BOOKER LOSES NEWSPAPER

Booker has lost his newspaper for lack of support, the plant being moved to the town of Rosa, N. M. In commenting on the move, Editor Merriman says: "I have my greatest regrets in that I have not had sufficient business to warrant a newspaper plant such as this. (Several business men have said that their business was not sufficient to warrant their carrying a newspaper.) I feel that it will be a long time before Booker will be sufficiently supported to support such a newspaper. Perhaps, you do not mind, but it is hard to realize the worth of a newspaper to a town as long as you have one, but the fact comes forcibly to mind when a town of any size is left without one."

E. Bryant and Mrs. C. L. Williams left Monday for Brownfield after a visit with their daughter and sister, Bee Evans.

Days We'll Never Forget

News Adds New Features in This Edition

A number of syndicated features are added to The News with this week's issue and others will begin next week.

All dailies and most of the larger weeklies use syndicated matter and we are glad to present our readers with a larger paper from now on. A new comic page is part of the news matter to be published, making two pages of national favorites, something to interest every member of the family.

Will Rogers and Arthur Brisbane are big time writers who will contribute a weekly column to the home paper and we expect to begin a new serial story by a popular author soon.

Our women readers have not been forgotten and the weekly fashion articles can be taken as authoritative being the latest word from the world's fashion centers.

The world's news will be presented under a current events column each week, giving a digest of the more important happenings, and news pictures of interest to all will be run.

While all this costs money, it is just another one of the things that this newspaper is doing in order to keep step with the progress expected of a modern newspaper.

The editor will be glad to have comments about the different features, whether they please or not, as it is the intention to please every reader with something of interest each week.

A DRAGON

On earth there lived great dragons, So books of fiction tell; That killed men by the thousands On mountain, plain and dell; But mild indeed their slaughter— There lives on earth today A dragon killing millions, While millions more are prey.

On all the fields of battle, Where men have fought on earth, You could not find the wreckage; The heartache, grief and death As wrought by this one dragon That slays the souls of men And robs them of their reason, Then leads them into sin.

It steals from man his honor, And makes of him a bum, It wrecks his noble manhood, Then drives him to the slum. It robs both wife and children Of love that they should share, And steepers their lives in sorrow, Poverty and despair.

Licentious rape and murder, And every kind of crime Is fostered by this dragon— It matters not what clime. Let us who live in Texas, This good old Lone Star State, Smite rum with every ballot, August the twenty-eighth.

—John B. Vannoy.

Poppy Sale in Charge Legion Aux. Saturday

According to Mrs. O. E. Lochridge, president of the local American Legion Auxiliary, members of the auxiliary will sell poppies on the streets of McLean Saturday.

"How long is public memory and how enduring is public gratitude?" asks Mrs. Lochridge. "This question will be answered in McLean Saturday, in bright red poppies worn over the hearts of all who remember and are grateful to those who sacrificed their lives in the nation's defense seventeen years ago."

The women of the American Legion remember. Some of their own lie in the poppy-studded battle cemeteries in France, and every since the war they have been devoting their energies to aid those left dependent, or those who came back disabled. They will give their services on Poppy Day, so the rest of us may show that we, too, remember.

No set price will be asked for the little flowers shaped by the hands of disabled veterans, but any contribution will be accepted and the money placed in the welfare fund of the Legion and Auxiliary to be used, most of it right here in McLean, to aid those who are yet within the reach of human help.

PONTIAC WANTS DEALER

Expansion of the business volume in McLean by many thousands of dollars annually was in prospect today with the arrival here today of B. O. Cooper, district manager of the Pontiac Motor Co. with headquarters in Oklahoma City. Mr. Cooper, the direct factory representative of one of the largest divisions of General Motors, came into McLean for the express purpose of establishing a dealership here for the new Pontiac six and eight cylinder cars. These cars, since their initial public showing at the New York automobile show in January, have leaped into nationwide popularity and are establishing sales records two and three times those of a year ago.

Mr. Cooper is here to make contacts with local business men who are in a position to capitalize on the possibilities offered by a dealer franchise with his company. Dealerships in other cities the size of McLean, Mr. Cooper said, are in many instances responsible for the sale of 500 new cars a year. Such volume would mean a gross annual business of approximately $50,000, and would add an operation of that magnitude to the business turnover of McLean. As soon as the proper local man or men is located, the dealerships will be set up and the sale of Pontiacs started here at the earliest possible date, Mr. Cooper said.

See full announcement of dealership wanted, on another page.

Miss Viola Smith, Mrs. J. A. Meador and son, Harold Lee, were Shamrock visitors Thursday night.

The Howard home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. An arch of ferns and roses was formed in the French doors, under which the ceremony was performed in the presence of immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride was dressed in a lovely blue ensemble with pink accessories and carried a bouquet of pink roses, changing later to a brown going away costume.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to the guests, and the newlyweds left immediately for a wedding tour to Denver, Colo.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Howard. She is a graduate of the McLean high school, has attended West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, and has been teaching at Pagan.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Rice, is a graduate of McLean high school, and has attended W. T. S. T. C. He is employed at the Coltex Gasoline Plant at LeFors, where they will make their home.

It is a strange fact that men will sacrifice more for a poison indulgence than they will for food.

Folks who are busy in efforts to upbuild the community have no time to spread smut, knock the churches, clubs, or schools.

The man who speaks from theory only, is much more dogmatic in his statements than the man who has a practical knowledge of the subject.

It is high time for Southern cotton farmers to wake up to the fact that their market for the fleecy staple is gone, if the "pegged" price idea is to continue. Government price fixing has always resulted in final failure, regardless of a present stimulant.

The Jericho gap has relieved a lot of adverse advertising lately on account of the rains. The longer the gap remains unpaved the more we are hurt from tourists' reports. If there is any way to cut red tape and get sudden action on this gap, it by all means should be done.

Never have so many people been interested in beautifying their homes in McLean as this year. Many have remarked on the improvement to be noticed over town. The fine rains of the past few days have made gardening a real pleasure, and just a little effort will make real homes of many houses this year.

Buttons are being worn in parts of the country bearing the inscription, "Just a Taxpayer. Neither on Dole or Public Payroll." As there are now something like 35 million persons in the United States either on relief, or the public payroll, it is beginning to be unusual to be just a common taxpayer. Maybe after a few years we can frame our annual tax receipts as marks of something or other.

This paper had a part in a four page cooperative advertisement in color, in Editor and Publisher, a magazine of national circulation, last week.

This advertisement was a contribution to the business life of McLean as well as to other "main street" towns with loyal home-town newspapers, and is only a part of the expense shared by your home paper in its efforts to better business conditions in this community.

Plainview has a summer quarterly rate of $2.00 per month, entitling the user to 60,000 gallons of water. The fine homes with pretty yards and gardens are a direct result of the cheap water rate. Efforts of citizens to beautify their homes should have the cooperation of every city, for such improvements add to the value of all property in the city. Water could well be furnished those who are using over 20,000 gallons per month, at little above cost in any town.

We have several improvements on the home paper in mind for the near future. It is only by publishing an interesting paper that it is possible to hold our army of readers, and an interesting paper means more business for advertisers, as a sheet devoid of reader interest is of little value to advertisers. The News has enjoyed an enviable reputation in this section for publishing a modern weekly and we expect to continue to merit that reputation by constantly adding to our features from time to time.

Our president, in his inaugural message, said that "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," but now we have the ugly fear of government competition with private business.

A hostile attitude of the government against private industry will not help recovery, but on the contrary will retard progress.

The American people have not reached the place where they will willingly give over to the government all functions of business, for most of us still believe in the just rewards of private industry.

Loose stock on the highways in Texas have destroyed about half of the tree plantings set by the highway department. That there is now a law against burning stock loose on the highways seems to make no difference. It is strange that some stock owners cannot bear to see a blade of grass get over an inch high without wanting their stock to graze it, and this seems to be the attitude of a lot of stock owners, whether the said grass is on the highway, in a city park, cemetery, or on some private lawn.

The worth of a newspaper as an advertising medium depends just as much upon its content as upon the number of copies distributed to its readers. If the paper is filled with material that subscribers like to read, its space is worth more than if it is filled mostly with matter that no one is interested in. That is why this paper has been able to survive through thirty-odd years of ups and downs in business life. We are continually striving to improve the reading content of the paper and are now giving more for the money than ever. That regular advertising in the home paper pays, is evident from the number of firms whose messages are in its columns from week to week. The advantages of our service are available at small cost at any time to any merchant who desires to increase his business.

SCOUTING

By Roy Machen and Zane Smith Scouters

RESPECTS DUE THE FLAG

In last week's Scouting column was a brief history and description of our national flag. This week it is the column's purpose to give a brief resume of the respects due the flag of our country.

The flag of the United States of America is primarily my flag and your flag and we are everyone justly proud of it. It is in all probability more revered and more loved by the man or woman who has seen service in some branch of the armed forces of the United States. To them it is always an emblem of freedom, justice and cleanness of purpose. To them the BLUE represents justice; the RED the life-blood of the brave men and women, perhaps comrades or "buddies" who have died in its service; and the WHITE stands for purity, or cleanness of purpose.

Hats off! Along the streets there comes

A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums, A flash of color beneath the sky;

Hats off! The Flag is passing by!

Hats off! Along the streets there comes

A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums, And loyal hearts are beating high;

Hats off! The Flag is passing by!

—H. H. Bennett.

Perhaps the best known form of respect is the pledge of allegiance to the flag: "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." When taking this pledge in ranks, the scout salutes and holds the salute through the entire pledge.

The following excerpts are from Frank Crane's article of some years ago, which appeared in the New York Globe:

"When you see the Stars and Stripes displayed, stand up and take off your hat. Somebody may titter. It is in the blood of some to deride all expressions of noble sentiment.

"But don't you mind! When Old Glory comes along, salute, and let them think what they please! When you hear the band play The Star Spangled Banner while you are in a restaurant or hotel dining room get up, even if you rise alone; stand there and don't be ashamed of it, either!

"Don't be ashamed when your throat chokes and the tears come, as you see it flying from the masts of our ships on all the seas or floating from every flagstaff of the Republic. You will never have a worthier emotion Reverence it as you would reverence the signature of the Deity.

"Listen, son! The band is playing the National Anthem—The Star Spangled Banner! They have let loose Old Glory yonder. Stand up—and others will stand up with you."

When the flag is passing on parade or review, salute. When the flag of the United States is being hoisted or lowered, face it and salute. When passing the flag, come to salute six paces before reaching it and hold the salute until six paces past it. A flag unfurled and hung in a room should be saluted the first time you have occasion to pass it, but not thereafter. When the National Anthem is played, salute. The flag and the National Anthem are priceless American heritages.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

THE LORD'S SUPPER

Lesson text, Matt. 26:17-30. Golden text, "Do this in remembrance of me." 1 Corinthians 11:24.

The feast of the Passover was an important part of the religious life of the Jews. It dated back to the exodus from Egypt. Following the plagues and preceding the death of the firstborn, the Lord gave orders to the Jews to carry out certain acts as a matter of protection and preparation for the feast. These constituted the feast of the Passover. A lamb in perfect condition was to be slain and roasted, and was to be eaten with bitter herbs and unleavened bread, by the family readiness for departure. The blood of the lamb was to be smeared upon the doorposts of the house. As the death angel passed over the land that night, the execution of the tenth plague, the homes which had blood over the door were passed over. This annual feast of the Jews meant much in their minds and hearts close to God as they remembered the protection and leadership of God over their forefathers.

This was the feast for which Jesus and the two disciples, Peter and Judas, according to Luke, to prepare, at even Jesus came with the ten disciples to the place prepared. It was during the observance of this feast that Jesus, sore at heart because of the things which were to befall him, spoke concerning the things to come. He told that one who was eating with Him would be a betrayer. Judas, in asking along with the other disciples if it were he, did not deign to call Jesus Master, but used the more formal word, "Rabbi." When there was an understanding between Jesus and Judas as to the evil of the latter's intentions, Jesus took complete charge of him and he went out immediately to accomplish his purpose. (John 13:30).

It did not dawn upon the disciples as to just what was taking place, we see from John's record in the thirteenth chapter. Therefore, with just that loyal, faithful group, Jesus took the bread and the cup and instituted what is termed in the New Testament "The Lord's Supper," and what most Christians have come to call "Communion."

Following the observance of the Passover feast and the washing of the feet of the disciples and some eating, took bread. It is likely that Jesus took unleavened bread, but the Scripture in no place so states. In the case the word used for the bread He took is the word for the common loaf of bread which is an entirely different word from that used for unleavened bread. This Jesus took and gave to the disciples to eat as a representative of His body which was so soon to be broken upon the cross. He then took the cup. The wine is not used. In Mark 14:25 Jesus goes on to speak concerning the elements of the vine.

The elements of the Lord's Supper represent the broken body and spilled blood of Christ. We are told in 1 Corinthians that as oft as we partake of them as the Lord's Supper we are to do so in remembrance of Christ (1 Cor. 11:25). We are also in this chapter that we are to take of the elements lovingly and reverently in a manner that would glorify the Lord. This is to be done in the fellowship of the Christ who saved our hearts. The relationship which it represents is between our hearts and the Lord Jesus, since we are in remembrance of Him. Then in the 26th verse of the above chapter, in partaking of the Lord's Supper we are announcing to the world the death of Christ until He comes again. We announce this by remembering Him in this ordinance because of what He has done for us.

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper is to be taken only by those who have been baptized. Every church organization in the terminology of its scriptural interpretations agrees at that point. The observance is to be by only those who are following the Lord in their lives. Therefore it should be a great factor in making the Christian in keeping us in the right and narrow way. Where is the man who can solemnly and conscientiously profess to own the substitution of Christ in death for himself and receive of the representative elements of the broken body and shed blood of Christ without being a betrayer? Likely we too often eat and drink without even thinking

Freckles or tan, especially of long standing, often prove difficult to remove. Since this month ushers in the open season for both these skin blemishes, probably a recipe for a home skin bleach will not come amiss.

Mix thoroughly three tablespoons of oatmeal, cornmeal or almond meal with two tablespoons of strained lemon juice, adding enough witch hazel to make a smooth paste. To use, first rub a little cream on the skin, then apply the paste. Leave on until thoroughly dry, then wash off with warm water, finishing with cold water.

TABLE MATS OF YARN

For all you readers who have made hooked rugs of yarn and have bits of the yarn left over, this idea will be particularly appealing. You can make the most amusing table mats of them which are an excellent protection and very attractive as well. The tiny burlap squares may be purchased already stamped or you may get the burlap and make your own designs.

I have found that these are quite as satisfactory as the asbestos mats and, in fact, often seems to be better—on account of their thickness, I suppose—in preventing the heat from the dishes marking the table.

SUNSHINE CAKE

6 eggs
1/2 teaspoon of cream of tartar
1 cup of sugar
1 cup of flour, sifted four times
1/2 teaspoon of vanilla.

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks with an egg-beater until light colored, add sugar slowly, beating constantly. Beat egg whites until frothy, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold the whites into the yolk mixture and add vanilla. Fold in flour, a little at a time. Pour into an angel food cake pan and bake in a slow oven.

Do not let the oven get too warm because a crust will form and prevent the cake from rising as high as it ought. This may be served with or without icing. An orange icing is delicious, as follows:
2 cups of confectioners' sugar
4 tablespoons of butter
4 tablespoons of orange juice
Grated rind of half an orange
Boiling water
Mix sugar, butter, orange juice and rind. Add boiling water until of a consistency to spread. Beat until smooth and spread over top and sides of cake.

MORE MILES. Faster miles. Greater economy . . . that is the story of the Ford V-8. There are conclusive figures from owners to show that it is the most economical Ford car ever built.

A particularly interesting and complete report of costs comes from a national fleet owner who has owned 854 Ford cars which have run more than thirty million miles in business use.

175 were Model T Fords which were run 5,017,075 miles. 599 were Model A Ford cars which were run 24,041,632 miles. 80 are Ford V-8 cars which have been run 2,982,886 miles.

This owner's cost records show that Ford V-8 cars cost 12% less to operate than the Model A Fords and 31% less than the Model T Fords. And they covered more miles per month! The monthly average for the Model T Fords was 1509 miles. . . . For the Model A Fords, 1866 miles. . . . And 2571 miles for the Ford V-8.

Preparing for Another Stratosphere Flight

HOCKEY MANAGER

Marvin (Red) Dutton, hard hitting defense man of the New York Americans, has been signed as manager of that hockey team for the 1935-36 season. He succeeds "Bullet Joe" Simpson.

Establish Camp in South Dakota

Preparations for another flight into the stratosphere are being made by the National Geographic society and the United States army. A camp is now under construction near Rapid City, S. D. In the photograph, army trucks are shown unloading equipment, marking first activities at the camp scene.

The American record for stratosphere flights was set by Lieut. Com. T. G. Settle, U. S. N., and Maj. C. L. Fordney of the marine corps at Akron, Ohio, on November 30, 1934. While Russian balloonists are said to have exceeded the American record of 61,237 feet, their flight ended disastrously.

Those sponsoring the flight this year hope that new and valuable data on a number of scientific subjects may be gained.

HE FLIES EVERY DAY

Here is Dr. John D. Brock, sportsman pilot of Kansas City, Mo., who was honored by the National Aeronautic association in Washington after he had made his two thousandth consecutive daily flight.

Appointed Work Relief Executive

Morris L. Cooke, Atlanta engineer, has been appointed head of the rural electrification division of the works relief administration. Much research work has already been done on the problem of rural electrification, and Cooke's appointment is expected to speed this program.

"The advantage of electrification for the farm home and the farm itself are so obvious that there is hardly any need for comment on this work which the President and the congress have delegated to the Rural Electrification administration," Cooke said when interviewed.

"Approximately 86 per cent of the farms today are without electricity and the advantages it brings."

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS—Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. That is generally that's all I know, but I haven't been reading them so much lately. I been busy on a movie. Its called In Old Kentucky. It was one of the most famous old plays of our young days. I never was fortunate enough to see it, but I heard a lot about it. It was written by Mr. Dazey. He has a son Frank Dazey that's a fine scenario writer, and also his wife is a dandy scenario writer. She is called Agnes Johnson.

When our youngest kid Jimmy was about 12 he used to play polo. He had a couple of little old ponies, and he played quite a bit with the women, and Agnes Johnson played, and Jim had heard all the other women call her "Aggie" so he used to holler, "Leave it Aggie, leave it Aggie!" My wife told him he should call a Lady by her first or nick name. Jim said "Well when you are going so fast and you want her to leave the ball, you haven't got time to say a lot of names. I cant holler leave it Mrs. Agnes Johnson Dazey. The game would be over by then."

Well I got to get back to old Kentucky. Of course I dont know how much our picture will be like the original Old Kentucky play. Anyhow we are having a lot of fun making it. We are working out at a fine stock ranch owned by Mr. Craleton Burke, the head of Californias Racing Commission. He and his Commission are the ones that kept racing on such a high plane out here and it was such a success. He breeds some very fine horses, he and Mr. Nell McCarty, one of Los Angeles most prominent attorneys.

You know this horse breeding and raising has become a great fad not only out here, but all over the Country. Never was the horse so popular as now. Well I have just been up there playing with those beautiful young thoroughbred colts, and their mothers who had raced on famous tracks and some had made great records and won many many thousands of dollars. This McCarty is a nut on breeding strains, and remembering whos pap was who. You know England is great for that. I was out one day at a big English Estate for lunch, and more women than men, and for once in my life I never got to say a word. All the whole talk was "Sires, damms, gets, foals, and this strain couldnt go the distance, and that strain was a bit sluggish". Not a word about the Republicans or the Democrats and I couldnt get in a word edgewise.

But say those English sires do know breeding, of horses and dogs. But then there is nothing nicer than the raising of a nice animal of any description. Those great racing stock farms out from Lexington Kentucky are the greatest sight in America. See old man O: War out there with a skin of golden chestnut that glistens like gold in the sun, and the old darky that takes care of him has a monologue that goes just like one of these tourist guides. He cant stop till he is finished the whole thing. See some old sleepy looking away back mare with a colt tugging at her, and maby five years ago 50 thousand people were standing hollering her name.

It must be a great thrill to breed a horse yourself and then have them win a race, like the Kentucky Derby or the Santa Anita Handicap.

You know in the Argentine they have some very fine horses, and among the wealthy polo players, it is almost considered a disgrace to ride a horse in your string that you did not breed yourself. They all have big ranches out from Buenos Aires and they break them in working them after cattle, so they are really cow ponies, but thoroughbreds. Averil Harriman in this Country breeds his string, and some others but not so many.

Thoroughbreds are a nervous, nutty lot. I like an old gentle, kind of dopey horse, that is, I mean, to ride around, and mess about on. I want one you kinder got to work your passage on, and kinder nudge him in the stomach at every step. We have a lot o' pretty steep mountain trails out here and they are plenty narrow and steep some times, and there is a lot of difference in the way different horses negotiate em.

I saw the English Derby one time, I think it was 1906 and a horse named Spearmin, (I think it was) won it, but I wasnt chewing much gum then and didnt bet on him. I also in 1903 saw the Melbourne Cup Race run in Melbourne, Australia. We were showing there with Wirth Brothers Circus. I think there was forty five starters, run on a grass track and they run the opposite way. It comes pretty near being as great a race as there is in the World. Those people out there just bet everything in the world on that race, and the forty five horses all finished within four lengths of each other with six overlapping the winner. Boy, there was a horse race, and they have em that good every year.

WRITTEN WORDS OF THE CHRIST?

Biblical Experts Studying Precious Document.

A document purporting to be a reproduction of a letter written by Jesus is being studied by Biblical experts at the request of Rev. Desmond Morse-Boycott, London, England, its owner. No trace of the writings of Jesus has hitherto been discovered, although theologians say he must have written much.

The document gives the text of two letters, one said to have been written by Agbarus, prince of Edessa, in Arabia, the other the reply of Jesus.

Rev. Mr. Morse-Boycott said: "The document in my possession was found in Britain centuries ago and it compares generally with the book of church history written by Eusebius in the early ages of Christianity."

Agbarus (an Arabian name meaning "most powerful") suffered from a wasting disease. Having heard of the healing powers of Jesus, he sent a letter by carrier entreating Jesus to visit him.

Jesus could not respond to the call, but sent Agbarus a letter promising healing and salvation. After the ascension, St. Thomas sent Thaddeus to Edessa to fulfill the promise of Jesus.

Rev. Mr. Morse-Boycott continued: "Eusebius, in his writings, quotes from first hand, and my document substantially agrees with his words. The letter of Agbarus to Jesus, in my document, reads:

"Agbarus, prince of Edessa, sends greetings to Jesus the excellent Saviour, who has appeared in the borders of Jerusalem. I have heard the reports respecting Thee and Thy cures, as performed by Thee without medicine and without the use of herbs.

"For as it is said Thou causest the blind to see again, the lame to walk, and Thou cleanest the lepers. And hearing all these things of Thee . . . I have written and besought Thee to visit me and heal the disease with which I am afflicted.

"I have also heard that the Jews murmur against Thee, and are plotting to injure Thee; I have, however, a very small but noble state, which is sufficient for us both."

Rev. Mr. Morse-Boycott added: "The sincerity of the letter is clear. Eusebius describes it as 'brief but very nervous.'"

"The reply as given in my document was: "Blessed art thou, O Agbarus, who without seeing, hast believed in Me. For it is written concerning Me that they who have seen Me will not believe, that they who have not seen may believe and live.

"But in regard to what thou hast written, that I should come to thee, it is necessary that I should fulfill all things here, for which I have been sent. And after this fulfillment, thus to be received again by Him that sent Me.

"And after I have been received, I will send to thee a certain one of My disciples, that he may heal thy affliction, and give life to thee and those that art with thee."

Rev. Mr. Morse-Boycott said: "Eusebius claims to have found these two letters in the archives of the city of Edessa and to have translated them from the Syriac. Appended to the letter of Jesus was an account of the healing of Agbarus by Thaddeus, in the year 340 of the Seleucidae, equivalent to A. D. 28-29, which is the date given by scholars to the Crucifixion."

War on Wild Boars

Hunting wild boars, a dangerous sport in any region, is a grim business to the ranchers of Neuquen territory in the Andean foothills, says the Montreal Herald. Wild boars by the hundreds are playing havoc with flocks of sheep and the ranchers have organized systematic hunts. Cornering the animals in a difficult business, however, because the wild pigs frequent the fastnesses of the foothills, not easy of access. Specially trained packs of hounds are used to trail the boars and bring them into the open to face the rifle fire of the massed ranchers. Added to the difficulties are the expenses of the hunt, casualties among the dogs run high. The area most affected is in the department of Los Lagos, the lake region on the Argentine side of the Andes, where great packs of hounds are constantly on patrol.

Unique Cause for Place in Annals of Surgery

A man who swallowed a table knife in 1635 has been honored in the Koenigsberg Municipal Museum of History as a hero of early surgery. The gentleman in question, according to ancient records, failed to respond to the treatment of seventeenth century doctors, most of whom prescribed that the knife swallower stand on his head for long periods so that the weapon would work its way out through the mouth.

The victim finally had the courage to submit to an operation, from which he recovered in spite of the lack of anesthetics and the use of crude surgical instruments. The nature of the patient, recently discovered in Koenigsberg city archives, has been hung in the municipal museum, following a ceremony in his honor.

Should Be Excepted "Only foolish men whistle at their work," declares a professor. This seems unduly hard on locomotive engineers.

Bilious Attacks, Dizziness

"Bilious attacks," dizziness, spots before the eyes, a feeling of fullness after ordinary meals, belching up of gas, a dull, sluggish feeling—due to constipation—are usually driven away by a dose or two of reliable Theodor's Black-Draught.

"I take Black-Draught for biliousness, dizziness, and when I feel tired and stupid," writes Mr. M. L. Simmons, of Pickens, S. C. "It seems to cleanse the system and make me feel a hundred per cent better."

Thousands of men and women prefer this purely vegetable laxative. THEODOR'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

CHAPTER 2
WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jean Valjean, sentenced to five years in the galleys for the theft of a loaf of bread, serves his term of horrible torture and privation. Paroled, he is shunned by everyone and hounded by the authorities. He seeks refuge in the home of kindly old Bishop Bienvenu who treats him like a long lost brother. Jean is suspicious of such kindness; revenge for the wrongs done him is foremost in his muddled mind.

The Bishop's Canasticks

The only dish on the table is a large tureen of ragout. Also bishop and Mike, Baptiseme are at opposite ends. Magloire sits opposite Jean, who keeps his eyes on his plate and eats as though he were famished. "I seem to miss something—the table looks bare," says the bishop. "When we have visitors we use the silver plates, but—" She says Jean suspiciously and seems to say not when these kind of people are about. She looks at the bishop and Jean rises and gets the silver plates from the sideboard. They do not seem unnoticed by Jean. "After the meal has been cleared away, Jean and the bishop are standing at the open door of the latter's bedroom. The bishop is holding two silver candlesticks, both with candles alight. Magloire passes and goes into the room carrying the silver unconcerned. "Well, well, well, what are plates, after all? We can just as well eat off tin."

"How can we? Tin tastes."
"Well, then, iron plates."
"Iron's as bad."
"Well, then wood—"
"Who ever heard of a bishop eating off wooden plates?"
With a twinkling eye: "They'd probably be as good as better if they did."

There is a heavy knocking at the door. Magloire immediately registers apprehension.
The door is already half-open when the bishop, unperturbed, again calls in his usual easy manner:
"Come in!"

Three gendarmes are there and between them is Jean, utterly dejected.
"This man, Jean Valjean—we saw him running away. We stopped him and found he had this silver with your crest on it."
"Now, what is all this? I'm very glad to see you again, Jean—"

The gendarmes look astonished. Jean glares at the bishop. Is this some new trick?
"Yes, because I gave you the two silver candlesticks, as well, and they're worth perhaps two hundred francs. How did you come to leave them behind?"

Jean is too astonished to reply. The bishop turns to the police:
"Didn't he tell you that the good priest with whom he passed the night gave him this silver?"

"He said so, but naturally we thought—"
"That was very clever of you. You do your work well. But it's quite a

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Folks, I'm turning this column over to our good friend G. C. Boswell this week who is one of our Young Democrats. He was named after one of our presidents who was elected in 1884; however, that don't mean very much, because the guy I was named after was born in 1815.

What I'm afraid of is that we will have another civil war between the young Democrats and the old ones that try to make us believe they are young, but as for me, I'm going to remain neutral. I was fifty-four years old the twenty-second of May. I'm too old to be playing like I'm young. I may soon have to have a set of false teeth but I am not going to dye my hair red or paint my eyebrows black, and this time next year I'll be fifty-five years old.

Grover, as usual, is mistaken, as Judge Thurman Windjamer Adkins was elected president; however, it makes very little difference, being as there is not very much difference between Adkins and Lynch. And another thing, you ain't going to get me to say anything about school trustees or school teachers.

I doubt very seriously whether the gentleman from Abilene really enjoyed those cigars. I have a faint suspicion that he suspected those cigars as being loaded, and if he would just be fair and square and honest he would admit that he gave one of them to someone else to smoke before he smoked and "greatly enjoyed" the other two. However, here is his letter. Judge for yourself, folks, judge for yourself.

Abilene, Texas, May 14, 1935.
Mr. D. A. Davis,
McLean, Texas.

Dear Davis:
I hastened to write this letter in order to thank you for the cigars, and to assure you that they were much appreciated. When I am puffing on one of them, I think of the great character that sent them to me.

I am just a bit worried, D. A., about a matter. It looks to me like some action should be taken on it. I note that your former gin opponent is president of your school board; also I note that he has recently been made president of the Young Democrats Club. For the love of Mike, I cannot understand how you and other progressive citizens of the town will let an old man, who has one foot in the grave, become head of the Young Democrats Club. Another thing, D. A., have you ever given any thought to the fact that he is a Bill Murray

Smilin' Charlie Says-

Democrat? He cannot be anything else, having lived next door to him in Oklahoma. Now, I had hoped when you were elected mayor that you would clean up such conditions, but honestly I am afraid that they are getting worse. What they should do is to call that club the "Grandpa Democrats Club." We who are young, energetic, fiery, well-informed, well-respected, well-balanced, recent-idea old men calling themselves young Democrats. Why you have got another man in that club by the name of C. O. Greene. I was told when I left McLean that C. O. was in the city fifth year, and what I want to know and what I would like for you to answer in your press is, just how old must a man become before he becomes old enough to be a young Democrat?

I always tell my history classes that I have always been a Democrat, but I have never reached such age as Greene, Lynch, and others. Why, when I was there, I called them Mr. because my mother always told me to address my elders as Mr., Dr., Rev., Honorable, or some other such title. Now when you get all this arranged satisfactorily to me, then I will believe that you will make the town a successful mayor, but you cannot do it if you allow the Democratic party to be dragged down and your feelings trampled on. Why, the principles for which our forefathers fought are involved. Your platform as a candidate for mayor is certainly being jeopardized. Won't you please do something and do it immediately? With all good wishes, I am, Yours sincerely, plates in a basket. She gives a further look at Jean as she passes. The bishop indicates the door opposite.

"This is your room—the best we can do—hope you'll be comfortable enough—take this!" He gives Jean one of the silver candlesticks.

But during this Jean's attention has been riveted on Magloire, who is putting the silver in the cupboard at the head of the bishop's bed. She sees him and comes to the door, shutting it.

"She's afraid of me! And no wonder!" He looks at the bishop. "How do you know I won't murder you in the night?"

"Well, how do you know I won't murder you?" is the soft-spoken reply.

Jean's expression plainly says, "What's absurd."

"You have faith in me, it seems? I must do the same by you, isn't it? Good night." Jean stares at him, amazed.

A Thief in the Night

Jean wakes with a start. His hand instinctively goes to his wallet. He finds himself that the 109 francs are there. Then the thought comes to his mind—the bishop's silver. The cunning, crafty look of the criminal comes into his face again.

He gets out of bed quietly, goes to his knapsack—takes out an iron bar, and, menacingly, the door to the bishop's room is ajar. It makes him shudder. He enters, glances at the sleeping man with haggard, astonished, not unmixed with awe, then moves to the cupboard to open it.

There is no need to use force—the door is already there. Again it seems easy, and he glances suspiciously in the bishop's direction, then begins to pull out the silver, which is piled together in a basket.

The bishop is busy writing in the ledger-room. He looks up as he hears a scream from Magloire and a sound of running feet.

"The silver is gone! I told you—what man! He went off without a word and he's taken the silver! Now I've no silver plates."

The bishop goes back to his notes, mistake"; he turns to Jean, "the silver was his."

"Then we can let him go?"
"Why, certainly! And give him his knapsack!"

When they are left alone together, Jean is almost overwhelmed. He begins to break down.

"Is it true?" he stammers. "I don't go back to the galleys? You'll let me go free?"

When is a Man Free?

"When is a man free? I wish someone could tell me. Yes, you can go. And this time, of course, take your candlesticks."

"You give them to me?"
"Long ago, Jean," the bishop says gently. "I learned that life was to give—not take. Let me give. In turn, promise me, in turn—will give."

Jean is unable to speak. He drops to one knee. The bishop puts his hand on his shoulder.

"My door is never closed. Don't use any other way—furtively, in the night. The door is the right way, and the right way, Jean, is always open to you."

It is this view of the bishop that Jean carries in his mind forever after.

Jean lifts himself to his feet and with his shoulders hunched for his knapsack stumbles to the door, his whole body shaking.

He trudges along the road, shoulders bowed, his eyes vague and bewildered, trying to understand. As he trudges, the bishop's voice comes to him—

"Life is to give, not to take—promise me, when your turn comes, you, too—will give."

Slowly it comes to him that there is still someone with faith and trust in the world. He feels the world can still hold something for him—one man, at least, has trusted him.

The trudge-rhythm changes, his head and shoulders become erect and he looks into the future with hope and determination in his eyes.

Thus ended the first phase of the life of Jean Valjean.

Go through the kitchen drawers, shelves, etc., and gather up all the articles that are useless and get rid of them. Several minutes each day may be wasted looking for small objects which may be used under an old egg beater which is useless because its cogs slip. Broken knives, etc., should either be repaired or thrown away, and articles which are only on rare occasions should be discarded so they are not always in the way.

PILSUDSKI'S DEATH WORRIES STATESMEN OF EUROPE— FLEET MANEUVERS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

COMPLICATIONS in the already precarious European situation were expected to result from the death of Marshal Josef Pilsudski, the virtual dictator of Poland. The "father of his country" succumbed to cancer of the stomach in Warsaw and his death was a great shock to the Poles for the serious nature of his affliction had been concealed from the public. The marshal's heart was interred at Vilna and his brain was given to science, according to his request; but his body was buried in the cathedral of Rawel castle at Crakow beside those of King John Sobieski, Thaddeus Kosciuszko and others of Poland's great men.

Pilsudski held only the office of minister of war, but was the real ruler of Poland, and there was anxious speculation as to his successor. Some observers thought this might be Col. Josef Beck, the foreign minister, who was especially close to the marshal. Other candidates were Alexander Prystor, former premier, and the present premier, Col. Walerj Slawek.

The iron-willed marshal had been a consistent advocate of a close rapprochement between Poland and Germany, sternly curbing the activities of those who favored the course of breaking away from the reich and standing with France in her policies for eastern Europe. Pilsudski was rather offended by the recently signed pact between France and Russia, and French Foreign Minister Laval stopped in Warsaw on his way to Moscow to try to pacify him; but the marshal was too ill to take part in the discussions and Laval went on to Russia without even seeing him.

The government announced it would continue to function as though Pilsudski were alive. The authority of the dictator, it said, has passed to his lifelong friends, President Ignace Moscicki, Premier Slawek, Foreign Minister Beck and Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly. The appointment of General Rydz-Smigly as Pilsudski's successor as inspector general of the army was in accordance with the marshal's command.

The government denied any changes were impending. It announced that both the internal and foreign policies which Pilsudski inaugurated will be followed faithfully by the men he had trained for executive positions.

RIGID censorship, such as would be imposed in war time, shrouded the American fleet's tactical operations in the Pacific, but was relaxed enough for the announcement of two unfortunate occurrences. While destroyers were leading larger vessels through an "enemy" network of submarines the Lea smashed into the Sicard, tearing a big hole in her side. Richard Chadwick, second class gunner's mate on the Sicard, was killed and three other men were slightly injured, official records stated.

Lieut. Mathias B. Wyatt of San Diego, a graduate of the naval academy, was piloting one of eighteen fighting planes which took off from the aircraft carrier Saratoga 200 miles east of Honolulu to ward off an attack of "enemy" submarines. His plane was caught in the slipstream from another and fell into water three miles deep. No trace of him or his ship was found.

In connection with the maneuvers the greatest interest was in the mass flight of forty-three planes from the Pearl Harbor naval base westward, presumably to Midway Islands. They were under the command of Commander E. W. Tod, U. S. N., and for the time being all that the public was permitted to know was that they reached their secret destination safely and were "executing their missions." One report was that the planes made one stop en route and that forty-one of them finished the flight together, two arriving later.

REAR ADMIRAL RICHARD EVELYN BYRD and members of his South Polar expedition came sailing home at last on their ship Bear of Oakland and were given the warmest kind of a welcome in Washington by President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Navy Swanson, other officials and a host of their relations and personal friends.

The admiral and Mrs. Byrd spent a night in the White House. Then he was joined by his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, and his four children, and the family party left for the Bear of Oakland and the Jacob Ruppert, supply ship of the expedition, departed from the Washington navy yard for Boston, the admiral planning to board the Ruppert en route.

Admiral Byrd has plenty of work ahead, with the mass of data gathered in the Antarctic, a book to be written and a lecture tour to be made, but his plans for the immediate future were uncertain. "I would like to take a little vacation," he said. "Perhaps it will be in the Maine woods, where it will be cool."

THE administration's program in the senate was delayed by a renewal of Huey Long's attack on Postmaster General Farley. The Louisiana senator called up his resolution for an investigation of Farley and produced some new charges, and a protracted debate ensued. Long submitted an affidavit made by Helen Humphreys, a former employee of the James A. Stewart company, New York contractors, accusing Farley of manipulating government contracts and giving valuable stamps to prospective purchasers of materials from the General Builders' Supply corporation, Farley's firm. These stamps were so valuable, Long charged, that a bank lent $10,000 on them.

BY A vote of about 2 to 1 the striking workers in the Toledo Chevrolet plant decided to accept a compromise offer that had been fixed up by federal labor committee, A. F. of L. leaders, company officials and federal mediators. It was expected that this would result in the return to work of 35,000 men in Toledo and other motor car manufacturing centers. The strike in Toledo was engineered by the local union and really was not in accord with the plans of the American Federation of Labor.

RURAL electrification administration, one of the new divisions of the works relief program, was established by President Roosevelt in an executive order, and Morris L. Cooke, a Philadelphia engineer, was appointed to be its chief. The sum of $75,000 was allotted for its administrative expenses, and allocations are to be made later for authorized individual projects.

The executive order described the duties and functions of the new unit as "to initiate, formulate, administer and supervise a program of approved projects with respect to the generation, transmission and distribution of electrical energy in rural areas."

The order permits the administrator to acquire by purchase or by the power of eminent domain any real property or any interest therein and improve, develop, grant, sell, lease or otherwise dispose of any such property.

DENNIS CHAVEZ, who contended that he really defeated Bronson M. Cutting in the election of a United States senator from New Mexico last year, now has Mr. Cutting's seat in the senate. Following the senator's death in an airplane crash, Mr. Chavez was appointed by Gov. Clyde Tingley to fill the vacancy. He will hold office until the next general election in November, 1936, when a successor will be elected, and that is likely to be Mr. Chavez again.

The new senator, who is the head of the Democratic party in New Mexico, was born in that state 47 years ago. While serving as a senate clerk he attended Georgetown university law school and after returning to Albuquerque to practice law he was elected to the state legislature. In 1930 he was elected New Mexico's one representative in the national house and was re-elected in 1932. He resigned in 1934 to oppose Cutting in the senatorial race and was defeated by about 1,000 votes.

EXTENSION of the NRA for one year, and not for two as asked by President Roosevelt, is advocated by the American Liberty league, which in a statement issued from Washington says the resolution offered by Senator Bennett Clark is the most feasible method of rescuing business from bureaucracy and experimentation.

"Commendation is due to the senate finance committee, which voted out the resolution of Senator Clark rather than the administration bill of Senator Harrison," the league said. "The bill has all the earmarks of a tricky attempt to avoid a definite determination of the constitutional validity of the recovery act through a decision of the Supreme court."

"The shifting of the legal foundation of the NRA might permit its continuance, following an adverse decision, until new test cases could be advanced through successive steps to the highest court."

"The Clark resolution, aside from its advantages, is free from any attempt to prevent the courts of the nation from fulfilling their constitutional duty of passing upon the validity of the legislation."

SEVENTEN years ago the first official government air mail service between New York and Washington was established, when Lieut. Torrey Webb in an army plane started from Belmont Park, L. I., for the National Capital with a load of mail. The anniversary was celebrated at Newark airport with the opening of the new $500,000 administration building, federal, state and New York city officials taking part in the program. Amelia Putnam dedicated a new amphibian plane, and one of the original six army mail flyers, Lieut. Edwin W. Kligore of Short Hills, N. J., was among those present.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Robinson the Key Man
Washington.—On June 16, 1934, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, rose in his place in the senate and presented a summary of accomplishments of the first regular session of congress under the New Deal. The vast amount of legislation enacted was analyzed and its importance to the country set forth. The one thing that was lacking in that summary was any reference to the Herculean effort of Senator Robinson. He took no credit for himself although it was everywhere realized that Senator Robinson had been the key man in accomplishing that great amount of work.

Congress still will be in session on June 16, 1935. Senator Robinson, of course, will not present a summary of legislative enactments by the current session until the closing day—and your guess is as good as mine as to when that will be. But after virtually five months of the current session, observers cannot help looking back to see what has been done. Comparisons can hardly be avoided.

We find from the records at the Capitol that a total of fifty laws of a public character have completed passage through congress and have received Presidential consideration. That number appears large—an average of ten pieces of legislation a month—but when the nature of the bills themselves is examined, a contrary conclusion must be reached.

I have reported to you heretofore some details of how congress has been balking. Undenialably, there has been stalling and delays accountable only in politics. There have been controversies over entirely minor and inconsequential matters. Individual representatives and senators having no claims to leadership either from ability or seniority have been able to block enactments in a fashion almost unknown except where congress has been at loggerheads with the Chief Executive.

Through all of these, I think it is fair to say that Senator Robinson has been the most vigorous fighter in behalf of the New Deal of any who maintains a position of prominence in the present administration. Instead of receiving credit, pats on the back, as he did a year ago, the Arkansas senator has been receiving some wholly unwarranted kicks in the pants. If there is to be a goat in congress through the failure of some of the highly controversial New Deal legislation it is liable to be Joe Robinson. If such is the result, it will demonstrate better than anything else the ingratitude of politics because observers agree that except for Senator Robinson the senate would be out of hand and President Roosevelt really would have a serious problem as regards the enactment of his program. It is my own belief that Senator Robinson deserves all of the acclaim which the New Dealers can heap upon him instead of criticism that is cropping up here and there.

Senator Robinson's job has been made much more difficult than a senate leader's job ought to be by constant meddling from brain trust quarters. By the same token Senator McNary, of Oregon, who carries the title of Republican leader, has had numerous opportunities to give prominence to Republican doctrine. But Senator McNary has been just as quiet as Senator Robinson has been active.

So, when it is shown that only four important pieces of legislation have passed congress this session the blame, if there be blame, must be attributed not to the Democratic leadership, but to an undercurrent of objection to New Deal principles. The house under the speakership of Representative Byrns of Tennessee has performed as the house usually does where there is a preponderant majority by one party. It has obeyed Presidential instructions and has put through bills about as the White House desired. The obstacle has been the senate and in all probability it will continue to be troublesome ground for the administration.

Senate Is Balking

Borrowing the favorite phrase of a one-time Democratic candidate for President, "Let us look at the record." Up to the present four bills of national scope have passed. The five billion dollar works relief legislation was passed after a delay of two months; legislation extending the life of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was not controversial and was passed almost by unanimous vote, and the additional appropriation of $1,750,000 for the Home Owners Loan corporation brought little objection in its course through congress. The other national piece of legislation that has been finished is the soldiers' bonus, a measure highly objectionable to the President and therefore, after all, not completed legislation.

With regard to the other bills that have passed, none of them can be said to be of consequence. They are designated as public laws, distinguishing them from purely private bills of limited effect. Naturally, they did not provoke controversy.

But awaiting action we find such legislation as the proposal to extend the life of the National Recovery administration, the so-called social security bill, revision of the agricultural adjustment act to strengthen the hand of the Department of Agriculture, and the bitterly fought Roosevelt-Eccles banking reform measure. When action will come on any of these is highly problematical. It is also a matter of pure guesswork to predict in what form these measures will emerge from the Capitol.

Each of the four bills of national scope that is pending involves principles of a character that may precipitate a deadlock at any time. The senate in times past has been known to act with utmost speed and it is possible the differences over the legislation outlined above may be adjusted so that an early adjournment will result. The prospects, nevertheless, are entirely to the contrary. Indeed, it appears that congress is due to get a taste of Washington summer heat.

Legislation Completed

The First One Goes
Looks Like War
Don't Stumble
400 Men, 400 Mice

The death of Marshal Pilsudski, ruling power of Poland, takes from that country a great man and an able patriot. Remaining in the background, exercising power without display, Marshal Pilsudski was an absolute dictator, and his death is first among the dictators developed by the great war.

Arthur Brisbane

The world may learn from his going what to expect when other dictators depart, one by one. What will be the destiny of Poland, with her strongest man gone? What, at a later time, will happen in Italy, Germany, Russia, Turkey, as each loses the dictator that now takes the place of self-government and independent public thought?

Italy calls out her "fourth class" fighting reserves and has 950,000 men ready to crush the king of Ethiopia. If crushing becomes "necessary," Note Mussolini warns other countries not to meddle and not to help Ethiopia. That looks a little like war.

Warning to politicians and others: Don't stumble.

In California, Herman Zeigler was putting 18 tame lions through their paces. He cracked the whip; they obeyed, jumping up on stools, sitting up on their hind legs. "Mind over matter" was beautifully demonstrated. The lions acknowledged their master.

Then, unfortunately, the lion tamer, careless, stumbled over a stool, fell; instantly the lions were upon him, forgetting their fear of him. He had stumbled and fallen—that was enough.

There are among us today, on and off the radio, some lion tamers, making the American people sit up and jump through hoops. Let them take care not to stumble.

In China, a subterranean river flooded the Szechwan coal mine. Four hundred miners were drowned.

Old-fashioned Chinese used to forbid, and still abhor, any mine digging, "because it disturbs the earth dragon." They will think the old earth dragon flooded the mine, ordered the unseen river to enter.

This drowning news is less exciting to the average American than it would be to have the cook announce: "There were 400 mice drowned in the sink."

The sink is near home, China is far off.

Seventy-five fighting game cocks and 35 men were seized by state troopers in a barn 15 miles out of Hammoncton, N. J. Brutality in men dies slowly, but sinks to lower levels with time.

Kings of England once sat delighted around the "cockpit," betting on their favorites, reveling in the extraordinary courage of the game birds. Now cock-fighters are driven to hiding in barns, police arrest them, magistrates fine them.

Perhaps some day civilization will feel about man-fights, on the battlefield, as it does now about cock-fights.

Hitler continues his program on the "If you do not like it, lump it" plan.

Washington protested feebly against Germany's discrimination in debt payments against this country. Germany tells us to take what is given and be grateful, or make trade arrangements to suit Hitler. He hopes to counteract that boycott against German goods established here.

The former kaiser, reported seriously ill, is confined to his bed, ordered to allow all effort; a hard order for the "all highest."

How such names as Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini must grate on the nerves of the aging Hohenzollern! He can sympathize with England's Henry II, who, after defeat, turned his face to the wall, muttering "Shame on a beaten king," and died.

Mr. Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury, assures you that your American dollar is sound, which is comforting. Mr. Morgenthau knows a good deal about money.

The British do not agree with him, and some British experts consider the dollar worth about 50 cents now and expect it to go lower.

They will probably be disappointed. John D. Rockefeller's I. O. U. is as good as gold, and this country is the John D. Rockefeller among nations.

A New England gathering approves birth control and sterilization of the hopelessly insane and habitually criminal, with full dissemination of birth control information. The action was not taken by any "radicals," or other queer fauna but by the New England Conference of Methodist Churches.

That makes it news. The idea is gaining ground that the woman should have something to say about "another baby."

Find Overtures Idea of Antiquity of Pump

The town of Aquinum, once the capital of the Roman province of Pannonia, now a village in the suburbs of Budapest, Hungary, had a fire brigade just like the literal City itself. All traces of the latter's fire brigade have long since disappeared, but a relic of Aquinum's recently came to light, says the New York Times.

It is a pump used to throw water on fires, and it is the oldest fire pump in existence. Not only this, but because it is a suction, or displacement pump, it shows that the history of pumps is all wrong by placing the first use of the displacement pump in the sixteenth century, for the Aquinum pump has a bronze plate attached which states the apparatus was the gift of G. Jul. Vistorinus, prefect of the Collegium Centonarum, that is, head of the fire brigade, in 228 A. D.

Flower-Adorned Gowns of Real Silk

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ety women shop owners in the metropolitan silk showing held recently in New York.

A deep lilac silk crepe (quality-kind pure silk) fashions the stately evening gown to the left, which bears out word from Paris that deep lilac and violet tones are outstanding this season. The wide bordering of silk violets which outlines the graceful cape speaks eloquently of the fascinating and ingenious play which designers are making with flowers.

The costume centered in the picture reflects a very ecstasy of beauty. This most alluring dinner ensemble is in gray (a very high-style color for evening) pure-silk taffeta. Its cunning jacket with quaint flowing-from-the-elbow sleeves is graced with a youthful collar faced with lilacs in delectable coloring. To complete the picture mildred carries an intriguing muff done in lilacs to match.

Vaporous, elusively sheer and floating, muchly-draped and shirred chiffon is the idol of the hour for evening wear. The "darling of a gown" with "red riding hood" cape to the right in the group is of exquisite white silk chiffon. The evening hood is one of the outstanding features of the formal mode. Young girls adore them. As artful as fancy can picture is the shirring on this gown which occurs at shoulder cuffs and on the skirt. The very latest gesture in silhouettes is interpreted via the elaborate draping at the sides of the slender fitted skirt. Li-lacs on the hood and worn as a corsage sing a song of springtime youth and beauty for this dream of a midsummer night chiffon ensemble.

REGENCY TREATMENT FOR SPRING COATS

"Draped bows," "butterfly revers," "front fullness in the bodice"—call it what you will—each phrase describes the treatment that persists through the Vionnet adaptations that are shown. The coat and wrap designers give this detail an impressive position in the second spring collections.

The "pouf" at front, which gives a pleasant Regency quality to the otherwise modern coat or frock, lends itself to a variety of interpretations—suitable for taffeta or flat fur for the coat and varied from ripping revers to double jabot in crisp formal wraps. Also important as a detail that promises to be heard from are the butterfly collars that are placed high across the shoulders rather than as jabot.

Knit Suit Styles Inspire You to Do One Yourself

You know how important the suit is to be. But had you thought of knitting one for yourself? You'd be inspired to make the effort after taking one look at a three-piece which includes a British looking short jacket with skirt and sweater blouse. The jacket has all the airs of the high-powered English tailored suits of the season, with its high notched lapels, its semi-fitted lines and its casual one-button closing. Skirt and jacket are done in diagonal ribbing, with the same effectiveness of the smartest diagonal woolsens.

Tweed knit coat designs are nothing short of superb.

Taffeta Takes Prominent Place in Fashion Parade

Crisp taffeta continues as a highlight of the spring fashion parade. Rustling bags, gloves, sleeves, revers, blouses and dresses are being taken for granted, but have you seen the dashing navy and white taffeta gloves?

To make them fit well, the palms are of soft woven silk. They are gauntlet type, with a heavily corded, flared cuff. They are particularly smart with a dressy navy suit and an ideal accessory.

Lesson for May 26 THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:17-30; I Corinthians 11:23-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me—I Corinthians 11:24.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have the Lord's Supper.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Observe the Lord's Supper?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

I. It Was Instituted by Christ (Matt. 26:17-30).

1. The time of (I Cor. 11:23). It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

2. The circumstances of (Matt. 26:26). It was in connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples had made ready the Passover, and while they were eating he took bread and blessed it and gave to the disciples.

3. The elements used (v. 26). Bread, doubtless common bread of the Passover feast, and the cup which was the fruit of the vine.

II. The Significance of the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:24-26; cf. Matt. 26:28).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood. Just as our bread and drink are transformed into brain and brawn, becoming integral parts of our bodies, so by means of these symbols the communicant partakes of Christ. We are in him and he is in us.

1. It is a memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19). When he left the world he left the bread and the cup by which the disciples would remember him. Every true disciple will gladly avail himself of the opportunity thus to remember his Lord.

2. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (v. 26). Jesus Christ did not die as a hero or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom. On the cross he made expiation for sin.

3. It is a guarantee that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25).

"It was the signet of the Son of God attached to redemption."

4. It symbolizes the believer's reception of Christ (I Cor. 10:16). The communicant thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body.
5. It is a forward look to a completed redemption (I Cor. 11:26). When faith is exercised in Christ, redemption begins and its completion will take place at the coming of Jesus Christ (I Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keystone of the Lord until he returns. These elements possess not only a spiritual, but a tremendous psychological value, both as a memorial and as a prospect.

III. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:27-29).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking unworthily primarily refers not to the demerit of the communicant, but the failure to grasp the meaning and importance of the ordinance. To engage thoughtlessly in this service is to do it unworthily. Only a regenerated person can discern the Lord's body. Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement is an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (I Cor. 11:18-22). Christ's body is the Church, which is composed of regenerated men and women united to him as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk. Conduct which disqualifies for participation in the Lord's supper is a. Immoral conduct (I Cor. 5:1-13). It is most perilous for one who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (I Cor. 11:30). Sickness and death are often visited upon such. This explains why some are mysteriously taken away in death.

b. Heresy (Tit. 3:16; I John 4:23). The one who does not believe in the deity and incarnation of Christ is a heretic. Such should be excluded from the Lord's table.

c. The one who stirs up party strife (Rom. 16:17). Those who cause divisions in the Church should also be excluded from the Lord's table.

Freedom and Triumph

To be gripped by an iron-handed necessity from without is slavery; to be borne along the path of duty by an inward force, which we would not resist if we could, is freedom, peace, triumph.

SEED THOUGHTS

Often it takes some tide of grief to lift us to our best.

Remember that every drop of rain that falls bears into the bosom of the earth a quality of beautiful fertility.—G. H. Lewes.

All things and all acts and this whole wonderful universe proclaim to us the Lord our Father, Christ our love, Christ our hope, our portion, and our joy.

Make Selection for Your Quilt

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Each patch work or applique quilt requires quilting, and a design should be selected that harmonizes with the design used in the patches. Space for quilting also varies, and the women who do this work should have quite an assortment of quilting designs on hand from which to make a selection. We have pictured three different sets of perforated quilting patterns in past issues.

The above twelve patterns are not perforated. They are, however, printed in dots on perforating bond paper and must be perforated with a pin.

which can be done in about ten minutes for each pattern. The patterns are eight times as large as the illustrations above.

Package No. 31A contains these twelve patterns, with cotton and blue powder for stamping; also full instructions how to perforate and stamp them will be mailed to you postpaid upon receipt of 15c.

Involved Mathematics

Mathematical knowledge has developed so tremendously in the past century that today it would require the lifelong work of 20 gifted men to master it all, writes C. H. Austin, Bradford, Mass., in Collier's Weekly. Even higher arithmetic alone now is probably beyond the mastery of any two geniuses. In fact this science has become so specialized that at meetings where, for example, 50 different papers are presented, not more than five are wholly intelligible to any one man.

GREAT HERB GARDEN

Lying on the Thames embankment, London, England, but walled from prying eyes, is Chelsea's Garden of Herbs, founded by that famous old doctor, Heric Slothe, says Pathfinder Magazine. Thousands pass it daily without realizing that here lies a link with every corner of the globe, for in this walled plot grow little-known herbs culled from gleaming coral islands, far-off jungles, and the sides of precipitous tropical ranges. Eminent scholars journey to London to study the lore of such plants, and shoots and seeds are packed with care and exported to innumerable medical centers. Every plant that is tended, there has some curative value. Immediately a new medicinal herb is discovered a specimen is sent to Chelsea, where it is nurtured. Experiments are made with seeds, roots, and bark, and its species is determined and catalogued.

HOSPITALS

By A. T. Wilson

What is one of the best things in the world? The answer is a good hospital when you really need it. Most of the hospitals are built and operated by religious organizations. Statistics show that the Catholics take the lead in establishing and operating hospitals, in spite of their denunciation of other religious bodies, but lots of railroads and other corporations have hospitals of their own and cities and other centers often build them, and the government has them in nearly every state for the benefit of war veterans. The hospital is the best sign of Christianity and the Good Samaritan spirit that any nation can show and goes to prove that actions speak louder than words.

When I was a boy an old man of the weary Willie type, poorly clothed and poorly fed, came hobbling along the railroad, passed through town and went two miles and stopped at a farmer's house, was fed and started on down the track, but a cold rain set in and he turned and tried to get back to town, but weakened by the cold rain, he fell in a ditch and wallowed around and perished miserably. He had no earthly possessions, but his scanty clothes and thirty cents tied up in the corner of a bandana handkerchief.

Transient camps and hospitals were almost unknown in those days or this old man's death agonies would have been lessened on a good hospital bed and this old man dying like he did makes one think that the good old days weren't so good after all.

At present do you suppose there is a person in the county, deserving or undeserving, that would be denied a place to stay during a cold rain, or the services of a hospital if he was badly sick or wounded?

Now a hospital is a fine thing, but it is to be avoided if you can possibly do so by preventing a condition that demands hospital service. The hospitals are full to overflowing and they are coming and going like bees in and out of a hive when the honey flow is on. Some go in sick and come out well and a few go in well and come out sick, and some go in sick and come out dead; and there seems to be a few who go to the hospital so they can talk about their operation the rest of their lives and get sympathy.

By far the greater number of operations could be avoided. The human nerves are the most sensitive and delicate things in the world and they never fail to convey to the brain a danger signal. Every pain and ache is a danger signal to be heeded but if unheeded it will eventually cause you trouble. These pains were not made to be squelched or numbed by the use of narcotics, dopes, drugs and palliatives, but to be listened to and take warning from. When a person offends Mother Nature and she penalizes him with a splitting headache and he goes and eats a whole box of aspirins to stop it he is doing the wrong thing and it will be the hospital for him eventually if he continues this modus operandi long enough. Still there are people so dumb that they will continue to do this and then wonder why they have to suffer like they do and lay it on a black cat, Friday the thirteenth, or the signs of the zodiac, when instead they should invest in a kicking machine and kick themselves until they are willing to head in. There are more people in the hospital today, even during this depression, because they eat too much, or eat the wrong kinds of foods. Some appetites are very abnormal like that of the sugar diabetes patient who has a great craving for sweets, the very thing that is killing him. On the other hand lots of folks don't like the things that do them the most good, but it is lots better to eat them and stay out of the hospital, and lots less expensive. The person that can cut down his grocery bill and improve his health, that can cut down his expenses and increase his efficiency, and that can cut down his meanness and improve his good behavior and peace of mind and stay out of the way of crazy and drunken drivers, is fortunate indeed and has the best chance in the world of staying out of the hospital.

GRASS FOR THE TABLE

Speaking before the American Chemical Society, C. F. Schnabel, of Kansas City, described cereal grasses, such as oats, wheat, barley and rye, as excellent food for humans. If cut before the first joint is formed these grasses contain 50 times as much vitamin as lettuce. For human use, Mr. Schnabel said, the grass should be dried, ground, and used in baking cookies, pancakes, etc.

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuhy
Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Vol. 2. No. 20. Text: "For in much wisdom in much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow." Ecclesiastes 1:18.

SERIOUS OUTLOOK ON LIFE

Many people today strive to be worldly wise in practically everything which in the final analysis does them harm. It is true a person must understand life, must know the fundamentals concerning his well being, his body, his community and a working knowledge of international affairs.

When a person acquires a great deal of wisdom in worldly affairs and neglects his spiritual affairs, he comes to much grief. However, a person that increaseth his knowledge even in spiritual things experiences a great deal of sorrow. This sounds paradoxical, yet it is true.

For example, a Christian well-versed in his Bible knows all that God has done for him; that God has created him, gives him the daily necessities of life, guards him from all danger and evil; he knows that Jesus Christ is his Lord and Master; that the same Christ has redeemed him from the bondage of sin and eternal damnation; that the very same Lord has reconciled him with the heavenly Father and has prepared a place for him in the heavenly realms. The Christian knows of the deep love of the Triune God for him, a poor sinner. And yet, this knowledge increaseth sorrow to this thinking Christian! How so? In this manner, the Christian sees his fellowmen, some who are blasphemers and refuse to believe in God, others who are negligent and indifferent toward their Lord Jesus and His Christian Church here upon the earth; the Christian sees people dying, knowing that many of them are not saved but are bound straight for the other place. These things make the Christian think very deeply. If he would not have any grief in this respect; if he would not have had any knowledge in spiritual affairs, then he would not increase his sorrow. That is why Solomon says: "For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow."

In view of the things that are happening in our nation and in others we ought to be very zealous to do everything in our power to spread the Word of the Almighty and living God; we ought to see to it that Bibles and religious books are distributed; that missionaries be sent, yes, and even go ourselves if we only have the desire to consecrate our lives fully to our Lord Jesus Christ.

A person with a serious outlook on life cannot help but realize that mission work must be done. Have you ever intended to be a missionary in the United States or in the foreign field? The Lord needs humble and willing workers, both young men and young women. There are also opportunities for older people. Are you doing your part in the most noble work on this earth?

DONT WAIT

(From My Old Scrap-Book)

When I quit this mortal shore,
And mosey 'round the earth no more,
Don't weep, don't sigh, don't sob—
I may have struck a better job.
Don't go and buy a large bouquet
For which you'll find it hard to pay;
Don't mope around and feel all blue—
I may be better off than you.
Don't tell the folks I was a saint
Or any old thing that I ain't.
If you have jam like that to spread,
Please hand it out before I'm dead.
If you have roses, bless your soul,
Just pin one on my button-hole
While I'm alive and well today,
Don't wait until I've gone away.

Local business man to handle one of General Motors' fastest selling lines of cars

The tremendous demand for the famous Silver Streak Pontiac enables the Pontiac Motor Company to offer some person in this community one of the finest opportunities in America's greatest industry—the opportunity of becoming the local Pontiac dealer.

This is one of those chances to establish a permanent and profitable business that is seldom made available—because the 1935 Pontiac is General Motors' latest entry into the big volume, big profit, lowest-price field. And it is a matter of record that men who acquired the franchise for a popular low-priced car at the right time grew and prospered with the years to a remarkable degree.

The lowest-priced Pontiac lists for only $615, and the franchise covers two lines of sixes and a line of eights, all of which have already established themselves as being remarkable for performance, economy, safety, comfort and beauty. The investment required is not large. But the size of the opportunity can be judged from the fact that Pontiac dealers in communities like this one are selling cars just as fast as they come from the factory.

Previous automobile experience (either selling or as a dealer) is desirable but not essential as the Pontiac Motor Company is in a position to provide you with every assistance in establishing your business and in helping you get started selling cars on the right basis. Able men will recognize this as a genuine ground-floor opportunity of exceptional value. For further facts, communicate with

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

TWO COMMON DISORDERS OF INFANTS

Among the nutritional disorders of infants, there are two which—albeit they are not dangerous—are the source of much discomfort to the baby and anxiety to the mother—vomiting and colic.

Causing of Vomiting in Infants
The causes of vomiting in infants may be summarized as follows:
Over-filling of the stomach.
Too frequent feedings.
Too large an individual meal.
Food taken too rapidly.
Swallowing air with food.
Improper diet.

Excessive feeding of raw fat, such as occurs in formulas made from cream and top milk mixtures.

Excessive quantities of carbohydrates (sugars) in the diet, used to increase the caloric value of a diet deficient in assimilable fats.

Feeding raw cow's milk, which produces a large, tough protein curd.

Treatment of Vomiting

Longer feedings—four hours between feedings.

Reduction of the amount of individual feeding.

The hole in the nipple of the bottle should be just large enough that when the bottle is inverted the drops from it will be about two inches apart.

The bottle should be supported in a semi-upright position, so that the nipple will remain filled, thus preventing the infant from nursing air from the partially filled nipple.

Raw fat in milk mixtures is a frequent cause of vomiting and other more serious gastro-intestinal disorders.

Causes of Colic

All bottle-fed babies have more or less "gas on the stomach" which is swallowed with their meals in the form of air.

Constipation due to improper food is often associated with colic.

Excessive use of purgatives for an existing constipation is a frequent cause of pain in the intestines.

The most common cause is gastric or intestinal indigestion due to:

Excessive amounts of food.
Too frequent feedings.
Excess of raw fats in the mixture.
Excessive amount of carbohydrates.
No uncommonly the crying due to under-feeding is interpreted as colic.

Treatment of Colic

The baby should be raised to a sitting posture after each feeding, when the gas will usually "come up."

In feeding with raw milk the stools should be examined for curds. If they are present, change to another food is indicated.

When severe symptoms exist, the amount of food should be reduced until they have subsided. If the stools are normal, and there is no vomiting, and the baby is gaining in weight, one should make certain that the crying of the infant is not from habit, hunger or nervousness, before making such a reduction in the amount of food.

Frequently a change to lactopon almost immediately relieves colic where the child had been fed raw milk diluted with boiled or cereal water and reinforced with large amounts of carbohydrates.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sitter and children were in Amarillo Monday.

"CAN THE PEOPLE TAKE IT?"

One of the topics for discussion at the Panhandle Press Association at Amarillo this spring was: "Can the editors and newsmen of the Panhandle take it?"

An appropriate subject for discussion of the craft.

But, for all that, the subject is much broader than the title implies. Because, say what you may, the whole country and the entire populace must answer the question.

A merchant may have a large and complete line of goods and be able to serve his trade in a satisfactory manner, but if the people have little or no money with which to purchase, prosperity is not going to hit the local newspaper.

If the people have little or no money, they are not going to help the local newspaper buy the stock on which to print the paper. Not being able to meet its obligations, the paper will be starved out.

And that means that the town and vicinity will be without a newspaper.

Therefore, dearly beloveds, it is not only a question of "Can the editors and newsmen of the Panhandle take it?" but a question of whether the people, as a whole, can take it.

The prosperity of the newspaper depends upon the prosperity of the people who make up the town and community.

It is not at all impossible to draw the conclusion that, if conditions do not materially improve, many newspapers will be out of the running.

(This also applies to other business institutions.)

The government cannot carry people forever, nor even half that long. A stopping place may be found much quicker than people now realize. Merchants cannot carry the people. The municipal authorities cannot give relief. And yet the people must somehow get along. This is not an overdrawn picture.

And yet in spite of these facts men and women—young and old, boys and girls, are spending their money recklessly and foolishly, trying to buck a "get rich quick" racket.

Of the future, no one can tell. The best way to "take it" is to live sanely, soberly, saving every nickel, dime and dollar to pay for food, clothing and other necessities of life, and quit aiding fraudulent schemes by which foolish people are parted from their hard earned cash.

Most of us howl at the high cost of living, and wonder how we are going to "take it" but the high cost of graft and foolish spending is far greater than the h. c. l.

Here is some right good advice a dime lot of people should take and profit by it. Pay up your debts, newspaper subscription included, and then put a dime out of every dollar in the "savings purse" and let the little grow for a future need you may not know is on its way until it hits you. The main reason why the depression hit so hard was because people had spent so freely and foolishly that there was nothing left to tide over the depressing depression when work was not to be had and most of folks were out of a job and broke.

If you have no money, cannot pay your debts and have no "savings purse" you are by no means alone. You have a whole lot of perfectly good company.

But for the love of Pete, don't howl about hard times and then

NO EXPENSIVE ROUGHAGE

If you are trying to cut down on your food bill you might begin by forgetting the idea that you need a lot of costly roughage foods. Fresh fruits and vegetables take care of the roughage problem nicely with much less irritation to the digestive tract. The idea that you need a lot of special preparations to supply adequate roughage is just another of the food fads with which so many of us are bored.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY by Vance Wynn Public Leader

The Blood-Splashed Ring

IN THE course of time thousands of persons have disappeared as completely as though they had dropped through the earth...

She had lodged for years with a shoemaker in that town, but he did not report the case for a month after she had left the house.

He explained the delay by saying that she was in the habit of leaving for a few days at a time, and he did not want to cause unnecessary excitement.

The police felt that it was incumbent upon them to do something, so they placed the shoemaker under arrest.

He was held as "a material witness." Many weeks went by without the discovery of anything to account for this strange disappearance.

Then the shoemaker was released. He went to his home and, prowling about the loft of the house, made a ghastly discovery.

It was the trunk of a human body stuck in a bag and fastened to the rafters.

The police were called in for a second time, and on this occasion they succeeded in locating different parts of the body in various parts of the house.

The remains were assembled and a peculiarity of the teeth made it clear that the body was that of Marie Anna Holzmann.

After that the authorities began to use their brains.

They made it their business to find out who else had lived in the house at the time the girl lived there.

They learned that two men had been there for at least part of the time.

One was Charles Steiner, who was supposed to be half-witted, and the other was John Rauschmeir, a shrewd and unprincipled sort of chap who had no visible means of livelihood.

The Bavarians did what the police of New York or Chicago would have done under the circumstances.

They located the two men and they shadowed them for many weary days. So far as Steiner was concerned, it was love's labor lost, and they pinned their hope upon Rauschmeir doing something that might incriminate himself.

Their expectations were realized. One day the man went into a pawnshop and offered to pledge a woman's coat.

It was a coat that had belonged to Marie Anna Holzmann!

The man was arrested and accused of the murder.

But he laughed at the charge. He admitted that he was a criminal and cheerfully confessed that he had stolen the coat from the girl's room, but ridiculed the idea of having had anything to do with her murder.

But stimulated with the progress they were making, the police made a third search of the lodgings.

This time they found a cheap ring—a man's ring that was splashed with blood.

Inquiries were made in the neighborhood, and a man was found who said that he had seen this ring on Rauschmeir's finger.

That was rather convincing, but the police hesitated to show it to the man for fear that he might deny ownership and thus spoil their case.

How could they contrive to make him admit that the ring belonged to him without letting him know that such an admission would be fatal to him.

They recalled the play scene in "Hamlet" when the moody Dane declared that the play was the thing to catch the conscience of the king.

Why could not a little play on their part convict this man they believed to be a murderer?

It was worth the attempt. So the police gathered together a quantity of jewelry and placed it on a table, together with the ring, which had been washed of its bloodstains.

They brought Rauschmeir from his cell and pointed to the loot upon the table.

"What is the use of your denying that you committed murder," said the police chief, "when we have here the stuff you stole from the girl's room?"

"I didn't steal it," retorted the man, and, seeing the ring, he picked it up, saying: "As a proof of it, there is my own ring."

He slipped it on his finger, and that little incident was the bit of evidence upon which a case was built which ended in his conviction and execution.

Use Parts of Cow in Plane

The cow does not fly, but John Wilson, chief inspector of the Boeing Airplane company, lists many parts of its anatomy which do. The casein in milk makes a strong glue, and casein glue is used extensively in the construction of wing ribs, panels of plywood in the airplane cabin, and so on. Hot glue is made of cow's hoofs. Its hair is used for chair padding and sound deadening. Hides are made into seat covers and straps and into the fine hide glues which are used in wooden propeller manufacture. Finally, the goldbeaters' skin for dirigibles is made of its entrails. Certainly the cow makes praiseworthy contributions to aerial navigation.

Garden Club to Discuss Cow Problem

The regular monthly meeting of the McLean Garden Club will be held at the city secretary's office next Monday night at 8:30, and among the subjects discussed will be the problem of cows ruining lawns and gardens.

It may be that a petition will be presented the city council asking that all staking of cows be prohibited in the city, as in too many cases the cows are entrusted to small children who cannot control the animals. One case was reported Wednesday evening of a small child chasing a cow over a lawn and through a back yard flower garden, completely destroying valuable plants and ruining a year's planning.

It has reached the point, in the opinion of many, where either yards must be fenced or protection must be had from the city, if any more time and money is to be spent in the beautification movement.

All citizens interested are invited to be present at the club meeting and all are welcome to join the club. There are no dues or obligations other than being interested in better yards and gardens.

NOSES

Nobody would go out of his way to acquire an overgrown nose, but the man who has such a nose as Jimmy Durante's, and can make capital of it, is frequently the envy of men endowed with noses in perfect Greek design.

But sometimes such a nose proves more embarrassing to others than it does to the owner. Naturally, wherever its owner goes, he takes along his nose, and Jimmy Durante, being a screen star of some magnitude, and good company besides, is often invited by social climbers as the dinner guest of the evening.

It was at one such dinner that the hostess, upon her little girl's persistent plea, brought her down to meet the celebrated Mr. Durante. But before bringing her down, she impressed upon the child that she was not to stare at his nose or make any comment on it.

The little girl behaved admirably as she curtsied to Jimmy, who, in turn, made a hit with the child by chucking her under the chin. The hostess, relieved that the little girl had made no slip so far, by act or word, told her to say "good night" to Mr. Durante and go up to her room.

"Good night, Mr. Durante," chirped the little girl sweetly, to which Jimmy replied with a smile. A few steps up the stairs and she paused. A dreadful feeling came over the hostess. "Good night, Mr. Durante," the little girl called, waving her hand. Reaching the top of the flight of stairs, the child turned and leaned over the railing. This time the pause was of longer duration. The hostess was all a-quiver. In the child's bright eyes she saw a gleam of mischief. What was the little brat going to pop out? "Good night, Mr. Durante," the little girl called with a double wave of her hand as she scampered away to her room. Still quivering from the anxious ordeal, though relieved at the outcome, the hostess turned to her guest. Pouring the coffee, she asked sweetly, "Do you take sugar with your nose, Mr. Durante?"

A DEBT TO THE CHURCH

There are those who criticize the churches, calling them narrow, provincial and intolerant. Occasionally, upon certain matters, it has looked like the religious leaders were inclined just a little too far, and just a little too indifferent to the fact that good men might disagree with them without deserving the scorn and contumely of church members.

With all this in mind, however, few of us ever appreciate the great debt that the average community owes to the church. Aside from the religious training and beliefs, which might possibly prosper without the church but through some other organization, it is a fact that without the work of the church in the past years this would hardly be a decent place in which to live.

The influence of the church has been great. Through altering the attitude of men and women it has caused them to go out into the world and set up new standards. It has made possible the protection of wealth. It has made the lives of men and women safe. It has restrained mankind from all manner of evil. Without its curb, which holds back every member of society to some extent, this would be a shameless place, a blot on the face of the earth.

Those who are prone to criticize the church and to harp on its faults seldom investigate far enough to know that earnest leaders of church activity are also alert to the reforms that the churches require. If the average critic of the church would submit his or her life to the same clear eyed scrutiny that sincere church leaders give the workings of their organization the improvement that would result would be marked.—Castro County News.

When Phyllis wasn't sure that I loved her and her alone. She called me up a dozen times. Each day by telephone. But now, if she should call me Oh, my, 'twould make a stir. She calls me down instead, because you see, I married her.
