TRUE
DETECTIVE STORY
by Vance Wynn
Public Ledger

Mystery of the Old Carpet Bag

ONE hundred thousand dollars in gold, packed in iron boxes, and these in turn placed in a safe with a Chubb lock, was stolen during the trip from Folkestone to Boulogne.

That is to say, the gold was in the safe when it left the office of the express company and it was not there when it reached its destination.

To add to the mystification there were only three keys to the safes and the whereabouts of each one was known.

The traffic superintendent in London had one; the head of the Folkestone railway had another, and the captain of the Folkestone-Boulogne boat had the third.

The outside of the safe gave some evidence of having been tampered with, but the iron boxes, instead of holding gold dust, were filled with small shot.

When had the gold been stolen? Where had the change been made from the gold to the shot?

Who could have been guilty of this audacious robbery?

These were the three questions which troubled the police of two countries.

It was annoying, irritating and all of the other things in the calendar.

The boats running between the two ports were carefully searched. The waiting rooms at both ends of the line were subjected to a keen scrutiny, and altogether the detectives used up all of the tricks of the trade in trying to find a clue to this astonishing theft.

Finally they found an article that cast a ray of light on the case.

It was in the form of an old carpet bag which was located in the station at Folkestone.

The ownership of the bag was traced to a man named Peter Agar.

That in itself meant nothing.

The great big fact was that the photograph of Peter Agar occupied a place of honor in the Rogues gallery at Scotland Yard.

Numerous copies of this photograph were made and were shown to conductors, sailors, storekeepers and others, and as a result of this it was pretty well proved that Peter Agar had been seen loitering in the vicinity of the Folkestone-Boulogne boat on the day the money disappeared.

But if he were guilty of the theft how could he have gotten the money from the locked safe?

In the meantime the police started to look for Peter.

It might have taken them a long while to locate him if Peter had not been conveniently arrested for forging checks.

The detectives visited him in jail and asked him to tell what he knew of the robbery of the safe with the gold dust.

He was quite indignant at this, and intimated that he considered it highly unprofessional to ask a man if he is a safe robber when he is already serving time as a check forger.

In a word, he declined to give the authorities any information.

One morning a woman named Mrs. Kay called at Scotland Yard, and without any preliminaries told the amazed officials that the gold-dust robbery had been committed by Agar, John Pierce and Charles Tester. Tester was employed in the traffic department at London bridge.

They asked her what motive she had in "sneaking."

She answered in one word: "Revenge."

It seems that when Agar went to jail on the forgery charges he left $45,000 with Pierce to support Mrs. Kay, who was his "dear friend." Pierce sent her money once or twice and then ceased payment altogether.

It was evident that he intended to cheat her.

She was furious and a furious woman is dangerous.

The state of affairs was explained to Agar and he told the whole story.

Agar and Pierce had conceived the scheme of robbing the safe, but in order to do so it was necessary to get the assistance of some one connected with the railway.

They took Tester into partnership, and the first move came when Pierce visited the Folkestone office with a handful of wax and secured an impression of the key of the safe. After that it was simply a matter of arranging the details.

They arranged to meet the messenger with the safe at a certain point in the journey.

Agar carried the old carpet bag filled with shot and this was quickly substituted for the gold dust.

The loot was divided into three equal parts and the mystery might never have been solved if it had not been for the old carpet bag.

World's Biggest Book

The world's biggest book is in the British museum. It is a gazetteer and atlas of the world printed in Amsterdam in 1550, and is six feet high, four feet wide, and six inches thick. It has a wall space to itself, and students have to consult it as it stands in the position. The British museum also has some of the world's smallest books. Some are slightly smaller in size than a postage stamp. There was a great vogue for these tiny books a century back, and they were carried in the waistcoat pocket.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Folks, I've been musing a lot lately and I have so many things on my mind I want to get rid of them and ask you all to help me out.

I wonder where that fellow "Follow Me" that the City Food Store has painted on the back of their car stays. So far I've been unable to find him. And what kind of fish is "Baby Fish" that they advertised on their window last week?

And how come the city and C. of C. to appoint Tom McCarty to oversee the irrigation project in connection with our relief garden and canning plant?

And why does Claude Williams have to leave Amarillo and come to McLean on the first of the month?

And why do the two moles that are on the top of my head look so much like spiders and what few hairs I have left look so much like a spider's web?

Why make so much fuss about mothers-in-law when the real problem is the sons-in-law and daughters-in-law?

Why can't we put stickers on our wind shields that read "I park correctly and drive carefully." Instead of cluttering up our wind shields with "Oh, Susan!" "I have visited Carlsbad Cavern," "McMurry College," and a million different kinds of gasoline, oils and whatnots too numerous to mention?

And why are so many of us indifferent to the hundreds of awful auto accidents that are happening all over the country, killing thousands of us, and just keep on taking chances, disregarding all safety laws and accepting each tragedy as just a part of each day's happening and doing absolutely nothing to prevent these awful tragedies?

And why don't all of us observe all the holidays like the banks do and close up all our business houses, stop all our factories, all our trains, buses and everything else and let's all take off for a much needed rest on our legal holidays?

Why are we spending millions and millions of dollars and about twenty years of our children's time educating them and when they get their education we have nothing for them to do? And about 90% of them either don't know how to do anything or are not willing to do anything where hard work and honest endeavor is involved.

Folks, I don't want you all to think I am a calamity howler, but honestly we are giving the youth of our day a dirty deal and I get terribly alarmed when I allow myself to think just what the future holds if some changes are not made. We've simply got to find some way to give our young folks an honest chance to make good just like we older folks had when we were young and just started out. This thing can't go on much longer. What is worrying me is what are we going to do with the millions and millions of the youth of our land.

But what has got me puzzled most of all is why old Cleve Well did not show up here last Monday after I went and spent a dime (the price of two good cigars) for a package of giant firecrackers to show him just what I thought of him, the old reprobate.

And Bro. Goff took Old Brindle Face to Dallas last week to a big Baptist meeting. We hoped the meeting would make an honest golfer out of him, but I see very little improvement.

First Student—"That waitress at our boarding house made me awfully mad this morning. She said to me: 'Do you know how many waffles you have eaten already?' I said: 'No,' and she said: 'That makes the twenty-sixth.'"

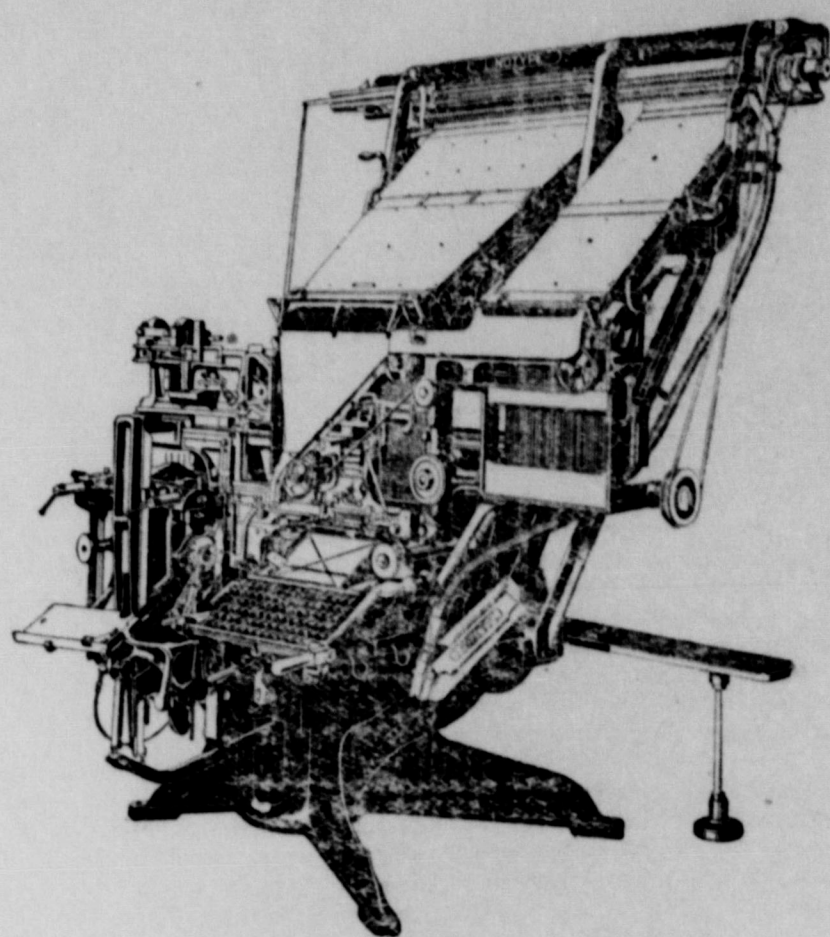

Second Student—"What did you do then?"

First Student—"I was so mad that I just got up and came to class without finishing my breakfast."

GREEN NEEDLES

THE STORY

Mary Brown, daughter of David Brown, self-made multi-millionaire, obsessed with the idea that her personality is obscured by the fact that she is the child of the "rich David Brown," determines to make her way in life, discarding her father's wealth, and her own. She has a million dollars, legacy from her mother, which she insists her father invest in the "wildest dream" imaginable, and about which she must know nothing. She is a graduate of a college of engineering. Her father, secretly admiring her courage, humors her.

As "M" Brown, Mary secures a job on the Paradise Valley project, near the village of Foggy Gulch. After a period of what seems to be the pinnacle of success, the "wild dream" peters out, and workers are notified that all activities must be suspended. Craig urges Mary to marry him at once, but she refuses, with visions of what he would do when he operated that she gives it up in favor of the "rich David Brown."

Craig offers Mary a job as telephone operator of a man with a family, leaving a note for Craig. A month passes, and no word comes from him. Mary takes a job as assistant in an art shop. Craig secures funds and collects his old force to resume work on the project, but does not send for Mary.

Circumstances cause Mary to give up her job at the art store, promising to see the owner and buy it for herself.

She came out of the office, the daughter of the rich David Brown, looking straight before her, pride in Surely enough, Mary's taxi went to the Fairmont. Perhaps the girl had worked here—or was looking for work here now. Still, wouldn't she have used the servants' entrance?

He asked the clerk if he might see Miss Mary Brown.

The clerk eyed her suspiciously. "You're not—after charity?"

"What?" affrontedly.

"There are always grafters trailing them," the spasm apology. "What name?"

Denis gave it.

The clerk repeated it into the telephone. "Go up to Miss Brown's sitting room."

"To—" Denis checked the question and followed the boy.

Mary opened the door, looking as if she had just about all she could stand. To Denis' questioning look she answered with limp facetiousness. "They happened to know me here, so I could get our usual rooms without baggage. If you've come round to pay my bills—it won't be necessary this time. Will you sit down?"

She herself dropped into a chair by a desk, where already she had drawn out a telegram blank.

Denis stood, straight and forbidding. "If this is an intrusion, I'm sorry. I thought perhaps you were—"

Constrainedly, "do you care to tell me what that scene in the art store meant?"

A bitter line twisted Mary's lips. Surcharged feelings burst forth in her reply.

"It meant—defeat! It meant the smashing of ideals; the thwarting of ambition; it meant that everything I've striven toward, everything I've accomplished in three years of earnest, hopeful effort, has—gone by the board! It meant that I've given up!"

She rose and strode about the large room in her intense way. "Oh, it isn't fair! It isn't just! I could have won out—if I could have taken my equal chance with other competitors! If my conscience hadn't cried, 'Fraud! Fraud!' But I couldn't—don't you see—"

"I don't see anything," said Denis Craig, tersely. "Why were you in that shop? Why did you hand over your job if you needed it—"

"Why?" She wheeled upon him. "For the same reason that I didn't take your job as telephone central! Fred Andrews had a new baby to finance! For the same reason I didn't go to Mill Valley for Mr. Stark; I found Don Leigh also was counting on that work. For the same reason that I didn't go up into the Hetch-Ketchy country; somebody else still is trying to repay borrowed college funds. For the same reason that I didn't take several other openings. For the same reason that I finally turned to any sort of work I could get. I actually went hungry for two days—but I didn't mind! I would do anything to make a living, to succeed on my own! And where do I get? Always it comes to this!"

"This!" Denis looked about at period furniture; a grand piano; rich hangings; deep rugs. "Am I becoming too personal if I ask you to explain the enigma of this? This paradoxical environment of the down-and-out? And—why the heroics?"

He was still aloof; still the stranger forced into courtesy.

Mary sat down at the desk and dashed off a wire. "This" holding out the sheet to Denis, as she rang for a boy, "is the explanation."

Denis read the message first: "Please arrange $100,000 credit for me at Bank of Italy immediately."

Then he read the heading: David Brown. "The one I know?" he asked.

"The same."

"You must know him rather well," noting her signature, "Mary."

"Rather. He is my father."

Denis started, looked at her for a moment, then walked to a chair by the window and sat staring out at the sky line. Finally Mary spoke.

"Denis?"

He turned toward her slowly, and the smile on his face, as she had expected, was more remote than it had been.

"It takes some time to get everything in line. Of course, I suppose I was stupid not to guess. You are so essentially David Brown's daughter—in many ways. And I don't know how you could expect not to have the noblest oblige reaction which has kept you out of jobs—having been brought up by such a man. But—why the pose, Mary? Why the fraud? Why the 'line' about being a penniless young engineer out to make a fortune?"

"It wasn't a pose!" hotly. "You're just like all the others! I was sincere! I really was penniless! I gave away my money so that I could make my way on my own merit, without the pull of money behind me—"

"Something tells me," Denis deducted, "that you're the person whose million staked me."

"I am—the conscienceless nut."

He didn't back down on his earlier assertion. "Yes. You certainly were."

"Why do you say that?" tightly.

"I thought you were an engineer."

"I am an engineer. Far more an engineer than a multi-millionaire's daughter."

"Your actions fail to prove it. I believe I've heard you boast that an engineer abhors waste, even that of breath. But you wasted a million. Or would have. I might have lost it! I've had plenty of mad moments over it! It's in your father's hands with full interest now, heaven be thanked! I repaid it in entirety when I floated my bond issue. And that shall you do with it? Fling it to the winds again?"

Mary's eyes flashed mutinously.

"Preach! Put you, who place so much value on money, had your chance! You started with a little stake and fought your way to success!"

"Perhaps I shall—in time. But if I had a million," demanded the visionist, "boy! wouldn't the things I have done be so much the greater?"

Mary shut her eyes—because she could see him again on the mountain top, dreaming his dream.

He looked at her quizzically. "Evidently you didn't take much to heart John Stark's lesson that had an Emersonian text? You still don't believe in utilizing natural resources?"

"And letting all the credit go to the bank roll?" she scoffed.

"Is it credit you're working for?"

"Why—why—" Mary went suddenly limp. "Of course not." It really wasn't. Only she had been very dumb not to see that that was the goal she had held up to herself. And

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

Well, well, and here we are nearing St. Patrick's day again! It's pretty fine to have such a jolly patron for this blustering month and we ought to have a pretty fine celebration in his honor.

A "colleen" party will be amusing and colorful as well. It may be a costume party or not, as the hostess desires. If the guests do wear fancy dress they should be asked to don the Irish dress with which they have become familiar by seeing countless pictures of the quaint, full skirted frock and the rakish short trousered suit.

If this is not to be a costume party it will lend a festive spirit if the hostess will supply her guests with green crepe paper aprons and caps.

A Merry Pastime

To start the party a game of "traveler" is hilarious. Partners may be chosen by matching the pieces of halved paper shamrocks. Each couple is given a box in which have been placed two hats, as old as possible, two garments of sorts and any odd additions as gloves, shoes, overshoes, umbrellas or spectacles, that may be produced.

Then, lining up in teams of twos, they are told to go to a certain place, don the apparel and come back. Those who do it in the least time are declared winners and presented with the prize which can be anything the hostess desires.

Musical chairs and an Irish questionnaire (a list of questions about Irish songs, stories or people) will also prove most entertaining.

The dining table should be decorated in green and white and the color scheme carried even to the food. A large paper shamrock makes a gay centerpiece and a tiny one at each place makes the table most attractive.

For refreshments—a white grape gelatin salad tinted green and topped with whipped cream, cream cheese and chopped green pepper sandwiches cut in the forms of shamrocks; lemonade tinted green, pistachio ice cream, white cake frosted with green, and green and white peppermint patties are delectable.

Pineapple Ice Box Cake

- 2 tablespoons of gelatin
- 1/2 cup of cold water
- 1/4 teaspoon of salt
- 1/2 cup of sugar
- 1 can of crushed pineapple
- 1 tablespoon of lemon juice.
- 1 1/2 cups of cream

Lady fingers
Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes; dissolve over hot water and add pineapple, sugar, salt and lemon juice; stir until all sugar and gelatin are dissolved. When it begins to thicken beat and fold in cream.

Line sides and bottom of large mold with lady fingers. Cover with pineapple cream mixture, then alternate lady fingers and cream until mold is full. Place in refrigerator for three or four hours until firm. Garnish with whipped cream.

This recipe requires about two and a half dozen lady fingers and will serve twelve persons.

THE GALLSTONE ERA

One of the most amusing things I have read in some time is Will Rogers' story of the operation he underwent for removal of his gall bladder. The title of this story is "A Hole in One."

Like many others he was finally persuaded to have this more or less useless bit of equipment removed. The gall bladder is rapidly replacing the appendix as the object of the surgeon's love, with the thyroid (a goiter when it is enlarged) running a close second.

"The only reason it is not more popular," Will says, "is because of its last name—'bladder.' And he suggests that the entire name be changed to a word composed of the initial letters G and B to 'Gee-bee!'"

All of which is, of course, by way of so much nonsense for writing of which Will gets so much per word.

The person who really has gall bladder trouble can see nothing humorous in it. He might after it's all over and he's feeling the same as he did before this little sac started acting up. But during the "spells" it is doubtful if even Will could extract so much as a smile out of him.

Incorrectly Diagnosed

Of all cases diagnosed as gall bladder trouble probably not more than one in twenty are that. The other nineteen are nothing but a good old-fashioned "belly-ache." What most of these patients need is ten cents worth of castor oil instead of a three hundred dollar operation.

Occasionally these cases show symptoms similar to those that occur in an attack of gallstones. By an "attack" of gallstones I mean that auspicious occasion when a gallstone enters the duct leading from the gall bladder to the intestine, and becomes lodged there, unable to get back into the gall bladder or go on into the intestine. Most people who have gallstones, however, go their graves never knowing it. The stones never left the gall bladder, hence never gave their owner any trouble.

Getting back to the cases of tummy ache resembling gallstone colic. The reason for their similarity is that when the inside of the intestine is inflamed, the inflammation is very apt to extend into the bile ducts. The consequent swelling narrows the men of the ducts and gives rise to the same signs of obstruction produced by blocking with a stone.

These persons are usually suffering from the constipation habit, and violent purging they get on this occasion dislodges some fecal concretions that are erroneously believed to be gallstones.

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

Lesson text, Acts 12:5-17. Golden text, Acts 12:5—"Prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him."

Herod the king knew that it was to his interest to keep the Jews over whom he ruled in a good humor with him. The method of his procedure was not the thing to be questioned—the important thing was to keep a good report before his emperor in Rome. He was not a lifetime ruler, but retained the rulership over the Jews as long as it pleased Caesar. And Caesar was interested primarily in the peace that existed on the fields of his domain. Therefore, Herod was very much gratified with the fellowship established between himself and the Jewish officials when he conceived and carried out the plan of executing James, the brother of John. James was the first; Peter was to be the one whose death would establish his complete friendliness with the Jewish officials.

Herod was scientific in his procedure. He had Peter arrested before the feast of the passover, and held him in prison until the Jews had completed their feast. In doing this he proved to the Jews his gentile respect for their law, customs and feelings. The day after the completion of the feast, Peter was scheduled to die. The act would be a precious stone in the crown of Herod's ruling glory. The king knew of the miracles that this man had performed, or at least were "attributed to him," by the populace. He probably felt that the latter was correct, and that no extra precaution was necessary, but nevertheless, to be on the safe side, a soldier was chained on each side of Peter and two extra guards were placed at the inner and outer doors of the prison. The night before the mock trial and execution arrived, Peter slept soundly. The "rock" of the Master was willing now as before, to die if necessary to the Gospel of Christ. When the awakening hours of the morning came and Herod was ready to perform his master stroke of "diplomacy" Peter was escaped.

During the time of his imprisonment the church at Jerusalem had continued earnestly in prayer. Their prayer was likely for the escape of the rest of the church from like fate, as well as for Peter's escape. It probably appeared that Peter's doom was sealed. It would appear that their prayer for Peter was more that the grace of God would attend him in his hours of trial than that he escape, since they were surprised when God answered their prayers for his release.

There is much power in the united prayer of a great body of people. Many of us have never experienced the spiritual thrill that comes after a long season of united prayer, because most of us are not willing to pay the price of long, continued, united prayer. But usually when people are willing to remain on their faces before God in such a session of prayer the answer is like the one in this lesson—greater than we expect. God has power and He is not dead. And I believe that God counts it a privilege to answer our prayers when we have approached His throne of grace in a manner of humility that will be worthy of His hearing. But the difficulty today is that there are too many "pleasant" ways to spend our time aside from prayer and agonizing before God.

To be sure, the old fashioned prayer meetings where men and women bowed before God in agonizing humility are out of style. This is for several reasons. It takes too long to go through with one of them; it is too hard on one; other people don't do it; it is tiresome; and we get along pretty well without it. This is all true. And we do get along pretty well—we have a nice long depression, 12,000 murders last year, 3,000 kidnappings during the same time, millions without work, depending upon the government to borrow money which must eventually come out of the taxpayers' pockets, to keep body and soul together. Yes, we get along pretty well without the old fashioned prayer meeting.

The same power that released Peter from prison that night could as easily release our people today from the burden of modern economic problems. Why did not the soldiers chained to Peter awake and cry out against his going? The same power of God that awoke Peter kept them asleep. Why did the great iron gate with its mighty locks swing open without the touch of hand? By the power of the will that so easily opened the gate, the guards who carried the keys to that gate remained fast asleep.

If the Christian people would lay down their fast growing sins of immorality, indifference, gambling, drinking, covetousness, selfishness and spirit rejecting, and fall in humility upon their faces, asking for forgiveness and guidance and remain a nation in sackcloth and ashes before God, God's guardian angel would descend from the heavens to lead us. And with the leading angel of God the guards of economic difficulty would forget to arise, and the forbidding iron gates of depression would quietly swing open that we might follow into the valleys of green pasture. Some may think the depression will end. Yes! At least there will be temporary relief, but we are beginning the pioneering of a new vast field of economics, and aside from the leading hand of God there will be no permanent relief. God alone can lead us.

PHENOMENON ON LAKES

A peculiar phenomenon which occurs on the lakes of Switzerland is the seiche, a rise and fall in the mean level of the water caused by changes in the atmospheric pressure. writes F. M. Hartley, Jr., of New York City, in Collier's Weekly. On the Lake of Geneva, which is 223 square miles in area, the level frequently rises on one side and falls on the other from one to six feet, and the resulting fluctuations cause the whole lake to swing from shore to shore for a period of from 35 to 72 minutes.

THE DACHSHUND PUP

SERMONETTE

Text: "He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief."—Isaiah 53:3a.

A MAN OF SORROWS

The Passontide or Lenten season began with Ash Wednesday. The word "Lent" is of Anglo-Saxon origin. It signifies "Spring." It refers to spring-time when days are lengthened. In the Christian sense, Lent is that season of the church year which is set apart for special consideration of the Passion of our Savior, Jesus Christ. Hence the term, Passontide.

The Passontide lasts forty days. There are forty-six days altogether, but those six days are Sundays. Sundays are of a festive nature, being set aside throughout the entire year as holidays in commemoration of our Savior's resurrection which took place on the first day of the week, called the Lord's Day, and, more generally, Sunday.

The season of Christ's passion is very important to the Christian. There are special opportunities to hear sermons preached about Christ, the "Man of Sorrows," as He was depicted by the prophet Isaiah in his Old Testament prophecy.

That prophecy from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah was fulfilled to the minutest detail. The Messiah actually made His visible appearance into the world. He came to save that which was lost; came to redeem all mankind with His holy and precious blood and with His innocent suffering and death.

He came to help. But He was "despised and rejected of men." He was not accepted by the majority; He was greatly misunderstood. Many awaited the Messiah but did not believe that Christ was that long-awaited Messiah and Savior.

Even today Christ is despised and rejected by many. His holy name is used in profane speech, maliciously abused. He is known to some as a mere mythical character instead of the Lord of heaven and earth. Many cannot grasp the purpose of His existence and visible coming into the world. They are such that are not aware of the sinfulness and corruptness of mankind; the kind that live for the world only with all of its sugar-coated evils.

The world today is just as sinful, if not more, than before the visible coming of Christ. Sin, in all of its openness and crudity, was and is rampant in the world. At all of this Christ was stricken with grief. He pitied sinful mortals who rejected the Christ redeemed all mankind. He prophesies of the coming of the Messiah and, consequently, refused to amend their lives. They had neither hope nor faith in Him. Truly, a "man of sorrows," calls and gathers His children to Himself. Yet even today He is rejected as the Lord and Savior; He is despised and mocked by unbelievers and religious scoundrels.

To believe in Christ is very important for everyone. Let us not despise Him but accept Him in true faith and trust in Him alone.

ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS HAS GREATEST VALUE OF ALL OTHER MEDIUMS, SAYS PUBLIC

Corpus Christi, March 11.—Newspaper advertising as a direct buying influence was the first choice of four out of every five persons, or 78.2%, interviewed in an interesting advertising survey being conducted in Corpus Christi by the Corpus Christi Caller Times.

This survey found that theatre screen advertising was the most objectionable (67.4%) with circulars a close second. Also found decidedly objectionable were billboard, radio advertising, and direct by mail. Only 3.1% objected to seeing advertising in the newspapers.

Here's how the Corpus Christi buyers voted on the question, "Please list first, second, third, etc., types of advertising which influence you most in doing your buying:"

	per cent
Newspaper	78.2
Direct mail	4.9
Circulars	1.0
Theatre screen	3

Magazines	7.3

	per cent

Another newspaper survey showed even stronger results in favor of newspaper advertising, with 83% favoring it.

The same two questions were asked, with the following answers:

	per cent
First:
Direct mail	6
Radio	3
Circulars	6

The given advertising is objectionable and should be eliminated:

In this survey in which several thousands were interviewed newspaper advertising was not found objectionable by any.

Out of the kindness of their hearts, our friends may lie to us, but our enemies are likely to tell us the truth.

The good rain puts new life into the gardeners' and farmers' hopes. The rain came at the time when it was most needed, and spring work has now begun in earnest.

Some very justifiable complaints have been made of the practice of pedestrians walking across corners of lawns, across church lots, and other trespassing of like nature.

Just a little thoughtfulness of the rights of property owners could be appreciated in this regard.

Every country passes through three stages; the first when nature turns over the land it is full of beauty, but in the second stage man, in his efforts to make a living, cuts down trees, dams streams, blasts rocks, builds ugly buildings and destroys all marks of beauty. However, in the third stage man begins his attempts to bring back beauty to the country, and that is the stage we are entering in the Panhandle at this time. The springing up of garden clubs and the beautification plans of the state centennial committee will bear fruit that can be appreciated, not only by ourselves, but by future generations.

Every man owes it to himself and his community to work for beauty in nature in all its forms.

A peddler of an article sold in seven stores in McLean called on the editor one day last week and boasted of a list of 63 regular customers in McLean as an argument for the editor's patronage.

Peddlers get a cold reception in the News office, and this one was no exception. There is nothing sold any more that cannot be duplicated by a home merchant and in all cases that we know of, sold for less price, and in most cases the article will be of better quality. Most of us let the peddler compare a high priced article with a cheap one, while if we would pay the same money to the same merchant we would get a better article.

Whether it be groceries, or printing, it pays to patronize the man who helps pay taxes or maintain our schools and contributes to our churches and other community enterprises.

THE MASON AND DIXON LINE

The Mason and Dixon line was the name given to the boundary between two American states, Maryland and Pennsylvania; the name was derived from the two English astronomers, Mason and Dixon, who surveyed the boundary in 1763.

This line formed part of the boundary between the states which continued to keep slaves and those which didn't. The result is that the phrase Mason and Dixon line is now widely used as meaning the whole of that boundary.—Answers.

Young Doctor—"I'm afraid I made a mistake in filling in a death certificate today."

Old Doctor—"How was that?"
Young Doctor—"I absent-mindedly signed my name in the space left for 'cause of death'."

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Peterson of Oklahoma City were business visitors in McLean Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Leon Waldrop of Pleasant Mound was in McLean Friday.

SENIOR REPORT

The seniors are very busy trying to raise sufficient funds to make a trip to Carlsbad Cavern. They have been hunting ideas that they think will enable them to make some money. They are planning to have some various types of entertainment at the high school auditorium some night next week. All that the seniors are talking, thinking and some, perhaps, dreaming, is the trip to Carlsbad.

Just now they are selling magazine subscriptions. Half of the subscription price is kept by the class, so if you want to help us, subscribe. "On to Carlsbad" is our motto.

SOPHOMORE REPORT

The sophomores are glad to report a new member in their class. He is the cousin of our sponsor and looks as if he may be a creditable candidate for a place on our football squad. He is Billy Loter.

HOME ECONOMICS GIRLS SERVE LUNCHEON

The girls in the first section of home economics 1A class served a luncheon Thursday for the coaches and superintendents while they were working on schedules for next fall. The menu consisted of the following: veal loaf, tomato sauce, brown beans, mashed potatoes, buttered rolls, combination salad, peach batter cake, celery and coffee.

PACKAGES

Just ask the home economics girls what these surprise packages mean. You would be surprised at what are in some of these packages.

MUSIC CLUB REPORT

The Music Lovers' Club met in the music studio March 5, with Shirley Johnston, Mary Alice and Catherine Patterson as hostesses. Roll call was answered with a fact about Hayden's life. There being no old or new business, the program was presented. Ermadel Floyd gave a brief sketch of Hayden's life. Memorized selections were played by each of the members. Those that were voted as being the best players were: Juanita Carpenter, Frances Hudezitz, Beth Evonne Floyd, Catherine Patterson and Ermadel Floyd. Delicious refreshments of punch and sandwiches were served by the hostesses to those present.

VALUABLE PRIZES AT STAKE FOR LIVESTOCK TEAM

The McLean livestock team has a large amount of premium money to work for in several contests in the near future. At Texas Tech they have a chance to win some of the fifty dollar award offered by the Horse and Mule Association of America, and also fifty dollars is at stake at Texas A & M for the same event. If they can defeat all other schools on the Rock Island Railroad when competing in the state contest they should again win the $100 trip to the Kansas City Royal Livestock Show which they have won for five successive years.

This team has already won $77 in cash this year for judging in the Oklahoma fair contest. Team members are A. Ledbetter, V. Harris, Cecil Jones and James Lee Rice.

F. F. A. CALVES MAKE PROFIT

Several F. F. A. members fed and showed fat calves and made nice profits on the projects. Tom Jack Wade fed two calves and sold them for 13 1/2 cents per pound. He netted about $80 on the two. James Lee Rice fed one and netted about $35. Ferris Hess had two calves from which he netted $70.

INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE ENTRANTS NOW READY

The McLean high school entrants for the interscholastic contests which will be held in Lefors Friday and Saturday are ready for the event.

More interest than heretofore evinced in tennis has been displayed this year. In boys' doubles, James Emmett Cooke and J. D. Back defeated Jesse Dean Cobb and James Massay in the finals for first place. Boys who entered this division of the contest were Russell Killingsworth, Clevy Hancock, Neil Jackson, Kivie Ayer, Paul Dowell, Jimmie Liles, Wilson Shaw, LeMoyné O'Neal, and the four who entered finals. In boys' singles the ones who entered were: Kivie Ayer, Maurice Wilkins, Eugene Greer, Jesse Dean Cobb, Jimmie Liles, J. D. Back, Neil Jackson, Paul Dowell, James Emmett Cooke, Tom Jack Wade, LeMoyné O'Neal, Forrest Stout, Wilson Shaw and Roy McMullen. This was won by J. D. Back.

In girls' doubles, Marie Landers and Clara Faye Carpenter won the finals. Those who entered were: Mavis Brewer, Charlie Marie Back, Sybil Young, Mozelle Glenn and Julia McCarty. In girls' singles Julia McCarty was the winner. Those who entered were: Mavis Brewer, Charlie Marie Back and Mozelle Glenn. Lottie Margaret Barrow and Martha Reimer will enter spelling. In declamation, the contest was won by Averille Christian and Mildred Reed. Extemporaneous speaking was won by Juanita Carpenter and Alton Howard.

The track events will be held on Saturday. Mr. McHaney has worked with all entrants in track.

JUDGES FOR ELIMINATION

The following people have acted as judges in the high school elimination contests: Mrs. Jim Back, Marvin Davis, Mrs. H. W. Brooks, Mrs. Thurman Adkins, John Harding and Miss Lillian Abbott. Their capability and willingness to serve was appreciated by the contestants and teachers.

BASKETBALL GIRLS TO PLAY DISTRICT CHAMPIONS

The Tigerettes will attempt to defeat the district champions on Friday night of this week in the local gymnasium. The district was won this year by the Allison team. The Tigerettes are attempting to make their expenses to the A. A. U., which they will enter at Plainview. Spectators are promised an interesting and enjoyable game.

JUNIOR REPORT

The activities of the junior class are revolving around the junior-senior banquet, therefore, they are attempting to raise more money by sponsoring, through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Adams, the picture show, "David Copperfield," on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week. The class will get a per cent of the tickets they sell.

PRACTICAL

By A. T. Wilson

A practical man is a very valuable asset to any community. A professional man once bought a farm and started to farm. One day one of his neighbors asked him how he got on. He said, "You are farming the worst way and exactly wrong." The novice said, "How do you know I am?" and the old timer said, "I have been farming for years and I know exactly how it should be done," and he proceeded to tell him the mistakes he was making. The novice listened patiently until he ran down and then said, "Have you any corn to sell?" Mr. Wiseacre said, "No, I am on my way to town to see where I can buy four or five acres." Mr. Novice said, "Just drive down the road one mile and ask the man who told me how to farm his place, for he has eight hundred bushels to sell." Wiseacre said, "Gid-dap," and Novice turned his head so that Wiseacre could not see him smile.

Another man made it a point to tell everybody how early he got up and that he was generally waiting at the end of the rows for daylight to come so he could see how to plow, and a quiet old man said, "You blunder around in the dark when you should be sleeping, and buy corn every year, and I get up at break of day and raise corn to sell you. You should be ashamed of your boneheads instead of blowing about them."

Did you ever see a man come into town and whoop, holler and ballyhoo like he was the greatest booster in earth, yet he had no money to invest and didn't even own a home, but was merely wanting a job so he could astonish the natives with his visionary schemes and impress them with his importance, and then when his plans proved a failure he would come on seeking other worlds to conquer.

There was a time when people tried to be practical, but look at the visionary and highly speculative plans to stop the depression. The bear was stung along the highway in a good example of some of our fool schemes, and if it wasn't for our practical men who buy the tax free bonds, we could not act so foolishly. The theory that we could drink and spend lots of money with a lavish hand, and loaf, and bring back prosperity is a direct contradiction of the philosophy of thrift, industry and practical effort. The let-George-do-it philosophy has put George in the hospital with a nervous breakdown and the slogan of take your burdens to Uncle Sam and leave them there seems likely to drive the old gentleman to the lunatic asylum.

When we see the visionary plans and doubtful experiments of our present administration it makes us think the words of John the Baptist when he said, "Art thou he that should come, or shall we look for another?"

We have built towers of Babel, unsinkable ships, federal reserve systems, gold standards, and used up all the letters in the alphabet to designate our administrative experiments, and as yet it seems that we may have built on the sand and may have to rebuild on the rock of thrift, industry, economy and a practical common sense method of doing things that has passed the experimental stage.

DO YOU EAT ORANGES?

With a record of 20% increase in orange consumption in the United States for the past four years compared with the preceding four years, and 31% increase in citrus fruit consumption during 1929 to 1933 inclusive, against the prosperity era of 1926-29, there is little need to sell the merits of advertising to citrus growers, according to W. B. Geissinger, advertising manager of the California Fruit Growers Exchange.

GAUGING A NEWSPAPER

The influence of a newspaper is not to be gauged by the number of copies which flow from a machine, but by the number which GO INTO THE HOMES, not to be glanced through, but to be READ.

Nell—"Why did you break off your engagement with Doctor Cutter?" Gladys—"Oh, it was his awful writing. Every time I had a letter from him I had to take it to a druggist to find out what was in it."

Why take a chance of failure? Let Caldwell's graduate bakers do it—cheaper in one community oven. Advertisement 1c

By JOAN CRAWFORD

Motion Picture Actress

"SINCE childhood, I have been afraid of darkness. It is a fear which embodies nothing definite; but complete darkness terrifies me. Consequently, I always leave a dim light burning in the dressing room which opens from my bedroom," said Joan Crawford.

"A short time ago I had an amazing experience. One night at eleven o'clock this lamp flickered furiously, at first going out completely and then burning again. I paid little attention to it, thinking something was wrong with the current. When the same thing happened the next night, at the same hours, eleven and twelve, I called in an electrician to test the wiring at the house, and of the lamp. Nothing wrong was found.

"On the third night we stayed home just to watch the lights. We turned them on all over the house, at eleven o'clock, but that in the dressing room behaved in the same peculiar fashion. I did not want to go out to dance or sing. On the fourth night, I moved from my room to one of the guest rooms, but because of my silly fear of the dark, which I know psychologists would say I should have overcome in my childhood, I left a light burning in the hall outside my room. At eleven o'clock that light began to flicker and a few minutes before twelve, it went out entirely. We were completely mystified.

"The next morning I received a wire from New York telling me that one of my oldest friends, a woman who I have been very kind to me in the early part of my career, had died at midnight the night before. The telegram stated that four days before my friend had been taken to the hospital for an emergency operation, that she had been operated on approximately at eleven o'clock and that she had hovered between life and death during the period when I had trouble with my dressing room lamp.

"My lights went back to their usual steady behavior after that fourth night. I can't explain it. Perhaps there was something defective in the current—perhaps not."

BARRIERS

There are barriers between nations—barriers of language, of race and habits and customs. The breaking down of these barriers is the chief job of the generation now coming on the stage of this world.—Nicholas Murray Butler.

Rhodes—"I notice that when you are telling about that big fish you caught in Lake Winnebago you always vary the size. Have you no respect for the truth?"

Bassler—"I have plenty of respect for the truth but I make it a rule never to tell a man any more than I think he will believe."

Wife—"And another thing—women's minds are cleaner than men's." Husband—"Oh, yeah! Then it must be because they change them so often."

Bill—"You know that music stool you sold me?"

Jim—"Yes." Bill—"Well, I've twisted and turned it in all directions but I can't get a single note out of it."

THE SAIL ON THE BOAT

James Hammond, publisher of the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal, says:

"Newspaper advertising, next to the news columns of the honest press, can be, and almost generally is, a forceful influence for the community's good. Newspaper advertising is as good for the individual who reads it as for the business which uses it. "It is almost inconceivable—a community without a newspaper and without advertising. Our design for living is largely moulded by advertising of one kind and another. We know which foods are healthful, through newspaper advertising. Our ideals of home charm, home health, home comforts come from newspaper advertising. The advertising has developed a sense of pleasant taste. Advertising is good reading. It is usually good English, even good literature. It is cultural influence. In recent years advertising has been giving us the best in art.

"Society—every class—owes a debt to the man behind intelligent use of newspaper space to advertise his product. For the most part it is best worthy. The dishonest advertiser is out of the picture, or on the way out. Through self scrutiny, through pressure from newspaper executives and through realization that false, blatant, irresponsible advertising in the long run just doesn't pay, the advertiser has recognized that he has much the same responsibility to be fair, honest and constructive. "As for the advertiser, his business reflects his advertising wisdom. The chestnut about the mouse trap and the world beating a path to its inventor's door is full of worms. The mousetrap inventor and the baker and candlestick maker are all in the same boat. WITHOUT ADVERTISING FOR THEIR SAIL, THEY ARE SUNK!"

A burglar's wife was being vigorously cross-examined by the county attorney.

"Madam, you are the wife of this prisoner?"

"Yes."

"You knew he was a burglar when you married him?"

"Yes."

"May I ask how you come to marry such an individual?"

"You may," snapped the witness.

"You see, I was getting old and had to choose between a burglar and a lawyer."

The barber lifted the young customer into his chair.

"How do you want your hair cut, sonny?"

"Like Dad's, with a hole in the top."

"Mr. Chairman," said the speaker, "there are so many ribald interruptions I can scarcely hear myself speaking."

"Cheer up, gov-nor," said a voice, "you ain't missin' much."

Slick Auto Salesman—"Now, this is the type of car that pays for itself in a short time."

Victim—"All right. Just wait until it pays for itself and then send it around to my place. I'll take it."

Mrs. J. S. McLaughlin of Lefors visited in McLean Monday.

MORE CONVINCING

An Irishman in a Boston court was endeavoring to disprove that he had a brogue. The judge listening to his statements interrupted, saying: "Pat, if you want to disprove your brogue, may I suggest that you put it in writing?"

"I'll be good for a penny, mother," coaxed little William, hopefully. "Oh, Willie," reproved his mother, "why can't you be like your father? He isn't good for a penny. He's good for nothing!"

WHEN YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE

... use a spoon

It isn't what brand of laxative you take that's so important—it's the form. A liquid laxative can be taken in any required amount. If only a little is needed, you need never take a bit too much. Doctors favor the easily measured liquid laxatives. Instead of any form that does not encourage variation from the fixed dose. A fixed dose may be an overdose for you—or your child.

Always remember this one thing about constipation: the secret of any real relief is reduced dosage.

Give the bowels only as much help as may be needed, and less help as the need grows less. You will find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin an excellent aid in regulating the bowels. It contains senna and cascara (natural laxatives) and it will clear-up any bilious, sluggish condition without upset. Delightful taste, and pleasant action. Your druggist has it.

LAYMEN'S SUPPER TONIGHT

A laymen's supper will be held to- night (Thursday) at the First Baptist Church.
A special program has been arrang- ed consisting of an address by Rev. C. E. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist Church and member of the American Legion at Pampa; and a vocal solo by Clarence Huber, musical director of the Pampa church.

UNSUNG HEROES

There is something fine and re- assuring about the little touch of re- lief which good crops and good prices have brought to the farmers of this locality. Out of it are coming ex- periences which revive one's faith in the fundamental goodness of human nature. Those who have been hard pressed for years are taking prompt advantage of their favorable turn of fortune to settle the old accounts that they could not take care of until now. It is not necessary to remind them of their obligations. It was their acute knowledge of those obligations, and their honest desire to discharge them, that worried them through all those lean years. Now that they have got a "break" they are only too glad to clear the record.
That is the heartening aspect of it, the willingness with which they meet their obligations when they have the means. It does one good to think that he had faith in them, and patience. It makes one rejoice in their good fortune, because they are worthy.
Take the case of this plain man well past middle age who walks in and asks, in an apologetic tone, "How much do I owe here? It goes back three or four years, I guess, but it wouldn't do any good to try to collect it before because I didn't have the money. I got it now, and I'm going to settle up." He pays, with a bou- ant feeling of pride and relief.
That kind of frank, straightfor- ward honesty hits you where you live. You know you are dealing with a man, the kind of man who forms the backbone of the world. You know that if all men possessed his sense of obligation, honesty and fair deal- ing, his willingness to labor faith- fully for a living, there wouldn't be any crazy booms or panics because there wouldn't be any gamblers or cheaters to bring them about.

We read much about the lives and activities of those who gain notoriety in crime. How much more inspiring, elevating and reassuring it would be to read of the honesty, the devotion to duty and the sacrifice of those millions of unsung heroes on whose honesty and labor the whole super- structure of society rests.—Times Chilton, Wis.
