AAA Farmers Hold Session, Discuss Cotton

By J. E. Lynch, Secretary
The regular monthly meeting of the triple A farmers association was held at the McLean theatre building Wednesday of this week with some 125 farmers present. The principal subjects discussed were pertaining to the cotton school, the bind weed, and seed for planting. Considerable talk was had regarding the planting of one variety of cotton seed.

The following committee was appointed to meet with the county commissioners on March 11 in regard to methods of control of the bind weed: T. H. Andrews, R. S. Jordan, W. A. Back, Ed Peirce, J. M. Zeigler. Chairman J. S. Howard made a very interesting talk regarding a previous meeting held at Pampa. Several farmers listed excess planting seed for sale.

The following committee was appointed to arrange a program for the next meeting to be held March 26 at 2:30 p. m.: W. D. Howard and Byrd Gull.

Why Is It?

SATURDAY LAST DAY CORN-HOG CONTRACTS

Saturday, March 2nd, will be the last day on which application for 1935 corn-hog reduction contracts may be signed, according to information received from the state office by County Agent Ralph R. Thomas. Producers wishing to sign these contracts may call at the county agent's office at Pampa any time before the above date, or see Assistant Agent Clyde Carruth at the American National Bank at McLean, Saturday afternoon.

Under this program cooperators are required to reduce their hogs 10% below the average number raised in 1932 and 1933, and the corn may be reduced from 10 to 30% for which benefit payments of 35c per bushel will be made for appraised yield of farm.

Producers will be required to raise in 1935 25% of their hog base and 25% of their corn base, unless they are prevented from doing so for some reason other than that they are reeling from the corn and hog business.

Miss Simmons and Mr. Greer also received body bruises and cuts on the face.

Miss Newman's injuries are not serious, and she is expected to return to her school room within a short time.

Finley, followed by a story, "The Cherry Tree and the Hatchet; What Became of It?" by Mrs. T. A. Massay. A vocal solo by Mrs. C. O. Greene was enjoyed, after which Mrs. Chas. E. EMBROIDERY CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Alva Alexander was hostess to the Embroidery Club last Wednesday afternoon. The members spent a profitable two hours in hand work and conversation.

Lovely refreshments were served to Mesdames C. O. Greene, Donald Beall, C. A. Cryer, Karl Estes, D. C. Carpenter, Allen Wilson, Harold Rippey, S. D. Shelburne, Wilson Boyd, Thurman Adkins, Wiggs, T. J. Coffey, Ercy Cubine, C. S. Doolen, H. W. Brooks.

The McLean Garden Club is now a reality, after an organization meeting held at the high school building Monday evening.

Mrs. W. A. Breining, Texas Centennial chairman for McLean, opened the meeting, and the nominating committee's report was adopted, electing the following officers: president, T. A. Landers; vice president and chairman of the program committee, Mrs. A. A. Tampke; secretary, Mrs. John W. Butler; corresponding secretary, Mrs. V. W. Boyd; treasurer, Mrs. Geo. Colebank; parliamentarian, M. C. Davis; historian, Mrs. W. E. Bogan.

In the absence of the chairman of the nominating committee, Boyd Meador read the report.

It was voted to hold regular meetings once a month, day to be selected later.

Full discussion was had on various beautification problems, and it was decided to cooperate with the various centennial committees and the Lions Club's better yards and gardens contest. A committee was appointed to take charge of entries and planting information, consisting of Mesdames Robt. C. Davidson, J. B. Hembree, Travis Stokes, D. A. Davis, C. B. Batson and W. E. Bogan.

The stray dog nuisance was mentioned, and a motion adopted to ask the city council to see that the dog license law is strictly enforced. Several speakers spoke of the damage done yards and gardens by dogs.

Mrs. W. L. Campbell, chairman of the centennial parks committee, reported plans being drafted for plantings in the city park, and a motion carried to request the city council to consider plans for a federal relief project in beautifying the park. This proposition was spoken to by Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Breining, Mrs. Tampke, M. C. Davis and Boyd Meador.

The program chairman and parliamentarian were asked to draft constitution and by-laws for submission to the club.

Depredations by loose stock and chickens came in for discussion, several giving specific instances of plantings ruined in past years.

A new garden hose fertilizing attachment and a new knapsack sprayer were shown and demonstrated by the president.

J. H. Bodine earned the thanks of the club for having the building nice and warm despite the bitter cold outside.

Future programs and social affairs were discussed, and the thought was advanced that no beautification program can be successful without the beautification of individual homes. "Pride makes us keep up the front yard, but it takes love for gardening to take the cans and rubbish out of the back yard," said one speaker.

It was suggested that McLean adopt a tree for street planting, but this was left to a future meeting. However, several present expressed themselves as favoring the thornless honey locust, from the standpoint of growth, proper shade for lawns, and freedom from disease.

Following adjournment, several groups spent some time in informal discussion.

There will be no dues collected by the club and every person interested is invited to become a member and take part in the discussions.

Gardeners have little use for stray dogs, as indicated by the discussion at the garden club meeting Monday evening. Stray dogs not only ruin gardens and are a source of danger from rabies, but they carry other diseases and vermin that are dangerous to the health of other animals and people. Very little can be said for stray dogs and it is hoped that the dog license law can be strictly enforced in McLean this year.

One large mail order house has just shipped 306 catalogs of catalogs to prospective customers in every part of the country. The catalogs weigh 9,000 tons and will reach every post office in the country. Local merchants say that they can tell when the shipment reaches McLean, by the loss of trade for several weeks.

Mail order houses know the value of advertising, and they use the columns of the newspapers as well as direct mail.

Now we have the spectacle of the state anti-prohibition forces changing their name and calling themselves temperance advocates, in their efforts for repeal of the state prohibition law.

It should be hard to get anyone to believe the old promises that were made when the national prohibition act was repealed, as not one of them has been fulfilled. On the other hand all conditions have been made worse, just as the prohibition forces predicted.

Mrs. Galmer and Mrs. Jack Cantrell of Wheeler visited in McLean one day last week.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Folks, I've been checking up on you all in regard to your "jay parking" and I found that there were only 19 parking places ruined last Saturday evening instead of 20 the Saturday before. During the week days when there are a larger percentage of town cars on the street I find that more cars are parked correctly than on Saturdays, which shows that you country folks are below par on your parking. However, in front of our churches Sunday I found a decided improvement in parking. There was only one glaring violation Sunday and that was down at the Baptist church. Some oldco untry boy drove in and just "parked" and he happened to angle his car right opposite to the other cars, and by careful measurements I found that he had two extra parking places taken up which didn't look so good.

And now I want to say a few words more about our reckless driving. Since last mentioning reckless driving in this column we have had three or four accidents that just nearly happened to be serious, and the parties involved were some of our very very finest folks. I'm not saying who was to blame and I hope none of you all will get sore at me or take exceptions; still the results speak for themselves and I am hoping that so long as we have to have car accidents they will continue to be as "lucky" as they have in the past, but honestly, folks, it sure does worry me to think about how awful it would have been if those accidents had been just a little bit worse than they really were. So please, folks, just listen to me just once and be more careful and let's not be so unfortunate as to lose some of you good people in automobile accidents like they are doing in lots of other places.

Sunday evening if you all remember correctly, was an awfully bad, dusty evening, and what do you suppose happened right here in the city limits on the highway? There were at least fifty cars passed my house right here in the city limits with that dust so thick you could not see half a block away, going at from sixty to seventy miles an hour, and there was plenty of traffic going and coming. I can't understand what in the world anybody would be thinking about for driving so fast under such unfavorable conditions. It looks to me like some of you all are just simply crazy, and I want to know what in the world we are going to do about it. Just as sure as I am living, such driving is going to cause an awful accident some of these days. But don't blame me, folks, because I am warning you in plenty of time.

And now folks, here is another problem I want to know about. And that is birth control. I see where in Dallas, 64% of the births the past year were among folks that are on the relief rolls, which goes to prove that you rich and prosperous folks are falling down on the job, and the worst part of it is you are burning the candle at both ends. There are fewer and fewer babies being born to you rich and prosperous folks and more and more of you rich and prosperous folks are killing each other in automobile accidents, and if something is not done right away this country will be entirely populated by folks that are on the relief rolls. And just look at the thousands and thousands of our well-to-do men that are toppling over every day with heart failures; men that are in their fifties and sixties. Just stop and think what the consequences will be if we don't do something to stop it. My suggestion is that you rich and prosperous folks had better swap over with us relief rollers so's to even the thing up a bit. If you don't this country sure is going to go "hay wire." Let's go back to the depression days and have a few financial failures and less heart failures, a few more babies and not so many automobile accidents if we are to balance his birth control budget.

Mrs. Pete Fulbright, Mrs. E. O. Dennis and Mrs. Cloyce Chambers visited relatives and friends in Dodsonville and Hollis, Okla., last Thursday.

Mrs. Dewey Wood and nephew, Durwood Jones, visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, at Albreed one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lander visited relatives at Alva, Okla., last week end.

B. G. Brown and sister, Mrs. Guy Peters, of Clovis, N. M., were visitors in McLean over the week end.

Miss Lillie Mae Rogers and mother, Mrs. Bessie Rogers, of Pampa were in McLean last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Leola Saunders visited friends and relatives in Amarillo, Sunday.

OPPORTUNITIES

By A. T. Wilson

It has been well said that America is a land of opportunities, and the fact that so many people come from nations where opportunities are few and far between, and where it is next to impossible to be born poor and yet achieve financial success, is prima facie and bonafide evidence that this is a land of opportunities. When the Pilgrims came to America they came not for the express purpose of getting gloriously rich, but that they might have the opportunity of serving God according to the dictates of their own conscience, and later this was put in one of the articles of the constitution of the United States, but the modern revised version reads God or the devil, as most of the people serve the devil and there would be no honor in serving God if the opportunity of serving the devil was denied to man and he was left an unfree moral agent. After reading a history of the Spanish inquisition you will appreciate the religious privileges and opportunities guaranteed in the constitution.

If the American people were not allowed the freedom of speech and freedom of the press they would accumulate so much hot air and gas that they would be blown to atoms and the cause for which the Pilgrims came to America would be lost.

I just now concluded a conversation with a man who would deny me the right or opportunity to believe that the earth is round and moves in place of the sun moving, if he could do so, because Joshua did not know it and James spoke of the four corners of the earth. Deliver me from such blind obedience and such grand and sublime ignorance. I would put him down as the eighth wonder of the world and place him with the hardshell who denies a man the right and opportunity of being a free moral agent, for the same blind reason.

Not only does our country extend to its people the greatest mental opportunities, but also the great physical and financial opportunities and the fact that we lead the world in athletics and finances bears me out in that statement. We generally have the champion pugilist and the champion poor boy who has, by taking his opportunities as they came, amassed his fortune of millions and occasionally a billion, while some of us who had the same opportunities have gone over the hill to the poor house or to the relief rolls, and then we use as much energy trying to invent and tell a hard luck story as it would take to grasp an opportunity and come out the big end of life's horn. You have seen big able bodied able minded men putting up a hard luck tale while blind, lame and otherwise handicapped men and widow women were prospering and doing well, and makes me think of a song an old yesteryear friend of mine used to sing, entitled, "Jasper Johnson, shame on you." Uncle Sam is the most generous as well as the richest old uncle on the face of the globe and has allowed his people to go and slice off from a quarter section to four whole sections of the public domain, and yet thousands and millions have stayed in their downy nests and held their mouths wide open for a bug or worm every time they hear the flutter of the taxpayers wings. After all the opportunities we have had, it looks like we should use the George Washington modus operandi and help the government instead of plucking the government at

F. F. A. BOYS ATTEND CONTEST

Many of the McLean agriculture students and ex-students helped conduct a very good livestock contest at the Shamrock stock show last Saturday. Sixty boys from Texas and Oklahoma competed. The Weatherford, Okla., team won in the contest. The McLean team judged for practice and made a better record than any other Texas team present.

On March 2 the McLean team will meet strong competition at Tulla in dairy and livestock judging, and they will be in Amarillo for a contest on March 4.

Twenty of the F. F. A. jackets, which are very attractive, have been received.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff, Pastor First Baptist Church

PETER UNMASKS FALSEHOOD AND HYPOCRISY

Lesson text, Acts 5:1-6; 8:18-24. Golden text, Ephesians 4:25. "Wherefore, putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor: for we are members one of another."

The scriptures selected for this week's lesson are two of the outstanding examples of hypocrisy recorded in the New Testament. The thing that brought the instance of the first one about was the fact that the new-found faith in Jesus had so opened the hearts of the new Christians of Jerusalem that the wealthy sold their possessions, or part of them, and brought the money to the disciples to be distributed among the poor and less fortunate. We find in the latter part of the fourth chapter of Acts that this was taking place, and in the fifth chapter that it was not a compulsory thing. Those desiring to help were not required to sell all that they had, or any of it. What they did was of their own free will, brought about by the new-found love for the Master and Lord of their lives.

The objectionable thing in the case of Ananias and Sapphira was that they wished to have the glory that came with sacrifice without actually feeling the sting of poverty, need or discomfort. They sold their property, part, or all of it. Then, securely secreting enough to insure their personal comforts through the coming years, they brought the remainder to the disciples, representing it to be all of their possessions. This was misrepresentation, a falsehood. There was no excuse for it. The amount they had to give would have been just as welcome with the truth attached as with a lie for a label. Of course, Peter would have known no difference had not the Spirit prompted him. They were lying to the Spirit of God, not to the disciples.

The second instance was of a magician, Simon Magus. He had been attracted by the power of Phillip's preaching. When Peter and John came and he saw the wonderful work of miracles, he was determined to buy that power. He was not interested in God or in Jesus or what He stood for. He was interested in furthering his own business. He no doubt would have paid a good price for the power of the disciples—it would have meant much to him. And no doubt he was more than surprised when he made his offer to find Peter turning on him almost with the ferocity of a raging lion to put him in his proper place. He had expected to parly about the price, of course, but to be completely refused—never. The unkind words of Peter had some effect upon him, but whether he was ever brought to true conviction of his sins, and faithful repentance or not, we do not know.

Hypocrisy in religion—is it possible that there can be such a thing? Yes, even oft times among true Christians hypocrisy is to be found. It is to be found in every church, even sometimes in the ministry. Men who just can't get themselves out of the way enough to place Christ first in their lives are just to that extent hypocritical. There are two kinds of hypocrites. One kind in which possibly most all of us have some part is the kind where a man ignorantly fails to live up to the principles of the Master. Ignorance does not excuse a man. The Book will enlighten him. The difficulty with most of us is that we are not willing to change our ways of thinking and doing to conform with the Book. Therefore, as we read, we read blindly, failing to note many of the Lord's definite commandments. It is peculiar how the world can see the inconsistencies of our living while we either cannot, or are not willing to see them.

The other kind of hypocrite is the man who knowingly and wilfully does not live up to the teachings of the Master. There may be some who hold membership in churches as a matter of business advancement; there may be some who attend for that purpose. But in these days when such a large percentage of the population has relegated the church to the realm of unnecessary institutions, especially in the business world, this second class of hypocrite seems certainly an unnecessary evil. There may be a few who go to church, who give, and who take part in the work for reputation's sake, but most of these have long since lost that reputation.

The precaution the followers of Christ need to take today is against the first class. Many of them are ignorant because they have become church members without any true saving knowledge of Christ. That kind of ignorance makes a hypocrite from the beginning. A man under such circumstances could never be anything else. Others are ignorant because all they want out of religion is a writ of safe transportation through the judgment day. Others are simply not willing to let Christ have all the "sale price" of their lives. They follow in the steps of Ananias. If a man claims to love Christ and his daily living does not prove it to the world, to that extent of variance he is a hypocrite. The disciples had no trouble letting the world know that they loved their Master—why should we?

WHEN YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE

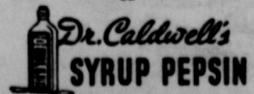

... use a spoon

It isn't what brand of laxative you take that's so important—it's the form. A liquid laxative can be taken in any required amount. If only a little is needed, you need never take a bit too much.

Doctors favor the easily measured liquid laxatives. Instead of any form that does not encourage variation from the fixed dose. A fixed dose may be an overdose for you—or your child.

Always remember this one thing about constipation: the secret of any real relief is reduced dosage.

Give the bowels only as much help as may be needed, and less help as the need grows less. You will find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin an excellent aid in regulating the bowels. It contains senna and cascara (natural laxatives) and it will clear-up any bilious, sluggish condition without upset. Delightful taste, and pleasant action. Your druggist has it.

1. Cookies will be much lighter if the dough is rolled on a canvas cloth (to avoid too great an absorption of flour) rather than a board?
2. One-fifth more butter should be used when substituting butter in a recipe calling for lard, and one-fifth less lard in one calling for butter?
3. Butter and margarine have less shortening power than lard and veg-

Pinhead's Private Arithmetic

THE STORY

Mary Brown, daughter of David Brown, self-made multi-millionaire, obsessed with the idea that her personality is obscured by the fact that she is the child of the "rich David Brown," determines to make her own life, discarding her father's wealth and her own. She has a million dollars, legacy from her mother, which she insists her father invest in the "wildest dream" imaginable, and about which she must know nothing. She is a graduate of a college of engineering. Her father, secretly admiring her courage, humors her.

As "M" Brown, Mary secures a job on the Paradise Valley project near the village of Foggy Gulch. After a period of what seems to be the pinnacle of success, the "wild dream" peters out, and workers are notified that all activities must be suspended. Craig urges Mary to marry him at once, but she refuses, with visions of what he would do when he learned that she was the daughter of the "rich David Brown."

Craig offers Mary a job as telephone operator, but she gives it up in favor of a man with a family, leaving a note for Craig. A month passes, and no word comes from him. She is befriended by the girl at the hotel desk.

They were walking down the lobby, side by side. "If you've the sense you look as if you had," said the girl. "You'll lunch with me today, and take me out sometime when you're on your feet, as you're going to be."

"You win," said Mary, and they made their way to a cafeteria.

"I'll fill your tray," said the girl whose name, Mary had learned, was Edna Dale, Mrs. Edna Dale. "I know a lot more than you do about how big a surprise the stomach can stand up under."

"And I never dreamed," Mary said a few minutes later, "that a mere bowl of soup could make a stomach feel as if it had died and gone to heaven. But don't be feeling sorry for me. I needn't have been hungry. And—I'd not have let myself starve."

"You have friends," Mrs. Dale stated. "I've noticed them at the hotel."

"Mr. and Mrs. Stark," Mary assented. "They've insisted that I stay with them until I find a job. But—the old determination showed in her eyes—I wanted to stand on my own. You see, my slogan happens to be, No quarter."

"Mr. Stark hasn't been able to point you to anything?"

Again Mary's cynical smile. "He has let me know of several openings. But—someone else always got them first." She didn't add that she had stood aside to let someone else get them first, that the old obsession which had prevented her from taking work in Paradise Valley had followed her here, like a crime she had committed from which she never would get away.

"What's your line?" Edna Dale was asking.

"I'm a civil engineer. But I'd wash dishes, or sell flowers on a corner."

"See here. How would you like to come out with me for a time?"

Tears rushed to Mary's eyes. Kindness was so overpowering, after weeks of having it hammered into her that she was just another person looking for a job. "You're not called upon to adopt me, you know, Mrs. Dale."

"I know. And I'm not being entirely unselfish. I have an apartment in what used to be a swell house. It's not bad. We—might hit it off together. If you wouldn't mind sleeping on a cot in the living room—or a little boy about six—"

"I'd love a little boy about six," Mary said chokily. "I'll jump at a chance to come—and to stay, if I can find something to do to hold up my end."

So it came about that Mary, checking out at the hotel, wrote fits to four disillusioning weeks. "So endeth the first chapter of the thumb-worm melodrama about the innocent girl jilted by the cruel city and her cruel hero," she said wryly to Mrs. Dale as they were about to set out for their quarters. "By the way, when Mr. Stark calls up, give him my new address, and tell him I've taken a temporary job (for at least I shall be your housekeeper) but I am still interested in any opening he may know about."

"Does that message hold good for the slow young man, too?"

"That slow you; man," Mary laughed, "has also been just steady enough to have saved up a sufficient stake so that he can sit pretty and wait for something to turn up. No, you won't need to give Wait-a-Minute, as we called him on the job where we both worked, any message. Here he comes now, to help me move—a veritable Johnny-on-the-spot. I don't know," she added uncertainly, "how I'd have worried through these weeks without Neil."

Neil piloted the two to a taxi, looking a little uncertain as Edna gave the address, and still a little more uncertain as they stopped before the large old house. But a dark plump little boy had dashed joyously from the yard to Edna's arms.

"My Dickie," said Edna.

As she shook hands with the child Mary noticed that he had his mother's vaguely familiar eyes. Then she observed that Edna actually smiled as Neil Goodenough stooped and said, "Climb on, son. I'm the old pack-nurse, and it looks to me as we were about to climb a mountain."

With Dick on his back, and bags and bundles under his arms, Neil followed Edna up the steps through a fog of odors to the third floor, and Mary, bringing up the rear, tried to cheer herself by asking facetiously what sort of wild flowers bloomed in these mountains.

"That's cabbage," giggled Dickie. "And this is onions. And this—oh, boy! Beefsteak! Giddap, pack-horse!"

But there were no odors in Edna Dale's two high-ceilinged rooms. "The closets are large," she told Mary, "and there's a bath down the hall. Now while you're unpacking your bags I'll run out to the store on the corner or some chops."

"If I went out and bought my own chop," ventured Neil, "would I rate an invitation for dinner?"

"Oh, bully! Ask him, mother!" cried the child. "And I'll take him to the store!" And without waiting for the invitation that might or might not have been forthcoming, he dragged his new idol out of the door.

They were back again shortly, not with chops, but with steaks, and with various intriguing bags and boxes.

"Know anything about art, Mary?" demanded Edna over their coffee.

"Nothing to brag about. Why do you ask?"

"I was wondering if you could run bluff enough to get the job my roommate had to give up yesterday. They probably haven't filled her place yet—she was taken so suddenly. If you know her line well enough to make them think—"

"Send them to me!" said Mary, with visions of keeping from flying the white flag. "I really have been around to the museums a little." She did not add, as she was thinking, slyly, "all over the world."

"Well, you girls can plan your attack while I tackle the dishes," Neil drawled. "I'm a thoroughly domesticated man."

Mary watched him, in her eyes that tenderness she never ceased to feel for Wait-a-Minute.

After he had finished his task with the same thoroughness and neatness with which he kept his field book, after he had crawled around on his knees being a big black bear in a bedtime frolic with Dick, after he had taken his departure, Edna gasped, "I never knew men like that existed."

"They don't make many like him," Mary assured her.

The following day Mary accepted a position as clerk in an exclusive art shop, the only thing about it which was not exclusive, she found, being the manager. He was obtuse and intrusive, but Mary still had her way of looking at a person as if he weren't there at all, if need be. And she also had the correct way, the manager found, of meeting the wealthy patrons and an almost unbelievably convincing line about the objects of art.

And in the ensuing days Mary Brown quit listening for a telephone which doesn't ring, and looking for a letter which does not come. Finally, she even went so far as to cease to ask Edna for mail which still might have to the hotel.

No word of a job came from John

Stark, so she clung tenaciously to the one she had. Once a week Neil Goodenough took all three of them out to dinner. One night a week he dined with them. But quite often he picked Dickie up after school for an excursion to the park or the dime stores.

Sometimes this genuine affection of a man for a child—especially for her own child—seemed to soften Edna Dale's hard attitude toward the other sex. At first Mary wondered how any experience could have so embittered a person toward life. As time went on, she did not wonder so much.

One evening Mary dined with the Starks in their comfortable apartment overlooking the civic center. She regaled the couple with the experiences of a civil engineer selling cloisonne. It was not until she was about to leave that John Stark said somewhat cryptically, "I wanted you to come tonight especially, Mary, because I have a job for you. One more in your line than an art shop."

"Really? Tell me where," Mary's dark eyes leaped with excitement.

"At a place called Paradise Valley."

"Oh," The light ran out of her eyes. "Oh," limply. Then she added lifting a face that tried to be gallant, "pass it on to someone else, Mr. Stark."

"No need," studying her closely. "Denny wants all his old force back. All that I can get hold of, he wrote me. That—includes you, Mary. See here, child! Haven't you been silly long enough? Whatever has happened between you and Denis is surely just a misunderstanding. Go back to your old job, and give things a chance to work out."

But Mary, unable to speak, shook her head with finality. Mrs. Stark threw her arms about the girl's shoulder, searching her face with sympathetic and motherly eyes. "It might need only a word, my dear!"

"Mrs. Stark," Mary managed. "It—"

"You're a couple of young idiots!" blustered John Stark. "I've a notion to order you to report at Camp C, just as I did the day you had the impertinence to spring your feminine self upon me demanding a job! That's not a bad idea, M. Brown—"

But his wife silenced him. "After all, John, a girl can't throw herself at a man's head!"

But guiltily wishing that John Stark had thrown her at a man's head, Mary made her escape to a taxi. Denny was sending for his old force—and he was not sending for her!

Next week—Edna Dale's father.

Text: In the midst of a crooked and perverse nation... Philippians 2:15b.

EVIL OF RATIONALISM

Evil is something we have to contend with at all times. It comes into the home, family life, church life, social circles and the political field. It is a plague gnawing at the vitals of our modern civilization; a scorpion with sharp teeth and a powerful tail which deals terrific blows with a venomous sting. It is like heavy smoke rising from the bottomless pit of Satan which obscures the sunlight of truth coming from above.

One of the evils-at-large in this "crooked and perverse nation" of ours is RATIONALISM. When rationalism creeps into the Christian churches Christ is dethroned and the idol of human brains is placed upon the altar and worshiped. With rationalism other idols of "gold, and silver, and stone, and of wood; which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk," are introduced and set up in high places in the perverted human mind. They are: liberalism, fanaticism, and dozens of other "isms."

When Christ is replaced by these in the Christian churches, there can be no progress. The immediate trend is downward to inevitable corruption and ultimate annihilation of body and soul. When Christ is removed from the Christian church, the church is no longer Christian. There are such churches in our nation today.

How did this deplorable condition come about? It is a direct result of the efforts of scatter-brained mortals who vainly tried to harmonize worldly, pagan, materialistic philosophy with the holy teachings of Jesus Christ. Harmonization of evil with good is impossible. Crippled, heathenish world-views cannot be compromised with the truth of the all-wise God. If one is unable to comprehend the deep and mysterious teachings of the Almighty he has no right to tamper and meddle with them and try to revise them to please his unstable erratic mind. One does not have permission to do that. The doctrines of God can be understood to a certain degree, but only by faith. It certainly requires strong faith to understand the more difficult teachings of the Bible. However, the teaching of salvation is very clear and understandable for a child.

Faith with which we may grasp the doctrines of God is given to the children of God by the Holy Spirit. The unbeliever, unregenerate, natural person who cannot reconcile these wonderful teachings with his rational mind pronounces them to be foolish. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he discern them, because they are spiritually discerned." 1 Cor. 2:14

We must accept the Bible teachings as the infallible truth and not try to speculate and harmonize the Word of God with the philosophy of the corrupt prince of darkness and call it "liberal Christianity!"

The rationalists came forward with nothing more than fanatical crack-brain theories and "attempted" explanations of the vain reconciliation of the human with the divine; nothing but so-called materialistic philosophy of this "crooked and perverse nation" which never helped a single soul.

There is no substitute for Christ. Man-made substitutes bring nothing but despair, remorse and spiritual suicide.

This changing world of ours is stock-full of this subtle form of rationalism. It is finding its way into the schools of higher education through textbooks and tainted minds of many instructors. It is spreading so rapidly that it is being taken for granted by many unsuspecting students as the new, saving philosophy of the day. But there is no redeeming feature in it. It leads straight to hell. How, we ask, could it lead to heaven, to the presence of Christ the Lord, when the very Christ is ruthlessly disregarded?

We still need the changeless Christ for our ever changing world. There is salvation in no one else but the eternal Christ our Lord.

Let us hold forth the "word of life" and not the word of despair, the rational, liberal, destructive, materialistic, nerve-wrecking, disparaging, man-made philosophy which gushed forth from the abyss of Satan and is at large in our nation.

Let us trust in the Lord, believe in Him and learn of Him alone, for He is the Truth and the only way to heaven, our final goal and place of eternal refuge.

WAS IT COLD IN McLEAN? LISTEN!

Monday afternoon, just before sundown, a 10 or 11 year old youngster came running up the street, and as he slowed down somewhat to walk with me, he said, "Listen, lady, I'm telling you it is really cold," and several pieces of ice fell out of his mouth on to the sidewalk. He walked a little further and said, "I'm simply freezing to death," and some more ice fell out of his mouth. A half block or so further, he just opened his mouth as if to say something... but instead, out rolled more ice than ever. Well, all this time I had been eyeing him carefully... but this was too much. I said, "Hey there, boy, you must be cold to be able to spit out ice like that." At that he threw back his head and burst into a big laugh... and my, how the ice did fly! He said, "Listen, lady, it really gets cold in McLean... You ain't seen nothing yet." You ask, did I laugh? No, I did not laugh. I did not dare laugh. I shut my mouth so tight I nearly smothered to death before I could get inside to a fire.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

TRAINING THE CHILD'S MIND

A child, in aside from his basic hereditary characteristics, largely the product of his environment. His mentality is to a very great extent moulded by those about him. The veneer of civilization may be thin but it does suffice to cover the Tartar underneath. Some day we'll be high grade stuff all the way through. Some day the child's mind will be developed at birth to such a degree that he will be able to speak soon after he is born. He will not require discipline because he will know the difference between right and wrong. He will have learned from the experience of the centuries that to be good for the sake of being good is the only reason for being good at all, and he will act accordingly.

Incidentally, by "some day" I mean about ten million years from now. That's the measure of my faith in humanity. If one could convert ideas into facts and ideals into actualities, a generation might suffice to make this millennial dream come true.

What to Do in the Meantime

So in the meantime we must cultivate the child's mind and hope that despite disease, war, crime, ignorance, superstition and the other millstones about the neck of humanity there may gradually be evolved a race of men that may be the nucleus of the human race of the future.

The child should be assisted in developing self-control, thus enabling him to bear up under the trying experiences of life stoically and with the kind of attitude that will enable him to overcome opposition and turn a disadvantage into an advantage.

From earliest babyhood the child should be taught to be fearless. Frightening a child, making him afraid of the dark, of bogeymen, and so on, is laying the foundation of future weakness.

The questions asked by a child are the cravings of his mind for knowledge. Always answer those questions as fully as possible. Try to explain his "whys," even though at times they seem unreasonable.

Stimulate the child's curiosity and cultivate his imagination. The child's curiosity is the man's investigation, his imagination the man's dreams and plans.

Teach the child poise and self-assurance. Not to the extent that he becomes bold and precocious, but enough to prevent his becoming backward and self-conscious.

Praise the child sensibly and constructively, not to the point where he knows he's "cute," but enough to encourage him to do better. Never belittle him, especially in the presence of others. An "inferiority complex" thus created has kept many a man from ever attaining success.

Be a companion to your child so that he will bring all his problems to you and not let him bury them in his unconscious mind to mar his future happiness and usefulness.

Straight Thinking

By Cleve Well

The cattlemen, along with many others, has suffered during the last years of this great depression which we have been experiencing. The cattlemen is making a fast recovery. Texas will always have a pride in cattle. It has furnished some of the finest cattle to be found. I am still interested in the production of a better type cow. With modern transportation, we can readily see how we have made the great improvement in the cattle kingdom that has been made.

Sometimes we wonder if we, as Texans, are fully appreciative of the development Texas has made in recent years. The greatest operation in the world is carried on in Texas. In 1930 there were two and one-half million tons of wool produced by this industry which was ninety-nine per cent of the wool produced in the United States and ninety per cent of the wool produced in the world. As its history and historical spots, there is no state or country in the world that furnishes a greater variety of wool. All Texans look with pride to the Alamo and to the San Antonio battle ground, and many other historical places too numerous to mention. But the people of the Panhandle of Texas, and particularly the Kern section, have a great pride in the Mobette where was located Fort Worth. There are two outstanding historical places near this old fort—the people of the Panhandle—Abode Wall and Buffalo Wallow.

The census of 1930 shows that there are almost two and a quarter million Texans of ten years of age and over who were gainfully employed. Employment furnishes a good wholesome, social and political behavior. There are about as many people in Texas engaged in ranching and cattle raising as we find in the next three best occupations. There were in 1930 thirty-six cities in Texas which had a population of greater than ten thousand each.

In 1920 there were eighty-three people out of each thousand in Texas who were unable to read or write, but in 1930 this had been reduced to about sixty-eight persons per thousand; however, in the whole United States the reduction along the line of literacy has been reduced from about fifty to forty persons in a thousand. Texas has increased marvelously along the lines of cultural activities. It is interesting to note in going from Arkansas to El Paso that you will travel through about as many different regions as you would in traveling from North to South in the American Union. Going this distance you will see by lumber camps, oil fields, manufacturing cities, cotton fields, ranches, corn fields, etc. Also, the territory between Amarillo and Galveston shows as many different occupations.

In Amarillo there was begun, about a year ago, what is destined to be one of the greatest days in the calendar. This day was designated by the citizens of Texas, and much comment is going around about Tack and his other-in-law day. Mothers-in-law are the greatest gift man has; however, a man never wants more than one at a time. We have said and written much about these God-given features, in reality all men enjoy and appreciate a mother-in-law.

Cleve Well would like to get the word down on this man D. A. Davis. From his writings, we judge him to be tall, rather stooped, almost bald-headed, not exactly an optimist nor a pessimist—a man who would like to be president of the chamber of commerce, enjoys a good cigar but has to smoke a cob pipe, does little or no work in church work, and can't play golf worth a whoop.

FIT STORAGE FOR CABBAGE

Thirty-two heads of cabbage weighing 120 pounds, were buried in a pit by Mrs. J. C. Browning, of the Merten Home Demonstration Club in Gray county, last October. The pit was four feet square and five feet deep, and the cabbage was pulled up by its roots and placed in the pit head down and root up. Upon these was placed a thick layer of old tomato stems to prevent the dirt from packing around the cabbage. A hole was left at one end to make it easy to reach in and remove a head of cabbage. This making it easy to repack around the remaining heads of cabbage. The rest of the cabbage has just been used and Mrs. Browning states that it was just as crisp and good as though it were just taken from the garden. Placing a valuation only on the cabbage buried in the pit, Mrs. Browning netted a profit of $4.00.

DANCING FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

In the future we will not be so hot for the President's birthday ball affairs that carry with them the alibi that the proceeds will go for the benefit of crippled children. Inquiries concerning the possible entrance of children in the Warm Springs Hospital for treatment prove that the cost is beyond the average man's pocketbook, for room, board and medical attention.
Thousands have been under the impression all along that the millions of dollars raised from the balls were to pay the expenses of patients who were unable, because of a poverty stricken condition, to pay for the service.—Donley County Leader.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

Tale of the Poisoned Dagger

THIRTY years ago a number of men and women were murdered in the suburbs near Shanghai.

It was discovered that most of the victims had been killed by means of a poisoned dagger.

At the same time chapels and churches belonging to the foreign missionary societies were destroyed.

Demands for satisfaction came from state departments in all parts of the world, and as a consequence the Chinese government endeavored to ascertain the culprits and to punish them.

The official placed in charge of the investigation was Foo Wang, who at the time enjoyed the reputation of being the Sherlock Holmes of China.

He was patient, he was resourceful, and he never went after "his man" without getting him.

One of the things he found near the scene of the crimes was a bit of calico stamped with a number of Chinese characters.

He knew that it was a certificate of membership in a famous secret society known as the Ko Lao Hui.

This society was originally formed to battle with Chinese officials who practiced extortion upon the natives—and they were as numerous as the autumn leaves in Vallambrosia—but later its objects became anti-foreign and anti-missionary.

Foo Wang went to his home and got out his great pipe and sat down and thought.

And he finally came to the conclusion that the particular bit of calico that he had picked up belonged to Chen-kin-Lung, who was one of the most conspicuous of the Ko Lao Hui leaders.

China is a pretty big place, but Foo Wang had plenty of assistants to rely upon, and he sent them to the four corners of the Celestial empire with instructions to locate the supposed leader.

Eventually he discovered that the man he wanted was at an inn near Pekin, and that with him were about twenty of his followers.

Foo Wang decided that it was about time for a round-up and he gathered his men together for that purpose.

He found the leader in one of the rooms of the place giving an entertainment to his supporters.

The Chinese detective was nothing if not original.

He posted himself upon the veranda of the inn and then sent one of his men in to tell Chen-kin-Lung that he was wanted outside on important business.

The unsuspecting leader excused himself to his friends with true celestial gravity and stepped out on the veranda.

As he did so a great big was thrown over his head, two men seized him and he was carried, kicking and gesticulating, to a nearby wharf and placed on a vessel.

There, bound and gagged, he was taken in the direction of Shanghai.

Just before the boat reached its destination the detectives brought the suspect into the cabin and put him through the third degree—which means something in China.

But while Chen-kin-Lung might have been down he was far from being out. He smiled his inscrutable smile—and said nothing.

They literally put the screws upon him but failed to elicit the slightest information.

His clothing and effects were now brought to the detective and given a careful examination.

NEW CHEVROLET HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The News editor is indebted to S. D. Shelburne of the Cooke Chevrolet Co. for a demonstration ride in the new De Luxe Master 6 Chevrolet.

The new car is roomier and easier riding than ever before; the knee-action wheels have been improved until corners are taken with safety and ease at high speeds. A feature of the car is the all-steel turret top and safety glass.

The new Chevrolets have many minor improvements to add to the comfort and convenience of the motorists and is strictly modern in every respect.

The steering mechanism has been changed to give effortless control under all driving conditions.

A high speed jack that lifts either end of the car from the bumper is furnished. There is no necessity to crawl under the car when making tire repairs.

The Cooke Chevrolet Co. will be glad to give a demonstration to anyone on request, without obligation of any kind. See their large advertisement on another page.

SUPT. CRYER BUSY; VARIOUS MEETINGS

Supt. C. A. Cryer of the McLean schools made a George Washington address for the Masonic lodge at Dimmitt last Friday evening. Mr. Cryer was a member of the building committee at Dimmitt, and Friday's program included the dedication of the building.

McLEAN LIONS TO LEFORS

A number of McLean Lions attended a banquet at Lefors Friday evening of last week, as did the membership of the Pampa Kiwanis Club.

After talks by several present, Lefors citizens voted 14 to 14 on whether to organize a Lions or Kiwanis club, one man voting neutral. This man was asked to make a definite choice and he decided on the flip of a coin to vote Kiwanis. Lions then voted to make it unanimous.

Friday night of this week was set to make definite plans to perfect the organization.

Among those present from McLean were: C. O. Greene, Boyd Meador, W. K. Wharton, Jesse J. Cobb, T. N. Holloway, O. T. Lindsey, W. W. Boyd, John W. Cooper, H. W. Brooks and J. A. Landers.

HELEN BOSWELL HONORED

Women Folks

By Floy Wynn

That proverbial old phrase, "It's a small world after all," certainly registers so in my book. To me it is like the old, old saying, "More truth than poetry."

Coming to McLean Monday morning through one of the worst sand and dust storms I've ever been out in, expecting to suffer, not only with cold, but with that well known thing called "alone among strangers" feeling, I was very much "took down" as well as certainly delighted to find in McLean, your town (and my town now) some very dear old-time friends.

In fact one-time neighbors back in the days when our closest neighbors lived miles apart.

These neighbors of the yester-years are the usta-be Huff sisters, who are now Mrs. Pete Fulbright, Mrs. E. O. Dennis and Mrs. Leola Saunders. There is Mrs. Cloyce Chambers, who, bless your life, is one of my old pupils . . . of course that wasn't so terribly long ago you must understand . . . and, too, I taught school very, very young.

And now along comes Rev. Erwin, who is kin to my kinfolks, and actually says my mother used to go to school to him back in the early days of the Eastland county pioneers.

Mrs. S. M. Hodges is also an old acquaintance of mine . . . and of course there are the Trimbles, who boarded me for several weeks once upon a time. . . Am I glad I came to McLean where I can work among old-time friends and acquaintances? It is great for me. I'm one of these kind of folks who believe in calling upon friends in time of need . . . and I need news, news, and news.

To be far-sighted sometimes leads to enchantment to coming events. That is, if one has a hint of what is coming, the news of the future attractions is even more intriguing than the complete facts about some present event, which is to me very true in the matter of the beautification contest now getting under way in McLean. It is much more intriguing because it is actually one of the immediate problems that confronts, not only me, you, or a mere handful of people . . . but it concerns all residents of this place, big, little old and young.

This brings to my mind a picture appearing in a magazine years ago and which has during all these years been back in my mind and always pops up when I see a poorly kept lawn or garden. Under the picture, which was of a small girl playing in a beautiful flower garden in the back yard of her home, was written: "Hadn't you rather your child would play among roses than with a bunch of tin cans?"

With the proper interest and actual work of the men and women of McLean, this can be one of the beauty spots of the Panhandle. Children need the influence of a beautiful surrounding . . . men and women, boys and girls are happier among flowers . . . walking beside a flower garden or a pretty lawn. Tourists always remember a town by its appearance, whether it is beauty or bad, but, we remember the longest those places that have the most attraction. Let's make McLean a town they cannot forget, because of its attractiveness, for pretty lawns and flower gardens.

I want to make an appeal through this column to all reporters and all club women and girls to tell, write or phone the news in to the McLean News office. Maybe it isn't news to you . . . but it will be news to somebody . . . if only one has never heard about it . . . it is NEWS.

BOY SCOUTS VISIT MASTODON EXHIBIT

Troop 26, boy scouts, sponsored by the American Legion, enjoyed the rare opportunity of viewing and hearing an informal lecture on the bones of a mastodon found near Miami.

The collection, seen last night, in the show window of the W. W. Davis Hardware consisted of an enormous tusk approximately 10 inches in diameter at the base, and between 10 and 12 feet long, a complete pelvic joint assembled and one pelvic joint which was unassembled, some rhinoceros teeth and bones which were found seven miles northeast of Miami; an ammonite, which is a mollusk that lived during the carboniferous period during the permian epoch, a baby elephant tooth found with other bones, and, perhaps the most interesting find of all, a pre-folsom arrow or spear point which was found embedded in the ground with extinct elephant bones and teeth. This spear point was found thrust between two rib bones which were embedded in the ground which at one time was an ancient swamp or bog.

The mastodon lived in the cenozoic era during the quaternary period and pleistocene epoch. He was covered by a long hair of approximately 4 inches in length. The mastodon was abundant in America, possibly at one time as abundant as the buffalo of the 19th century A. D. The mastodon ranged over the whole of North America.

Another collection of interest was viewed by the scouts while at Miami. This collection consisted in the main of arrowheads, skinning knives, drills, cutting knives, hide scrapers, and other tools and instruments made from stone. These specimens of ancient man's handicraft are dated back as far as 1500 years. There was a prehistoric man's skull on exhibit which contained a perfect set of 32 teeth. One tooth, however, had a cavity which reached back as far as the nerve.

J. A. Mead, county judge of Roberts county, is the possessor of these two fine exhibits and gave the boys a patient and enlightening talk on how the various parts of each exhibit were found, and identified the outstanding parts of the exhibits.

Ernie Back, Robert Smith, Carl Sullivan, Billy Gregory, Jackie Lee Glenn, Alonzo Henderson, S. J. Dyer, Zane Smith, L. R. Blevins, Granville Vyer, Frank Wharton, G. T. Lamberth, J. R. Glenn, Edward Wehba, Vester Lee Smith, John Byrd Gull, Billy Cooke, Morris Turner, Aaron Gill, Jack Bogan, Andy Word, Roy Owens, James Everett, R. W. Osborne and Junior Wood were the scouts who made the trip. The boys were accompanied by W. E. Smith and O. E. Lochridge, troop committeemen; Guy Hibler, assistant scout master, and Roy W. Machen, scoutmaster.

Troop 26 wishes to express their regret that the boys from troop 25 were disappointed in not getting to make the trip. Through some misunderstanding, several of the boys from troop 25 were present to make the trip, but due to limited transportation were unable to go.

True Ghost Stories

"ONE of the most gruesome experiences I ever had," related Guy Kibbee, motion picture and stage star, "was when I was with the Alpine Stock company, then playing in Vermont.

"The leading lady, Evelyn Grey, then on her way to fame and success, was very ill. She had a very bad case of tuberculosis, yet was so ambitious and enjoyed her work so much that she would not stop long enough to get well. Many people in the theater are that way; they love their profession unto death.

"Every night, after the show, she would lie down in her dressing room for half an hour or so before going home.

"On this particular occasion we were playing 'East Lynne,' in which she was taking the lead. In the last scene she wore a long white garment. After the show was over we all left for our hotels, except Evelyn, who stayed alone, as was her wish, for her rest.

"We all got up to the hotel, talked for an hour or more, then decided to play a bit of poker. The cards were dealt at the theater, and as actors made little or no money in those days, we went back after them instead of buying new ones.

"We entered the theater and saw a figure in white walking slowly down the aisle. We got a look at her face, and it looked like Evelyn, yet it was too pale and awful to be she. It was way past time for her to have left the theater. The apparition gave us theitters, so we left without the cards. Evelyn never walked about the theater. It all seemed so unreal and ghostly that we went home and to bed. If the figure had been Evelyn, we felt sure she would have spoken to us.

"Next morning we were all ready for rehearsal at ten o'clock. Evelyn did not appear. Some one went back to look in her dressing room and found her. She had on the same white gown, and was lying on her couch in the dressing room dead. She had died during the night, alone."
