His own heart.

Both times he spared his life, because he was not willing to take the life of one of God's annointed.

Finally, in a fierce battle, three of Saul's sons were killed, and he committed suicide on Mount Gilboah. After the proper time of mourning, David was made king over Judah. His throne was at Hebron for seven years. At the death of Saul Ishbosheth became king over Israel by the power of Abner, a famous warrior. Finally both Ishbasheth and Abner assassinated. David mourned their death, even though they were his David took hold of the hearts of the people of Israel, and they made him their king also. He then moved his capitol to Jerusalem. Here David reigned 33 years.

The rule of David was a prosperous He was a great warrior and statesman. He was a just king, and in the main, in both his private and from God. Neverthe- public life, followed God. He was nor the giver of all good and perfect, and the one grevious sin of his life brought many sorrows. God forgives the sin, but He does not rub out the consequences. Nevertheless. he extended the boundries of his kingdom to enormous extents, became a very wealthy ruler, and gathered the spends his latter days in material for the building of the tress because he refused temple.
