Council Hears More Discussion on Cheese Factory

County Agent Hutchison of Blackwell, Okla., talked to members of the city council and interested citizens about the cheese factory proposition last Friday evening.

Mr. Hutchison said that the factory at Blackwell began with one vat in a small building about four years ago and has had to enlarge the building, moving the general office to another building. They now operate six vats and cannot properly age the product, as the output is taken as fast as it can be produced.

A community needs from 1,000 to 1,500 cows to begin the factory, and as Jersey milk is too rich for cheese making, it must be run through a cream separator, which gives excess cream for butter making, a valuable by-product. Another by-product is whey which is returned to the farmers for hog and chicken feed. While there is very little food value in whey, it is valuable as a tonic and conditioner.

The Blackwell factory maintains trucks that pick up milk for a radius of 40 miles from town.

Those present at the meeting were: Mayor Cash, Secretary Bogan, Alderman Bodine, Marshal Sparks, D. A. Davis, W. H. Floyd, R. S. Jordan, C. O. Greene, Dr. A. A. Tampke and T. A. Landers.

COMPLEX

By O. L. D. Tinner

This farm relief seems to appear rather odd to people in different occupations. The cotton farmer says there is no use to cut the wheat acreage because the short crop will take care of that and flour is high enough already. The wheat farmer says no use to cut the cotton crop as cotton goods are as high as a cat's back when he is on the top rail. The section hand says don't cut the hog crop as it works a hardship on him to buy bacon at the present price. The city man says don't curtail the butter and milk supply for they are essential to the health of his family.

And they all, with one accord, say for Pete's sake don't cut the tobacco crop for tobacco has always been too scarce and high.

Self interest seems to be the dominant factor in the perspective of each and every man.

It seems that the city worker without a job has the best reason against acreage limitations. He says if the farmer curtails his crops he will be unable to get employment, as the farmer will be able to do all his work and will add to the unemployment situation; the railroads will do less hauling, and the mills and cotton factories less business, and the odd job worker would be between a rock and a hard place with all the essentials higher and less money to buy with.

The speculator who has good stocks of cotton, wheat and tobacco will be the first man to use the separator and will get the cream and the producers will have plenty of skim milk. The speculators and holders of the $2,300,000,000 worth of bonds seem to hold the high trump and we can't blame them for taking all the high counters.

We may be able to forget it all after August 26 and let it all come out in the wash, and we will all get government jobs overseeing this processing business. If Uncle Sam intends to get out of this game with any money, he had better keep his hand on his pocketbook.

THIEF JAILED TUESDAY

Home Economics Wins Additional School Credit

Word has just been received from the state department of education stating that the work submitted from the home economics department of the McLean high school has been given a credit with the grade of A, making a total of 35 affiliated credits enjoyed by the school.

The work was under the direction of Miss Joelle Vannoy, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. John B. Vannoy, who graduated from Texas Tech at Lubbock, and is spending the summer at Ames (Iowa) University, doing post graduate work.

A feature of last year's work submitted to the state was the general excellence of the papers, one of which was retained for permanent records.

Following is the report in full: Comments on material submitted for accrediting H. E. 3A:

(a) A definite statement as to the exact units taught and the amount of time devoted to each unit was submitted.

(b) A statement explaining variations made from the course of study was submitted.

(c) Test questions and papers: (1) All required test questions and papers were submitted. They were well organized.

(2) Test questions were of two types—problem and objective. These questions were unusually good. The problems were based on true life situations and were thought stimulating.

(d) Home project records: (1) The exact number was submitted.

(2) The projects were well chosen and each one was from a different unit. The one on Christmas toys was especially good.

A grade of A minus has been given this material. Credit is granted in H. E. 3A.

Examined by Sibyl Thomas.

McLean-Pampa Road Discussed by Judge Cary

Judge C. E. Cary of Pampa met the farmers and others gathered at the cotton acreage retirement meeting at the high school Tuesday and spoke on the paving of the McLean-Pampa highway.

Judge Cary stated that he had had a conversation with Judge Ely of the state highway commission and asked that be road be designated as a state highway with the state furnishing the funds for paving.

Judge Ely said that the highway commission plans to connect all gaps in the present highways before making new roads. Judge Cary insisted that this road be paved before highway 88 in Gray county, which, if done, would in no way interfere with the paving of 88; it would just give us that much more paving without expense to the county.

Judge Cary stressed the fact that 63c of every tax dollar in Gray county goes to pay bonded indebtedness and that the state could save the county some $400,000 by paving the McLean-Pampa road.

The judge also stated that this particular road should have been paved before any other road in the county, from the standpoint of benefit to Gray county citizens.

BRIEFS

By A P ANGELLO

Presto! And wheat is up. That is what we have been crying for for the last two years. But most of us have now begun asking ourselves where flour prices will go now.

Everything is going up with wheat. But there has been nothing said about wages going up yet. Money and high prices mean nothing if living commodities soar so high that they cannot be bought.

The government is practically fixing all sorts of prices. Why not fix the price of wages so a laboring man can buy living commodities?

The farmers are about to plow up part of their cotton crop. That seems like a funny way to make a crop, but it would be the surest crop they have made in many a year. And think of the cultivating, hoeing, chopping and gathering they will miss. There would be more shade used up, and more hoe handles leaned upon than in any year ever known.

The only difficulty with paying the farmer for plowing up his crop is there are some of us who will want to go into the farming business since it has become such a light occupation. Plant, plow up, get paid, spend our money and wait until next spring.

France has great amounts of gold, and is out with the rest of the world because the other nations will not go back on the gold standard. Yet we haven't caught France paying any of her honest debts to the U. S. with her gold yet.

The repeal movement is fast gaining headway. Whether just wet states have voted or whether they are just naturally all wet, remains to be seen. It will be a surprise to some when the first state votes to uphold the Constitution of the U. S. It seems queer to think about any state failing to vote to uphold the Constitution.

Texas has her delegates nominated to the convention this fall. Before long the world will know what Texans think. The thought of Texans may be a surprise to the world.

BAPTIST D. V. B. S. PROGRAM

The daily vacation Bible school in progress at the First Baptist Church will hold a public program at its closing exercises Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Work done by the students will be on display and the general public is invited to attend.

Mrs. W. E. James of Alanreed was in McLean Monday.

Cotton Acreage Retirement Plans Meeting Is Held

A meeting of representatives of several nearby communities was held at the city secretary's office Monday afternoon, in charge of County Agent Ralph R. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas explained the retirement plan in detail, answering all questions propounded by several of the 34 present, and appointing committees for the various communities.

The plan is to retire 10 million acres of cotton, 4 1/2 million of which is in Texas and 3,882 in Gray county. Figuring on the average yield for Gray county for the past five years, 172 pounds of lint per acre at $11 per acre under one plan would mean better than $40,000 distributed in the McLean territory, to say nothing of the more than that amount to be distributed in this trade territory in neighboring communities.

J. E. Lynch, E. L. Sitter and J. S. Howard were appointed committees for McLean, and contracts may be secured from them, or at the American National Bank, The News Office, Doolen Hardware Co., Puckett's Grocery, City Secretary, Sitter Furniture Co., Erwin Drug Co., or most any merchant will see that a farmer is served if application is made.

It is expected that all applications may be in the hands of the county agent by the end of this week and the secretary of agriculture has until July 31 to accept for the government. However, just as soon as the farmer signs he must abide by the secretary's decision.

An inspector will pass on the condition of the crop and other items in the contract, and no cotton is to be plowed under until the inspection is made and word received from the secretary.

Farmers may take the straight cash plan, or may have a smaller sum in cash and an option on as many bales of cotton as the land may produce from the government at 6c per pound, the farmer to receive the difference in the 6c and the price received when sold.

Crops that are used on the farm may be planted on the land plowed up and from 25 to 40% of the cotton must be plowed up.

Biggers Lions Club Luncheon Speaker Tuesday

Prof. W. D. Biggers spoke at the Lions Club luncheon Tuesday noon, using as a subject "My Town," full text of which appears in another column.

Prof. Biggers prefaced his speech by saying that the luncheon club has a place in civic affairs that cannot be filled by any other activity. He praised the luncheon clubs for their work during the depression, saying that much praise is due them for overcoming the evil effects of the depression.

The speaker paid a tribute to the good fellowship prevalent in the local club and gave some early history of the town, having come to this section before the town was organized.

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas spoke, inviting the members to attend the farmers cotton retirement program to be held at the high school Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting closed the fiscal year for the club, being the fifth consecutive year for Lions activities in McLean.

New officers will be installed at the meeting to be held next Tuesday.

"PHLURIA"

By P. BOSH

Something new under the sun. The government paying the farmer to plow up some of his cotton. An emergency policy. 'Tis not ours to reason why, but ours to do or die.

The plan may not be perfect, but it is the only piece of legislation that really gives the cotton farmers what they have been crying for so long—help from the government. It will soon be seen how he is going to respond.

The farmers have been dubbed by one of our prominent writers as the dumbest people on earth and the most inefficient. He says that the sooner their mortgages are foreclosed and their land falls into the hands of the great companies and land owners, and farming becomes industrialized, the better off they will be and the better off the nation will be. What an indictment!

This may be true. But how does it strike the farmer? If he fails to take advantage of this gravy train, this writer's indictment will be approved by many others.

The rise in price of the farmer's product will be the first sign of returning prosperity under our present system of government, economics, and systems of distribution of wealth and goods. However, the farmer who raises only a money crop will not benefit much by it. The farmer who benefits the most will be the one who raises his own living as far as possible.

Let's hurry up and get this cotton plan through so we can plant the plowed up acreage to roughness for these 298 signed up dairy cows. Then they can eat the roughness that makes the milk, that makes the cheese, that feeds the man that plowed up the cotton. But since they plowed up the cotton there will not be enough cake to feed the cows. But it may be we can find protein somewhere else.

"Please pass the cheese."

Cotton farmers have a chance not only to make some money for themselves, but to help the whole world get out of the present depression, by agreeing to plow up part of the present crop.

There was never a time when publicity was needed more on public affairs and public expenditures. Obeying the law on publishing stated reports by spending boards should be a popular thing this year.

A young business man of McLean said this week that he had never heard of bootleggers in saloon days. When several older men told him of the old activities of "moonshiners," the repeal of the 18th amendment did not seem so rosy.

The booze business has always been an outlaw and throwing things wide open will not stop illicit operations. It never did obey the law and never will.

The Texas Press Association is undertaking to raise money for a state exhibit at the Chicago fair. The plan is to raise an amount equal to one cent for each inhabitant in the smaller towns.

With voters passing favorably on the state centennial, it seems a shame that an exhibit has not already been placed at Chicago.

This newspaper will be glad to accept any donation from McLean folks and see that it reaches proper hands.

Next Sunday's Lesson

JOSHUA

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Lesson text, Joshua 1:1-9; 23:1, 2, 14. Golden text, Joshua 1:9.
During the month of July, we study the lives of five great characters. The study for this Sunday is the life of Joshua. He, in a way, is unique among Bible characters. He was born in Egypt during a period of bondage, about the time Moses was forced to flee to Midian. He was the son of Nun, and the grandson of Elishama, who was made a captain in the army of Israel upon leaving Egypt. He was of the tribe of Ephraim and therefore a descendant of Joseph, the great prime minister of Egypt. His name portrays the hopefulness of his parents. The meaning of Joshua is "Jehovah is salvation," and is the same word in Hebrew as Jesus is in the Greek.

When Moses returned to Egypt to lead the children of Israel out, Joshua was about forty years old. He had without doubt, known the sting of the Egyptian slave drivers' whip. He knew enough of the sufferings of God's children to anxiously desire their freedom from bondage. It is possible that he was of some assistance to Moses and Aaron in their long struggle with Pharaoh. We suppose this because of the influence of his family and his quick rise to prominence after the Exodus. Elishama, his grandfather, was given charge of forty thousand men. And before long Joshua was placed at the head of the entire army of Israel in the fight at Beberidiam against the Amalekites. When the great wandering nation of people reached Sinai, Joshua was the only individual permitted to ascend the mount with Moses. He went half way and waited there for the great leader while God gave to him the law. When they came to Kadesh-Barnea, Joshua was one of the twelve spies sent out to scout the land, and was one of only two of the twelve, and one of the very few in all Israel, who had faith to believe that God would keep His promise to give the land into their hands. Then as the people turned back for their long thirty-eight year desert wandering, the record is silent as to Joshua's activities. We know that he was true and at all times faithful, for God chose him at the end of the journey when Moses had gone upon Mount Nebo and died, to lead His children into the promised land.

As that great army of people completed its thirty-day mourning for Moses, Joshua was commanded to lead them across the swollen Jordan into their long-sought home. During the major portion of the year the Jordan river flows into a narrow and shallow bed, but in the spring time, fed by the rain and melting snows, it becomes a powerful flood. As Joshua prepared to lead the people across the river, he faced the problem of leading them through a foaming and surging torrent of probably five hundred feet wide. His courage had not failed him in his earlier years and it did not fail him in this task. There was no material evidence of success, but as the bearers of the Ark stepped into the edge of the water, that mighty springtime flood rolled up before the power of God as it would have before a modern concrete dam, that that mighty host of the chosen people of God might pass safely under its frowning brow into the land long promised by God.

God had instructed Joshua as to what steps were to be taken in the conquest. To many the ejection of the tribes possessing the land has seemed cruel, and their destruction, as commanded by God, impossible for a just creator. But it is hinted many times in the Bible and has been proven by recent archeological discoveries that the people dwelling in the promised land had reached such a state of wickedness and moral depravity that God could no longer bear it. The land was on the chief highway of the world. The Phoenicians, just to the west, were the chief navigators and travelers of the world. All the transportation and travel from East to West had to go through the Holy Land. God made no mistake in the destruction of its wicked inhabitants.

The conquest of the land was quick and simply done. The people were first gathered at Gilgal. There God was worshiped, circumcision performed, the passover kept, and faith kept to the people. The great multitude was prepared spiritually for the coming task. The first siege was directed against Jericho, a walled stronghold. The people did not fight, but merely obeyed God's commands. Their obedience was foolishness to the people of Jericho, nevertheless the city fell and was destroyed. Then came temporary defeat at Ai. But when the people obeyed God they were again victorious. The next move was not a battle but the gathering of the people upon the sides of the mountains Ebal and Gerizim with the valley between. There all of the law given to Moses was read.

By this time, the remaining inhabitants of the land were alarmed at the Hebrew victories. The Gibeonites realized the Hebrew power and by piece of strategy became servants of the children of Israel. But there were five mighty chieftains of the Amorites who gathered their armies together, appointed a commander, met Israel's army at Beth-Horon and were defeated. The victorious army then marched north. There the inhabitants were defeated and the people gathered at Shechem to divide the land.

At the age of 110, Joshua called the children of Israel together, gave them sound spiritual admonition, and died. He was buried at Timnath-Serah. It is difficult to find a more faithful leader depicted in the entire Bible. It was undoubtedly his solid faith, unconquerable courage, abject servitude, unalterable humility and his continual following of the leadership of God that brought victory to the children of Israel. If his faith ever faltered, there is no hint of it in the record. We acclaim such ancient characters as wonderful servants of God. God no less needs servants of like faith and character today as in the olden days. And it takes no less humility, servitude, and faith to make such a character today than it took in the days of Joshua. What God is looking for in these modern times is a servant with like willingness as Joshua to be as clay in a potter's hands.

Who put us back upon the road that leads to where new life springs. They have no method in their work; they josh, they razz, they bully; They make you want to fight, and then, again, the sun shines fully.

My town is full of men like these; they've built it with their labor; They've stood together through the years—they've played the part of neighbor.

And so I would not trade my town for any habitation.
I love her fame, I love her faults, I love her limitation.
It's not the mortar nor the brick that makes a town attractive, But the men who mingle on the street and keep their friendships active.

The following statement of facts was prepared by Miss Bertha R. Palmer, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction of the State of North Dakota, and is here reprinted from the Union Signal:

1. The alcohol in beer, wine and ale is the same alcohol that is in whiskey. It is the alcohol that is injurious.

2. It never satisfies the appetite it creates.

3. It is not a food, but a habit-forming drug.

4. It cures no disease, therefore, it is not a medicine.

5. It is always a narcotic, even in small quantities; it is never a stimulant.

6. It depresses the nerve centers long before the effect can be noticed by observers; it reduces self-control and causes confusion in thought and judgment. Therefore, the person who takes one drink is a dangerous driver

NEW HER BIBLE

"So you attend Sunday school regularly?" said the minister to little Eve. "Oh, yes, sir." "And you know your Bible?" "Oh, yes, sir." "Could you tell me something that is in it?" "I could tell you everything that's in it." "Indeed!" and the minister smiled. "Sister's young man's photograph is in it," said Eve promptly, "and mother's recipe for face cream is in it, and a lock of my hair cut off when I was a baby is in it, and the ticket for dad's watch is in it."

WHERE'S MY WANDERING DAD?

"Who's the stranger, mother dear? Look! He knows us! Ain't he queer?" "Hush, my own! Don't talk so wild; That's your father, dearest child!" "He's my FATHER? No such thing! Father died, you know, last spring!" "Father didn't die, you dub! Father joined a golfing club. But they closed the club, so he had no place to go, you see! No place left for him to roam— That's why he is coming home. Kiss him—he won't bite you, child— All them golfing guys look wild!"

IT PAYS TO BE BRIEF

The best illustration of the value of brief speech reckoned in dollars was given by Mark Twain. His story was that when he had listened for five minutes to the preacher telling of the heathen, he wept, and was going to contribute fifty dollars; after ten minutes more of the sermon he reduced the amount of his contribution to twenty-five dollars; after another half hour, he cut the sum to five dollars. At the end of an hour when the plate was passed, he stole two dollars.

Mowing pastures has sharply reduced bitter milk this summer in the herds of Shelby county farmers who are cooperating with the county agent in pasture improvement.

Bobby (in the presence of family and visitors)—"No, I don't wanna kiss Mossiens Jetaoin vnummunun kias Miss Jones—she slapped Daddy for the same thing."

ADVERTISING SINS

In the name of advertising more sins are committed than anything else in the commercial life. The anxiety of the average business man to find a new way to advance his interests makes him an easy victim of the shark and grafter with some scheme which he calls advertising. Every business man has paid for his shortsightedness in waste of advertising funds.

Strange to say, such losses do not seem to have educated many of the victims, and this sort of fraud is one of the best paying rackets being worked today. Many a merchant will ignore the faithful efforts of his local publisher, and the value of his home town newspaper as an advertising medium, to patronize these rackets.

It would seem that in this 20th century, and age of modern commerce, everybody would fully recognize the place of the newspaper in modern life. Not only is it bought and paid for as a medium of current news, but its advertising columns are regarded as news as well, and the soundest kind of an investment for the reader as well as the advertiser. The reader looks to these advertising columns as a guide to his purchasing of everything that enters into his economic plans. He is influenced and guided by the information thus gained by practically all of his investments and purchases.

The newspaper is read by every member of the family; the man, the woman and all of the children old enough to read. Practically all of the family spending is directed by information gained by reading of advertising in the family newspaper.

On the other hand, who ever heard of the family spending being influenced by the multitude of freak advertising and ballyhoo sold by these smooth-tongued artists who are here today and gone tomorrow? In these times of economic stress every advertising dollar should be used where it will buy the most merchandising service. This is no time to waste hard earned funds from diminished profits in freak and spasmodic advertising. The place to spend the entire appropriation is in the local newspaper on a well-planned and practical advertising campaign that will sell merchandise.

There never has been a time when the buyer was more careful of his spending, or more diligent in searching for the best his money will buy. He will watch the columns of his newspaper for information on that, the most important problem of his present existence. It is up to the modern merchant to furnish this information and place it where it will be readily found, in the advertising columns of the local newspaper.—Texas Commercial News.

A LIVERETTE

By Nancy Lee Hodgkinson I suppose that from the present time and until we gather at the river, There will be that Dear Old Doc who says "Just feed 'em liver."

But I think the worst combination that I ever saw Was devouring of said liver both half cooked and crippled raw. It was served for breakfast, luncheon and sometimes even at night: Now that's just a "livin' on liver" and it doesn't seem quite right. There are 47 ways to prepare it—at least that is what they say. But it looked and tasted like liver on the 1st and 47th way. They even prepare a "home brew," a pure liver drink.

If I didn't taste the liver, I'd swear it's from the sink. It's sort of a temperance drink that doesn't go to your head, But it goes to your stomach and makes your corpuscles red. If you complain of the taste and merely say "Oh, gosh," They hand you "liver tea" to be used as a wash. They used to load you down with liver if you asked for dog meat; It was hardly worth carrying home and thought not fit to eat. Now science brags up liver and tells of its virtues nice. They may know what they talk about but look what it did to the price. Oh, I'd love to be an inventor and some day I hope I am, And my first and great invention will be liver that tastes like ham. —Journal American Medical Ass'n.

HOME ELECTRIC PLANT

The prevailing winds of the Plains do more than just turn a windmill for J. W. Williams, farmer living near Hale Center, who has converted wind energy into electricity on his farm with an improvised system that is giving good results.

Using an old generator from a worn out car and a propeller of two blades made from a board 2x10x10 feet; all of which he mounted on the top of an iron pipe, Mr. Williams is securing sufficient electrical energy to keep his 32 volt batteries fully charged at all times, and has electric current for his home and farm use. The whole system was set up and constructed on his place, with the exception of re-winding the generator which was done by an automobile electrician in a local garage. The plant has worked efficiently during the few months it has been in operation and he has had no expense in operation or upkeep. A slight breeze is all that is required to generate a good current, and the batteries are easy to charge. It is only necessary to charge the batteries a day or so at a time to get them back into shape and then the generator is turned off.

CANNING KITCHEN HELPS

Canning kitchens for helping Limestone families who do not have canning equipment at home have been established in Groesbeck, Mexica and Koose. Those who do not have cans to the work and leave half the product in payment for the cans. More than 1200 containers of food were put up at the Mexia kitchen the first week it was open, according to Miss Cora Kirkman, home demonstration agent.

She—"Would you put yourself out for me?"
He—"Of course I would."
She—"I wish you would, then, because it's late."
