MARtha—a HOME MAKER

Lesson text, Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-28 Golden text, "Now Jesus and Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus," John 11:5.
The lesson for this week is about a Testament character who usually gets very little attention. And what attention she gets is derogatory. However, there are many likable and lovable features about the life of Martha. People who read and teach the Bible find in Mary the ideal in womanly learning in some respects—at least what they have set up as an ideal. When if the truth were known, there are few of us who come up to the standard set by Martha, let alone Mary.
Martha and Lazarus lived together in their home in Bethany, about two miles from Jerusalem. It has long been taken for granted that Martha was the oldest and Lazarus the youngest, without any special reason for doing so. The parents of these young people were dead, and the children were married. How they were we do not know. What is granted that they were together near the age of Jesus.
The home of Martha was evidently of some wealth. Their home was the home of Jesus when He was doing His work. It was always open to Him. Mary was able to purchase a pound of Nard as a love offering for Jesus. Such a purchase cost wages of a day laborer for a year. Lazarus was ill they were able to send a messenger into Perea to tell that the boy was sick. Then when he died they buried him in a tomb. There seemed to be considerable expense to the burial arrangements.
There was a very close bond of love between Jesus and the three young people of this home. There is no word in the New Testament which tells us that we know the relationship that existed between him and Mary; the message that was sent to her when the boy was ill. Jesus spent much of His time in the home and it was possible. He was being entertained there. The memory of the home liked to hear Him, and were all followers of Jesus.
Martha was on one of these visits that found Martha cumbered with much work. Mary was at the feet of Jesus hearing Him teach. Martha was taking care of the house and getting dinner. It is likely that there were servants, but there was much that she had to do. She was, to say the least, a good housekeeper, and her ability was the finest. She was doubt tired and also anxious to hear the teachings of Jesus as He sat on the floor. The work must be done so that she could also hear the teachings of the Master. The anger she finally became when she had to have some help in the work had to be done first. She was in such a condition that she appeared before Jesus. She made an appeal direct to the Master. And the Master had a lesson for her.
The first commended her in a way having her interest centered about the duties of the home, and yet He said such things could wait. The housekeeping could wait. He never entered the heart of that little housekeeper. Just as it never entered the head of many a mother, and Christian, too, it is not best for her to stay on Sunday morning so she can have a good steaming dinner on the table for the family at noon—the best she can do. No many Christians are better housekeepers than she. So Martha learned from Jesus the lesson that housekeeping will go on until Jesus comes, but the opportunity for service caring for Him spiritually may be missed.
Now is the time to stop to hear the wonderful words of the Master they are being spoken. The housekeeping will keep.
There are just as many men as there are women about their business and tasks. The business has to be run. It may have to be run on Sunday, or the Lord's day can be set aside for some of its intricate management. We could not take one of our days—it might cost us something, but we could take one of our days and do God's day and think we are getting ahead. Poor simple, foolish men that we are. When will we realize that God is the best collector of all time and eternity? Yes, the Lord has to have our time, and our leisure, and our money. And it will go on when the Lord has to have our time, and our leisure, and our money. And it will go on when the Lord has to have our time, and our leisure, and our money.
I was glad to read in the paper that the name is being conducted with the same old story. I believe Martha learned the lesson of faithfulness that we need to learn. She loved Jesus and she needed to learn the way that Jesus wanted that love expressed. There is where too many of us have failed. We want to express that love according to our own ideas, when God and Jesus have prescribed ways of expressing it that are better and more acceptable. Let us sit at His feet and learn His way.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

NAPOLEON'S LAST DAYS

At the age of thirty-five, Napoleon foretold that, like his father, he would die of liver trouble. He died of cancer of the stomach and liver.
His last weeks were spent in agony. He says his stomach burns like fire. Although burning within, he shivers with cold. The hot compresses are never too hot.
His doctor is a young Corsican named Antommarchi, inexperienced but pretentious. The doctor has little sympathy with the Emperor. He thinks Napoleon is exaggerating his pain, for political purposes. He is not available when the patient is in the most violent paroxysms of suffering. Napoleon tries to have him dismissed.
Dictates His Will
In the middle of April, three weeks before the end, he dictates his will. For five hours he sits in a cold sweat, writing a copy in his own hand. What he wrote was intended to instruct his son, but it serves as instruction for Europe a century afterward. The document ends in the middle of a sentence—he has reached the end.
The patient is greatly emaciated, he has not been shaved for several days; his face is of copper hue, the features unken. His bed is taken into the drawing room, as he finds the bedroom too confining. He suffers tortures from stomach pains.
Insists on Post-Mortem
On the 27th of April, he tells the doctor that he insists on a post-mortem examination, especially of the stomach. Then he dictates a report of his own death, the date left blank, and instructs Count Montholon one of the few left with him, to sign it.
On the 29th after a feverish night, he dictates two communications. Then he says, "I feel so wonderfully well now; I could go for a thirty-mile ride." The next day he becomes cold and sinks into a delirium which lasts five days. Once during this time he regains consciousness and issues orders.
The following day he babbles about Corsica and his youth. He bequeaths his son a house he does not own—his man who has won and lost half the earth. And now again he becomes the soldier. He is on his first campaign . . . in Italy. The ghosts of his comrades-in-arms come before him: "Desaix! Massena! Victory is ours! Quick! Forward! We have them . . ."
The last night is one of horror. As dawn breaks he murmurs in his delirium: "France! Armee! Tete d'armee! Josephine!"
The next instant he springs out of bed and overpowers Montholon who is alone with him. The doctor hears the struggle and releases Montholon. The balance of the day he lies quietly. The driving rain is beating against the windows. At five o'clock the wind redoubles its fury, and two trees are uprooted. Then the skies clear. At the same moment the patient's body becomes rigid. His eyes stare widely into space. The face shows no sign of pain. As the red ball of the tropical sun drops into the sea, Napoleon draws his last breath.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

Every well equipped kitchen should have a tool chest for the housewife. With the proper tools she could make many needed repairs which she would so often like to do rather than call in a carpenter, plumber or electrician, as the case may be, and have the attendant annoyance.
The tool chest need not be large or elaborate. A small section of the kitchen cabinet can be devoted to it or a drawer in the cupboard or pantry. It should, however, provide a place for every tool which will be needed.
Those most frequently used in the kitchen are a hammer, screwdriver, monkey wrench, pliers, and, possibly, an awl. A few nails, screws, hooks, washers, a bit of wire and an oil can will inspire the homemaker to attempt her own simple repairing at once instead of waiting for a handy man.
DO YOU KNOW THAT:
1. A flaring flame and rapid boiling waste gas and do not hasten cooking?
2. Salt should not be added to the water in which delicate green vegetables are cooked until they are almost done?
3. To preserve the color, greens should be cooked in an uncovered pan?
4. Small amounts of left-over vegetables may be combined and cooked together to make delicious cream soups?
5. In preparing head lettuce if the core is cut out and the head held under cold running water the leaves will drop off whole?
ANGEL'S DELIGHT
2 cups of flour
3 teaspoons of baking powder
1/2 teaspoon of salt
1/4 cup of lard
1/2 cup (or less) of milk
Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening and moisten with milk. Put out to half inch thickness on a floured board. Bake in two pans for fifteen minutes in a hot oven.
Butter cakes and put together with crushed, sweetened berries between and on top.
Topping
Whip two egg whites, add two tablespoons of sugar and whip until mixture will hold its shape. Add four tablespoons of sugar very slowly beating constantly until very stiff. Fold in 12 or 15 marshmallows cut up and pile lightly on top of cake.
RASPBERRY AND PEACH SALAD
4 peaches
1 banana
1/2 cup of raspberries
Mix the fruit and sprinkle with a little sugar. Let stand until just before serving. Mix in lightly a dressing of 1/4 cup (or less) of mayonnaise. Serve on a crisp lettuce leaf and sprinkle with raspberries.
This recipe will serve three or four persons.

A HOT NIGHT
One hot night last week a local man placed an electric fan at the foot of his bed. The idea, of course, was to insure a night of peace and comfort. But—
Half way through a cord of wood he struck a knot and reached for better footing. He reached a bit too far and the fan seized the opportunity that comes but once.
For blocks around, depending upon their distance from the unearthly roar, neighbors crawled under their beds or searched frantically in cobwebby closets for grandpoo's muzzle-loader.
After his wife came out of her faint she spent an hour reassembling fan blades and toes.
Another hour on the telephone, by which time the police force was beginning to trickle back into town, and she was ready for bed—preferably one in a hospital.
The fan, in a safe place this time, didn't work so well, but this was attributed to her excitement, her lack of mechanical experience and working under a poor light. It wasn't until morning, when he couldn't get on one shoe, that the real reason was discovered. She had put one of his toes on the fan and one of the fan blades on his foot!
It was then too late to do anything about it, so he bent the blade back under his foot to enable him to wear a shoe. It was awkward for a bit but that soon passed. And then he made the pleasing discovery that he was doubly blessed. The toe he lost was the one with a corn, and the new arrangement made a perfect fitting, permanent arch support—Tri-County Advertiser (Ohio).

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

The Ford V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.
That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip—to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

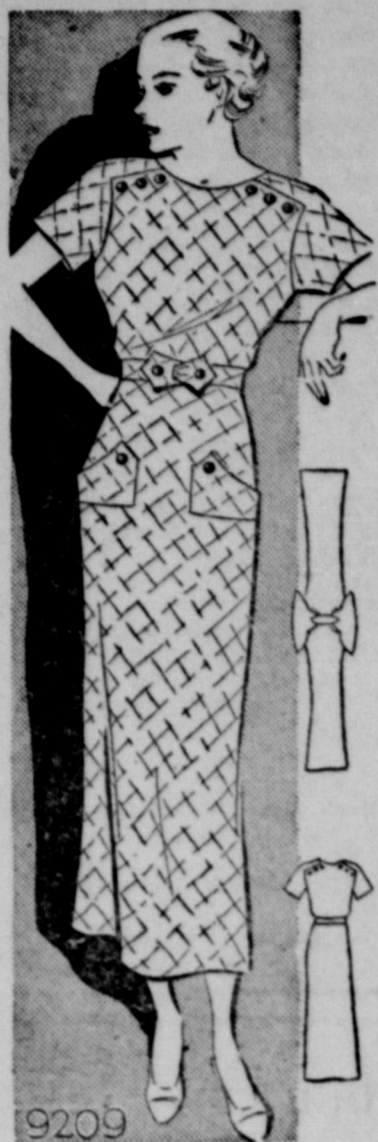

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

CHIC HOUSE FROCK WINS POPULARITY

PATTERN 9209

Your personal appearance about the house gets a new assurance of chic when you select this cleverly cut frock! A new slant on the popular yoke-sleeve is featured bringing the bodice up to form a round neckline and diagonal shoulder line! The three buttons are a clever way of accenting the new slant. The unusual pockets boast a button for good measure too, and you can see by the diagram that the frock is easy enough for a beginner to make! A printed cotton for the housedress, but a new plaid seersucker or gingham would make a charming run-about frock!

Pattern 9209 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

American Boy Magazine

Is Loaded with Adventure
 "We try to make a subscription to
 'THE AMERICAN BOY,' states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor, "a round-trip ticket to a world-wide adventure cruise."
 "Most boys cannot afford the luxury of travel but they can afford to settle down under a reading lamp and take an imaginative trip to foreign lands in American Boy stories."
 American Boy stories, during the coming year, will take readers to the atolls of the South Seas in a trading schooner, to the polar wastes behind a dog team, into the Canadian wilderness with the Mounted Police, through the Caribbean with the U. S. Navy, even to the far-away planet of Mars
 in a space ship!
 There'll be true adventures among the lions and chimpanzees of Africa with Captain Carl von Hoffman, famous explorer and ethnologist. In addition there'll be stories about the favorite characters of a million boys
 —Bonehead Jim Tierney, detective; Square Jaw Davis, engineer; Hide-rack
 the red-and-gold collie; Connie Mor-

A good cigarette, too needs Balance—

And that's why the tobaccos in Chesterfield are carefully balanced one against the other . . . not too much of one—not too little of another.

We take the right amounts of the right kinds of four types of tobacco — Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish.

It is this balancing of tobaccos that makes Chesterfields milder and makes them taste better.

No unworthy business ever lasts very long.

The pace that kills is the one that disregards all stop lights.

This paper has been serving the home community for over 30 years, a record that means much to advertisers.

When the state cannot even afford to pay pensions due old Confederate soldiers, it seems foolish to propose old age pensions plans for everybody.

Any merchant who has not tried the advertising columns of his home paper for the past six months owes it to his business to begin a schedule now. The results might surprise him.

Citizens of Texas now have protection from fraudulent stock salesmen, if they will be careful to see that the would-be salesman is registered to do business in the state. To deal with unregistered salesmen now is to invite fraud.

Every child in Texas is entitled to free Textbooks, under the present law, as long as he gets his education in the public schools, and there are many other reasons why the so-called free textbook amendment should be voted down on August 24. This is one of the most dangerous of the amendments proposed this year.

ORDER CANVASSING THE RETURNS AND DECLARING THE RESULT OF ELECTION

On this the 30th day of July, A. D. 1935, came on to be considered by the Commissioners' Court of Gray County, Texas, at a special meeting held on this day, the returns of an election held on the 20th day of July, A. D. 1935, in Justice Precinct No. 5 in Gray County, Texas, upon the question to determine whether or not the sale of beer containing not more than three and two-tenths (3.2%) per centum of alcohol by weight should be prohibited or permitted in said Justice Court Precinct No. 5 in Gray County, Texas;

And it appearing that notice of said election in said Justice Precinct No. 5 was legally made as required by law and that said election was in all respects legally held and that the returns of said election were duly and legally made by the proper officers appointed to hold the same, and it further appearing from a canvass of the returns of said election held in Justice Court Precinct No. 5 in said county, there was cast fifty-nine (59) votes "For the sale of beer containing not more than three and two-tenths (3.2%) per centum of alcohol by weight," and two hundred twenty-one (221) votes "Against the sale of beer containing not more than three and two-tenths (3.2%) per centum of alcohol by weight;" and,

It appearing to the Court that a majority of the votes cast at the election held as aforesaid were against the sale of beer containing not more than three and two-tenths (3.2%) per centum of alcohol by weight;

It is, therefore, the ORDER, JUDGMENT AND DECREE of the Court that the sale of beer containing not more than three and two-tenths (3.2%) per centum of alcohol by weight within Justice Court Precinct No. 5, in Gray County, Texas, be and the same is absolutely prohibited after thirty days from the date of this order.

THE SMALL TOWN IS BEST

One of the most encouraging facts, from the point of view of the small-town merchant, is the evidence that has come out of recent business surveys that residents of the smaller cities and rural districts supply by far the major part of their needs from the home town stores. The small town and the merchant who is the backbone of the small town still have a place in the sun. And that is fortunate, for when it comes to really happy living you have to go to the small town and the rural community to find it.—Northfield (Minn.) News.

COMMON CAUSE OF BALDNESS

One of the chief causes of premature grayness, falling hair and ultimate baldness is lack of circulation in the scalp. To overcome this and bring an abundant supply of blood to nourish the hair roots, massage scalp at night with Japanese Oil, the antiseptic counter-irritant. Bosses Hire People with Halitosis

People who get and keep their breath fresh

With the best to choose from, players favor the person who breathes. In business life, it is halitosis (unpleasant breath) that is the worst of faults. Unfortunately everybody has many more regular breathers than you think. Your breath becomes sweet and pleasant when you use Listerine. The quick, pleasant way to breathe is to use Listerine every morning and every night. Listerine kills germs that cause odors, and overcomes the cause of bad breath. Your breath becomes sweet and pleasant when you use Listerine. If you value your job and your health, the safe anti-germ Listerine is the best. Listerine is sold by all drug stores and by the Listerine Company, New York.

HAVING NONE OF HER OWN

By RUTH H. MYERS

ANY woman is a mother though she has no child. Marbeth could have managed a dozen and loved it; an inefficient waste of good energy that she was a seamstress married with only the children for customers to contact. As she expected, the baby stopped crying at once and received Jum-Jum with open arms. But Mrs. Pendell demurred. "I hate to let him get the upper hand—so young." Still, it was a relief to have him quiet. "He's just a baby," Marbeth said. "It's really better to work around them when they're so little." After his dinner George had gone to sleep with Jum-Jum still in his arms. "But Marbeth's going to make him that new coat tomorrow," his mother warned him, "and you mustn't cry." Marbeth had seen George's hold on the elephant tight; but that was all right. She knew there would be no more scenes tomorrow. For at midnight when the house was quiet and George in a sound sleep, Marbeth stole into the nursery and cautiously drew the elephant out of the baby's relaxed arms. Back in her own room hurriedly and competently she laid the old pieces for a pattern on the new cloth, cut them out and, since she dared not use the sewing machine, set herself to the long, tedious task of back stitching and felling the seams by hand. The clock downstairs chimed three. But Jum-Jum was done at last and a smart, swank beast he was! Still benign, still benevolent, but with a well tailored elephant-gray hide, firm legs (Marbeth had reinforced them with skewers) and a gorgeous, ornate, red and orange howdah blanket where ladies might ride. She crept down the hall back into the nursery and seated Jum-Jum on his haunches atop a fold of blanket with the tip of his new trunk touching George's outspread palm. His pleased cry of surprise wakened Marbeth in the morning out of her heavy first slumber. She heard him with a satisfaction that was followed by a sharp twinge of something like jealousy. For it was his mother he was calling—"Ma-na! Jum-Jum! Jum-Jum!"

"Why, you're terrible, George! I never saw him act so." And over Marbeth's protests she snatched the baby up and carried him across to the nursery, closing the door with finality. The screams and choking gasps did not diminish in the slightest, nor George's sobbing "No-no-no-ma-ma!" It was 3 a. m. and Marbeth by the dressing table lamp was just finishing Jum-Jum's fringed tail. Distressed at the futile clash of wills across the hall she had at last basted Jum-Jum's ear back in place and at the risk of Mrs. Pendell's disapproval carried the elephant to George. As she expected, the baby stopped crying at once and received Jum-Jum with open arms. But Mrs. Pendell demurred. "I hate to let him get the upper hand—so young." Still, it was a relief to have him quiet. "He's just a baby," Marbeth said. "It's really better to work around them when they're so little." A WALLED PARADISE

The Ideal Life in Malawa.

TRAVELER, novelist, naturalist, poet and philosopher have dreamed consistently of a "lost land." They haven't wanted to find it because it would then no longer be "lost." They merely wanted proof of its existence. There would be the setting for flights of fiction and fancy. There would be the locale of romance supreme and undiluted by fact. It would be peopled by the fabled "lost tribe." It may be the valley of Malawa, on the island of Molokai, right within the boundaries of the United States. Few have ever seen it but it is known to be there, a walled Paradise, almost as virgin in primitive peace and plenty as if it were the Garden of Eden rediscovered. What is known as civilization has not yet dawned there. Steps have been taken to prevent it from dawning. Even the birds have not learned the almost universal lesson of animate life—that the struggle for existence leads to natural enmity, pitting one species and one tribe in a conflict against another. An isolated Eden. The people are in the same blissful state of isolation. They want nothing from outside and no one yet has shown a desire to get what they have. Impassable walls of rock shut them out from the land. A rift gives them an outlook upon the calm Pacific. Ships pass but do not stop. Occasionally an airplane blots the blue sky but never lands. Buffalo and deer are the only strangers that have ever invaded this quiet valley since its known history first began. The people, so far as they can tell, came with Nuu, the Hawaiian Noah. Nuu brought very few animals except the song birds. The buffalo and deer have been introduced since Captain Cook discovered the islands. The hunter has not followed them into Malawa. It has been too difficult and hard to have been so abundant in the open parts of Molokai that there has been no inducement. Malawa wears the purple robes of a royal domain. Sheer walls, rich in varied tones, that extend from blue to orange, rise abruptly from the floor, festooned richly with loops of swinging vine and plumed with arboreal verdure. Over a vertical precipice at the head of the valley two streams pour their crystal waters, the treble melody of the singing birds supported by the diapason harmony of thundering falls. Purchased for Preservation. The few families of Polynesians dwelling here have maintained the simple customs and habits of their ancestors. They are as unconcerned with the world outside as are the birds and animals. They are practically unaware that they have been "discovered." The pineapple and sugar planter passed them by in the general invasion of the islands. Their own little Eden supplies all their wants. All that is necessary to their happiness is that they be left alone. Civilization, however, like nature, abhors a vacuum and even a lost land had to have protection from being found. Some weak spot in the Malawa walls might have developed but for their recent reinforcement. Mr. and Mrs. Paul I. Fagan, of California and Hawaii, decided that the valley of Malawa must be left, if possible, as a legacy to the future. They have purchased the 3000 acres for the purpose of maintaining it in its primitive state without any further development. The price paid was $100,000.

Italy is building a new city—Guidonia. Recently, Littoria, Sabaudia, Pontinia and Mussolinia, new towns which were built as rural centers, appeared in the news headlines. Now Guidonia, named in honor of Alessandro Guidoni, one of Italy's most famous pilots, who was killed in an airplane disaster in 1928, basks in the spotlight of Italy's city-building program. Guidonia is only 16 miles from Rome, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. Aviation caused its construction, and according to plan, aviation will dominate its industries. It will, in fact, be a giant aviation laboratory manned by scientists and laymen whose first interest is research and experimentation in aviation. No airplanes or airplane motors will be built there, but in its laboratories will be found the most modern equipment for making all sorts of experiments on model airplanes. One part of the "laboratory" will be devoted entirely to research on flying in the stratosphere. When the city is completed, officials and employees will live in comfortable homes and work in a carefully planned buildings. There will be churches, a city hall, schools, and construction and other shops. Most interesting, perhaps, of the completed buildings are the mysterious looking towers in which model airplanes already are being tested. In the Radio pavilion, scientists now experiment with the use of radio in aviation. In the three-story building of the Superior Board for Studies and Experiments, intensive study is being made of air photography and of the many instruments used in airplanes. In other buildings tests are made on motors, and the speed of hydroplanes. The Aerodynamical galleries are equipped with ventilators worked by 450 horsepower motors that cause winds of strong velocity to test the strength of model airplanes. Harvest All Year 'Round While wheat harvest in this nation runs from May in Texas to August in the Dakotas, wheat is harvested in some part of the world every month of the year. In January, Australia New Zealand and Chili harvest; in February and March, East India and Upper Egypt; in April, Lower Egypt, Syria, Cyprus, Persia, Asia Minor India, Mexico and Cuba; in May, Algeria, Central Asia, China, Japan Morocco. In full months wheat is harvested in August in Belgium, Holland Great Britain, Poland, Canada; in September and October, in Scotland Sweden, Norway and Russia; in November, in Peru, South Africa and Argentina; in December, Burma and Argentina. Daily Population Increase It is estimated that the daily increase in the population of the United States amounts to one person every 3 seconds, based on the 1930 census. This average is one birth every 14 seconds—one death every 22 seconds, one immigrant every 12 minutes, one emigrant every seven minutes. Nicotine in Tobacco The average amount of nicotine in tobacco varies from 2 to 8 per cent. The average is about 4 per cent. The larger quantity is the best Havana cigars contain more than 2 per cent, and a Turkish tobacco contains 8 per cent.

Seminole Now Willing to "Bury the Hatchet"

The last of the Indian wars is coming to an end. The flame of battle that was lit in 1835, when the Seminoles under Osceola struck the war post in answer to the white man's dictum that they must move out of their ancestral hunting grounds, raged fiercely for a few years. Then, with Osceola dead and their allies defeated, the remnant of the once mighty Seminole nation retreated unconquered to the cypress swamps of the Everglades. There they have maintained their freedom and independence for a hundred years, never acknowledging defeat and never asking a peace treaty. Those who submitted were driven across the Mississippi to the arid plains of Indian Territory, and, by some inscrutable irony of fate, fell heir to the richest oil lands in the world. The story of that sad march to the West is one of the blackest marks among all our unhalloved dealings with the Indians. Thousands were said to have perished of hardship on the cruel trek to the Mississippi and those who survived were met with the hostile incursions of the plains tribes. How their tribal gods must laugh to see the once beaten and harried Seminoles and Cherokee, buying their high-priced automobiles by the half-dozen, or pitching their teepees on the lawns of their many-roomed mansions. But the Everglades have been good to the unreconcilables who remained behind to nurse their pride and live their own lives under their own chiefs. And their pride is justified; they are the only natives who successfully withstood the assaults of the white man. After a war which came to a stalemate in 1843, and which cost the United States $10,000,000 and thousands of lives, they still maintain a culture which was old before Ponce de Leon came looking for the fabled Fountain of Youth. During all these years the Seminole brave has been able to supply his cooking pot from the game that abounds in the marshes, and to buy his simple needs from the proceeds of the alligator hunt. They are the last of the Indian tribes to "hunt their own meat." Once a great agricultural and pastoral people, none of the land over which they now range is fit for planting or grazing. At the height of their power they had 150,000 head of cattle feeding on their lands and were the owners of 800 slaves. Now, with the failure of the market for pelts andigator hides they tender the peace pipe to Uncle Sam, and with it the suggestion that they be added to the relief rolls. The forces of the depression have combined to bring about what 100 years of technical warfare and a life of primitive hardship in the swampy plains of Florida were unable to do. —Detroit Free Press.

Smokers! Try one! It makes the next smoke taste better. CONSTANT SMOKER Most men that smoke a lot have what we call "fuzzy tongues" and don't know it! Smoking stops the flow of saliva in the mouth and you get too much acid in your system. Makes you feel sluggish and lousy. The best way to lick the acids and still keep smoking is by taking MILNESIA wafers twice a day. Your mouth will always feel clean and fresh and you always have your usual pep. MILNESIA Wafers neutralize the excess acids that cause indigestion, heartburn and sick headaches. Each Wafer is a full adult dose, children—one-quarter to one-half. Pleasant to take. Recommended by thousands of physicians—At All Good Druggists. Economical, too! Each Milnesia package contains more Magnesium Hydroxide than all other liquid forms. London Smart Set Dances in "The Morgue" Resort

"The Morgue" is the name of London's popular night club, says a United Press correspondent. In an atmosphere of coffins, tombstones, skulls, ghouls and "things that go bump in the night," the smart folk dance until the small hours of the morning. The correct thing for visitors to do is to toast the skulls and compose a humorous epitaph for one of the tombstones. On the ground floor of the club is a pleasantly lit room called "Seventh Heaven," with the usual tiny dance floor and bored jazz bands that can be seen in any night club anywhere. In the dark corner is a dimly lit staircase that leads down to "The Morgue." As the timid visitor descends he is greeted with a wall from some hidden streen that would put any self-respecting ghost to shame. On every wall of the long eerie room are painted graves and tombstones, each one headed "R. I. P." Doggerel proclaims the merits or demerits of "the old toper" alleged to be buried beneath. Ruins of churches, with bats flying from the walls, and gruesome pictures of bodies torn from their graves and lying naked on stone slabs—the work of one of the younger and modern school of artists, it is said—form the "mural" decoration. A score of black coffins with imitation brass handles and fittings painted on their sides are the tables at which the guests sit. A massive mausoleum hung with wreaths of evergreen is at the far end. It bears a plate to the effect that some aged Londoner "who had once refused a drink" lies buried below. And on a square of polished floor, beneath imitation cobwebs and grinding skulls, society dances until dawn to music relayed from "Seventh Heaven." Vitality of Plant Life The vitality of plant life is shown by a fig tree standing in a jungle grown over a military park near the ancient city of Marshabed, India. A giant in cannon—17 feet in length, 5 feet in circumference and 8 1/2 tons in weight—is horizontally imbedded in its trunk several feet from the ground. Apparently, writes Grace Hatfield, Santa Barbara, Calif., in Collier's Weekly, the tree met the gun when growing up and decided to take it along. Young Quail Are Active The quail is one of the few birds that run as soon as hatched. He can make short flights when he is a week old. The down on the chick disappears when they are about five weeks old and until then it is almost impossible to determine the sex. From the beginning they develop the difference which is shown in the song.

GRAY COUNTY COTTON

While the cotton income of Gray county farmers was much less in 1934 than in 1933, and even less than in the disastrous year of 1932, it was nearly 55% higher than it would have been had there been no adjustment program, it is announced by Ralph R. Thomas, county agent. The statement is based on official three-year county figures just received from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Gray county farmers last year received a total of $92,688.01 for their cotton, of which only $60,039.24 came from market value. Benefit payments, which are designed to help bridge the gap between market price and parity in price in normal years, served as crop insurance to Gray county farmers in 1934. They received in this way a total of $32,648.77 thru April 30th, last.

These cotton income figures do not include the value of unsold Bankhead certificates of which about nine million dollars' worth are held by Texas farmers.

Gray county cotton was valued on the farm at $98,551.98 in 1932. It increased sharply in 1933, the plow-up year, to $212,982.59, including benefit payments. These values are based upon yields and prices as furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture. The benefit payments include all those prior to April 30, 1935.

Commenting on Gray county cotton income for the last three years as revealed in these official figures, Mr. Thomas points out that crop insurance benefit payments for 1934-35 enabled farmers to survive a bad-crop year. Nearly 35 thousand dollars more was put into local circulation than would have been possible without a program. It is difficult to see how farmers could have maintained their farms and homes and remained customers of merchants last year without the program, he concludes.

COTTON RELIEVES RELIEF

Special to The News.
Austin, Aug. 13.—As the cotton picking season gradually spreads over Texas, Relief Commission officials are reemphasizing their demands that every available cotton picker be taken off the relief rolls and told to get a cotton sack.

District administrators have been told to see that no able-bodied relief client be allowed to stay on the relief rolls so long as there is a job for him in the cotton fields.

Despite pest infestation, the cotton crop in Texas is a "pretty well" appreciably large, it is indicated, and relief officials insist that there be a commensurate drop in the relief load in cotton picking areas.

What effect getting off Federal Emergency Administration rolls now to pick cotton will have on a client's chances of being certified to the Work Progress Administration rolls late in the fall when the cotton picking season is over, has been explained thus: It will not jeopardize his chances at all. Any unemployed able-bodied person who was on the FERA rolls in May this year and is registered with the National Reemployment Service is automatically eligible for a job with the WPA. The minute a cotton picker or anyone else who was a relief client in May has worked himself out of a job in private employment, he becomes eligible to work on WPA projects.

In view of this and the sharp reduction in relief funds, Relief Commission officials are insisting that relief rolls in heavy cotton producing areas should be reduced by as much as 50% if not more during the cotton picking season.

HOUDINI

The story is told of a truck driver who, on his day off, went hunting. A terrible storm came up. He looked about for shelter, but there was none. It began to rain in torrents, so he crawled into a hollow log. It fitted snugly.

The rain lasted for hours, and the water soaked through the wood. The log swelled and the hollow grew smaller and smaller. When the storm was over, the hunter could not get out. He stretched and strained to no avail. He was held tight.

Like a drowning man, he saw his whole life flash before him, especially his mistakes. He realized what a traffic chiseler he had been—how he had speeded when he knew he might run down a child; how he had hogged the road; how he had woven in and out of traffic; how he had jumped the lights and disregarded stop signs, endangering the lives of all his fellow motorists.

And BELIEVE IT OR NOT, when he saw himself in his true light for the first time, he felt so small he was able to crawl out of the log without difficulty.—The Safe Driver, courtesy C. J. Cash.

Selfish, self-centered people—people who are satisfied with things as they are, who are not imbued with the spirit of progress—are not assets to a growing community. They merely take up space that should be occupied by progressive, unselfish citizens that could and would help the community grow and prosper.—McDowell (Va.) News.
