Most Fires Preventable, Says Marshal

By Boyd Meador, City Fire Marshal

This being National Fire Prevention Week, I feel it my duty as fire marshal to give to the public any information I have which would help to prevent fires.

Statistics show that three-fourths of the fires are preventable fires. These preventable fires are just as unnecessary and as disgraceful as preventable diseases. What would our health condition be if we did not use every precaution possible against contagious diseases? Statistics also show that the many losses in preventable fires would take care of America's relief rolls.

Dwelling fires are responsible for the loss of many lives. Ten thousand people perish each year in fires, and 23% are in the home; therefore it is logical that fire prevention should begin at home. Many persons are unaware of the fire hazards existing in their homes, and in many cases they do not know how to look for them. The electric wiring and connections should be carefully inspected, and never use a penny or any kind of a make-shift fuse. Get a new one—it might prevent a fire. Do not keep gasoline in the house. Cleaning should be done with safe fluids or sent to your cleaner. Kerosene should never be used to start a fire.

We have not had a serious fire in McLean this year. Let's keep that way so that we may have credit on our fire insurance rate instead of a penalty.

Hazel Hurd Players Here Next Week

The Hazel Hurd Players will open their beautiful modern, comfortable tent, near the city secretary's office today night for a week's engagement here.

This company is not a stranger to McLean people, as they showed to the crowds here some years ago.

According to Fred J. Twyman, former manager, owner of the show, they have all new plays and they enjoy the reputation of being one of the finest shows on the road, coming to McLean highly recommended for high class entertainment. The cast made up of artists of real ability and show goers of McLean are assured of clean, moral and refined entertainment all next week.

The orchestra is made up of musicians who have reputation for real "hot" music. Billy Prescott is leader, playing trumpet, piano, xylophone; Roy Rouse, piano; Olin Wolford, violin, trombone; Dick Miller, drums; Al Ritter (the lonesome cowboy), guitar, violin.

The show is coming to McLean under the auspices of the local American Legion post.

Mr. Twyman says he has tried all kinds of advertising and has found that there is no method to compare with the home newspaper. He now concentrates practically all of his advertising efforts to the newspaper. Advertisements will be found in this issue of The News.

20 PER CENT FOR TAXES

An illuminating article on the heavy burden of taxation borne by the American people appeared in a recent issue of the United States News, which shows that 20%, or one-fifth, of the entire national income is swallowed up by federal, state and local taxation.

This is more than is spent for food, and much more than is spent for clothing and rent on homes combined. Careful estimates indicate that the average citizen's dollar of income is spent as follows:

Taxes, 20c; food, 17c; clothing, 9c; rent, 9c; automobile, 6c; fuel and light, 5c; household furnishings, 4c; insurance, 3c; medical attention, travel and recreation and the movies, about 2c each; tobacco and laundry, 1c each. This leaves about 19c for miscellaneous expenses and savings. These figures are averages, and vary greatly according to individual incomes and spending habits.

Persons who own little or no property may imagine that they do not contribute much in the way of taxes, but it should be borne in mind that all taxes are finally passed on to the ultimate consumer of goods or services.

The nation's tax bill is now more than nine billion dollars a year, and the federal government, as well as many state and local governments, is still going farther and farther in debt. What the tax bill will be a little later can only be guessed, but it is sure to be much higher than on its present lavish scale continues. —Enterprise, Bastrop, La.

COUNTRY EDITOR'S JUDGMENT

On August 16, the front pages of metropolitan newspapers recorded in top headlines the probable release before nightfall of the kidnapped Canadian, John S. Labatt, Dr. Beebe's 75-foot dive in the bathysphere, the departure of the marines from Haiti, the forthcoming strike in the textile industry, the latest development in Louisiana as Huey Long wielded the whip over the legislature—all news of interest and importance.

On the same day the Monroe County Appeal, published at Paris, Mo., appeared with the eight-column banner line: "Rain! Rain! Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow!" In Paris, Mo., the rain that had fallen the night before was the biggest news imaginable. It transcended in importance all the doings of men the world over. By 7 o'clock Thursday morning, 3.71 inches of rain fell in Monroe county, "the first real good rain in more than 15 months," as the Appeal put it.

"The brown and thirsty earth became wet and soft, insuring the possibility of early plowing and seeding for fall pasture and gardens." To the country, rain falling from the heavens after a drouth is liquid gold. It means the end of long and anxious vigil, of peering at the sky day after day while crops wither, cattle nibble vainly at bare pastures, and the whole life of the country lies suspended under the brassy sky. Rain is manna. It is salvation to the farmer.

When Editor Blanton of the Appeal made up his first page August 16 he displayed the soundest of news judgment.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS BIBLE

Lesson text, Acts 8:26-39. Golden text, Psalms 119:97.

The scripture for this week's lesson is taken from the record of the Acts of the Apostles after Christ had ascended to be with the Father to ever make intercessions for mankind (Heb. 7:25). The instance cited for our study is not a part of the life of one of the apostles. The Philip spoken of in this passage was one of the seven deacons chosen to serve the people, especially the widows, with food and clothing, when the work was too heavy for the apostles. Philip was a man filled with love for the Master and was directed by the Spirit of God into a greater service than merely material attentions to the needy. There are always plenty of devoted people who are capable and willing to care for the material things of Gods kingdom. But it is not everyone who is willing to go about preaching His Word. Both must be done. But Philip was willing to preach a worthy service for a deacon.

When Saul of Tarsus began his persecution of the followers of Christ in Jerusalem, many of them were forced to leave. Among these was Philip. He went to Samaria and there preached the Gospel. The entire city hearkened unto him, and many were saved and baptized. He was having a great meeting there in that great city. The meeting lasted for a long time, probably two months or longer. It was in the midst of this meeting that God spoke to Philip and told him to leave the city and go down on the highway between Jerusalem and Gaza. The country south of Gaza was a desert, and the road to Gaza was through an extremely arid country. There were some mountains on the way and numerous small streams, like those in this western country, draining into the Mediterranean sea. Most of the way was non-populated. Such was the country into which God told Philip to go. God gave the man no reason why he should leave his fertile field of Samaria and go where there were no people. He merely said to go. It is probable that most of us would have found some excuses to have remained in Samaria. But Philip heard and obeyed without question. How well it would be if we would read God's Word, hear His voice, understand it and heed it without question. No doubt the journey looked like a fruitless one to Philip. But God had commanded that he go, and he went. If we will hear and heed the commands of God, we need have no fear concerning the outcome though it may seem a failure to us. God knows what He needs done. It looks as though a great king like David could build a beautiful temple to Jehovah. Yet God wanted him to do the gathering of the material, and had another He expected to do the building. So it is many times with us.

But in this case, when Philip had obeyed the first command, there was another ready for him. The secretary of the treasury of a great nation was returning home and reading the Old Testament. The eunuch was sitting in his chariot, being driven by a slave no doubt. God told Philip to approach the chariot. He made bold to speak to the eunuch. In a moment Philip was up riding with him in the chariot explaining a portion of Isaiah by the preaching of Jesus. The eunuch was saved and when they came to a place where there was water, was baptized. The Spirit of God immediately snatched the missionary away and put him back to work in a more populated section.

There is some question whether the eunuch was an Ethiopian or a Jew. There was a colony of Jews in Alexandria which had been located there for several centuries. The man had been in Jerusalem to worship, either for religious or political purposes. It is probable that both he and Philip spoke the common Greek language of the day. The tradition is that the eunuch went home and won many including his queen, to Christ. Whether he was Ethiopian or Jew, we do not know.

Much might be said concerning the details of the lesson, but it seems that there are a few great lessons that can be applied to our lives to make them well pleasing to the Master. Every man has the privilege and opportunity to preach the Gospel. He may not do it from the pulpit or in church houses, but he can preach it in his daily walk. The common conception today is that there are men set apart for the preaching of the Gospel, which is true, but the average Christian looks askance at the pulpit declarations of the ordained minister concerning the business, living, and pleasures in which he is engaged. If the declared warnings and condemnations do not please the individual he either does not go to hear them, or turns a deaf ear to them. How well pleasing to the Father if every nominal servant would actually live the principles of the New Testament.

Not many of us have stopped to think of the wonderful power the Christian world would have if every Christian in name were a Christian in heart and life. Those of us who have considered, have not delved deeply in our own lives to measure how far short we fall of hearing and obeying the Master, and set our lives to making the ideal of the Master develop into a reality in our own individual lives.

SERMONETTE

Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Text: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, but the way of the ungodly shall perish."—Psalm 1:1, 6.

AT THE CROSS-ROAD OF LIFE

The Psalter or the Book of Psalms from which our text is taken, may be called an "abstract," a document which contains the old truths of the entire Holy Bible. It consists of dogmatical, ethical and historical material. This poetical book does not bring in anything new but it brings us to the old, old truths of the sacred Scriptures in new and concise form. From the Psalms we use many proof-texts for our Christian doctrines. It must be noted that the teaching of the creation of man and the doctrine of redemption are very clearly stated. Generally speaking the Psalms are highly objective.

The first Psalm is an independent Psalm, which we readily see from its contents. It was, of course, written by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. We do not know who the human penman was of this beautiful Hebrew poem. Most likely it was David.

We call the first Psalm a didactic Psalm, because it teaches us a very important lesson. The blessing of godliness is contrasted with ungodliness.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful." In his verse, the word "man" means "mankind." It holds good for every person in this world and also those that will be born until the Day of Judgment. Blessed and happy are the children of God that separate themselves from the mass of godless sinners. Here we see a climatic progression: walk, stand, sit. A person does not reach the peak of vice all at once—as the ancient Latin fathers used to say. It is one step after another. The low depths of vice is the goal of impiety.

However, in contrast to this, the goal of the pious and God-fearing people is salvation. Each one in this world must face the cross-road of life. He has a choice of following Christ or following the call of the wicked world. He must choose his course. One road leads to eternal life and bliss in heaven, while the other one leads to eternal damnation in the bottomless pit of Satan, in the dreaded, unquenchable hell-fire.

The believers must not be separated from unbelievers not only in spiritual life but also in their daily, visible life. Their external deeds and actions must show that they are not "of the world" even though they are "in the world." In 2 Corinthians 6:14 we are warned thus: "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?"

"The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish." God knows who His children are. Only He can see into their hearts. He knows whether they are true and faithful to Him or whether they are hypocrites, ungodly wretches. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked." Dear reader, what has been your choice at the cross-road of life?

CAN YOU TELL A BIGGER ONE?

An old sea captain was telling about a trip down the Orinocco River some years ago. They had not gone far when a swarm of mosquitos from the shore settled upon the boat. Everybody was forced below. After several hours they came up on deck, and found that the mosquitos had left—and so had every sail on the brig! They had carried away every stitch of canvas.

Two weeks later, said the old captain, the same swarm of mosquitos came out to meet the vessel, and every blasted mosquito had on a pair of canvas breeches!

Just Between Us: Every man has at times in his life the ideal of what he should be, but it is not. This ideal may be high and complete, or it may be quite low and insufficient; yet in all men that ideal seeks to improve, it is better than the actual character. Those who try to appear what they are not, make a better appearance by being what they are.

EXAMINATION WEEK

This week concludes the first period of the school year. Examinations will be given as teachers desire. Parents should be interested in the progress of their children and if failures occur they should confer with teachers immediately. There will be many changes due to changes from rural schools and other systems to this system, which is maintained in strict accordance with regulations of Texas accredited schools and the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

FACULTY PLAY

The school faculty is working on a play to be presented soon. The play is a three act drama, "The Attorney for Defense." Proceeds will be used to help pay for lights on Tiger Field. The cast includes Misses McCarty, Cummings and Noel, Mrs. Wilson and Messrs. Harding, Loter, Vernon, Brian, McHaney and Murdock. The director is Miss Elizabeth Kennedy.

HORNETS DEFEAT TIGERS

By Special Reporter: The McLean Tigers, with G. McCarty, center and dependable line backer, and triple-threat captain Tolter, from the back field, lost the game played on October 5 to the Tullahoma with a score of 6-0. The Tigers played a good game to hold the Hornets, one of the strongest teams in this section, to such a low score. The visitors were hard tacklers, strong runners, able passers and swift ball carriers. The first half was fought on neutral ground with both lines holding when the second half was played. The third quarter ended with the plunging Hornets making a 67 yard drive to make the score tally. A 17 yard pass from Tolter to Fletcher, and later a 55 yard pass from Vandergriff to Fletcher led to the touchdown. The extra point failed. Tullahoma made a total gain of 166 yards from scrimmage to McLean's 20. McLean lost 20 yards from scrimmage. Tullahoma 49. First downs Tullahoma 5. Each team attempted 12 passes with two incomplete, and complete for a gain of 22 yards. McLean kicked 10 times for an average gain of 40 yards; Tullahoma 10 for an average of 25 yards.

AGRICULTURE REPORT

The vocational agriculture teachers of the Panhandle met at Clarendon, Okla., Oct. 6, for the purpose of electing the officers of their local F. A. chapters. The opening exercises were conducted in general sessions led by Mr. Hill of Claude, president of the districts; and Mr. Loter, district supervisor of Texas. The boys were divided into different groups for special training for local officers. There was a group of presidents, secretaries, reporters and treasurers. The Miami chapter put on an interesting and closing demonstration. Following this the district officers were elected for the ensuing year. The McLean boys who attended were: Arthur Ledbetter, Cecil Jones and Verne Harris. Schools represented were: Claude, Tullahoma, Miami, Childress, Panhandle and Dodsonville.

HOME ECONOMICS REPORT

The third year of home economics has been studying entertainment. The girls gave a tea for their mothers and teachers last Thursday afternoon, which was enjoyed by everyone who attended. The girls prepared and served the following menu: Ribbon cheese sandwiches, punch, mints and olives. Guests were: Mesdames McHaney, Andrews, Finley, Bodine, Butler, Stout, Pollis, Wray, Dyer, Green, Boyd, Davis, Tampke, Lynch and Wade; Misses Aline McCarty, Lillian Abbott, Elizabeth Kennedy, Clara Dishman and Bobbie Lynch; Messrs. Henry Loter, J. H. Bodine and N. U. Stout. The second foods class visited the Caldwell Bakery last Thursday morning. Mr. Caldwell gave us a very interesting demonstration on the different types of flour and everyone was benefitted by the demonstration. We wish to thank Mr. Caldwell for his kindness in showing us this part of the bakery business.

JOKES 'N' STUFF

Miss Cousins was giving us a lesson on snow. "As you walk out on a cold day and look around, what do you see on every hand?" "Gloves," answered a freshman on the back row. Wilburn—"One of our little pigs was sick so I gave him some sugar." Mr. Tampke—"Sugar—what for?" Wilburn—"For medicine, of course. Haven't you heard of sugar-cured hams?" Pat—"Mr. Cryer surely has been a success in his life." Mike—"Well, as a golfer he certainly has plenty of lie-abilities." Paul—"Did you know that Shakespeare devoted one of his plays to a dog?" June—"No, which one?" Paul—"His play about Hamlet, the great Dane." Averil—"Your car is six months old and yet hasn't a scratch on it. How do you manage to preserve its finish, Coach?" Mr. Rush—"Quite simple. I make it a rule always to park between new cars." Mr. Loter—"Shirley, do you know Lincoln's Gettysburg Address?" Shirley—"No; I didn't know he lived there."

ADDITIONS TO LIBRARY

Many additions have been made to the high school library in order to have books for the increased number of students. The following magazines are coming to the library: 1 American Boy, 1 American Girl, 1 Correct English, 1 Good Housekeeping, 1 English Journal, 1 Open Road for Boys, 3 Historical Reviews, 1 Poultry Tribune, 1 Mathematics Teacher, 5 American Observer, 10 Scholastic, 1 Popular Science, 1 Hoard's Dairyman, 1 National Geographic, 10 Weekly News Review, 5 Current Science. Fifty-nine new books have been ordered and 22 pamphlets concerning the new deal have been added. The Upham family donated 99 volumes of books, which were divided as necessary to the libraries of both schools. This was indeed a great help to the library and the gift is greatly appreciated.

A street car motorman, after clanging his bell persistently behind an obstinate coal truck for two blocks, finally managed to get up alongside the driver. The motorman leaned out of his window and just looked. The tough truck driver brazenly said: "Well?" And the motorman replied: "I just wanted to know what you are. I just wanted to see what you look like."

Yankwich—"Did you tell her, when you proposed to her, that you were unworthy of her? That always makes a big hit." Tinkham—"I was going to—but she told it to me first."

"Now, then, what should a polite little boy say to a lady who has given him a penny for carrying her grip?" "I'm too polite to say it, madam."

Mrs. W. L. Campbell and Mrs. Sammie Cubine were Amarillo visitors one day last week.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY! A negro had been arrested for being disorderly. And it wasn't the first time the same policeman had arrested him. The next morning when he bid the judge "good morning," the city prosecutor, desiring to show the court that the prisoner was an old offender, asked him: "Have you ever met this officer before he arrested you this time?" "Yes, sah, deed ah has," admitted the darky prisoner. "Well, what were your relations with him?" "Looky here, man," exclaimed the negro, "that policeman ain't no relation o' mine! I see just skeered, dat's what makes me look so white."

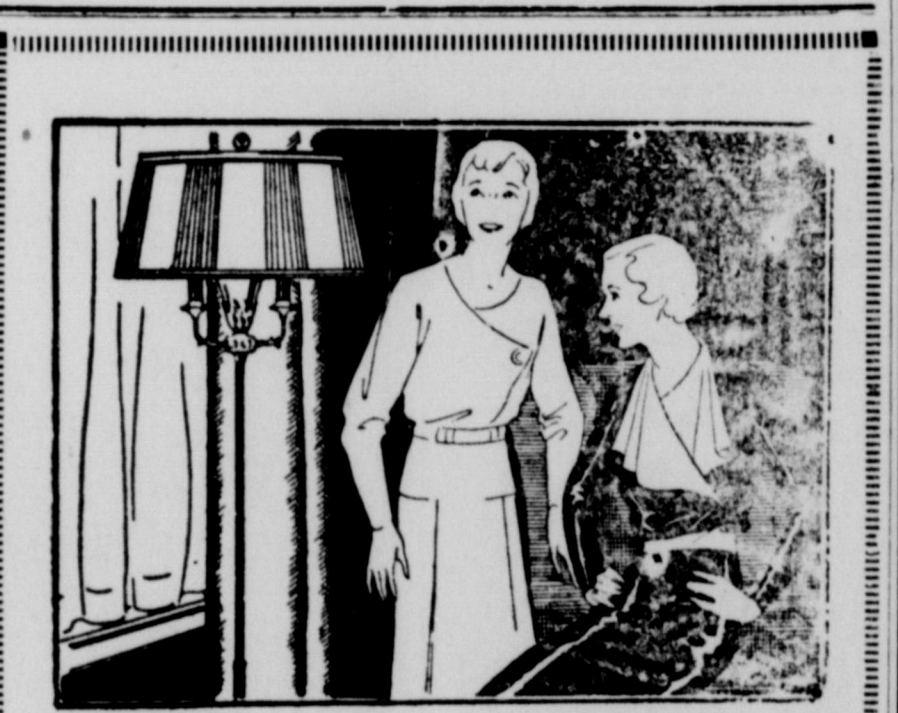

Girl (watching huddle on football field)—"There, they're at it again! I do hope Bill won't repeat that story I told him last night."

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Campbell and baby went to Oklahoma City Saturday, for medical treatment for the baby.

FLAME OF THE BORDER

Sonya Savarin, a prisoner in the camp of El Diablo, opium smuggler, pleads with her keeper for a means of escape from the horror awaiting her, by self-destruction, but to no avail. Concha, her love for Stone overcoming her hatred for her successor, which she knows Sonya to be, arranges for the escape of the pair. They flee the camp in an airplane, but as they leave the realize that Concha has paid, with her life, for their chance of escape.

CHAPTER 14

On Lone Mesa's Top

Sonya clung to the cockpit's edge with clutching fingers, her eyes, burned dry of sudden tears, fixed on the future, if future there was to be. The aching sorrow for the lovely Mexican girl who had loved Starr Stone sank deep in her heart, never to be quite eradicated.

The memory of all sane and ordered things was dim and far away—the ranch house that was home, the faces of Serge and Lia and the child.

And Rodney Blake! With a shock she remembered him.

He was a stranger to her. She could not recall his face with any clearness. There was only one face clear to her. The face of this man so miraculously snatched from death to life, this man who drove an airship through the midnight sky toward life and love and liberty.

Presently, watching tensely, she saw the great pale ribbon of the Rio Grande.

The Border!
The international line!
She held her breath as they passed above it, and let it out in a great sigh.

A little longer, and they would be safe.

Safe—and home.

Home!

What would it mean to her and to Starr Stone?

The stern face of her brother—Rod Blake who had so grimly promised that no people, no country, no man should ever take her from him—and Marston of New York, the man who came to find who sent the contraband from Mazatlan to the coast!

They had not cheated destiny after all. They were headed straight for this, and Starr Stone knew it! For that he would not leave her to save himself she knew full well.

Confronted with this new knowledge of disaster, Sonya wet her dry lips, cast desperately about for something she might tell those three grim men, and found nothing.

And then, leaning her face across the cockpit's polished edge, she became conscious of something; felt something of a seventh sense. Exactly as a dog senses danger which he cannot see, so this girl of the wild land sensed new danger now. It was as if the hackles of her spirit rose.

What could it be?
She looked at the back of Starr Stone's head, its bronze hair whipping in the backwash of wind behind the low windshield, and wished she could see his face.

If she could have done so she would have seen it set like a mask, for long before she felt the presence of this unseen danger he had been conscious of it.

He knew that not far behind them, not so high above, another little ship droned steadily out of the south—that Nemesis incarnate was on their trail. He knew that in that ship there was, in all probability, a machine gun in the hands of El Diablo himself, who was an expert in its use. What the end would be, he did not know. Only that it would be an end. There was no doubt of that.

El Capitan would never in this world let him get away with what he had done, with the knowledge he had, with the stand he had taken; to fore swear him and all his works. He meant to kill him—to kill them both, if no other way was possible—to shoot them down, if they would not land.

And where could they land with any chance of safety?

Well, it was fate—as he had told poor Conchita.

And then Sonya looked up and back—and saw.

Saw the soft silver thing that followed like a pointed sword.

After all!

After all the monstrous anguish, the fear, the sorrow, and the hope!

Verly Starr Stone was paying for his sins, and she paid with him for that love which had redeemed him to manhood's high estate, which had made of her a fugitive, an outcast from her own, but which burned in her soul with indestructible beauty.

So be it, thought Sonya Savarin, so be it.

Down in that dim world below, the last act of this drama of the sage land was preparing for enactment.

Posse after posse, scouring the lone levels, had turned bak toward the railroad and the town. Baffled, wondering, they sought new reinforcements, made more extensive preparations to search the canyons and the Bad Lands country. Only Serve Savarin, the two men with him, rode and would not give up. Two Fingers, Hosteen Nez, Hosteen T'so hunted patiently in ever widening circles that had covered all the face of that flat land.

In the quest of these three silent trailers here was more than a mere search for a lost white woman. There was the dim and gentle shadow of that legendary diety, the Blue South Woman, who "made her hogan" in the white girl's heart.

So the Navajos rode steadily, would ride until they found her, either living or dead, if she was anywhere in the wild land, and destiny came to meet them.

They had done with the sagebrush levels. Lone Mesa loomed before them. Silently, save for the click of the slithering hoofs, they ascended, fantastic figures from a long dead past, the low moon red behind them.

And in the magnificent heavens Starr Stone, looking desperately down ahead, caught the dim outline of Lone Mesa's crown, its shining white stone level.

Here was a landing place. Here were walls against which a man might make a stand if he were armed, find shelter behind which if he were not, providing he could get the time to leave his plane and gain them.

And Sonya, too, saw and recognized Lone Mesa.

It was almost level with them—was so—the ship was leveling off—distance, height, had dropped away—they were skimming the mesa's surface—touching—bouncing on the uneven rock—were still.

Behind them that other was at the very edge—above them—passing over.

Starr Stone, with his arms about Sonya, dragging her over the side, cast one flashing glance ahead.

"Kismet!" he said with white lips. "They beat us after all! They're down behind us and the pueblo!"

So they were, the rocking gray ship still a hundred feet beyond. And El Diablo, Manuel, deadly shapes of menace, were climbing out, coming toward them.

Calmly Sonya stood beside her man. "Come back," she said, touching him, "toward the cliff. It is our only way."

With his arm around her, Starr Stone turned, and, stumbling, lurching, they crossed the space between them and that sheer lip where once, ages ago, it seemed, they had looked into each other's tragic faces and found their destiny.

"Darling," the man said softly, "hold to me—tight—don't be afraid." Sonya Savarin laughed, a little low sound.

"Afraid?" she said, running, "with you?"

"Halt!" came the great voice of El Diablo. "Halt! Or I fire!"

There was yet a moonlit space for the running feet. Death might catch them before they leaped to it.

Crack! Crack! Crack!
The sharp barking of an automatic—not the machine gun.

News from Enterprise

Bullets whined about them, clipped into the rocks beyond.
And Sonya Savarin looked up for the last time into the face which had filled her heart, her soul, to the exclusion of all else since that wild day in the spring here on this windswept height, when she had first beheld it.

The man looked down, slowed in his stride.
One moment more—a kiss, maybe—and this glorious adventure would be done forever—sealed like a deathless flame in the casket of eternity.

What will be the fate of these two lovers who dare death rather than surrender? Read the final installment of this gripping story in next week's issue.

PLAY SAFE!

For many weeks Estelline has been visited almost daily by house to house salesmen of all kinds, roofers, bread-wagons, cleaners wagons, printing salesmen, and a lot of other peddlers we have not heard of. You know, or should know, that these people come here to make a profit and invariably their products are a cheaper product sold at higher prices, or they could not afford to travel about the country, pay travel expenses, hotel bills, etc. Play safe. Spend your money at home—treat your neighbor and home business man as you would have him treat you—then the whole town would prosper. Did you ever hear of a peddler spending his money in Estelline, or paying taxes to help support the community?—Estelline (S. D.) Journal.

But don't you know that things bought away from home are always better and cheaper than those bought at home?

Why buy at home anyway? Folks can get most anything they want here in Higgins. The stores are first class and are better than most small town establishments, but what of it?

A town without a store would be a pretty bad go, but there are always a few folks who do not send off for things they can get at home, and anyway, why worry?

People don't have to trade at home.

Business concerns do not have strings on their customers.

If they did what a lot of yanking those strings would get!

Who cares whether the home print shop, for instance, has a show or not?

A town without a newspaper would be a dead town, but why worry? Of course, people want publicity, but that is what a paper is for. Home news and plenty of it quick and snappy!

Once upon a time a family (they did not live in Texas) got the idea that they could do better by sending off for goods and for a number of years they spent very little at home.

Then the son went into business. He put in a general store and spent a lot of money for a good location, and spent more money in putting up a modern store building and fittings for the large stock of goods he bought and put on display.

He did a very fair business until the new wore off, then he began to wonder what was the matter.

Mother, dad, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins, and all the in-laws sent up a big roar when the cause of slack sales was noted.

Even the print shop was invaded with publicity hunters who had heretofore never paid a dollar into the newspaper till. But as for ads and such like things, the publicity hunters did not deem them necessary.

Finally the truth began to seep in. The people were not patronizing home institutions.

Chickens were coming home to roost.

If you want your business and home town to prosper, patronize home institutions.—Higgins News.

NOT JUSTIFIED

The Chief is back to four pages this week after giving our readers a six-page edition for several weeks. It is with deep regret that we are forced to go backward instead of forward, for it is our desire to grow, but it was found by the publishers to be a losing proposition from a financial standpoint to carry two extra pages of reading matter, as the advertising patronage from local merchants would not justify the added expense of same.

To the firms that are regular advertisers, we wish to express our sincere appreciation for making it possible to remain in business. These progressive men have not only helped the local paper to remain in existence, but they have been benefitted in a material way.

The story, "Flame of the Border," which has been running in these columns, will be finished. Other features, however, will be discontinued until such time as the local advertising support will justify an increase in the size of this newspaper.—Miami Chief.

SMALL HOMES NEEDED

There are two crying needs in this county. One is particularly the problem of the towns and the other applies to both towns and rural areas. During the last few months there have been a score or more of persons in this office inquiring for a small modern house. Most houses are too large for the average salaried man. These larger houses were built in every country town a few years ago when building costs were less. The smaller houses built at that time were largely of cheaper construction and often were not and have not since been made modern. If rents ever reach a point where they will pay the landlord even a small return on his investment, there should be a spurge of modernizing of small houses and the remodeling of larger houses into compact, livable apartments. One must remember that an automobile, radio, iceless refrigerator and a few other modern inventions are a necessary part of the salaried man's household equipment. He cannot afford a large home. Further, and mighty significant, we believe, there are more salaried men coming to live in rural centers like St. Johns. They like the environment. They believe it is a wholesome and healthy place to rear and educate their children. They tell us they have more real friends and more real enjoyment in smaller cities. They mention our schools, our hospital, our golf course, the park, and the reasonable prices charged by merchants. This we believe is one of the very outstanding needs—more small, modern living quarters for small families.—Republican-News, St. Johns, Mich.

ALL IS NOT GOLD—

If you are broad minded enough to swallow everything that comes along, of course you are in the sucker class, but there are a large number who make up this aggregation. One of the soft marks that are worked is the fellow who falls for everything that comes along, particularly advertising. A stranger can tell a merchant he has just what he needs in the advertising line and very often convince him that he has long been wanting just such a fake, and pays him money for which he could get legitimate advertising in the home paper. All is not gold that glitters and all is not circulation that is claimed by these fly-by-night solicitors.

Thanks are cheap. We often receive letters thanking the Gazette for publicity given all kinds of entertainment and numerous others, which we appreciate, but when the sponsors of the above take their printing to some other office, we don't feel that we have been fully paid. We give hundreds of dollars worth of publicity every year to our people, while they respond by going elsewhere to get printing they pay for. We don't believe we are getting a square deal and in the future the free notices may be conspicuous by their absence.—Stillwater (Minn.) Gazette.

FUNNY THING, AGE

"A very handsome woman, that Mrs. Miller."
"You ought to have seen her 15 or 20 years ago, when she was 10 years younger."—London Tit-Bits.

Hubby—"In this article it says that whatever you eat you become."
Wife—"Oh, then go at once, dear, and take that all-day sucker away from Junior."

Ends Aching Sore Muscles

For longer lasting, quicker relief, use Ballard's Snow Liment which contains active ingredients to give a more than local action, thus bringing a surge of warmed blood to scatter congestion and more quickly soothe away the pain from aching muscles, sprains, strains, headache and lumbago. TRANSIENTS

By O. L. D. Timer

Since we have made great improvements in our methods of transportation, we are encouraging and developing people who migrate like the ducks, geese and other birds which travel back and forth in order to find climates that suit their habits and needs.

There is a lot of difference between a tourist and a transient, for the tourist spends and helps a country through which he goes, but the transient solicits or sponges on the country.

Transients are bound to be a burden on society. The railroads furnish them beds in box cars and depots and transportation on freight cars, and the bakeries and sympathetic people feed them and clothe them.

The government has established transient bureaus and transient camps for weary Willies, but when I asked a man why he did not take advantage of one he said, "Aw heck! a man with even a vestige of ambition would not stay around one of those dull and uninteresting places."

The average transient is not a very desirable character, but sometimes you will find one with a heart in him as big as a beef steak, and occasionally one will quit the road, settle down and make his mark and gets to be an honored and respected citizen.

As I wrote this a train rolled in from the west and a motley bunch of transients got off and made a run over town to see what they could find, and reminded me of the charge of the light brigade.

Transients to right of you, Transients to left of you, Transients in front of you, Rustling and mooching.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

I want to know what to do about balancing my budget. I can't do it by myself, so I would like for all the business men and professional men to call a meeting and help me out.

I want the grocery man to figure out how much I can spend for groceries the gas man to figure out how much gas I can burn, the light man how much electricity I can use, the water man how much water I can drink and how many times I can take a bath, the dry goods man to tell me whether I can have some warm underwear and warm socks this winter or whether I had better make out with my summer underwear and continue to go without socks.

By doing this, folks, I can keep my budget balanced and my creditors will know just how to dish out my salary in a fair and impartial manner and none of you will be getting any more than your just share, but as it is now some of you are making some bad guesses as to my gross income and some are getting more than your part.

We have had a school tax equalization board and a city tax equalization board that have figured out just how much money we have for taxes, so why not a general equalization board to divide our income equally so that no one will get more than their share?

And another thing, I don't think it is fair for us to pay "duck" license, especially us husbands. I think we should be allowed to "duck" anytime the occasion justifies, because if we are not permitted to duck at times we would get our block knocked off.

PIONEERING

Men who have blazed new paths for civilization have always been precedent breakers. It is ever the man who believes in his own ideas, who can think and act without a crowd to back him; who is not afraid to stand alone; who is bold, original, resourceful; who has the courage to go where others have never been, to do what others have never done that accomplishes things that leave his mark on the times.—Selected.
