DISGUSTING

By O. L. D. Timer

As I write this I can see three boys between the ages of ten and fifteen who just crawled out of a box car where they had spent the night. They look shabby and unkempt and are eating something out of a paper sack that one went out and rustled. It is extremely disgusting to look at such a spectacle, for the boys should be at home attending school and developing character in order to fight the strenuous battles of life in this modern world of ours.

Just last night I was talking to an officer and he told of finding a bunch of small boys in a dugout shooting dice for any and all commodities and with plenty of cigarettes, and practically the whole bunch were supposed to be in school and had played hooky.

I overheard a man talking on the street less than a year ago and the subject discussed was the losing of money in banks when they went broke. This man said, and punctuated it with a vile oath, "It is a cinch that I will never lose any money in a bank failure, for I am going to spend every cent just as soon as I get it." This same man was a corpse in less than thirty days and the county buried him.

Now the repealists claimed that they were disgusted with prohibition and that the government was getting no revenue, but since the repeal they have all begun to howl with a loud voice, "Too much revenue," and it is the prohibitionists' turn to get disgusted with the repealists inconsistency and increased drunkenness, the free-for-all fights and shooting scrapes, and above all the tremendous amount of bootlegging going on without even an arrest being made.

I was extremely disgusted to see a man who was living off the county get as drunk as an old sot, and to see on the same day another relief worker go down and out and lay prostrate until two o'clock in the night. Uncle Sam seems to be furnishing money to buy liquor on which no revenue has been paid.

I heard a man say that he got up out of his bed to let two men who said they had a job on the pipe line sleep in it so they would be able to stand up to the work, and he went and got some hay and a wagon sheet and made him a bed, and when the two men got their pay check they disappeared like a thief in the night and he was some disgusted when he discovered their absence. A widow kept a bunch of folks for two weeks and they slipped through the window to be a long time gone.

I hold in my hand a copy of the Los Angeles Examiner, which gives some figures on the gambling craze which is sweeping over the nation, in which it states that enough money has been lost to pay for all the relief the government has put out this year.

If lots of the above disgusting manouvers are not curtailed or eliminated, a man who believes in the ten commandments and the golden rule and tries to make a living honestly, will be relegated to the back-ground and will be sending out an S. O. S. call before long.

But of all the disgusting spectacles the eye ever visioned, a drunken, swearing, loud talking, cigarette smoking female has never been surpassed, and from close observation it seems that they are on the increase, and makes a man think of the old song "What Shall the Harvest Be?"

KINARDS MOVE TO LUBBOCK

The M. H. Kinard family moved to Lubbock this week, where Mr. Kinard has bought a farm.

The Kinards are one of the old time families here and they have not sold their farm at Gracey and expect to visit this community from time to time.

Mr. Kinard says they are not burning any bridges and may move back at any time, and he orders the home paper to follow them.

Gray county's tax rate has been set at 96c, a 3c increase over last year, due to the issuance of the McLean-Pampa road bonds.

Property assessment values are expected to reach 25 millions, an increase of one and one-half million dollars over last year.

What a Citizen said to the Representative of the Local Paper When He Asked if He Subscribed

"W'y, certainly, I take the paper. I could do without it— But I won't."

It is the most unifying influence in my community. It is not for any one sect, party, club or individual— It is for us all.

In it I meet all of my neighbors. I like to think of it as the mirror in which we may see ourselves.

No, it isn't all I'd have it, but— Neither am I.

Yes, I like the editor. He has his faults, but who hasn't?

I sometimes wonder if he senses his responsibility. He has a tremendous job— To reflect his city and his people.

I never allow my subscription to lapse Or go unpaid when due.

For either is hard on the morale of the paper. I aim to be business-like with it— Then I can expect it to be business-like with me.

I want the editor to feel that I prize his paper highly So he will give me a better paper.

I never refer to it as "That Rag"— When I talk about my home-town paper I am talking about myself and my neighbors. It is made for and of and by my neighbors and me.

I tell the editor every once in a while What I like and what I don't like, But as I do I smile.

If my family or I get unfavorable mention In the weekly news, I never threaten to lick the editor, Or try to bribe him to say no more— Instead, I try to set my house in order And do something fine for somebody To balance the account.

An editor should be as impartial as God.

Yes, I take the paper. When this community gets better, It will get better.

It needs me and I need it. You know, it's a kind of community balloon. Pulling us all up a little Every time it can speak of any of our good deeds.

Yes, sir, if ever we want a better paper, Cleaner stories, finer deeds recorded, We should be a bigger and better and a finer people.

Yes, I take the paper."

—Prof. H. R. Merrill.

BUTLER ATTENDS VICTORY DINNER

John W. Butler, well-known Goodyear tire dealer of our city, has just returned from Oklahoma City, where he attended a Victory dinner given by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to dealers in this area of the United States wholesales in July and August reached or exceeded the respective quotas set for them by the company.

"These Victory dinners were given in various parts of the country by Goodyear," said Mr. Butler, "and if my own experience is a criterion I know much good resulted from them. I am sure I was greatly benefited, for I came in contact with many progressive Goodyear dealers, and by rubbing elbows with them I got some wonderful inspirations helpful ideas and valuable sales suggestions.

"When the Goodyear Company announced that the Victory dinner would be served to the 'top' dealers, or to those whose sales were up to or better than quota, I just made up my mind that our town must be represented at that meeting," continued Mr. Butler. "I realized at the outset that to make my quota, which appeared rather high, our station had to do some hard work, not because the G-3 tire required extra sales effort, but I knew we had pretty well saturated the town with these wonderful tires, for the demand was instantaneous when the G-3 was announced about May 1, and sales had grown steadily week by week."

Mr. Butler has been a consistent advertiser in the home paper every since opening his store.

CARS CRASH ON 66 HIGHWAY FRIDAY NIGHT

A string of six dealer cars and three personal cars figured in a smash-up on Highway 66, at the Schlegel hill, four miles this side of Shamrock, about dark Friday evening.

One car was driving back of the six dealer cars, coming west, when a car going east attempted to pass a slower driver, striking his car, and bouncing across the road, striking most of the other cars in turn.

Most of the cars were pretty damaged, but no one was seriously injured.

Football fans from McLean passed the string of damaged cars soon after the accident happened, some narrowly averting hitting some of the wrecks, as they were just over the hill and could not be seen until right on them.

COMMISSIONERS CALL FOR BIDS TO TOP ROAD

The commissioners court has called for bids for rock-asphalt topping of 29 miles of the McLean-Pampa road. Bids are to be opened Sept. 29, and it is planned to rush the work to completion before cold weather.

This action was decided when it was seen that the proposed PWA government loan would be delayed until the road would suffer damage this winter.

SMITH-LEE

Miss Jewel Smith and Mr. Casey Lee were married Saturday, Sept. 15, at Wheeler, Judge McMurtry performing the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Dovey Lee. They will make their home here.

GINNING RATE ERROR

J. E. Lynch, manager of the Farmers Gin, says that we were in error on the new ginning rate last week, as the rate will be the same as last year, 35c, with the 3c tax added.

D. A. Davis gave us the information, but Mr. Lynch says Mr. Davis was evidently thinking of his golf score when talking with us.

Mrs. Laura Byerly of Pampa is visiting home folks here.

Mrs. A. Stanfield and daughters, Miss Lola Ruth and Mrs. H. C. Rippy, and little Miss Patty Ruth were in Amarillo Thursday.

Miss Nora Lee Morgan returned last week from a visit with relatives in Lubbock.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Why is it that a smart man like Mr. Brisbane has just now found out that there are 17 under-akers to each person in the United States?

How can Ed Dishman make 17 pints of jelly out of a gallon of grape juice, when it only takes 16 pints to make a gallon?

Why is it that brown beans and corn bread don't taste as good as it used to? Is it the beans and corn bread, or just how it's cooked?

Why don't the baking industry make biscuits and corn bread for sale, being as they cook up every other kind of stuff to sell to our overworked wives for us underworked husbands to eat?

Why don't the coffee roasters go another step further and make our coffee for us and sell it in vacuum sealed bottles? In this way it would have many a family row at the breakfast table.

And why don't the meat markets fry our steaks and roast our meats, cook our sausages and stew our liver and onions which would save some more grumbings?

And why don't the bakers toast their bread to a nice even, crispy brown? This would save still more fusses and cut down the divorce percentage extensively.

John Carpenter reports that it hailed golf balls out at his ranch last week. Guess a lot of those golfers over at Lefors must have been playing golf that evening, as the wind was blowing from that direction; or was it those golfers in heaven trying to toss us golfers down here a few good balls?

One of my farmer friends wants to know what good it is going to do the farmers for cotton seed to be $35 per ton, being as they ain't got any cotton seed to sell.

If a few more hail stones come, I wonder if the good Lord won't show Mr. Bankhead just how much He knows about controlling cotton production.

What I want to know is, who is controlling the radio broadcasting in the United States, the Federal Radio Commission at Washington, or the broadcasting stations just over the border in Mexico?

One of our very pious and sedate citizens told me the other day that this bunk I write is positively silly. All I got to say is if he wants to hear some things that are really silly, just get yourself a radio and listen to the programs that are being broadcasted these days.

Folks, just about the meanest thing I have heard of lately was those folks that slipped their trunk out of the back door at night and left owing quite a bit of room rent.

THE STORY

Chapter 10.—Sonya realizes she is in the hands of El Capitan Diablo. In his stronghold she is committed to the care of an elderly Spanish woman, to await the arrival of the chief. A younger woman, Concha, views with apprehension the arrival of Stone, whom she loves, evidently a prisoner, with El Capitan Diablo.

Chapter 11.—At the Savarin ranch there is dire consternation over the disappearance of Sonya. Searching parties, working diligently, are unable to find any trace of the girl. With Serge, Marston visits the village store, the last place where Sonya is known to have been, but finds no clues. Her Navajo friends, remembering all they owe Sonya, take the trail.

It was Hosteen T'so who traced her shod horse to the town, who knew that she had sat some hours in a dry wash over to the east before she went to town, and who followed her step by step back along the circling way which had taken her at that certain spot where Sonya Savarin had looked last upon the desert's familiar face from the security of her saddle. And there Two Fingers stood with Hosteen Nez, holding her lost hat.

The three men looked at each other, nodded, spoke a few words.

They all saw, too, three long strange marks in the sand—wheel marks, soft and wide with indentations in them, a sharply defined mark running between them, beginning a bit before their start, ending a bit before they did.

None of the three had ever seen an airplane closer than the high blue sky above, but they spoke of one now, considering. And they took the sombrero with them, jogging back to their hogans.

Tomorrow they would meet again, these three, and circle wider, asking all others of their tribe they met what they knew of sky ships, telling this which they knew. And only these—the humble ones whom Rodney Blake despised—knew anything of Sonya Savarin and what had become of her.

CHAPTER 12

The Leopard Changes Spots

Dawn came slowly to the deep-walled room where Sonya sat by the window. The girl was weary from her sleepless vigil. There were dark circles under her eyes, lines in her young face.

But her lips were steady and courageous, her heart the same. Today was to be big with portent: that she knew.

Perhaps it meant death. Perhaps she would never again behold the sunrise, or see the stars wheel in the heavens.

Well, one had but one time to die, though she could have wished a more gentle end than would likely come to anyone who fell under El Diablo's displeasure. And that she was there she knew full well; also why. Starr Stone had risked his life each time he saw her when he over-stayed his time. Starr Stone, who was, who must be, that Number Fifteen, Kenthal—how soft the numeral was in Spanish—who was El Diablo's ablest lieutenant. The man whom he could neither spare nor wholly trust, now, since he had disobeyed him for a woman.

And those who disobeyed Diablo—Sonya jerked her shoulders up, wet her lips that were dry as ashes.

Twice, they said, had the bandit leader "spread him up," only to take him down again. Starr Stone of the laughing courage who had dared all things in the old days, whose clever brain had been invaluable to El Capitan, who was too valuable to kill, yet who knew too much to live if he did not live for him.

And Sonya Savarin, who knew too much, also, who loved Starr Stone and had listened to him in the dusk of many moons; who had stooped and plopped up a five-tael can of first-grade opium when a bungling hand had dropped it.

Farks—Quatro—Number Four—the band keeper of a store on the cross-continent railroad. He had blundered, but he had retrieved his blunder instantly by sending El Diablo's henchmen to destroy the evidence by taking it away—herself that evidence.

Well, once again one could finish up but once, and she was no one's quitter. If only she might see Starr Stone again, look deep in his blue eyes, renew that soul's covenant which they had made one starlit dusk.

But the senora was here with food on a tray and she was kind and gentle with that tenderness we show to those about to go on long and perilous journeys.

"I know," said Sonya, nodding her black head. "I shall be ready, senora. At what hour?"

"I do not know—only that when you arrive one must be ready."

"Very well," said Sonya, and the woman went away.

Deliberately she drank the coffee, ate the spiced omelette, the little round bits of some hot sweet bread. And a little later the senora came for her.

She walked down the long dark passage, cool with the night's freshness, and into the great main room of the casa. Here there were many men and a few women, who all seemed waiting to look at her, which they did with thoroughness in silence. There were men here who had burned and raided and shot, who thought no more of killing a human being than of slaughtering a sheep; women who followed them and wore things they looted. Their eyes were hot and cold at the same time, if one might so describe them, flaming with all the varied lusts of lawless folk, devoid of mercy or compassion.

The senora passed before them and out at the door which stood open at the south, Sonya following close behind her with her head up. Here in the stone flagged yard sat her judge.

El Capitan Diablo, in a huge chair behind a long table made of crude slabs and undressed wood set on sections of saplings peeled and weathered. Here too was Manuel, that dapper slim pilot who had brought her across the Border, Manuel, second in power, in value, in ability, to that one whom the master had brought home to answer for his sins.

The sings of lingering too long about the master's business, of doing his bidding less and less eagerly, or that most heinous crime of all, loving a good woman.

El Diablo hated a good woman. Of all things on the earth he feared and hated most, a good woman. What power this one might hold against him, what secrets she might know for his undoing, he did not know. What Quince had told her in the softening urge of love, he furiously suspected. Evil himself, lost to all standards of loyalty, a double-crosser of double-crossers, he trusted no one, believed in no one.

And now he had the whole thing in his hands, thanks to Quatro: the man who knew his ways and works as none other living knew them; the woman of another world who might wreak his ruin if she chose.

That great structure of blood and raid and contraband which he had built for himself from Mazatlan to New York City stood toppling in the hands of these two—and El Diablo would not have it.

He looked at the slim girl before him, his thick nostrils dilating.

"So," he said, "we meet again, Senorita."

"So it would seem," said Sonya Savarin.

A great concourse of people was gathering swiftly in the grove, all standing back at a respectful distance. But nowhere was there a tall man with bronze hair and wild blue eyes that shone. The girl looked earnestly around, and El Diablo smiled.

"Not just yet, Senorita," he said, "presently. In all good time."

Manuel rose, and coming around the table brought a chair and placed it for her. Sonya nodded but did not sit down. It seemed to her that she was on trial here, as indeed she was, though with the issue a foregone conclusion, and she must take it standing. The injustice, the insult of it all was making a fire in her soul, and she was not afraid.

"I think, sir," she said sharply, suddenly, "that you will answer to my people and my country for this abduction of myself. You cannot hide it long."

"So? You think not? Well, well, has El Diablo lost his cunning?"

He had changed his speech to Spanish, and for a moment Sonya hesitated as to whether or not she should show she understood. Then she decided that he probably knew she did, and accepted the issue.

"There comes an end to all things, Senor," she said.

"Yes, to life, even," the bandit said smoothly, looking at her.

"To life, even," said Sonya calmly.

A little whisper of admiration murmured through the silent crowd. She had courage, the young white woman from beyond the Border. No one had ever met the master so, word for word, and eye for eye.

"You remember, Senorita," El Diablo said, "that once I took my lieutenant from your arms on a dance floor. That should have been a warning. A sufficient warning. Yet you did not heed it."

"Why should I have heeded it?" said Sonya steadily. "Who were you that I should fear you to such an extent?"

"You saw that Quince feared me."

"Yes. And knew there must be a reason. He is no man's coward."

"Then you should have known the reason to be good."

"I did."

"And tried to find that reason out, I have no doubt?"

"Assuredly."

"And did?"

"No, Senor, though I tried hard."

"You shield the man."

"No."

"You lie to me, Senorita!"

"And so do you!" flashed Sonya.

"Caramba!" swore Diablo. "You tell me that?"

"You told me that. In my country a man does not speak so to women."

The man who ruled his world with blood and steel half rose, his dark face purple with a mounting rage. In that wavering second Sonya Savarin was nearer death than she had ever been.

Then he sat down again and smiled. That smile was deadly as an adder's grin.

"A Woman must have had a hand in styling the new FORD V-8"

• A handy compartment for gloves and purse. • A steering ratio that makes parking decidedly easy. • Plenty of body, head, and leg room in the rear seat.

THE fact is, many women did. For this new Ford car was definitely planned to meet the needs of women as well as men.

That's why you'll find a special compartment for your purse in the dashboard and sun-visor for your eyes. That's why interior fittings have been so tastefully designed. Why a finer grade of upholstery has been used. Why brakes act on the slightest touch of your toe. Why the steering ratio is 15-to-1 in order to make this car easier for a woman to handle.

And remember, the Ford V-8 has all the safety features modern engineering skill can devise—a V-8 Engine, Torque-tube Drive, All Steel Body, Welded Steel Spoke Wheels, Safety Glass and many others.

Remember, too, that the Ford V-8 is the most economical car to operate Ford has ever built. Not only that—Ford V-8 delivered prices are decidedly low.

JUST BETWEEN US

School Spirit

What do we mean by school spirit? Immediately the answer comes: Enthusiasm, pep and cooperation. We are already proud of the fact that the spirit has run high enough to get a good percentage of the students out on the side lines to cheer for those who are fighting for the school. At least, that was proven when the Tigers and Bearcats tangled last Friday night. Those ball boys are fighting for the whole school and they must have support and cooperation. We believe in them, of course, but we have to show that we do.

So come on, students, let's help old M. H. S. on to victory in everything that she undertakes to do. This is our school and it can't be any bigger than we make it. Get that old enthusiasm running high, take part in the pep rallies and come out to the games. You'll get a thrill that will make you just want to cheer and cheer! And—when you feel that way, just do it!

Who is proud of old M. H. S.? Everybody! Well, then, don't be ashamed to stand out for her, fight for her, and uphold her!

WHICH ARE YOU?

If a student studies, he's a bookworm; if he doesn't, he's a fake. If he flunks, he's unlucky; if he passes, he's a cribber. If he knows his lessons, he's a smart aleck; if he doesn't, he's a dumbbell. If he has ideas, he's a crank; if he doesn't, he's a numbskull. If he spends his money, he's a spendthrift; if he doesn't, he's a tightwad. If he's quiet, he's a high hatter; if he's sociable, he's a pain. If he talks, he's a chatter box; if he doesn't, he's an oyster. If he's religious, he's a fanatic; if he's not, he's a heathen. If he dies rich, he's a skinflint; if he doesn't, he's a pauper. SPORTS REPORT

The Tigers of McLean high school were visitors to the Bearcats of Erick in the Sooner State, last Friday night. The result of the ball game was a score of 0-0.

Last year all the sports writers doped the Tigers as being bemuddled. Friday night those Tigers of '34 seemed even more bemuddled. But with the untiring work of Coach Rush and a little cooperation from the football squad, this bemuddled should be rubbed out this week. Everyone is watching the Tigers to see what type of team they shall develop into, and the young aspirants of the team are endeavoring to make this waiting a happy one in the fact that they are trying to develop into a great team.

SOPHOMORE REPORT

A meeting of the sophomore class was called last Friday morning. The meeting was called to elect a new sponsor. Our former sponsor was Miss Kennedy. The class is sorry to give Miss Kennedy up, but as it was necessary to do so, they elected Mr. Loter. We are sure that we are going to like Mr. Loter this year and the class is going to have one of the liveliest organizations in M. H. S.

HOME ECONOMICS REPORT

The first year class of home economics has been studying the color chart learning the different colors that they should wear.

They have begun to cut out their first undergarment, which they will find much difficulty in making.

The second year class has been canning plums and has made a large amount of grape jelly. The grape juice was furnished by a lady in town. The class served a luncheon last Friday, using foods that had been put up by the department.

The third year class has started a class project on community and family relationship.

We are taking the paint off the dining table and the buffet, and are going to revarnish them. The agriculture boys gave us some helpful hints on taking the old varnish off and putting on the new.

1934 ALUMNI TO COLLEGE

Reports have come to us that the following 1934 graduates of M. H. S. have entered college: Bruce Graham, N. M. M. I., Roswell, N. M.; Dorothy Jean St. Clair, Amarillo Junior College, Amarillo; C. C. Bogan, C. W. Bogan, Harold Hodges and Christal Christian, McMurry College, Abilene; Charles Ashby, Texas Tech, Lubbock; Arthur Lee Howard, John Mertel and Elton O'Neal, Sam Houston State Teachers College, Huntsville; Buell Ellison, Simmons-Hardin University, Abilene; J. C. Breeding, W. T. S. T. C., Canyon.

TIGERETTES

The Tigerette enrollment was changed again and four new members added. They were: Julia McCarty, Joyce Dale Crockett, Maxine Johns and Duella Mann. There is one vacancy to be filled because of the resignation of Grace Reneau.

The Tigerettes accompanied the Tigers to Erick Friday night. The McLean band and the Tigerettes continually encouraged the Tigers with yells and songs from the first whistle to the last.

Black and gold sailor suits were chosen as uniforms, and it is hoped that they will be ready for use by Friday night.

1934 GRADS DONATE TO LIBRARY

The 1934 senior class lacked $8.00 spending all the money made for graduation expenses. This $8.00 was donated to the library fund and will be spent for classics for English 4.

ENROLLMENT LARGER

The total number of students enrolled in McLean high school is now 237. Enrolled by classes: seniors 43, juniors 64, sophomores 53, freshman 72. This large enrollment fills the high school building. There are now ten faculty members and the band director at work daily.

P. T. A.

The first meeting of the P. T. A. will be on Thursday, Sept. 27, at 7:30 p. m. at the high school auditorium. It is hoped that all parents will be present for the interesting program which will be given by some of the parents.

The executive meeting will be held at 7 o'clock.

CHAPEL

At a special chapel Wednesday morning we were very glad to have Mr. T. A. Landers and Mr. H. H. Nininger. Mr. Harding had charge of the program, and Mr. Landers introduced Mr. Nininger, director of the Nininger Laboratory at Denver, Colo., who talked to us on meteorites. Mr. Nininger is a special representative of the Smithsonian Institute, and is the author of "Our Stone-Pelted Plane." At the present time he is trying to locate the meteorite that fell last Thursday evening somewhere between Mobeetle and McLean.

Tuesday morning regular assembly was held at 11:30. The McLean band, directed by Prof. Robt. C. Davidson, presented a concert. The band was in excellent condition because of extra practice for the trip to the Amarillo Tri-state fair. The concert was enjoyed greatly by all who heard it.

STUDENT BODY ORGANIZED

The student organization of the McLean high school was completed Tuesday morning, with the following officers: Louis Tolliver, president; Marie Landers, secretary; Mary Emma Back, reporter. The voting was solid, showing that class spirit is going to be rife, and the juniors and freshmen seem to be in close communion. Other nominations were: George McCarty for president; Valeria Mae Stout and Averill Christian for secretary.

SENIOR REPORT

Tuesday morning the seniors met and unanimously elected Miss Kennedy and Mr. Rush as assistant sponsors.

Two assistants were elected because of increased enrollment. Neither teacher has accepted the position, to date. There are now 48 seniors.

Two new members have entered the class this week: Velma Thomason and Russell Killingsworth. We welcome these seniors and hope they have an enjoyable year in our class.

JUNIOR REPORT

The junior class showed its pep on Tuesday morning when it, with the cooperation of the freshman class, nominated and elected two juniors to the student body officers. The junior and freshman classes are the largest in school.

GLEE CLUB

Students are again awakened every Monday afternoon by songs of "Happy Days" from the Glee Club girls. The club organized and elected the following officers: President, Clara Faye Carpenter; secretary, Neva Flowers; librarian, Winnifred Ayer; treasurer, Marie Landers; reporter, Frances Landers.

F. F. A. BOYS COMPETE AT FAIR

On Monday the annual judging contest in the dairy department was held for F. F. A. boys at the Tri-state fair. Six McLean boys competed in this contest. T. B. Masterson placed third high individual with 335 points. The high man was Booth of Guymon, Okla., with 362 points.

The McLean team placed fifth out of eleven schools, including some of the strongest in the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma. The McLean boys made a very good showing, considering that they judged for the first time. The instructor expects them to be among the best after they get a little more experience. The boys who competed for McLean were: T. B. Masterson, Joe Hefner, James Lee Rice, Arthur Ledbetter, Verne Harris and LeMoyné O'Neal.

Several crop exhibits were entered by McLean boys.

Clall Windom was in Spearman last week.

Anyway, most people are still old fashioned enough to want a back seat at church.

Life is too short to be filled with prejudice and hatred. It is much better to look for the good and forget the disagreeable things of life.

The editor found a boll weevil just in front of the News office Monday, and it was suggested that the weevil had come to town to get on the relief rolls as most of the cotton has been hailed out. Maybe he thought he had a right to be protected now that it is popular to destroy crops.

Now that the site of the Texas centennial has been selected, better work can be done for the event. Dallas may not suit a lot of people who had rather see the affair staged at a town with a better historical background, yet it is a business proposition, and Dallas has it over the rest of the state in being the site of the state fair and the center of the whole-sale trade.

Of all the fool "weeks" sponsored by this and that, this week is "national dog week." There might have been a time when a dog was a useful animal to most everyone, but that time is in the far distant past. In most cases now he is only a disease carrier for more useful animals, and in some cases a menace to human beings. Of course this does not apply to hunting dogs and others that may be used in the stock industry, but the common useless dog that is allowed to roam at large is generally a neighborhood nuisance.

In a conversation with City Alderman M. T. Wilkerson, the fact was brought out that the intersection of Main street and Highway 66 constitutes one of the most dangerous spots on the highway, and Mr. Wilkerson suggests that a stop and go light might be placed here with benefit to everyone.

There is plenty of careless driving done in McLean, which, added to the through traffic not slowing down for the crossing, makes a menace that should be cured if at all possible.

The addition of a light would solve the problem and give local motorists some needed practice on traffic signals.

Text: "Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean."—2 Kings 5:14.

BELIEVE IN THE LORD JESUS CHRIST AND THOU SHALT BE SAVED

In order to accomplish something great and worthwhile we often think we must do something almost as great or difficult in order to obtain the desired object. Yet many a thing can be obtained with little effort if we would only realize it and believe it.

Naaman, a general of the king of Syria, about 894 B. C., suffered from leprosy, an incurable malady. His wife's servant girl a young captive from Israel, said: "Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would recover him from leprosy." (2 Kings 5:3b). The king of Syria heard of this and immediately told his general, Naaman, to go to Samaria. He also sent a letter of accompaniment to the king of Israel.

After careful preparations for the trip, Naaman set out and arrived before the house of Elisha, the prophet in Israel. Elisha could have felt honored by having such an exalted person call upon him personally, but he did not take advantage of this. He wanted all honor and glory to be given to God. So instead of coming out to meet this general, he simply sent a messenger to him, saying: "Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean."

This was something very simple to perform; in fact, it seemed too simple for Naaman. He felt insulted. Were not the rivers of Syria better than the Jordan river? Why didn't the prophet come out and greet him and perform some ceremony or ritual and thereby cure him? In anger the general turned away and started for home.

But his servants came to him and revealed some common sense. They said in a courteous fashion: "My father, if the prophet had bid thee to do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? How much rather then, when he saith to thee wash, and be clean?"

This general was not too proud to listen to his servants and take advice. Their reasoning was sound. He immediately took the hint for his own good and did as he was told originally by Elisha the prophet. "Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean." Elisha could have cured him with the help of God in some other manner. But he chose this method to test the general's faith. Whether the Jordan river contained some special healing power or some chemicals such as potassium permanganate to heal the strange disease, we do not know. But we do know that to this day no cure has ever been discovered for leprosy. The general, then, was cured by God through His prophet, Elisha.

Even today we can often be cured if we would only take the opportunities given us by God. Some things seem too easy and, consequently, are spurned. Even so with forgiveness of sin. All we need do is repent of our sins and believe in the Lord Jesus, and we will be saved.

4. Keep your engine pulling around the curves.

5. Never apply your brakes when in a turn.

6. To avoid a crash, jam the gears into second, release the throttle and work the clutch in and out.

7. Drive your car at the point where it operates well. Avoid overstraining at critical times.

"As a racing driver I am presumed to be a daredevil. True, I sometimes drive 160 miles per hour in racing cars, and more than 100 miles an hour in driving stock cars, but as racing drivers go, I am overcautious; in fact, to be overcautious is the best suggestion I can offer any motorist. "The principles of sound driving apply equally to the tourist and to the racing driver. Odd as it may seem, I often use my horn in driving road races. When ready to pass a car ahead, I pull up as close to his tail as reasonable at the speed we are traveling, jam down the throttle give him the horn and pull up as quickly as possible.

"Steering at high speed is one of the fine points every driver should learn. While you should never lose in passing the car ahead, there are serious dangers in running too close at high speed. If you are close to the car ahead and it pulls out only to crash into an oncoming vehicle."

ISAIAH COUNSELS RULERS

Lesson text, Isaiah 31:1-9; 37:36.
Golden text, Isaiah 26:3.

We study again this Sunday about the prophet Isaiah. Isaiah was one of the mightiest and most fearless of all God's prophets. The prophets we have been studying were common men, called from the rural sections of the Promised Land to prophesy to the masses of the people. Isaiah, on the other hand, was born of the royal family. He had every advantage Jerusalem could offer in the way of training and education. He was a mighty statesman and prophesied as the court prophet, without welcome many times, during the reign of four kings, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. He was many times punished for his pronouncements, nevertheless he had a call and a command from God which he never failed to carry out.

During the reigns of Uzziah and Jotham the country remained in comparative peace and prosperity. But Ahaz changed things. The religious life of the nation was already demoralized, and Ahaz debauched it. The nations about began to take the cities of the land, and Ahaz was always the loser in every conflict. Isaiah had a remedy—turn to Jehovah. Instead, the king turned to Tiglath-Pileser, the king of Assyria. The alliance was of no value to Ahaz and cost heavy tribute, of which most was taken from the temple of God. This tribute was still being paid when Hezekiah came to the throne.

The new king hearkened to Isaiah. He called the people to the worship of Jehovah. The land began to prosper—but the tribute. Isaiah advised to stop it, with the promise that God would care for the situation. It was stopped. But there were those who influenced the king to make an alliance with the king of Egypt for protection against the wrath of Sennacherib, then king of Assyria. Isaiah advised against it. His word was that God would be enough, if depended on. The Assyrians came, a mighty army, and swept before them 46 fortified cities and took captive 200,000 from Judah. He threatened Jerusalem and demanded unconditional surrender. He was then going on to Egypt, the ally of Jerusalem that had failed her.

Hezekiah was unprepared. He had been depending on Egypt. Isaiah had warned him to depend on Jehovah. But even at this last moment he turned to God. He took Sennacherib's letter and placed it before Jehovah in the temple. He trusted it all to God. Then the word of God came to Isaiah that He would destroy the armies of the enemy. How simple that was. Why did not the king turn the matter over to God in the first place? God can accomplish every righteous and needed task which is out of the reach of the power of man when man will do the will of the Father.

Let us turn to the words of the prophet as he advises against an alliance with any save Jehovah. V 1 points out how easy and yet how futile it is for men to put their trust in things because they are many or because they are big. There was a day when we looked to a colossal financial structure that was bringing wealth to all of us fast. There was safety in dollars, stocks and bonds. In a few months we were a nation seeking for safety like bugs scampering when a board has been overturned.

V 2. We are reminded here that God is wise—knowing all, and will bring evil to the house of the evildoers—He will not call back His word. We may not feel that our trials are the weight of the hand of God upon evildoers, but our feeling has little to do with it—we can read God's word for it here.

V 3. The Egyptians and their power was material and meant nothing to God. The dependence we have today in legislation, pensions, possible unemployment insurance, guaranteed bank deposits, controlled production, the strength of our nation, is like the dependence of Israel on the Egyptians.

V 4. All of these things put no fear in God's heart. As the lion defends its cub and preys against unarmed men, so God stands in eternity clearly pronouncing His judgments upon the sins of men.

V 5. God will defend that which is His. In modern terms, God will defend His word and His church, regardless of men. They are His—He protects.

V 6. It is time to turn to God. Our people today are not infidels and atheists. They have not taken their stand against Him, but we as a nation rather are ignoring God. We do not hate Him, but we do not love Him. We have a certain reverence for Him, but we have no dependence in Him.

V 7. When we have turned to Him our dependence will be in Him rather than in materialistic possessions. V 8 When this is true our materialistic troubles will be over. We cannot cure them by worshipping them. This we have tried. But God can cure them when we worship Him.

V 9. God at such a time will put to flight the national troubles of any nation. The difficulty is getting people to see the spiritual significance of God's power. One trouble is most of us would rather not have things settled than to have them settled God's way, which would not be according to our wishes as a usual thing. When we surrender to God we must be surrendered to His will and His way. That is why men do not turn to God until the hour of extreme necessity.

Vv 36, 37. God settled Jerusalem's troubles. They were as great as ours have ever been. Different, yes, but what does the difference make to God? The one is as easy settled as the other for Him. The difference is in us. They could see the immediacy of their trouble; we cannot.

CAMP MEETING IN THE OZARKS

By Rev. L. H. Shockley
Since our return from Missouri, the mountain home of our boyhood, there are many questions come from those of our friends who are interested in what we saw at our meetings and just how the folks in the Ozarks are getting along. Lots of the habits and customs that were common to us when a child are still common among the mountaineers of today.

The old home life that was so planted in our bosom in childhood soon finds its way back into our heart when we go into those steep hollows and walk into little log cabins in homes. There sits father smoking his long green, and mother rocking the old wooden cradle. While the protracted meeting was going on, when four o'clock came the girls started supper and the boys at the same time started up the hill, following a little path that leads out on the ridge where they could hear old Fid's bell. By six o'clock the cows are milked and supper is ready. The table is spread under the big oak tree which stands not far from the door in the back yard. To eat there is a bowl of peaches cooled with the juice of water to rub on them, and a big plate of corn bread, with milk to crum it in; a large dish of squirrel and dumplings, and for a dessert a huckleberry cobbler. They talk and laugh while they eat. Their life is real to them. When the last one is through eating, the first one is ready to go to church and they are soon off. Mother and the girls, to save their shoes, will carry them almost to the church, and they can get just as happy at meeting as if they had new shoes to wear all the way. They don't know any better than to love God and feel that they are as good as Henry Ford—a real people.

Let Chevrolet tell its own story of riding and driving comfort

Make the ownership test

WHEN all is said and done, the best way to get at the truth behind the fine things you hear and read about the new Chevrolet, is to get in the car and drive. Take this car (your Chevrolet dealer will gladly loan you one), drive it over the same routes, in the same way you drive your present automobile, and let the results you can see and feel tell their own story. You have heard that Knee-Action makes bad roads good, and good roads better. A ride will prove it. You have heard that Chevrolet provides shock-proof steering, Synco-Mesh gear-shifting, a remarkably flexible 80-horsepower engine, and cable-controlled brakes.

One ride is worth a thousand words

A few minutes at the wheel will show you what a difference these advancements make in safety and driving ease. And when the ride is over, and you step out refreshed and ready for more, you will know why so many thousands have found it impossible to return to ordinary driving after an experience like this. That is the Ownership Test—simple, easy, enjoyable, and the most practical way to choose a car. Your Chevrolet dealer has a car waiting so that you can make this test. How about today?
