Current Events in Review

By Edward W. Pickard

Municipal Bankruptcy Act Held Invalid

JUSTICES of the United States Supreme court held invalid the municipal bankruptcy act of 1934, declaring it to be an unwarranted invasion of state sovereignty. Four justices dissented, these being Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo. The majority opinion was written by Justice James C. McReynolds. The case was brought by bondholders of a water improvement district in Texas.

The municipal bankruptcy act was designed to permit cities and other political subdivisions which found themselves in financial straits to effect a composition, with the approval of creditors, whereby the indebtedness could be reorganized, scaled down, or, as Mr. Justice McReynolds put it, "regulated."

Frank Lowden May Be Republican Nominee

FRANK C. LOWDEN of Illinois will be the choice of the Republican convention for President if he will accept the nomination. That was the confident prediction of a political observer who is usually well informed and close to sources of national party news. He declared there was a steadily growing demand from many parts of the Union for the nomination of the former governor of Illinois who always has been popular with businessmen and whose qualities of statesmanship are recognized generally throughout the country. Mr. Lowden is vigorous and able, and he is always actively interested in the welfare of his state and nation, especially in the problems of the agriculturist.

Lowden Has Large Block of Delegates

GOV. FRANK LOWDEN captured nearly all the New Jersey delegates to the national convention, defeating Senator Booth about 4 to 1 in the popular vote. This strategy gave the Kansas a total of more than 200 votes to start with at Cleveland, and its manager, John Hamilton, claimed he would have at least 300 of the 501 votes necessary to nominate and would win in the second or third ballot.

James A. Farley, postmaster general and also Democratic national chairman, told the Michigan Democratic convention he believed the Republican Presidential nominee will be "the governor of a typical prairie state" and that the election, if he won, would be a "peacetime experiment." Farley predicted the man to die for name as a result of experience in national affairs, and predicted that if he is the Republican standard bearer "open Kansas" will not be in the Roosevelt fourth column.

Plan to Continue Rail Co-ordinator's Office

THE office of transportation co-ordinator, held by Joseph E. Eastman, is due to expire on June 30, but Senator Wheeler of Montana has made the introduction of a resolution extending it for two years, and President Roosevelt was so moved as approving some of its activities.

It was reported in Washington that railway management and labor, both of which have opposed some of Eastman's efforts in the past, might unite in an effort to block extension of the office, but Eastman said he had heard "nothing substantial" on that line. Eastman announced last February he would exercise his powers to compel railroads in 11 cities to carry out terminal subsidiaries as economy and efficiency moves. He withheld the orders at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, however, to permit rail management and labor to agree as some plan of provision for employees throws out of work in such considerations.

Bonus Baby Bonds Will Be Mailed June 15

ON JUNE 15 the bonus baby bonds will be mailed to 67,000 poor citizens from Washington and from the eleven federal reserve centers. Final plans for delivering the bonds to the recipients were announced by Postmaster General Farley, who predicted that payment on a great majority of them would be made within one week. Mail carriers have been given instructions to "go out of their way wherever necessary with a view to effecting delivery," Farley said. The bond packets must be followed by the veterans in person, and not by another person or firm at the veteran's address. "It is impossible to locate the returns to whom the bonds are addressed," Farley continued, "they will be sold for 30 days at the post office of destination before being returned to the respective federal reserve centers and thence to the treasury department."

The bonds will be in $50 denominations with accompanying checks to cover the old amounts. To collect cash, the veteran must have his bond certificate through its local post office.

Post offices in 241 cities have been designated as paying centers for their districts, and 33 large city offices have been empowered to pay on bonds issued outside their own districts.

Congress Hopes It Can Adjourn June 6

DEMOCRATIC and Republican leaders in congress sought ardently to get through the necessary business on June 4. The house had finished its work and was waiting for the senate to act on the relief and tax measures. The committees had so revised those bills that it was thought opposition would be greatly lessened. Senator Harrison's finance committee reported a tax bill estimated to produce $200,000,000 in new permanent revenue, which is $2,000,000 more than the President asked for. Tentatively the committee agreed to levy a processing tax of one-half cent per pound on sugar, which would yield $60,000,000, and to retain a provision of the house bill designed to induce liquidation of corporations and bring in $32,000,000 in additional income taxes. There was a prospect of adding still another $40,000,000 to the permanent revenue by removing the existing $40,000 estate tax exemption on estates of $100,000 or more.

This would make a total of $200,000,000 in new permanent revenue, $62,000,000 more than that of the house bill, but the senate bill also included $100,000,000 in temporary revenue from the so-called "retail" provision to subsidize sugar and steel processing taxes, and retained the $20,000,000 now produced by the excess profits and capital stock taxes.

Leon Blum Is the Ideal of the French Reds

LEON BLUM, elderly and rather fragile leader of the French Socialists, will soon be premier of his country, and he is going to have a hard time living up to the expectations of all the leftists who are making a national hero of him. The order of the day for hundreds of French reds and pinkies marched behind Blum or stood cheering on the sidelines, and pictures of the leader were carried in the mules or sold by spears in the crowds. This was on the occasion of the traditional memorial ceremony in Paris for the 20th anniversary of the Paris Commune in 1871.

A Blum is said to be watching closely his publicity in the United States since his speech in which he intimated a desire to agree with Washington on the elimination of war debt discussions. He is hoping to be able to obtain loans from New York bankers. The Johnson law is naturally an insuperable obstacle to France's obtaining any kind of credit in America, but as the Paris Mail pointed out Blum went out of his way to declare that France has not forgotten the war debt and fully expects to bring it up for discussion some time in the future.

Socialists Gain Control of Belgian Parliament

SOCIALISTS of Belgium, like those of France, won a considerable victory in the parliamentary elections, holding a larger number of seats than any other group. Emile Vandervelde, their seventy-year-old leader, was thus in position to succeed Paul Van Zeeland as premier.

The new party of Rightists, whose political outlook is a cardboard conservatism, symbolizing determination to "avenge bankrupts and politician-fausts" out of office, succeeded sensational successes, winning 21 seats, mainly at the expense of conservative Catholics.

Official standings, subject possibly to slight revision, gave: Socialists, 79; Catholics, 97; Liberals, 37; Rightists, 21; Flemish Nationalists, 10; Communists, 2.

Noeman Thomas Nominated by the Socialists

FOR the third time Norman Thomas is the Presidential nominee of the Socialist party. He was selected at the national convention in Cleveland, Ohio, and George Nelson of Wisconsin was put in second place on the ticket. There was a great demonstration after the vote was tallied, but it was not joined by the right wing leaders from several states who were angered by the seating of a leftish delegation from New York. The disappointed ones threatened to form another party. The convention fairly turned down a proposal from Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, for a "united front" in the 1936 campaign.

Italy Celebrates Entry into World War

ITALIANS celebrated the anniversary of their country's entrance into the World War with imposing ceremonies that included the promotion of more than half a million boys and girls in the organization of young Fascists. Premier Mussolini presided over the "graduation," and after reviewing a great military parade, the Duce told the shouting masses:

"The spectacle of the force of youth exhibited this morning on the anniversary of our intervention in the World War, the first phase of the Fascist revolution, has been magnificent and a warning at the same time. We are preparing the young armies of tomorrow for the defense of the empire. Since they are animated by the Fascist spirit they will be invincible. This is the law of the revolution. This is the supreme-will of the whole Italian people."

While his companion was thus engaged, Benito Salasie, emperer of Ethiopia, was departing at Ratis, Palestine, for England, on the British destroyer Capetown.

Dr. Townsend Disgusted With Inquiry

FOR two days Dr. Francis E. Townsend replied mildly to the questions of the house committee investigating the activities of the organization behind the old age pension movement which the doctor started. Then the Californian lost his patience suddenly, refused to answer any more "hypocritical" questions, spoke of "highly educated congressmen," denominated the committee for its "unfriendly attitude" and asserted the administration was a "hostile force" behind the inquiry. He declared he would form a third party after the November elections.

Finally Doctor Townsend told the committee: "I am retiring from this sort of inquiry and I do not propose to come back except under arrest. And I do refuse absolutely to make any further statement regarding this matter to this committee."

Embarrassed by Gerald K. Smith, former adherent of Huey Long, and another man, the Californian fled from Washington in Baltimore. The committee decided to ask the house to cite him for contempt.

Russia Will Maintain Big Far Eastern Fleet

CONVERSATIONS between Great Britain and Russia now going on in London will have to do only with naval armaments in European waters, for the Soviet government has announced that it cannot consider limitation of its far eastern fleet while there is no similar agreement binding Japan.

Speaking for the government, Karl Radtke said in the newspaper Forensta that the Soviet union has been striving to conclude a separate agreement with Japan, but thus far the efforts have been fruitless.

Japan Has New Leader in North China

JAPANESE penetration in North China is now being managed by a Buddhist scholar, Major General Matsumura, who replaces Liang, Gen. Kouji Doshima. The new man will cooperate with the commander of the North China garrison in placing the thousands of reinforcements that have been arriving at Tientsin.

According to the Chinese, one of Matsumura's duties will be to prepare the way for a return to Peking of Henry Pu-ih, now Emperor Kang Lei of Manchuria, to accompany King's dragon throne. They assert the Japanese plan to establish its monarchy over all of North China and Manchuria.

Austria Now Has Three National Leaders

BERNARD MUNSCHING advised Petrus von Starckenberg of Austria not to start any domestic trouble because he was ousted from the cabinet by Chancellor Schuschnigg, and when the prince returned to Vienna the cabinet first things up nearly by decreeing that the country should have three rulers. Schuschnigg, the official dictator, becomes national leader of the fatherland front; Edmund Bauer von Barenfels, the new vice chancellor, is national commander of the front militia; and Starckenberg continues as sports leader and head of the Northern-Hoelb Protective association.

Gov. Lehman Won't Run for Re-Election

HERBERT H. LEHMAN announced suddenly in Albany that he would not be a candidate for a third term as governor of New York, saying: "I feel the time has come when I may ask release from the cares and responsibilities of the governorship." But leaders of the Democratic party, including President Roosevelt, National Chairman James A. Farley and Senators Wagner and Copeland, indicated to persuade Mr. Lehman to run for re-election.

They all agreed that his retirement would be a loss to the state and the party and that he should be "drafted." The immediate political result of the governor's surprise action was that New York again became a doubtful state for the Presidential campaign, in the minds of many politicians.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

Hello Everybody!

"The Crawling Horde" by FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

NOW here comes Pat Mangun, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to get me all balled up. Pat doesn't talk my language at all—in spite of the fact that, judging from his name, his folks came from the same part of Lithuania that mine did.

No—Pat talks about "billycans," and about "carrying his swag" and a lot of other things that have me running round in circles. I know that talk is Australian lingo, but I don't know what it means.

It was in the spring of 1932 that Pat arrived in Sydney, way down on the southeast coast of the island continent. He had heard a lot about the Australian bush—the great open spaces just back from the narrow belt of civilization that fringes the shores—and he wanted to see it. The men he met around Sydney all talked of "carrying your swag" and Pat and his partner, Bob, decided to have a try at it.

Australian "Swagman" Tramped by the Stars. Now a "swag" is just a bundle of your gear, and Bob bought a tent, a "tommyhawk," blankets and a "billycans" called them up into a pack and started a trail that took them on a 30-hour trip through the bush to the town of Dumfri—a little wagon station consisting of a shop, a blacksmith shop and 15 houses.

They got off the train at Dumfri and went into the station. "Most of the customers in the bar," says Pat, "were swagmen like ourselves. We asked one of them if there was any work to be had around town. 'Why, yes,' he said. 'There's plenty at the smelting works.' We asked him where the smelting works was, and his answer astonished us. 'Oh, it's about forty-five miles further south,' he said. 'The easiest way to find it is to wait till night and then follow the tail star of the Southern Cross.' That's the way distance is in Australia. Forty-five miles is 'round town,' and you navigate the bush by the stars. Like you would the ocean."

Stinky Visitors Inevitably Reached the Adventurers' Camp. That night Bob and Pat shouldered their "swags" again and hit the trail. They pushed along for about twenty miles, until they came to a fresh-water stream. They were both dead tired by that time, and decided to pitch camp and stay there for the rest of the night.

"We made a fire," says Pat, "and boiled some coffee in our 'billycans.' We had a little to eat, and then retired into the tent for a smoke. Bob suggested that we write some letters, and we got out pencil and paper and lay down on our stomachs. We had been waiting for about twenty minutes when Bob heard a noise on the side of the tent. He looked up and uttered a frightened cry.

Bob's cry started Pat half out of his wits. It was a sudden terrified scream. "By God, Paddy, that's no good!" Pat turned his head. "What's the matter, Bob?" Far answer Bob pointed mutely to the top of the tent. It was still dark, but a bright moon was shining in the sky. In its yellow beams, both men could see shadows of objects on the top of the tent—long, writhing shadows—snakes—dozens of them—crawling all over the upper side of their flimsy canvas shelter.

The Reptiles Stayed Outside of the Tent. Pat raised himself up on one elbow and took a cautious look around. There were no snakes inside the tent—but outside, there were thousands of them, swarming toward them from every side. While they watched, the dozens of reptiles on top of the tent became hideous, as more and more of them began creeping up its sloping sides.

"We didn't know whether they were poisonous or not," says Pat, "but a bite from one of them might easily mean death. There wasn't any possible means of escape. Bob was hysterical and I was cold with fear. The snakes were closing in on us. In another moment they would be crawling into the tent. I began to wonder why they had not come in long before. Something seemed to be holding them back."

The more Pat thought of it, the more he was convinced that something was keeping those reptiles out of the tent. Then it occurred to him that maybe it was the light they were afraid of. That gave him an idea. He told it to Bob, and immediately they began piling the blankets—the paper they had been writing on—everything inflammable—along the sides and around the front and back ends of their shelter.

Ordered by Fire Drives Away the Slimy Invaders. When that was done, Pat picked up the candle and prayed that his scheme would work. He held the candle to the top of the tent. The canvas began to flame. In ten seconds the tent—their blanket, everything they owned—was going up in a merry blaze.

"We huddled in the center of the tent," says Pat, "while fire burned all around us and over our heads. In no time at all the tent fell in ashes, but the blankets continued to burn, forming a ring of flame that I had hoped would keep the snakes at bay. That ring of flame wasn't even necessary, for at the first sign of fire the snakes fled."

Pat's lunch had been light. The light was what the snakes were afraid of. He and Bob never got to the smelting works they were headed for. They turned right around and went back to the bright lights of Sydney. They had had enough of the bush and of "carrying their swag."

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

Lesson text, Luke 22:39-53. Golden text, "Not my will, but thine, be done." Luke 22:42.

Following the lesson of last Sunday when Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper, He took some time to teach His disciples in those last moments, according to John. He then went for the solemn prayer and took the solemn with Him. It might have been the custom of Jesus to go each night when He was in Jerusalem to the garden just outside the walls of the city, to pray. It was quiet there, and He could be alone. It may be that Jesus and the other disciples had passed with Him many times to this solemn place of prayer. At least it was no trouble for Judas to find Jesus when the betrayal hour came. He knew where to look.

On this particular night Jesus had a special burden. He took the solemn into the garden. Eight He left in the outer garden. He took a little farther with Him. He left and Himself into the heart of the garden. He was facing the great complete surrender to the Father. Three times He prayed that the will of the Father be done. Each time He came back to the disciples asleep. Then the mob with Judas leading the ex-disciple saluted Jesus with a kiss and the mob seized Jesus. He would have done battle, but Peter would not permit it. He struck the ear of the High Priest's servant, which Peter had sliced off. They took the Master and abused and Him. He tried Him falsely, and had Him taken from Pilate for Him to be crucified at six o'clock that morning.

There are several lessons for us in this story. In the first place the fact that Jesus knew where to find Jesus is an example to the one who wishes to follow in the steps of the Master. Does the world know where to find us at prayer time? If a stranger is looking for us on Wednesday night, is he directed to the prayer service? All too sad, most of the citizens of this town do not even know that Wednesday night is prayer meeting night. More sad still, many of the church members are not aware that Wednesday night is prayer meeting night. After all, not many of us are following very closely in the steps of the Master.

The last lesson is that Jesus came to the disciples who were praying with Him. They were not. They were sleeping each time. Jesus was very patient with them, as He is always patient with us. He is patient when we sleep rather than when we are awake. He is patient with the disciples who fled in fear when the Master was taken. One of them was the Master. We are not to meet with our brethren, and may not have a prayer time and prayer daily. The Master is lenient with us, but He does not harshly condemn us. The testing time comes, and the disciples, fall to live up to the expectations of the Master. He is disheartened about our prayer, and wondering what is to be done. Usually such people are pleasure seekers, or pleasure seekers. They are personally interested in the difficulties in the world. They are looking unaware of their own failure in prayer, and that it was the disciples who were not praying who were not praying. He would not stand the test. He prayed and He was ready to die as an unspotted lamb for His people.

The true followers of the Master take a new interest in prayer. The reason to be noted is that Jesus always wolves in sheep's clothing. The fold of the sheep are not converted. Judas was to betray Jesus, he had the privilege of changing and Jesus as the other disciples. He persisted in his own selfish, rather than thought that he would do what he wanted out of Jesus. He indelibly stamped the mind of all humanity as a traitor, hated of all us each examine ourselves, temper them with prayer, and let God direct us in His service. No man pray as Jesus did, or do as He did, but each can do the same. Who is our Savior and

BLACK LEGIONS

The so-called "Black Legion," alleged secret terrorist society in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania, which is receiving a great deal of publicity at present, reminds us of the menace of all secret societies.

All secret societies are, in a sense, Black Legions, because they are secret. All of them have some sort of religious ritual, with secret oaths and horrible punishments for those who betray the said secret rituals. Secrecy in itself is shady. A person may have a secret. But secrecy in any organization bound by private oaths (with exception to the U. S. Department of Justice, which has no religious ritual) is an immediate sign that there are things which dare not be betrayed, and all kinds of "hocus-pocus" of which the secret societies would be ashamed if revealed to the public.

The Christian knows that everything, whether eating, drinking, work or play, must be done to the glory of God and according to the revealed Word of God which is not secret or bound by any rituals or oaths.

St. Paul says to Timothy: "The Word of God is not bound." It is not bound by any chains, by any secret oaths or threats if anyone reveals what the Word of God, the Holy Bible contains.

Are Christian churches locked during preaching services? Must Christians give a sign or say a pass-word upon entering the house of worship? Is there anything in the Holy Bible of which we must be ashamed?

Whatever is not of the truth is of the devil. Whatever does not conform to the Word of God is false and erroneous. A news item recently brought out that the "Black Legion" has as one of its aims: to foster Protestantism. Perhaps that is just an alibi. Protestantism, whether strict, fundamental or liberal, is not bound by any secrecy. Protestantism or Christianity in general does not need any kind of secret legion to foster it or uphold it. The devil has his legions of dark, black spirits in the netherworld and visible spirits, people, in this world who are fostering devilism and not Christianity. We say Christianity purposely because some Christians do not claim to be Protestants. After all, the latter is a human term and not divine. Christianity is the best term for the religion of Christians.

Secret societies were known to be perpetrators of murders. And murder, as well as other crimes, is not tolerated among Christians. Out with the truth. Stick to the Word of God. No secrecy is necessary or should be tolerated by Christians in any organized body. "The Word of God is not bound."

THE SALT OF THE EARTH

There are almost as many salt superstitions and legends as there are stories of bread, and it is interesting to look back over them.

It is a common thing to say that a person is not worth his salt, and that it is bad luck to spill salt, but where did these ideas originate? In India, people do gather the sea water and from it evaporate their own salt, and by their ability to prepare the salt, their value as salt workers is determined. Our counterpart of this expression is, "He isn't worth his keep."

The spilling superstition may have come to us from the Arabs or from the Hebrews, although they hold somewhat divergent views as to what causes the bad luck. In the Hebrew language "salty" is synonymous with "barren," and in the ancient Biblical times it was customary to spill salt over the site of a ruined city because it would render the ground barren and the city, therefore, unfit for rebuilding. Consequently, the idea developed that to spill salt was bad and from that has come the modern superstition.

On the other hand, among the Far Eastern nations, salt, even today, is recognized as an emblem of friendship and so it is easy to understand how the spilling of salt would be construed as an unfriendly gesture and would lead to the superstition that such an accident would foretell a quarrel.

To eat salt with an Arab indicates to him the same responsibility of hospitality that we feel toward anyone who breaks bread with us. It is a tradition that the Arabs feel so strongly about salt that a robber who chances to fall over the family salt block as he enters to rob will leave that house untouched.

Aside from these superstitions, salt was a gauge of social standing in the early days of Christianity. The early dining tables were long, crude affairs and at first the huge salt cellar or bowl was placed in the center. Gradually this was moved toward the head of the table where honored guests and the nobility were seated. From this was developed the expression, which we still hear occasionally, that "he was above or below the salt" which is taken to definitely announce the social standing. Only the lesser ones sat below the salt bowl.

Now that the beer advertisers are putting vitamins in their product and the whiskey advertisers are begging drinkers to stop just short of the "one too many," maybe they realize the danger of a wide-open country.

We would like to see booze advertisements giving just the results of continued indulgence in drinking; it would certainly read somewhat different to what we are accustomed to seeing.

It is a pity that a member of the firm that flooded the local post office with circulars Wednesday morning could not have seen the lobby covered with the discarded circulars, not even opened. There was a time when people received very little mail, and it is probable that such things received attention, but nowadays the littered floor of the post office and circulars blowing by the roadside mail boxes, tell of wasted effort in that direction.

The best way to insure an advertisement reaching the customer and receiving courteous attention is through the columns of the home town newspaper.

Food Safety

In various bulletins, the United States Department of Agriculture recommends that meats, vegetables, milk, and other perishable foods be kept at temperatures below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Electric refrigerator manufacturers once had difficulty in producing this temperature along with other features demanded by the American housewife, especially in warmer parts of the country. But better refrigerators were made each year. Now you may expect much of an Electric Refrigerator. Beauty, economy in operation, positively below 50 degrees temperature control, rapid freezing of ice cubes and desserts, and quietness, are general features found in all Electric Refrigerators. Each manufacturer has many worthwhile conveniences.

GAS FROM CORN STALKS

Iowa State College, Ames, has demonstrated that gas can be produced from corn stalks. Every corn raiser could have his own gas, declared Professor Fulmer of the Ames school. Light and heat could be obtained from the gas produced by fermentation of corn stalks. A ton of corn stalks yields from 10,000 to 20,000 cubic feet of gas when subjected to the fermentation process. That would supply gas for 400 persons daily, allowing each twenty-five cubic feet. "It should be possible for the individual farmer to have a small digestion tank arranged to receive both corn stalks and household wastes," Professor Fulmer said. "That would solve both the sanitation and the fuel problem. "As early as 1897, a waste disposal tank was equipped with gas collectors and the gas was used to drive a gas engine. About the same time, gas so produced was used for heating and lighting purposes in England. "In 1925, the city of Imhoff, Germany, equipped a sludge digestion tank with gas collectors and connected them to the city mains. The gas was found to be satisfactory for general municipal use."

VICE VERSA

By CARLTON JAMES

"SOMETIMES," said retired Police Inspector Andrews, "it seems that the more a man tries to evade capture for a crime he has committed, the more likely becomes his apprehension. And vice versa."

"Vice versa?" I said in some astonishment.

"What do you mean by that?" Andrews smiled faintly and nodded.

"Yes," he said, "vice versa. Take, for example, the case of Vic Bradley. He was a murderer. Not chronic, mind you. He killed to pay a debt, 'Yankee'."

"The victim's name was Ross, Burt Ross. When they were young men, Ross had stolen Bradley's girl. He persuaded her to elope with him on the eve of her marriage to Vic. Made all sorts of promises, spoke slanderously of his rival, produced a note, written in Bradley's hand, in which he admitted that he was marrying Helen, he promised, only for her money."

"He never got over it. He learned from Helen's own lips of Ross' betrayal. He learned that Ross had forged the note himself. Helen died in Vic's arms. Ross had killed her."

"He never forgot and never repented from the wrong done him by Ross. He swore to kill the other man, and dedicated his life to this purpose. But his accomplishment was more difficult than he had anticipated. Ross vanished. But Vic knew that no man in this day and age can completely disappear."

"And so Bradley began his search. A distant uncle had died and willed him a modest fortune, so besides being able to devote his entire time to the accomplishment of his purpose he was also enabled to employ various agencies to assist him."

"The search lasted for ten years. And during this time Vic's desire for pronounced became the longing to follow this course of action. Yes, that was the thing to do. It was the thing he would do.

"Instantly, now that the decision was made, he thought of Ross, of the crime he had committed. There was little danger of capture. He knew that from his experience of the past few days. Still, he must be more careful. He'd been altogether too indifferent and careless. It was a wonder he hadn't been picked up long ago."

"Bradley crossed to his closet, took down the suit he had been wearing on the day he shot Ross, and removed from its pocket the automatic. It would never do, he told himself, to have the weapon found on his person. He considered several hiding places, and eventually tucked it far back in a drawer of his desk."

"He reviewed his crime and tried to think of other precautions to cover up his guilt. None presented themselves and he became a little alarmed. Capture now held for him a peculiar horror. He shuddered, thinking of the electric chair."

"The next day he visited his club again—and that evening he was arrested and charged with the murder of Ross."

Andrews paused. The faint smile was still on his lips.

"What?" I said. "How did they find out he was the man?"

"By vice versa," said Andrews. "Don't you get it? As long as Vic didn't care whether he was captured or not, he could act perfectly normal. But the minute he tried to act normal, he failed. The reason he went to the club that next day was because he felt that if he didn't, the members might become suspicious of his absence. One of them noticed his change in attitude. Another, quite innocently asked him where he was on the night of the murder. A third became suspicious at Vic's answer. They talked it over. They questioned him further, and the guilt in Bradley's eyes was too obvious to be ignored."

"A member with whom he had never got along very well took it upon himself to call the police. Officers searched his apartment. They found the gun. He was charged with the murder and confessed." Andrews paused and shrugged. "You see," he said, "vice versa."

Bible Society Counts 972 Languages for Scriptures

The number of languages in which the Bible or some part of it has been published now totals 972, according to an announcement by the American Bible society.

Among the recent publications of the society is the revised Ponape New Testament and Psalms which will be used in Ponape, the largest of the Caroline Islands. Five nationalities are participating in this project; translated by Germans, printed in England, financed by Americans, distributed by Japanese, and used by Ponapians.

Other scriptures recently published include the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. John in Rundi, one of the many dialects of the Bantu language family. This volume, published by the British and Foreign Bible society, will be used in Danish Baptist mission work in the Belgian Congo. The New Testament in Meninka and the First Epistle of St. John in Kissi recently were published on the mission press in West Africa of the Christian and Missionary alliance.

An analysis of the American Bible society's records shows that of the grand total of 972 languages in which scripture publication has occurred the complete Bible has now been published in 175 languages; the New Testament in 208 additional languages; portions of the Bible, or one complete book, in 574 more, and selections from the Bible, that is, less than a complete book, in still 75 more languages.

Drive Against Trachoma
Prior to the war the existence of trachoma in Rumania was almost general, but in the process of training young men for the military service there was a successful onslaught upon the ravages of the eye disease. Recruits found to be infected were sent to a hospital, where they remained as long as their condition was regarded as infectious. A history of each case was prepared and a government physician was sent into the locality of the victim's residence and examinations made. If any great number of cases were discovered, means were taken at once to stamp out the disease. This resulted in a great diminution of the cases. During the times, the invasion of troops, the immigration of Russians, the annexation of Bessarabia, the return of imperfectly healed soldiers from the field added much to the spread of trachoma. Doctor Cerkez, who has been designated by the government to investigate the conditions, urges the legislative carrying out of early diagnosis, regular eye examination of school children and workmen, the erection of special trachoma hospitals and dispensaries, migratory dispensaries for the village folk compulsory notification and treatment, eye examination of all immigrants and, finally, the organization of propaganda work.

Odd German Elevator
Among the oddest passenger elevators in use today is a set installed in a large office building in Hamburg, Germany, according to Collier's. They are built like buckets on an endless chain, going up one side of the shaft and coming down the other without a step. There are no doors and the passengers hop on and off as the cars pass their floor. Those whose "hopping" is bad have to use the stairs.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Hot Political Campaigns.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—They say this will be the liveliest fight for years and years, with glee clubs gargling and the boys out with brass bands—and brass-knucks; and batteries of college professors firing on opposition professors.

But they'll never reclaim the glorious ancient spirit. We're too tame. Take '06. Now, there was a campaign for you. When Bryan was a discoverer instead of a chronic recurrence.

Two life-long friends would meet. "What d'ye think of this here free silver thing?" one would ask. "I think it's the greatest notion in history," the second fellow would say. "What do you think?" "I think you're a dirty such-and such!" The first man would yell, and then everybody would start bouncing those old-fashioned brass cuspidors off of everybody else's dome.

Irvin S. Cobb

J. Edgar Boulder.
OWING to recent developments over which it had no control, I believe the Interior department temporarily has shelved the idea of changing J. Edgar Hoover's name to J. Edgar Boulder, as was previously predicted in these dispatches. But now certain critics at Washington insist on accusing that gentleman of over-advertising in connection with his latest activities. Well, he has the advantage over some press agents. When he promises a show he certainly puts it on upon the day and date announced, with the band playing "The Alcatraz Drag"—and every cage full.

Funny Foreign Names.
WORD from Warsaw is that the incumbent, the Hon. Marjan Zyndram Koscielkowski, having resigned, the president of Poland has picked as the new premier none other than Gen. Felician Slawoskiadkowski. The latter gentleman has already been installed up to and including his first five or six syllables, the rest of the name running as a second section.

So what you mistook for static on the radio night before last was just the news broadcaster trying to pronounce him as a whole.

Ever Rising Taxes.
ANYBODY who fondly believes that, regardless of which outfit wins in November, taxes won't keep right on going up and up has a thinking apparatus that dates back quite a spell. I'd say it dates back to the climax of the big rise, as set forth in the Bible, and is a direct inheritance from the skeptical folks who wouldn't harken to the prophetic warning.

Remember the scene, don't you? The forty days' rain still beating relentlessly down, the freshest climbing higher and higher, the animals marching in two by two.

And with the old ark starting to move and Father Noah yelling, "All aboard," and with the waters closing over their heads, those know-it-alls still gurgling through their valedictory bubbles. "Shuckin's, there ain't goin' to be no flood!"

Honoring Lee and Jackson.
WHEN the Post Office department includes among the gallery of the greatest Americans, to be pictured in the new issue of memorial stamps, the faces of the Confederate chieftains, Lee and Jackson, what happens?

Why, nobody waves the bloody shirt. Nobody ennobs the sorry word "traitor" by applying it to the memories of those two gallant soldiers and simple Christian gentlemen. Nobody in the name of patriotism drags the moldering bones of sectional rancor out of the ground. Nobody beats the "Rogue's March for Rebels" on hate's snare drum.

Instead, all over the Union, men and women applaud this generous but merited gesture. A leading paper of Boston—Boston, no less, once the mulching bed of abolition and the breeding ground for anti-southern sentiment—editorially commends the idea.

Railcar Popular in France
The railcar, or "automotrice," as it is known there, is becoming one of the most popular means of rapid passenger transport in France. At the same time great efforts are being made to increase the speed of these railcars. Every few weeks a new record is established by one of the rival constructing companies. Record was attained by M. Jean Bugatti, who drove a Bugatti railcar from Strasbourg to Paris in 3 hours 31 minutes, averaging 89.4 miles an hour. Seventy-five Bugatti railcars are now running on the French railway system. M. Jean Bugatti considers that railcars run on petrol are particularly useful for ultra-rapid transit transport over distances of three or four hundred miles.—London Sunday Observer.

Diver Under Sea 18 Hours;

Claims the World's Record

After remaining under water for 18 hours, Konstantinov, a Soviet diver, claims the world record for duration of time beneath the surface of the sea.

He made the record, Moscow reports, while repairing the hull of a tugboat which had sunk in the Arctic ocean.

Value of Virtues

THE virtues all lock into each other. They cannot stand alone. Like the stones of an arch, no one of them can be wanting without making all the rest insecure. That character alone is trustworthy in which each virtue takes its relative position, and all are held in place and confirmed by the keystone of a living faith in the great central fact, that there is a God of infinite goodness and truth, whose commandments are the laws of life in this world and in the world to come.—M. C. Ware.

Pagodas for Heroes

For 1,600 years the "pagoda" has been closely associated with Buddhism, which disapproves of fighting. But modern China is building pagodas to glorify the deeds of men at arms and to encourage China to become war-minded.

A BLUNT MOTTO

Don't worry because someone does not like you. You can't possibly go through life without some mistakes and some enemies. Just journey along doing the best you can and intentionally wronging no man.

SEVEN MISTAKES

- 1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.
2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.
