STYLE

By O. L. D. Timer

I had occasion to make a baseball bat the other day, and after carving it out to the desired shape and size I happened to glance at some factory made ones, and then I realized that I was born thirty years too soon, as the style had changed greatly. There was as much difference in the shape of baseball bats as there was in the fashions of the women of 40 years ago. I remember distinctly a woman of a family who developed a fashion for a wasp waist, and she fastened herself until you could span her waist with your thumbs and long fingers, and then she attired herself in an expensive silk dress that would make lots of noise as she walked and that had an appendage in the shape of a 3-foot train that swept behind. She would wait until everybody got set in the church and the preacher was ready to read his text, then she would have a dapper negro to drive her up and she would sweep majestically down the aisle and take a reserved seat in the choir and look on wise as a hoot owl. Then there was a grown man in high school who simply doted on his stylishness. He was like the thirty-four model cars—he had everything. But the piece de resistance was his patent leather tooth-pick shoes that were so sharp that he wouldn't risk kicking a football, but would stand and watch the other boys play and disgust the smaller boys.

Thirty years ago Teddy Roosevelt came to Fort Worth and drove around in a horse-drawn coach without any top to obstruct the view, and that method of self-exhibition has never been improved upon, as it enabled him to stand up and bow as politely as Lord Chesterfield and smile his famous smile. You will find people whose greatest ambition and highest aspiration is to be the most stylish person in the world, even to the exclusion of honesty, charity, usefulness and virtue. For instance, an old country boy moved to Dallas and got him a job in a bank and married a very stylish woman, built a stylish mansion and equipped it with everything that was the very latest, and he got so he would not have anything to do with the rubes he grew up with. The last I heard of him was an account in the paper where he was charged with embezzlement of $26,000. One boy said, "When I have enough money I am going to do as according to Hoyle," and his father said, "Son, clothes don't make a man, but it is useless to create a disturbance by going about without 'em."

Like to be stylish, if style is reasonable, but when nudism comes in style, right there is where I get a shove from Dame Fashion. The last style I have heard of was a last wedding in which not a person participating had on a wedding garment, and yet we lay claim to being a Christian nation.

HEALTH WORK IN MCLEAN SCHOOLS

Miss Cockrell, Red Cross nurse, who has been conducting classes in home hygiene at Back and McLean, has spent some time in the McLean grade school, checking on physical findings and assisting with instruction in health subjects. Miss Cockrell makes the following report of her work:

Three hundred eighty pupils have been inspected. 23 1/3% of this number have been immunized against diphtheria, the highest rate falling to the third grade taught by Mrs. Harris. 23 1/3% of the whole group have been vaccinated against smallpox, the highest rate to room group, 50%, to the high seventh grade.

The children's teeth and gums were examined, 25 being found with pyorrhea in beginning or advanced stages. Dental slips with notation concerning condition found were sent to the parents by the teachers. Instruction has been given relative to the care of the gums and teeth. Another slip has been prepared and taken home by the children with this statement: "The sixth tooth from the middle is cut when the child is about six years old. It is a permanent jaw tooth and should be carefully preserved."

Paper towels have been supplied this spring for use in this school. Three teachers in the primary department, Mrs. Silgar, Misses Noel and Baley, have set up hand-washing devices in their rooms in order to facilitate efforts along the lines of health by children who take lunch at school. This is necessary because there are not enough lavatories to accommodate the number who remain through the noon hour.

Parents, generally speaking, show a favorable reaction toward the cleanliness campaign now under way.

Arrangements have been made through the local Red Cross chapter, of which A. R. McHaney is chairman, for similar services at Back and Alanreed schools.

THE FOUTING PROPHECY

The unbelievers have a trysting place in the Bible. It is the Book of Jonah. There has been so much time spent in talking about one of the incidents of the book that the really important thing is lost to view. There has been much talking about "Jonah and the whale," yet the word whale is not in the whole story in the King James version. It was a great fish prepared by the Lord that swallowed Jonah.

But there are two things worth much to us in the book. The first is that you can't run away from God. Jonah tried to do that. He was told to go to Nineveh and speak against the city. But he thought by going to Tarshish he would escape the Lord. I have known people with the Jonah complex. They think they can get in a town where they are not known and raise the devil to their hearts' content and it will be all right. I was in a town once where a state convention was being held. Many of those who attended left their wives and their religion at home. They seemed to think there was no God in the town they were visiting. That is what Jonah thought.

Jonah's conscience died on him. As long as a fellow's conscience can keep him awake nights there is some hope for him, but when he can go quietly to sleep at night after a day of wrong-doing there isn't much to be done about his case. Jonah went down in the ship and went to sleep. Drastic measures were needed then.

Then Jonah was tossed overboard. The great fish "prepared of the Lord" picked him up, and down there in the dark of that living tomb he did some real praying. Somehow he decided God was not limited to the town in which he lived. He did the natural thing for a man who is in trouble. Strickland Gilliland has told us about his kind in this poem:

I've seen 'em often that thought they thought
And laid to nature what God had wrought.
An' I've seen them eat it when danger come
An' their chance of life seemed on the bum.
Belief in something higher up
Comes nat'ral's barkin' does to a pup.
The "unbelief" of the kind I've heard
Jest lasts till the guy gets good an' skeered.

WHAT IS MAN?

By Rev. L. H. Shockley

Oftimes we are asked what is man? Sometimes we even ask ourselves the question what is man? Man is something hard to understand.

Men ask what is God, and say there is no personal God. Say that God is just nature, that is, when you look upon the green fields in the spring and the golden harvest or the yellow autumn in the trees, you see all the God there is.

How far back through the pages of history do we see nature, and how far back do we see God in the Bible? Some men say history dates back several years before Adam and Eve in the garden, and even try to tell what was going on at that time.

I would just here ask for a history that could date back to the day before there was light in the Bible, the book so much overlooked. There stands God, even nature's God, and darkness covered the face of the mighty deep. Before we see nature, we see God—nature's God. And He said there be light and light appeared, and there stood even Christ, and God said let us make man.

Christ, the architect of man—without Him was not anything made that was made. Out of mud they formed man—in the likeness of God was man. God created in him a man that lives for ever. Man was made subject to vanity, and did fail.

Man! If man can do anything to merit eternal life, what would it cost him? If you should go into a store to buy a piece of goods, would you ask the merchant to sell you that piece of goods under cost? Well, if you are buying your salvation, are you willing to pay the price? You surely do not want it for less. Christ bought it and gave it to you. When you see man you see his Creator. When man has lived ten million years he'll have no less time to live.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Upham visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Overstreet, at White Deer Sunday.

Mrs. Callie Haynes and daughter, Mrs. Frank Rodgers, were Wellington visitors Saturday.

If every weekly paper in the state would regularly run a home-written editorial column, the prestige and influence of the weekly press would, in our opinion, more than double.—Wisconsin Press.

Shortly after the present management took charge of the News in October, 1905, an editorial policy was established and from that time until this Monday, April 9, 1934, editorials in some form have been as much a part of the paper as locals and current topics of a front page character.

Every Monday for years has been editorial time and there has been "reason in our madness." Monday is an off day in most shops, although some papers find their hardest day Monday.

The News is a co-op concern in some respect.

While one of the "props" is out getting a breath of fresh air and chasing locals, the other is at work in the shop. This is a turn about shift and is fair and workable.

Newspaper folks never loaf. They are constantly on the job, whether in the shop or on the street. Social delays, club, lodge, church, the rounds of the stores, or a ride out in the country, all are a part of the grind. Talking with people may be visiting, but at the same time "grist for the mill."

Even when the editorial feet are stretched out before the fire in his own domicile, he is reading or looking up things, or pouring over some problem of what to say and how to say it.

Into the busy life there must come some inspiration, some vision.

There must be something that will be helpful, informative, and of a character that is uplifting, reassuring and of such strong moral fabric that the community will be better, more alive, and, if possible, more progressive through the efforts of the small country weekly that is a home made article for its home people.

For that reason the editorial columns of the News have been filled each week with matter that may have been good reading, or otherwise, according to the taste of the unchosen audience of patrons of this paper.

No matter how dark the clouds may be on our horizon, the News folks try to smile editorially and put up a brave front in spite of depression that knocks a hole in business and puts a crimp in patronage.

Therefore, Monday finds somebody on the job at the machine while the other somebody is taking an airing. But very frequently the work may be the efforts of two, rather than of one.

In the days of hand set type the editors of old used to grab a stick and a rule (if you don't know what they are, come in and we will demonstrate) and stick editorials that were sizzling hot and roast the "editorial pig" to a finish, but nowadays such methods are out of date and the average newspaper thinks several times about its public utterances. Read the editorials.

If they don't help you, they won't hurt you.—Higgins News.

UNSOPHISTICATED MAID

A colored maid in a certain home answered the phone. "Yas'm," her mistress heard her say. "Yas'm," said the maid a second time. Then she added, "It sho am," and hung up the receiver.

The telephone rang again, and the girl made the same replies, and hung up.

"What kind of a conversation was that, Lucy?" the mistress asked. "What did they want?"

"Wellum," said the maid, "dey asked if dis was de Jones house, an' I say 'yas'm,' and dey ask if Mrs. Jones am home, an' I tol' em 'yas'm,' an' den dey say, 'long distance frum Washington,' an' I say, 'It sho am.'"

AN ALL-DAY JOB

T. Roy Barnes is almost as well known as a story-teller as he is an actor and movie star.

There is one which he has told with tremendous success at Hollywood dinners:

"A little boy had been absent a whole day from school and the teacher next morning sent him home to get an excuse from his mother. Presently he came running back and handed the paper to his teacher. It read as follows:

"Dear Teacher: Please excuse Tommy from being away yesterday. He got wet in the a. m. and had to be dried in the p. m."

"Mrs. Skidmore was terribly ashamed when she had a party Sunday and there were 13 at the table."

"Is she superstitious?"

"No, but all she had was 12 of anything."

M. M. Ruff was in Pampa Saturday.

We understand that a few business men favored the proposal to legalize the sale of beer in the recent election on the grounds that it would bring business to Tahoka. They may have been right. The legal sale of beer might bring some business to Tahoka especially to cafes and restaurants that might offer it for sale. But there is another side to the proposition that these business men should take into consideration if this matter should ever be presented again. If Tahoka had legalized the sale of beer, it would have lost business for the town also. There are many farmers living in Tahoka's territory and on the fringe who are opposed to the sale of beer. We heard one of them talking recently. In the first place he was much aggrieved because the election had been called for Tahoka alone. If an election was to be called he thought it ought to have been county-wide. If the town had gone wet and beer joints had been opened here, he and other substantial farmers would have taken their business to other towns. Many farmers do not like to bring their boys to a town that is full of beer joints. Many of them do not like to be compelled to eat at cafes where beer is being sold and drank. The legalized sale of beer is a sword that cuts two ways. It would bring some trade to Tahoka, all right, but it would also lose for the town the friendship and patronage of many of our most substantial farmers.—Lynn County News.

HOME NEWSPAPER'S MISSION

The true aim of a newspaper is primarily to dispense news impartially, reflecting the community's progress and the actions of its people, and not to correct the evils that exist in a community, state or nation, as some folks believe.

Rather, the newspaper should seek diligently to elevate and uphold for the sake of humanity, and the joy of working and striving for that which is constructive.

Newspapers may and do expose graft, corruption, abuses and kindred things, often, but the final say rests with the people, and the rectification must come through their efforts.

Just because a newspaper has power, is no reason for it to dictate, threaten or attempt to intimidate. On the other hand, it seeks to advise, counsel, and assist in bringing about reform. Even with that it is impossible to accomplish anything without the courageous help of the people themselves.

Without the people backing it, a newspaper is just a piece of paper—fragile, transparent and devoid of influence and leadership—if the readers fail to have faith in it and do not unitedly support it when it battles for rights and protection. The paper derives its power solely from the readers who are in accord with its policies.

Here are a few important things a home newspaper strives to do at all times: Publish news items about the home town, the county, the community, schools, churches, court house political news as concerns home people, furnish housekeepers with advertisements concerning merchandise which they may buy at a saving, and last but not least, donate space to every worthy undertaking that has for its object the upbuilding of the community and the elevation of the people.—Memphis Democrat.

GARDEN CHICKENS

Our good neighbor, Finis Curtis, is cooperating in a fine way to help the editor raise a garden and get some pay for his "pains." He has purchased a "chicken eatin'" sow and placed her in a pen accessible to the writer's garden.

Now that's what we call a real friendly deed. We have agreed to furnish the necessary feed to "toll" the chickens off the garden to the hog pen. Finis assures us that this being done, the hog will have a feast of "chicken a la feathers" (meaning the chickens will depart this life, feathers and all, to a place where gardens are all fenced with chicken proof wire, and the law forbids chickens destroying the neighbors' flowers).—Estelline News.

HIBLER'S DAIRY

Lord, make me strong enough to bear My little rounds of anxious care. The day returns. For this I pray; Sufficient wisdom for the day. Although I may not walk with Kings, Let me be big in little things. Grace me with modesty and teach Me kindness of thought and speech; Let me not heary be to chide The children walking at my side, And spoil with imperfections slight The record which the day shall write. Lord, make me big enough, I pray, To triumph in a lesser way. When petty disappointments rise, Let me be patient, gentle, wise, Mising the joy which greatness brings, Let me not fail in little things.

Lord, I would work and neighbor here. Too big to hate, too wise to sneer. I would be helpful, cheerful, kind, Gentle of speech and broad of mind. And though not far my circle swings, Let me be great in little things.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Johnston and daughter, Shirley, went to Altus, Okla., Thursday, the latter receiving medical treatment.

The guest in room 343 had greatly annoyed all the other hotel guests by jumping and skipping around his room. Finally, the manager objected, and demanded an explanation. "Well, it's like this. My doctor gave me some medicine for my rheumatism and told me to take it for three nights running, and then skip a night." "But what does that have to do with all the noise?" "Well, this happens to be my night for skipping."

Advertisers are beginning to feel the effects of returning prosperity.

The horsepower of the car has no relation to the horse sense of the driver.

The fact that a man is satisfied with himself is no sign that he is satisfactory to others.

The man who makes a practice of tending to his own business generally has a pretty big job.

There is no progress without harmony, in the home, school, church, club, or community. Lack of harmony is a destructive force.

Advertising in the home paper is offensive to no one and exerts a steady pull, reaching more cash buyers than any other medium.

Following the Golden Rule just can't be done by some people; they must see some advantage to themselves before putting out anything.

The ratio of men drivers in fatal automobile accidents, to the total number of all accidents last year, was 31% greater than for women drivers. Women might get a little satisfaction from these figures, and the men might have good alibis but the fact remains that there are too many preventable car accidents each year.

Last week's Clarendon News spoke editorially on "Wild Cat" advertising. This paper also received a nice check, but wrote first to references given, and to the secretary of the State Press Association. The reference sent us a bill for $1.00, but anyway we found out that our first impression was right.

Any proposition that is out of the ordinary will do to investigate before accepting.

Next week is the time to do our spring yard cleaning and be out nothing for expenses but a little labor.

Not only from a standpoint of civic pride, but in order to protect our families' health, should the clean-up be thorough.

Summer time is fly time and flies spread diseases from rubbish heaps, cow and hog lots and a little precaution taken now may mean several dollars saved later in doctor bills.

Seldom a week passes but someone complains that a reporter has asked for news "for the paper," and it fails to appear in The News. News of McLean folks is interesting to readers of the home paper and we are anxious to have all news items, but our readers should make sure that they are giving their items to a News reporter. Telephone 47, 147, 178, or see any of the News force, or hand your items to Mrs. J. A. Sparks, and they will be properly taken care of, with names spelled correctly.

McLean citizens have a right to expect that their affairs be mentioned in the home paper, the only paper that cares a snap about McLean, and we are anxious to cooperate with you in publishing your news items if they are reported properly.

For the married man who cannot get along without drinks, the following is suggested: Start a saloon in your home and be its only customer. Give your wife $2 to buy a gallon of hard liquor and remember there are 69 drinks in a gallon. Buy your drinks from the wife and by the time the first gallon is consumed she will have $8 to put in the bank and $2 to start business again. Should you live ten years and continue to buy booze from her and then die, with snakes in your boots, she will have enough to bury you, educate your children, marry a decent man and quit thinking about you entirely.—Anonymous.

THE HOME TOWN PAPER
 When eventide is drawing near,
 And chickens gone to rest,
 You sit in the ole arm chair,
 Thinkin' of what is best.
 A peaceful feelin' comes o'er you,
 And a smile replaces the frown,
 As you read the little paper
 From your ole home town.
 It tells you all about the folks;
 Yes, of those who come and go,
 And all about the sociable
 Down at Uncle Joe's.
 And the boys who stole the melons
 From the patch of Billy Brown,
 Makes the headline of the paper
 From my ole home town.

There ain't a thing I'm missin',
 Along life's rugged way;
 For soon I'll get the gossip,
 Tho' I'm many miles away.
 If Elmer has the measles,
 Or the flu is goin' round,
 I read it in the paper
 From my ole home town.
 I read the Chicago Tribune,
 And St. Louis papers, too,
 Including poems there by Guest,
 Before the day is through.
 And then I wish to rest my mind
 With news that's nowhere found
 Except in the weekly paper
 From my ole home town.

They say our good and bad deeds
 Are recorded up on high,
 So that God can classify us
 When it comes our time to die.
 If that be true, I know a man
 Who's going to wear a crown—
 He's the man who runs the paper
 In my ole home town.
 —M. C. Robbins, Vandalia, Ill.

 "Ain't you 'fraid of snakes?"
 "No, dear."
 "Papa, ain't you 'fraid of nothing else in the whole world but just mamma?"
 She—"What heavenly jazz—let's dance."
 He—"That isn't jazz—the waiter just dropped our dinner."

THE POOR FISH

To call a man a poor fish means to deride, to criticize him for lack of industry or intelligence or ambition or some other vital factor in thinking we call success. Of all the "poor fish" in the world of fish, the poorest is the gold fish for it swims and swims and swims, thousands of miles perhaps, and then finds itself five inches from the starting point, just like his human prototype who does a lot of fiddling and fussing, a lot of jumping up and down, a lot of puffing and snorting and then finds himself exactly where he started. Action is worth while only when it leads to some place.—Rochester Reporter.

OUR ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

Lesson text, Matt. 19:16-30 Golden text, Acts 20:35.

The rich young ruler was undoubtedly a sincere and honest young man. He had probably inherited a great fortune. But he had not done with it as the prodigal did. He had accepted the wisdom and admonition of his father before him and had put his fortune to good usage. So it is that being a young man he was very wealthy and evidently stood high in his community and probably had a great deal of influence. He had been attracted by Jesus and had gone out to hear Him teach many times, probably. He had come under conviction and desired the power of life that Jesus had and taught.

This rich young man approached Jesus sincerely. His question was put to the "good" teacher. This signifies that he probably saw in Jesus one who had perfectly fulfilled the law, and possibly even might signify that he felt that Jesus was a great prophet, probably not the Messiah. He had heard of eternal life from the lips of Jesus and realized that it was a matter of individual possession. Naturally his question was to find how he might become the possessor of it.

Jesus knew the life and standing of the young man and pointed him to the law. He felt that he had fulfilled the requirements of the law—it was the step beyond the law that he felt he must take. Jesus then answered that if he would have the thing he desired, it would be necessary for him to surrender to Him. Jesus did not use these words, but since the young man had asked Him a question that dealt with his personal case, Jesus answered it the same way. It would seem that the only thing that the young man thought more of than he did of Jesus was his wealth. Jesus knew what it would take. He had said in His sermon on the mount that a man could not serve God and Mammon at the same time. Mammon was a god of gold. And his treasure was the one thing the young man thought more of than the eternal life he was seeking. Jesus struck at the heart of his difficulty. He was probably willing to use part of it in assisting Jesus on His tours, and another part of it to help the poor that Jesus might point out to him, but to give it all up was too much.

This statement of Jesus places a very severe question to the heart of each of His followers or contemplated followers. Could we give up what little we have graciously, for Jesus? Could we lay it all down and still take the attitude toward God and Jesus that Job did? Ofttimes the leaders and brethren of our churches maintain that the sinner must become penitent to the point that he is willing to give anything and all up for the salvation of the Master. That is true, but let the possessions of some of us be taken away, and see how resentful we will be. Jesus was saying the same thing as he said here about wealth, when He said that one was not worthy of the kingdom when he thought more of or loved father, mother or children more than Him. What Jesus has to say here applied not only to wealth, but to all possessions, great or small, material or spiritual. Furthermore, Jesus does not expect more of the penitent sinner entering the kingdom through the gate of regeneration than of the man or woman who was regenerated ten years ago. The truly converted are all on the same plane today, through the years, and in the judgment.

The disciples took the saying of Jesus to refer to those only who were rich. The camel passing through the eye of a needle was an impossibility. The question was, how could a rich man be saved. The truth of the matter is that a rich man cannot be saved, as such. And the possessions of riches that will keep a man out of the kingdom may be great or small. A man who has surrendered his riches or possessions to another has become poor. So a man must surrender his all to Jesus. Jesus may permit him to become the steward of those things in turn. But they belong to Jesus. A cashier in a bank may have millions of dollars in his hands every month, as a steward of the money, and yet be a poor man, comparatively speaking. He is steward for the owners of the money for a little time, and does with it according to the bidding of its owners. Thus the thing that is impossible with us is possible with God. Through God's divine plan of surrender a man with wealth, great or small, material or otherwise, may surrender it to God. He becomes poor, but the honored steward of a loving and wealthy Master. So God said that if a man was willing to lose his life for the sake of the Master, he should find it again a thousand fold more real, beautiful and eternal. That is a miracle of God, made possible by His sacrifice of His only begotten Son. The young man turned away, holding to a service of formalism that could not save. The disciples had surrendered all for a salvation that led to service. The one who has become last and least by surrender of all—houses, brethren, sisters, father, mother, wife, children, lands or all that may stand between us and Christ, for His name's sake, shall receive a hundred fold and shall inherit everlasting life, and thus become first and greatest. Indeed we must bury our lives if we wish to find them.

Text: "THAT was the TRUE LIGHT, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."—John 1:9.

The evangelist John speaks of Jesus Christ as the true light. He also speaks of Him as the Word, the Life. These are attributes of Christ.

Christ is true God, the Creator, Who became flesh and dwelt among us. He became incarnate. He took upon Himself the form of man that He may minister unto the corrupt and sinful world. He is the true light Who has light of Himself, not borrowed or artificial light. He is the creator of light. In comparison with Christ, John the Baptist was a very small light. He was not a false light by any means. He came to prepare the way for his Master, Jesus Christ, the true light.

God the Father so loved the sinful world that He gave His only begotten Son to become a Redeemer, a Savior, a Mediator, a Substitute, a Ransom, a Light, that whosoever believes in Him should not perish eternally, but have everlasting, eternal life. What a wonderful comfort for us poor, miserable sinners!

Men of all ages have sought this true light. They expended untold sums of money and riches to find prope enlightenment. As we page through volumes of history we find records of great leaders who were very sincere in their efforts to find that true light but failed.

And lo, and behold that true light became incarnate; it made its personal appearance in the world. Oh what joy for lost and condemned sinners! What great joy for all mankind! All vain teachings and philosophies were overthrown by the teachings of this wonderful true light of the world, the God-man, Jesus Christ Who came to "save that which was lost."

We may contrast this true light with artificial light we have in this world. If we would stand on Grand Avenue in the white-way section of St. Louis, or if we would stand on 42nd Street and Broadway in New York City, and behold the dazzling display of electrical advertising, we would marvel at the stupendous display of light. We would stand in utter amazement at the millions of electrical bulbs woven into advertisements of all sorts. While experiencing such a sight, we could not help but think of the unseen electrical power which sets these bulbs aglow.

However, electrical light, be it ever so great, is as a shadow compared with the true light "which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

Christ "lighteth every man" by enlightening him with the light of reason, by permitting him to discover things for the benefit of his fellowmen. He enlightens people by having His Gospel preached to them by word of mouth, the radio and the press. By means of His Holy Spirit He brings people to the knowledge of salvation. He enlightens them so that they may believe in Him and be saved. Let us accept Christ TODAY before it is too late.

Lions, Tigers Work Together at New Fair

Centerpiece for the new World's Fair Wonderland for children. The Magic Mountain will again be the central figure of the Enchanted Island when the new Fair opens in Chicago May 26, but the rest of the island will be new with forty surprising features that were not there last year.

World's greatest animal act free to Century of Progress visitors. Photo shows Allen King, fearless trainer, rehearsing the giant cats in circus winter quarters at Peru, Ind. The act, with thirty-three lions and tigers performing in the same cage at the same time, will be presented by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in the new Exposition which opens in Chicago May 26. The traditional hatred that exists between the two beasts makes the stunt extremely dangerous for the trainer and more than thrilling for the spectator. An elephant act, with a woman trainer, will supplement King's act.

HUSTLING UNTIL THE COACH CATCHES UP

We would be just as well off if we were less impatient and less anxious. We are so eager to reach some distant goal that we throw common sense aside in our dealings with the present. Many of us are like the woman in the old stage coach story who was in such a hurry to reach her destination that she tried to persuade the driver not to stop at the inn for lunch. He explained that he had to stop to feed his horses and to permit the other passengers to eat the meal prepared for them.

NO STANDING STILL

He who stands still when the world passes by is not only liable to be stepped on but is apt to find that someone is making a vigorous effort to occupy the place whereon he stands and if he does not move forward there is danger of being pushed back by the throng that is striving to reach the top. To reach the top should be everyone's ultimate goal. We cannot actually stand still except it be merely long enough to get our balance and when we have attained this very necessary balance we are either going forward or backward.

When the poet said, "He also serves who stands and waits," he had no thought of the kind of standstill that pertains to the aimless, but rather was he thinking of those who stand and wait for a message of the still small voice manifesting itself through inspiration. This enables one to move forward with a greater certainty and confidence, and at the same time acquire a steadier gait. "Stop, look and listen" is always a part of wisdom and when we do so we may be sure that we are not taking steps which need to be retraced.

"Somebody said that it couldn't be done. But he, with a chuckle, replied that 'maybe it couldn't, but he would be one who wouldn't say so till he tried. So he buckled right in, with a trace of a grin. On his face—if he worried he hid it. He started to sing as he tackled the thing that couldn't be done and HE DID IT!"

SOMEONE TO CARE

The greatest gift that is given to man is someone to care; When you hope and dream, when you work and plan, Someone to care. Someone to care when the day is long, Someone to care when you're glad with song, When the world goes right, when the world goes wrong— Someone to care.

You can seek the top of the highest hill With someone to care; You can see the good, you can bear the ill With someone to care. The dark may come or the gale may sting, But what the day or night may bring, You still are blessed with a sweeter thing— Someone to love and care.

For never a loss will seem a loss, With someone to care; And never a cross will seem a cross, With someone to care. Someone to care when your heart is sad, Someone to care when your heart is glad; The ones who won were the ones who had Someone to care.

We need not gold if we have but this— Someone to care; We shall have joy though the goal we miss, With someone to care. If there be but one with a faith that's true, If there be but one who believes in you, That love will lift and bring you through— Someone to love and care.

For what is the use of it all without Someone to care? When you're filled with hope or dark with doubt, Someone to care; What is the good of it all, unless There is someone to share your happiness; Someone to care when you win success— Someone to care. —Clara LaShelle, Woodmen Circle Home.
