Plans Completed for the Democratic Convention

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY of Kentucky, who was temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention in 1932 and as such delivered the keynote speech, will serve in the same capacity at the Philadelphia convention in June, outlining the issues of this year's campaign as his party views them. Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas will be the permanent chairman again. Yet another repeater will be former Judge John E. Mack of New York. Four years ago he placed Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination, and he will do it again in June.

These selections were made by the committee on arrangements. Other officers of the convention chosen, are: Leo Barnes of Alabama, chief doorkeeper; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, national committeewoman of the District of Columbia, hostess of the convention, with Mrs. Agnes Collins Dunn of New Hampshire as assistant; Col. Edward C. Halsey, secretary of the senate, sergeant at arms; Representative Clarence Cannon of Missouri, parliamentary, assisted by Representative John Z. O'Connor of New York; W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the convention. National Chairman Farley said that the two-thirds rule, which has prevailed in Democratic conventions for a century, will not be abolished. The rules committee will be headed by Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri and it will report for abrogation of the two-thirds rule as well as elimination of the unit rule. The latter binds the state delegations to abide by the decision of a majority of the delegation. According to Mr. Farley, these changes will not prevent the practically unanimous nomination of President Roosevelt.

Present plans are to have Mr. Roosevelt go to Philadelphia on Saturday, June 27, to close the convention by accepting the nomination in a speech delivered either in the Municipal stadium or in the University of Pennsylvania stadium close to the convention hall.

Roosevelt Addresses National Democratic Club

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT made what might be considered the first of his campaign speeches before the National Democratic club in New York city. Tammany was there in full force, but such disgruntled Democrats as Al Smith and John J. Raskob were conspicuous by their absence. Mr. Roosevelt declared his purpose to bring more food, higher prices and better homes for the people.

"If you increase buying power," he said, "prices will go up; more goods will be sold. Wages ought to and must go up with prices. This does not mean unbridled inflation or skyrocketing prices; this should be avoided just as we seek to avoid bankruptcy sale values."

New Tax Bill Batted Started in House

THE administration's bill to levy about 800 million dollars in new taxes yearly was introduced in the house by the ways and means committee, and a fierce battle started immediately. The Republican minority of the committee issued a report which stated that the proposed tax law was "unsound in principle, will undermine business stability, is another step toward regimentation of all business, and is not designed to raise revenue but admittedly is another New Deal experiment."

Conservative Democrats joined with the Republicans in this attack against the bill, but the administration leaders were confident the measure would pass before May 1.

Green Urges Unions to Remain Nonpartisan

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the American Federation of Labor, has sent a letter to all affiliated unions urging that they adhere to the federation's "traditional nonpartisan political policy." He says: "For obvious reasons, labor should avoid division even in the pursuit of its political policies. Such division can be avoided if working men and women, loyal to the American Federation of Labor, will refrain from identifying themselves with any political movement designed to serve as a substitute for the nonpartisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor."

Some time ago George L. Berry asked all unions to join "Labor's Nonpartisan League," the object of which, he said, was "to put American Federation of Labor unions on the record for President Roosevelt."

Navy in Six-Week Drill on the Pacific

ONE hundred and fifty vessels of the United States fleet, with 450 airplanes, are now engaged in the year's grand maneuvers in the Pacific. War conditions prevail and the vessels and their crews are being given a severe test of their fitness that will last for six weeks. The Panama canal region was the first objective of the fleet. The units are divided into attacking and defending forces and something is doing all the time, day and night. The naval officers are trying to solve the seventeenth of a series of strategic problems, each based upon some possible international situation mapped out by naval strategists.

Von Starbemberg of Austria Voices His Defiance

CIVIL war in Austria became a possibility as the quarrel between the Fascists led by Prince Ernst von Starbemberg and the clerical and monarchist elements became acute. Government officials, however, were trying desperately to patch up the trouble.

Prince Von Starbemberg, who is vice chancellor, in a defiant speech at Horn warned his political opponents that his helmwehr, or home guard, would be dissolved "only over my dead body."

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, speaking at Baden, retorted that "Austria is not Italy and Austrians are not Fascists."

Von Starbemberg asserted that if internal foes press too hard there will be a "repetition of 1934"—when the helmwehr triumphed in a short but bloody civil war against Socialists. False friends surrounded Schuschnigg, von Starbemberg said, and the helmwehr plans to protect him from them.

For Austria, said Starbemberg, there are three possibilities—a continuation of the authority of the state, Nazism, or communism. He asserted the helmwehr is determined to preserve the Fascist system and would continue as a separate organization but that other private armies would be absorbed by the regular army.

Advance of the Italians in Ethiopia Continues

ITALY'S victorious troops in northern Ethiopia continued their advance on Addis Ababa, though it was somewhat retarded by the efforts of the natives to blow up the roadways and otherwise harass the invaders. The Italian motorized column in this movement is the most formidable yet formed in this war and is notable for the large number of white troops included.

General Graziana's southern army, meanwhile, was driving toward Harar, second city of the empire, in three columns. The Ethiopians were putting up stiff resistance at various points but everywhere were driven back, according to Italian dispatches.

Contreras Is Elected President of Venezuela

ELEAZAR LOPEZ CONTRERAS, an army officer who rose to the rank of general under the late dictator, Juan Vicente Gomez, is now president of Venezuela. The national congress elected him to that office by a vote of 132 to 1 and directed that he assume the office on May 29. As president of the chamber, Contreras became temporary president on the death of Gomez.

Supreme Court Decision in Stock Yards Case

UPHOLDING a reduction of rates and charges at the St. Joseph, Mo., stockyards, the Supreme court held that the findings made by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace justified the rates he set and that the stockyards operators had failed to show confiscation.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan F. Stone and Benjamin Cordozo agreed that the rates should be upheld but in an opinion by Justice Brandeis expressed belief that the court went too far in passing on the fairness of rates.

Two Well-Known Writers Taken by Death

DEATH came to two of America's well-known writers. One was Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley," the genial satirist of modern life whose witty sayings delighted two generations. The second was Percy Hammond, veteran dramatic critic of the New York Herald Tribune, one of the foremost of the country's commentators on matters theatrical. Both passed away in New York city.

Secret Panama Treaty Is Cause of Concern

ARMY and navy officials were reported to be concerned over a new treaty with Panama which is being secretly considered by the government. It was said an uncorrected text of the pact showed it provides for "joint conversations" rather than for defense of the Canal Zone in event of aggression. The grant by Panama for the "use, occupation, and control of lands and waters outside the jurisdiction of the United States," if necessary, is renounced by this country in the treaty.

Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee said closed hearings on the treaty soon would be completed, after which the senate might consider the document in secret session in order to avoid international complications. Senator Hiram Johnson has said he will try to have the text of the pact made public before it is taken up by the senate.

Steiner to Be Key-Noter for the Republicans

WHEN the Republicans gather in national convention at Cleveland next June their keynote for their Presidential campaign will be sounded by Frederick Steiner, the eloquent and handsome United States senator from Oregon. He was selected to be temporary chairman of the convention by unanimous vote of the arrangements committee of the national committee after due consideration had been given the names of several other prominent Republicans.

Observers held that the motive in picking Steiner was a desire of the party leaders to give the convention a western atmosphere at the start, with an especial eye to agriculture. The senator has been actively identified with wheat growing and his home town, Portland, is a center of the northwestern background of the November elections. Congressman Bertrand Snell of New York, minority leader in the house, was selected to be permanent chairman of the convention, a position he held in the convention of 1932.

Leftists Are Winners in French Elections

COMMUNISTS and various brands of Socialists appear to have won a considerable victory in the French elections for the chamber of deputies, though the large number of run-off elections necessary may tone down the results. The greatest gain is shown by the Communists, who are likely to have 50 seats; but this does not please the Radical Socialists for they cannot count on the Communists in forming a government and fear that without them the chamber will be ungovernable.

Senate Passes Emergency Flood Control Bill

DISREGARDING warnings by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan against too hasty action, the senate passed a bill introduced by Senator Overton of Louisiana authorizing the expenditure of $272,000,000 for flood control work on the lower Mississippi river and its tributaries. There was no record vote. The bill has no relation to the omnibus flood control measure now pending, which may reach a billion. The sum named in the senate bill is authorized merely to be appropriated and will have to be put in a deficiency appropriation bill. Senator Overton declared it was justified by emergency conditions.

In addition to the 272 million dollars there is authorized an appropriation of 15 millions to be allocated by the secretary of war and used in rescue work or repair and maintenance of flood control works.

Rescue of Entombed Men Is Epic of Heroism

THAT old gold mine at Moose River, Nova Scotia, provided an epic tale of unselfish and heroic human endeavor that will be told for many a year. For ten days more than a hundred experienced miners strove unceasingly to rescue three men who had been trapped by the fall of dirt and rocks in the 140-foot level of the abandoned mine they were inspecting. Machinery and other equipment were brought from far away. A diamond drill was driven through and through this small opening, communication was established and food was dropped down but already one of the three was dead of hunger and exhaustion. Finally the desperate efforts of the rescuers were successful and the two survivors were brought safely to the surface, together with the body of the dead man. Those saved were Dr. D. E. Robertson, famous and beloved surgeon of Toronto, and C. A. Scadding. The one who did not live was Herman Magill, also of Toronto.

Black Committee Scored by Publishers

WHAT American newspaper publishers think of the actions of the Black lobby committee was expressed forcibly and unequivocally in resolutions adopted by their national association at its annual meeting in New York. The committee was accused of having violated the first, fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution by its seizures of private communications, and the publishers recommended that all victims of the committee's acts seek civil damages and demand the "prosecution of all involved in the odious affair under the criminal statutes of the United States."

FLOYD GIBBONS Adventurers' Club Hello, Everybody!

"Singing for His Life" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

FRANKLY, boys and girls, I'm scared to death of maniacs. Aren't you? As I've said before I guess it's because we don't know what a crazy person might do. I'd rather go up against a sane murderer any day than an insane one. Reason should tell us that a sane man bent on murder would be more dangerous than a raving lunatic because he can think better and plan his attack. But I don't know.

Jay S. Talory had a thrilling encounter with a raving lunatic that almost put him in the same mental condition. Jay had to sing himself out of this jam and boy! how he did sing. It happened while Jay was a member of the American Army of Occupation in Germany, after the World war. Jay got a leave of absence to look up the grave of a pal of his who had "gone west" in Flanders. He didn't find the grave but he very nearly found his own.

Jay wound up in the little town of Virton, Belgium, with his leave up. He had to get back to Coblenz but found that there were no trains running that day in any direction. Somebody suggested that he hike several miles up the railroad tracks, to a junction, where he could slip on a freight about midnight that would take him to Metz.

Adventure of the Doughboy in the Belgian Freight Car. The rain was pouring down as only it can in Belgium in the spring. Jay splashed along the lonely railroad tracks, picking his way in the pitch black darkness of the night. Soaked to the skin he finally reached the junction. A headlight lit up the murky night and soon a freight train rumbled slowly past him. Jay wanted to get out of that rain so he watched for an open box car. One came along and he hopped aboard and climbed into the still darker interior of an empty car. The car was none too clean, Jay says, but it was at least dry and warmer than the cold drizzle outside.

As the train picked up speed after leaving the junction, a strange feeling came over Jay. For some reason or other something told him that he was not alone in that car. He called out a few words in French but got no answer. Still the feeling persisted. He says he had a sort of premonition that danger lurked in the darkness of the box car.

But, after a few minutes, Jay put his forebodings down to plain ordinary fear. After all he wasn't used to traveling in box cars alone at night, he told himself, and maybe he was just afraid of the dark. Better do something, he thought, to get his courage up.

So Jay began to sing. Now some of us prefer whistling in a like situation but, you see, Jay had taken singing lessons back home and he had a good voice and a darn good musical education and here was a chance to practice, but he didn't get very far with his singing.

You Can't Sing When You're Being Choked. Suddenly, in the middle of a note, and without a word of warning, a pair of strong hands clutched his throat. Jay felt himself go sick with terror. In a flash it came to him that the townspeople had been telling him about an escaped lunatic who was terrorizing the neighborhood. The man was an opera star who had gone violently insane from overwork. Perhaps this was the man!

Although his eyes were starting from their sockets, Jay could see the dim outlines of a powerful figure towering over him. Jay only weighs 110 pounds wringing wet and knew he was no match for his giant assailant. His wits must get him out of this, he thought. Jay felt one of the powerful hands leave his throat. Then he felt a sharp stabbing pain in the shoulder and realized, to his horror, that the maniac—if such he was—had a knife. Jay's heavy service overcoat and uniform, fortunately, kept the knife thrust from being more severe.

Crazed Opera Singer Warbles "Othello." Then something happened that made Jay certain that he was in the power of the crazed opera singer. The man suddenly broke into an opera selection. Jay recognized the aria. It was a bit from "Othello." To a person of Jay's musical education the trend of the maniac's mind was simple. He was living the part of "Othello," the dusky character who wields a knife in the opera of that name.

The man's hand left Jay's throat for a second. Jay expected a thrust of the knife but he had a way to parry it—the only way he could—with his voice. He knew parts of "Othello" by heart. His throat was dry from terror and his voice, he says, shook, but he did the best he could with the tools he had, and sang.

The effect, Jay says, was magical. The man seemed to calm down and a second later he burst into song where Jay left off and Jay had a breathing space for a few minutes, but the maniac was acting his part too well. With all the drama of a stage performance he suddenly clutched the smaller Jay in his muscular arms and waved the knife madly about. Jay felt the wind as the hand holding the knife swept across his face. But he kept on singing.

Jay Saves His Life by Joining in Improvised Opera. Meanwhile the train sped through the night. Hours went by while Jay sang and cringed before the sweeping knife. Any minute he thought might be his last. His voice was weakening from the cold damp air and the strain of singing. But his insane stage partner sang on and swung his threatening knife whenever Jay's voice faltered. Jay thought of blindly jumping from the train but gave up the idea. The train was going too fast. He could not even see the roadbed.

On went the improvised opera in the box car. The train slowed down for a curve and Jay—in the middle of a high note—dove right through the open door!

Maniac Plays Role to Tragic End. As he crashed to the ground his nerves, too, crashed, and he jumped to his feet and ran screaming into the night. A light drew him toward a peasant's cottage and the kindly peasants took him in and nursed him back to health. The next day Jay heard the fate of his operatic train mate. The unfortunate singer's body had been found, in the box car. He had played Othello does—with his own knife! Whew! That's drama for you!

"Brown Spot" Cured by Fanning. One way to check "brown spot," the fungus disease that kills grass, is to fan it. The fungus thrives in hot, damp weather, but wind checks its growth. In experiments by the Department of Agriculture giant fans resembling airplane propellers kept air circulating over the turf and eliminated the brown patch, apparently by raising the evaporating power of the air so that fungus could not grow. Brown patch might be treated by cutting ventilating lanes for air through dense vegetation and encouraging air circulation.—Popular Mechanics.

Where Bees Find Sweets. In the United States the greater part of the honey produced is alfalfa honey from the Western states. Sweet clover, white sage and other mountain flowers also contribute to the Western supply. In the Central states it is white clover, sweet clover, Spanish needle and heartsease honey. In the Southern states, cotton, mesquite, horse-mint and sweet clover, and in the Eastern states, Northern states and Canada, buckwheat and white clover are the leading honey flowers. Orange blossoms, clover, aster and baswood complete the list.

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff, Pastor First Baptist Church

EFFECTUAL PRAYER

Lesson text, Luke 18:1-14. Golden text, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." Luke 18:13. The lesson for this week is based on the need and type of prayer everyone should make a part of their daily lives.

The first verse of the lesson gives us an eternal truth that is necessary that men pray. The Master also is saying that prayer is to be effectual prayer. The true Christian would not be content in any other kind, and yet Jesus intimates that much of what is needed is no more than mere supplication, which is suggested by the word "pray."

Prayer is more necessary than the usual charge of sinners ever suspect. It is the true prayer that God will answer. It may take long and weary hours of pleading with God, but when it has been accomplished, the answer comes back from the throne on high. There are no short cuts to God.

Jesus, by telling a parable, tells us that God is anxious to answer the true prayers of His followers. An unjust judge heard the plea of a widow. Someone had said, "Likely it was one of the judges' political supporters. There is a chance of getting more out of the one who had committed the crime than out of the widow who was wronged. Therefore, he chose to see the justice in her plea. It is not unlike many of us to-day. But the poor widow would not be satisfied to take the judgment she knew that it was not an honest one. Therefore she continued to keep her plea before the judge. Finally he decided the bother of the man might be worse than what she was giving her justice through his ill will.

Each person should be of a faithful spirit and not of a reverent spirit. A person of a faithful spirit conceals and forgets all past matters of offense and ill feeling. There is absolutely no excuse for a Christian to exhume the dead bones of hard feeling and bring them to life. It is not the Lord's will that anyone should do so. The Almighty God sent His only begotten Son into the world to die for us. He forgave our sins and then gave to the people a right attitude of prayer. He wanted to the temple to pray. He was a Pharisee. He was a man of a very exalted opinion of himself and he thought that God would have the same opinion of him. The many of us are like that. We have had too much of a Pharisee attitude toward Him. He always approach Him and have assurance that God will hear and either answer him or give the understanding necessary in that matter.

Then gave to the people a right attitude of prayer. He wanted to the temple to pray. He was a Pharisee. He was a man of a very exalted opinion of himself and he thought that God would have the same opinion of him. The many of us are like that. We have had too much of a Pharisee attitude toward Him. He always approach Him and have assurance that God will hear and either answer him or give the understanding necessary in that matter.

After all, how much difference between the Pharisee's ours, when our practice goes into the prayer throne, of needs before God for desire, and barge out. We are not pleased when time their children take with them is when they thing. If we do nothing study of this lesson, let our own prayer life and reform it.

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuhy, Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Vol. 3. No. 17. Text: "A talebearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter."—Prov. 11:13.

GOSSIP MANIA

Since the old bygone days people, according to their human nature, have taken sinful delight in scandal-mongering and revealing private matters which were of no concern or of consequence to the gullible public. Even today we see this sin of revealing secrets in the daily news, magazines of questionable character and at the back door or back fence. Many still delight in defaming their neighbors.

Every human being commits mistakes and errors. Errors should be ironed out privately and not after the information has been broadcast from the housetops. After matters of hard feeling and offense have been ironed out, no one should make mention of them, not even the direct parties involved. The good Lord does not tolerate talebearers and gossips. In the Book of Proverbs we read: "A talebearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter."

Feuds and wars have arisen as a result of ill feeling. Such feeling should by no means take place, especially after apologies, which were in order, had taken place. "Forgive and forget" is a splendid motto. A Christian, no matter how badly offended, is always ready to forgive. A Christian does forgive and does forget; at least he tries hard to forget and makes no further mention of his past grievances. When one asks his fellowman to forgive and also asks God to forgive, forgiveness has taken place and is valid and binding. Why then should anyone stir up the old grievances and stories which were actually forgiven by the Lord Himself?

Each person should be of a faithful spirit and not of a reverent spirit. A person of a faithful spirit conceals and forgets all past matters of offense and ill feeling. There is absolutely no excuse for a Christian to exhume the dead bones of hard feeling and bring them to life. It is not the Lord's will that anyone should do so. The Almighty God sent His only begotten Son into the world to die for us. He forgave our sins and then gave to the people a right attitude of prayer. He wanted to the temple to pray. He was a Pharisee. He was a man of a very exalted opinion of himself and he thought that God would have the same opinion of him. The many of us are like that. We have had too much of a Pharisee attitude toward Him. He always approach Him and have assurance that God will hear and either answer him or give the understanding necessary in that matter.

iniquities. Does God cast aside the work of redemption which Jesus has accomplished merely to remind us and to punish us again for our sins? Indeed not. Therefore, the children of God have no right to bring old grievances back to light which were forgiven. They must be forgotten for all time. Are you a talebearer, or on of a faithful spirit? God grant that all Christians be worthy of the name Christian and live according to the precepts of Jesus Christ. Jesus forgives us daily. We must do likewise. Since He forgives us our debts, sins and transgressions, we must do so in double measure as Christians.

STOCK RUINS FLOWERS

Just a word of common sense. Quite a number of our folks are wondering if the stock—cows, horses, mules, hogs, dogs, and numerous chickens are to be allowed to ruin the flowers and the gardens again this spring. Both men and women, the finest folks we have, people who have worked hard to have a home—want to know. A lot more flowers would be put out right now if the owners had any assurance of protection. This one fact of wanton destruction has held in check the beautification of Clarendon for a long number of years. I've heard men cuss and have seen women cry over a ruined yard or garden. Yes, sir, and right here in Clarendon. The city dads will enforce the law of protection if you call their attention to it. If the laws that we now have are enforced, we will be safe. Let's make it a point to ask Mr. Pyle and Mr. Haile and Mayor Sims about it. Let them know that we want to fix up our yards or homes, and quit putting it off. A home without shrubbery and flowers is a mere stopping place. It takes flowers to make a home. It is squarely up to us to say something. There is no doubt of results once the city official family is assured of our interest in the matter.—Donley County Leader.

NOTHING LIKE GARDENING!

For the real, dyed-in-the-wool gardening fan, there is no greater fragrance in the world than that of the freshly-turned garden soil. There is no greater magic than that of tiny garden seeds transformed into vigorous young plants. There is no keener pleasure than watching those first tiny sprouts burst through the soil. There is no greater lure than studying the growth of sturdy garden plants. There is no greater thrill than searching for the first crisp, young radishes, or the first pods of peas or beans, or the first tender ears of sweet corn. There is no more fascinating competition than trying to beat the neighbors to the first serving of fresh vegetables from your own garden.

There was a dense summer fog and the officer on the bridge was becoming more and more exasperated. As he leaned over the side of the bridge trying to pierce the gloom he saw a hazy figure leaning on a rail a few yards from his ship. He almost choked. "What do you think you're doing with your blinking ship?" he roared. "Don't you know the rules of the sea?" "This ain't no blinking ship, guv'nor," said a quiet voice; "this 'ere's a lighthouse."—Answers

To the people of the south side of Gray county, we welcome you to our Centennial on June 2, 3, 4 and 5. We invite you to Pampa to do your out of town buying in lines that you can not obtain in your home communities.

I want to express my appreciation for the splendid support and cooperation given me by the people of the south side of the county. I have tried at all times to be of the best service I could to each of you. In the selection of my deputies I have tried to select men who lived in Gray county and some from each part of the county. I have two deputies from the McLean community.

I trust that you will consider our efforts in the past and believe that I can be of better assistance to you in the next two years, as feel that I have benefitted from the experience I have had in the past two years as I have a better understanding of the duties and the people.

Trusting that you will give me due consideration at the coming primary, July 25.

IT KEEPS MY MILK SO FRESH

Food Safety

In various bulletins, the United States Department of Agriculture recommends that meats, vegetables, milk, and other perishable foods be kept at temperatures below 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

Electric refrigerator manufacturers once had difficulty in producing this temperature along with other features demanded by the American housewife, especially in warmer parts of the country.

But better refrigerators were made each year. Now you may expect much of an Electric Refrigerator. Beauty, economy in operation, positively below 50 degrees temperature control, rapid freezing of ice cubes and desserts, and quietness, are general features found in all Electric Refrigerators. Each manufacturer has many worthwhile conveniences.

OUTDOOR LIVING ROOMS

One of the reasons why outdoor living rooms are so popular is because they can be created on a lot of any size. Thousands of families are this year turning uninviting back yards into these restful and charming private areas. Another reason for their being in such general favor is because they are so inexpensive and so easy to attain. Their walls of living green are made by shady trees and graceful shrubs. Their ceiling is the bright blue sky, their soft carpet the velvety lawn. The decorations of these outdoor living rooms are furnished by colorful, sweet-scented flowers.

Having once made their grounds attractive and beautiful with places like this, through the inspiration of the Yard and Garden contest, a family will find living in the city much more enjoyable. Then it is not merely a residence but a real home.

Here on a garden bench or in an easy swing, mother is given a place to rest and relax. Here during her bits of leisure she can forget the household cares. And here again father finds a comfortable chair under a shady tree, inviting him to read the paper in peace.

Ideal for Children

But the joy of living in attractive surroundings is not the least of the benefits that joining the Yard and Garden contest brings to a family. One of the most valuable results is the ideal environment for growing children which is provided on every home lot improved and beautified with trees, shrubs and flowers.

That physical environment plays a definite part in forming the character of growing children has long been an accepted fact. Beautiful surroundings are always an influence for good. They leave a lasting impression on our boys and girls in strong and healthy bodies, clean minds and happy dispositions.

All the grounds of the average home need to make them an ideal environment for the kiddies is just a little fixing up, in most cases. Some trees for shade, shrubs to screen out unsightly views and bring privacy, flowers for color and to add interesting detail. A nice lawn with soft, springy turf and clean grass, adds the finishing touch in fitting up the place for the children's need. A swing, a croquet set, perhaps, fit in nicely, too.

On such a home playground the children will amuse themselves for hours at a time. No need for mother to worry about them, when they are in a place like this. It's surely a relief to have the home grounds so attractive that the children do not want to play in the streets and alleys where whizzing automobiles and heavy trucks constantly endanger their lives and limbs.

Increases Property Value

In addition to all of these advantages which will come to every family entering the Yard and Garden contest, there is the increase in real estate value which planting the home grounds always brings. "You win if you lose" in the garden contest.

Why a Drug Store?

BECAUSE

NO OTHER mercantile establishment is qualified to meet the legal requirements. It is a professional enterprise under the constant supervision of people declared competent by a State Board of Examiners. It affords "first aid" in an emergency, is a necessary institution, a place of convenience and community center. The druggist has a human and sympathetic understanding in times of sickness and adversity, he has the friendly spirit of the good neighbor in times of health and prosperity. His store affords comforts and necessities to those in distress and adds to the joys and pleasures of those more fortunate—in short, he is "more than a merchant."

Now the Texas Telephone Association is urging its members to the wider use of newspaper advertising. Any business or profession that depends upon the good will of the public cannot long afford to ignore the hundreds of progressive citizens who read their home paper.

The city council could make a hit with citizens this year by allowing a low water rate for irrigation purposes. It is impossible to improve yards and gardens without plenty of water and the lower the rate the more encouragement given the beautification movement.

Local cemeteries all over the Panhandle are now being put on a more business like basis.
 When the country was new, it was thought that all that was necessary was to set aside a plot of ground for a cemetery, but civilized people cannot long endure the thought of a "cow pasture" cemetery, and thought must be given toward upkeep.

At McLean, Hillcrest has enough unsold lots that if priced in line with present valuations and with the state required minimum for permanent care added, would make the place a source of pride from a civic standpoint, forever.

The town that takes no pride in the care of its cemetery is a dead town and headed for oblivion. It is to be hoped that the plans of the cemetery committee and city council may have the whole hearted support of every progressive citizen.

That a good beginning has been made may be seen by anyone who will take the trouble to drive by the cemetery.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

Jim and the others did draw back. It would not do to get too close to those clicking teeth, those blazing eyes. "Why, he's hurt! Look at that leg! Here, Tip..." Again Jim tried to get near but a shrill raving and the snatching of those strong, white teeth set him again in retreat. "Mad, I tell you!" "Here, Tip! Let's see."—Ezra Adams trying, now, but the dog drove him back, too.

Advice, warnings, speculation; confusion. And then Nan Downer pushed through the circle. "What's wrong?... Oh! Tip! Why, Tip..." The tail flopped heavily, the dirt smeared tongue lolled; the dog panted and whined. The girl dropped to her knees beside him and he put his nose in her lap. The eyes closed and Tip drew a quivering sigh. He had come to Nan at last. Now he could be touched; now the hurt could be examined.

"Broken!" gasped Ezra. "And... Good Lord, sergeant, this dog's been shot!" The words echoed from a dozen throats. "Shot!"

"He was with Kerry!" Nan cried. "He was with Kerry, I am sure... Ezra! Where is Kerry? Where is...?" "That," snapped the policeman, "is what we've got to find out! Come on, you trappers! Look! You can see every step he took in this road!"

Mid-afternoon, now, and his head rolled drunkenly as Young fought off that cloud of darkness. He could not hold it much longer. The cabin was beyond his range of vision. He had one cartridge left. He remembered that. For weeks, it seemed, his intermittent firing had kept West within that cabin. He had only one more shot to fire, and he could not see the head of his sight. That was all blurred, like other matters: pain and sickness and his manner of getting here.

His face drooped heavily against the stock. He was so weary. He wanted to sleep... just a moment... just a second... One little wink of respite. And then he knew that for ever so long voices had been in his ears. Voices, saying over and over: "Here he went..." Or was it just once that the words had been said? Just once? "Here he went!" It must have been Jim Hinkle saying that. Jim's voice, saying it just now, just once! "Here he went!"

And Jim was standing there in the road, bent over, with a group around him. And Nan with her hand on Jim's shoulder, and the sound of glass breaking...

Glass breaking! Window glass breaking before the thrust of a rifle barrel through the pane; tinkling as it spilled over the sill. And a man with his shoulder slammed tight against the window casing sighting that rifle, and Ted West, that, taking his final toll. One, two, three... They'd drop there in the road before the crash of his repeating weapon. One, two, three... West in sight, exposed to Young!

Oh, how well Kerry could see now. He could see the bead of his front sight, could see it flash true against that bulky breast and the recoil did not hurt, that time. He did not even think of it... He saw that other rifle barrel fly upward, saw Ted West spin about, back to the window... Saw him stand there a moment and then, in the terrible silence, saw him disappear with the crash which loosed torrents of cries and words and sounds of running feet...

Then Kerry Young put his cheek down on the cool, moist earth and drew a long breath...

They had him back at Nan's in an hour. Ezra had the bullet out before sundown. It was midnight when he opened his eyes.

At first, he thought he was alone in the room and then realized that he could not be alone; a man alone cannot have that sweet sense of peace and permanence and well being which spread over him like a mantle...

He moved his head slightly and saw her sitting there, straight and stiff and expectant, her face gentler than ever beneath the shaded light. "Nan," he breathed and she came quickly close. "Oh, Kerry!" The words were a sob. "And you're... all right?" "Right! Every thing's right!" He closed his eyes. "Tip?" "Ezra says he's done the best job of bone setting he's ever done for man or beast."

Pause. "Holt?" "Here,"—in a whisper. "Waiting to thank you... before he goes." He cleared his throat feebly. "And... West?" "Already gone,"—gravely. "And forever."

He stared hard at the ceiling through a long moment. "Nan... I guess... I guess I'm all right, but a hand never can... just tell. There's something I've... got to say... Put it off for the... right time... right place... Excuse... little groggy..."

"But I've got to... say it... now..."

"Sh!" Gently she placed small fingers against his lips. "You mustn't talk. You'll be all right. Ezra swears it. But now... And I'll say it for you, dear, dear Kerry! I'll say the thing you want to say. I love you... Is that it? I knew, you see. And I love you, Kerry. Love you, love you, love you."

Her lips were living warmth on his cheek. [THE END]

Print or Plain, Just So It's Linen

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WEAR linen in the morning, at noon, during the afternoon hours, and when "the shades of night are falling fast," then wear linen formally. This spring and summer is destined to go down in history as a banner linen season.

The beauty about modern linens is that through ingenious processing they are being made practically crush resistant.

The glory of this season's monotone linens is their remarkably handsome colorings. For the tailored jacket suit and sports and travel costumes, emphasis is on plain, firm, medium weight linens in such deep rich tones as Dubonnet and oxblood reds, dark blue, navy, also skipper blue, Biarritz green, the voguish spice brown, popular violet shades and other equally as attractive colors. Shrimp pink and coral hues are especially noted. As to white and natural tones they will lead in the summer parade.

Prints, perhaps, provide even more exciting news. Printed linens are making a bid for the formal as well as the daytime hours. Imagine an exquisitely sheer handkerchief linen (sheers in linen are latest word) in rust, brown and white done in an authentic paisley patterning. It is linens like this that are providing new thrills in the way of media for smart evening gowns.

If your fancy happens to run to modernistic florals in vivid colorings, we suggest that you select for your next party dress one of the very new gorgeous printed linens carried out in daring orange red and green on a navy background. Speaking generally in regard to printed linens, whether for day or evening wear, a liking is expressed for widely spaced bouquet arrangements, for bizarre peasant patterns, also motifs of Chinese character as well as mystic far-east figures and hieroglyphics. Scroll designs that meander in linework all over the background are particularly good style.

The illustration demonstrates how smartly and effectively monotone linens combine with linen prints. To the left you see the suit, a new Creed model, as it looks with the jacket worn. This stunning ensemble is made of a dark green canvas type of linen for the classically tailored jacket and skirt, using crisp white linen for the blouse patterned in a green and tangerine linework crossbar print design. The linen is the finest possible quality, coming as it does from Moygashel, Ireland, noted for its beautiful high grade linens. Observe the slight fullness at top of jacket sleeve, giving the new broadened shoulder line. The skirt has a single knife pleat at its left front to give necessary fullness.

Removing the jacket of the suit, there comes to view, as pictured in the foreground, the smart channel print Moygashel linen blouse. Its tangerine and green tones complement the monotone of the linen suit most pleasingly. The waistline of the blouse is slightly fitted. Two outstanding style details are the short puffed sleeves and the fact that instead of buttoning it is laced up the front, tiny cord lacing in and out through hand-embroidered eyelets.

JEWELRY FOR EVERY HOUR IN THE DAY

Jewelry for every hour in the day is now in vogue.

Collecting precious, real jewelry has become the fad of ladies of fashion. Women who already own fine collections of jewels are having them re-set. Now that gold settings are again smart, many colored stones enhanced by this treatment are being remodeled.

The suit is the perfect setting for a fine fob watch—a beautiful wrist watch, or a brooch or a clip watch. Brooches, worn at the neck of the new frilly blouses are smart and if they support a fine and distinguished jewel, they give tone and elegance to the street tulleur.

Pearls are worn with all types of blouses. Pearl earrings are rapidly gaining in popularity.

No jewel or decoration of any kind is as uniformly becoming and flattering to the wearer as pearls.

Fluffy Bow at Neck Gives Ingenue Air to Wearer

A new trick of the moment is to fasten a fluffy bow made of dozens of layers of pleated net, with a little nosegay of spring flowers in the middle, at the neckline of your new spring print. You'd be surprised at the gay ingenue air it gives you.

Or you may choose one of the new "lace paper dolly" collar and cuff sets, to give a last minute air to that long-suffering black crepe daytime dress.

The new neckwear is shown in all the accessory colors of the moment, such as violet, tulip pink, rust, London tan, mimosa and, of course, white.

Sports Perfume

In time to scent your spring tweeds, knitteds and your smartest riding habit appropriately and glamorously comes a new sports perfume created by one of the greatest French couturiers. It's named after one of the choicest kinds of leather, yet it is delicate and unmistakably feminine too.

SMART FOR SPORTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The divided skirt costume is recognized as eminently practical for active sports wear. This simply cut dress is tailored to perfection of quality-kind linen imported from Moygashel, the finest flax producing section of the north of Ireland. It buttons up under the collar like a pinafore, with buttons running down under the arm. Its divided skirt means all the action you want on the golf links or tennis court.

New Shades

Spring's top ranking colors include Imperial blue, aurora, Formosa blue, spinner's red, the zionia shades, peonia and Devon green.

A Colorful Picture for Your Wall, Using Simple Embroidery Stitches

Pattern 5527

In honor of spring your house deserves a colorful new wall-hanging such as this, which depicts roses and lilacs in their natural splendor. You'll enjoy embroidering it—it's so easy even a beginner will be won over to this delightful occupation. The lilacs are in lazy daisy—the roses in satin and outline stitch; and you needn't frame it—just line it and hang it up.

In pattern 5527 you will find a transfer pattern of a hanging 15 by 20 inches; a color chart; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; directions for making the hanging.

She'd Better Chain the Dog

The doctor was interviewing the last patient in the surgery when a woman rushed in crying: "Doctor! Doctor! Come quickly. My husband has swallowed a mouse!"

"Get back to him," said the doctor, "and try waving a piece of cheese about in front of his mouth. I'll follow you as soon as possible."

Five minutes later the doctor reached the house. A man was lying on a settee with his mouth wide open, while a hysterical woman was waving a kipper close to his mouth.

"You foolish woman," he cried. "I told you cheese."

"I know that," she shrieked, "but I've got to get the cat out first!"—London Answers.

Events Are Shells

Events are only the shells of ideas; and often it is the fluent thought of ages that is crystallized in a moment by the stroke of a pen or the point of a bayonet.

Happiness is not an inalienable right; only the pursuit of it. More people commit their creeds in their heads than know them by heart.

All the world loves a lover unless he is holding up 20 cars in a line behind him.

One reason men discarded diamonds is that you have to dress up so to wear diamonds.

Follow Natural Bent

The more we try to look what we are not, the smaller our chance becomes of fully being what we really can grow to be.

Whatever a man's tastes are, he seldom pretends they are something else.

Once a public speaker hears the loud clapping of hands at something he has said, he feels he has opened the door to the secret of winning applause.

JUNIOR-SENIOR CHUCKWAGON FEED

The cowboys and cowgirls off the range of M. H. S. gathered in the basement of the Presbyterian Church last Thursday evening for the annual chuckwagon feed. These merry-makers were in gala costumes consisting of "jeans," colored shirts, Stetson hats, spurs and spang. Six-shooters were quite the proper gadget! Some came in wagons, some on horseback and some in cars to this most important event of the year.

When the cow bell was rung by James Lee Rice, the stampede to the "chuck" started. When the crowd had descended they entered a "veritable" outdoors, because the tables were surrounded by cottonwood trees and decorated with bear grass. At each place was a miniature Stetson hat, a noisemaker, and a bandana handkerchief, which was the napkin, and a small covered wagon of peanuts. The programs in pink and white were very attractive.

The following menu was enjoyed by more than ninety people: Centennial salad, steak, buttered potatoes, sour dough biscuits, coffee, pie and whipped cream.

James Lee Rice, the toastmaster, was in charge of the following program:

Invocation—Rev. Erwin.

"Home on the Range"—Cowhands. Welcome—Averill Christian, Boss C-37.

Response—Charles Pinley, Boss C-36.

"Wagon Wheels" and "Old Faithful"—Sagebrush quartet (Dorothy Sitter, Jessie Mae Lynch, Georgia Colebank and Thelma Jo Gray).

Ten Decades of Texas History—Ten cowhands from C-37.

"Texas, My Texas"—Cowhands.

Address of the evening—Supt. Cryer, foreman.

Grazings (toast to seniors)—Marletta Young, horse wrangler.

"When the Tests Are All Done This Spring" and "The Last Round-up"—Cowhands.

Much hilarity and enjoyment was displayed by those present. The C-37 is to be greatly congratulated upon this delightful entertainment for the senior class and high school faculty.

HOME ECONOMICS NOTES

The first year home economics girls modeled their wash dresses at the PTA on last Thursday night and sang several new home makers songs.

These girls prepared and served luncheons last week. They plan to entertain their mothers on Saturday of this week.

The second year girls are continuing the work on tailored dresses.

CHAPEL NOTES

On Friday afternoon, May 1, Rev. A. E. Butterfield, a man who has worked with the Indians for many years, gave an interesting talk on the customs and dress of the Indian. He illustrated his talk with displays of Indian clothes and trinkets.

On Tuesday afternoon, May 5, an interesting assembly program was presented to the high school student body. The first thing on the program was presented by the speech class under the direction of Mrs. Thurman Adkins, as follows: readings by Francis Petty and L. R. Blevins; a short skit entitled "The Circus in the Barn," including in the cast, Ringmaster, Leonard Brawley; rope walker, Duella Mann; strong man, Francis Petty; lion tamer, Mary Alice Patterson; clown, Eula Belle Rickard; horseback rider, Lois Stockton; wild man, Pauline McMullen; fat lady, Lena Williams; acrobat, Nola Burr; youngun—L. R. Blevins.

Supt. Cryer complimented the piano and band pupils who won honors in the music festival in Amarillo last week end. Ermadel Floyd was given a grade of superior in the piano contest. Band pupils who won honors of superior or excellent were: Jess Dean Cobb, highly superior, an all-American rating, and the honor of entering the national music contest in Ohio on Friday, May 15; R. L. Floyd, highly superior; Jack Bogan, Clint Doolen, Jeff Coffey and James Pinley, high honors.

Rev. Sharp brought a pertinent message to the student body, with two important admonitions: to care what people think about you, and to attempt to be as far as possible from a "natural" man or woman, with all the advantages that you can acquire. He advised the seniors to choose the college that they will attend, with great care, and to return from college with the idea of serving humanity.

Prisoners, who broke out of barred windows in the jail at Bethany, Mo., were halted by ivy clinging to the outer wall.

HONEYMOON MOUNTAIN

Here is PUREST ROMANCE

The story of Deborah, sweet as a hyacinth in a spring garden, who was brought up in seclusion and suddenly thrown into contact with a gay group of young moderns. Charming, bewildered Deborah, whose background is shadowed with mystery, Pilar, a fiery Spanish girl who is a constant threat to Deborah's happiness; a grande dame to be guarded from the startling thrusts of reality; a man trying to woo a girl out of the mists of her own imagination—these are the central figures in this fascinating romance—presented by a skillful writer who knows how to tell a tale.

SOMETHING YOU SHOULD DO

The cheapest, most efficient mode of getting a message to the public, long ago adopted by the better merchandisers, is the advertisement in the newspaper. Because he spends less money that way than in any other to get his message to you, the merchant makes use of the periodical with second class privileges.

His advertisements are instructive, helpful. You read them with interest. You find the things that are new in price, or styling. By them you keep up with the changing modes from tractors to hosiery, from gasoline to razor blades.

Too often you neglect to tell the merchant you appreciate his efforts to inform and aid you. Remember, once in a while to do that.—Floyd County Hesperian.

LECTURES

"We are racing toward dictatorship! Communism or Fascism will be our lot if something isn't done."

This is the warning given to American workmen by Matthew Wool, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, in the Liberty Magazine. In making his own case, Mr. Wool makes the case for every American who wants no form of "ism" in this country, nor any form of dictatorship.—Clarendon News.

What effect does marriage have on a person's chance of remaining sane and mentally normal? This question was discussed at a meeting of the New York branch of the American Psychological Association. A report was given which suggests that your chances of keeping in good mental health are improved if you are married.—Childress Index.

INVESTING, NOT GIVING

In organized community development, spending your money on ideas for the good of the whole community is not a gift but an investment. The best town builders tell us. Don't "give" to your community in that sense, "invest" in it.—Floyd County Hesperian.

It seems that at a certain gathering where there were 200 teachers assembled, this question was asked: "Who was the greatest woman in history?"

The judges were unanimous in awarding the prize to the one who made this reply: "The wife of a farmer of moderate means, who does her own cooking, washing, ironing, sewing, brings up a family of boys and girls to be useful members of society, and still finds time for intellectual improvement."—Community Weekly.

John—What did Charley find out when he had the phrenologist examine his head the other day? Henry—Nothing. After the professor had felt his head he looked sad and gave Charley his $2 back.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clement and children of Kellerville visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Greer, Friday.

P. A. Millican was in Amarillo Friday.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

The "forgotten man" is the local publisher who works his head off for the good of the community, and then sees the mail order printing houses get the jobs that would have kept the wolf away from the publisher's door.—Donley County Leader.

Yes, or the advertising that belongs in a newspaper, to further help the town, supplanted by circulars printed out of town, or some other practically worthless guttersnipe.—Wheeler News.

Killian—You were no spring chicken when you married me. Mrs. K.—No; I suppose goose would be a better name for it.

Mrs. Jesse J. Cobb and daughter attended the music festival in Amarillo last week.

Mark Huseby of Mobeetie was in McLean Friday.

THE ORIGINAL TOURIST

By STANLEY CORDELL

BILL RUSSELL runs a tourist camp halfway across the state of Nebraska on the Lincoln highway. In conjunction, he operates a restaurant and store for the accommodation of his guests. Bill's place is clean and comfortable, and whenever I am out that way I put up with him. We are friends of long standing. Last week when I drove up in front of his office he greeted me with his usual pessimistic grin and discouraged manner. Business was bad. Life was pretty drab way out there on the plains. And tourists—tourists gave him a pain in the neck. They always had. "I'd like to meet one," he said, "just one, mind you, who is different from the usual run. My gosh, without exception they have the same story to tell and the same questions to ask." He gave what he thought was an imitation of a tourist asking questions. "Is it always as hot as this here? Do you have much snow in the winter? Don't you ever get lonesome? Well, we drove 420 miles today. Got 19 miles to the gallon. Say, back East the country's nothing like this at all. Ever been back East?—My gosh, they give me the horrors! All alike. And the worst of it is, every danged one of 'em thinks he's the first to make these remarks. Why, I hear 'em day in and day—Excuse me a minute. Here's one of 'em now." Bill left me abruptly and hustled over to a car bearing Maine number plates that had just drawn up. His whole attitude, as he greeted the driver, underwent a change. He smiled pleasantly, he became animated and eager. He gushed. "Good evening, sir. Way from Maine, eh? Say, you're a long way from home." The driver yawned. "Yep. Drove 350 miles today. They make time on these roads. Nothing like Maine. Got 18 miles to the gallon. Got a nice, clean cabin?" "Ten, sir. Be ready in a jiffy, sir."

These Filling Station Guys Give You the Horrors, Though? Cabin with running water. A great state, they tell me. Right, eh? Say, that's some thing. How long ago'd you leave home? Five days ago. Ever been back home? I'd like to, though. Just drive home, sir, and I'll help you unload. Restaurant's inside, when you're ready." Five minutes later Bill returned to where I was standing. His face was sad once more and there was an "I-told-you-so" look in his eyes. "What'd I tell you. Did you hear his remarks? Just like all the others. Gosh, these birds must think we're awful dumb out here. Those cracks they make give me the horrors. I'd like to meet one, just one, who's different." Throughout the evening I sat out front and talked with Bill and watched him greet the tourists as they came in. He was right in his estimate of them. They all acted as though they were pioneers, blazing a path through the wilderness. With only slight variation they made the same remarks. I could see easily why Bill's job got on his nerves somewhat. I marveled at the manner in which he kept up a cheerful front, gave each newcomer the idea that his cracks were new and interesting. After a while I began to hope, too, that one of the tourists who drove up would advance a remark that was different from those preceding him. But this didn't happen. I left Bill still stewing over his sad plight. Still wishing for an original tourist. The following morning I rose early and after breakfast drove my car over to the gas tanks to get filled up before leaving. While Bill was winding in the fuel a machine bearing New York tags approached. The driver got out and watched Bill fill his tank. "Good morning, sir," Bill said affectionately. "Getting an early start?" We want to get beyond Cheyenne tonight. "That's some drive!" Bill said. "Couldn't do that back home, you know."

Bill took the money the driver tendered him, but instead of going inside to make change he seized a cloth and went to wring it out preparatory to scrubbing the car's windshield. The driver, noticing my number plates, came over to pass the time of day. "Beautiful. I expect I'll go through to the coast," I said. "That so?" The driver smiled. "Say, did you hear the remarks that attendant made?" "Yes," I said, and grinned. It occurred to me then that the driver, who was standing back to Bill, thought Bill was inside making change and not within earshot. He grinned back at me. "Don't these filling station guys give you the horrors, though. Every last one of 'em's the same." He gave what apparently he thought was an imitation of a tourist asking questions. "Is it always as hot as this here? Do you have much snow in the winter? Don't you ever get lonesome? Well, we drove 420 miles today. Got 19 miles to the gallon. They make time on these roads. Nothing like Maine. Got 18 miles to the gallon. Got a nice, clean cabin?" "Ten, sir. Be ready in a jiffy, sir."

"Five days ago." "Some traveling." Bill took the money the driver tendered him, but instead of going inside to make change he seized a cloth and went to wring it out preparatory to scrubbing the car's windshield. The driver, noticing my number plates, came over to pass the time of day. "Beautiful. I expect I'll go through to the coast," I said. "That so?" The driver smiled. They make time on these roads. Nothing like Maine. Got 18 miles to the gallon. Got a nice, clean cabin?" "Ten, sir. Be ready in a jiffy, sir."

Behind the driver, Bill coughed. The driver turned, but Bill was en route to the store to make change. Five minutes later the New York car had driven on. Bill and I looked at each other. I waited. "Well," said Bill, "by gosh!" "By gosh is right," I agreed. I grinned. "It seems," I said, "to work both ways." "Now don't it, though," said Bill. His grin broadened. He looked up the road in the direction taken by the New York car. "At last, an original tourist! What a relief. By gosh. From now on—" He looked at me suddenly. "If I ever ask you how far you've come today or how far you're going, or remark that you're a long way from home or that it's a nice day—hit me over the head with a hammer." "I will," I said.

Careless Pedestrians Are Blamed for Most of Deaths

Suicide is what you think about for a long time, and then do when you can't stand it any longer. Suicide is what you try to justify when you argue that if a man is tired of it all he can take a run-out if he wants to. But sudden and wholesale suicide is the kind 17,000 people didn't think of last year, not even one minute before they said, "So long, see you tomorrow," and stepped out in front of cars without looking.

Carl F. Zeigler, writing in the Review of Reviews places the blame upon pedestrians in 85 per cent of deaths inflicted by motorists. "Motorists," he says, "have been catching all the devil for car deaths—but they can't hold a candle to pedestrians in carelessness. All the traffic laws are made for the motorists. They have to stop at lights, keep to the right, stay in the roadway, go slow, give signals.

"There are few, if any, laws for the pedestrians. They can cross the street when they please—even if motor traffic has the green light. They can go where they're not looking and engage old friends in conversation in the middle of the street. They can run or walk, jump out and jump back. And they do all these things every day while motorists dodge the dozens, and hit one.

"One would think that the human body, the most flexible piece of machinery in the world, could keep itself out of traffic jams. It can start and stop on a dime; shift right or left in a flash. All its parts respond instantly. "That is the chief trouble," according to Mr. Zeigler. "It's too easy to navigate the human body. You can do it without thinking—and you do mostly. The fellow behind the wheel has to keep awake and know what's happening. He has the accelerator to feed, the clutch to engage, the gear to shift, the wheel to turn, the horn to blow, and the brakes to jump on."

The Diver A man in a diving suit is in a peculiar position. He steps into a rubber suit, upon which a helmet is secured, and is hoisted overboard, a helpless lump for the moment, and dropped to a limited depth. Only the strongest men are able to go down as far as 300 feet, although the record is greater, says a writer in the New York Times. Air must be constantly pumped into the suit to offset the pressure of the water.

Coming to the surface is a slow, tedious business. In fact, it may take hours if the depth reached is great. High air pressure forces gas into the blood stream—nitrogen. The arteries and veins are like bottles of ginger ale; the blood is so much charged liquid. If the diver were to come up quickly, all this gas would start to bubble off at once. The result would be excruciating agony and a bad, perhaps a fatal, case of caisson disease, better known as the "bends."

Durazzo is Ancient Port Durazzo, a port of the youthful Kingdom of Albania, was founded as Epidamnus at the end of the Seventh century B. C. Quarrels over its ownership led to the Peloponnesian war of 431 B. C. It changed hands many times until the Kingdom of Albania was created in 1913.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Styles in Hair Tints. SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—There's more news concerning the mummified remains of that lovely Egyptian princess they found the other day—that daughter of some early Pharaoh, she who died nearly 5,000 years ago and yet was still so beautifully preserved. Too bad that old relic of the Pharaoh family was lost. They did make such good preserves. The latest word is that the little lady's hair was dyed a henna color. Either that's news or something has stimulated a sudden change in Hollywood fashions. Just a little while ago, about every other potential movie queen you saw was going in for the platinum effect; and only too frequently, alas, the effect was that of a new tin roof on a vacant attic. Now, by the great gross, the stylish ones are going red, reddish or redder. Today, within half a mile, I counted ten redheads, and not a white horse in sight, to prove the ancient saying.

Waning Presidential Booms.

WHAT with cyclones and floods down south, the daily press somehow failed to record among our spring casualties the untimely end of the Governor Talmadge boom. Poor little thing, it passed away at its home in Atlanta, Ga., just as it was learning. In prattling accents, to lisp "pa-pa." Still the shock did not catch some of us unawares. We had a feeling it wasn't going to live. The second summer is so frequently fatal to those incubator babies. For instance, you take the Ham Fish boom. Or of you didn't take it, somebody certainly did, because it hasn't been seen, or even heard of for months and months.

Gridiron Club Dinners.

EXCEPT the obituary column, nothing could be sadder than the newspaper account of a gridiron club dinner. Yet gridiron club dinners aim to be satirically amusing and frequently are.

Turning them out must be a tremendously hard job, because they deal with the national political scene, and any producer of farces will tell you you can't burlesque a burlesque. In other words, you can't be very funny on a subject which already is so much funnier than anything you can think of—and that's what the fellows at Washington are up against. This business of trying to be comic is a serious business anyway, especially since all comedy is predicated on distress. A fat man falling down makes us laugh because he suffers both in spirit and flesh. But if he is a pallbearer, say, at a funeral and falls down on his own high hat and maybe breaks up the services—well, now then, you've got something that's really funny.

Self-Chosen Landon Aids.

GOVERNOR LANDON must feel awfully fractional, not to say badly scattered, what with being leveled on by so many comparative strangers all at once. Every day or two, with an altruism rare in this selfish age, some gallant volunteer elects himself by acclamation as the governor's eastern manager or his western manager, or his northwestern-by-southwestern manager or something. It makes no difference that he may never have heard of these parties before; up to six months ago, they'd never heard of him either.

He's like a previously neglected orphan child who suddenly comes into prospects and finds everybody in town trying to adopt him. Maybe a better simile would be that of a lone Thanksgiving turkey at a tableful of hungry boarders, with this one snatching the drumstick and that one grabbing the second joint—and Mr. W. R. Hearst clinging, with a grip of iron, to the wishbone.

Folly of Parole System.

THE perpetrators of the kidnaping case of a few months ago up in the state of Washington were both chronic offenders who, despite their records, had been paroled. The fiend who recently committed the most hideous child murder that California has known in years was a convict out on parole. The degenerate who has just confessed to murdering that poor defenseless gentleman in New York the other day was—yes, you've guessed it—he was a convict on parole.

And all over the Union the work of turning loose criminals who have not completed their terms of punishment, indeed, in some cases hardly begun them, goes merrily on. IRVIN S. COBB Copyright.—WNU Service.

Forest of Arden Englishmen say that Shakespeare's romantic forest in "As You Like It" is the Forest of Arden in Warwickshire, which fits his description. Belgians claim it is the Forest of the Ardennes. Either may be right, for both forests are romantic and lovely.

Two Lives

GRIEF is a delicate and fragile flower, fading even more easily than joy, but never wholly dead. Though seemingly dried and withered past recognition, yet, if but one warm breath pass over it for a moment, it will bloom again with renewed freshness. Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful, and those who seem to forget have often the saddest hearts. Two beings dwell within us; one active, busy, absorbed in the duties and pleasures of this world; while the other is sadly and dreamily living in the past, treading with tears the former paths, stopping to remember a look, to pursue a shadow.

A Laxative That Thousands Prefer Black-Draught has helped so many men and women that others, needing a purely vegetable laxative, should have no hesitancy in trying it. Black-Draught relieves constipation in an easy, natural way. "We have found Black-Draught so satisfactory, I do not see any need to change," writes Mr. Ralph Burch, of Black, Ala. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness and constipation which make me feel sluggish, tired and no account. Black-Draught surely will relieve me." Proper use of this old reliable laxative tends to leave the bowels acting regularly.

REQUEST FROM POORHOUSE

In the pocket of a ragged coat belonging to one of the inmates of the Chicago poorhouse, I am told, there was found, after his death, a will. The man had been a lawyer. So unusual was it that it was sent to an attorney and the story goes that he was so impressed with its contents that he read it before the Chicago Bar Association, and that later it was ordered probated. And this is the will of the ragged old inmate of the Chicago poorhouse:

I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make and publish this my last will and testament in order to distribute my interest in the world among succeeding men.

That part of my interest which is known in law as my property, being considerable and of no account, I make no disposition of. My right to live, being but a life estate, is not at my disposal, but, these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

Item: I give to good fathers and mothers, in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement, and all quaint pet names and endearments; and I charge said parents to use them justly, but generously, as the deeds of their children shall require.

Item: I leave to children, inclusively, but only for the term of their childhood, all and every flower of the field and the blossoms of the woods, with the right to play among them freely according to the custom of children, warning them at the same time against thistles and thorns. And I devote to children the banks of the brooks and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float over giant trees. And I leave the children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousands ways, and the night and the train of the milky way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

Item: I devise to boys, jointly, all the useful life fields and commons where ball may be played, all pleasant waters where one may swim, all snow clad hills where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim winter comes, one may skate, to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows, with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods with their beauty, the squirrels and birds and the echoes, and strange noises and all distant places, which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood, to enjoy without let or hindrance or without any encouragement or care.

Item: to lovers, I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, and aught else they may desire to figure to each other the loveliness and beauty of their love.

Item: to young men jointly, I bequeath all the boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. I leave to them the power to make lasting friendships and of possessing companions, and to them, exclusively, I give all merry songs and choruses to sing with lusty voices.

Item: and to those who are no longer children or youths, or lovers, I leave memory, and bequeath to them the volumes of poems of Burns and Shakespeare and other poets. If there be others, to the end that they may live the old days over again, freely and fully without tithes or diminution.

Item: to the loved ones with snowy crowns, I bequeath the happiness of old age, the love and gratitude of their children until they fall asleep.

Gas, Constipation Keep Him in Mistery

"I have been in great misery for the last six weeks from indigestion, gas pains and all tied up with constipation, unable to eat or sleep," says F. J. Harburn. "Yesterday noon I took a dose of ADLERIKIA, and last night another, and I want to say I enjoyed the first real night's sleep I have had in six weeks. Not a single gas pain, even though I ate a good dinner. It is a miracle the way ADLERIKIA took hold." Thorough action—never gripes. CITY DRUG STORE. P2
