E. Gaston Foote Guest Speaker at Lions Banquet

Rev. E. Gaston Foote, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Pampa, was guest speaker at the Lions Club ladies' night banquet, held at the First Baptist Church basement Tuesday evening.

Rev. Foote spoke on "Let's Start Over Again," saying that the world needs the service club ideal, and exploring the effects of the depression in the loss of personal courage and confidence in others. The depression has hurt most inside; the lack of material things does not amount to so much.

We need confidence in ourselves, our fellowmen, and our country, according to the speaker. "I have been under 23 foreign flags, and this is the greatest country I have ever seen. There are too many people who want to take things in their own hands, regardless of law. This country has been thrown into ten panics and five wars and has emerged each time stronger and better than before. It is a tragedy to lose confidence in our fellowmen. The poorest man on earth is he who has lost his confidence and courage. We need to believe in our own ability to succeed, and above all we need the Spirit of the Great Teacher. Every service club in the world has been born of the Spirit of the Christ, and no life can amount to much without this spirit."

Rev. Foote prefaced his remarks with a number of humorous take-offs on those present.

The banquet opened with singing led by W. D. Biggers, song director, with Mrs. Raymond Hall at the piano. Chaplain Cecil G. Goff gave the invocation, and Tail Twister C. O. Greene had charge of the seating ceremony.

Secretary Reep Landers read the roll call. Boyd Meador, acting in the absence of the Lion Tamer, presented the visitors, calling upon Editor Olin E. Hinkle of Pampa to present the Pampa delegation.

The club quartet sang, with Mrs. Hall at the piano; followed by a violin solo by Prof. J. S. Wharton, Mrs. Cecil G. Goff at the piano. This was followed by Rev. Foote's address, and Prof. Robt. C. Davidson played a saxophone solo with Mrs. Goff at the piano. Rev. Foote pronounced the benediction.

The meeting was in charge of President T. A. Landers, and the Thanksgiving motif was carried out in the food and favors.

Visitors from Pampa included Mr. and Mrs. John Hessey, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Thomas, Atty. and Mrs. Arthur M. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Leech, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bourland, Roger McConnell, J. O. Gilliam, Editor Olin E. Hinkle and Rev. Foote.

STRONGER THAN EVER IN POPULAR SUPPORT

SCHOOL SPORTS

By the Railbird

The McLean Tigers closed their 1933 grid season last Friday as they defeated the class A Plainview eleven 6-0 in one of the most thrilling games of the year.

Held scoreless until the middle of the last quarter, the Tigers forged their way to a tally, with Dowell making the touch.

Coach Rush's boys turned in a fine performance in every department, with Christian, Tolliver and Ellison leading for individual mention.

"Cricket" Christian, co-captain and quarterback, who has been the spark-plug of the Tiger offensive for the past four years, played his last grid game for McLean in one of the hardest fought victories the team has won. The Tigers will also be without the services of co-captain Crockett, Bogan, Ashby and a few others next season when the first call for practice is made.

THE LOWDOWN.—Next issue in this column we are presenting the season's statistics for the information of the loyal followers of the local football team.

DOPE.—The Railbird picks the Shamrock Irish to win the bi-district championship—more power to you, Irish! (The Irish will probably play the Groom Tigers in the title scramble).

McLean does have a record this year—a tie game with the potential class A district champion Harvesters of Pampa, a defeat of two more class A teams, and only two touchdowns scored against them.

MCLEAN AGGIES ENJOY KANSAS CITY TRIP

By Dr. A. A. Tappke
The McLean meat judging team which represented the Texas high schools in the national contest at Kansas City returned last Thursday and report that they had a wonderful time, both from the standpoint of entertainment and education.

They arrived there Saturday at five o'clock, just in time to take in the first banquet on their program. This was a very thrilling occasion for the farm lads, followed by a horse show at the arena. The boys attended many horse shows, the judging of the fine stock, and were given free tours all over the city, and four banquets. The National P. F. A. Congress was held at the same time, including the National Public Speaking Contest.

Monday, Nov. 20, was the national meat judging contest, and as the McLean boys had to get an early train for home, they were not present to get the results of their work. The Rock Island Railway paid their transportation as a prize for the team's outstanding work in stock judging in Texas the past year.

Next Saturday the McLean P. F. A. poultry team will go to Post, where they will try for more awards, and also get wider experience in their judging work.

The McLean vocational instructor will be official judge of the show to be held in connection with the judging contest.

Intensive training is now in progress to develop a strong livestock judging team for this year, and prospects are good for a real winner, according to the coach.

According to Homer Wilson, special agent for Gray county, there were 3,255 bales of cotton ginned in the county prior to Nov. 14, 1933, compared to 3,703 last year.

Mrs. Guy Taylor of Lelia Lake and Mrs. John Scott of San Antonio visited their sister and aunt, Mrs. J. W. Kibler, Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. T. H. Andrews and uncle, D. L. Abbott, were in Alanreed Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong of Amarillo visited in the B. F. Gray home Saturday.

W. T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Beall and son were in Pampa Monday.

M. H. Kinard, Jr., is visiting his brother at Tipton, Okla., this week.

CRAZY

By O. L. D. Timer

A bank once had a cashier who got away with $80,000. The bank had him arrested and charged with embezzlement. In order to keep out of the pen, he played insane and he played the game so well that they sent him to the asylum. After staying there nine years, he got to be a kind of trusty or privileged character. So he got a bucket of water and two paint brushes, and went to painting the fence around the asylum. This was pleasant work and gave him a chance to talk with people passing by. A farmer passed by quite often and engaged him in conversation occasionally. One day the would-be lunatic said to the farmer, "You see that oak tree on that hill over yonder, all to itself?" The farmer looked and located the tree and said, "Yes." The lunatic said, "Nine years ago I buried $80,000 in twenty feet of that tree." The farmer said, "I had begun to think that you were sane, but you can go ahead with your painting that fence with your pure water," and he drove on. He told another man about what the lunatic said, and that man said, "That old crazy fool did steal that much from a bank he worked for, but I can't imagine what he did with it." The farmer got to studying about the oak tree tale and the more he studied the more curious he became and finally he got to believing the lunatic's tale. He got a pick and shovel and a rope and went and tied the rope around the tree and described a circle with a radius of twenty feet, which made a circle with a circumference of over 120 feet. He then dug a ditch three feet wide and six feet deep around the entire circle, but found absolutely nothing. He sure was mad, and the next time he passed by the water painter he gave him a good cussing and wound up with, "You are the craziest darn fool I ever heard of." The lunatic only grinned and asked, "Did you dig around that tree to see if that money was buried there?" The farmer said, "Yes, and found absolutely no sign of any money." The lunatic broke out in a loud laugh and held out the other brush and said, "Get down out of that wagon and take this other brush and help me finish painting this fence." The farmer's boy, who was with him and who had helped his dad dig the ditch, said, "Dad, get out and help him and I will take the team back home and tell Maw what you are doing."

MEDUSA'S HEAD

by Josephine Daskam Bacon

SYNOPSIS

Chapter. 1.—In concern over the disappearance of the young and beautiful wife of his wealthy friend, Crandall White, Aaron Glaenzer engages Motherwell, private investigator, to find her. A note from the missing woman warns her husband not to call in the police, saying she "hoped to come back."

CHAPTER 2

Motherwell read this through very rapidly and did not read it again. Holding it in his hand, he addressed a question:

"Lely?"
"Her name is Clelia," said Mr. Glaenzer.

"Is that her writing?"
"I should say so, beyond a doubt. Here is a note I had from her a few days ago." And he handed Motherwell a small, pale gray sheet.

"Dear Glen," (it read) "be sure to come in about four on Friday, won't you? I want to talk over Crannys birthday present. I have thought of something, but I don't know what you will say."

"Hastily,
"C. L. W."

"You were good friends, I judge?"
"Crandall White and I have been associated for twenty-five years," said Mr. Glaenzer. "There are not two men in the world closer to me. I knew the first Mrs. White well, and her children were as free in my house as their own. This second marriage is but seven years old, and the present Mrs. White can hardly be much older than my second daughter, even now."

"Oh—h! Then there is quite a difference—"

"White is fifty-four," said Mr. Glaenzer. "Clelia cannot be over thirty, and sometimes she looks nearer twenty-five. Frankly, I don't know her age precisely. I have heard my daughter tease her about it. Frances says she is thirty, and I suppose she knows. They are great friends."

"She may be your daughter's friend but she is not yours," thought Mr. Motherwell, that astute young man.

"Your daughter does not know—"
"She thinks Clelia is taking a cure somewhere, about something connected with reducing her weight. You know, the women, today—"

"I know," said Motherwell briefly. "Was—Is Mrs. White quite well?"
"I have never seen her when she was not in perfect health," said Mr. Glaenzer.

"And happy? Contented?"
"If she was not so, I have never known any human being conceal it better," said Mr. Glaenzer instantly. "She has a remarkably even disposition."

Motherwell pondered a moment. "Of course, Mr. Glaenzer," she said looking squarely at his host, "there is no use my going into this unless I have at least all the help you can give me. People don't do odd things, unless they are insane, without reason. Women's reasons are less complicated. I mean, they fill a more limited field than men's. Were Mr. and Mrs. White happy together?"

"Mrs. White," the jeweler answered instantly, but choosing his words carefully, "has been, ever since I met her (always taking into consideration her exceptional beauty and the fact that she is young enough to be her husband's daughter) a devoted and loving wife."

"And Mr. White?"
"Mr. White's attitude can only be described by one word—infatuation!" said Mr. White's friend quickly. "His first marriage was like any other—romance, domestic life, friendship. But when he brought Clelia to this house, a year after poor Nettie's death, I saw that he had never been in love before. If anything happens to her, Mr. Motherwell, he will die. I have not the slightest doubt of it."

"Where did he meet her—was she—"
"She was nobody in the world but a beautiful girl," said Mr. Glaenzer, "and never pretended to be anything else. Her name was Clelia Lee, and she was a distant connection of a poor and gone-to-seed branch of the Virginia Lees. When interested ladies—you know how kindly and how interested our New York ladies can be?—asked her about this Lee and that Carroll and all the rest of it" (the man of a hundred generations smiled slightly) "she told them just what I have told you. It really left them very little to say, I thought.

"One or two of them didn't invite her, I believe, but after Crandall took her to London, it was a little embarrassing for them, because she created, as they say, a furore, there. They don't know a drayman's daughter from a Colonial Dame, you know, over there," said Mr. Glaenzer, smiling mildly. "And now, Mr. Motherwell, you know as much as I know—which is no more than everybody knows," he added.

"Except," the young man suggested, "what Miss Lee was doing before she married."

"As to that, I can only say that White told me that she was recommended to his attention by a French friend of poor Nettie's—an old governess. She duenna-ed a baker's dozen of music students in Paris, and this girl, she told him, had come direct from a convent in the South, over here somewhere, on a scholarship. She knew all about her. Had any amount of letters. She was as good as she was beautiful."

He paused and sighed. It was evident that he was worried to a degree.

"You see, Mr. Motherwell, my poor friend didn't go to the music halls," he said. "He might have married anyone he liked, I suppose. If he happens to love beauty more than anything on earth, and found it, with a reasonable amount of love into the bargain, from a woman who is one of the frankest I ever met—poor Crandall, I'd give up anything but one of my own children to bring her back," he groaned and put his hand over his eyes.

"You think, then, that she won't come back?" Motherwell asked quietly.
"Come back? Come?" Glaenzer repeated scornfully. "Get back, you mean, I think. What but the most dreadful necessity could take her away? Does that letter sound like an eloping wife? Adored, literally adored by a man who would cut out his eyes if she wanted them set in a dinner ring! Pearl's, a yacht—you know, Motherwell, anything on God's earth she wanted! His children friendly, even, which isn't always to be expected, you know. And such a man! Such a character, such distinction, such brains, and believe me, Motherwell, more charm than I ever found in one of your countrymen! What do you make of the letter, Motherwell?"

"I think, as anybody must think, of course, that she was forced to go, for some reason, or thought she was, and that she couldn't have liked it, because she cried when she wrote it. I think that she may have been intimidated by threats against her husband's life—perhaps her own, but I should say his."

"Because of that part about his not needing to be frightened to death, though she was?"
"Because of that, yes. There has been no suggestion of any ransom?"
"None at all. Crandall has stayed at home ever since, or would have, until I warned him that he could not conceal his trouble from the servants. I sent him to Atlantic City, and it is understood that they are both away for a little. He can be reached in a few minutes, of course."

"What," said Motherwell after a moment, "does he expect to do, in cases he doesn't return, after a reasonable time?"
"Glaenzer spread his hands blankly.

"What can he do? After that letter, he would not dare appeal to the police. Lely means what she said," he told me.
"That is," Motherwell corrected, "she means that she had to write it. It's not very difficult to understand that she may have felt that she had to, at least."

"You mean, that this may not be her feeling at all, but a dictated phrase, more or less?"
"And in that case, it's simply the threat of any criminal."

"Of course. We thought of that. And yet—" said Glaenzer slowly, "she may have meant it, Mr. Motherwell. We have to remember that. And if she did—then she will never come back."

LIONS BULLETIN

The following items were clipped from "The McLean Lion" furnished guests at the Lions Club banquet:

Overheard while Lion Wilson Boyd was courting his wife:

L. B.—"Say, who's the dumb-looking guy that drives your car around, and works in the garden? I notice that he always gives me a nasty look when I come in."
Girl Friend—"Oh, don't mind him. That's just father."

Mrs. Biggers—"Where did you get that nice new hat?"
Billie—"I bought it ten years ago. Seven years ago I had it newly pressed. Three years ago it was dyed black. The year before last I had a new band put on it. Last week I exchanged it at Meador's Cafe."

Mrs. Butler was worried about Lion Butler always sitting on the piano stool when company comes, and she remonstrated with him: "John, why do you always sit on the piano stool, you know you can't play a note?"
"I know it," said John, "but neither can anyone else while I am here."

At last year's banquet one of the ladies remarked to another: "I don't know what is the matter with that tall handsome gentleman over there. He was so attentive a while ago, but now he won't look at me."
"Perhaps he saw me come in," said Mrs. Reep Landers. "I am his wife."

The editor was asked by several members to list the book cover committee along with the other committees, as it seems that they intend to be a permanent committee, but we would hate to embarrass Lions Bogan, Holloway and Springer by publishing their names.

Teacher—"How many seasons have we?"
Jesse Dean—"Papa says we have two seasons, slack and busy."

Lion Mea-dor consistently voted to postpone this banquet, and it has been suggested that he was having difficulty in securing someone to accompany him; however, he seems to have remedied that in a fine way tonight.

Lion Cooper's wife was overheard telling the cook to mash the peas. "Why so?" asked the cook. "Because it makes John so nervous to have them roll off his knife," said Mrs. Cooper.

Here's to you as good as you are. And here's to me as bad as I am; And as bad as I am, and as good as you are, I'm as good as you are, as bad as I am.

Nobody was ever hurt by a little fellowship, so lay some of your dignity aside and enjoy yourself. Remember that we are all brothers in that Great Fraternity."

A certain bunch of good Lions had better be warned and have their pictures made for the club group, or they may be turned over to the tender (?) mercies of the Tall Twister.

Chaplain Goff says that in the promulgation of the Gospel, three books are needed: the Bible, the hymnbook, and the pocketbook. He likes for his hearers to use all three.

Marshal Sparks—"You were going 40 miles an hour!"
Lion Bruce—"I'm no deliberate law breaker, but I'm kinda proud of the old fliv."

Supt. Cryer—"Let us take the example of the busy ant. He is busy all the time. He works all day and every day. Then what happens?"
Bright Pupil—"He gets stepped on."

Angry Customer—"Hey, I found a tack in this doughnut!"
Ralph—"Why, the ambitious little thing! It must think it's a tire."

The Tall Twister is a good one, when he can spare the time from his duties as vice president.

Sure, the Lion Tamer likes to hear himself talk—(yeah, he and who else?) that's how he got his office.

The Boss Lion holds a perfect attendance record since the club was organized.

May we have more and more friends and need them less and less.

To woman: she needs no eulogy; she speaks for herself.

Smith got married. The evening of his first pay day he gave his bride $14 of the $15 salary and kept only a dollar for himself.

But the second pay day Smith gave his wife $1 and kept $14 himself.
"Why, John," she cried in injured tones, "how on earth do you think I can manage for a whole week on a paltry dollar?"

"Darned if I know," he answered. "I had a rotten time myself last week. It's your turn now."

"No," said the druggist, "I don't want any slot machines that involve gambling."
"These," said the salesman earnestly, "aren't gambling devices. The customer hasn't got a chance."

Luther Petty and family were in town Saturday.

Mrs. G. W. Sullivan visited relatives at Plainview Friday.

George and Tressie Spracher are back in school this week after a few days visit with relatives in Arkansas.

FIRST AID KIT INSTALLED

A first aid kit has been installed in the laboratory as a protection in case of accident in the laboratory work.

GIRL SCOUTS ENTERTAINED

The Girl Scouts are trying to do their daily good deed. A large collection of miscellaneous magazines that had been stored in the high school, that could not be kept for school use but were in good condition, are being distributed to the people of the town for reading purposes.

MRS. J. B. PETTIT VISITED

Mrs. J. B. Pettit visited her daughter at Abilene last week end.

"I told him that there were dozens of people in this town who had never heard of him."

"I guess that took his pride down a peg or two."

"Not a bit. He asked me their names and addresses and said he would look them up and borrow something from them."

Wife—"The fact that there are germs on money doesn't worry me any."

Husband—"No, my dear. It would take a pretty active germ to hop from the money to you during the brief time you have it."

Mrs. Asker—"Do you favor the short work day and the five day week for men?"

Mrs. Naylor—"I should say not! Husbands are around the house and in the way too much of the time already."

"I dropped a nickel in front of a blind beggar today to see if he'd pick it up."

"Well, did he?"

"No. He said, 'Make it a quarter, boss, and I'll forget myself.'"

Mistress—"What beautiful scallop you have made on the pies, Mandy! How did you do it?"

Mandy—"Deed honey, dat ain't no trouble. Ah just used mah false teeth."

Flo—"Do you love me, Rudy?"

Rudy—"Sure."

Flo—"Then why don't your chest go up and down like the heroes in the movies?"

Kate—"I went to a bargain sale today."

Mary—"Se anything cheap?"

Kate—"Yes, I saw a couple of husbands waiting outside for their wives."

T. H. Andrews was in Marlin last week for medical treatment.

FALSE PRETENSE?

"So you joined the army so as to 'se the world,' as the posters say? What made you leave?"

"They didn't tell me that I would have to do it on foot."

Mrs. High Hat—"How did you come to propose to me, Alex?"

Mr. High Hat—"I suppose I just wanted to be different from other men."

ALL THAT SAVED HIM

A writer sent a poem to an editor, who, it seems had little use for verse. The title of the poem was "Why Am I Alive?"

The editor wrote, returning the poem: "Because you sent the poem by mail, instead of delivering it in person."

"Nothing that is false ever does anybody any good," said the soapbox orator.

"I have false teeth and they do me a lot of good," retorted an old man in the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dishman, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Dishman and daughter, Thelma Jean, visited the gentlemen's mother at Hedley Sunday.

The live business man knows the value of the printed word in bringing about better times.

It begins to look as if football games will be decided around the table, rather than on the gridiron.

Thanksgiving ushers in the holiday season in earnest, and from now on until Christmas Day we may expect steadily increasing activity in church, social and business life.

Helping the chamber of commerce is helping the whole community, for chamber of commerce workers are donating their time in the effort to bring about better times to all of us.

Memphis Methodists gave their new preacher a pounding and at the same time gave their local choir director a pounding, something new under the sun,
as many faithful choir leaders with years of service behind them can testify.

"Right forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne"
is not a true saying, for right generally prevails. The man who orders his life along right lines will come out all right in the end, regardless of public opinion, or the lack of it.

Gripping about how your church, lodge, or other organization is run is no way to better things. Get in and help get them on the right track. It takes money, brains and time for any organization to prosper and it must depend upon its members for all three.

Dry goods clerks are being warned against saying that the processing tax explains an excessive increase in price on cotton goods, as the fact is it only amounts to about 3 1/2c on a work shirt, 8c on the average sheet, etc. Many other factors contribute to the raise in prices.

There is much to be thankful for this year in the better outlook for the winter, as compared with the past few seasons.
We have always pulled through hard times, and while this thought has been consoling each year, yet this time we all feel that things are decidedly on the upward trend.

Thanksgiving is strictly a community affair and should be kept on that plane wherever possible. The custom of gathering for worship and the giving of thanks, with the homecoming of the family for the Thanksgiving dinner, is hard to improve upon. Of course, not everyone in the community is going to give thanks this year, but no one objects to the celebration of the day by those inclined to do so.

"They say that Waddell, the Theta, plays golf just like a man."
"She should be ashamed to use such language."

"Do I really need brushing off?"
asked the passenger in the Pullman.
"Does you?" exclaimed the porter with emphasis. "Boss, I've broke!"

"Myes, I might be well to remind too much uncertainty to warrant my taking sides on any topic. For the present I guess I'd better stick to

GETTING POSTED

"Does your wife know anything about cooking?" asked the old friend meeting a recent bridegroom.
"She's learning," was the reply.
"Yesterday I heard her call up her was born that way."

Dad—"That so? And what did you

Bobby—"Nothin'. He was bigger'n complete."

Peck—"It's all right, for my purpose."

Heck—"But there is nothing to it but the receiver. Where's the mouthpiece?"

Peck—"It dont need one. This is a special phone over which I converse with my wife."

Wife—"There are times when I wish I were a man."

Hubby—"When?"

Wife—"Right now, for instance—when I pass a milliner's window and see what precious bargains there are and think how happy I could make my little wife by giving her a new

THE NEEDS OF REFLECTION

"Do you always think twice before you speak?" asked the friend. "It all depends," said Senator Sorghum. "If you are talking business you want to think several times. But if you are merely addressing remarks to an assembled multitude you can simply tumble the words out and let them take care of themselves."

"Is this supposed to be a fast train? The advertisements said it was," remarked the excursionist to the conductor of the Limited.

"Ye, of course," answered the conductor.

"I thought it must be," said the passenger. "Would you mind my getting off and seeing what it is fast to?"

AND FARLEY BOLTED

And we arise to remark that Tammany got licked.

Tammany is the regular Democratic organization in New York City. O'Brien was the regular Democratic nominee for mayor. All good Democrats should support the ticket. Any Democrat who bolts the ticket is a traitor to the party. Thus we have been told. Thus they told us most vehemently in one noted campaign.

But what do you think? Jim Farley, that sterling Democrat, political prophet of the Roosevelt administration—did he support the ticket? No, he bolted. He advised the Democrats of New York City likewise to bolt. He tried to swing them in line against the regular Democratic nominee and induce them to vote for McKee, running as an independent. A lot of them followed his advice, so that La Guardia, a Republican, was elected; McKee, the independent, ran second; and O'Brien, the regular Democratic nominee, ran third best.

Now, if some of us Texas Democrats should do a thing like that, we would be traitors to the party. But Jim Farley does it, evidently with Roosevelt's approval, and he is a patriot.

We respectfully invite our "brass collar" friends to gnaw on this bone for a while.—Lynn County News.

CHURCH SLEEPERS

There is more than quickness of repartee in the reply that Henry Ward Beecher once made to an inquiring young man who asked: "What do you do, Mr. Beecher, when people in your church go to sleep?" The great preacher did not hesitate for a moment in his reply, but answered gravely, albeit with a twinkle in his eyes, "I have left strict orders with the sexton that if he sees anyone in the church going to sleep he shall come at once to the pulpit and wake up the minister."—The Watchman-Examiner.

PROFESSOR?

Mrs. Snags—"What are you doing with that string tied around your finger?"

Mr. S—"You had me tie it there to remember to mail a letter for you."

Mrs. S—"And did you mail it?"

Mr. S—"You forgot to give it to me."

"Now, what about a class motto?"
"Let's get something we can live up to."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LET HIM TRY IT

A preacher recently said that "No-body, hardly, reads religious papers." Very well, let the Baptist Standard publish that he has resigned his pastorate and see how many letters his deacons will get in two weeks commending somebody as his successor. He will find out whether this paper is read or not. There is overwhelming evidence that the Baptist Standard is read by a multitude of people. They do not heed all it contains, but they read it.—Baptist Standard.

RED CROSS FLOUR

A good joke was told by Dr. Knapp, president of Tech College at Lubbock, at a recent NRA convention, on the effects of Red Cross flour on some people. "A farmer was complaining of the bugs eating on his cotton when someone told him that a sure remedy was to go down the rows and sprinkle the stalks with Red Cross flour, and that he would insure that every bug would fall down on his back in the row and never do another thing."—Miami Chief.

Stranger—"Well, how are things around here?"

Native—"They must be improving. All the farmers wish they could get government jobs and all the government men wish they could be farmers."

STAMPEDE INCOMPLETE

"Yes, it was a sad case about Haynes. Since he lost all his money half his friends don't know him any more."

"What about the other half?"

"They don't know yet that he has lost it."

Spoonamore—"And did you love me when you first saw me, darling?"

Darling—"No, I can't honestly say that I had to get used to you first."
