Whoopin' Around

By D. A. Davis

I'm in dutch already on exchanging my text from "I Know" to "Whoopin' Around." A lot of folks have already written me to be careful, to go slow, to stop, look and listen, to pay attention to the people who want me to adopt their slogan to "see nothing, doing, and do nothing."

Thurman Adkins was toastmaster. Mr. Adkins praised the organizations, schools, churches, newspaper, business firms and utility companies here. The speaker said that McLean is the "biggest little town in the Panhandle. In fact we lack only one thing," said Mr. Adkins, "we need an ole swimmin' hole, and it is to be hoped that some time in the near future we may have such a place, because it is the inherent right of every boy to go swimming."

too careless and reckless with your driving, and for God's sake be sensible and reasonable and "careful" before something awful happens.

And here is another thing I can't understand. In every case of drunkenness I have had to deal with the past year, everyone of them vowed and declared they were not drunk. And in talking with some of our well known speeders here in town they just vow and declare they never drive too fast.

And you people who have dogs just vow and declare your dog never does bother anybody, and you who have chickens and cats, horses and mules, or in fact anything you've got, are just perfect "animules."

But heck; some of you wise guys figure this out for me, please. I must admit I'm entirely too dumb to do it.

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas of Pampa was also presented as a visitor.

The tall twister was especially obnoxious, and a stunt was pulled for his benefit that scared most every Lion present. Lion Jones demonstrated what was purported to be a bottle of nitro-glycerine, and he became so nervous that he dropped the bottle, and as his confederate, Lion Boyd fired a pistol at the same moment, most of the Lions, and especially the tall twister, thought that the worst had happened. When twitted by Lion Goff about the state of his soul, Tall Twister Wharton said that he was interested at the moment in keeping body and soul together.

Sanford, N. C., April 17, 1936.

Mr. T. A. Landers, McLean, Texas.

Dear Sir:

I called in your office just before leaving there, as I wanted to tell you good-by, and regret very much that you weren't in. However, I made the trip very nicely; arrived here last Monday. Believe me, Mr. Landers, this part of the country is looking mighty good. Will you please convey my very best wishes to all the good fellows of the McLean Lions Club.

Mr. Landers, I am missing my paper very much. Won't you please get it through to me.

I am in the same capacity here that I was last year in Henderson, N. C., prior to coming out there. Am manager of an automobile parts and accessories store. This is a new store and am hoping to have it ready for opening about May 15th. The setup of these stores is mighty pretty, something similar to Western Auto Parts in Amarillo. Again, let me call your attention to the fact that I will surely appreciate getting our paper.

With very best wishes to you, yours, and all of McLean.

Yours very truly,

M. G. BABER.

Calles Is Expelled by Mexican Government

PLUTARCO ELIAS CALLES, former president of Mexico and for long the most powerful figure in that republic, was forcibly exiled to the United States, together with three other prominent citizens, by the Mexican government, which declared their presence there was dangerous to the welfare of the country.

Summarily ousted with Calles, who for 11 years ruled Mexico with an iron hand, were Luis Morones, former minister of labor and leader of the regional confederation of workers and peasants; Luis de Leon, former minister of the interior and agriculture; and Rafael Melchor Ortega, former governor of Guanajuato.

Leftists charged that Calles and his associates were fomenting agitation against the Cardenas administration. This Calles denied, adding: "A state of anarchy exists in Mexico and communism is spreading with government help."

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club

Hello, Everybody!

"The Theater of Death"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

SOME of you older boys and girls of the Adventurers' Club will recall Chicago's Iroquois Theater disaster of 1903. I remember it very well.

Five hundred and seventy-five persons lost their lives in that terrible catastrophe and 90 per cent of them were women and children who had come to attend the opening matinee of the musical show, "Mister Blue Beard."

Once in a while someone would see a thin vapor rising from the lips of one of the still forms in the heap. That meant one of them was still alive and the vapor was the breath showing as it froze on striking the zero air.

Fatal Panic of the Iroquois Theater Fire

Inside the theater witnesses said the scenes of horror were indescribable. Panic had followed the discovery of the fire and women and children were being trampled to death in the mad rush for the exits.

Alpha is a big girl now but she was a little girl then and a member of a famous child ballet which was on the program that fateful afternoon. "Mother" Follis was in charge of the ballet and in the business of training children for stage work and, according to Alpha, was quite a character.

Ballet Girls Flutter Before Their Cue

"Back stage" as the show started, Alpha says, all was confusion, the confusion that always attends the opening performance of a new show. There was a very large cast and much scenery to handle.

Suddenly a scream, followed by a roar that shook the theater, startled them. They jumped to their feet in alarm and looked anxiously around.

The little girls, Alpha says, obeyed as usual like soldiers. Mother Follis orders were always obeyed to the letter. But the awful sounds of panic and confusion that came to the children through the thin walls of their dressing room made them rigid with terror. What was happening out there? Why had the music stopped? These and other unanswered questions nearly drove the little girls hysterical but they kept their seats.

Death Was a Member of the Audience

And outside, on the stage and in the audience Denver was already taking its grim toll. Had the girls known what was happening around them they would certainly have stampeded and been trampled to death in the mad rush for the doors.

Meanwhile, Mother Follis was having her share of anxiety. Caught in the mad rush, as she went to investigate, the ballet mistress was borne with the fear-crazed crowd right through the stage door to the alley in back of the theater.

And outside, on the stage and in the audience Denver was already taking its grim toll. Had the girls known what was happening around them they would certainly have stampeded and been trampled to death in the mad rush for the doors.

Mother Follis Makes a Dramatic Rescue

And, as usual, Mother Follis had her way. Back into the burning theater she went with a fireman at her side. The door suddenly opened, Alpha says, and a blast of smoke swept in.

And 12 little girls, looking neither to right nor to left, marched out behind their beloved "Mother." The stage, Alpha says, was now clear of the frenzied crowd. Flames crackled around them and smoke made their eyes water but not a fluffy skirt was disarranged as the little ballet marched out to open air and safety!

The crowd sent up a cheer as the girls marched out the stage door, in perfect formation. Not a dancing-pumped foot was out of step. Then as eager hands reached for the children something happened that DID break up their formation.

Hawk Family Ordinary Up to Entirely Beneficial

There is a hawk species, according to a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture, that ranges in human significance from "ordinarily neutral; sometimes injurious" up to "almost entirely beneficial." These are the hawks which the farmer, the sportsman, the outdoorsman generally, should learn to recognize and to salute with a "Pass, friend," when he sees them.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

18 and 65 No Perfect Crime A Heavenly 400 Fighting Over Rivers

President Roosevelt, in another "opening speech of the 1936 campaign," addressing 20,000 Young Democrats of Baltimore and the nation on the radio, suggested that youth should begin work at eighteen and "old age" stop work at sixty-five.

Youth should have its first 18 years, at least, for exercise, study, happiness. Sixty-five might be a good age to stop dull routine work for wages, but no woman would want to stop real work until death, except that six months to look around this side of the grave might be acceptable.

Goethe finished the second part of "Faust" when he was past seventy-two; and one of the ablest French writers, starting a new prose style, wrote nothing until at eighty-six he wrote the Life of St. Louis at the request of the king's widow.

In the murder of an unfortunate young woman, New York detectives think they see, at last, "the perfect crime," one in which the perpetrator cannot be identified.

Fortunately, there is no perfect crime, except in the imagination of the criminal or the detective story writer, because criminals are dull, cannot keep their mouths shut, are vain, boast and the electric chair gets them.

Bishop Stewart, Episcopalian, of Chicago, thinks immortality may be limited. "Only those who have a definite relationship to God through the spiritual life may be eligible for immortality, and other souls cease to exist upon death."

This important suggestion of a celestial "four hundred" will appeal to many that might not care to meet, in heaven, the cave man with low forehead, protruding jaw, the bushman with a vocabulary of 150 words, or all the repentant thieves, murderers and trust magnates.

It is conceivable that selection of the celestial few might be postponed a few million years, until real civilization shall have begun. This is the poison gas age.

Rivers have played an important part in the world's history and in wars. The Tigris and Euphrates, creating fertile Mesopotamia, and the ancient Nile, with its rich valley, regularly contended with Nile mud, made the first civilizations possible.

Men fought through the ages about those two rivers, and today rivers still cause war. In Europe the Rhine border may cause a repetition of the big war. In Africa, the Blue Nile, fed by Ethiopia's Lake Tana, breeds bitter hatred between England and Italy.

Charles Lamb tells of a Chinese gentleman whose house burned and of a pig so marvelously roasted that thereafter pigs were locked in houses, the houses burned for the sake of the roast pig.

That is recalled by a lady under arrest in Pensacola, Fla. Sheriff Gandy charges she tried twice to wreck a passenger train to kill her husband, the engineer. It is alleged that the plot failed because the wrong spikes were pulled from the rails. Sheriff Gandy thinks the lady wanted to collect $3,000 in life insurance.

An African savage who gave all his ivory tusks for a gun was found later in the bush, on his knees, praying to the gun not to shoot him. He did not know how to use it.

This country is equally ignorant about using youth and its enthusiasm. A Frenchman may improve if "American digestion would improve if Americans made more and better sausages."

Voltaire, another Frenchman, said the same thing of England long ago. He found that England had many religions and only one sauce, whereas France had many sauces and only one religion, and he preferred France.

The new Zeppelin, in spite of engines out of order on her return from Brazil to Germany, kept on her way at 50 miles an hour, fighting winds over the Mediterranean. That is one advantage of a dirigible—she stays up. The heavier-than-air plane with engine trouble comes down.

Russia has a genuine "youth movement," with one-third of all workers under twenty-three years of age, 43 per cent of them girls. Russia has 173,000,000 population, nearly half of it born since the Bolshevik revolution.

Populations and history change rapidly. Extreme youth might control the whole of Russia but for the fact that it is already controlled by Stalin of middle age.

Text: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness?"—2 Cor. 6:14.

Very often we hear of liberalism... within the pale of the Christian... Church. The term "liberal" is sorely... abused. As a rule it is not used in... its proper meaning. According to a... standard dictionary the following definitions are given for this term: "possessing a free and generous heart; not bigoted; broad." A liberal person is defined as "a member of a party which advocates liberty of thought, speech or action."

Now we ask: Should a body of... Christians glorify in the fact that... they became liberal by means of... unionistic practices in which they... elevated rationalism to the same plane... with the truths of God? It is true... that some people were bigoted and... stubbornly attached themselves to a... system of opinions which were not... based upon teachings of Jesus Christ... Our Resurrected Lord and Master... But many—by deviating from the... teachings of Christianity and by... harmonizing truth with error—wheth... er maliciously or subconsciously... developed a system of liberal Christianity. Such a development is by... no means modern. Such religious... liberalism, so-called, has been a... common practice within the Christian... Church since the second century... after the birth of our Savior.

This fad of including error with... truth in order to make it possible for... believers in Christ to worship with... unbelievers with the excuse of "pre... serving peace" and practicing "broad... minded fellowship" has been re... modernized and stream-lined, so to... speak. (Here we are not speaking... of mission services).

Unionistic practices within the... Christian Church are becoming more... brazen and defiant. The boldness of... such unionistic leaders who claim... to be servants of Christ is very... shocking to Christians who insist... upon adhering 100% to the doctrines... of Jesus Christ. Scripture plainly... states: "Be ye not unequally yoked... together with unbelievers: for what... filowship hath righteousness with... unrighteousness? And what communion... hath light with darkness? Or what... concord hath Christ with Beller? Or... what part hath he that believeth... with an infidel?" (2 Cor. 6: 14, 15).

Modern religious liberalism, so... called, is neither genuine freedom... nor true and basic broad-mindedness... but instead, it is slavery to the bogs... and quagmires of Satan's inspirations... which can be traced to the fall of... man in the Garden of Eden.

OUT OF LUCK
NO OTHER TIRE HAS THIS LIFE-SAVING INVENTION
WE GAMBLER ON BLOW-OUTS AND LOST . . . . PLAY SAFE!

Speeds have more than doubled in the past ten years. No wonder thousands are killed or injured every year in blow-out accidents, because when you are driving along at 40, 50, 60 miles an hour, the heat inside your tires is terrific—as hot as boiling water. This heat causes rubber and fabric to separate. A tiny blister forms—grows bigger and BIGGER—until sooner or later, without warning, BANG! It's a blow-out!
Why take this dreadful risk that you may regret the rest of your life when it is so easy to play safe! An amazing new invention, the Life-Saver Golden Ply resists heat so that rubber and fabric do not separate—thus these blow-out blisters are checked before they even get started.
Can you afford to be without this blow-out protection when Goodrich Silvertowns, the only tires in the world with the remarkable Golden Ply, cost not one penny more? Don't trust to luck. Come in and see us today about a set of Silvertowns.

Bad Old Days

O. L. D. Timer

You often hear people talk of the good old days, but when you tell them that they can still find countries where they can go and find about the same conditions existing that prevailed 50 or 100 years ago, they at once change the subject and you conclude that they are merely victims of their own imaginations. Most of the good old days were founded on the theory that "When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise," and were the bad old days of ignorance and unenlightenment and would be a punishment to a person of today.

Although Father Adam had the whole world to himself those were the bad old days when he was driven out of Eden to dig among the thorns and thistles with no better clothes than fig leaves. All through the ages if a person had been given the choice of living in any given age, don't you believe, after all the stages of civilization through which the human race has passed, that they would choose to live at the present time? All through those bad old days when a man made some great discovery or stated facts he was considered crazy and dangerous to the extent that he was put to death if he would not deny or recant, but when men would die in defense of their discoveries and beliefs, they finally began to see the truth. We still have relics of the bad old days in the shape of men who believe the world is flat, and in the Townsend plan.

In those bad old days when a man originated a new idea the king said "You must die," and the king's word was law, but now when a man advocates some pet theory people are as unconcerned as a gangster is of the Ten Commandments. In the dark ages and the days of the Spanish Inquisition, a man had to be exceedingly careful what he said, but now he can speak at random, talk about the preachers, the church and state, and even curse and abuse the President, and no man will even tarry to hear what he says.

In the bad old days of baseball the curve ball was discovered in 1877 and some of the doubting Thomases had a surveyor to set up three stakes and had a man to throw a curve between them before they would believe a man could throw a curve, but now you can tell folks that the most unrepachable character in the community pulled a wild party and they repeat it without batting an eye.

In the bad old days a man, in order to be in the right, was almost sure to be a martyr to the cause for which he stood, but the days of physical martyrdom seem to be gone forever, but a person still has the privilege of being a mental martyr.

In the bad old days when people had large families and went visiting on Sundays, women folks had to slave and cook all morning and wash dishes and straighten up till bedtime, but now they can go to preaching, then go home, grab a can cutter, open a few cans, then go to the refrigerator and get ready prepared foods, sit down and eat with the men, clean up the leavings in a jiffy, go in, sit down in an easy chair, put their feet up on the table, light a cigarette, and say, "Soul, take thine ease." If we had to go back to the bad old days when we had no telephones, electric lights, refrigerators, radios, automobiles and paved highways, airplanes, free speeches and free presses for a season, we would undoubtedly quit complaining and grumbling and accomplish things as never before.

NO JUSTICE

Behold! A maiden groweth up and gradueth. And the editor putteth in the paper a swell piece. Yea, a peach of a notice. He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the roses of Sharon is she, and her gown is played up to beat the band. And the dressmaker getteth two score and ten dollars; the editor gets a note of thanks (maybe). And the daughter goeth on a long journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of a farewell party. It runneth a column 8 point solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a card.
 Behold! she returneth and the town falleth down and worshipeth. She picketh one, and lo! she picketh a lemon! But getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor an invitation to the wedding, but the invitation was printed in a far city.
 Flowery and long the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth his bit.
 The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry, and a yard of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the death, and it reads, "Gone to her last roasting place."

 And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulleth out their ads and cancellleth their subscription, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations.—Valley Echo.

Not Just a "News" Paper

"If a member of your family died, would you send out the obituary in a circular letter?"

A South Dakota editor asks that question of his readers. The rest of his front page reads like this:

"If your wife entertained, would you run a slide on the screen of the movie show? If you were to enlarge your store, would you tell the folks in a hotel register? If you were to have a wedding at your house, would you tack the news on a telephone pole?"

"Then why the heck don't you put your advertising in the newspaper too?"

If you believe people in this community read your news items, why not be consistent and have the same confidence in ads placed in The News? It means money to you to do so!

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

He took up the tumbler, removed his finger from the box and slid the inverted sledge over the small opening in the wood.

Then he sat down to wait.

"Hi! All loaded up, eh?"

The bee had appeared in the glass, crawling about the interior intently, seeking escape. Carefully, Young tipped the tumbler to its side; the insect condescended its investigation for a moment and then, finding the way to freedom, issued an instant on the rim and took its wing.

As the bee launched itself, Kerry roared erect and tense, eyes on the tumbler moving dot against the pale yellow. Out it went in a great circle, and tick again, skimming over the box.

"Lider it circled, and higher; again and again it swooped above its newly discovered source of treasure, widening the circle each time, and Young's body moved as he followed the course. . . . then, with a final swoop, the bee straightened out, bearing a bit east of north, and disappeared behind a smock stub.

"There!" he said and looked down at the bewildered dog. "That's the way it works, Tip, and that's our job for the Sabbath!"

"At his word Tip sneezed and Young laughed heartily.

"He's taking the bacon home, chum! He gave the box all those swings so he'll know where to come for more of what he found. Oh, yes, he'll be back. He'll fight wind and distance and anything but rain or cold to get here so long's there's a drop left. And he'll tell his buddies about it, too!"

More bees appeared on the firewood, but Kerry gave them no heed. He smoked and stood over his box, waiting through a long half hour. And then a louder buzzing, a more intent sound, came out of the silence, and a bee zoomed over the box, lighted on the cover and disappeared within.

"And his gang!" the man cried in triumph. "His gang, Tip! See? Two more. . . three. . . four. . . seven!"

Singly and in braces they dropped to the box, sought the hole and, up-ending, went through it out of sight.

When no more appeared, Young placed his hat gently over the hole, picked up the box and, stepping carefully over the tangle of down stuff so as not to fall and invite temporary disaster, made his way to the foot of the stub where the first bee, homeward bound, had disappeared.

Reaching there, he placed the box on a stump, removed his hat, slid the upended tumbler over the hole and squatted. Almost immediately, bees appeared inside the glass. He let three show before liberating them and then, with bated breath, followed their circlings until they had straightened out and marked a poplar tree, five rods away, as the last certain point on their course.

"Not so good, Tip," he muttered. "Took that first feller a half hour to go and come. Maybe it's a big tree; if so, he may have a lot of crawling around to do to get rid of his cargo. But, even so, it's a long ways off. They'll do a mile in five minutes in country and weather like this. . . . Timber's not so far from here; they won't fly so fast in there as they will in this burning. And we won't be able to see so far, either. . . ."

"Well, it's like leap-frog. Come on, chum, let's drag the duffle up!"

Again nearly a half hour passed but this time the first contingent brought more helpers and when he moved the box forward to the base of the poplar tree, a handful of bees were trapped there and, when the last had gone, he replenished the supply of honey which served as bait from his bottle.

That was a few minutes after eight, just at the time when Nat Bridger, drawn and gray of face, hammered loudly on Tod West's door.

West answered sleepily from above and after a short interval appeared. His greeting, which began with something of his old geniality, petered out to a crisp:

"What the devil's up?"

"Enough! I been tryin' to get you for three hours by 'phone but either you slept like hell or—"

"What's up, I asked you?"—jaw quivering.

"Well, Young made a get-away. Must've had help from outside, looks like. He's gone!"

For a moment the room was silent and then came a hollow rattle; Tod West's teeth clicking as a spasm of fear shook his great frame.

"You poor sap!" he rasped. "You poor, simple . . ."

Bridger protested and West stormed and explanations, excuses, regrets mingled with condemnations.

"I've done all I can. I've notified every sheriff for two hundred miles. He went east. Took my car and drove a tire flat 'nd left it. Chances are, though, he's to hellgone!"

On this, something like relief flickered in West's eyes but it was of short duration. This Young was not the sort of man who flees in the face of so flimsy a charge as had been placed against him. He had hoped at the moment to keep Kerry in safe confinement until Bridger and the prosecutor could perfect a case against Holt Stuart which would forever remove from his own breast those cancerous sores. But now . . .

"None, eh?" he muttered. "Well, you've been made a monkey of by him. You'll folks think of that when they vote for sheriff again? I tell you, Bridger, you got just one chance: start to start things movin' against Stuart and not let 'em stop!"

"Well, I'm tryin', ain't I? But what

CHAPTER XIV

It was sundown, now, with a cool mantle of evening descending on the forest.

"Tough luck, chum!" Kerry muttered to Tip as he finally gave up hope and turned away from his bee box. "They've called it a day. . . . But we can't be far off, now, and unless it rains tomorrow . . ."

He looked anxiously upward. Clouds were riding up from the west. The air felt soft. If rain held tomorrow he would be put to the ordeal of keeping out of sight and accomplishing nothing. . . . Not a nice prospect.

"May have a wet night," he told the dog. "We can't be far from the cabin on Townline, but wouldn't dare risk that."

He found a down maple and under its sheltering bole spread his blanket finally and, rifle handy, dog beside him, stretched his tired body. Rain began to fall and in the distance thunder rumbled. His thoughts turned to Nat, to Ezra and Holt; then to West. He drew a long, uneasy breath. . . .

He would have been a trifle more at peace had he known that a car, bearing two men, whirled into Shoestring from the southward, lights glaring with intensified brightness in the downpour. It came to a stop before a gas station and one of the occupants, slicker clad, leaned out:

"What's the road to West's Landing?" he asked the boy.

"First to the left and straight on, Twenty miles. Look out for the culverts if the creeks is up!"

"Thanks!"

The car pulled away and the one who had asked directions said to the driver:

"Don't you want me to take her, Sergeant? You've had a long trick at that wheel."

"Mebby so. You've napped. No tellin' what this old coot of a coroner'll have on the bill for us when we get to him."

The rain was heavy but of short duration. Stars appeared, the rumble of thunder retreated and when the sun rose to warm and dry the land, insect life had resumed its activity and Young, biting hard on his pipe stem, carried his bee box forward, set it down and carefully liberated the confined workers within.

"We're close, Tip!" he muttered. "Close and closer! Look at 'em!"

Dozens of bees swarmed about the box, buzzing shrilly.

And an hour after the first visitor had called for his portion of honey, Young stood at the foot of a gnarled beech tree, staring upward at the old scar in the trunk, twice as high as his head, watching the come and go of workers through the hole that gave access to the tree's hollow heart.

He did not move much after he had finally located the tree. For long he stood in one place, looking about, searching out what sign he could find.

Man sign was there in plenty. Yonder, a white pine had recently been blazed and pitch globules glistened in the sunlight. Brakes had been trampled down; here a seedling maple lay crushed into the duff, its leaves not yet wilted.

At the base of the tree lay a saprophyte which, until recently, had been growing on the scarred portion of the trunk. He could see where the bracket-like growth had been attached, two feet above the ground. He picked up the fungus and on its pale, tan velvety surface showed the print of a heel, even to the nails, dark brown against the buff. Some man had used that bracket in starting to climb that tree!

On his knees, he searched. The rain had not struck here with great force. Small bits of bark and lichens, with a fresh look, were there. The protruding end of a small limb, long since dead and all but absorbed by the expanding trunk, bore bits of thread, as if a garment had been scrubbed over it. . . . Yes, someone had climbed this beech tree.

Honey and money! . . . Money and honey!

Yonder went a trail; faint, yet readable to Young's eye. Not a game trail, either; he found the illy defined outline of a boot sole there. Stopped over, he followed. Broken, withered brakes told that someone had gone this way weeks before; broken brakes, still fresh, attested to a more recent passing.

The sign ended before a pair of limestone boulders, tilted together, forming a small cave.

"Oh—oh!" Another stone had been set against this opening once; now it was gone, rolled yonder.

He lay on his belly and shot his flash-light into the small cavern. . . . Granules glistened on the stone; he touched them with his finger and looked closely. Black, brittle, glittering flakes they were. . . . Lacquer from a Japanned box?

His mouth was very dry, now, and he rolled quickly to his side to stare at the tree. A box the size of the one he had dug up yesterday never could have been concealed in the hollow of the beech; the opening was too small. But a box had been hidden here, and a man had climbed the tree. . . . And honey had daubed the man who handled both box and crowbar. . . .

"I'm a son-of-a-gun!" he cried. "I'll be a . . ." And on his feet there his face showed, for just an instant, a flash of admiration for the ingenuity which had laid out this course. . . . If the course he now suspected actually had been followed.

He had been right about the cabin on Townline. It was a short mile there and he covered the distance at a jog trot. Tip close behind. He halted at the edge of the clearing to look and listen and then went forward without hesitation.

From an insect net above one of the bunks, he cut a portion; he found a pair of old leather gloves; a workman's denim jumper; a hank of stout cord. From the tool cache he took an ax, a cedar saw, a splitter and two wedges. These, with his rifle, made a burden of consequence and by the time he reached the tree again sweat bathed his excited body.

From the netting he improvised a veil, adjusting it over his hat and tucking the edges into the neck of the jumper. He put on the gloves, tied the jumper sleeves tight about his wrists and picked up the ax.

"Tip. . . Yonder!" He gestured in command. "Away back and lie down! There's going to be a lot of hostility here in a minute!"

He waited until the dog had obeyed and then sent the bit of the ax deep into the beech.

He was right about the hostility. Not a half dozen blows had been struck before they were upon him in a cloud, buzzing angrily, seeking ways through his veil and garments for countless stingers. But Kerry was well protected and swung his ax steadily, cutting a great gash in the trunk. Oh, one or two got to his wrists, and now and again he felt a burning prick on the shoulders when his jumper stretched tight. But that was as nothing, in this interval of suspense.

The tree sagged and shivered. It snapped and swayed. He struck three more swift blows and stepped back as it came down with a mighty, swishing roar and crash.

He had dropped the ax as the beech toppled. Now he took up the saw and, standing in a cloud of furious bees which hovered over the entrance to their fallen store-house, he sent the teeth singing through the stout wood. Swiftly, his supple body swung to and fro, stoutly his long, strong arms drove the avid blade. The forest rang with the sound. . . . Rang with the sound which would have covered even the noise made by a frantic man, crashing through brush, running intently, breathlessly, his hat gone and face scratched and clothing torn; heedless, apparently, of everything except making speed and clinging to the rifle he carried across his chest.

No, the man was not close enough to have the sounds of his progress reach Young. But he was close enough to hear the ringing echo of that saw. He drew a hand across his face to wipe away the blood and the sweat and tried to still his breathing to listen. His trembling lips shaped a word and then he went forward, cautiously, walking like a cat, rifle held at ready. . . .

As he approached the source of those other sounds, which had now changed from that of sawing to blows of a sledge on metal, he bent forward a trifle and went even more slowly, more quietly. . . .

West's Landing and its environs had experienced two long evenings and one long day of an excitement pitched to a point never before attained there.

And now the second day was beginning. Work was forgotten where it could be and before Mel Knight's store was gathered a group which argued and debated and orated and broke short anything it happened to be saying when another arrived, just on the chance that he would be the bearer of fresh incident.

Holt Stuart was in jail. Nan Downer, it was said, had brought in a lawyer from outside yesterday and the three had been together in Nat Bridger's office for long but no attempt to secure Stuart's release had been made as yet.

Kerry Young had escaped during the first night of his imprisonment and had not been heard from since, though the search was frenzied.

Frank Bluejay was gone somewhere in his rattling, tattered flivver and men combed the blueberry country for sign or word of him.

And across at Downer's headquarters, old Ezra Adams sat behind the locked door of Nan's office with the articles he and Young had brought from Townline, refusing to budge, denying Bridger admittance, waiting for something . . . one knew not what!

Oh, it was something to talk about, all right!

Tod West had been in and out, saying little, going into long, heated but confidential talks with the sheriff.

"He's givin' Nat hell!" the wise ones opined. "Tod's anxious to see things go right in this country, you bet! Leave it to Tod; he'll give good advice!"

But this last was a matter of habit. Even when men said it and others agreed, they were making reservations. It was easy to determine. Somehow, Tod West wasn't the figure he had been. . . .

And now came young Logan DePriet, walking across the trestle from Downer's. He was a lad with mild blue eyes and pimples on his face and fuzz on his chin.

"Well, Logan, you got it all settled over there?" a wag asked.

"Dam' right! Dam' right we have!" the youth replied importantly.

Something about his manner tugged at the interest of those who heard and saw, and yet . . . Logan was not to be taken seriously.

"I s'pose you've found Young 'nd Bluejay 'nd know what Ezra's got hatchin', eh?"

"Dam' right! Dam' right, I do!"

"A lot you know!"

"Betcha I know more'n any of you uns! Betcha million dollars, I do!"

"Take you. Bring out the million!"

"You think you're funny!" The pallid eyes flared indignation. "You think you're smart, you do! Well, lemme ast you this: you know who them dudes was that drew into our place after the rain las' night? You don't? I know dam' well you don't! Well, I do. . . . One of 'em 's a corporal 'nd one of 'em 's a sergeant 'nd they're detectuffs!"

"Gwan!" So commented one, but others lost their smiles and drew closer.

"Betcha two million! You know it all, you do! Betcha five million!" He spit and nodded. "Why, Miss Nan, she gits me up to put her car away, she does. 'Nd after I'd done it, I seen 'em all in th' office. I walked by 'nd they was standin' there, Ezra 'nd Miss Nan. 'nd th' detectuffs, 'nd had a box 'nd a crowbar 'nd a tin cup on th' table. They had a coal oil lamp there 'nd was all bent over, cause th' storm put th' electric lights out; all bent over th' table 'nd sayin' as how they couldn't do nothin' 'til mornin'!"

The scoffers, now, were even edging closer, and another had come from behind young DePriet: Tod West, this, halted in his evident intent to enter the store, looking, listening.

Use of Italics in Bible

In almost all literature, italics are used for emphasis or to give words a special meaning. But in the Bible they are used merely to designate words that have been added to make complete sense out of the literal translation from the Greek and Hebrew.—Margaret Tinney, Talladega, Alabama, in Collier's Weekly.

McLEAN STUDENTS WIN PLACES AT DISTRICT MEET

McLean high school has every reason to be proud of those who represented her in the district meet of the interscholastic league held in Pampa last week end.

The tennis teams played in Pampa on Thursday and Friday. The girls' doubles team composed of Marie Landers and Mavis Brewer, was eliminated in the first game by the team from Magic City which won first place in the district. The boys' team, composed of James Emmett Cooke and J. D. Back, won second place in the district. They were defeated by Panhandle, which is reported to be one of the fastest teams ever to play in this district.

The declaimers from the high school did some very creditable work. Marie Landers, senior girl, won second place with the selection, "Pioneer Women of Texas." L. R. Bevins, junior boy, won third place with the selection, "The Glad Song of Texas." Mabel Back, junior girl, tied for third place in the preliminary series, but was not selected to speak in the finals. Jesse Finley and Pauline McMullen represented the high school in extemporaneous speech, but neither placed.

Twelve counties, with Gray having two representatives, are included in this district, and it is very creditable for our students to win over such schools as Borger, Panhandle and Pampa. Coaches were: Bill Allen, tennis; Elizabeth Kennedy, junior and senior girls' declamation; Mrs. Thurman Adkins, junior boys' declamation. Supt. Cryer was district chairman of debates.

ERMADDEL FLOYD WINS ESSAY

The winners in the state contest will be awarded a free trip to Kansas City next October, to represent the state in the national contest.

Seventy or eighty schools will be represented in the state contest this year.

The boys will travel in the school bus. They will be accompanied by their instructor, Clyde Magee.

SHERLOCK SNOOPINGS

Sherlock imagines it will be very lonesome (if peaceful) when the seniors are gone Friday.

Too bad! Lottie Margaret Barrow has the mumps and won't get to go to Carlsbad.

Miss Abbott—J. D., where was the declaration of independence signed?
 J. D.—At the bottom.

Is Leonard Brawley disgusted? Yes mam! Mr. Loter announced that the world series baseball games between the juniors and seniors would be postponed, so "Moon" never got slapped.

Charles Finley and James E. Cooke regret to say that Miss Kennedy broke a five year record on Tuesday morning, when she failed to make an announcement in assembly.

Supt. Cryer announced in assembly on Tuesday morning that too many students were interested in "cutology." Why so many black eyes, boxers?

A BULWARK

It has often been said that the greatest safeguard to liberty and constitutional government in the United States is the country press. No nation is so well covered with local newspapers.

The thousands of publishers of these local papers generally own and edit their own publications. They are independent and express their own opinions. They are among our highest type of citizens and have a thorough understanding of the principles upon which our government is founded, regardless of their party beliefs. In the great majority they are broadminded enough to put the welfare of the nation and security for life, liberty and property ahead of any party prejudices.

That is why the country press of the United States is the greatest champion of the rights and liberties of all the people, as set forth in the fundamental law of our land.

If anyone doubts this, he has only to read the editorial comment of editors from the four corners of the nation today. To illustrate, the editor of the News, published in the typical town of Ruskin, Neb., in a recent issue, in commenting on the growing tax bills and bureaucratic tendencies in government, says:

"We say, look out! When you get more than half the people on the federal, state, county, municipal or other public pay roll, then you are going to have bureaucracy, right, both at home and in Washington. As we have said before, it is not just what we are doing now, but the direction in which we are heading that counts."—Arlington (Mass) Advocate.

Silk Prints and Chic Accessories

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PRINTED silks headline the fabric story both for daytime and evening. Prints this season have an entirely new and refreshing look. New techniques and new patterns make current prints definitely 1936 and not carry-overs.

The latest treatment for daytime prints spaces tiny amusing motifs over the background. These miniature objects are frequently used instead of the dot theme. Animals are popular in patterns. Horses, and cunning dogs are decoratively delineated. Barnyard themes include roosters, tiny pigs, ducks and flying birds. Even fish and fowl have become print-conscious while butterflies dart over many of the modern silks.

As to flower prints, daytime florals are the most infinitesimal in years. Small bright florals spattered here and there, tiny bouquets and single flowers give silk prints a decidedly different look this season. Larger, more conspicuous flowers are reserved for afternoon and evening. Gorgeous florals on black, white or colored ground reflect exotic beauty.

The woman who diets will find the new vegetable and fruit prints quite to her liking. Radishes, carrots, beets, peppers, parsnips and tiny ears of corn thrive on silk crepe and silk shantung grounds. Fruit prints abound in the mode via apples, cherries, plums, strawberries and grapes in discreet and colorful patterns. The newer prints also include landscapes, newspapers, music notes, the alphabet and Roman numeral motifs.

Twin prints are news. Printed silk taffeta is combined with silk crepe in twin prints for jackets and redingote ensembles. Silk mousseline coats match the design of the printed silk crepe frocks worn under them.

When one dares to think of the novelty and chic of the new silk prints in the same breath with the novelty and chic of the accessories that will be worn with them the situation becomes positively exciting. For example, jewelers are playing up to the charming and beguiling eccentricities of the new silks by creating vegetable and fruit dress clips, bracelets, buckles and various other gadgets of colorful enamel and other composition, sometimes using bright stone settings to convey the idea.

Gloves too have entered into the conspiracy, coming out in colors to match the bright hues of the prints. The very attractive young women pictured are, as one sees at a glance, thoroughly fashion-wise as to what is modish in silk prints and flattering accessories. The seated figure is wearing a gown made of a silk print that spaces miniature butterflies instead of the traditional dot. The three butlerly bows of starched lace down the front of the buttoned jacket-blouse together with white roses on her cunningly veiled sailor of lustrous straw give a sprightly touch. Take note of the well-bred version of the leg-o-mutton sleeve.

The other high-brow lady has chosen one of the new pure silk vegetable prints for her gown. A beet is used as motif of the familiar polka-dot theme for her modish wine and white suit. A new and important detail is the flower treatment that places a carnation on each lapel of her tailored close-fitting jacket. The silk faille hat has a third carnation. The dress is a one-piece type.

GABARDINE SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The perfect tailoring of this distinguished suit is achieved by the use of one wool gabardine which neither wrinkles or stretches and is never too heavy for comfort. The jacket is subtly fitted. It has two slash pockets set in at the sides. The straight cut skirt has the popular inverted pleat at center front, so that the skirt is amply full for walking but keeps a slim silhouette line.

To Match Prints

One of the new ideas that Paris is advancing is that of porcelain jewelry painted to match the printed dresses with which it is worn.

SPORTS-TYPE SILK FASHION HIGHLIGHT

In the realm of sports-type silks many newcomers are listed. Silk surah is a fashion highlight this season. Designers are using it in monotonous, and in dotted or striped effects.

Silk shantung is also a great favorite. The printed silk shantungs are especially smart used alone or in combination with plain. White silk shantung is the chosen medium for many of the handsomest summer tailors shown. It tailors beautifully and launders to perfection.

Other sports-type silks include silk foulards, silk seersucker and striped silk crepe. White silk serge, silk pique, silk jersey, parachute silk, checked silk sailcloth, also plain or plaid silk crepe are of intriguing interest. It is well to familiarize oneself with these new silks, in order to buy intelligently and acquire clothes "you love to wear."

Use Discretion in Color

Accents in Accessories

Colored gloves for spring are established, but the chic of this fashion lies in the discretion and taste with which the accent color is applied.

Browns, rust or chardron, and blues are the best accent for gray. Red and rose are gayer but not as smart.

The new violine ranges are smart with blues, and with the marine blue of Molyneux, the cyclamen shades are extremely smart.

With browns, their own darker or lighter shades or the rose tones are excellent, and with black, all colors, and white. The cinnamon browns are particularly good with black and extremely smart.

Greens may be worn with gray and with blue, are excellent with brown, but are never worn with green.

There is something all wrong about accessories that match the gown, and conversely, the accent note of contrasting accessories is so very right.

Pleats Prominent

Pleats play a prominent role in spring fashions. Sleeves, bodices and skirts of day frocks are worked in. Evening and evening gowns have insets of sunny pleating. Short full-pleated capes top several evening frocks.

Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Maybe the English have the right idea. The Reds spout as they please—so long as they stay off the radio and take it out in spouting.

There's a story in point: In Hyde Park where the crack-pots and clack-jaws speak their pieces, an impassioned radical in full eruption. Being a hater of kings, he would drive the royal family forth and set fire to their official London residence. A heckler quarrels with the orator; the crowd joins in, about equally divided, trouble impends. A large calm policeman plows through the jam.

Irvin S. Cobb

"Ere, now!" he commands. "All them as is going to burn down Buckingham palace form on this side, please. All them as is not going to burn down Buckingham palace kindly form on that side."

When you start people laughing at an agitator you've killed him colder than though you used an ax. I wish we'd club in and laugh some of our half-baked Communists to death. But for desperate cases we might keep an ax or two handy.

Rise of Landon Boom.

AS ONE state delegation after another swings toward Landon, his campaign managers are as optimistic as a seed catalogue. To be sure, taking the first heat doesn't necessarily mean your nag will win the county trophies, but it certainly does cheer up the stable-hands—and sometimes starts a stampede for front seats in the grandstand.

For once in G. O. P. history the rank and file shun a brother from the Atlantic seaboard as though he were a pesthouse.

At the ensuing convention it looks as though all the easterners will get will be the seconding-the-motion concession.

And yet I can remember when, if you called a fellow a Wall Street Republican, you didn't have to smile as you said it.

War Debt Specters.

FIVE and a half million European troops are drilling and seven million more are practically ready for service, more by one million and a half than there were in 1914, when the last big mess broke out.

Those Americans who are being grievously taxed because the powers won't pay back what they have owed us since the armistice for refinancing and rehabilitating their own lands—and that, one way or another, includes every living soul in this country—are invited to save up these statistics for use next time they meet one of those genteel souls who'd cancel these mounting foreign debts. Not war debts, mind you, but peace-time debts.

So let's call them by their right name as we sing: "I didn't raise my dough to arm a soldier but by golly that's what happened to it."

Idlers on Relief.

AT LAST we know wherein the League of Nations really functions. It keeps a good set of statistics. It says that in the world are 21,000,000 unemployed, and of this total more than half are in the United States. Since we are spending more government funds to aid the idle than any country, can it be there are persons among us who prefer staying on relief projects to taking regular jobs?

Next time I pass a public works undertaking I'm going to put the question to some able-bodied party who, if he's following the frequent custom, will be whiling away the hours between meals by gently fanning himself with a shovel.

A pick handle, as I've often observed on one road-digging operation that's being financed by Uncle Sam, comes in handy for leaning purposes, but the shovel is preferable for fanning.

Kentucky Colonel.

OUT here they've found a mail-order theological mill which, for $10, ordains you to preach, christen, marry, bury, and—oh, goodie—take up collections. Mickey Mouse lately lost his commission as a Kentucky colonel, but on behalf of Joe Penner's duck somebody wrote in and he became the Rev. Drake Goozoo, D. D. Thus are honors balanced in this world.

Recently, when the present bumper crop of Kentucky colonels was plowed under, we natives stayed calm. Nobody takes away our titles—we were born with 'em. In my youth, anybody good at guessing the weight of hogs was called "Judge," and a man who cured warts with stump water was "Doctor," and all the rest of us automatically were colonels, except one chap who was a major on account of having so many major operations. Poor fellow, he died before he attained his life's ambition. He wanted to run somebody's general store and be a general.

Printed Trimmings of Silk Used on Elegant Daytime Frocks of One Color

Pattern No. 1851-B

The smartest of the new dresses are those in a single color with flashes of printed silk to trim them. This design is one of the best, made of blue cloxy silk and trimmed with a print in red and blue on a white ground. The front of the bodice has a row of buttons extending to the neckline and a collar of the printed silk. A slender, paneled skirt is split up the front to show a printed strip that is attached underneath. Three-quarter sleeves are gathered into fitted cuffs in harmony with the collar. And by all means don't overlook the novelty shoulder and hip yoke.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1851-B

is available for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4½ yards of 39-inch fabric with ¾ length sleeve.

The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring Spring designs is ready. Send fifteen cents today for your copy.

Soap improves with keeping, so when the stores offer sales of soap, it is economy to buy a quantity of it if you are able to store it in a cool, dry place.

When papering a room cut off the left-hand selvage on rolls before you begin to paste. Leave right-hand selvage uncut. The overlapping method of papering is far easier than trying to place two edges together.

You can't kill plant lice with a poison. You must dose them with some kind of liquid that will smother them to death. Kerosene emulsion or tobacco dust will do this.

Cold roast beef toughens if cooked for any length of time in hot gravy. It is better to heat gravy and pour over the meat when ready to serve.

Do not add dressing to a salad until just before salad is to be served. If salad greens are allowed to stand in dressing for any length of time, they will wilt.

When serving lettuce be sure that no water is on the leaves when french dressing is added. The water will spoil the dressing and the oil will not adhere to the lettuce. Do not put dressing on lettuce until it is to be served.

Don't keep gas stove burners turned on full after foods begin to boil. Turn burners down and keep down gas bills.

'Honeymoon Mountain' Praised by Reviewer in New York Times

New Novel Chosen as Serial for This Newspaper.

"Honeymoon Mountain," the latest novel by Frances Shelley Wees, this paper's newest serial story, brought forth the following comment by the New York Times:

"A determined young lover will find a way, even if it is a very roundabout one. The author has hedged in her young lovers with more obstacles than there were in the rocky mountain roads round the home where pretty Deborah lived in the wilderness of Oregon. The clearing up of her problems makes an appealing romance with a pleasant mixture of the old-fashioned and the ultra moderna."

There's a spring-morning freshness to this story that carries you along with a thrilling sense of anticipation. Deborah's mother had made an unhappy marriage and her grandparents to protect her from a like tragedy reared her in the absolute seclusion of a mountain estate. At twenty-one, unspoiled and naive, she was to marry a handpicked suitor and then come into her fortune. When the prospective husband proved impossible, Bryn stepped in as a substitute, ostensibly for the $50,000 he was offered. The young man's gallant struggle to win his shy but proud young wife makes a tale you'll long remember.

Frances Shelley Wees is a native of Oregon, the locale of this serial. California and Alberta, Canada, have been her homes since childhood. She is descended, on the maternal side, from Canadians of English extraction. Her father's people are Americans, having begun their westward migration in Revolutionary times.

Though quite a newcomer in the literary world, her rise has been marked with success. Some of her popular novels are "The Mystery of the Creeping Man," "Romance Island," and "The Maestro Murders." Read her latest as it unfolds serially in this paper.

HUNTING A DEAD TOWN

A country editor told me of one of his recent experiences. A man came to his town and asked him what sort of a place it was. This is the liveliest town in the Panhandle, he was informed. The prospective merchant looked disappointed. "Well," he said, "I was hunting for a dead town, but I will go out and look around anyway."

He did and a few hours later he came back to the newspaper office with his eyes shining. "This town is plenty dead, and I am going to start a store."

Naturally the editor wanted to know why, since he considered the town dead. He was told that such a place presented a golden opportunity for modern merchandising methods. The man started the store. He bought new merchandise. He advertised every week. He brought the new merchandise to town as soon as larger cities, and he turned his stock every ninety days and a majority of it every sixty days. That was over a year ago and he is still going strong, but the average business of that town which is not too far from Wellington has decreased. This is a lesson not only for individual merchants—but for towns as a whole. A whole town could practice with profit the methods used by this merchant.—H. D. W. in Wellington Leader.

HE SUED FOR A MILLION

"Look here," the poet gasped to the editor. "I wrote a poem to my little boy and began the first verse with these words: 'My son, my pigmy counterpart.'"

"Yes?"

The editor read. "My son, my pig, my counterpart."—Christian Science Monitor.

Two motorists met on one of those narrow one-way bridges which may still be found here and there. Both stopped and each waited for the other to move. Finally, one shouted: "Get off the bridge! I never back up for any fool."
