

Next Sunday's Lesson

JESUS ASSERTS HIS KINGSHIP

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Lesson text, Mark 11:1-10, 15-18.
Calden text, Zechariah 9:9.
Jesus was very near Jerusalem. He entered Bethpage and then Bethany. That was the home of his friend, Lazarus, and the two sisters. There Jesus rested for a time and sent two of His disciples out to a certain place to get a colt. They were properly instructed, and returned with the colt. It had never been ridden. It was an Old Testament law that an animal used for sacred purposes was always one that had neither been ridden nor carried a burden. So Jesus was to be the first burden of this young colt. The day was Sunday, the first day of the week. And as Jesus mounted the colt, by inspiration rather than command, the people caught a triumphant spirit. Never before had Jesus permitted the multitude to honor Him to any such way, but now as they began that two mile journey toward Jerusalem, their announcement of kingship for Him was unquestioned save by the pharisees. They appealed to Jesus to have the shouts of the multitude stopped, but their only satisfaction was that if the people did not so honor Him, the very rocks would cry out in His behalf.
From the description there must have been thousands of people in that triumphal march before Jerusalem was reached. Why could not the rulers of the Jews read the prophecy of Zechariah, "Tell ye the daughters of Zion, behold the King cometh unto thee, meek, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass." Jesus entered the gate of Jerusalem, not on a war charger surrounded with the spoils of worldly glory with a victorious army at His back, but rather upon a beast of burden and service, of peace, one of the common people, and with a great multitude of poor and common people proclaiming His entry. He went directly into the main gate of Jerusalem, and on to the temple. There must have been a great deal of disturbance in the city as that throng of people passed shouting through the streets. When they arrived at the temple, Jesus made a survey of it, and seemingly without even teaching, resumed again to Bethany for the night. It is almost certain that the multitude did not return with Him. Part returned, but that lived beyond Jerusalem. But the next morning when Jesus went back to Jerusalem no great multitude was with Him, as had gone the day before.
This entrance into Jerusalem was on Monday morning. It seems that Jesus went straight to the temple. There, as was the custom, were the sellers of doves and other animals of sacrifice, along with the money changers. Only Jewish money was acceptable in the Jewish temple, and these coming from other countries had to exchange their money before they could buy animals or birds to make sacrifice. Righteous indignation was in the mind and heart of the Master. He cleansed the temple, drove out the merchants and money changers, overthrowing their tables. He then stopped the traffic that was going through the temple. It was shorter for the public, in crossing Jerusalem, to go through, rather than around the temple. This Jesus stopped. This was not the first time the Master had cleansed the temple. Early in His ministry, as recorded in John 2:13-22, Jesus is seen with the same righteous indignation driving out the exchangers and merchants. When Jesus had finished His task of driving pollution out of the temple, He began to teach.
Jesus taught the people concerning the use of the house of His Father. That house was to be a house of prayer. It was to be a place where men could go to talk to and meet the God they had afforded them a means of worship looking forward to their final redemption. His house was to be a place of reverence, aside from the world; a place where men might find a healing from the trials and woes of the world. But instead of making the temple of God such a place, the Jews had made it a place for merchants to sell merchandise and exchange money, as a business, rather than as a service to God. The men there in business were in the same type of business, and for the same profitable purposes as those who were situated outside the temple. These in the place of God's worship had more protection, which was not right and fair. Many of them, under the protection of nominal service to the worshipers of God, had charged exorbitant prices, had actually robbed the people and had thus made God's house a protector to robbers.
How often do we make the house of God something other than He would have it. How often do we use His house to mighty poor advantage as seen from God's point of view. It seems that many times if Jesus were to walk into those houses dedicated to His service and worship, He would find there such interests and activity that He might again in this twentieth century take the scourge and drive us from His holy place. Our houses of worship are not only temples of the Lord, but we are to remember that He is the Lord of those temples. Viewed as such, oft times we might be forced to reconsecrate our temples to Him and His service.

HUNTSMAN SCHOOL TOUR

By Irene Pettit

On Tuesday, May 2, Miss Taack took her pupils and Mrs. Williams to visit the Amarillo zoo. We left here at 8:30 and got to Amarillo at 11 o'clock. We drove around in town about an hour. We next went to the zoo to see the animals. There were lions, coyotes, racoons, porcupines, birds, a brown bear, and a black bear with a little cub. There were other animals, too. I liked the black bear and little cub better than I did the rest of the animals. The mother bear's name was "Lady" and the cub's name was "Sonny Boy." The mother bear would pick the cub up with her teeth and shake him, and then she would roll him over and over. Sonny Boy was running around and he fell in a tub of water. He didn't stay there long, because he saw his mother coming and he knew she would roll him in the water. We went to one of the parks to eat our lunch. We spread it out on the lawn under some trees. When we had finished eating our lunch we went to the playground to play. We played on the merry-go-round and in the swings. We went to see a monument of a soldier, which was just a few yards away. Then we came back and played on the seesaw, the slide, the swings and other things.

We went to see the Museum at Canyon. There were mounted animals, guns, rocks, pictures, and a meteor that fell in March. Its weight was 85 pounds. We saw many interesting sights in the museum, and it took us one and a half hours to see everything in it. We saw two buffalo a little way from the museum. They were interesting to watch. We went back to Amarillo and visited a cleaners shop. Some were pressing, some men and women were running the washing machine, one was blocking hats, and they all told us some interesting stories about cleaning things.

On the way home we visited the air port. There were no airplanes lighting or flying, but we saw some mail planes in the hangar. By that time it was getting late and we had to go home. We got home about 10 o'clock, tired and hungry. We think it was worth more to us than several days of school.

FIGHT RUM AND BEER

Through countless time, the mystic call of foaming beer and kindred brew Has been the cause of men's downfall: Of ruined homes and nations, too.

Then strange it is, Red-White-and-Blue, That you should heed the serpent's voice, And license beer for revenue. As though you had no other choice.

A million sorrows now will fall On countless homes that never knew The taste of poverty's searing gall, Or other love than holy, true.

A spark of hope we still may hold: To cast a vote election day-- August the twenty-sixth, I'm told. Keep Texas dry, I truly pray.

Grasp firm the torch, it's flung to you, Carry it on with fearless tread-- With valiant courage, strong and true, Fight rum and beer till they are dead. --John B. Vannoy.

This is no time to "fiddle" with advertising! If you want to keep going in 1933—you must spread your advertising dollar wisely: Cut out the gadget expenditures.

Gordon H. Ciley, for 16 years advertising manager for John Wanamaker, says:

"If you want to do more real advertising and at the same time reduce the cost of it—cut out the gadgets. Cut out the knickknacks, donations, programs, tickets, charged up to 'Good Will Advertising.' Eliminate waste in postage and wasteful methods and mediums—spend this saving of from 15 to 25% in the newspapers."

Regardless of which side has the advantage on the small number of poll tax payments this year, the wets must think it is on their side, as they are the ones that cried loudest for an early vote.

Everyone is agreed that taxes are too high, yet we do not hear so much of the reason for high taxes. Just as long as the government indulges in things that belong in the realm of private business, just so long may we expect an ever mounting tax burden.

Mother's Day should insure the church attendance of everyone who feels like properly observing the day.

It is very proper that the day should be observed by public services in churches, for it is from Mother that most of us learn to appreciate the higher things of life.

The city of Brownfield has made a rate of $1.50 for a minimum of 5,000 gallons of water per month, with a charge of 10c per thousand gallons for all in excess of 5,000 gallons, as the summer rate this year. Many other cities have cheap rates for the summer. Canyon has a rate of 10,000 gallons for $2.85. Citizens in all towns should take advantage of the summer rates to have good yards and gardens this year.

The Panhandle Press Association was organized as a strictly fraternal affair, and the editor of this paper does not endorse the action of the activities committee of the past convention in planning for contests among the members. These things do not always work out to the best interests of all concerned in the larger associations, and certainly have possibilities for misunderstanding in a regional association.

The city council is to be congratulated on stopping the staking of cows in the city park, and now if cows could be kept out of the cemetery, there would be more incentive to keep it looking like it should.

A meeting of the Cemetery Association to discuss matters of this kind might be a good thing; or, as the plot belongs to the city, the council might take up the matter of fencing or otherwise preventing trespassing.

Ralph R. Moser, vice president and general manager of the Oklahoma branch of the Carpenter Paper Co., claimed to be the largest paper company in the world, told the News editor at the press convention last week that he has given up golf since the depression began and has found that he can get much more enjoyment out of working in his yard and garden. Many people have discovered that a garden yields enjoyment and health as well as helping in the economy program of the household.

A speaker at the press convention last week remarked that many official boards should be good sports and pay for any needed advertising, as the home paper donates about $1000 worth of space to their activities each year. However, it seldom seems to work out that way; the more you give a man, usually means the more he wants for nothing.

It was also mentioned that the home paper should not be asked to donate money to any enterprise, as the favorable publicity given is worth, in the majority of cases, far more than anyone else gives. This is another thing that will not work, for most people have the idea that "filling space" does not cost the newspaper anything.

Another spoke of the person who wants to say just what part of the paper his article shall go in, and just how it shall be worded, not willing to credit the editor with enough brains to know how his paper should be made up.

Perhaps this is a good thing that comes from press meetings, as most of us do not have the nerve to stand up for our rights except when in company with other editors.

RELATIVE VALUE OF A MAN AND A MULE

Over the hill trailed a Dixie man behind a Dixie mule drawing a big Dixie plow. The clodhopper was broadcasting at a time when there was little or no static and no other interruptions.

"Bill," said the farmer to his mule as they trudged along turning pretty furrows as straight as a bee line, "you are a mule, the son of a jackass, while I am a man made in the image of God. Yet here we are working together year after year, and I often wonder if I work for you or if you work for me. Sometimes I think this is a partnership between a fool and a mule, for surely for a mule, the lord of creation, of substance, is foolish. And come to think of it, you only help to cultivate the ground. After that I cut, shock and husk the corn while you look over the fence and give me the 'hee-haw'."

"All fall and part of the winter, the whole family, from granny down to the baby, pick cotton to help raise money to buy you a new set of harness and pay interest on the mortgage on you—and by the way, what in the heck do you care about the mortgage? It doesn't worry you one darn bit. You leave that to me, you ungrateful ornery cuss."

"About the only time I'm your better is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. But, if I ever get any more out of politics than you do, I just can't see where it is. I work harder than you do. Plowing here we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I do it on only two legs. So, mathematically speaking, I do twice as much per leg as you do."

"Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop. When the crop is harvested, I give one-third to the landlord for being kind enough to let me use this little corner of God's universe. You get a third and I get a third. But while you consume all your third with the exception of a few cobs, I have to divide my share among six children, six hens, two ducks and a banker. Now, Bill, according to that, you are getting the best of me, and it ain't fair."—Ex

Letter from a father to his daughter: My dear daughter: You ask me if your husband should keep his present position at an "adjusted" salary; but you forgot to tell me what he would do if he didn't. You and he couldn't very well come here just now. Your brother Sheridan's salary has just been "reconsidered." So he moved into his old room at home and brought his wife.

Your sister Eloise telegraphed the next day that Wilfred had been offered a contract that was an insult. So your mother is airing out her room. Wilfred never could endure insults. Your sister Frances, who you will recall, has been a private secretary, wrote last week that if anybody thinks she is going to drop to the level of a common typist, they are mistaken. We are expecting her any day.

What with these and the younger children, I imagine that as long as Rupert's salary is merely being adjusted, he had better stay. An adjustment is nothing like a reduction.

My own business is coming along fine. It was sold on the court house steps last Friday, but there were no bidders. So the sheriff let me keep it. That makes the best month I've had since the upturn. YOUR DAD. Customer—"Have you a book called 'Man, the Master of Women?'"

Hard-boiled Salesgirl—"Fiction Department the other side, sir."

Merchant—"How did you manage to sell all that broadcloth?"

Clerk—"I sold it to a fat woman."

Merchant—"But how did you persuade her to take it?"

Clerk—"I called it 'narrow cloth' instead of 'broadcloth.'"

Lawyer—"Now, if you want my honest opinion..."

Client—"No, no, I want your professional advice."

MONEY

By doing good with his money, a man as it were, stamps the image of God upon it and makes it part of heaven.—T. J. Rutledge.

A full blooded Pima Indian in Arizona recently needed some cash so he approached the banker at Casa Grande about a loan.

"How much money do you need?" asked the banker. "Me want $200," replied the Indian. "For how long?"

"Maybe two weeks; maybe two months."

"And what security have you?" "Me got two hundred horses."

This seemed sufficient, so the loan was made. Shortly afterward the Indian came into the bank with $2,200 cash, paid his loan, with interest, and started to depart.

"Wait just a minute," cried the banker. "Why not let us take care of that money for you?"

Recalling various bank failures of recent date, the Indian paused, looked the banker straight in the eyes, and solemnly asked, "You got any horses?"

"What are you doing to help end the depression?" "Well, I get my prescriptions from the doctor because he has to live, and I buy my medicine from the druggist because he has to live; then I take it home and pour it down the sink because I have to live."

"May I speak to the manager?" "Why certainly, he is always glad to see pretty girls like you."

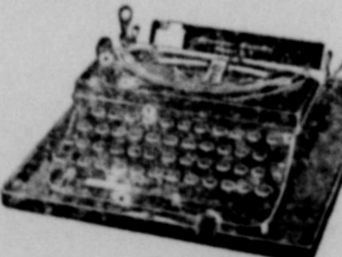

"Is that so? Then you may tell him his wife wishes to see him."

"What is your favorite book?" "It has always been my bank book—but even that is lacking in interest now."

Mrs. Raymond Glass and Miss Corrie Lee Newman were in Amarillo Monday.

BRIEFS

By A P ANGELLO

Mr. Ghandi is on a new three weeks fast. His purpose this time is to elevate the millions of "untouchables" of India, who, to the higher classes, are lower than animals. His motive is above reproach, and the world waits in reverent silence to see how far God will use him in breaking down the unbearable cast system of India.

It is rumored that France will go off the gold standard. If she does, it will be for self-protection. Nevertheless, the rumor has already been of value to the status of the U. S. dollar.

Britain and the U. S. may sign a trade war armistice. The trade of the U. S. has fallen off in too great proportion in the last few years, due, no doubt, to our high tariff walls. Such an agreement would mean much to our country.

Japan marches on into China. Japan has a lovely way of expressing her peaceable nature.

Lindbergh again tells the story of the horrible tragedy of his life to the Washington (D. C.) Supreme Court. If the world could bear his sorrows as Lindbergh has his, it would be a more enjoyable place to live, even for the sorrowing.

Many world war veterans are again on their way to Washington. The whole nation loves the boys who went across or trained to go. And if the boys want to kill that respect and love, they will just continue such marches. Cox's army has been laughed at through the years and so will these marches on Washington. It is to be said to the credit of the leaders of the organization, and most of the boys, that they are not in favor and do not participate in the marches.

One of the leading farm unions has called a national farmers strike, beginning Saturday, unless certain terms are met by the government. Farmers as a whole are too sensible to be drawn into something that will stop what little bread and butter they are getting.

Texas is about to combine her 138 bureaus into JUST nineteen. This is something that ought to have been done a long time ago. Imagine the tax money that will be saved by such a move. It is to be hoped it will be saved for Mr. Taxpayer, and not be diverted into some other government or semi-governmental project.

A REAL "SALESMAN"

Mr. Merchant: If you could be put in touch with a new clerk—an alert, good-looking, well-dressed, courteous, diplomatic and highly educated clerk—one who not only would arrive promptly on the job, but would work overtime for you every night and every holiday, by traveling about the country and telling hundreds of people about the merits of your store—who would never need or expect any vacation—who would bring you in lots of business you are not now getting—would you be willing to pay him anywhere from $4 to $12 a week?

You just bet you would! You would jump at the chance to secure a salesman of this nature—in fact, you would be willing to pay him a better salary than mentioned here.

Still, this opportunity, the chance to employ just such a traveling salesman each week is offered you by your home paper, and you do not take advantage of the services of this salesman's service.

Display advertising is the salesman we have reference to.—Tucumcari (N. M.) News.

accepted. At the meeting Saturday morning the main address was given by a child psychologist of Dallas. She proved that a person is only as old as his actions, and that often people who are adults in age are really childish.

Every entry in the clothing contests participated in the style show and after the awarding of prizes the contestants' lines to the rally rather reluctantly bade Mineral Wells farewell, with hope that they might some time return to the city of health giving waters.

PROHIBITION ORATORICAL HELD CONTEST TUESDAY

The prohibition oratorical contest was held in the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening. Elizabeth Kennedy was chairman for the evening. Judges from Shamrock were used. The papers were well written and showed that some individual effort had been made. Boys and girls are to be congratulated upon such work.

The beautiful cup presented the winner was purchased by the business men of the town.

Titles of the orations were: "Alcohol, the Enemy of the Human Race," Juanita Brooks; "Facts and Phases of the Prohibition Question," Charles Ashby; "The Evil Effects of Alcohol," Mary Emma Back; "Why Have Prohibition?" Brady McCoy.

COMMENCEMENT SERMON

The commencement sermon for the graduating class will be preached at the high school auditorium on Sunday evening, May 14, at 8 o'clock. The public is urged to be present for this sermon, which will be preached by Rev. Erwin.

RECEPTION HONORS HEAD GRADUATES

On Wednesday evening, May 3, a delightful reception was held in the Head church, honoring the Head graduates of the McLean high school. The entire program, decorations and service, was planned around the idea of "Ship of Life." Decorations were very attractive, and the honorees sat in the prominent place in front of the audience, on the "Ship of State."

REVELL PARTY FOR SUPT. BOSWELL AND FAMILY

An informal reception honoring Supt. C. Boswell and family, was given by a large crowd of friends on Monday evening. Stunts and games were enjoyed until late. Delicious refreshments of cookies and punch were served. Farewell speeches were made by Miss Frances Noel from the culty, and Mrs. O. E. Lochridge on patrons. Responses were made by Mr. and Mrs. Boswell.

HOME ECONOMICS REPORT

Juanita Wade and Bobbie Lynch, winners of the second and third year class style show, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Vannoy, attended the Home-making Education Rally at Mineral Wells the latter part of last week. The Baker Hotel as rally headquarters, extended every courtesy with its power to make the trip a profitable one as well as an enjoyable one. Thursday morning the program started with the state meeting of home economics clubs, at which representatives from each district in Texas gave a report of the year's activities. A resume of the national meeting of home economics clubs at Atlanta, Ga., was read, and plans for the meeting in Milwaukee, Wis., in June were discussed. An interesting address on "Literature in the Home" was given by the teacher of English in Mineral Wells high school. She stressed the reading of worth while books and magazines, and stated that our lives are molded to a large extent after the reading with which we come in contact. In the afternoon the people of Mineral Wells took the visitors on a sight-seeing drive to several points of scenic beauty which included Lake Mineral Wells, the mountains surrounding the city, scout camps, and the newer residential district. At 5:30 the state and district supervisors of home economics gave a tea in the governor's suite which was beautifully furnished and decorated with roses and hydrangeas. That night the contestants attended a good time play party at which numerous stunts were performed. The girls were indeed elated that several hundred boys from the Peacock Military Academy of Dallas happened to be in camp near Mineral Wells during the rally, for they were also invited to everything of a social nature. Needless to say, both the boys and girls tried to keep from being the goat, but some did not succeed. Friday was devoted almost entirely to contests and teachers' meetings, and that night the annual banquet was staged. After a very delicious meal, an invitation to meet the next year was extended and

SEVENTH GRADE ACTIVITIES

To our room mothers, Mrs. Wheeler Foster, Mrs. S. W. Rice and Mrs. Frank Wilson, we wish to give thanks for the many good times we have had this year. The social activities of our class include two picnics and two parties, each of which has been held in collaboration with the eighth grade. The school year of 1932-33 will come to a close for this class when 30 members will receive seventh grade diplomas at 10 o'clock Thursday, May 18.

CAPS AND GOWNS ARRIVE

The caps and gowns that are to be used in the senior activities during their last hours in McLean high school, were taken from the express office Monday morning. The caps and gowns are of superior quality to those of preceding years. Everyone is cordially invited to attend the graduation activities. Come and be proud of your senior class.

ANNUAL SENIOR RECEPTION

Senior activities were begun when daintily dressed ladies and handsomely attired gentlemen greeted faculty, parents and friends at the senior reception which was held in the high school auditorium on May 10, at 4:30 p. m. The program will be found on the front page of this issue. Delicious and attractive refreshment plates of cookies and punch were served.

TREASURE HUNT

A treasure hunt for the junior class was given last Tuesday night, May 2. The hostess was Alice Hardin. After the treasure hunt, sandwiches and candy were served to a large group of jubilant hunters. Games were played on the school campus until a late hour.

SOPHOMORES

We sophomores feel that we have had a very successful year in every respect. We have furnished our share of entrants in all school activities, and are proud of the way they have represented our school and town. We have had three very enjoyable parties and are planning a picnic for May 18. Our school work has not been perfect, we know, yet most of us expect to pass the final examinations and are looking forward to our junior year which we expect to make even more profitable than this one has been.

Friday (tomorrow) the entire elementary school: children, teachers, and parents, are to have an all-day picnic. Room mothers met with the teachers Tuesday afternoon and perfected plans for a day featuring games, contests and good "eats."

HEALTH REPORT

Three of the grade school children had their tonsils removed last week end. They are doing well. Plans are being made to have eye corrections for several of the children in the near future.

The Red Cross nurse made health inspection of children in grade school two years ago in first nursing service, and the nurse this year made inspection again of these children. It has been gratifying to note the number of corrections and resulting improvement in health.

CROSSING THE BLUE STILL WATERS

By Lorraine Hodges
It is night in this picture. But it is not so dark because the moon is shining very bright. We see, too, a little row boat. It has a man in it. It is not very far from shore. The little boat is skimming across the still blue waters. We can see on the shore, an old mill. By it is a large board fence. There are many trees on the shore. A lot of brush seems to be growing there, too. I think this is a very pretty picture.

THE OLD MILL

By Jack Young
One day John had worked hard in the mill and that night he thought he would take a ride in his boat. It was a very pretty night. The moon shown out over the water and his little boat skimmed over the water. It was in the summer time and the trees were green and the insects hummed in the trees. He could hear the frogs croak and the crickets sing.

JUST FOR FUN

"Mamma, why does the landlord object to children?"
 Mother—"I'm sure I don't know. Go and see what baby is crying about, and tell Johnny to stop throwing things at people from the window, and make George and Nellie stop fighting in the hall, and tell Larry if he doesn't stop blowing that tin trumpet I'll take it away from him."

Wife—"Isn't my spring hat just too lovely for anything?"
 Husband—"Yes—but how much did it cost?"
 Wife—"Oh, you know I never think of the cost so long as I please you."
 Willie—"Paw, what is discretion?"
 Paw—"It's something, son, that comes to a man after he's too old for it to do him any good."

A few days ago a man was looking through a nursery. He inquired about a certain tree. The nurseryman told him it was a fig tree. The man said, "Gosh, I've heard of a fig tree all my life, but I thought the leaf was much larger."

"Oh, Mr. Mark, please buy a ticket for our entertainment. It's for a very worthy cause."
 "What is the cause?" asked E. Z.
 The lady replied: "It's to pay the expenses of the entertainment we held last week."

Purchaser—"You gyped me on that auto. You told me that in three months time I wouldn't part with it for three times the price."
 Dealer—"Well, that's true. It's been three months, and you haven't parted with it, have you?"

"What was young Speedmore arrested for?"
 "His father let him drive the auto for an hour."
 "Well?"
 "He tried to do an hour's riding in 15 minutes."

Patient—"Doctor Hurt, I understand you are a wonderful doctor. I want you to examine me. I don't know what's the matter with me. I am constantly thinking about myself."
 Doctor—"Oh, you must stop worrying over trifles."

Daughter—"A certain young man phones me that he has sent me some flowers and wants to call."
 Mother—"Don't speak of any man as 'certain' they're none of 'em certain till you've actually got 'em."

Nell—"I stopped in at that bargain sale this afternoon."
 Bell—"Did you see anything that looked especially cheap?"
 Nell—"Yes, several men waiting around for their wives."

Miss (to street car motorman)—"Please, Mr. Motorman, will I get a shock if I step on the track?"
 Motorman—"No, lady; not unless you put your other foot on the trolley wire."

Father—"Has that young man you're engaged to got any money?"
 Daughter—"Certainly. He's just given me a costly diamond ring."
 Father—"Yes, but has he any money left?"

Rhodes—"Poor Bassler; he has just joined the 'silent majority'."
 Rhoads—"What do you mean? He hasn't died, has he?"
 Rhoads—"No, but he's just got married."

"The fool and his money are soon parted," remarked the Old Fogey.
 "Yes, but the mystery to me is, how they ever managed to get together in the first place," commented the Cynic.

She—"And when we're married, darling, we'll have a nice little house right near mother, so she can drop in any time."
 He—"You bet. We'll get one right by the river."

"Hey, Bill!"
 "What is it?" asked the garage man.
 "The doctor's out here with a tire that needs fixing."
 "Diagnose the case as flatulency of the perimeter and charge him $5.00."

Bill Fall was describing a fish he had caught. He stretched his arms to full length and said: "It was that long, boys. I never saw such a fish."
 "No, I don't believe you ever did," commented Bill.

"Bingo brags that he always carries with him between $95 and $100."
 "Yes; what he means is $5—that's between $95 and $100, isn't it?"

"You say this is an educational film! But it features a vamp of the worst order."
 "Yes; we are trying to make the world safe for married men."

DOWN FOR A LONG COUNT

For an hour she had to listen to the conversation of a fatuous admirer.
 "I was hit by an automobile last week and knocked senseless," he remarked, during a lull.
 "When do you expect to get better?" she inquired quickly.

Doctor—"How much sleep do you get?"
 Patient—"Three or four hours a day."
 Doctor—"That is not sufficient. How can you manage on that?"
 Patient—"Oh, I sleep eight or ten hours every night."

Goofus—"Well, I beat Borrowley out of 50c."
 Rufus—"How did you manage to do that?"
 Goofus—"He asked me for a dollar and I only gave him a half dollar."

Doctor—"Well, my good woman, why didn't you send for me sooner?"
 Patient's Wife—"Well, sir, we thought we'd wait a while and give him a chance to get over it."

"How far have you and your wife got in your plan to purchase a new auto?"
 "We've got to the point where we don't speak."

Justice—"Did you say that the culprits used high words?"
 Witness—"Well, their voices were pitched high—but the words they used were extremely low."

Usher (to cold, dignified lady)—"Are you a friend of the groom?"
 The Lady—"Indeed, no! I am the bride's mother!"

"What is heredity?"
 "Something a man firmly believes in until his son begins to act like a fool."

Mrs.—"Did you see those men staring at that flapper as she got in that car?"
 Mr.—"What men?"

Phillos—"How do you find yourself these mornings?"
 Billy—"Oh, I just throw back my cover, and there I am."

Policeman—"How did the accident happen?"
 Driver—"My wife fell asleep in the back seat."

Bernice—"Just think! Lloyd tried to put his arm around me four times last night!"
 Helen—"My gawd, what an arm!"

Crooner—"How some of those old songs do haunt me, Reginald!"
 Reginald—"Well, they ought to—you've murdered them, haven't you?"

"Why do you always call your wife 'Honey,' Mr. Peck?"
 "Well, honey has always disagreed with me."

"Is your daughter happily married, Saphira?"
 "Yassum; she's got a husband dat's skeered to death of her."

"Your daughter tells me that your wife is having her voice cultivated."
 "Yes. Did she tell you the rest of us were growing wild?"

Goofus—"If you stood in my shoes, what would you do?"
 Rufus—"I'd give them a shine, to begin with."

Son—"Look, Pop, I won the loving cup."
 Pop—"So that's what you think I sent you to college for!"

He—"I'm groping for words."
 She—"Well, you don't expect to find them around my neck, do you?"

Doctor (to patient)—"Well, do you have any fever this morning?"
 Patient—"No, the nurse took it."

Marcellin—"Handsome men are always concealed."
 Bill—"Not always. I'm not."

Teacher (teaching alphabet)—"What comes after O?"
 Chorus—"Yeah!"

SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST

A traveling salesman blew into town recently with a scheme for putting on a subscription contest for the Leader, which was "guaranteed to bring in the ready cash." He gave himself one of the best of reputations and was by no means modest in his claims as to what he had done in the past. He wanted to know if he had ever held a subscription contest and was informed that we never had been guilty and never expected to do so.

One of the arguments used was that subscription contests have acquired a bad reputation on account of their mismanagement. He stated that it would be as unfair to judge all contests on account of the failure of one of them as it would be to say, as some do, that all preachers' boys are bad because one of them happened to turn out bad. We informed him that there was this great difference: that we had seen preachers' boys that were not bad, but that we have yet to hear of the first subscription contest that was not unsatisfactory.

Usually some smooth agent comes in and persuades the needy newspaper man to advance enough money to purchase a car which is to be given away in the contest. He then gets several ladies to work soliciting subscriptions for the paper with the hope of winning the car. They make regular nuisances of themselves and cause their friends to put up money which they cannot afford to spend and which they do not wish to give up, because they do not like to refuse these ladies. This creates an unfriendly feeling toward the paper and dissatisfaction always results. The newspaper loses money and worse than that, lose friends and the good will of the people of the community. All the ladies who enter the contest, except the winner, are disappointed and there is usually a feeling that the contest has not been conducted fairly.

The only person who gets anything from the whole deal is the salesman who put it on. In addition to the money he makes, he also gets a lot of cussing, but he has already gone before that happens, and the newspaper has to take his part of it.

The Leader decided long ago that if we cannot put out a paper that will have enough appeal to the people to cause them to take it without resorting to these questionable means to do without their subscriptions and let the paper die a natural death as it would deserve to die. But we are thankful that it has not been necessary for us to resort to such means for securing subscribers. The subscription list of the Leader is all that could be asked. We are duly thankful for this patronage and will endeavor to give our readers a paper that will at all times be interesting and worth the money it costs.—Lovington (N. M.) Leader.

DISPUTING EMERSON

A long time ago someone said that if a man makes a better mousetrap than anyone else the world will beat a path to his door. This may have been true then, but it is not true today. The world is traveling too fast to ever find a crooked pathway to someone's door. The difference between today and the day that this was written is that instead of the world beating the path, the producer must beat the path from his door to the world. The generally accepted means for this path beating business today is advertising.—Beaver City (Wash.) Times-Tribune.

The first known advertisement is a sheet of papyrus preserved in the British Museum dated about 3000 B. C., which offers a reward for a runaway slave.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benson of Shamrock visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Greer, Monday night.
