Tampke's Boys Win in Clarendon Contest Saturday

Team Winners Poultry Trophy Clarendon Show

McLean Team Leads Field over Others

The McLean boys added another trophy to their long list of awards by winning the trophy in judging at the Clarendon poultry show, where some 20 students from the Panhandle schools competed, last Saturday.

McLean was first in the contest leading Claude by some 50 points, Panhandle placing third.

McLean also had first and second high scores, Wilburn Lynch and Arthur Lee Howard making 420 and 405 respectively, out of a possible 450 points. David Flowers made a score of 338 points.

On examination, Wilburn Lynch made his second perfect score of 150 points, in as many contests this year. He scored perfect in the Tri-state fair contest last September.

Marvin Mathis, Charles Finley and Cecil Jones scored much higher than the other subs.

Dr. A. A. Tampke acted as official judge of the show, with Geo. P. Grout of Panhandle assisting. He reported that although the show was composed of only 200 birds, there was by no means anything lacking in quality. He also stated that he had never judged as large and fine a display of R. I. reds as were in this show.

Dr. Tampke has been employed to act as official judge for the Chillicothe poultry show on January 20, 21, which is one of the largest shows in this region. Last year this show had or exhibit 750 birds.

CEMETERY TO BE IMPROVED

At a called meeting of the McLean members of the county relief board Monday afternoon, it was decided to begin work next week on the cemetery, following which it is planned to pave the street in front of the high school building with caliche, with the city furnishing a supervisor for each project.

This work will be paid for by Federal relief funds allotted to Gray county, and those needing work are asked to register at C. O. Greene's office by Friday night, as a report will be made of all plans at the meeting of the county board in Pampa Saturday morning.

A motion carried for Chairmen Reuben R. R. Cook, Evan L. Sitter and T. A. Landers to select a man to assist in the registration. Others present were G. C. Boswell, Jesse J. Cobb and C. O. Greene.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Murrell of Guver visited the former's sister, Mrs. G. C. Boswell, the first of the week.

GLADYS SCHOENER is one of the many beauties in Earl's Vanities, ninth edition, coming to Amarillo for two performances Friday, January 21.

These demonstrations were held in 16 different communities with an attendance of over 500 people.

The report shows that 2100 acres of land were terraced under the supervision of the county agent during the year. Most of this land is located in the territory north and west of McLean.

Other work of the county agent included rodent extermination, insect control, and demonstrations in poultry, beef cattle, dairying and swine.

The report showed a cooperation of the chambers of commerce of McLean and Pampa, as well as the civic clubs of both towns. A cooperation was also shown between the teachers over the county.

The agent also acted in official capacity in various shows and community activities in the interest of agriculture.

The county agent's statistical report shows that Mr. Thomas enrolled 75 boys and five girls during the year; 714 farm visits were made to 305; 514 office calls in relation to extension work, and 255 telephone calls; 1900 bulletins were distributed in response to requests during the year; 231½ days were spent in the field and 71½ days in the office.

ALL PANHANDLE INTERESTED IN VANITIES SHOW

Amarillo, Jan. 11.—The whole Panhandle is going to help Amarillo open the 1933 theatrical season when the ninth edition of Earl Carroll's Vanities comes to the Municipal Auditorium for two performances on Saturday, January 21.

Although the show date is still considerably more than a week away, orders for tickets are pouring in, many of them from over the Panhandle.

With a company of 100 members traveling by a special train of ten cars, the Vanities is expected to be the most elaborate musical revue ever brought to Amarillo. It will be a guaranteed show, says Wilbur C. Hawk, who booked the Vanities for the benefit of the Tri-state Fair. The same stars that appeared in the show on Broadway last season will perform on the auditorium stage, and the production will not be curtailed in any particular. There will be 55 separate scenes, with a force of 30 stage hands necessary to keep the scenery moving.

In his principal comedians, Mr. Carroll has the material for royal good humor and he makes excellent use of Al Trahan, who has just returned to this country from a tour of the European capitals and his command performance for King George in London. He has also staged Mitchell and Durant in various comedy sketches which give full scope to the hilarious and ridiculous acrobatic comedians. The featured dancer is Lucille Page. The principal scenic features are "The Prehistoric Curtain" over three hundred feet in length and a magnificent staging of Ravel's Bolero.

The song hits include "Have a Heart" and "It's Great to Be in Love," which were popular on Broadway last season, and "My Darling," "Masquerade" and "I Guess I'll Have to Change My Plans," now current and popular in New York.

All kinds of dancing from the super buck and wing to the most exquisite modern ballet alternate with the fast and picturesque ensemble dances.

The entire production was staged by and is under the personal direction of Earl Carroll.

Mail orders for tickets may be addressed to Mr. Hawk, care of the News-Globe. A stamped envelope for return of the tickets should be enclosed with the remittance. Matinee prices are only 83c, $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20. Night prices are $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, $2.75 and $3.30. All these prices include tax.

Committee Makes Trip to Stamford

Funds Appropriated on County-Wide Basis

McLean will share in the appropriation for January and February made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan for Gray county.

A committee from McLean and Pampa had a conference with D. A. Baudene, manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, at Stamford the first of the week, when it was learned that Gray county received the maximum allowed for this work.

The money will be spent entirely for labor, and only those who are in dire need will be considered in awarding work. The work will be under the direction of C. O. Greene, director of the McLean community chest, and the McLean chest directors will meet with the county board in planning this work.

McLean did not ask for any help during the fall months, but under a new ruling of the R. F. C., all funds are now allotted to counties as units, in place of towns and communities.

Pampa and Lefors have been using the funds for the past few months and have a set-up already functioning. McLean's plans will be along the same lines, and those needing help are asked to register at Mr. Greene's office, where they claims will be investigated.

Most towns dispensing funds are having street work done, cleaning alleys, parks, cemeteries, vacant lots, etc., and it is expected that similar work will be done here.

None of the money is used for administration in Texas, all committees serving free of charge.

$11,450 is the allotment for January and February for this county, another allotment to be made for the spring months.

Those making the trip to Stamford were: Geo. W. Briggs, secretary of the Pampa chamber of commerce; C. H. Walker, Pampa director of the West Texas chamber of commerce; C. O. Greene, McLean community chest director; and T. A. Landers, McLean director W. T. C. of C.

RED CROSS RELIEF

By C. O. Greene, Chairman
There seems to be a misunderstanding on the part of some of our citizens regarding the distribution of American Red Cross flour and clothing.

Congress authorized the transfer of cotton and wheat to the American Red Cross for use in providing flour and clothing for the needy and distressed people; that is, for those people under the care of public or private relief organizations. It is not the purpose of the act that flour and clothing is to be given to families that have sufficient provisions to carry them through the winter, but to those families that are in destitute circumstances. Though we know that mistakes will be made in some instances, it is our desire that the intent of the Act of Congress and the will of the American Red Cross be carried out to the fullest possible extent. It is hoped that application will be made only by those that are in actual need and distress, so that our supply may reach those for whom it is intended.

P. T. A. PROGRAM TODAY

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold their regular semi-monthly program this afternoon at the high school, with Prof. Frank P. Wilson as the principal speaker on "The Future of Education."

A style show sponsored by the first year clothing class will be given at 7:30 p. m.

A Clarendon firm announces cancellation of all debts owed them on January first and a cash policy from now on. Many credit firms could have done this long ago and have made money.

McLean is fortunate in her school faculty. Perfect cooperation is had from each teacher during these times, that speaks well for the future. Our teachers can be appreciated by every patron.

Wonder how the wets who cry "prohibition does not prohibit" can believe that any traffic that cannot be prohibited can be regulated. Regulation will make the situation that much easier for the bootlegger and drunkard.

McLean people should be vitally interested in keeping the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, and should protest any move to curtail its activities. A letter to our representative and senator at Austin, with whom most of us are personally acquainted, might serve to assist right at this time, and would cost little effort on anyone's part.

People of Amarillo are to be congratulated on insisting that the city commission retain the services of the city forester. That there is need of reforestation in all lines of city government is not denied by anyone, but the loss of such an official at this time when the parks in Amarillo are among the town's best assets, should not be thought of.

Fortunately for McLean, the dead trees in the city park will be replaced this spring, but we will have the same number of dead trees this time next year, unless they are watered and cared for. There is no way to make a tree grow unless it is kept watered and free from weeds. The park can be made a beauty spot with very little effort, if expended at the right time and it is to be hoped that similar care can be given the new trees this year.

There is plenty of work that needs doing around McLean, and it should not be difficult to keep men employed under the R. F. C. plan. However, it is not expected that any one man will be given more work than just enough to supplement his earnings elsewhere. There is not enough money to make a regular employment bureau, and such is not the plan of the relief fund. Only those in dire need, and then only enough for bare necessities of life, will be considered.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison of Amarillo visited in the J. A. Meador home Tuesday. Mrs. Harrison will be remembered as Mrs. W. E. Clement.

Mrs. Bessie Blake of Amarillo visited Miss Ruby Cook the first of the week.

Next Sunday's Lesson

JESUS AT WORK

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Lesson text, Mark 1:21-35. Golden text, John 5:17.
v. 21. Jesus in the previous verses called Peter, Andrew, James and John. They left their occupation immediately and followed Jesus. They left their fishing for all time as an occupation, that day. Whether they realized this fully or not, when they so quickly dropped their work, we do not know. If not, before long they realized it.

Capernaum was the largest city of Galilee. Highways passed through it to all of the larger cities of the civilized world. It was the center of the life of all Galilee. From this city Jesus centered most of His ministry. Today the city does not exist. The ruins of Tell-Hum, 2 1/2 miles west of the mouth of the Jordan river, is supposed to be the remains of old Capernaum. The ruin of a once magnificent synagogue, 75x65 feet, is supposed to be the place Jesus led His first disciples on this Friday evening.

v. 22. Jesus took the disciples to the synagogue and there taught. This necessarily must have been on the Jewish Sabbath day which begins at 6 p. m. Friday and ends at 6 p. m. Saturday. His words were filled with commanding authority. The Scribes usually expounded the law. Originally a scribe was a common copier of documents. During the period of captivity those of the office rose to the position of the expounders of the law. Ezra was a scribe and a fine servant of God. But by the time of Christ the scribes had so degenerated that they carried no power with God. They had reduced His law to a mere matter of multiplied formalities in the performance of which there was neither need nor desire for the presence of the Spirit of God. Certainly in His very personality Jesus stood out against such insipid weakness.

The great need today is for men and women to recognize the authority of Jesus anew. Far too great a part of the Christian world has forgotten the authoritative commands of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount. Desire, greediness and varied worldliness has taken its place in our thinking and affections. Jesus' word was no more keenly authoritative in days gone than the "today" for which modern men and women are responsible.

v. 23-28. In the teaching, the note of authority was quickly and easily sensed. Satan would not permit such disturbance of Jewish religious complacency without a test. The authority in teaching alone could not conquer; it had to be also in power to act and to deliver in the hour of need. Satan had present one possessed with a demon. Such an one was beyond medical or psychopathic treatment. The condition was a spiritual one. Satan interrupted Jesus through the man. The people knew Jesus as the "Nazarene," but Satan announced Him as the "Holy One of God." Jesus not only rebuked the demon within the man, but commanded him to depart out of the man. With a struggle and a cry the demon obeyed the command of Jesus. Thus Jesus' fame spread abroad immediately. Not only had He spoken with authority, but He had acted with equally as great authority.

Satan recognizes God, and Jesus the Son of God the Savior of the world. He not only never accepts Christ as his savior, but indeed cannot, for there has been no redemptive plan for Satan and his fallen angels. Yet Satan eventually obeys God. Man has Christ as his savior if he will but meet the call of God to saving faith. Many have met that call and speak of Jesus as "my savior," and yet do not obey the definite commands of Jesus as well as Satan, who has no part in God's grace. May the day come when man will as clearly obey the commands of Jesus as Satan does.

v. 29-34. When Jesus left the synagogue, He went with His disciples to the home of Peter and Andrew. He was told that Peter's wife's mother was sick. Jesus healed her. The home seemed to belong to Peter (Matt. 8:14). Peter, without question was married. His wife later traveled with him at times on his missionary journeys.

By the close of the Sabbath, Jesus fame had so spread that all the city came to see, hear, and be healed by Him. The exacting regulations of the law had kept the people away before. Therefore, when the Sabbath was over hundreds came to hear Him. Jesus, filled with compassion and love, healed all the sick who pressed through the crowd to Him.

v. 35. No doubt the crowd continued to press Jesus until late. Possibly the Master, disciples, and inmates of Peter's house, remained for hours talking and hearing Jesus teach. Regardless of the short hours of sleep when the crowds early in the morning awoke the disciples, Jesus was gone. Hours before, possibly, He had silently stolen from the house to go out into a solitary place to be alone. Jesus had need of hours and hours of prayer. If Jesus, the Son of God, had such need, far greater is the need of poor mortals saved by the grace of God. If men would be filled with love, compassion and kindness. How weak we, though the adopted sons of God, are. How prayerless we are. How needy we are. Yet all of the bounty of God awaits our taking.

POT LUCK DINNER

All last week mystery prevailed at the elementary school building. Whispered conversations and note passing was the order of the day. Room mothers held meetings with pupils, always without the teacher present, until we began to wonder what it was all about.

Near eleven o'clock Friday, cars began to drive up, and numerous paper wrapped packages were carried into the building. Soon after the 12 o'clock bell, the teachers were invited to pass into the auditorium, and the secret was out. It was a pot luck dinner. And, really, that word should have been spelled with capital letters, for everything good to eat was there. The depression was forgotten, and food and fun held sway during the entire noon period.

As teachers of the elementary school, we wish to thank each one who contributed in any way to our enjoyment. And to assure you that however much we enjoyed the food, we appreciate still more the feeling which prompted it.

MY BEST FISHING TRIP

By Jack Bogan
Once I went to New Mexico on a fishing trip. We went out close to Taos, on the Cimmaron river. We did not catch many fish, but we had a good time. We camped at the foot of the V. S. hill, near the Santa Fe trail, where they had an Indian fight.

MY BEST FISHING TRIP

By Georgia Colebank
The best fishing trip I ever took was when I was on my vacation last summer. My grandmother and uncle went with us. We fished in the Calcasieu river. In this river there are fish three feet long; while we were fishing we caught one about a foot long, then we caught ten about three inches long. We had them dressed, and had six that night for supper.

THE WATERMELON FEAST

By Ralph C. Riddle
One day I went out to Bill Wilson's. We went over in the field and ate watermelons till we couldn't eat any more. Then we had a fight with the rinds.

We went hunting. We heard the dogs barking at something, then we saw one of them with something in his mouth. We thought it was a rabbit, but it was a possum. On our way home, we came to a bunch of cottonwoods. We saw a squirrel. We started to get him, but we couldn't catch him. Soon we got some apples and went home.

THE BEST PAL I EVER HAD

By Kid McCoy
The best pal I ever had is my horse. We go places together. We ride through our trees and eat watermelons together. I will eat half and give him the other half, and we will eat away. We go fishing and swimming together. We go to town in the summer and have a good time.

MY PET

By Billie D. Rice
My pet's name was Minnie Mouse. She was a white rat. She lived in a box. Minnie had a long tail and short legs. Minnie went to Oklahoma with me. She rode in a box on the floor of the car. When I got down there I went in swimming and took Minnie with me.

Coming back, we had a blowout. Minnie got scared and ran into a candy sack. She ate so much she took sick and died.

MY PET

By Farris Hess
My pet is a dog. She will follow me around and run cats in the barn. Up in the loft, the cat will get behind some feed. If the dog gets too close to the cat, it will stop the dog. The dog has learned to stay far enough away so it can't stop her. She will bark at the cats till they run, and then she'll run them again. My little sister will "sic" her on the cat. She will run it under the chicken house and grab the cat by the back of the neck. She will run the cat upon the fence.

WHY I LIKE TO SEE WILL ROGERS IN THE MOVIES

By Thelma Jo Gray
I saw Will Rogers in "As Young as You Feel." He surely was good. I guess I like him best because I have seen him in person. He is just like he is in the pictures. He holds his hands in his pockets most of the time. When he sings he dances a jig. He stands with his head down when he is talking. Sometimes he looks up out of the corner of his eye. I have seen him a number of times in pictures. He doesn't go very dressed up.

MY PET

By Wanda Estes
My cat was black and white. When he heard me coming home from school, he would run to the front door. When I came in he would jump and grab me.

One day I put him in the kitchen. The oven was open and he jumped in. Mother came in, and she didn't see him. She lit the stove. We hear him "m-e-a-o-w." When I got him out, the end of his whiskers were scorched.

Walking Down Broadway

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

Jimmy and Mac pick up Peggy and Millie on Broadway. When Millie falls into a sewer excavation they rush her to her room. There they meet Mona, who suggests a party in her room. Peggy steals off to her own room, followed by Jimmy. Discovering they are in love with each other, Peggy and Jimmy confess that they are both from small country towns. When Jimmy leaves, later that night, Mac fights his way into Peggy's room, but is sent on his way by Mona. A few days before Christmas Peggy confides to Jimmy that she is to have a baby by him. Jimmy, elated, agrees to marry her. He tells Mac the good news, and Mac informs him of his visit to Peggy's room. Millie unwittingly further disillusions him with wildly concocted tales of escapades she and Peggy have had with men. Jimmy, meeting Peggy on the street, tells her everything is off between them. When Mona hears of Jimmy's betrayal of the girl, she goes straight to his room to have it out with him. There, in a heated argument, Mac slaps her face and throws her out of the room.

CHAPTER 6

Jimmy turned suddenly as he heard his door creak quietly on its hinges. Then he jumped clear of his chair, his face red with anger. In the open doorway, daubing at her tear-filled eyes, stood Millie. "Well—what do you want?" he asked sharply. "Jimmy!" Millie faltered, advancing slowly into the room, "you gotta listen to me! I lied about Peggy! I only said it—cause—"

"I don't care why!" he snapped her off. "I'm through! Get out!"

"But Peggy loves you. It's all my fault," she cried frenziedly. "I don't care what you do to me—hit me—kill me—but don't throw her down—now that she's in trouble!"

"Well—look who's here!" exclaimed Mac, stepping into the room.

"Mr. Mac—please—help me," cried Millie, turning frantically to him. "Don't let him break off with Peggy! It ain't true what I said about her! It ain't!"

"No!" sneered Mac. "Course not!"

porting the accident, caught her attention. She bought the paper and her fact lost its last tinge of color as she read of the injuries sustained by Jimmy and Millie. She never finished the article, nor did she catch her train. Dashing wildly from the station she hailed a cab and leaping into it, shouted to the driver: "Revere! Hospital!"

Jimmy, with his head, arms and legs heavily bandaged, had just been discharged when Peggy rushed into the hospital.

"Jimmy!" she cried in a frenzy at the sight of him. Jimmy could not believe his eyes. His lips quivered as he tried to speak. "Where were you?" he managed to gasp. "I thought—"

"I was at Grand Central," answered Peggy hysterically, "going home—when I saw it in the paper—are you hurt as bad as the paper said?" she broke off tearfully.

"Naw! Just a little," he mumbled, still surprised.

"The papers said you were hurt while looking for me."

"How could they know?" questioned Jimmy, trying to hide his embarrassment.

"That's what I thought," said Peggy tonelessly, seeing that he still thought the worst of her, "just like they said I committed suicide."

At that moment a doctor approached them.

"Are you related to Millie Plummer?" he inquired gravely.

"Isn't there something we can do?" asked Jimmy, cutting off Peggy's attempt at a reply.

"It's just a matter of hours," the doctor informed them.

"Jimmy, did—you—find—the—letter—for you—and—Peg?" Millie murmured as he and Peggy were ushered into her room. And when Jimmy shook his head she went on in a low painful voice, "But—I—held—it—in—my hands—after I—turned on—the gas—"

Peggy felt as though she was going to faint. A tear started down her cheek.

"Did you try to—"

"There wasn't anything else for me to do, I made such a mess—but how did you two make up?" she broke off smiling feebly.

"We—didn't make up," said Jimmy flatly.

"No," stammered Peggy, "we—just ran into each other. I—came here to see you—"

"Don't let's talk about that," muttered Jimmy glumly.

"But—Jimmy—and Peggy," persisted Millie, talking with a great effort. "You gotta listen to me. I had it all written out, but I suppose it got burned—with my hands."

"Don't let's talk about that," muttered Jimmy glumly. (Boots Mallory and James Dunn)

"Sure!" added Jimmy spitefully. "You're all a bunch of liars!"

"The liar!" sobbed Millie. "Not Peggy. She's good and she was always true to you, Jimmy! For God's sake, believe me!"

Mac grabbed her roughly by the arm and she struggled fiercely as he shoved her toward the door.

"Jimmy! Jimmy! I lied!" she screamed. "It ain't true! Don't throw her down! She loves you!"

But Mac had slammed the door upon her.

Mac finally convinced Jimmy that there were plenty of more dames on Broadway, if he wanted to try his luck again. But they had no sooner reached the street than a terrific explosion shook them violently. Then a sheet of flame seemed to leap out through the cloud of smoke that suddenly enveloped Peggy's home.

"Oh My God!" shrieked Jimmy at the horrifying sight, and rushing his way fiercely through the gathering crowd, he ran madly into the burning building.

"Peggy! Peggy!" he cried frantically, disappearing from sight.

One hour before the explosion occurred, Peggy had packed her grip and started for home. She was seated in the Grand Central Station awaiting her train when a large scare-line in the evening paper, re-

As she held up her bandaged hands she continued in great detail, explaining how she had lied about Peggy, hoping to win Jimmy for herself and was rewarded for her sacrifices by a faint smile she saw in Jimmy's wide eyes.

"Jimmy—Peg loves you! She was true to you—always!" Millie concluded. "You gotta believe me."

Jimmy's eyes were moist and he sniffed as he turned to Peggy.

"What about Mac coming to your room that night?" he asked.

"I was going to tell you," said Peggy softly, "but you didn't let me finish. He came up and scared me something terrible—but then Mona came in and threw him out. That's all." She hung her head.

"An' that's the truth, I saw it!" said Millie, and in a sobbing voice she added, "thank God I'm not dyin' for nothin'!"

"Honey! Don't talk like that!" cried Peggy, her heart breaking. And as the tears streamed down her cheeks she whispered in a deep choked voice, "You're going to get well—and we're going to have lots of good times together." She looked sadly up at Jimmy through her wet lashes. "Won't we, Jimmy?"

Jimmy bowed his head and drew a bandaged hand across his moist eyes.

"Sure!" and then, forcing a smile at Millie, "and don't forget, this is Christmas Eve!"

"Christmas Eve," echoed Millie wistfully. "And we were goin' to have a party—and everything—and now—" he broke off, sobbing bitterly.

"Say! We're going to have it—just the same," exclaimed Jimmy. "Watch."

He rushed from the room, but in a moment he was back again, carrying a small decorated tree. He placed it in a small table beside Millie's bed and then, unable to control his tears, turned from her and glanced out of the window.

"You got your white Christmas, too," he laughed emptily, pointing to the falling snow outside. "And there's your Christmas music." He added as he strains of "Silent Night, Holy Night" came suddenly from a hand organ.

"Oh, Jimmy," whispered Millie weakly, admiring the tree and listening to the carol. Then as she turned her soft gaze to him and Peggy, she said, "I thought I wouldn't mind dyin'—but I wish I could be with you when you get married."

"Say, you'll be there, all right," laughed Peggy mournfully.

"No—I won't." She shook her head, knowingly and her eyes grew dim as she lids closed slowly over them. "But—all my life—I wanted to be a—bridesmaid. I'm just a fool—bout weddings."

And Jimmy, whose arm had unconsciously found its way around Peggy's waist, thought he detected a "eaceful and contented smile on the flying girl's face as her voice trailed weakly off—"Well, it's always summer time on—Broadway."

THE END

RECIPE FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR

By Rev. L. H. Shockley

Take twelve fine, full grown months—see that these are thoroughly free from all old memories of bitterness, jealousy and hate. Cleanse them completely from every clinging spite. Pick off all sparks of pettiness and littleness; in fact, see that these months are free from all the past. Have them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of love. Cut these months into thirty or thirty-one equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time, as many persons spoil the entire lot in this way, but prepare one day at a time, as follows:

Into each day put twelve pints of faith, eleven of patience, ten of courage, nine of work (some people omit this ingredient and so spoil the flavor of the rest), eight of hope, seven of fidelity, six of liberality, five of kindness, four of rest (leaving this out is like leaving the oil out of the salad; don't do it), three of prayer, two of meditation, and one well selected resolution (if you have no conscientious scruples).

Put about a teaspoonful of good spirit, a small sprinkle of play and a heaping cupful of good humor.

Pour into the whole, love. Cook thoroughly in a fervent heat. Garnish with a few smiles, gentleness, cheerfulness—then comes a happy new year.

Thursday night the McLean basketball girls played Pampa on the McLean court. After much hard playing our girls were victorious. The score was Pampa 17, McLean 50. This was the first conference game.

Friday night the girls played Shamrock at Shamrock. The girls battled to a losing end. The score was Shamrock 20, McLean 12. This was not a conference game.

Saturday night the girls went to Miami for their second game. The teams were very evenly matched in weight. The game was a battle throughout. After two of the main McLean players were sent off the court on account of fouls, the Miami girls had the big end of the score, which was Miami 27, McLean 23.

Miss Vera Cummings is coach for the high school team. Coach Rush is the official.

BOYS BASKETBALL

Thursday night the McLean high school Tigers played the Pampa Harvesters a conference basketball game. The Harvesters were victorious by a margin of 18 to 28. Captain Woodward of Pampa was high point man with ten points.

Friday night the Tigers went to Shamrock and played the Irishmen in a basketball game which turned out to be a battle, but again the Tigers were outscored, but not defeated. The fact that Tiger spirit can never be beaten or defeated. Cherry of Shamrock was high point man with 14 points, closely followed by Carpenter of McLean with 11 points. The Irishmen will invade McLean in the near future, and the Tigers are working hard to make the story a different one, with the Tigers on the winning end of the score.

The Tigers are working hard to win this game, and they need your help, so come to the basketball game Friday night at 7:30. There will be a girls game also, so come and back the Tigers and "Tigeresses."

HOME ECONOMICS

The V. H. E. Club had a party Friday, Jan. 6, at the home of Oleta Holloway. There were only eleven present, but they had plenty of fun. The others do not know what they missed. The refreshments were punch and cookies. This party was a "Twelfth Night" party and due to the occasion, a Christmas tree was burned and each person made a wish while it was burning.

Billy and Jerry Rat are thinking about going to Hollywood. All they lack is the moving picture camera. Their teacher took a snapshot of them over the week end and gave them the big head. They were also weighed. Billy weighed 8 oz. and Jerry 5 oz. The third year class are grieving over the loss of these pets.

Remember the style show this (Thursday) afternoon and be present.

David Flowers also made a good showing as a team member. That is the second cup that they have won this year, and if they keep working they will be hard to beat.

Marvin Mathis, Charles Finley and Cecil Jones made much higher scores than any of the other substitutes, scoring 334, 332 and 329 respectively.

Sore Throat Epidemic Is Threatened

The following article was written by Dr. C. B. Batson at the request of the local Parent-Teacher Association:

Due to the fact that there is an epidemic of sore throat disease in the communities surrounding McLean, which has resulted in several deaths, this means is being utilized to acquaint our local people about this trouble. This disease goes under the name of septic sore throat, pseudo diphtheria, or streptococcal throat infection. It attacks children of school age and pre-school age in the majority of cases, although occasionally adults contract it—ordinarily it causes no undue concern, being very mild in its course, but when present in epidemic proportions becomes a menace to public health, being very severe in its course and resulting in many deaths.

Studies of several recent epidemics in cities have revealed the source of infection to be in milk. The milk had been infected from one or more cows suffering from septic infection of the udder. Healthy children sometimes harbor the streptococci in their throats without developing the disease, but, if this infection is transferred to another child, it may become severely ill with septic throat trouble.

The tonsils are usually the primary seat of infection in an attack of this disease. The throat becomes sore and reddened the tonsils swollen, and usually there is a grayish-white membrane present. At first this membrane appears in streaks, but if not checked, it may form a solid patch and spread to the palate. The membrane is not very adhesive and can be wiped off with a soft swab. Fever, chills, sore throat, headache, pain on swallowing, and sometimes vomiting are present in the child developing this disease. The temperature rises to about 103 to 104 degrees Fahrenheit for three or four days, and in an uncomplicated case then disappears.

Complications, such as infection of the lymph glands of the neck, abscess of the middle ear, and acute Bright's disease, prolong the course of the disease. Other complications are erysipelas, acute inflammatory rheumatism and involvement of the heart. Although in a previously healthy child, the primary type is not regarded as serious disease, the epidemic form with its complications may result in a death rate of 15 to 20 per cent.

In order to prevent further spreading of the disease, precautions should be taken to prevent your child from contracting the disease. There should be plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and living room, being especially careful of overheating. Children taking exercise indoors should put on extra clothing before going outside. Plenty of wholesome nourishing food is desired, as well as attention to proper daily elimination. Chronically infected tonsils and teeth should be either removed or corrected. In addition, if your child should develop a sore throat, don't delay to consult your family physician. Be suspicious of all throat trouble in children during these epidemics, until it is proven harmless.
