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, "Suppliers and distributors had diesel fuel on hand, yet in many instances were refusing to sell it to farmers for fear of violating regulations of the Allocation Program."

The Allocation Program called for distribution of available fuel supplies equitably among wholesale purchasers, using month-by-month 1972 purchases to establish a "base period supply volume." Procedures were set up for adjusting monthly allocations, but even the forms for implementing these procedures have not been printed.

Monthly allocations based on the previous year's usage created a problem in that harvesting and other farm operations do not always occur in the same month from year to year. On the Plains, for example, because of good weather and an earlier crop, farmers this year will need four or five times as much fuel as was used in the same months of 1972.

Ligon's action to correct the gross inequities and hardships that were occurring came after two weeks of intensive work by farm state Congressmen and Senators, PCG and other farm organizations and individuals. On November 15, Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas made a statement on the Senate Floor urging immediate fuel supplies for agriculture, and further discussed the issue that evening with Director Ligon.

The same evening Congressmen George Mahon of Lubbock and Bob Poage of Waco were taking up the issue at the White House with President Nixon, Mahon, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Poage, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, urged that fuel for agricultural operations be given the highest priority and that efforts be redoubled to "untangle" the situation.

In advising Mahon's office of the November 16 action, the Office of Petroleum Allocation said the 60-day preference for Agriculture would be effective immediately, but cautioned that allocations during these 60 days would be charged against users' total adjusted annual allocations.

Johnson said "The total effect of this action cannot be assessed on such short notice, but there is hope that it will alleviate much of the confusion that has existed in recent weeks and that the harvest can continue without further interruption."

Deathbed Drama

It was a scene fit for the movies. Old Mr. Watkins lay dying. His will was rushed to his hospital room, ready for signing. But as he was in the act of inscribing his name, his strength failed him.

"Help me finish," he whispered. A friend stepped to the bedside, held the dying man's hand, and helped him complete the signature.

Was the will valid? A court ruled that it was indeed, even though Watkins had not been able to finish the name himself. The court said there could be no doubt, under the circumstances, that the signature was his own voluntary affirmation of the will.

Sooner or later, death overtakes us all. Yet, people persist in waiting until their final moments to make a will. Obviously, this heightens the chance of a slip-up. Consider another deathbed case:

An elderly widow also felt her strength ebbing while she was part way through her signature. But instead of asking for assistance, she merely lay back and said:

"I just can't sign it now." She never did finish. In due course, her heirs tried to establish the validity of the will on the basis of the partial signature. But this time, their efforts were in vain. The court said the widow's own words indicated that she did not consider the document complete.

In a third case, a man had already lapsed into unconsciousness by the time the will was brought to his bedside. Here too a friend held his hand and guided his signature.

Afterward, everyone agreed that the will had been drawn up in accordance with his instructions. Nevertheless, a court found the man's will null and void. The signature didn't become his, said the court, merely because his hand was in physical contact with the pen while his name was being written.

"There was no magic in his touch," said the court. "Both his power and the intelligence necessary to direct it were in a state of suspension."

EARLY DISCHARGES

The armed forces will permit early discharge of some servicemen for the Christmas-New Year holiday season, the Pentagon announced. It will cover persons whose active duty tours are due to expire during or shortly after the holiday season.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Dear editor:

I don't like to get serious, it's not my style, but it makes no difference how hard I've tried I can't find anything funny about the way people have been wringing their hands over illegal campaign contributions.

Every body says something has got to be done about it, that it's dangerously unwholesome for so much money to be raised to elect a President, something over 60 million dollars by the Republicans and over 40 by the Democrats, not counting what was raised for lesser offices like the House and Senate, Governorships, etc.

As I understand it, a lot of big corporations are now confessing they knowingly violated the law by handing over big chunks of cash in $100,000-lots to the Presidential campaign. That they knew ahead of time it was against the law is demonstrated by the fact they delivered the money in cash and tried various ways to cover it up on their books, as they are now confessing.

People are asking, how can we put a stop to this?

I can tell you one answer, Find a judge who will fit the panishment to the crime. Instead of fining a multi-million-dollar corporation $5,000 for illegally contributing $100,000 which is about like requiring me to put a nickel in a parking meter, why can't we find some judge who will follow the second provision of the law and sentence the corporation's president and directors to a year in jail. The law is already on the books.

You make it known that any corporation head who uses company money to contribute to a political campaign is going to jail for 12 months, along with his directors, and you'll whip the problem in no time.

Find a judge in the Sirica mold who'll say, look, you guys aren't dumb, you can read, you know the law says it's illegal for a corporation to contribute to a campaign, just as it is to break and enter or steal chickens, and from here on out you're going to spend a year in jail if you do it.

I don't know where the money for a campaign would then come from, but I know where it wouldn't come from.

CONGRESSMAN
Bob Price
18th Congressional District

WASHINGTON -- Congressman Bob Price says a recent Internal Revenue Service action regarding cash basis accounting in the cattle feeding industry pre-empts Congressional authority and can financially damage the industry.

He urged the IRS to delay its action and allow the Congress to debate the matter as part of its tax reform package now before the House Ways & Means Committee.

In a "Technical Information Release" now being distributed, the IRS explains a new "Revenue Ruling" setting new and stricter criteria for determining whether a purchase of cattle feed to be consumed after the end of the taxable year can be considered for tax purposes as a business expense in the purchase year.

"This ruling will limit the amount of investment into the cattle feeding industry from outside sources," Price said. "It is estimated that some 87% of the nation's beef supply is fattened in feedlots. More than 40% of cattle on feed are owned by investors. In Texas the percentage is higher," the House Agriculture Committee member reported.

In Texas, some 4.8 million head of cattle will have been fed during 1973, and about 3.3 million of those will have been fed in the Texas Panhandle.

"This IRS ruling will restrict drastically the funds available with which to feed cattle and will adversely affect beef supply," Price said. "Since so much of that beef is in Texas, and particularly in the Panhandle area, this action could have a particularly disastrous impact on our economy. If serious enough, it could in turn affect feed grain producers, small businessmen and general employment levels.

"IRS action on a matter so important economically pre-empts Congressional authority. This issue rightfully deserves the consideration of the Congress and tax reform is going on the front burner early next year. IRS should withhold implementation of its ruling until the Congress can weigh the full impact of the proposal," Price said.

Wheat Pasture Cattle Need Worming

Above average rainfall in East Texas and the states along the eastern seaboard, where the majority of stocker cattle for this area are obtained, has occurred for the past two years. These ideal conditions have caused a tremendous increase in internal parasites.

Parasitism in some cases are severe enough to cause death. The symptoms, in severe cases, are decreased appetite, weight loss and watery diarrhea. In all cases, even if symptoms are absent, this parasite load increases the cost of gain, or in the case of wheat pasture, requires more forage than normal to be consumed to produce a pound of gain. Therefore, it is more important to worm cattle that you are placing on wheat pasture this year than it has been in the past. The normal cycle of an internal parasite is the larvae is ingested by the animal with grass. The larvae then invades the lining of the gut and undergoes further development. It finally emerges into the intestinal tract where they attain adulthood and begin laying eggs.

The medium stomach worm (Ostertagia) has been the primary offender in some cases where response to normal worm remedies has been ineffective. Under certain conditions, usually in the fall of the year, the larvae of the medium stomach worm does not continue its regular development on to adulthood but rather cease development and remain in the lining of the stomach for long periods of time. This causes irritation to the lining of the stomach and results in collection of fluid in the tissue, making the lining of the stomach many times thicker than normal.

This accumulation of fluid disrupts the acid producing cells in the stomach that are necessary for the digestion of protein. This is one of the reasons affected animals lose weight so rapidly. Much of the fluid collected in the tissues pass into the intestinal tract and this contributes to the watery diarrhea observed in these animals.

Response to treatment with most worm medicine is highly effective against the adult parasites found in the stomach or intestine; however, the larvae formations in the lining of the gut are much more resistant to medication. In this case, for treatment to be successful on the larvae formation, it must be repeated at two-week intervals for as long as necessary.

75,000 Strong... Cotton Crop Estimate Up Again... Sheep Feeding Below a Month Ago.

From now through early December, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will be expecting to hear from 75,000 agricultural producers in the state.

It's time for the annual crop and livestock surveys for Texas. If you happen to be one of the 75,000 who will receive either a crop or livestock survey card, you are requested to fill it out as carefully and as accurately as possible. Then return it as soon as possible.

In cooperating in this survey, you will be helping to give everyone in Texas a true picture of the state's most basic industry—agriculture.

Your individual answers will be kept strictly confidential. The only people who will see your report are those officially designated to compile the individual reports into county, district and state totals. No other government agency will have access to the reports you send.

In past years, Texas has led the nation in getting returns on a voluntary basis from farmers. Texas agriculture producers have cooperated better and more fully than any other state.

Agricultural statisticians in other states are always amazed when they see the response from Texas farmers and ranchers. Anyone who lives in Texas knows the reason for the cooperation. Farmers and ranchers in Texas are just naturally more cooperative than are farmers in other states.

The final reports on Texas agriculture provide basic information for use by government and private industry.

COTTON estimates for Texas are up again. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service now estimates cotton in Texas for the 1973 season at 4,800,000 bales, an increase of 50,000 bales over the Oct. 1 forecast.

This year's production forecast for Texas is the largest since the record 6,040,000 bales produced in 1949. Yield, based on Nov. 1 conditions, is expected to average a record 419 pounds of lint per acre compared with 408 pounds last year and the previous record yield of 410 pounds per acre reached in 1968.

Acres for harvest are set at 5,500,000 compared with 5,000,000 in 1972.

As of Nov. 1, harvest statewide was estimated at 27 per cent complete. This compares with 33 per cent a year ago.

Production of American-Pima cotton in Texas for 1973 is estimated at 29,200 bales compared with 31,400 bales in 1972. Yield is expected to average 449 pounds per acre compared with 437 pounds last year.

Harvested acres are estimated at 31,200, down 3,300 from the 34,500 acre harvest in 1972.

Cotton producers throughout the state are urged to destroy cotton stalks as soon after harvest as possible. Cotton stalk destruction is perhaps the best method in controlling cotton insects for next year's crop.

DRYLOT sheep feeders in Texas with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 93,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter Nov. 1. This is 13 per cent below the number on feed a month ago and 27 per cent below the number on feed of last year.

Placements during October totaled 31,000 head with a total of 10 feeders reporting 1,000 or more head on feed as of Nov. 1.

Marketings during October totaled 45,000 head. Intentions to market are: November 33,000; December 28,000; and January 32,000. These are incomplete at this time for December and January, however.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN --- Door-to-door salespersons can provide a helpful service to some consumers, when the product or service they sell is legitimate. But sometimes, the door-to-door technique is used by salesmen who are so overzealous they nudge customers into signing up for something they don't need, or don't want, or persuade them that they're getting a bargain which really isn't available.

The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office has received many complaints, particularly in the area of magazine sales.

These include allegations that the sales persons misrepresented the reason for their call. Instead of announcing that they were there for the purpose of selling magazines, they tried to invoke sympathy or interest, often using some of the following pitches:

"I am taking a survey of reading habits."

"I'm working for points, in a scholarship contest."

"I need your vote to prove to my employer my value as a salesman."

"I'm doing special work in this school district."

"I'm offering a free magazine. All you have to pay for is the cost of handling and postage."

"Today, we can offer a free subscription to your favorite magazine, if you agree to buy these other four."

It is easy to see that all of these phrases boil down to the same basic message. The caller has something to sell. Bona fide market surveyors are not in the business of making retail sales. And, certainly, a school district would not authorize any firm to sell a product under the guise of conducting district research.

If you're not interested in a magazine subscription, it would be best, of course, not to admit the person to your home.

If you are interested in buying a subscription, ask to see his credentials, and write down his name, the name of his company, his address and the company's address.

Don't be talked into signing any contract on the spot. Think it over.

Don't let yourself be fooled by a claim that a subscription will cost you "only pennies a day." Eight pennies a day would add up to $29.20 a year.

Examine a claim that you could get a magazine "free, just for the cost of handling and postage." Compare the quoted cost of handling and postage to a regular subscription.

In fact, it probably would be worth your while to compare the salesman's quoted cost of subscriptions to the introductory subscriptions offered by the magazines themselves.

Some of the complaints we receive have been from consumers who were told that the contract was "cancellable," but later saw that they had signed a contract labeled "non-cancellable;" or that they had been led to believe they had paid the full cost, but later were billed for "the other half."

Also, some consumers have charged that their rights to cancellation of the contract within three days after the home solicitation had been misrepresented to them.

One of the fraudulent practices which seems to ire consumers the most is if they are told that they must take an "alternate selection," if the magazine they picked is not available. Be certain you can cancel, if you cannot get the publication you want—especially at this time, when so many magazines have folded.

An investment in Your Future ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

A Look at the Cross on THANKSGIVING

"Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

"But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."

"All we like sheep have gone astray: we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:4-6

Our prayer this Thanksgiving Season is that everyone will attend the house of God, giving thanks unto him for his great gift, which is eternal life through his son.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

John Tower United States Senate COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

All patriotic Americans, no matter what their party affiliations may be, must be saddened by the tragedy which has left our vice president's office vacant.
Regardless of our individual, widely-varying opinions of Ted Agnew, we all feel a deep sense of loss. In addition, we face the stark reality of what some describe as a "constitutional crisis." Personally, I happen to think the word "crisis" is being grossly over-used these days, especially in relation to our system of government. Just because an event is unprecedented does not make it a crisis. A "crisis" implies, to me at least, a grave threat to survival - and there is no doubt in my mind that our country and our system of government will survive. They are not really in jeopardy unless we fall blindly behind the doomsayers who want them to fail.

Once again, our nation is being sorely tried. I think it will emerge stronger than ever.
But in times such as these, we tend to question the validity of our institutions and even our system of government - which still is the greatest ever conceived by man. We are inclined to doubt our own judgment and to question our faith in those whom we have come to admire and respect. And it becomes easy for us to wallow in a sense of depression and frustration. If we permit ourselves to do this, we turn some of our greatest strengths into major weaknesses.

We should be proud, rather than ashamed, that the tragic events surrounding the vice presidency resulted from our own capacity for self-analysis and self-criticism - and from the fact that, in our free country, we have the ability, the will and the freedom to ferret our guilt and to punish the guilty.

Whether misdeeds or violations of the law occur in the second highest office in the land - or even in the highest office - our system provides for justice to be done. Our system provides the means for purifying itself - and it is difficult for me to even imagine such a procedure taking place behind the Iron Curtain. Indeed, it is difficult to conceive of its taking place anywhere other than in the United States of America.

But we have sufficient confidence in ourselves to continue the great experiment in democracy that our founding fathers began nearly 200 years ago. Certainly there are times when our system seems to be slow and plodding, inefficient and unresponsive; but our system of government has survived every crisis it has faced. We may make what seems to be an almost endless series of mistakes but yet, ultimately, we always come up with the good judgement which enables us to perpetuate our freedom.

We also have a tendency to generalize and to judge the many by the few. When one reporter abandons objectivity, we are inclined to accuse all media representatives of the fault displayed by one; when one public official is found guilty of misconduct, we are likely to blame the system and to spread around the erroneous conclusion that "all politicians are crooked."

I detest graft and corruption, whether it be in public office or private business. I have no patience whatsoever with those who violate their public trust and use public office for private gain.

I am confident that the vast majority of my fellow Americans share those views. But I also know that none of them is capable of predicting, with any degree of certainty, when a long-trusted friend or employee is going to succumb to temptation and do something wrong. What we can all be confident of, however, is that justice will surely prevail - so long as we preserve and protect the free institutions which have given us the highest standard of living and the greatest freedom on earth.

There is an old theory that the only certainty in politics is - uncertainty. But I am convinced that those institutions which time and experience have proven valuable, and which have brought us this far, will sustain us for generations yet to come - provided we have confidence in ourselves.
