Night Wire Operator May Be Retained

Correspondence between President Reuben R. R. Cook of the chamber of commerce, and railroad officials indicate that the night telegraph operator at McLean may be retained. Following are answers to Mr. Cook's letters:

Topeka, Kansas, July 28, 1932. Mr. Reuben R. R. Cook, President Chamber of Commerce, McLean, Texas.

My dear Mr. Cook:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of July 26th.

Our business is decreasing to such an alarming extent that we are forced to consider every angle in the reduction of our expenses.

We have not as yet fully decided to decrease our station force at McLean and it may be we will not be able to take off the night operator. We are now getting out a new time table, making some changes in our schedules, and will be able to tell more about the situation after the new time table is effective.

Yours very truly,

N. E. McMULLEN.

Amarillo, Texas, July 30, 1932. Mr. Reuben R. R. Cook, President Chamber of Commerce, McLean, Texas.

My dear Mr. Cook:

I received your letter July 26th with reference to possibility of eliminating one operator at McLean.

It is not definitely decided yet just what we will do, but conditions are such all over our railroad that we are going to have to take advantage of any opportunity that may exist to reduce our expenses.

I assure you that we do not want to disrupt the service and will not make any change until it is gone into thoroughly.

Yours truly,

R. R. BRAGO, Asst. Supt.

Baptists Will Close Revival Sunday Night

The two weeks revival services, the first of the summer campaign, will close at the First Baptist Church with the Sunday night service.

The services are directed by Dr. Layton Maddox of El Paso, who has been preaching both morning and night of each day from the text "Lord, teach us to pray," taking up all phases of Christian living.

Interest has grown with each service, and good response has been made to every proposition made by the evangelist. Last Sunday morning's service did not close until after 2 p. m., with ten presenting themselves for membership in the church, six conversions, and four surrendering for special service.

Dr. Maddox leaves no doubt in the minds of his hearers on his stand upon scriptural matters, his plain speaking being especially pleasing to the audience.

Mrs. Cecil G. Goff, local choir director, has charge of the music, and three divisions of the choir have been built up under her direction. Everyone has an invitation to assist in the singing, and Mrs. Goff's voice is heard in special songs each evening.

The morning services open at 10:45 and the evening services at 8:15 each day.

Good crowds are expected for the Sunday services, and extra seats have been secured for the comfort of those attending.

NO REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES IN GRAY CO. THIS YEAR

There will be no Republican candidates for county office in Gray county this year, according to action of the party in county convention at Pampa Saturday afternoon.

"There are no candidates for the jobs," Dr. V. E. von Brunow, county chairman, was reported to have stated. Dr. Brunow was reelected county chairman and was also named delegate to the state convention at Dallas, August 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. Ercy Cubine were in Amarillo Monday.

Lions Enjoy Music Program at Luncheon

Music was enjoyed by the McLean Lions Club in session Tuesday noon. A male quartet consisting of T. A. Landers first tenor, Evan L. Sitter second tenor, Jesse J. Cobb baritone and Reep Landers bass, sang a couple of numbers. Miss Fern Landers played a clarinet solo with Mrs. Raymond Hall at the piano. Mrs. Hall played a piano solo, and John Sturgeon, president of the Pampa club, who was a visitor, sang a request number, playing his own accompaniment.

Lion Sturgeon brought greetings from the international convention that was held in California, saying that Lions have gone forward in the past twelve months, while all other service clubs have shown a loss for the period. Some 80,000 independent activities were reported by the 611 clubs at the convention, for last year, all activities being unselfish acts for the benefit of the suffering, or community projects. "There is no basis for Lions membership except that one be a good man," said Lion Sturgeon.

Other visitors who were presented and spoke a few words were: Dr. Layton Maddox of El Paso, Lions White, Blanset, Faulkner, Pierce and Duncan of Pampa, and M. D. Bentley.

Mr. Bentley spoke in defense of "three mighty good men" who had been falsely accused by the tall twister. Mr. Bentley's remarks were to the point and enjoyed by Lions and visitors.

Judge Duncan complimented the News editor's moustache and gave some interesting sidelights of an early day in Gray county. Judge Duncan came to this county in 1908 and he compared the road between McLean and Pampa with that day and the present highway.

Attorney White brought greetings from the Pampa club and spoke of conditions here eight years ago.

President Cook of the C. of C. announced the community trade trips to Skillet Tuesday night and Kewanee Thursday night.

A motion was made to attend the zone meeting at Clarendon next Tuesday in a body, with the provision that any Lion who could not go would be counted present at the home club.

Lions Davis and Cook were appointed to plan the program for the meeting two weeks hence. Lions Claude Williams and T. A. Landers planned the entertainment for the meeting this week.

Services to Be Held in Open Airdome

Rev. Frank M. Neal to Conduct Services for Two Weeks

Beginning Sunday morning, the First Methodist Church will open a series of two weeks revival services under the direction of Evangelist Frank M. Neal at a big airdome on the vacant lots just north of the News office.

Rev. Neal conducted a revival in McLean several years ago, and is remembered as an interesting speaker with messages of interest to every right thinking man. He enjoys a good reputation among Southern Methodists, and the local church feels that they have secured the best help possible for the McLean revival.

Pastor Jno. H. Crow says that people of every creed and of no belief will be welcome to the services and may expect to hear nothing that will offend anyone. The object of the meeting will be to help everyone to a better life.

The morning services will be held at the church and the evening services in the airdome.

On account of the Baptist revival closing Sunday night, there will be no services held by the Methodists at that hour.

This revival is the second of a series of revivals for McLean this summer. The Baptist revival under the direction of Dr. Layton Maddox will close with the Sunday night service, and the Church of Christ will begin a revival near the close of the Methodist revival.

Next Sunday's Lesson

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS
By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Golden text, Deut. 6:5. Lesson text, Exodus 20:1-11.
The giving of the ten commandments took place on Mt. Sinai. It took the children of Israel about three months to reach this point in their journey. They had many trials and difficulties on the way.
When they came to Rephidim there was no water, and no reason to hope that there would be any soon. But God sent Moses to a rock to strike it and from it flowed all the water needed by the whole nation of people.
But scarcely had the water problem been settled than it was time to move on, and that meant the passing through the country of the Amalekites. They were forced to fight. Moses took his rod and went up on a mountain top. There, as long as he held his hands uplifted with the rod, the children of Israel won ground, but when they were dropped the Amalekites won. So Aaron and Hur stood with Moses as he sat upon a rock and held his hands up.
The children of Israel won the battle and Moses set up an altar and worshiped God with thanksgiving. He called the place Jehovah-Nissi.
Following the passing through the land of the Amalekites, Moses' wife and father-in-law joined him. Pethro was a priest and saw some of Moses' trials which needed to be corrected. Moses was hearing all of the trials of the people and judging among them. Jethro saw that it was more than Moses could stand up to. He suggested wisely that men should be chosen to help with the judging work, which were able, good men, truthful and honest men—men who could not be bribed. One was to be for every hundred, one for every fifty, and one for every ten. In cases where the judgment was not satisfactory it was to be appealed, and finally reach Moses as the supreme judge. The plan was adopted and used by the priests for many years after (Deut. 17:11; 24:8).

In the third month of the journey Israel reached Sinai. They were on a high plateau about six thousand feet above sea level. The mountain rises almost sixteen thousand feet above the plateau. God promised to care for His people and commanded them to prepare themselves for a visit from Him. On the third day a cloud covered the top of the mountain. There was lightning and thunder which continued and grew until the mountain was covered with smoke and was trembling greatly.
God called Moses to the summit. Joshua went half way and waited. Moses went on and there at the top met God, who wrote for him the commandments upon a table of stone.
v. 1. God spoke and Moses understood. The phrase "these words" really means "ten words."
v. 2. God speaks and says that He is Jehovah "thy God." The God who brought Israel through all her trials and in each case brought her through the impossible to victory, the one who had made Israel free.
v. 3. Here God is giving His first law. His people are to have no other God beside Jehovah God. He is to be their ONE and ONLY God.
v. 4, 5. The above significance is seen in these two verses. Man is to make no sort of graven image. And he is to bow down to worship none. Man is in no way to produce any likeness under any consideration for the purpose of worshipping it in any way.
v. 5, 6. Jehovah is jealous. He not only wants but demands all of men's worship. God will accept no other kind of worship, and the failure to grant such to God is sin—punishable by God. And God sends punishment of sin not only upon the sinner, but on his posterity to the third and fourth generation. It is simply one of God's natural laws. On the other hand, God's blessings are in like manner visited upon men.
v. 7. Men are commanded never to take God's name in vain. There is no excuse and God promises punishment to any one who so sins, for any reason or without reason or excuse.
v. 8-11: God demands that men remember the Sabbath Day to set it aside from other days and so keep it holy. Six days men are to labor and the seventh to rest. Not only the master, but all his household and possessions. God first set this example in the creation of the world. Men have no excuse to justify them in failing to keep God's day of rest and worship, and to set it aside to God.

THANKS, FRIENDS
I wish to thank my friends in Gray county who voted for me in the primaries July 23. I appreciate your vote and I appreciate your position. By your position, I mean the feeling that you have for the common people of West Texas. If elected to the office, I plan to look at things from the standpoint of the common people, because I believe by helping the common people we will enrich the state as a whole.
I would like to further impress you I am for economy and tax reductions, also for the state to fill in gaps in the state highways as well as take up county road bonds with the gas tax, and that I will represent the entire district and not special interests.
If you voted against me in the first primary, I do not hold it against you, because I feel that you probably had the interests of some of my opponents at heart. Now that I am in the run-off, if you can see your way clear to support me, I assure you that your vote will be greatly appreciated.

THE LADY SCHOOL TEACHER

Calvin Coolidge will go down in history as the most silent and serious of our presidents. But if Cal was silent and serious, Mrs. Coolidge was the direct opposite—the liveliest "first lady" that ever graced the White House. In early life she was a school teacher and one of the stories she liked to tell was about the opinion of school teachers as popularly held by the young men of this generation. One of these young blades wanted to take a vacation and was advised to take an ocean trip on one of the slow liners. This idea did not appeal to him because he had heard that these boats were always filled with school teachers, whom he pictured to be a bunch of lifeless, blue-nosed spinsters. However, he changed his mind and took the trip. On board the boat the first day out, he found himself standing alongside a rather wild, but not unattractive young lady, and feeling that, as a matter of courtesy, he ought to begin a conversation, asked: "Are you a school teacher?" The young lady, visibly agitated, shook her head. "No, no!" he replied. "I'm just seasick."

Golf is said to be a cure for insanity. So! We somehow got the idea that too much golf on the part of business men often caused the urge to go crazy making excuses for the man who should be attending to business.—Higgins News.

THE BOOK AGENT

They used to say that the man who could sell books could sell anything—even the Brooklyn Bridge. These salesman par excellence, who were known as book-agents, flourished in the gay nineties. Quick wit and ingenuity were their forte and none stood higher in these qualifications than did nifty Sam Gotz. Sam had just come off the train into Elyria when he caught sight of a gentleman in the railroad station waiting for his train. It did not require much effort on Sam's part to convince the amiable gentleman, who was Mr. James Higgins, that he ought to have the book which Sam was selling and read it while traveling. The sale made, Sam wrote out a receipt for $3 from James Higgins, 24 Central Avenue, thanked his customer and departed toward the town. Upon his return home the following day, Mr. Higgins found a copy of the same book on his library table and learned from his wife that a book-agent had called and explained that Mr. Higgins had ordered the book upon which there was a charge of $3, which she paid. Mr. Higgins fell into a spasm of rage. He threw off his coat and muttered dire threats of what he would do if he should catch that book-agent. His wife, looking out of the window, suddenly called, "There he is now—across the street!" Higgins looked. Yes, it was the book-agent, hurrying toward the railroad station. Higgins was about to rush for his coat when he saw his neighbor stepping into his Ford. "Oh, Mr. Smith," he shouted, "see that fellow with the books—get him before he catches the train!" He then grabbed his coat and hurried hot-foot toward the station. Meantime, Smith's Ford caught up with the young man just as the train was pulling in. "Hey, young fellow," he called, "that man on the next street wants you!" Sam thought fast. "Oh, yes," he said, "Mr. Higgins—I nearly forgot him—he wants one of my books—would you mind taking it to him? It's $3." Mr. Smith was an obliging neighbor. The train was just pulling out as Sam hopped aboard and Higgins came hurrying to the platform. "It's all right," called Smith, waving him back. "You needn't hurry. I got the book for you—it's $3.—Heavy Stuff.

IMPROVEMENT

A woebegone-looking traveler reached the riverside and approached the old boatman who operated the ferry across the stream. "Dad," he whined, "I'm broke, and I must get across the stream. Will you trust me for it?" "Fare's only a dime, mister," said the ferryman. "I know it, but I haven't got a nickel," replied the traveler. The old man took a puff at his pipe. "Mister," he said, "if you ain't got a nickel you won't be none the better off on the other side of the river than you are on this."

Two Irishmen got a job to clean some lofty windows. Having no ladder, however, that would reach the windows, they were puzzled how to get to them. "Pat," said Mike, "get a plank and put it through the window. O'll sit on the plank outside and you sit inside."

All went well until Mike cried out: "O! let the window leather fall." "All right," replied Pat, "stop where ye are, and O'll get it." Away went Pat downstairs. On reaching the street, he exclaimed: "Be jabbers, Mike, you're here first! Which way did you come?"

A PRAYER

In time of trial, care and pain; In sorrow's dark afflicting hour; O, Father, let Thy goodness reign, And let Thy love aye be my power. Even tho' my deeds unworthy be; Even tho' Thy mercies I forget; Hide not Thy grace, I pray from me— Be with me yet, be with me yet.

Many a man can be led into doing right who cannot be driven into it.

The city mower is doing good work on weeds, but hay fever sufferers do not seem to appreciate the dead weeds as much as the rest of us. There are still some vacant lots that need attention from weed cutters.

We note a statement from a candidate in a Texas county who led the ticket for his office, but must face a run-off, in which he said that he did not receive as many votes as he would like to have, yet he received more than he expected. That is being charmingly frank with the voters.

Last minute campaign lies are the worst of any, if there is any distinction to be made in lies. It is a pity that politics is not on a higher plane, but it has become an accepted belief that lies will be told on candidates, regardless of the candidate's former life. This is one of the important reasons that deters many a good man from offering for office. Voters should learn to discount any statement made at the last minute to discredit a candidate.

The News editor was handed a little package by Dr. Maddox, who is conducting a revival at the First Baptist Church, for stating last week that the morning services were being closed promptly at 12 o'clock. Dr. Maddox says that a clock has no place in a religious service and that preachers that are amounting to anything today are preaching not less than 45 minutes or an hour at each service. We based our item on the fact that the first two services did close at the hour named, but Dr. Maddox has redeemed himself handsomely since, and we hasten to apologize for being led into error.

GOLF GOSSIP

By D. A. Davis

The following have qualified in the golf tournament:

Batson, 40-40-43; Sammie Cubine, 39-42-44; Roy Campbell, 42-41-42; Davis, 40-44-47; Bentley, 50-45-42; Rice, 44-49-51; Campbell, 47-49-49; Greer, 42-43-46; D. M. Davis, 47-48-58.

It looks to me like I'm bound to be in the run-off or runner-up or whatever you want to call it in this week's tournament. The way it looks now I will be the low score qualifier in the second flight, and I am confident of a clean cut victory over all my opponents. Of course, golf is kinder like politics, just about the time you think you "are," something upsets the dope bucket and you find that you "ain't," so this may be the case in this tournament, but I feel awfully confident. In fact, I know I can beat all the old men, and most of these young upstarts are afraid to play with me for fear I might beat them, and if sure gets next to these young guys to let an old man like me beat them.

And just to prove to you that I am right, Dr. Batson and myself played a round together the other day and the Doc made 47 while I came out with a 40. I am satisfied the reason I won the round was because I got in a lucky break on No. 1 and 2, while the doctor got the unlucky breaks and I beat him on both holes, and it scared him so that he never could get his nerves settled and down to his normal play, which usually is around 37 to 40; which goes to show that we old men sure can throw a scare into the younger ones, and for that reason we usually have to play by ourselves.

But in this tournament it is going to be different and it is going to give us old boys a chance to mix it with the young sprouts.

The boys are not coming out very strong and it looks like the depression is surely about here and that some of us are having a hard time balancing the budget, but folks, good times are just around the corner. The only trouble is finding the corner, but you boys just as well be out there playing golf once in a while as to be hanging around the corner talking hard times.

Will Rogers is always saying all he knows is what he sees in the papers.

In last week's issue of The News I see where Supt. G. Cleveland Boswell claims he is trying to graduate in post. Folks, I've wondered and wondered just lots of times what was the matter with Supt. Boswell. I knew there was something wrong with the man, but I could not just exactly figure it out. I've tried to think of every kind of ani-mule and several different kinds of fowls and birds, including monkeys, donkeys and parrots, but it never had entered my head to connect the man up with a post. I've often heard of folks being dumb as a post; in fact I've been accused of it myself; but I surely have learned something. Supt. Boswell is graduating in post, and no doubt this subject will be taught in our schools next year, which, to my way of thinking, will be a very interesting subject. And another thing, Mr. Boswell says he is not playing golf, and gives as his reason he's too busy studying all about post; while we golfers know good and well why he has not played golf over there at Abilene. It's because he could not find any tees over there like he was always able to do at McLean, and as we don't want him coming back all out of practice, Dosh Bentley and myself sent him some tees the first of the week so he could go out and play a few rounds before he returns home.

PROSE AND POETRY

Before a class of ambitious hopefuls stood the teacher, attempting to elucidate the mysteries of prose and poetry.

"If you were to say," explained the teacher, "there was an old woman who lived behind a hill, and if she hasn't moved she lives there still, that is poetry. But if you were to say, 'there was an old woman who lived behind a hill, and if she hasn't moved she lives there yet,' that is prose. Now, class, give some examples of prose and poetry."

After a minute, a bright-eyed and impatient youngster in the back row jumped to his feet.

"All right, Tommy, give me an example."

Tommy scrutinized his paper sharply and read: "There was an old woman who lived by a well; one day she stepped in and now she's in—say, teacher, what do you want, prose or poetry?"

Hints for the Household
By Betty Webster
HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Cold Drinks
Cold drinks are a necessity for summer. They can be made very refreshing and if not drunk in excess too rapidly, they are beneficial. Of course, very little if any ice may be added to the children's drinks. By using them different, pretty or cute glasses with either a sipper or a plain straw, they are happy. Some rules to remember in making cold drinks are:
Have them cold.
Do not make them too sweet.
Sugar can be added if necessary.
Make syrups ahead of time and keep some always ready in ice box.

Iced Chocolate Syrup
Cups of sugar.
Small cup of water.
Tablespoons of cocoa.
Little salt.
Flavor with vanilla.
Method: Cook together and make up. When ready to serve pour a little in bottom of each glass. Put chipped ice and fill glass up with syrup.

A Delicious Fruit Drink
Juice of 3 oranges.
Juice of 7 lemons.
1 cup of pineapple juice.
1/2 cup of prune juice.
1/2 cup of grape juice.
Cups of strong tea.
Sugar to taste.
Mix, chill in ice box.
Just before serving add about 1 1/2 parts ice water! Fill bowl or glasses with ice and serve.

A Dandy Drink
Bottle of ginger ale.
Cup of sugar.
Lemons.
Bottle of maraschino cherries.
Mix well; serve ice cold.

Fruit Punch (80 glasses)
12 lemons.
8 oranges.
1 can of pineapple.
1 can of white cherries.
3/4 pounds of sugar.
1 bottle maraschino cherries.
4 quarts of ginger ale.

WORTH KNOWING
Save Your Extra Vegetables
If you have an abundant garden and gather more vegetables than you can possibly use in one day, wrap them up in a newspaper. They will keep fresh much longer than if left hanging loose in the pantry.

BAKING HINT
Angel Food Cake
1 full cup of egg whites.
1/2 teaspoon of cream of tartar.
1 1/2 cups of granulated sugar.
1 cup of Swans Down flour.
1/2 teaspoon of salt.
Vanilla.
Method: Have everything ready before you begin. Use same cup for all measurements. Sift sugar 5 times. Beat flour 5 times. Then—beat eggs until foamy but not stiff. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold in sugar very slowly. Add flavoring. Bake in slow oven 50 to 60 minutes.

The Road To Better Health
CLEAN AND SAFE MILK

By Dr. William J. Scholes
In order to be pure, milk must come from healthy cows. It must be produced in clean, sanitary dairies by clean, healthy milkers and handlers. Then it must be kept properly cooled until delivered. For, milk not only is an excellent food for babies and children but it also happens to be an excellent medium for the growth of bacteria. Some of the germs that grow readily in milk are harmless. About the worst they do is sour the milk. Others, however, are capable of causing disease.

Diseases that have been conveyed through milk are typhoid fever, scarlet fever, streptococcus sore throat, diphtheria and tuberculosis. The germs of these diseases get into the milk in various ways. Sometimes, as in the case of tuberculosis, the cows are diseased. Sometimes the milk has been handled by those capable of transmitting infections.

Certified Milk Safest
Milk that is produced in accordance with the sanitary requirements of the Medical Milk Commissions is termed Certified Milk. This is regarded as pure enough to be used raw with safety.

Much of the milk that is marketed is pasteurized. This means that it has been heated to a temperature of between 140° and 150° Fahrenheit for 20 to 30 minutes. The effect of pasteurization is to kill most of the bacteria that may happen to be present. It has done much to lessen the spread of disease by means of milk.

But even though milk is clean to begin with and has been pasteurized, it may still become contaminated. Allowing it to stand in open bottles or containers makes the entrance of germs easily possible. Allowing the milk to stand in a warm place makes the rapid multiplication of whatever germs may get into it. Milk should be kept in stoppered bottles, at a temperature of between 35° and 40° Fahrenheit.

If there is any doubt about the purity of milk, it should be sterilized in the home before given to babies or children. It may be heated in a double boiler, allowing the water in the outer vessel to boil for 6 or 8 minutes. After cooling, the milk should be placed in one or more clean, sterile bottles, the bottles capped, and kept on ice. During the hot weather, it is safest to heat all milk before giving it to babies!

I DON'T LIKE THE DEPRESSION

Henry Ansley of the Amarillo News-Globe made a reputation for himself by writing why "I Like the Depression." Several columnists have written an answer to Mr. Ansley's article, one of the best appearing by "Honest Bill" in the Spearman Reporter. It follows:

With all due respect to that now famous author of "I Like the Depression" (Henry Ansley), the writer does not like the depression, and like Chic Sales, "I'll tell you why."

I never had any trouble getting acquainted with my wife and family during the prosperous times, and never owned an address book like Henry did with ladies' home addresses and phone numbers, therefore, in this respect, the "repression" failed to kindle the home fires at the Miller homestead.

However, when times were better, Eddie Faye used to hire someone to mop the floors, clean the bath tub, dust the walls and ceiling of the rooms, burn the trash and give Bill Jr. his weekly bath. NOW I DO THEM THINGS. I don't like the depression.

Eddie Faye used to be a member of the Mothers Home Culture Club, the Friday Bridge Club, the Tuesday Auxiliary, the Women's Missionary Society (met Wednesday), the Choral Club (met Monday), and served on a welfare committee and uplift association and several other outfits, just like Henry's wife must have done during prosperous times. Well, she was so dad-burned busy that she did not have time to notice that I left home without a shave once in a while, failed to shine my shoes, read a detective magazine (which she now alleges is going to be the downfall of children), was plumb careless with my English in the presence of Billy, Jr., and Lizzie Jane; never cut the weeds because she usually hired a boy to do this, didn't know a "chore girl" (look this up, Henry, it's something you get the grease out of frying pans with) from a chorus girl; didn't take a bath only when I needed it, went to lodge when I got good and ready, was never questioned about committee meetings of the chamber of commerce, and had a darn good time. I don't like the depression.

Now them times are gone forever, or, like prosperity, have been hiding around the corner. Eddie Faye has so much time on her hands now that I get up at 6:30 in the morning and make a bee line for the bathroom. After 27 minutes of strenuous labor I stand inspection, wake up the children and herd them to the torture chamber for their morning baths and clean clothes. Usually Billie only has one more suit of clean underwear, and it looks like the best thing to do is rinse (that's what Eddie Faye calls it) out the underwear in case of emergency, and so I get the laundry soap and scrub out his underthings and hang them out in the yard to dry. I never had noticed before in prosperous times that Sister usually gets about half dressed and then picks up a funny paper or a book and slips out on the back porch until breakfast is ready—fact is, I always regarded it as none of my business, but this dern depression has got Eddie Faye to where she has enough time to develop a complex—and it's a child training complex. She is training me to train the kids to be models of propriety, industry and cleanliness. I don't like the depression.

Henry, I never did have to make the shoe man's convention for my paper, while that collection of fellows were pastured over at Waur-er, Old Mexico, like you did. I therefore do not know a thing about hang-overs, and buying my wife silk pajamas as a peace offering. I did, in prosperous times, always make the annual press association meet and the district convention of the American Legion. Time was when Eddie Faye never gave these meetings a thought—she was involved in social and church meetings and such like. Henry, you was present at press meeting this year—so was EDDIE FAYE—likewise she accompanied me when we visited the district convention of the American Legion at Borger. I just simply don't like the depression.

Henry, you like the depression because you are getting acquainted with home—but, man-a-live, I used to walk the floor nights with my kids in prosperous times while they were teething—and hardly left home only on special occasions—the depression does not have any thrills for me in that respect. I always did love my Sweet Mormer, and I always will—but Henry, just wait until the depression has you shoveling manure from your neighbor's barn to your own front yard so the grass will grow strong and healthy—all because the family budget will not stand for commercial fertilizer—just you wait, Henry, till the depression has your wife buying a bushel or so of green beans to can and you get the job of stringing, and removing strings from the beans and making little beans out of big ones—then, Henry, you may not like the depression either. Henry, when you are better acquainted with the business end of a floor mop, a floor sweeper, a dish towel, a shovel and a hoe, you won't be so durned enthusiastic about "home life." You will pine for the good old days of travel and excitement. Instead of "rock-a-bye-baby" sung to your offspring, you will want to join in the chorus of "Four-o'clock-in-the-morning." Henry, if the depression ever makes you take home life seriously, it probably WILL be a blessing to you—but, by-gosh, you won't really ever again use several hundred perfectly good adjectives telling the world that "I like the depression."

BIRDS ARE OUR FRIENDS

By Zella Wigent

Birds are our friends. They help us. We like them.

They eat millions of insects and destroy tons of weed seed. They kill mice and other pests. They are constantly working for us in our trees and shrubs, in our gardens and our fields. It is cheaper to protect birds than to feed insects.

Birds make the world a more interesting place in which to live. We like their bright colors and their cheery songs.

We marvel at their migrations. We wonder where they have been, what they have seen from the time they leave us in the fall until they come back in the spring, and what enemies they encounter on the way. We do not understand how their tiny wings can carry them such long distances.

We are interested in their family affairs. We like to watch them build their nests and rear their young. We like to see how they behave toward each other and toward other birds. We like to study their human qualities.

Birds are like folks—not all of them are good, and some of the good ones have bad habits. Often we condemn a bird because of a single bad habit. If we really know the bird and understand all that it does to help us, we excuse its bad habits just as we overlook the faults of a friend.

Let us get acquainted with these friends of ours. Let us learn their names and their peculiarities just as we know the names and peculiarities of our human friends.

Knowing the birds will help us to enjoy country life, it will make every walk through the woods and every trip across the country mean more to us. To be happy in this world we do not need new things, but an increased power to enjoy the things that are all around us.

A landscape without birds is like a home without pictures.

GOATIFEROUS

"The last time I wrote you I used my very best typewriter style, where-upon you advised me to marry a farmer and be a shepherdess of sheep." Mary Margaret, this town, informs us. "I have found you always helpful and painstaking in replying to inquirers, therefore, why, oh why, did those German scientists on Brocken mountain want to change a goat into a man?" asks Mary Margaret. Then she animadverted very neatly on the comparative values and leaves the preponderant profit on the goat, as it were. The fact that the goat is proud of his whiskers and that a man hurries to destroy his facial flora makes Mary Margaret suspect the former is the nobler work of nature. State Press inclines toward that opinion, also. To defeat nature by taking razor in hand and guillotining one's whiskers is contrary to the plans and specifications by which man was originally designed. It is a challenge to that authority which ordered the chin of man to be fruitful. This column has done what it could to restore whiskers and re-noble mankind, and is very glad to have Mary Margaret's endorsement. We hope she will choose for a husband a plumed knight who wears his plumage under his eyebrows.—State Press, in Dallas News.

POLITICAL ABUSE

A teacher of government recently told members of his class never to run for office, owing to the personal abuse attached to the campaign. The advice was good, but the reason would condemn the Democracy's principal of a primary. When honest men with solid characters, and men who have made a study of governmental affairs are precluded from offering for office on account of the abuse to which they are subjected, it does not sound well for this great democracy of ours.—Canyon News.

Mutual Acquaintances

A GOOD PREACHER

If you have a good preacher, there is just one way to keep him. We do not mean to raise his salary. The one way is to show appreciation by going to church. What really breaks a preacher's heart is to work hard to prepare a fine message and then to find that his church folks do not care to hear it. That sort of a church does not deserve a good preacher, and will not have one very long.—Pollett Times.
