THOMPSON FOR R. R. COM.

The News is authorized to carry the name of Ernest O. Thompson as a candidate for reelection to the office of State Railroad Commissioner, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

The s'able condition of the oil industry and the stopping of waste of Texas oil and gas resources were cited by Col. Thompson, chairman of the Railroad Commission, as proof of the wisdom of the commission's oil conservation policies.

Pointing out the huge amount of oil pays in taxes for support of Texas schools and other branches of the government, Thompson has strongly urged the conservation of Texas' oil resources and the prevention of waste of petroleum.

The permanent school fund of the state, he pointed out, has grown to $10,000,000 from oil revenues. "It is only necessary that you be interested in the education of Texas school children to be interested in oil," Thompson declared in a recent address. "In the hands of our young men soon will rest the future of our state. Theirs is to be the torch. Oil today is paying a very large portion of the money that is necessary in maintaining our schools, and it is most important that this oil not be wasted and jeopardize the future of our schools."

Oil pays $37,500,000 of Texas annual $150,000,000 tax bill, and it is under the railroad commission that the oil regulatory laws are administered.

Thompson cited the huge losses suffered by the state from the indiscriminate use and lack of conservation of soil and forest lands, but reminded citizens of the state that unlike soil and forests, which can be rebuilt and replanted, oil, once taken from the ground, cannot be replaced by man.

Before scientific methods of oil production were discovered, vast quantities of oil were left in the ground because petroleum was taken out in a wasteful manner.

The commission, he pointed out, has found that the best way to recover the maximum amount of oil from the sands and prevent physical waste is to take it out no faster than the gas or water, which create the pressure to force it from the ground, can refill the voids left by the removal of the oil.

Since the railroad commission's conservation policies have been put effect in East Texas, estimates of the ultimate recovery from the field have grown from two billion barrels to four billion barrels.

"This," said Thompson, "is 100% return upon the investment of conservation."

Thompson's strong advocacy of and successful efforts for conservation of oil resources have gained him widespread support over the entire state, and friends from all quarters confidently have predicted his reelection to office this year by a large majority.

The old six-shooter was a 44 calibre and while pretty badly eaten by rust, is in fine condition for a museum piece.

Mr. Koen says he has been plowing the field where the gun was found for the past five years, and just accidentally noticed about an inch of the barrel showing above the ground when discovered.

Only the Fence

A stranger addressed the farmer's boy across the fence.

"Young man, your corn looks kind o' yellow."

"Yes, that's the kind we planted."

"Don't look as if you would get more than half a crop."

"Don't expect to. The landlord gets the other half."

Then, after a pause, the man said: "Boy, there isn't much difference between you and a fool."

"No," replied the boy, "only the fence."—Hoard's Dairyman.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form. The most pleasant way to take the wafer is approximately equal to a dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Thoroughly, then swallowed, they neutralize acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, painless elimination of the waste matter, thus a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 24, 48, at 35¢ and 60¢ respectively, and convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20¢. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. Good drug stores sell and recommend.

WHY NEWSPAPERS LEAD

Newspapers continued as "tops in advertising media in 1935, and here is why, according to Prof. Thomas F.
Barnhart of the University of Minnesota:

1. Newspaper reading is a universal habit. Newspaper advertising, therefore, reaches virtually all who read and buy.

2. A newspaper advertisement can always be seen by the reader.

3. The newspaper advertisement, as part of the complete paper goes into the home as a welcome guest.

4. The newspaper advertisement can have as much reader interest and news value as the news item.

5. The amount of text used in newspaper advertisements is dependent only upon the size of space.

6. Newspaper advertising is flexible.

7. Newspaper advertising is quickly controlled.

8. Newspaper advertising may be adjusted to different conditions.

9. Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers and dealers to place where their products may be bought.

10. Newspaper advertising is inexpensive. Merchants have learned that it covers more families for less money than any other form of advertising.

11. Newspaper advertising results may be checked.

12. Newspaper circulation is known and is comparatively unaffected by daily change.

13. Newspaper advertising reduces selling costs because it entails no waste of circulation. This helps reduce costs for the consumer.

"Newspaper advertising," says Prof.
Barnhart, "builds confidence and good will, attracts new customers, increases sales, and stabilizes merchandising methods and prices."—Clinton (Tenn.)
Courier.

New French Premier Helps Labor Win All Demands

STRIKING workers who paralyzed the industrial life of France at the moment when the "popular front" socialist majority was taking over the reins of the government, won complete victory with the aid of Leon Blum, new premier, as the general strike was settled, a disquieting note was added by a walkout of 150,000 coal miners and textile workers in northern France.

Labor won the following five demands:

1. Wage increases from 7 to 15 per cent.
2. Recognition of workers' rights to organize in unions.
3. A forty-hour work week.
4. Vacations with pay.
5. Collective bargaining contracts.

Settling of the strike marked a significant victory for the new government which assumed extraordinary powers to devise measures to bolster France's financial system and revitalize national defenses. "White collar" workers were the only group excluded from the general agreement which was signed by employers at the behest of the government, but the premier promised relief for them. Premier Blum gained support from conservative forces with his announcement that "The People's Front is and will remain hostile to devaluation of the currency."

The end of the strike restored a measure of confidence to a panic-stricken nation faced with possible famine due to the tie-up of its transportation, processing and distribution systems by 1,000,000 striking workers.

Texas Opens Its Great Centennial Exposition

TEXAS celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of its independence by opening a $25,000,000 centennial exposition in Dallas. Foremost among distinguished visitors attending the world's fair the first week was President Roosevelt. To obtain the centennial exposition Dallas made available more than $9,000,000 in cash and property. The exposition will be open until November 29. Numerous other celebrations marking the state's 100 years of freedom have been held in various cities and towns of Texas. The exposition presents educational, historic and recreational features associated with a major world's fair.

Largest building on the exposition ground is the $1,000,000 Texas Hall of State, which cost an additional $200,000 to equip. The building was erected as a memorial to the patriots and pioneers of Texas, and is the largest historical museum on the North American continent.

Other buildings and their erection cost include:

- United States building, $325,000, largest federal building ever erected at a world's fair; Negro Life building, $100,000, also erected by government funds; Exposition Farm Center, consisting of five great buildings, erected at a cost of $1,000,000; Travel and Transportation building, $365,000; Varied Industries, $440,000; National History museum, $250,000; aquarium, $180,000.

Speaker Byrns of House Is Taken by Death

DEATH, sudden and unexpected, came to Joseph Wellington Byrns, speaker of the house of representatives, and put an end to a notable career. The veteran Tennessee congressman suffered a heart attack, followed by a cerebral hemorrhage, and passed away within a few hours in his apartment in the Mayflower hotel, Washington. For 27 years Mr. Byrns had represented the "hermit district" of Tennessee in the house, and he was elected speaker when the Seventy-fourth congress convened in January, 1935. He was a master of parliamentary strategy and so fair-minded a presiding officer that all, even his political opponents, praised and admired him. Before becoming speaker he served long years on the appropriations committee, as member and chairman, and he also was leader of the Democratic majority and chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

Grief for Mr. Byrns' death was general and sincere in Washington officialdom. "I am shocked beyond all imagination," said Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, the minority leader. "It is a terrible thing. It is an almost irreparable loss."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the majority leader, after expressing his own sense of loss, added: "His work during the session has been very difficult and trying. He was a great speaker."

President Roosevelt in a statement from the White House expressed well the high esteem in which Mr. Byrns was held. Said he:

"Fearless, incorruptible, unselfish with a high sense of justice, wise in counsel, broad of vision, calm in adversity, and modest in victory, he served his state and the nation with fidelity, honor, and great usefulness. I personally mourn the passing of a steadfast friend of many years."

Impressive funeral services were held in the chamber of the house, the President, members of the cabinet and numerous diplomats being present in addition to all members of congress.

Senate Passes Its Own Tax Revenue Measure

THE senate passed the $29,000,000 compromise revenue measure by a vote of 38 to 24. The bill then went to conference with the house of representatives which had enacted a revenue measure carrying out tax proposals made by President Roosevelt. The senate measure called for a 15 1/2 to 18 per cent tax on net corporate incomes as compared with the present 12 1/2 to 15 per cent levy; a new type of 7 per cent tax on undistributed profits; repeal of the existing exemption of dividends from the 4 per cent normal income tax; an increase of 1 per cent in the individual income surtax on surtax brackets between $6,000 and $50,000. The house measure called for a tax on corporate net income scaling up to 42 1/2 per cent, depending upon the amount of undistributed profits.

Chester Davis Appointed to Reserve Board

AGRICULTURE was given representation on the federal reserve board through the appointment by President Roosevelt of Chester C. Davis, administrator of the AAA to that body.

In discussing his appointment, Mr. Davis said: "The fiscal policy of the federal government has never been tied in closely enough with agricultural problems." Mr. Davis has spent most of his life in agricultural activities. He was born on a farm in Iowa, was graduated from Grinnell college and later owned and operated a farm. For some years he was a newspaper publisher and then became editor of the Montana Farmer.

Mr. Davis succeeded as AAA administrator by Dr. Howard R. Tolley. Nationally known as a soil expert, Doctor Tolley helped Mr. Davis draft the soil conservation plan, enacted after the United States Supreme court decision invalidated the AAA. He has been carrying on this program during the absence of Mr. Davis in Europe.

Filene Plan Urges Ban on Unfair Trade Practices

IN A report just made public the business advisory council proposes a simplified basis for industrial self-regulation through the medium of voluntary joint agreements on unfair trade practices enforceable by the federal trade commission. The report was prepared by the council's committee on unfair trade practices of which Lincoln Filene of Boston is chairman.

Outstanding among the committee's proposals were suggestions that each branch of an industry, such as wholesale, retail, and manufacturing, police the activities of each other through confidential reports to the federal trade commission and that no attempt be made to include trade practice and labor provisions in the same agreements.

Sir Samuel Hoare Back in British Cabinet

CALLED back to the British cabinet, which he left some months ago as a political scapegoat, Sir Samuel Hoare was made first lord of the admiralty, to succeed Viscount Monsell. Sir Samuel, who boldly faced a hostile house of commons last December to defend his part in the Anglo-French peace plan which would have given Mussolini only a part of Ethiopia, will face the task of solving problems arising out of British-Italian feet difficulties in the Mediterranean. The biggest task facing Hoare, however, is restoration of the British navy to an undisputed position of supremacy on the seas.

Industrial Mobilization Plan Is Condemned

THE so-called industrial mobilization plan of the War department, providing for a military dictatorship over labor, capital and industry, as well as censorship of the press in wartime, was severely condemned in a report to the senate by the munitions committee.

The committee objected particularly to the proposed conscription of labor as being dangerous to democracy.

Thomas Held Responsible for British Budget Leak

J. H. THOMAS, until recently British colonial secretary, was found responsible by a special government tribunal for the leak in budget secrets which enabled some of his friends to profit largely through insurance against tax raises. Final disposition of the case was left to the house of commons. Thomas, once an engine wiper and later a powerful figure in organized labor and politics, termed the tribunal's verdict "cruel." He said: "My own conscience is clear. I repeat what I previously stated upon oath: that I made no disclosures of budget secrets to anybody."

South China Declares War on Japanese

WITH a declaration of war against Japan by the Canton (south) Chinese government, first steps were taken in what may become a nationally concerted effort to resist further encroachment by Nippon on China's territory.

Leaders were hopeful that a coalition of the Canton and the Nanking (north) governments might give China a united front against Japan for the first time. Should the South China war lords succeed in enlisting the support of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and his Nanking forces, a substantial movement to expel the Japanese from North China could be undertaken.

Sec. Ickes Complains of Wallace's Encroachments

THE Department of Agriculture recommended to the senate that the administration of the Taylor grazing act, affecting 80,000,000 acres of range land, be transferred to its control from that of the Department of the Interior. Secretary Ickes retorted with the accusation that the Agricultural department had hindered his program to rehabilitate western grazing lands. He said Secretary Wallace's department has insisted upon having so many CCC camps for the forestry service that the Interior department could not get enough CCC help to administer efficiently the Taylor act.

Is Father Once More at Age of 96

GEORGE ISAAC HUGHES, ninety-six-year-old Confederate veteran, amazed the medical world by becoming a father again. This time a girl was born to Hughes' twenty-eight-year-old wife, Libby Hill Hughes. The Hughes' first born is now a lusty lad of seventeen months. Surprisingly vigorous for his age, Hughes was the only veteran in his area to attend recent Confederate memorial exercises. The veteran's mental faculties are clear. He is able to do considerable physical work including caring for a garden, chopping wood and doing odd jobs.

Marshal Badoglio Is Given Roman Triumph

MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGGLIO, conqueror of Ethiopia and now viceroy of that part of the reconstituted "Roman empire," returned to the Eternal City in triumph and was vociferously welcomed as a hero. Sixty thousand Romans welcomed him as he stepped from his train, and Premier Mussolini modestly waited in the background until they had shouted their greetings to the veteran warrior. Then Il Duce came forward and kissed the viceroy on both cheeks, and the high ranking Fascist military leaders paid homage. With the premier and the picked troops forming the escort of honor were the entire cabinet. Several days later a great military review was held.

The other side of the picture was seen in London, where Haile Selassie, the deposed emperor of Ethiopia, arrived in tears and sadness, though he was given an ovation by the cheering thousands that had seldom been accorded to visitors to England. Many of the Londoners carried Ethiopian flags or scarlet banners reading "Welcome to the Emperor." With the white sympathizers were many African chiefs in native robes, Somalis, negroes, Hindus, Chinese, and colored people from all parts of the world.

There was an outburst of wild cheering when Selassie, bareheaded and wearing a long black cape, stepped from his private stately car and was greeted by many notables, including O. C. Harvey, private secretary of Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary. Harvey was the lone representative of the British government.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"Private War" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

NOW this is the story of Charley Carson of New York city, who gets the pink, blue and green jitters every time he has to go in the subway.

Does that sound queer to you? It does to me. I'm one of those birds who gets nervous when I get up to any height more than two stories above the street. The subway is my idea of a swell place to be because you can't fall out of it. But then, if I'd had Charley's experience, I don't suppose it's falling that I'd be worried about.

Now this yarn goes back to a certain scrap the United States had with Spain—a scrap that started in the year 1898. It was officially known as the Spanish-American war, but Charley says there was a certain group known as the Economy league who'd have us believe it was a ping-pong tournament.

Whatever it was, Charley was playing on the American team, and for two years he engaged in matches with Spaniards, and Cuban hill bandits, and whatnot, without having any serious mishaps or getting any of the embalmed beef they served for refreshments between halves. Then, one day, he ran into an adventure that turned his hair gray overnight.

Charley Was No Caveman, But Geology Did Interest Him.

The Spaniards didn't have anything to do with it. Neither did the bandits up in the hills. Things were pretty quiet by that time, as far as fighting went, so the brass hats began casting about for some sort of activity to keep the boys properly exercised. Charley was in the Seventh United States cavalry, and to that outfit fell the job of building a rifle-range at Guanajay, 20 miles out from the city of Havana.

Now Charley has always been of an inquisitive disposition, and in his spare time he and a few other lads went prowling around investigating the countryside. It was hilly terrain, and about a mile and a half from camp they found a cave, the only entrance to which was a small hole that ran about twenty feet straight down into the ground. The minute Charley saw that cave, he got an itch to explore it.

He didn't do anything about the itch that day, but a few days later he set out alone to look that cave over. He took a long rope with him and let himself down to the bottom of the hole. There were four or five rock-walled rooms that opened out from the mouth of the cave, and Charley began to explore them. He had an improvised torch with him—a bundle of oil-soaked rags tied on the end of a stick—and with this he lighted his progress from one "room" to another, through long galleries and down narrow, twisting passages.

When the Torch Failed, Charley Was Lost in the Cave.

In some places there were gaps so small that he had to get down on his knees and squeeze through them. He was so interested in his hunt that he forgot all about the time—and all about the direction he had taken. He didn't remember them until suddenly the light from the torch began to grow dim.

Then Charley turned to retrace his steps. He hadn't gone far, though, before the torch gave one last flicker and went out. He was in darkness. What was worse, he was beginning to realize that, without a light, he would never be able to find his way out through the turning, twisting mazes of that cave.

"I had a few matches," says Charley, "but they were soon used up. Cold perspiration began to come out all over my body. No one knew I had gone to that cave, so no one would come looking for me. I could wander around there, without food or water, until I died and rotted. I kept moving, but it was the movement of despair.

Any Minute He Might Stumble Into an Abyss.

I had to walk carefully, lest I step into a pit or crack my skull against a protruding rock. So I crawled along on my hands and knees—crawled for hours and hours—and all the time knowing that I had lost my way and might easily be moving in the opposite direction from the opening.

The air was stifling. In time Charley's hands got so sore he couldn't bear to touch the floor with them. Hunger and thirst came to add to his torment. He was numb, completely exhausted, and nearly delirious. "Finally," he says, "it got to the point where I couldn't go on any longer. I gave up. I was lying face downward on the hard, rocky floor, and I turned over on my back. And as I turned I felt a welcome sensation run along my right cheek."

Charley Wins His Own Private War!

What was it? A breath of air—a sure sign that there was an opening somewhere ahead. That spurred Charley on to another frantic effort. He stumbled to his feet and reeled along in the direction from which the air was coming. In another two minutes he could see stars overhead. He was back at the bottom of the hole by which he had entered.

He was out of the darkness, but still too weak to climb the rope that led up 20 feet to the top. Once more he collapsed on the ground and lay there until daylight. Then, though the skin was worn off his hands, he managed to make the long, arduous climb to the top. He staggered into camp around breakfast time and went right to the hospital. And now—well—Charley never can go into the subway without thinking of that cave in the hills at Guanajay.

Oregon Trail Was Most Extraordinary Highway

The Oregon Trail, it has been said, was the most extraordinary highway known to history. It originated with the spontaneous use of travelers; no transit ever located a foot of it; no level established its grade; no engineer sought out the fords or built any bridges or located the mountain passes; there was no grading to speak of nor any attempt at surfacing the roadbed, and the general good quality of this 2,000 miles of road from the Missouri to the Columbia was, to say the least, remarkable, observes a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

First Mail System

A Parisian served Paris and her suburbs with mail long before governments went into the post office business. In the year 1653 one M. de Villayer put up boxes in the busiest streets of Paris and ornamental wrappings bearing his coat of arms for sale in stores. All one had to do was to buy a wrapper in a store, just like a stamp today, put it loosely around his letter and deposit in one of the marked Villayer boxes. Collections were made twice daily, brought to a central headquarters and then distributed, the wrappers being taken off and used again.

Black-Draught's Reputation

The confidence people have in Black-Draught, built up from its factory use so many years, is shown in its being handed on from one generation to another. It may be said to have such a strong following that it is almost impossible to find a family that does not have a box of Black-Draught in its medicine chest. "We have used Black-Draught for many years," writes Mr. Fred Richardson of Harrison, Ohio. "My mother has used it for fifty years. It is the best medicine I know anything about. I take it for my stomach and constipation, or when I am sluggish and feel Black-Draught is the best to regulate the bowels, removing the waste matter, ridding them of congestion. I expect to use it twenty years more if I live and it gives satisfaction. It has always given."

"SUN SPOTS"

By Austin Callan

I for one plead guilty of being an alarmist.

There are deep and threatening shadows flitting across the face of America that should be watched and studied. If they do not mean anything, nothing is lost. If they do, one fore-warned is forearmed.

Some folks will "pooh pooh" the suggestion of Communism being a menace in this country. But unjustified confidence is of no value.

When nervous Pompeians expressed fear at the smoke boiling out of Vesuvius, the town Smart Aleck began wisecracking. Nevertheless, old "Vesuvy" did its stuff and the people perished.

Recently I visited a friend who laughed because I locked the car on leaving it in front of his home. "It won't be bothered there," he assured me. But the very next night his car was stolen from that identical spot. Cocksureness didn't protect his property and it won't meet the challenge of these insidious enemies.

Red writers and speakers, crooked politicians and sneering critics keep the public blinded to facts which should be known concerning the proselytizing propaganda of communists in our schools, churches and social organizations. Many of these have an influence that is being employed to help drive the dagger of the radicals deep into the breast of America.

They know that "General Indifference" is a recruiting officer of the devil.

If you are inclined to be a scoffer on this subject, you should never forget that smart people never wait until a house burns down before calling the fire department.

Let me give you these facts to soak in while waiting for further revelations:

There are five times as many Communists insidiously active in the United States today as there were in Russia when the Kerensky government was overthrown and the people of that nation doomed to a hopeless despotism.

God and liberty have been banished from Russia and the aim of Communism is to spread its dreaded disease over the rest of the world. On Christmas day, 1934, when there were thousands of empty benches in the churches of this land, a communistic organization composed of young folks held a rousing anti-religious demonstration in New York City. The purpose of that gathering was to shut out the light of the Bethlehem Star and destroy the faith taught us at a mother's knee.

It is going to cost over $60,000,000.000 to pay the pensioners of America's past wars.

L'ENVOI

When earth's last picture is pain
And the tubes are twisted and dried,
And the oldest colors have faded,
And the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest, and faith We shall need it—
Lie down for an aeon or two,
Till the Master of all workmen
Shall put us to work anew.

And those that are good shall be happy;
They shall sit in a golden chair;
They shall splash at a ten league canvas
With brushes of golden hair.
They shall find real saints to draw from—Magdalene, Peter and Paul;
They shall work for an age at a sitting
And never be tired at all.

And only the Master shall praise us;
And only the Master shall blame us;
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of working,
And each, in his separate star,
Shall draw the Thing as he sees It,
For the God of Things as they are.

WATER SYSTEMS SOUGHT

If the present trend keeps up, the wearisome trips from the kitchen to the spring or well for water may soon be a thing of the past, for no home modernization plan has received quite the attention of rural home owners as that of running water systems.

Reports indicate interest in running water has increased as much as 400% over last year. A simple system which includes a shallow well or cistern pump, a range boiler and sink may be installed for as low as $25, depending on extent of the system.

"I am sorry," said the dentist, but you cannot have an appointment with me this afternoon. I have eighteen cavities to fill." And he picked up his golf bag and went out.—Notre Dame Juggler.

Last year the Post Office Department estimated that more than 20,000,000 pieces of mail weighing more than 7,500,000 pounds were franked.

PLANT PEDIGREES
Experiments by the Missouri Agricultural Department gave no indication that nursery stock bred from high-yielding parent plants possessed any better bearing habits than that bred from low-yielding plants. The experiments tend to prove that plant pedigrees mean little and that bearing habits are not transmitted to a plant by its parent but instead depend upon the care the plant receives.

The crop working at the J.

 this kind that leads one to be

Mayor Davis grows eloquent on what he thinks is wrong with McLean, in his article this week, but he should remember that newspapers do not create news. People do that, and when they do anything that is worth printing, any paper is glad to print it, if reported in time. As to rain reports, McLean does not have a government rain gauge, as most towns do, due to the fact that no one has been found who is willing to make daily records. There were two items in the Amarillo News under a McLean date line, the day the mayor brought his article in.

Only a few weeks ago the News editor was bawled out for nothing from McLean appearing in the Amarillo News, when some four articles had been printed that week under a Mc-Lean date line. However, it is a fact that daily papers do not want many of the community happenings that are important to the home paper, on account of purely local interest. The day is past when any paper appreciates propaganda, but all papers welcome live news.

CAN AND BOTTLE RHUBARB

Many new or at least novel uses constantly being developed for rhubarb. Since it is largely seasonal many housewives whose families like its tangy taste are putting up stores for off-season use. While rhubarb juice has been used for years on a small scale in many parts of the world, it is comparatively new to this country. Chemists of the New York state experiment station say rhubarb beverages are easily and cheaply prepared by diluting clarified juice of this plant and adding sugar, or it may be combined with apple cider, grape juice, et. In canning a future supply, cut young and tender stalks into half-inch lengths, pack into containers and cover with a boiling-hot thick sirup. Process pint and quart glass jars for 20 minutes in boiling water; No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans for 15 minutes.

REJUVENATING THE ROSEBUSH

If your roses seem to have wintered badly it may not be due to what is termed "winter-killing" but may have been caused by what gardeners call "die-back." This is caused to a great extent by neglecting to remove old blooms. In order to more fully protect fine roses keep the withered blooms closely trimmed this summer.

WHEN THE HOME TOWN MERCHANT WANTS AN AD—

"He sits down to his desk, takes whatever paper is handy, writes out a list of the goods he wishes to tell his customers about, puts down the prices, goes to his newspaper, perhaps picks out a few illustrations from the newspaper's cut service and leaves his instructions to 'set the copy in three columns ten; or two columns eight; or perhaps, a full page.'

"The home town newspaper workmen get busy. They pick the border that will enclose the ad, lay out the copy to as good advantage as possible, set the display lines, fill in the reading matter, justify the set-up, pull a proof, read it, correct the type, and print it.

"The home town merchant spends a minimum of time in getting his message into print. And he gets a printed message that, take the small newspapers as a whole, is surprisingly good. Perhaps the typography doesn't compare favorably with a Marshall Field advertisement in the Chicago Tribune . . . but let's see why.

How the Chicago Tribune Does It

"The Chicago Tribune declares it is the 'World's Greatest Newspaper.' Its equipment is worth millions of dollars. It has 40 or 50 linotypes; it has huge tubular presses that print complete newspapers almost faster than you can count them; it has type faces of all descriptions; it has hundreds of men, each group trained to do a particular job.

"But does Marshall Field call up the Chicago Tribune and say: 'We want a full page ad tomorrow. Come around and get the copy. We want some illustrations, too. Bring your illustration book?' Marshall Field does not.

"In the first place, Marshall Field's expert and high-priced advertising man toils for hours on the lay-out and the wording of that ad. He cuts out words here, changes words there, figures the amount of space each description would take, chooses illustrations, checks the wording again, and makes sure the prices are correct. He must make that message tell the reader just what Marshall Field wants to convey.

Expert Typography

"Then the lay-out and copy is sent to an expert typographer. The typographer puts the lay-out into actual type. Perhaps he uses some newly designed type, some hand drawn headings, and other finishing touches. The job costs Marshall Field from $35 to $70 extra, but they know how the ad will look before it goes into the newspaper.

"Finally Marshall Field place their OK on the ad.
 Then it goes to another set of specialists where an electrotype is made; or maybe just 'mats' are made.

"Then, finally, the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers are called. They get the mat or the electrotype and they print the advertisement—at a cost that is astounding to smaller firms.

"The small town newspaper is a pocket-edition, not only of a metropolitan newspaper, but of two or three other highly technical plants as well."

For Her Graduation, Party and Prom

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FRESH and young and unspoiled, the sweet graduate is the star of her commencement week and must be costumed suitably and lovely as can be for her part.

Some of the most entrancing dual-purpose frocks are of Swiss organdie. Romantic, youthful and flattering, these darling, exquisitely sheer-cottons come in endless variety. Embroidered organdies are immensely popular this year. They are patterned in versatile fashion, ranging from flowing vine and floral motifs to demure bows, also novelty dot effects. Eyelet and all-over cutout embroidered patterns are delicately lacy and have an added crispness that is refreshing and cool for summer wear.

Miraculous, indeed, are the new enabled and matelasse organdies that need only to be tubbed and then put on a hanger to dry to return to their original freshness. In solid color or in multi-color floral prints. Graduating frocks, this year, are full length, with smoothly fitting skirt flaring from the knee. Because of the youth of their wearers and because the style interest is centered on the unusual fabric patterns, the frocks are always simple in line. Distinctive details are chic fly-away sleeves, always perky and crisp in organdie, a restrained use of demure ruffles, and as a rule, modest high necks.

The lovely models pictured have flaring skirts that will lift blithely to the platform at the graduation exercises and appear later on at informal dances and dinners throughout the summer. Slim sheathes of taffeta make a sleek foundation with an elegant whisper of silk. Taffeta is also being used in a revival of the traditional sash with butterfly bow and long ends as instanced in the youthful frock of eyelet embroidered Swiss organdie to the right in the trio.

Just as the tradition of white for brides is no longer uniformly observed, pastel colors or touches of color on white have become as correct for graduation as all-white. Wherefore, the flower-like maiden pictured to the left will go tripping demurely up the aisle in a sprig-embroidered organdie. The brief bolero jacket has fly-away, pleated shoulder-widening sleeves to enhance its chic and its charm.

Of course you have fallen in love at first sight with the beguiling dress, centered in the picture. Everybody does. A discreet and artful use of ruffles adds to the quaint but very modish air of this summery frock which is fashioned of pin-dotted Swiss organdie. The red grosgrain ribbon tie at the throat and a red grosgrain belt match the color of the fabric dots. You'll see wee crystal buttons all the way down the front. If you look closely, and how smartly bouffant are her sleeves!

IT'S THE LATEST

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

There is a coat and dress that is a minute arrival, so new that it's less almost startling. It has that broad shoulder line which is vital if you would be up and going in fashion. Great emphasis is given to the alliance in this model by Creed. The dress has a front of green, brown and red madras. The three-quarter coat is made of beige and brown and as is also the dress. The coat has a wide chambray gray belt. That is gray felt.

Cocoon Handbags

Banks go to the butterflies whose cocoons are now being used as bag material. The cocoon is dried and pressed together, the whole giving appearance of grayish-brown tree with a rough woody texture.

STRIKING BUTTONS ADD BRIGHT TOUCH

Many striking ideas are being developed in the button line. For sport blouses, a clever manufacturer uses numbers to replace ordinary buttons down the front. These, ranging from one to nine, are of plastic material, sometimes in bright color to form a contrasting effect against the blouse fabric or else in imitation ivory, tortoise shell or delicate, pale amber.

The signs of the Zodiac also have been a source of inspiration for button designers and have been used with great originality by leading dressmakers for summer afternoon or beach dresses. The Chinese inspiration has been responsible for one style showing Chinese script engraved over mother-of-pearl discs or plastic plaquettes in lacquer red.

Dull Fabrics Choice for Deshabilles and Lingerie

Lingerie and deshabilles are more popular than ever in dull fabrics, such as mossy crepes and delicate rayon sheers. Favorite colors are periwinkle and turquoise blue, pale pink and salmon. Tones of maize, champagne and canary yellow are seen also as well as delicate tones of mauve, which are especially requested by discriminating women to wear with dresses in the new shades of purple, Bishop or Parma violet.

Small Watches Attached to Suit Lapel Is Latest

The new small watches, in a colored leather backing and suspended on a colored leather fob, are worn attached to the lapels of suits. The same watches, but on a larger and simpler scale, are being worn in the lapels of men's business suits. The only catch to these new watches is that it is more difficult for the wearer to tell the time than for the rest of the world who happens to pass by.

Buying Violet

Before buying any of the pleasant violet shades that are so popular these days in the light of day. They look vastly different, you'll find, from their indoor color.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Political Conventions.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—This month, being engaged in the somewhat responsible task of filling the most important office in the world, the accredited representatives of two great parties will discharge these duties by acting as though, shortly before they were born, their respective mothers had been horribly frightened by an intoxicated toad.

At Cleveland, if the delegates for Zookus fail to behave like howling dervishes for at least forty minutes following the mention of his name, they're traitors to a sacred trust. And if the delegates for Gookus don't carry on longer and louder and crazier than the Zookus bunch did, they'll never again dare lift their shamed heads.

The setup will be different at Philadelphia, the cradle of liberty, although occupied at times by some funny soundings. There, when the chosen mouthpiece offers a candidate whose second nomination has been certain ever since his first nomination, every patriot on the floor must be thrown by the astounding shock into a happy delirium, lasting until his legs give out, his larynx splits and he can't think of any more hysteria symptoms.

The Seattle Lochinvar.

LATEST news from the hospital is that America's boy-sweetheart—the young Lochinvar out of Seattle—is suffering from overwork. A large number of traffic cops around Washington are reported to be in the same fix. The barkeepers haven't sent in their casualty list yet.

One of the big circuses is certainly overlooking a gorgeous chance. Think of the sensation—alone in a steel-barred arena—Clyde Beatty with Zion-check.

Black Masked Bigots

INTO a sour soup-stock of religious and racial hatred, stir a mess of high-sounding, titles, blood-curdling oaths and foolish regalia, and you've got a mixture with an irresistible appeal to parties whose average hat size is six and an eighth and whose souls are aslosh in the bilge-water of bigotry. Presently they're adding miscellaneous murder to their mummery, as in Michigan, where sundry gallant heroes seem about due to suffer prolonged attacks of short-haired paleness, which is a disease brought on by wearing a close hair-cut behind some high stone walls.

They say such organized intolerance-epidemics come in waves, but did you ever notice that we never have any of these waves when America is at war? Then nobody objects to putting Catholics or Jews or negroes in the firing line. Nobody questions their patriotism or their fitness to defend the nation's flag, and, after awhile, peace comes, and all of a sudden a lot of folks discover that those of certain creeds and a certain color are unworthy to be classed as citizens or even as human beings.

RECENTLY in outlining the political high spots scheduled for the next four weeks, the writer failed to mention the Liberty League.

The Liberty League will not hold a convention, but will have tea on the Du Pont lawn. There may be speeches and perhaps a snappy prayer by the rector of the Church of SS. Midas and Croesus, but Al Smith will positively not speak, having already learned the bitter lesson that a fellow can pick an awfully bad spot to make an awfully good speech in.

And as for trying to keep a brown derby and a silk topper alternately bouncing off a single dome—well, in the future, I predict, he'll leave that sort of thing to professional jugglers. Even so, Al Smith is better qualified than some for wearing two hats at once, having at least twice as many brains as you'd find under the average politician's headpiece.

Sacrifices to Science.

I LOVE dogs and admire them for traits which so many human beings lack. So, because some of us joined a movement to save impounded dogs from possible mutilation and torture at the hands of unauthorized agencies and guarantee for them a swift merciful death a large number of folks seem to think we're vivisectionists.

For one, I'm against weird experiment upon dumb brutes in the often abused name of science. When I read that some gifted exhibitionist swapped the vital organs of a pelican and a hound pup, so that the pelican went out in the back yard and barked himself to death at the moon and the pup choked trying to carry half a bushel of fish in his lower jaw, I fail to see where the cause of medicine has been advanced. But since the war on disease demands the sacrifice of certain creatures that mankind may be benefited, I'd rather that every white rat in America should have the bubonic plague twice than that my grandbabies should have it once.

Bedspreads Welcome Delicate Lilac Motif

PATTERN 7-152

Dark and light florals, tied with a flourish into the loveliest of floral sprays, is far and away the nicest—and easiest—flowery touch one can give a bedroom. Even an amateur will find the large spray easy to embroider on a bedspread with four smaller sprays on the bolster, or scarf ends. The flowers are entirely formed of lazy-daisy stitch and French knots, the leaves of blanket stitch—the rest is in outline. With cotton or rayon floss the designs are seemingly done in no time, in shades of lilac, orchid, or palest yellow.

Pattern 1152 comes to you with a transfer pattern of a motif 18 by 21 inches and two reverse motifs 4 by 5 1/4 inches. Color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches needed; material requirements.

SYNOPSIS

Bryn (James Brynildson III), a tall, blond young man of wealth, and his cousin, Tubby Forbes, are discussing Bryn's coming marriage. Tubby believes it a scheme to get Bryn's wealth from him. Should the girl, Deborah, whom Bryn had met at the office of his attorney, Ted Holworthy, marry Stuart Graham before her twenty-first birthday, she will inherit a vast fortune from her grandfather, Stuart had greatly displeased Deborah, who refuses to marry him. Bryn, posing as an unemployed engineer, offers to marry Deborah, as Stuart, for $50,000, they not to live as man and wife. Twenty-three years previous, Anne Larned had eloped with an adventurer on the day set for her wedding to Courtney Graham. Two days after the birth of her daughter, Anne died. Shortly after, the father died. The Larneds, grandparents, took the child with them to Oregon where, without child companions, Deborah grew up. To safeguard her from some fortune hunter, her grandfather had arranged for her to marry Stuart, son of Courtney Graham, when of age, believing the alliance would be a happy one. When Deborah was fifteen, her grandfather died. Securities had been set aside to keep the family, but a serious crash left scarcely enough for them to live on. This was unknown to Deborah's grandmother, an invalid, Gary, a servant, managing the finances. At twenty, the thought of marriage greatly frightened Deborah. It had been known that Deborah meet Stuart in London, where they were to be married, and Bryn await Deborah in a room in Frisco. Over a period of one week the groom is to prove he is no fortune hunter and can make Deborah happy to the satisfaction of her grandmother. Otherwise the fortune is to go to charity. The will is somewhat ambiguous as to whom Deborah is to marry. The girl arrives with Holworthy. Tubby is surprised to find her charming and sweet. The wedding over, the couple arrives at the home of Deborah's grandmother. The grandmother and Bryn, who she believes to be Stuart, take to one another.

Grandmother was gazing at him again as if she could scarcely take her eyes away. It was unfortunate that he meant so much to her if Grandmother approved of him too highly. It might make it difficult, at the end of the year, to explain why Deborah would be happier without him. And Grandmother in the meantime might think . . . she might expect . . . Deborah moved uneasily.

"Dear boy," Grandmother was saying, "I cannot see that there is the least resemblance between you and your father. You are so much taller, your eyes are so much more . . . perceptive, I mean athletic looking. But perhaps I shouldn't have expected you to look like the Grahams. My husband died years ago, after he had been blind for some time, that you looked very much like your mother's people."

"Who?" the man murmured. "A number of people have mentioned it. I never could see it myself."

"And I cannot see it," Grandmother said decidedly. "Your mother's people were very dark. Why, her two brothers were quite swarthy, and I never thought of her as being in the least fair, or clear-skinned. I never could understand . . ." Grandmother said, and stopped. "But of course," she went on hastily, appalled at what she had almost said, "she was a very fine woman, my dear Stuart."

"Of course you did. Although you would scarcely remember her, I think."

"He doesn't remember her at all," Deborah said quickly. "She died when he was only three, Grandmother. He couldn't possibly remember her."

The man looked across the table. His eyes were twinkling, amused. Deborah looked back at him, coolly.

"It wasn't going to be exactly easy to carry off this situation. But no matter how difficult it might be it was better than marrying Stuart Graham. Nothing was better than marrying Stuart Graham. Deborah shut her eyes for a moment as she remembered that other face, dark and angry and sneering. There had been very little dissembling on Stuart Graham's part, even to Mr. Holworthy's presence. Apparently it hadn't seemed necessary to pretend gentleness and courtesy for the few necessary hours. It had been perfectly obvious that she had dreamed for a moment that she would refuse to marry him, and go through with the horrible marriage. When she did summon up the courage, after two hours of listening to his talk with Mr. Holworthy, she heard herself saying in a queer little voice that she could never marry him no matter what happened, and had been terrible. He had called her childish, ignorant, insane.

Grandmother wouldn't have believed Deborah had believed it. If she had been told. It would have killed her to bring Stuart Graham here and see him as he was. She and her father had told themselves for that in a miserably unhappy one star would always shine as as the sun; no matter what happened, the Grahams were gentlemen.

Perhaps they were, by birth and tradition, but they didn't always act as gentlemen in books acted. Gary had guessed what might happen. He hadn't been so sure of the Grahams after all. Deborah remembered his words as he had helped her into the rickety wagon down at their neighbor's farm, when he was hurrying her off so that he could go back to Grandmother, alone on the mountain. He had tucked the dust-cover around her and stepped back, and then, suddenly, he had come up close, his old face worn and troubled, and he had said, "If you don't like him, Miss Deborah, don't you have anything to do with him. We'll get along some way. If you don't like his looks, don't you do it. We'll just look around for another way."

This was the other way. The tall young man at the head of the table, willing to sell his gentlemanly appearance, his good manners, his smiles, for a year—for fifty thousand dollars.

Of course, since one must be fair and just, he had not been considering his own opportunities there in Mr. Holworthy's office, not just at first. After Deborah had stood up and told Stuart in that strange voice that she couldn't possibly marry him, after she had repeated it again and again and made him see that she meant it, he had been in a wild rage. It was then that he had said such horrible things to her. His words had come out in such a torrent that Mr. Holworthy couldn't stop them. After a moment Deborah had run away, into an outer office, anywhere to escape from Stuart Graham, of course, so loud-voiced, so thick-lipped and bold. But Stuart had followed her. Stuart was a bully. He was still talking to her, pushing himself directly between her and the door, between her and freedom, when this quiet young man with the steady gray eyes had risen from a chair and faced him. He stopped his loud talking and began to mutter. But Bryn hadn't moved, except that his arm came straight up, and his fist hit Stuart under the chin with a terrific crash, and Stuart had crumpled to the floor.

"Deborah, my darling, what is the matter?" Grandmother said suddenly. "You are quite pale!"

"Nothing, Grandmother," Deborah answered, and managed a smile.

"It's rather a long trip up from San Francisco when you're not accustomed to motoring," the man said. "And it's very hot in the Sacramento valley in June."

"I am sure it must have been trying," Grandmother said, still looking at her tenderly. There was something new and solicitous in her expression.

"Now that our greatest problem is solved, surely we can make a real change in our way of living."

"What do you mean?" Deborah asked quickly.

"Oh, so many things, dear," Grandmother leaned forward. "We must furnish ourselves up, for one thing. We are becoming quite careless as to our ways of living. I've been feeling guilty about it for a long time, but I've been so worried about Deborah that nothing else seemed of any particular importance. But now I feel," she finished briskly, "that we must have two or three extra servants at once, have the grounds put in order, have the electric plant repaired . . ."

"But—" Deborah said faintly, and stopped.

"But what, my darling? Would you not like to see the house filled with young company, with music, with life? To have a host of pretty new clothes?"

"We don't know anyone to fill the house with," Deborah protested miserably.

"Stuart does," Grandmother said with confidence. "He told me only a few moments ago that he had a great many friends in San Francisco."

"Grandmother . . ."

She smiled. "Now, Deborah, of course we should not ask anyone for some time, my dear. You and Stuart must have a month or two of your own, first. But during that time the house and grounds can be taken care of; they have been neglected so long it will be quite an undertaking. Since your grandfather wished that we should spend a year here after your marriage, I think we must try and make it a happy year, and in it prepare you as best we can to mingle in society when we emerge at last from our retreat."

"I never want to go away from here," Deborah cried, "never, never!"

"Why, Deborah?" Grandmother said in surprise. "Stuart, the dear child is quite overwrought. Of course you will go away from here, my dear, you and Stuart. The whole world is before you. Am I not right, Stuart? You would not be satisfied to spend all your life here?"

He hesitated, but only for a fraction of a second. Then, "I'm not at all sure that I shouldn't be, if Deborah were to be here," he said.

Deborah jumped from her chair. Her eyes flashed. "Was that necessary?" she asked him bitterly.

Grandmother stood up too, a slight small figure in her gray. "What do you mean?" she asked in a still cold voice.

"Oh!" Deborah began, and stopped. "Nothing," she said slowly. "I am . . . overwrought, Grandmother. I think I will go and rest for a little."

"Of course, dear," she answered, relieved. "Of course, I understand. Go along, then . . . and your things are in the silver rooms in the south wing. The silver rooms?" Deborah repeated involuntarily she started eyes fell to the man's and gray and violet clung together. Deborah's cheeks began to burn. She looked away.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

One Big Shot Convicted
The Many Laugh
Roman Triumph, New Style
Storms, Floods, Twisters

The kind of "justice" supposed to terrify a crime in this country is very amusing justice: confined to the national government.

Murderers, kidnapers and other racketeers are jailed, not for their crimes against society, but for failure to pay income tax. The felon is jailed for failure to divide his criminal earnings with his government.

A change from this program is due to Special Prosecutor Dewey, who, before Supreme Court Justice McCook, in New York city, has convicted a "topnotch racketeer," as Mr. Dewey calls him—Charles ("Lucky") Luciano. He and eight vice-ring associates are convicted on 62 counts, that may entail prison sentences of 1,240 years for "Lucky" and each associate.

This is an actual conviction for crime, not for tax dodging.

In this world, many laugh and a few do things. Fulton said he would run a boat up the Hudson river by steam; crowds gathered to laugh.

When it was suggested early in this century that men would soon fly, successfully, millions laughed.

Had it been suggested that an army officer would cross the continent "flying blind" in a hooded cabin, seeing nothing, guided by a scientific "radio beam," the laughs would have been louder; but that is what Major Eaker, of the army air corps, has just done. If you should say now that giant ships will fly around this earth, up in the stratosphere, above clouds and storms, carrying thousands of passengers, dropping them at their various destinations in smaller ships, "around the world in 48 hours or less," there would be more laughter but it would be foolish laughter. What men can imagine they can do, and more.

General Badoglio, who was sent by Mussolini to take over Ethiopia, and did so, celebrated his triumph in Rome, Mussolini and the Italian king, now emperor of Ethiopia, assisting.

The triumphant general, named viceroy of Ethiopia by Mussolini, who surprised the world with the swiftness of his conquest, led his troops, burned by the tropical sun, under the victory arch of Constantine to the tomb of the unknown soldier of the war.

"Storms kill nine in Oklahoma and Kansas; tornadoes, floods and lightning cause havoc," so runs the headline, and so other headlines have been running for months past. Hall ruins crops; lightning bolts kill three; "twisters," those powerful, revolving windstorms, lift up and knock down little houses.

The sultan of Sulu is dead on the island of Jolo, now only sultan in name. Once, as spiritual and temporal head, he ruled all the Mohammedans of the Sulu archipelago.

The death of this former ruler, Jamalul Kiram, recalls an interesting incident following the Spanish war. Jamalul, good Mohammedan, did not think he should deal with this nation, on account of its religion. He was soothed by an official statement that the United States had no official religion whatever.

The Black Legion, latest secret murder organization, tells candidates: "You cannot join unless you are a native-born, white, Protestant gentile; willing to proceed against negroes, Catholics and Jews." To "proceed against" means to murder.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, a Protestant organization, says it is shameful for the Black Legion to use the word "Protestant," and blasphemous to use the name "God Almighty."

Sir Samuel Hoare had to leave the British cabinet because he opposed the foolishness of sending a great British fleet into the Mediterranean to protect Haile Selassie, not protecting him in the least.

Now, Sir Samuel Hoare is back in the British cabinet, "the king pleased to appoint him." This means, probably, that the futile League of Nations "sanctions" effort to coerce Mussolini will be dropped. Many things are easier than coercing Mussolini.

Why do Americans swallow eagerly anything in the way of foreign-made goods, especially if they come from the friendly British islands?

British merchants advertise proudly "Made in Great Britain." Every Englishman seems proud if they can advertise "Made in England" or "Made in France." Perhaps our goods are inferior but every American makes his money here—why not back our own people?

More killing, bombing, shooting in Palestine, Arabs refusing to discontinue strikes and killings, even at the request of their own leaders.

A Collection of Unusual Facts

A recent survey of some 8,000 dahlia names indicates that a man's chance of having a new flower named after him is about half as good as a woman's. And a woman is about six times more likely to be so honored if she is married.

More than 30,000,000 tin cans are used in the United States each year. Farm crops in every can.

There is no truth in the old belief that cucumbers contain a poisonous juice which can be counteracted by soaking them in salt water. The soaking merely wilts and toughens them.

Soviet Russia is reported to have more than 1,000 scientists working on problems of plant improvement.

If a meager dozen of plants ceased to grow in America, our commercial beekeepers would have to go out of business. Most flowers yield little or no nectar, from which bees make honey. About three fourths of the supply is furnished by the clovers.

There is no foundation for the notion that sour cream contains more butterfat than sweet cream. The fact is that only butter of inferior quality can be made from it.—Country Home Magazine.

The Ladies Are Given a Big Hand

Sport is competition, and competition means the clash not merely of athletes but of temperaments. When two highly strung athletes get in contact with each other, sparks often fly.

I have seldom seen an unsporned act performed by a woman in big-time competition. You may say that's because they haven't been at it as long as the men. Maybe so. But the fact remains: the girls seem to be better balanced. Up to the present, anyhow, feminine participation in athletics hasn't been motivated entirely by the desire for glory. They appear to be playing for the sport.—John R. Tunis in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

GUM-DIPPED TIRES WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

On May 30th, Louis Meyer broke the track record, at 109 miles per hour, driving the entire race without tire trouble of any kind. He is the only driver ever to win the race three times, and has always used Firestone Tires. No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.

Profit by the experience of famous drivers. See your nearest Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer, and have your car equipped today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

THE New Firestone STANDARD

CAUSE AND EFFECT

A fat man bumped into a rather lean gentleman.

"From the look of you," he said beligerently, "there must have been a cause."

"And from the look of you," replied the lean agent, "you're the guy who caused it!"

Never had fault because a newspaper fails to give every scrap of news so long as you take no pains to give the paper any information. The average newspaper here is no a bunch of mind readers or mediums. They all get the news the same way a dentist extracts a tooth—by digging and pulling.—Dewey County Leader.

Henry—I know a woman who lived to the age of 90 without learning to read and write. That she met a man who made a school of her in two years.

Mr. Crossleigh—Why did you have to invite that author of wild animal stories here so early in the morning? Mr. Crossleigh—I thought he might get an inspiration if he could see you when breakfast was a little late or the toast was burned.

Signs—Golden wedding? Why, man, you're not even married.

Signs—No, but I will be next week. I am engaged to Miss Goldrock.
