Two Weeks Of Grace Given US Business

Johnson Says 'Teeth' Will Be Applied To Any Revolvers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two weeks leeway was decreed by Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator, Friday before sanctioning pressure on business and industry to comply with the president's blanket wage and employment agreement.

Johnson warned that no "recalcitrant minority" will be permitted to hold up the recovery program.

Asked if there was likelihood the "teeth" of the Recovery Act would be utilized if a small group did not go along on the program within their industries after specific codes are adopted, Johnson said "It's a dead certainty." He added the aim of the act was to avoid use compulsion.

Waikiki — Don't be surprised if you read shortly that Prof. Roy Moley is on his way to Hawaii to make a survey there of crime, the judiciary and internal politics.

President Roosevelt announced before he left for Hyde Park that such an inquiry was in the making. The executive is considerably concerned over conditions on the Beach at Waikiki. He wants one of his strongest men to look into them.

Of course there would be plenty back of such a move. Since the London Economic Conference the Assistant Secretary of State is at logger-heads with Secretary of State Hull. According to advance arrangements Hull will be back from Europe and conferring with Mr. Roosevelt as you read this.

The Secretary may be quite ready to call for a showdown as against his Assistant.

Dispatch of Moley to Hawaii on what has been advertised as a highly important mission would go far toward relieving the tension. This would hold particularly if Moley left Washington before Hull got back there.

Hawaii

Hawaii has worried the White House ever since the Massey case. It will be remembered the local court failed to convict four natives of assaulting the naval officer's wife of that name. The not-guilty verdict was followed by a cleaving of the islands into distinct factions.

It was because of this situation that Mr. Roosevelt unsuccessfully asked Congress for authority to appoint a governor from the mainland rather than be forced to select a man of three years' residence in the Islands.

Travelers just back from Hawaii will tell you that the big trouble is finding a "good Democrat" there. They say there just about aren't any.

Answers Made To Additional Questions Raised NRA Code

WASHINGTON (UP) — Official interpretations of additional questions raised in connection with President Roosevelt's voluntary re-employment agreement:

Newspapers Given Ruling From N.I.R.A.

Labor Contracts To Stand; Reporters Given Exemption

WASHINGTON — Recovery administration officials expressed the opinion Friday that they had clarified the position of newspapers in relation to the president's voluntary re-employment agreement to open the way for publishers to come in without difficulty.

A ruling permitted publishers who have contracts with their mechanical forces, "arrived at by collective bargaining, to keep these in force even under the blanket agreement if the way is not open to modification. If the contracts provide for a definite number of work hours per week, 48 for instance, work may proceed on that basis. If they merely provide a rate per hour, publishers will be expected to reduce the work week to 35 hours with an upward readjustment of pay rates, though this need not necessarily bring the total weekly earnings up to the 48-hour level.

As for the child labor provision and its 7 a. m. work time limit, officials were disposed to allow latitude in the case of newsboys. They did not believe work by paper carriers before that hour would be generally harmful.

In regard to news forces the present intention of the administration was described as leaving to each publisher decision on bringing them under a work week limit. Some already have instituted a five day week or similar arrangements, others oppose it. If publishers wish to take the stand that their reporters are professional men, it was indicated there was little prospect that the administration would feel called upon to interfere.

That left for strict, mandatory application of the agreement terms, the forces of newspaper business offices which would be treated like those of any other business establishment.

Recipes For Grape Jelly Now Interest Housewives

General Rules For Combination Of Ingredients Of Preserves Listed With Recipes For Making Various Kinds

Gleaming and luscious, the first grapes—taken of early Autumn and the days when fresh fruit will not be so abundant—are coming on the market. They immediately suggest jam and jelly—for grape is America's favorite jelly. Among the earliest fruits to handle, grapes can be quickly "put up," and grape jelly and grape jam can be used in numberless ways during the Fall and Winter. Try these tested recipes.

Ripe Grape Jelly

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
1-2 bottle fruit pectin
To prepare juice, stem 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add 1-2 cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If Malaga or other tight-skinned grapes are used, the juice of 1 lemon should be added to prepare juice.)

Ripe Grape Jam

4 1/2 cups (3 1/4 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1-2 bottle fruit pectin
To prepare fruit, slip skins from about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes. Slimmer pulp, covered, 5 minutes. Remove seeds by sieving. Chop or grind skins and add to pulp. Add 1-2 cup water and if desired, grate rind of 1 orange. Stir until mixture boils. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. (White grapes, Malaga and other tight-skinned grapes may be stemmed, crushed whole, slimmer with 1-2 cup water 30 minutes, sieved, and then measured.) With tight-skinned grapes add juice of 1 lemon to water. Use 4 cups prepared fruit.)

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before the only thing that can make them forget their differences, bury self-interest and work together in a common cause.

It has often been said that if only a people could get together on a common project with the spirit that is displayed in time of war, it could surmount almost any obstacle. That is the chance that is open to us now.

We are being asked to submerge selfish interests for the common good; to be Americans first and self-seeking individuals later; to stand united for the sake of those fellow-citizens who have not yet had a fair break.

This brings us a great challenge and great opportunity. It is a challenge because it will test our intelligence, our patriotism, and our endurance just as deeply and just as truly as any war-time emergency ever did.

And it is an opportunity because it opens the way to a new day in American history.

Upon the events of the next six months, probably, will depend the fate of our fight to escape from the depression. We can shape our future to suit ourselves; and if we are as wise and brave as we like to believe, we can pave the way for a better, freer life for everyone in America.

and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Fresh fruit in abundance suggests the time when it will not be so plentiful or so cheap, and the busy housewife gets out her pots and pans and rows of sparkling glass jars and sets to work so that autumn and winter will find pantry shelves well stocked.

In choosing fruit for canning be sure that it is of good grade and not too ripe. All jars and glasses used should be sterilized. The first rule in successful canning is to heat the fruit to the point where all germs are destroyed and sealing it—air-tight—while it is scalding hot.

General rules as to the combination of ingredients are as follows—for canning: use one-third to one-half as much sugar as fruit. For preserving: three-fourths as much sugar as fruit. For jelly: an equal amount of sugar and juice. For jam: equal amounts of sugar and fruit.

Greater success is assured if small amounts of preserves or jellies are put up at a time. The quality is better, the color deeper and richer. When making jelly see that the fruit is a little over-ripe. Fruit that is a bit over-ripe may be utilized in making jam and jelly.

Jelly Making

Fruit should be thoroughly washed and cut or mashed. In making apples jelly add a little water to tender the boiling and cook until stand over a low fire. Put the fruit through a jelly bag—allowing it to drain for several hours. The bag should not be squeezed as this makes the jelly cloudy. Add sugar and boil in small quantities until the jelly tests to desirable thickness in a saucer.

The less art fruits require 3-4 cup sugar to cup of juice instead of an equal amount as in apple, currants and raspberries. A variation in flavor may be obtained by combining the juices of different fruits—apple and quince, currant and raspberry, for example. Do not neglect to put up a supply of pickles and relishes to give piquancy and tart flavor to your menus. A very good green tomato pickle recipe follows:

1 qt. green tomatoes, 1 medium bunch celery, 2 sweet red peppers, 2 green peppers, 2 large wild onions, 1 small head cabbage, 2 cups vinegar, 1 pound brown sugar, 1 teaspoon ground mustard, 1 teaspoon turmeric. Chop or grind vegetables with 1-4 cup salt and let stand overnight. Drain and press in cloth to remove all liquor possible. Add remaining ingredients and simmer till clear. Seal in sterilized jars.

Motorized Cavalry Given Practical Test In Big Bend

EL PASO, (UP)—The first practical test of the seventh cavalry's new "flying squadron," consisting of 21 trucks and trailers loaded with horses, started Thursday on the first of a trip from Ft. Bliss to Terlingua in the Big Bend. So far as army officers here know, this is the first military unit of its kind in the world.

The trailer, an invention of Lt. Duval Watkins, carry eight horses each. The men ride in the truck with the food and forage for the horses. Ten days' supplies are carried in each unit.

Major John R. Robinson, commanding the squadron, said that horses have been transported prior to this by truck but this is the first time that the truck and trailer have been incorporated in a complete independent unit that can exist by itself for ten days.

Fifteen armored cars equipped with machine guns and a 75-mill motor gun mounted on a truck chassis will also make the trip. The trucks have a top speed of 15 miles an hour, Major Robinson estimates that the squadron will average 10 miles an hour on the road.

Stops will be made every three hours while en route to rest the horses from the continuous motion of the trailer.

Stimulation Of Appetites In Summer Hard Problem

Household Editor Of Magazine Lists Summer Appetizers In Two Classes; Simplest Ones Come In Cans And Bottles

Almost every home maker thinks of warm weather and slumping appetites as synonymous. The business of tempting the family to eat heartily of the food placed before them is predestined to be a difficult task in summer. But the intelligent use of "appetizers" preceding the meal, can accomplish wonders in giving an appeal to the foods that are to follow.

Appetizers are divided into two classes by Nell B. Nichols, household Editor of Woman's Home Companion, in a new study of the subject. The first class includes fruit juices and other beverages that may be served delightfully and easily in the living room, or the porch immediately before the meal.

The second class includes those that are served on the table when dinner or luncheon is served. Table appetizers, which require the use of silver, may be salads, jellied bouillabaisse, melon, sherbet, ice or fruit soup.

Simplest to prepare are the appetizers that come in cans or bottles. All you have to do is chill the container, pour the contents into glasses and add a dash of lemon juice and other seasonings if desired. Popular appetizers of this sort are tomato juice, pineapple juice, grapefruit juice, apple juice, grape juice and ginger ale. Of course various combinations may be made. The expert insists that tomato and pineapple juices make the perfect drink. Sunshine Appetizer (mixture of grapefruit, pineapple and lemon juices) is growing in popularity.

In selecting an accompaniment for the appetizer, crispness is a first essential. Crackers, available in an amazing variety of shapes and flavors, may be served in just as they come from the box or spread with delectable mixtures. Stuffed celery and potato chips are also much in demand.

Mrs. Tate Hostess To Ace High Club

The players were: Mesmes. D. M. McKinney, Lindsey Marchbanks, Alfred Collins, Glen D. Gullkey, Roy Lamb; Mesmes Mabel Eddy and Elizabeth Northington.

The trailer is fitted with a partitions separating the horses. A band of heavy padding on the side prevents injury to the horses' legs. A canvas trough is swung along the side of the trailer and filled with hay.

Arlington Downs Race Meet Dates Soon To Be Known

By W. WINSTON COPELAND
United Press Staff Correspondent

FORT WORTH, (UP)—Date for the fall horseracing season at Arlington Downs, between here and Dallas, should be forthcoming within a short time.

Seven thoroughbred horses owned by W. T. Waggoner, owner of the Arlington Downs, have been brought back from eastern and northern track to rest and train for the event.

The races can be held anytime after Aug. 21, when the recently passed horseracing law goes into effect. It probably will be held late in September.

So long as it has been since Texas have gone to the window and laid down their bets on horses, they may have become a bit rusty. Horse racing was barred 24 years ago.

The legalized "certificate system" is a better way of paying pari-mutuels. Racing fans who have followed or attended races where they employ the pari-mutuel system will find the Texas betting quite similar.

There are some striking exceptions. The better must be at the track to place his bet. Also there will be no posting of odds at the track.

At eastern and northern tracks the odds on each horse are placed on a bulletin board at the track. If the better at Texas races is a "wise-guy" he probably will not have much trouble in finding out just about how the odds lay.

To place a bet, the one merely walks up to the bookmaker's window, plunks down his $2 or up, and receives a card with the name of the horse he chose on it.

If his horse finishes first, he returns to the window, presents his card, and gathers back his ante plus his earnings. If the horse finishes second or third, the returns are smaller.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kilway and son, Jackie, have returned to Fort Worth, after a visit here with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Taylor.

Republicans Seek To Punish Senators Who Left Hoover

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Regular Republicans in three states are organizing to punish progressive Republicans senators who bolted the Hoover-Curtis ticket in 1932.

The regulars' strategy is to break the back of the senate progressive group if possible by a primary election offensive against Senators Johnson, Repp., Cal. Cutting, Repp., Wis. All three must stand for re-election next year. They campaigned a year ago for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Their efforts were reflected in victory for the Democratic national ticket in California, New Mexico and Wisconsin. They were not the only bolters but they are the ones who come up for re-election first.

Regular Republicans in all three states are depending largely upon a backwash of the 1932 Democratic tidal wave to submerge the three progressive mucketeers.

Local conditions plague Johnson, La Follette and Cutting. In New Mexico Senator Cutting, rich and a bachelor, split with his party a year ago and resigned his membership in the Republican national committee. He was succeeded by Albert Galatin Simms, also wealthy, once a member of the bolter and recently married to the politically wise and reportedly ambitious Ruth Hanna McCormick. There are recurrent reports Simms may oppose Cutting for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Johnson and LaFollette are confronted with more difficult problems. Both have profited at the polls by support of Democratic voters. The Democrats went back to their own party primaries in 1932, nominating and electing a Democratic senator in California and a Democratic governor and senator in Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin machine, inherited by "Young Bob" from his father was severely damaged in the process. The senator's brother, Philip, was beaten for renomination for governor by a regular Republican, Senator Blaine, Repp., Wis., a LaFollette man, also lost to the regulars in the primary.

The temptation to perpetuate a successful Democratic organization is expected to be irresistible even though it may involve the political sacrifice of Johnson and LaFollette who scarcely can survive the primaries without considerable aid from progressive Democrats. But neither they nor anything can be rubbed out of the political picture by forbidding. La Follette polled 635,376 votes to his opponents 81,302 in the 1932 general election. Johnson's 1932 victory was even more impressive: 1,442,297 to 282,411.

CHAPTER 23

"That is exactly what you should do," Willa agreed, when Mary confided that she would like to stay in New York for a while, to get away from memories and the necessity of seeing Dick often. "Have you any place in mind?"

"No. I thought you might have some suggestion. I'd like to get a room with kitchenette and bath, but I suppose that would be a fortune."

"Well, the kind of place you would like, would cost plenty. But I have a suggestion. Why don't you come here and stay, for a few weeks, anyway? We almost never use the extra room. Your hours would fit in with our schedule fine. We would only be together at dinner. Chloë will give you breakfast. We'd love to have you really."

Mary was incredulous. "Oh, I couldn't impose upon your generosity like that! Of course, it would be lovely, Willa, but—"

"There is no imposition about it. Unless you would prefer to be entirely alone—though you practically would be, except for dinner. And cooking and eating alone isn't so pleasant, after all. Please say you will try staying with us for awhile. You could be looking about for a place, later, if you decide to stay in the city."

"I can't refuse such an offer as that," Mary consented.

When Ramon arrived, he put his seal and approval on the arrangement, without hesitation.

So Mary moved into the quaint little guest room in the Duchon apartment. She had explained the situation to her mother, regretting that anything had to take her away. She wasn't at home much, but it was a comfort to Jennie Vaughn to know that Mary came home every night, sometimes, and to have her cheerful presence at the dinner table part of the time. Her face was stricken at her daughter's news.

"I know it's mighty hard for you, child," Mom agreed. She seemed to have grown older suddenly, as mothers do when their young begin to leave the old nest for trial flights into the world. As long as it—just talk about starting out, another doesn't give it much credence, but when they actually leave, that is different. "It has been too far for you to live away from your work all these two years. And since things have been like they are—"

Mary referred to Bonnie's and Dick's engagement in the delicate manner with which one refers to grievous tragedies. "I can't blame you for wanting to get away for awhile. In fact, I think you should do that very thing. You are sure these people are all right—the ones who want you to stay with them?"

"They are splendid, Mom. Some day, I'll have you come into New York and meet me for lunch. Then I will take you down to see Willa. I know you would love her. In a way, she seems a lot older than I, but she isn't."

"Well, I reckon if you like her, that's enough of a recommendation. I never knew you to like the wrong people yet."

Mary sighed. "Strange that I should be going to stay with Dick's friends, especially to get away from seeing him. That is the way all of life seems to be, so often—contradictory and inconsistent and mixed up."

"Doesn't Dick go there much?"

"Not since he has been with Bonnie. I guess she didn't like the crowd so much. Bonnie and I never did care about the same people—except one," she corrected herself sharply. "That's another instance of life's queer pranks."

"Pshaw, yes. I declare I can't understand it, anyway. Bonnie always has been a puzzle, and I guess she always will be. Frighty she is, more like her father. I never did know what to expect him to do next. That's why he met his fate so young—daring to do crazy things that most people wouldn't think of. I really will be glad when Bonnie gets married, because a steady, solid man like Dick ought to help balance her."

Mary hoped silently, and with all her heart, that the marriage wouldn't prove to be his unbalancing, instead. Bonnie was her little sister, she couldn't criticize her too harshly; but knowing Dick's aspirations and Bonnie's disposition, both so well, she couldn't associate the two with success.

Mary found that the short distance morning and night, to and from the office, was an amazing relief from the tedious train-ferry-subway journey. She discovered that this, alone, increased her efficiency and energy about one hundred per cent. The change of scene and surroundings also were beneficial, and the relief from chance encounters with Dick was profound.

On the evenings when she was not working at the office or attending an occasional movie, she retired to her room early to afford the Duchons their valuable privacy. The long hours of refreshing sleep gradually restored her natural poise and calm. It was not accomplished all at once, nor without its price.

There were days, and nights, when the old pain and longing for love—that could never be more than a memory, now—drove her with incessant and merciless tortures. Whenever she went anywhere that winter, orchestras and radios haunted her with melodies such as, "If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight," "Heartache apartment for you. I am still hoping that you will not need to consider an apartment, alone. Let me get a house for us, instead."

"So soon?" she was surprised at his alacrity.

"The sooner, the better, for me both. Since I have spoken to you, I grow more impatient with my lonely existence every day. Why wait?"

"I can't encourage you at all, yet," she said candidly. "I am no nearer to a decision now than I was before you spoke to me about it. That was only two weeks ago, you know."

"It seems much longer than that," he confessed. "I think you are making me young again, Mary. I find myself growing impatient of delays, like an unreasonable youth. I thought I had mastered patience and discipline."

Such were the sedate and philosophical conversations between Mary and her attentive employer. She admired him tremendously, enjoyed him; but there was no glad response in her for his plans, so trembling delight in his presence. It was that same night that the orchestra played dreamily, "Sweet Mystery of Life," while the musicians crooned softly, "Ah, the love, and love alone, the world is seeking."

That explained her indifference to Foster's plans and himself, Mary thought. This was everything but love, this offer to her, she reminded herself. It was love she was seeking—rather, had sought and found, then lost and was now trying to forget.

Then Martin Frazier returned to New York.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP)—The Blue Eagle and NIRA has little chance to float

from the flagstaff at the Texas capitol. In fact, for state employees, NIRA might stand for "Now I'm robbed again."

The last legislature met during the national swing to economy in government. The awe swung heavily on appropriation budgets.

There is apparently only one chance now for the state employees to balance his budget; that is, by a salary raise at the September session of the legislature.

Only a dozen counties of Texas will come under provisions of the county home rule amendment to the state constitution which will be voted on August 26.

Based on the 1930 census there are only that number with the required 25,000 population.

They are Bexar, Cameron, Dallas, El Paso, Galveston, Grayson, Hidalgo, Jefferson, McLennan, Tarrant, Travis and Wichita. Navarro is close to the mark.

Closing of the state senate chamber to hearings of the state railroad commission and similar state gatherings is working considerable hardship on the state officials and especially on newspaper correspondents.

As a result of the order, most important sessions have now to be held at down-town Austin hotels.

Moore Lynn, state auditor, disclaims any intention of making a stand for a state income tax, a sales tax or any other special levy in his opposition to the ad valorem system of taxation.

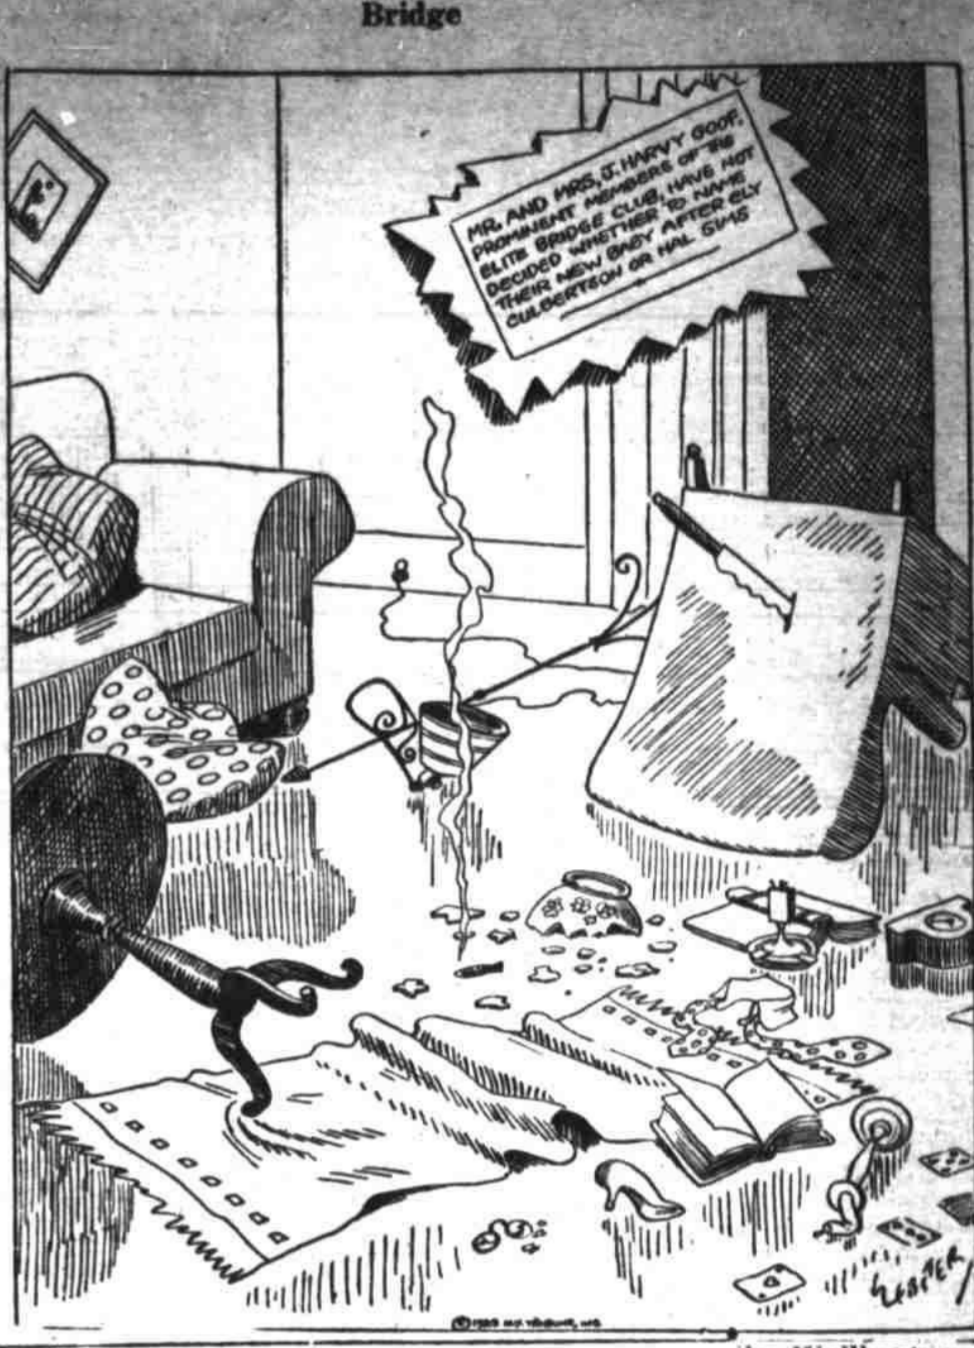

"I'm merely saying the ad valorem system has failed," he said.

Under present methods of valuation and assessment, Lynn believes, it is practically impossible to make the ad valorem tax "equal and uniform," which the constitution says it must be.

Lynn cites records to show that hardly 50 per cent of the property in the state is assessed, and that what property does come under the assessor's eye is assessed at only its true value.

Discrimination will not be made against persons whose names do not appear on relief rolls when it comes to meeting out employment under the federal-state setup, according to Col. Lawrence Westbrook, head of the state rehabilitation and relief commission.

Westbrook has estimated that 400,000 unemployed heads of families in the state are not on relief rolls.

WHIRLIGIG

Alcohol stands ready to permit distillers to build new plants merely by registering their intent and proving responsibility. Permits to start manufacturing will come after your Uncle Sam has further satisfied himself he's going to get all the internal revenue therefrom that's due him.

Kentucky, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Maryland are expected to be the seats of these new distilleries for the most part. That's where the old ones were located.

Gallons—

Plans have been put in motion to double the amount of whiskey that may be made prior to abandonment of the 18th Amendment. Until recently the government has allowed 7 distilleries to make 1,500,000 gallons a year. This now is shoved up to 3,000,000 gallons.

On top of this the insiders are talking about taking the lid clear off before the year ends and letting the lucky seven ferment to capacity. This would shove capacity up to the $0,000,000 gallon mark.

We hope you can take your statistics or leave them but if you'd like to know how the whiskey reserves stack up at present there are exactly 12,804,000 gallons in bond. Only about 4,300,000 gallons are really aged. The rest is what might be called green.

As this column has warned you, both from New York and Wash-

ANNOUNCEMENTS

There will be a called meeting of the Kappa Gamma tonight at the Settle Hotel Mezzanine at 7:30.

The Howard County Home Demonstration Council will hold its August meeting at the City Park Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake which carried out the color scheme of pink and silver were served by the hostesses, assisted by Miss Francis Haley and Kenneth Hart to the following: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowmire, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Earley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bell, Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Shetterworth, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Creath, Mrs. R. V. Hart, Misses Ima Deason, Ruth Dodson, Marjorie Taylor, Loma Smith, Kitty Belle Wheat, O. C. Hart, and the honorees.

Engagement of Miss Pauline Hart and Johnny Garrison Announced

The lovely rock-walled garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Hart, with its shaded lights and with music from a radio hidden in a pagoda, formed a most romantic setting for a delightful affair last evening. The moon, as it peeped from behind the clouds, added the necessary touch to the picturesque scenes as Misses Elouise Haley and Evelyn Creath entertained the friends of Miss Pauline Hart and Johnny Garrison with a party announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of this well-known couple.

Forty-two was played during the early part of the evening, after which each guest drew a streamer from a small veiled airplane. At the end of each streamer was a piece of a jig-saw puzzle. When these pieces were put together, the picture was that of Miss Hart and Mr. Garrison holding a large heart on which the word "Engaged" was printed. The unveiling of the airplane then revealed it to be the good ship Matrimony bearing the requirements for Federal Reserve member banks will be raised sharply.

Methodist Stewards Guests Of Pastor

Members of the board of stewards of the First Methodist and their wives were guests of the pastor at a watermelon feast Thursday evening following the regular business session. Large and luscious melons were cut and served the guests. Rev. Spann said he wanted to get some of the men in practice of picking seed from the melons, as it seemed that the Methodist Men's Bible class was going to be forced to feed the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church. These two classes have in progress an attendance contest, and the loser will have a watermelon feast for the winner. Judging from the manner in which some of the men devoured the melons last evening the losers in the contest will have to furnish an extra large supply of melons, it was observed.

Creeks Run Docilely After Ruining Farms And Dozen Bridges

DENVER, (AP)—Cherry Creek flowed docilely in its concrete-lined channel Friday, bearing no resemblance to the roaring torrent which took two lives and did damage possibly in excess of a million dollars.

Denver's damage was confined to 12 bridges taken out by the flood and to the warehouse section and a country club residential district. Largest portion of the estimated damage—half million dollars—was to farmers along the course of the stream from Castlewood Dam to the city limits.

Stock Trading Stopped When Fumes Fill Four Floors

NEW YORK, (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange was forced to close early Friday afternoon when fumes, which the exchange said had apparently come from explosion of tear gas bombs flooded the lower floors of the building.

The fumes first were believed to have come from a leaky ammonia pipe in the exchange's cooling system.

A hasty check disclosed no one was seriously injured.

The fumes billowed up through the first four floors, which were ordered evacuated. An investigation revealed two tear gas bombs had been thrown into an open ventilating pipe.

Make The Pennies Bigger

WHEN James Buchanan was President and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cavats and ladies wore hoop skirts, the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for hooping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increase the spending also of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed, many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

$100,000 Paint Job For Boulder Dam On Public Works List

By RAYMOND CLAPPER United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—In a job of spending $3,300,000,000 on public works, one item of less than $100,000 may seem scarcely worth mentioning.

Yet bids were to be opened today at Denver on a paint job for Boulder Dam which, small in its way, shows what Secretary of Interior Ickes is up against in cost-cutting the great public works program on a fair basis.

Huge metal pipes are being built to carry the water from Boulder Dam into the turbines to produce electric power. These pipes are 30 feet in diameter. Their total length is 12,500 feet, more than two miles.

To protect the pipes they are to be painted inside. This calls for 5,000 gallons of one kind of paint and 450 tons of another, all special asphalt formula.

In drafting specifications, government representatives consulted various paint concerns. As a result of suggestions from some, the specifications were drafted to require that no paint would be considered unless it had been used on water carrying pipes at least five feet in diameter and for a period of ten years, in three separate locations.

On each of these locations the pipes painted must have had an area of at least 10,000 square feet.

When other prospective bidders began checking these requirements they declared that only one company in the country could qualify.

It was said to be one of the companies that had advised the government in drawing up specifications.

An investigation caused the specifications to be changed so that other bidders could qualify.

Secretary of Interior Ickes has organized a staff of investigators to run down such cases. The one cited was regarded as minor.

Another minor one was reported by the navy department. On one small supply contract, involving less than $5,000, ten concerns submitted bids. They were identical down to the last dot.

Secretary Ickes has placed the division of investigation in charge of Louis R. Glavis, who won fame during the Ballinger Pinchot controversy in the Taft administration.

It is the plan to keep a list of firms which become involved unfavorably with the department in contract work. This list is intended as a guide for future dealing.

Secretary Ickes has been emphatic in declaring there was no "inside track" to a public works contract. He warned prospective bidders against hiring self-styled experts and advisers who profess to have influence.

Unequaled Scoring Record Of New York Yankees Ends As Lefty Grove Wins 7 To 0

Jimmy Foxx's Thirtieth Homer Accounts For Three Runs; Athletics' Southpaw Star Limits Champs To Five Hits

NEW YORK — Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, the southpaw speed-ball star of the Philadelphia Athletics, put an end to the greatest scoring streak ever made by a club in major league baseball history Thursday when he pitched the A's to a 7 to 0 victory over the New York Yankees.

The Yankees had scored 305 consecutive games over a period of just two years before Grove halted them with five hits Thursday. Their last previous blanking was administered by Wilky Moore, then with the Boston Red Sox, on August 2, 1931. This feat eclipsed all records for consecutive scoring. The best mark listed in the record books was 132 games, an entire season's play, made by the Boston and Philadelphia leg scullers in 1894.

Grove was the big figure in the Athletics' victory but Jimmy Foxx, the slugging first baseman, also had a hand in it. Foxx put the game on ice in the seventh inning when he swatted his thirtieth home run of the season with two on base to give the A's a 4-0 lead.

The blow came off Johnny Allen's delivery after Roger Cramer had singled and Mickey Cochrane had walked. It put Foxx five ahead of Babe Ruth in their race for major league honors.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN Again: Look Out

It is impossible for any one to follow with any real comprehension of their economic meaning the development of all these many separate codes. They are being set up hastily, and they will have to be worked out as men learn to understand them.

To view the matter in this light does not, however, relieve any one of the duty of examining the main principles and tendencies which actuate those who are working at this momentous and inspiring task.

In this spirit I venture to raise a few questions about the procedure in adopting the steel code. The only evidence available to me is the text of the code as submitted on July 15 and the newspaper accounts of the hearings before General Johnson in Washington.

As I read this code it appears to have two main parts. In one part the steel industry agrees to reduce hours and to raise wages somewhat. In the other part it organizes itself to prevent price cutting.

As I read the testimony of Secretary Perkins and the accounts of the hearings it appears that the Administration is convinced that the steel industry could and should make very much more favorable terms with labor, and should eliminate many long-standing abuses.

From other sources it appears that Mr. Richberg has raised legal questions about the sections of the code which deal with prices, but unless I am mistaken the Administration does not seem greatly concerned about the level of steel prices.

Thus in arguing that the proposed hours are too long and the wages too low Miss Perkins said that it may be necessary to make drastic increases in wages to accomplish the purposes of the act.

But if recovery is to be achieved a large portion of the money product of industry must go to those who constitute the main body of the consumer. In support of her argument she pointed out that during the prosperous years prior to 1929 a declining share of value of the products of the iron and steel industry . . . went to labor.

Miss Perkins' point cannot, I think, be disputed. It is clearly established that in the Twenties profits ran way ahead of wages.

What needs to be discussed, and to be examined with great care, is the apparent assumption, which at the moment seems to dominate so much of the thinking of the N.R.A. organization, that a better distribution of corporate earnings should be sought solely through the pay envelope. To fix the question clearly it is interesting to consider a few of the main elements in the policy of the steel industry during the depression.

In other words, here is a basic industry which has met the depression by reducing production and wages far more than it has reduced prices. It has chosen to do very little business at relatively high prices, instead of seeking to
