A PERSONAL WORD
We are looking forward to the meeting of our Association the 6th and 7th of September. A week from the day this word goes to press our first session convenes. We are hoping to have one of the best meetings the Association has experienced since its organization. One can easily see from the suggested program that the committee has done its best to arrange an interesting and most valuable program. There are several unusual items which will prove most valuable and interesting.

Our church is doing its best to arrange every item which might contribute to the good comfort of everyone who attends. All meals will be served free to all who attend. Homes will be furnished those who will come and remain in McLean Thursday night. There will be a nursery for mothers with tired babies, and a play time each afternoon for children of primary age. We extend a very cordial invitation to everyone in the Association, as well as visiting friends, to attend every session and to feel the warmth of McLean's hospitality.

Sincerely, CECIL G. GOFF, Pastor.

MINISTERS EXTEND WELCOME
The North Fork Baptist Association is composed of twenty-seven churches in Collingsworth, Wheeler and Gray counties. These churches had a combined membership of 4328 when they met a year ago. The membership gain reported last year at their annual meeting was 803. We take this opportunity to welcome them to our city for their 21st annual meeting of their organization. We trust that this meeting will prove to be the conclusion of the best year's work in the life of the body.

Modern Trends

By O. L. D. Timer

It is the consensus of opinion that we are in a transitory state of existence and the question is whether we are advancing or retrograding. When it comes to science and mechanics we are without a doubt making great progress, but there is some doubt as to whether it will compensate for the lower trend of character and our lower standards of religion and honesty. There was a time when if a person wanted to know what was right and wrong he consulted the Bible or some of the old philosophers, but the modern trend is to make your own standard to fit the occasion, if it will make you a few dollars, and ignore the ten commandments and reverse the golden rule, and as a result of that course of action we are in the present chaotic condition. There was a time when a man considered his home the joy and pride of his heart, but it seems that it fails to satisfy him as of yore, and a great many men just use their home as a place to eat and sleep, and seek some other place for enjoyment and amusement. Can it be that modern woman has become so incompatible that a man will seek the company of a bunch of stags assembled in a place where only stags congregate, where the air is reeking with tobacco smoke, and come out relaxed and refreshed with a stronger determination to win life's complicated battle?

It may be that woman has become so mannish and masculine that man is becoming disgusted with her and feels better when he is out of her presence. Time was when a man took pride in tipping his hat to a woman, and I believe he really admired her, but I believe it would give him the headache to tip his hat to a modern painted up, cigarette smoking, beer drinking specimen of femininity as he walks down the street in her blatant, complacent manner. I once heard a small boy whose folks had moved to a new place and who had asked his mother "When are we going home?" and being told that he was at home right then, give vent to the expression that this is not home but just a house. And the modern trend is to have just a house instead of a real home.

George Washington fought and worked with all the power of his might to free America from taxation without representation and then donated his services to the colonies and would not take any pay, but the modern trend is to pluck the government for everything you can possibly get, and then hold your mouth open like a little bird in a nest for more, and a result our indebtedness has passed the wartime peak and is still climbing by leaps and bounds.

It reminds me of the time Mr. Corn married Miss Cobb and they sang a song at the wedding entitled "What Shall the Harvest Be?" and at the conclusion one old pessimistic farmer shouted: "Nubbins!" and before this is all over we may not have even nubbins but just shucks.

The modern trend of people is to leave the farm and concentrate in centers of population, but when Arthur Brisbane's modern fleet of bombing planes starts dropping bombs these same people will have cause to repent in sackcloth and ashes.

But the most modern and most detrimental trend is to ignore and defy the teachings and admonitions of the Bible and old philosophers and make our own standards of right and wrong to serve our own self interests, and unless we right about face we are headed for the iceberg of retribution and a Titanic disaster.

He—"See that man over there? He's a bombastic mutt, a windjammer nonentity, a false alarm a hot-air shrimp, a—"

She—"Would you mind writing that down for me?"

He—"Why so?"

She—"He's my husband and I want to use it on him some time."

Wife—"Of course, women are as capable as men. Why, I know a girl of twenty-two who gets the salary of a sales manager in a big business house."

Husband—"I don't doubt it, my dear. When did she marry him?"

Mr. Nayber—"Have you anything growing in your garden this summer?"

Mr. Gardener—"Yes, several varieties."

Mr. Nayber—"What, for instance?"

Mr. Gardener—"Mostly Plymouth Rocks, White Leghorns and Rhode Island Reds."

"We are literally scouring the country to find good subjects for our films," said the great movie magnate.

"Why don't you scour some of those you already have?" asked a critic.

A state game warden from Amarillo was in town Tuesday and stated to the News editor that hunters should be advised that the new tax on duck hunters is strictly a Federal law and in no way takes the place of the state hunters license. Hunters must have both licenses to shoot ducks.

sent educator, a stickler for correct English, was caught kissing the cook, by his own wife.

"I am surprised—" his wife began. "Wrong again, my dear," Prof. Turney interrupted. "You are astonished and I am surprised."

Doctor—"You must avoid all forms of excitement."

Male Patient—"But, doctor, can't I even look at them on the street?"

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Dickenson and daughter were in Shamrock Sunday.

Etiquete—A French word meaning label or ticket. Just as a label on a package tells what the contents are, so etiquette or good manners tell us what kind of person anyone is, from the standpoint of good breeding.

Vajda—"What do you think about government ownership?"

Geezer—"I think it's a great thing. When the government owns and runs everything it'll have to pay all the taxes itself."

Lady Customer in shoe store—"Of course, I want them comfortable, but at the same time good looking and attractive."

Clerk—"Yes, madam, I understand—large inside and small outside."

She—"What is it that men like about us old-fashioned girls?"

He—"The fact that you're gradually disappearing."

Frederic—"Mother can I go out and play?"

Mother—"You may play with the little girls, but not with the boys; the little boys are too rough."

Evelyn—"But, mother, if I can find a nice smooth little boy, can I play with him?"

Mrs. Jones—"Men are such liars about ages."

Mrs. Smith—"Why, what do you mean?"

Mrs. ——"Well, when a woman tells them she is 23 they say, 'Why you don't look that old.'"

"Twas in a restaurant they met, Romeo and Juliet. He had no cash to pay the debt, So Romeo'd for what Juliet set."

Husband (coming home late)—"Can you guess where I've been?"

Wife—"I can. But go ahead and tell your story."

"Tough—"Lend me a five spot for a week, old man."

Go—"Maybe, but first you will have to tell me who the weak old man is."

Mrs. C. C. Bogan, Mrs. Donald Beall, Mrs. Byrd Gull, Mrs. W. L. Campbell and Miss Dorothy Cantrell were in Shamrock one day last week.

Misses Winnifred and Laura Lee Howard were Amarillo visitors Friday.

S. S. Lesson

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

MICAH CHAMPIONS THE OPPRESSED

Lesson text, Micah 6:1-12. Golden text, Micah 6:8. The lesson for this week takes up the message of another prophet, Micah. Both Judah and Israel are in the decline. Sin has not been forgiven. The messages of previous prophets have had little effect on the living of the people. Nevertheless God is not willing to finally destroy His people without keeping before them the warning of their ultimate doom.

Micah was born in Moresheth-Gath, a small town located some 15 or 30 miles southwest of Jerusalem. As far as we can discern, he was of very poor parentage. The name of his father is not given. Amos and Hosea he was not of the priestly line, and no relation to the recognized prophets of the time. He was born where he could see life as it was. The place where he was reared looked out across the great sea, was within reach of both Jerusalem and Samaria, and was near the great highway over which all the north and south trade between Egypt and the Euphrates passed. An observant youth could learn much under these circumstances.

On the other hand, his parents were doubt faithful servants of Jehovah that they named him Micah, which means "who is like Jehovah?" It would seem that the hand of God was in the home of his birth and in rearing, preparing a man for work.

Micah prophesied during the reign of three kings of Judah: Jotham, Azariah and Hezekiah. It is possible that his prophetic ministry was over a period of sixty years. The short-time that it could have been and he touched the reign of all of these kings would have been sixteen years. There was no uncertainty in the mind of the prophet concerning God's call. So definite was it that he said he "saw" the message that was to deliver. His message was as definite and certain as the word of God to preach that message.

Dr. Siemp says concerning the messages we have been studying: "He proclaims God's eternal righteousness; Hosea, God's persistent love; Micah, God's absolute holiness and sovereignty. Micah, also emphasizes these important truths, adds to them a fourth—God's concern for the poor in the land." Micah's great was for the people to practice their lives a like love which God is willing to show them. In the fifth verse of the lesson text we find these words: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." We recognize that if men would follow this example, God's blessings would ever rest upon them and their personal problems would be over.

In his writing Micah emphasizes these things: the sentence of judgment, the guilt of sin, and the promise of blessing. At two points the prophet is very definite and clear concerning the destruction of Samaria, the birthplace of the Messiah. The message of Micah is based on the sin of the people. He pictures their sins very vividly. As we have seen in the previous lessons there came the time in the land when there were just two classes, the rich and the poor. As time went on the situation became worse. The rich were always ready to forego their rights (to use a modern term) on the promise that they would take their land. This had gone on until the second class had done of its own but misery and poverty, debts and sorrow. Such a situation is never the will of God. Always comes about because of the sin of the people.

The people, both rich and poor, had fallen into idol worship, pleasure-loving, and ceremonial religion. In conditions had brought their troubles. When one analyzes them it seems that the diagnosis of their trouble was very similar to our modern situation. The people of modern times are wiser and able to fight a situation more effectively. In the long run the only power that can heal a nation's stripes is the power of God. Political legislation by the people or otherwise is trying to cure a headache by pulling the hair. There is a seat of the trouble. A doctor goes immediately to the cause. There was no Micah went, and there is no need to go today. All our problems. It didn't then, doesn't now. Crop destruction is overcome a surplus, but it is to add very materially to the trouble. God is the only way.

But, as the prophet told the people, judgment was to come. When a nation finds itself in the grasp of a social, political, or economic problem, it is because the structure of the nation has molded the hearts of the people in that direction. To right the condition with God affects all the people and the very structure of their thinking and the make-up of the nation with all of its laws. This is a difficult thing when men are a long way from God. As a rule they go on doing the best they can themselves, and in the end fail without God, but with His wrath upon them. So did Judah and Israel. Will we as a nation follow their example? God holds out to us, as to them, the remedy for sin and sorrow. We face our own destiny—with or without God's blessings.

Good Coffee Need not Be Unusual
Good coffee is easy to make when one uses the proper methods. However, for uniform results uniform methods must be used. Temperature and time play an important part in coffee making.
In making coffee electrically the equipment is designed to give you exactly the correct amount of heat. Burnt coffee is impossible with an electric percolator. Just watch the time necessary for the process and perfect coffee is inevitable.
With the new electric coffee maker the trouble of watching the time element of coffee making has been eliminated. The coffee is simply placed in the bottom of this simple device. The process is sealed to hold all delicate aromas. The electricity is then switched on and the process of making the most delicate coffee known completes itself.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation, which may appear in the columns of this paper will be gladly corrected upon due notice of same being given to the editor personally at the office at 210 Main Street, McLean, Texas.

May we remind you that The News is the only newspaper that cares a snap about this community.

The meeting of Baptists will be the biggest convention to be held in McLean this year, and any assistance in making visitors to our community welcome will be appreciated.

Red Cross officials will appreciate your clipping the ballots in this paper and mailing, or handing them in each week. You are entitled to vote if you have any interest in the community.

We can't see that a person under the influence of liquor looks any different to what they did in the old saloon days. Personally, we had rather see the old time saloons than the conditions that exist now.

Delegates to the Baptist Association will judge our town before arriving by the appearance of this newspaper. All towns are so judged by non-residents. The delegates will spend some money while in our town, and we hope they will trade with the advertisers who make it possible for McLean to have a newspaper.

Rain has made a big difference in the way we look at things. It is easy to see the optimism now, as compared with pessimistic forebodings last week.

The truth is that we are more dependent upon providence than most of us are willing to admit. We can plan, but we must have the assistance of a kind providence, if our plans are to work out like we want them to.

Mud slinging indulged in by candidates and their friends must stop, or in a few years no good man will dare offer himself for office.

There is no excuse for running on the alleged demerits of an opponent. The only fair way is to run on one's own merits, but it seems that voters have reached the place where they will not support a candidate that does not "pour it on" his opponent.

There was a time in the past when the North Fork Baptist Association ordered their minutes printed outside the association, despite the fact that they were no cheaper and many errors were made in spelling names that a local printer would not have made.

We respectfully suggest that home newspapers are anxious to cooperate with all the churches in the matter of giving them free publicity, and they have a right to expect consideration on printing orders.

The editor of this paper takes no responsibility for opinions expressed by other writers in the paper. The editor's opinions are confined strictly to this column each week.

This explanation seems to be necessary about every so often.

as some of our readers still seem to think that the editor is responsible for every opinion expressed in the paper. We are glad to have other opinions in the paper, but that does not mean that we endorse everything others write, any more than others endorse everything the editor writes.

Much of the advertising for this edition of the home paper was sold by Pastor Goff and his assistants of the First Baptist Church, as a means of helping finance the entertaining of the Baptist association here next week, and the paper is being put in each home in the community. Hundreds of our readers will receive two copies this week, but we wanted to be sure that every family in the community had a chance to read the paper this week.

To those who may not be reading the home paper regularly, we invite you to join our family of readers; if you do not have the money to spare right now, we have a plan whereby you may trade farm produce for a subscription.

No one dress is correct for all occasions. Nor is any one fragrance! ... The clever woman of today chooses her perfumes as she chooses her costumes—to express the spirit of the hour!

It is for her that the makers of Outdoor Girl have created three enchanting new odors, scientifically blended to match the three major moods of the day.

"Dawn" is the scent-harmony of early morning... a veritable bouquet of Spring itself, coaxed from the rarest flowers. "Noon" complements the spirit of sports... a light fragrance, slightly more pronounced in odor. "Night" breathes the magic and mystery of star-studded skies... a seductive extract in perfect key with the feminine mood of romance.

MUST PUT SOMETHING IN

We heard of a merchant the other day who complained that he couldn't see that the local newspaper was bringing any business to town. Upon investigation it was discovered that he was not advertising in that paper.
That merchant is not unlike the editor who doesn't see what good it will do him to join his state press association. Maybe he, too, needs to put something into the association if he would really learn what can be gotten out of it.—Colorado

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

A little East Side New York kid had his Boston aunt visiting with him at Central Park. The boy sighted a sparrow in a tree and cried, "Oh, Auntie, look at the bird."

She corrected him, saying, "That's no bird, that's no bird, that's a BIRD."

"Gee," he replied, "it looks just like a bird."

Stranger (to Relief Roller)—"How do you manage to kill time?"

Relief Roller—"I don't have to kill time; I just let it die a natural death."

SHE OUGHT TO KNOW

Bill was pugnacious, but he didn't live long. A few days after his funeral his widow was hanging pensively over the front gate. A neighbor came along.

"Well, poor Bill," she began, "he'll be hittin' the harp with the angels."
"Not he," said the widow. "More likely he'll be hittin' the angels with the harp."

Wemys—"Do you know any reliable rule to figure the cost of living?"

Powys—"Yes. You take your income for the year, whatever it is,
and then add 25% to it."

Poet—"I wish to submit a poem of mine."

Editor—"All right, but I'm very busy now. Won't you please throw it into the waste basket yourself?"

Mrs. Enloe Crisp of Alanreed was in McLean Saturday.

always make me feel I am making a fool of myself."

Chubb—"I know; everybody feels the same way."

Eunice—"I think they are well matched, don't you?"

Beryl—"Yes; she's a grass widow and he's a vegetarian."

Sam Brown of Lefors was in Mc-Lean Saturday.

Mrs. L. L. Palmer of Alanreed was

Owen and Miss Opal Moore were in Pampa Friday.

"Why is it that you fat men are always good natured?" someone once asked President Taft.
Mr. Taft replied: "We have to be good natured, seeing that we can neither fight nor run."

"McSwat is always thinking of others, isn't he?"

"Yes, thinking how he can get them to do something for him."

Rhodes—"Did Weed take his misfortune like a man?"

Bassler—"Yes, he blamed it all on his wife."

A politician can't get elected without stating the reasons why he should get the votes. How can a business expect to be elected to success, unless it tells the people the reasons why it should be patronized?

"Lady, could youse give me a quarter to get me where my family is?"

"Certainly, my good man, here's a quarter. Where is the family?"

"At de movies."

She—"Do you know the greatest war song ever written?"

He—"Yes 'Here Comes the Bride'."

Thank You

for the confidence you placed in me in Saturday's election. I promise you in return that I shall endeavor to discharge my duties as sheriff in a spirit of co-operation for the people of Gray county. I again thank you wholeheartedly for your vote of confidence and friendship.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

I want to know how many voters changed their vote after hearing all those campaign speeches? I'm going to be honest with you and say they did not change my mind a single time.

What is the matter with Gray county voters? Why did Tom Hunter carry Gray county and Jimmie Allred carry all the rest of our neighboring counties?

Folks, I've been checking up a little and have come to the conclusion that Gray county is simply overrun with Oklahomans who have moved to Texas for some reason or other, who don't know anything whatever about Texas politics or Texas history. They have been used to Jack Waltons, and Bill Murrys, Tom Anglins and Johnsons so that they honestly believed we could elect a few "Toms" in Texas, while the records of Texas show that no Tom has a chance in the world to be elected to anything in Texas, not even a tom cat. If I was going to run for anything in Texas I would want my name to be "Jim" if I was an old man, and "Jimmie" if I was young and handsome.

Folks, I'm in favor of sending these Oklahoma guys back to Oklahoma where they belong. They don't know nothing about Texas politics, and from what experience I have had with them you can't learn them anything now, especially how to vote or how to run elections.

And another thing I've got on my mind that has got to be worked out fair and honest before another election comes around, and that is to use a few women to help hold these elections so the voters and candidates can get some justice and intelligent instructions. If you think the men know more about how to vote than the women, you are strictly mistaken, and if you think a man can tell another man how to vote you are still mistaken, because the average man knows just about as much about voting as most donkeys do, and you can change their minds just about as easy as you can change a donkey's mind. While on the other hand you can show a woman how she should mark her ballot and she will follow your instructions, but the men generally speaking are a bunch of knowalls who think they are expert voters. But folks, if you want to see some real messes just get yourself a job holding an election, and you will find out.

And another thing, most women won't vote for anyone unless they are personally acquainted with the candidate. There were lots of women who just voted for commissioner, simply because they didn't know the rest of those fellows; and if you want to know something, that's a good idea. Why vote for some candidate that you don't know nothing about and when you read the papers where the candidates are all calling each other liars and rascals, where one says his opponent is being run by the "monopolies," and the opponent says no, you are not only being run by the "monopolies," but the "utilities" and chain stores are running you, and so on, it looks like there is nothing else to do but to vote against all of them.

But what I started out to say is that we need a few "wimmin" to help hold these elections so there won't be so much crooked work going on behind the lines. What's the use to vote for "John Smith" if the boys in the back of the room call it for "Bill Jones?" What we need back there, boys, is a bunch of "wimmin" who will give all the candidates and voters an honest deal.

Roger Powers came down Monday morning awful grouchy. When asked what was wrong he said he dreamed that today was September 3rd but when he woke up it was Monday, August 27th.

5 Six-Footers... and not a cramp in a Carload!

FIVE big men can relax in utter comfort on the deep cushions of the Ford V-8. Wide seats keep elbows out of ribs. Ample leg room keeps legs from being cramped.

Why? Because Ford measures roominess in terms of usable body room. Not in terms of the distance between bumpers, which means nothing when you come to analyze it.

The Ford V-8's very engine construction gives you more body room, as the diagram explains. Cylinders are "doubled-up" saving space, not strung along in a line to waste it.

See how much less space is occupied by the V-8 engine as compared with the ordinary "six" or "eight." Less space for the engine means more space for the passengers.

The Ford V-8 front seat is adjustable. It quickly and easily adapts itself to a six-foot-two husband or a five-foot-two wife. It can't forever that source of strife.

Before you buy any car at any price, drive the Ford V-8.

Text: "Some trust in chariots, and some in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord, our God."
—Psalm 20:7.

WORLD PEACE—AT WHAT PRICE?

Many essays and articles have been written on world peace and how it is to be attained. Lengthy discourses have been composed showing what nations must do in order to have international peace and concord. Disarmament conferences were held. Large expenditures were made to send envoys to various conferences. The League of Nations was formed. But even today it is only an advisory body, with no executive power. Nations at peace with each other after a war when they are trying to get back on their feet. But—as soon as one nation decides to take it out on another nation, all it needs is a design from the League of Nations to go to war—as actually happened when Japan decided to appropriate the land for itself and made advances on China about two years ago.

The question arises: at what price do we attain world peace? Will there be peace if each nation is fully armed and well prepared for any possible conflict? Or will we have to disarm totally? This is a problem confronting thousands of students of government and international law.

Some claim that if all people are properly educated and shown the horrors of war that total international peace will ensue. However, we do not think that government officials, diplomats, consuls and attaches are properly educated and yet there were regular education is not the solution to this problem. World peace is possible, yet not probable. We could have world peace if each person could receive a Christian education and live according to it. If each one of us were a Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, as the perfect example we would not have wars.

World peace will never be attained unless one chief factor which is usually omitted is wiped out, namely, sin. Sin is the cause of conflicts, and jealousy, the green-eyed monsters and dragons which are at work in this world. Trusting in chariots, horses, airplanes, battleships, submarines, bombs, shells, machine guns, artillery and "Big Berthas" is of no avail. They are only means of destruction. The weaker nations are crushed and brought to terms. But peace cannot be attained by battles and deadly weapons.

The weapon that must be used is the Gospel of Jesus Christ. If each one of us accepts the Gospel and believes in it and lives according to it, we need not fear any war. But—Bible teaches us that there is still belief and obstinacy in this world, until that discontinues we will have strikes, revolutions and wars. It is a fact and not a pessimistic opinion. How can there be international peace when there are conflicts in the homes, cities, states and nations themselves? There can be no outward unity if there is no inward unity to begin with.

According to the facts recorded in the Bible, we should expect there will be wars and conflicts until Judgment Day. However, as Christians, we are to fight against wars. In spite of all conflicts and battles, as Christians "we will remember the name of the Lord God."

NO FOOD SHORTAGE

Old and excited cries of food shortages should be stilled when it is learned that the 1934 pack of commercially canned vegetables plus canner stock is expected to be 15% more than that of 1933 and only 7% less than the five-year average when there were great surplus supplies. The canning figures will also probably show an increase over 1933 as the figures followed a rising curve several years.—Extension Service.

"More appropriate," said the long-suffering parent, "if he stood with his hand in my pocket."

Bey—"Yes, I often think that some of the songs we hear now have no words they would be a better."

FLAME OF THE BORDER by VINGIE E. ROE....
 W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY

Chapter 1.—Seeking death by throwing herself from the summit of Lone Mesa, to escape dishonor at the hands of a drunken desperado, Sonya Savarin allows herself to be rescued by her suddenly sobered and repentant attacker. The girl is a self-appointed physician to the Navajo Indians, living on an Arizona sheep ranch with her brother, Serge, his wife, Lila, and small daughter, Babs. For a year she has been engaged to Rodney Blake, wealthy New Yorker, but her heart is with the friendless Navajos and she evades a wedding.

Chapter 2.—Sonya pulls Little Moon, wife of Two Fingers, a Navajo, through the crisis of an illness. Two Fingers is deeply grateful. Returning to her brother's ranch accompanied by Rodney Blake, Sonya befriends another Indian family. Blake leaves for New York, with Sonya's promise to join him in a year.

Chapter 3.—In the desert village, shopping, Sonya again meets the man whose advances she had repulsed on Lone Mesa. He tells her he bitterly regrets his action and has never had a minute's peace since that day. Sonya is affected, but unforgiving. At the home of a friend she hears rumors of a Border bandit, "El Capitan Diablo," who crucifies his double-crossers and has a dire reputation as a despoiler and murderer, vaguely connecting him with her attacker.

Chapter 4.—Sonya pays a visit to Little Moon and finds her well on her way to recovery. On her return she rides to the top of Lone Mesa. There she again comes upon the strange young man, but she no longer fears him. When he reiterates his sorrow over his misconduct she indicates forgiveness and assures him a man can always change for the better.

Chapter 5.—Befriending the wife of Hosteen Nez, a Navajo, she adds him to her circle of devoted friends. In the desert she again meets the man of Lone Mesa. An airplane suddenly appeared, and warning Sonya to get out of sight and stay there, the stranger goes to the plane and transfers something to his saddlebags, after which he rides away. At a neighborhood dance she meets the mysterious stranger of the Mesa and demands that he tell her his name. Finally he confides to her that his right name is Starr Stone, that his mother believes him dead, and that he goes by a different name in this region. He departs at the command of a tall, fierce Mexican, with whom he is mysteriously associated.

Chapter 6.—Sonya, with a feeling of shame, realizes she is falling in love with a man whom she can only class as a renegade and outlaw knowing that under the circumstances she can never marry Blake. From the "Servant" Sonya learns Stone is alive and safe.

Chapter 7.—An influenza epidemic among the Indians keeps Sonya busy for many days. Stone comes to her aid in caring for the stricken Navajos. Sonya and Stone declare their love for each other, all doubt in the mind of the girl being ended.

Chapter 8.—The Mexican bandit, surprising the pair at a meeting place, takes Stone away, and warns the girl hereafter to let his "lieutenant" alone. Sonya is surprised by the unannounced arrival of Rodney Blake from New York.

Chapter 9.—With Blake is an easterner, Marston, who announces himself as a secret service operator, on the trail of Mexican opium smugglers believed to be working in the vicinity of the Savarin ranch. Serge, recalls an incident at a dance they had all attended.

"There was a dance at a neighboring ranch, and my sister was dancing with a stranger when the biggest Mexican I ever saw appeared and dropped a hand on the stranger's shoulder. The man followed him out. I'd forgotten the incident." "What sort of looking Mexican?" "Don't know, only that he was monstrously tall and broad." Marston sat in silence for a little time.

"El Capitan stands six feet three in his boots," he said.

"Then who was the man he took away?"

"If I should make a guess, which I never do," said the other, "I'd say it was Quince—Kennthal—Number Fifteen—the widest white man in Mexico, and El Diablo's ablest lieutenant. I've heard of him. But his master owns him body and soul. They say on the Border that twice El Capitan spread him up, after his amusing little custom of crucifying any and all who incur his anger, only to take him down again. He's too valuable to kill. But some day the butcher will be too mad to think of that. I'd hate to be in Quince's shoes."

Sick to her foundations, Sonya Savarin excused herself.

And John Marston looked curiously after her.

The rest of that day was like a nightmare to Sonya.

She had to be about the house, to help Lila with the work, and Rodney was everywhere she went, leaning fondly on her shoulder, tipping her face to look into her eyes, whispering of that future which she knew could never be. Misery was her portion through it all. She sorrowed for the blow she must deal him sooner or later, for herself in her fear and loneliness, and for the disaster she might some day bring on this house. And fear rode her like a witch whenever she thought of Starr Stone riding to the Border with that prince of butchers, El Capitan Diablo.

"What ails you, Sonya?" asked Rodney Blake. "You don't hear half I'm saying. You're obsessed with something. Is it these d-d Indians?"

"If you don't stop that, Rod," she flamed, "I'll not forgive you! I told you once that one's life is his own. I still think so."

"Not a woman's—when she has given her promise," he said calmly; "it then belongs to her man."

"I'm sorry you take that attitude," she said, "my life will never belong to any—"

She did not finish, for the flashing thought that already her life was not her own, that for better or worse it was irrevocably connected with the precarious existence of Starr Stone—Quince of the Border! The time was ripe to tell Rod the truth, yet she did not speak. It seemed that something stronger than herself, some vital caution, held back the words.

"Lila," Sonya told the other woman later, "I've got to get away by myself a while or go crazy. You know—I want to think."

"Well," said Lila uneasily, "do be careful." And she stood on tiptoe to kiss the taller woman.

So Sonya rode away on Darkness, and Rodney Blake stood watching her with a strange expression in his eyes.

It was far past noon when she tied Darkness to the hitching rail beyond the general store and climbed the worn steps to the porch. At the hollow sound of her booted feet on the floor, Parks, fat and oily and wide eyed, came swiftly from the open door of the back region of the store. He was hastily putting something in the pocket of his white linen vest as he came, and fumbled his damp hand free to greet her. Sonya hated to shake hands with this man, who always insisted on the formality. There was something so unctious about him, a secretive sense of common understanding, which irritated her.

Now, as he reached out his hand, the small object which he had so hastily hidden in the sagging pocket tumbled out. It struck the floor with a strange sound of weight and for some reason Sonya stooped and picked it up, even before the man could catch it as it fell.

"I'll take it," he said quickly, "give it here."

But again for some dim reason Sonya held the little thing and looked at it curiously.

It was a flat, narrow can about the size of the little tin in which Serge Savarin got his tobacco for his pipe, and it was shaped very much the same, having a rounded top and a flat bottom.

But there the similarity ceased.

for this container was made of solid brass and thickly and beautifully carved with Chinese characters, while at the lower edge the small, belligerent figure of a fighting cock stood boldly out in bas relief.

And it was unbelievably heavy for its size.

This much she saw and felt before the proprietor of the store reached out and took it from her so quickly as to be rude. He fairly snatched it and dropped it once more in the sagging pocket, this time making sure it was safely in.

Then he laughed unctiously, rubbing his wet palms together.

"A new tobacco, Miss Sonya," he said, "for my personal use. Very select and, I may say, costly. Now, what can I do for you today?"

Looking at him curiously, Sonya named her small purchases, and he bustled about, getting them from shelf and bin. And turning idly the girl looked directly into two dark faces under Mexican hats which peered furtively at her from around the door jamb. She knew with a thrill of portent that they were the same two men whom she had seen that day long back with Starr Stone, when he had brought her purchases out to the car in Parks' place.

Chilled and frightened, she gathered her things and went swiftly out, mounted Darkness and rode from the town at a long lope. She knew instinctively that she had stumbled on something of importance, and that Parks was, in some dim way, a part of it.

Oh, what was it all about! Where was Starr Stone, and what would his master do to him?

Starr Stone—and Parks—and planes—and contraband sent east from somewhere along the Border—about the middle—about here.

She knew—deep in her heart she knew—what Mr. Marston would give a lot to know, what he had come here to find. What Rod Blake would help him find if he knew. Rod Blake—Rod Blake on Starr Stone's trail. He would be as unrelenting as El Capitan if once he knew all the shining things the sweet things, that Sonya knew, the dark things, the evil things which she knew, too. The whole terrible thing was too much for one girl's loving heart to hold, and Sonya felt as if the bottom were falling from the universe, as if soon she and all her little world would be destroyed.

And then, from high up and far away, a sound fell on her ears, the thin small sound of engines in the blue coming rapidly nearer. She stopped and looked up anxiously, and presently she saw it—a tiny speck that grew and grew and lowered until it was circling over her, seeking a place to land.

It was the little gray ship she had seen before, the powerful blunt-nosed thing which could land and take off with such incredible swiftness. It was down, its bouncing tail stilled, its engine throttled down but running, and a man was climbing over the side, coming toward her across the sand. Was it, could it be, Starr Stone?

She peered hard for a glint of bronze hair beneath his helmet, but could not see it, nor his eyes behind the disfiguring goggles.

And then he was here, close at Darkness' head, and his hand was on the bit. She saw then that he was dark, a Mexican—that another like him was coming from the ship—and then stark drama took the silence and the still shadows.

WHEN buying a car, consider first what it does to make motoring more enjoyable; next, what it costs to operate; and, last, its price. Chevrolet alone combines Kneecap Action, Body by Fisher, a valve-in-head engine, and cable-controlled brakes. THE "TAKE-A-CHANCE" CLUB

You won't find the address of the Take-a-Chance Club in any telephone book or city directory. It has never been incorporated, and it has no club-house. But a good many thousand Americans belong to it—though they wouldn't admit it—and no "fraternal" organization in the world exacts such high dues.

The ritual of the club runs something like this:

"I will always take a chance when driving a car. I will cut corners and drive on the wrong side of the road. I happen to feel like it. I will make a regular habit of passing others on hills and curves. I will always drive faster than road conditions warrant, and I will be especially careless when it is raining or snowing and visibility is poor. I will not make regular inspections of my car's lights, brakes and steering. I'll take for granted that they are good enough. I will make no effort to learn the traffic laws of my state and community, and if I happen to discover some of them accidentally I will break them at every opportunity. I'll let the other driver watch out for me as well as himself, and I'll act as if the highways and streets were my private property. I'll pay no attention to traffic lights and stop signs, and I'll do my best to practice none of the courtesies of the road."

The members of the "Take-a-Chance Club" follow this ritual to the letter, and the result is that each year some 30,000 people are needlessly killed in automobile accidents, and property destroyed to the extent of 1,000,000,000.

Are you a member of the club?

ADVERTISING AND PROSPERITY

When a retailer says: "Nothing doing" in the way of advertising, I'm inclined to think that he is not very proud of his product.

Because, when a man is proud of anything, whether it be a new baby, a 99 golf score, or a snappy new sweater, he's most likely to talk about it—and talk loud, too.

Advertising is the greatest influence known to create demand—and still more demand. There's nothing to compare with it.

The administration at Washington wants and intends to create more employment. A practical and needed ambition.

Advertising ceates demand—demand means more goods consumed—and more goods consumed means more employment.

There is still a vast deal of purchasing power in this country. Much of it is still stagnant because of uncertainty and fear.

Possibly some of this fear has been accentuated or even caused by the fall in advertising activity during the past two years.

For advertising admits of courage and engenders courage.

I believe that a return to normal advertising activity will still further promote the cause of better times for all of us.—Everis B. Terhune, President, Boot and Shoe Recorder.

Mrs. Anna Glass and daughter, Mrs. Jewel, and Mrs. W. R. Montgomery were in Pampa Saturday.

Gifts Greet Fair Visitor

It was a lucky moment for Miss Belle Eikan (center), of Chicago, when she entered the gates of the Chicago World's Fair to learn that she was the 4,000,000th visitor to the exposition. Miss Luella Kaehler (left), of the Firestone exhibit, and a member of the court of the beauty queen of the Fair, presented her with an order for an automobile tire, while Miss Gertrude Bain, another beauty queen, presented her with gifts from exhibitors, concessions and the Fair itself. She had attended the new Fair 21 times and declared it far superior in every way than last year's, which she saw 50 times.

Farm Week Visitors to Repeat Invasion of Fair

This view of more than 40,000 people being entertained by the jolly and delightful WLS Barn Dance in the Court of the Hall of States at the last Fair is expected to be duplicated, if not bettered, during Farm Week at the new Fair in Chicago this year so popular was the performance of the Barn Dance when it was given previously that Fair officials decided no better nor more enjoyable entertainment of its kind could be provided for Farm Week, August 11-18, and the Barn Dance, with new members and new stunts, will be one of the high spots of the program. Special events for the week are many.

Electric Trains Lure Men and Boys at Fair

The exhibit of model electric trains, similar to the one pictured above, was designed primarily for children, at the World's Fair in Chicago last year, and located on Enchanted Island, but it made such an appeal with the men who wandered into that children's paradise, that the kids didn't get so good a chance to play with the trains as they should have had. This year, then, the exhibit was moved to the huge Travel and Transport building, where there is plenty of room for all to marvel at and play with the electric railroad masterpieces.
