Quilts Awarded in Show Here Two Days

Crowds attended the county quilt and linen show in McLean on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, sponsored by the home demonstration clubs.

Rev. Smith complimented the club on its activities and said that it is impossible to have a dead town with a live Lions club.

The speaker reviewed the work of Lions clubs in towns in which he has held pastorates, showing the practical side of Lionism.

Lion C. A. Cryer presented a past president's pin to C. O. Greene, and perfect attendance pins to T. A. Landers, Boyd Meador and W. E. Bogan.

Lion Tamer W. B. Andrews presented Prof. Henry Loter as a guest, and requested Lion Goff to present Rev. Smith, and T. A. Landers to present LeRoy Landers as club visitors.

Boys Lion W. E. Bogan made the following committee appointments for the fiscal year:

Membership—W. W. Boyd, Reep Landers, Creed Bogan.

Boy Scouts—Ralph Caldwell, Witt Springer, W. E. Bogan, Dr. C. B. Batson, H. W. Brooks.

Centennial—Witt Springer, Vester Smith, W. S. Bacon.

Program—C. O. Greene, W. K. Wharton, Jesse J. Cobb.

Major activities—Boyd Meador, E. L. Sitter, C. O. Greene.

Rev. Smith Makes Talk Lions Club

Rev. Ross A. Smith, Baptist evangelist, was the principal speaker at the Lions luncheon held Tuesday noon.

Rev. Smith complimented the club on its activities and said that it is impossible to have a dead town with a live Lions club.

The speaker reviewed the work of Lions clubs in towns in which he has held pastorates, showing the practical side of Lionism.

Baptist Revival Services Began Last Sunday

A series of revival services began at the First Baptist Church last Sunday, with services now being held three times each day; a morning service at 10 o'clock, a service at the American Theatre at 3 p. m. for men and boys, and the evening service at 8:15.

Rev. Ross A. Smith, pastor of the San Jacinto Baptist Church of Amarillo, is doing the preaching, and his forceful messages leave no doubt as to his stand on moral questions.

Rev. Smith has a pleasing personality, and his audiences keep a sustained interest in each service.

The song services are in charge of Mrs. Cecil G. Goff, local choir director, and the orchestra is in charge of Prof. Robt. C. Davidson, director of the municipal band.

Pastor Cecil G. Goff says that everyone has a cordial invitation to attend and take part in the services, and everything possible has been done to add to the comfort of the crowds.

According to present plans, the meeting will continue all through next week.

A BALANCED DIET

"Three servings of vegetables a day are essential for an adequate diet," said Miss Ruby M. Adams, county home demonstration agent.

"One leafy, one starchy and one other vegetable are needed to supply adequate food stuff," further explained Miss Adams, to the McLean Home Demonstration Club at the home of Mrs. C. M. Eudey.

At the business meeting, plans were made for the quilt and linen show on July 9 and 10. The ladies who scored were Miss Ruby Mashburn, district demonstrator; Mrs. Bernice Clayton, state specialist in home improvement, and Miss Fannie Mae Rees of Canyon.

Members Eunice and Lucile Stratton, accompanied by their brother, Charles, and little niece, Mona Meier, left yesterday for the latter's home in Little Rock, Ark.

Miss Frankie Andrews, who is attending school in Canyon, visited home folks here last week end.

Glen King of Shamrock was in McLean Saturday.

Mrs. Bessie Blake returned Friday from a trip to Chicago.

Methodist Bible Vacation School Closes Friday

The daily vacation Bible school now in progress at the First Methodist Church will be closed with a program Friday night of this week, at which time, according to Pastor N. U. Stout, all parents, church members and friends are invited to attend and see the display of work done by the students.

Pastor Stout says that there has been a fine spirit of cooperation displayed, some 65 being enrolled. Mrs. J. H. Wade has charge of the general work with Dr. A. A. Tampke, high school vocational instructor, in charge of the boys' vocational work.

4-H CLUB GIRL CREATES STUDY CENTER

"One of the most valuable things I have done in club work is the creating of my 'study center,'" said Lula Mae Duenkel of the Alanreed 4-H Club.

At a second hand store Lula Mae purchased a rectangular drop leaf table that had a place for books under it. This was refinished by removing the old varnish by sandpapering and two new coats applied. After each application a sandpapering with oil was given.

In school Lula Mae had made from veneer wood a waste paper basket and a hanging bookcase, and she finished these to harmonize with the table.

By hanging the bookcase conveniently high above the table and placing the basket to the side, and with a chair refinished from a discarded one, the study center is convenient, interesting and practical and cost $2.50.

CHURCH PICNIC FRIDAY

Members and friends of the First Presbyterian Church and Sunday school will enjoy a picnic at the McClellan creek bridge Friday (tomorrow) evening.

Miss Clara Morgan of Salinas, Calif., Mrs. H. E. Campbell and Miss Henrietta Campbell of Amarillo visited Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Campbell Monday.

Little Miss Betty Jo Gregory visited in the Frank Bell home at Lubbock last week.

Paul Dowell returned Monday from a visit with relatives in Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Funeral Rites Mrs. H. M. Barnes Here Monday

Funeral rites were said Monday at the Church of Christ for Mrs. H. M. Barnes, aged 45 years, 1 month and 16 days.

Services were in charge of Rev. W. B. Andrews, and interment was made in Hillcrest cemetery, with Rice Funeral Home in charge.

Funeral bearers were: Cloyce Chambers, Milton Banta, Erce Warren, H. H. Lamb, C. V. Byers and Owen Moore.

Mrs. Barnes was the wife of H. M. Barnes of McLean. She died at a Shamrock hospital on July 6, 1935, following a blood transfusion made necessary by a hemorrhage from extracted teeth.

Besides her husband, a son, Harry Jr., a daughter, Mrs. Helen Seago, other relatives and many friends are left to mourn her passing.

A BETTER PAPER

Mighty few weekly papers can boast of such highly paid writers as Brisbane, McIntyre, Will Rogers and Pickard, yet readers of this paper enjoy reading their writings each week.

Not only are these top-notch columnists in our columns, but the latest fiction is run serially, stories by the best known authors, that would cost many dollars in book form.

Then take the comic pages; two pages each week, something to interest every member of the family. Here is more than usually found in a home-town paper.

Of course, The News covers the home news, and many advertisers are cooperating in advertising news of interest to bargain hunters, making a well balanced newspaper. And yet there has been no increase in the subscription price. All this for 4c a week, less than the price of a package of chewing gum or a cold drink.

Mrs. F. C. Knight and granddaughter, Shirley Knight, accompanied by Mrs. John Clark and Mrs. Elsie Davis, all of Groom were in McLean Tuesday.

LeRoy A. Landers has returned to his home at Canyon after a visit with relatives here.

Zane Smith, Van Brawley and Bob Glenn were in Clarendon Tuesday night.

Mrs. N. E. Pogue and little daughter are visiting relatives in Chillicothe.

Athletic Coach and Home Ec. Teacher Named

At a meeting of the board of education held Monday night, Bill Allen of Amarillo was elected football coach, and Miss Alyne Mallow of Sanger as home economics teacher.

Coach Allen was a player on the Amarillo Sandies team for one year, was a member of the regional champion Lamesa team for two years, was a member of the Amarillo Junior College state championship team for two years, and was one year on the Louisiana State University team under Biff Jones and Bennie Moore.

Mr. Allen will teach bookkeeping and general science, and perhaps one other subject at the high school.

Miss Mallow is a graduate of the North Texas State Teachers College at Denton and was valedictorian of her class. She was also valedictorian of the Denton high school graduating class of which she was a member.

CITY DRUG ANNOUNCES KODAK CONTEST PRIZES

The City Drug Store has announced the winners in their kodak prize contest that closed July first.

The pictures submitted were from the regular developing orders of customers of the store, and first place was given to Marlene Coffey, a 16 piece bridge set; second prize, 3 piece cooker, went to Martha Ann McMahan; third, ball bearing skates, to Peggy Smith; fourth, water set, to Tracey Mertel. Six other prize winners included Johnnie Mae Scott, Jane Alice Cryer, Leonard Saye, Claude Gene Doolen, Fern Louise and Robert Calaway.

Prizes were also given for those who had the most kodak finishing done during the period. T. J. Coffey, Jr. won first prize, a carving set; Mrs. Maude Strubie, second, kitchen scales; Mrs. C. S. Doolen, third, water set.

Miss Dorothy Cantrell had charge of the contest, and Mrs. W. E. Ballard, Miss Clara Anderson and E. J. Landers were judges.

THE PETTYS ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Petty entertained the primary and junior youngsters of the Liberty Sunday school last Sunday afternoon, in honor of the 10th birthday anniversary of their daughters, Nora Isabel and Zora Idabel.

The diversion of the afternoon was swimming and wading in the nice clean water of the tank. An angel food cake with pink candles and a coconut cake with blue candles were served by the honorees after the candles were lit, along with iced tea and ice cream.

The youngsters present were: J. D. Clifton, Jack and Betty Lou Roth, Milam Sullivan, Clay Edward Irvin, Norma Lee and C. A. Matt, Oma Lee Hardin, Eulama and Eulama Lively, Nora Margaret Johnson, Herman Leo, Harold Cleo, Nora Isabel and Zora Idabel Petty. Others present were: Grace, Billie, Jinks, Wanda Joyce and John Robert Washburn, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Washburn of Pleasant Mound; Paul Sullivan, Mrs. Ira Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Petty and son, Francis.

HLANACHECK-WALLACE

Miss Betty Hlanaccheck of Pawnee, Okla., and Mr. Everett Wallace of McLean were married Wednesday, July 3, 1935, at the Baptist parsonage, Rev. Cecil G. Goff performing the ceremony.

They are making their home here, the groom being employed in the Kellerville oil field.

WORMS FATAL TO POULTRY

By Dr. A. A. Tampke
I have examined a number of young poultry flocks lately and find many birds dying from both round worms and tapeworms. Camala kills the tapeworm while nicotine kills the round worm. The combination capsule or tablet having both of these ingredients will save these birds. If the treatment is repeated six to eight days later you should put your flock in good health again. All birds where poultry has been raised in previous years are subject to these parasites.

T. C. Landers has moved to Claburne.

FFA BOY SELECTS CALF

By Dr. A. A. Tampke
Recently, Gene Roush selected one of the Webb Ranch Hereford calves for his F. F. A. project.

There are now over a dozen calves on feed by the F. F. A. boys of McLean. This, with the aid of the other 4-H club calves of the community, should put McLean in line for one of the best shows next spring she has ever had.

SCHOOL WORK MAKES PROGRESS

Progress is being made on work at the grade school, in cleaning the grounds and overhauling the interior of the building, with Federal aid.

Work at the high school consists of leveling the seats in the auditorium.

Miss Ruth Hess who is attending school in Canyon, visited home folks here last week end.

PRESIDENT PLANS TO AID YOUTH —TAX-RICH BILL HELD OVER.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

YOUTH between sixteen and twenty-five will be served $50,000,000 for a nation-wide job hunt and further training of young men and women to hold

Aubrey Williams
works-progress administrator.

The new organization will endeavor to:
1. Find employment in private industry for unemployed youth.
2. Train and retrain for industrial, technical and professional employment opportunities.
3. Provide for a continuing attendance at high school and college.
4. Provide works-relief projects designed to meet the needs of youth.

The average payment for youths on relief work will be $15 a month; those going to high school would be given $8 a month; college, $15 a month.
The problem of what to do with the youth who finishes school, supposedly equipped to make his real start in life, and finds what few jobs there are given to older and married men and women, as well as the youth who is unable to finish school because of poor circumstances, has been one of the most discouraging aspects of the entire depression. The NYA will attempt to remedy it by divisions set up to work with private industry and schools in each state, co-ordinated by national headquarters in Washington.

LEGISLATIVE administration leaders, for a while in a frenzy of anxiety to hitch the President's tax-rich program to the resolution extending the so-called "nuisance" excise taxes, thereby speeding it through the Washington legislative factory in four days, suddenly disclaimed any intention of such procedure, and let the $500,000,000 tax extension ride along unopposed. Congress will consider the new taxation program during early July.
This program is expected to produce some $340,000,000 in new revenue, principally from inheritance and gift taxes, increased taxes on the highest income brackets, and corporation taxes graduated from 10 per cent to 17 1/2 per cent.
The program has been held up as a sweetener to placate the sugar palate of Louisiana's Kingfish. Actually, a wealth of $340,000,000 shared among 120,000,000 Americans would amount to about $2.83 a head—all of which would be applied to a public debt of $29,000,000,000 and a budget of $8,500,000,000, anyway.

THE net taxable worth of the 133 estates which paid taxes based on a valuation of $1,000,000 each in 1933 was $284,000,000. If the government had taxed these estates 100 per cent, seizing them entirely, they would have been worth only $2.37 a head to the American population. If the government confiscated all income of more than $1,000,000 in 1933, it would have taken an army of trucks loaded with small change to distribute it, for each American would get only 45 cents. And the general opinion of administration leaders in the senate was that the taxes obtained from the rich might possibly eliminate the necessity of the "nuisance" taxes after another year.

THE federal government began a new fiscal year with intentions of spending more money than in any previous year of peace. Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would spend $8,520,000,000, of which $4,582,000,000 will go for "recovery and relief." He expects the treasury to collect $3,991,000,000. No, it doesn't add up. The deficit for the new fiscal year will be $4,528,000,000. It is estimated.

THE fiscal year just passed came to an end with the public debt at a new peace-time peak of $28,965,000,000, still some shy of the $31,000,000,000 the President estimated a year ago. To finance the new budget, he had counted in part upon the $500,000,000 extension of "nuisance" taxes just passed by congress, but not upon the tax-the-rich program which the New Dealers hope to jockey through some time in August. Estimates have it that this will net another $340,000,000.

The expenditure for the past year is only $7,258,000,000 instead of $8,571,000,000 forecast at the start of the year. The deficit was $3,472,347,000 instead of the proposed $4,869,000,000. If the expenditures outlined in the 1936 budget reach the estimated total, the public debt on July 1 next year would stand at $34,239,000,000.

DURING the next year the President expects to spend $4,880,000,000 for relief and for the employment of 3,500,000 idle workers. A general upswing in business would improve the revenue expected by the treasury. The President counted on $3,711,000,000 coming in during the 1935 fiscal year. Receipts proved to be $3,785,000,000.

AFTER one of the bitterest legislative fights of recent years the house voted 216 to 146 against the "death clause" of the utilities bill, a provision put upon the measure when the senate passed it by one vote, to abolish in seven years all public utility holding companies which the securities commission deemed "unnecessary."

The interstate commerce committee of the house voted to give the commission immediate discretionary authority. After the final passage of the utilities bill it will go to a conference committee to have the differences between the two houses ironed out.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT asked congress to prevent holders of federal gold bonds from suing the government for damages they may have suffered because the New Deal went back on the gold payment pledge.

The Chief Executive asked that an appropriation be made for Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to pay off $8,000,000,000 in cash to bond holders who demanded immediate cash payment. Bond holders who plan to convert their bonds into cash and buy foreign gold will be given 100 paper dollars for a $100 gold bond. They contend that because it takes $1.69 to buy what was $1 worth of gold before the New Deal, they should be paid $169 in cash.

The President's stand was that the privilege of suing was an "act of grace" bestowed by the government. He asked that the privilege be withdrawn from the holders of gold bonds to prevent the use of the courts "in aid of efforts to sabotage the operations of the government or in aid of private speculation."

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, once ambitious to direct the $3,000,000,000 public works program, was named to direct a comparatively small part of the President's new $4,000,000,000 works-relief schedule. As director of works-relief in New York city, he will co-ordinate the program in that area.

With the famed fighting law determinedly set, he revealed the four conditions under which he accepted the new job:
He will get no pay, only $7,800 for a year's expenses. (He got $6,000 a year for this purpose during most of his time as keeper of the Blue Eagle.) His job will end October 1, unless he and the administration agree that it shall continue. He will devote a minimum of four days a week to his official duties. And he will consult with Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia as far as possible, but will be responsible to Harry L. Hopkins.

NEW YORK'S Harlem and its kindred negro populations throughout the land resounded in jubilation, with chicken 'n ham in every fryin' pan and juniper juice flowing freely, as Joe Louis, the first great brown hope of pugilism since Jack Johnson, established himself as a real threat to the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

The Detroit cut Primo Carnera, Italian human skyscraper, to ribbons for five rounds, knocked him down three times in the sixth, and was declared the winner by technical knockout in a bout at the Yankee stadium.

LIKE most Utopias, the new one in Alaska's Matanuska valley has been reported a nest of discontent; the disillusionment apparently was manifest even quicker than usual in this case. Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin farm families who made up a large share of the recent expedition to begin life anew in the North Pacific territory drafted a list of grievances for the FERA trouble shooter, Eugene Carr.

Many of them said the project was misrepresented, that the land is poor and that housing is not what they were led to believe it would be. Neither are medical service, school facilities, seeds disbursed for planting, the climate and prices for groceries measuring up to advance word-pictures. There is considerable jealousy existent over the distribution of farm land. And to top it all off, the Utopians want government pay for their work.

THE week's peak in crime was reached when Detroit police found Howard Carter Dickinson, prominent New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, lying dead in a ditch beside a lonely Rouge park road with a bullet through his head and another through his chest.

Dickinson, a law associate of Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., had been in Detroit on business of the $40,000,000 estate of the late William H. Yawkey. Apparently, he had driven to Rouge park while on a drinking party after business hours. His companions on the ride, who were William H. Schweitzer, Detroit underworld character, and three burlesque-show girls, all of whom he had picked up at his hotel in the motor city, fled the scene and were traced to Fort Wayne, Ind., where they were arrested.

After several days of grilling by police, the four confessed they had plotted the murder to rob Dickinson. Schweitzer admitted firing the shots. Their loot was $134.

DETERMINED that what goes up must stay up, Fred and Al Key, endurance fliers, broke the world's time record for keeping a plane aloft, landing after 65 3/4 hours in the air at Meridan, Miss. They passed the unofficial endurance record of 647 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds set in 1930 by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien at St. Louis. Days before they had soared over the official mark of 553 hours, 51 minutes and 30 seconds set at Chicago by John and Kenneth Hunter.

REPUBLICAN senators were advised that former President Herbert Hoover will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Presidential race of 1936.

Herbert Hoover

They were advised that Mr. Hoover would make the formal announcement some time this summer. He is staying out, it was said, because he intends to remain in private life and has planned his future career along that line. For his active criticisms of administration policies the reason was given that, although he does not "choose to run," he thought the party needed some sort of direction; now that his candidacy is shelved, it is expected that his political utterances will be clothed in considerably less authority.

The informers, however, assured the senators that Mr. Hoover would get behind the party's candidate and enter the campaign for him, and that he thinks, with unification growing, the Republican prospects are looking brighter day by day.

CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, England's journeyman trouble shooter, electrified the British Isles by announcing that Great Britain had offered to give Haile Selassie, emperor of Abyssinia, a generous strip of British Somaliland to replace territory acquired by Italy, if the Italian government would promise not to wage war against the domain of Africa's "Conquering Lion of Judah."

Nothing doing, said Premier Mussolini, who has turned a deaf ear to all Britain's proposals of an Italo-Ethiopian compromise. He was reported as intending to go right ahead with his plan of a four-years' war to effect the complete pacification of the African empire. He insists that there must be more room in Africa for overpopulated Italy to expand.

Mussolini has threatened to "remember" the nations which have offered to furnish Abyssinia with arms, and they have withdrawn or modified their offers. The African emperor pleaded:
"If we are in the right and if civilized nations are unable to prevent this war, at least do not deny us the means of defending ourselves."

Captain Eden met with no more success in his efforts to explain to the Fascist dictator England's bilateral arms agreement with Germany. Mussolini sided with France in objecting to the pact.

SECRETARY of the Navy Swanson asked bids from private yards on 13 vessels and was prepared to negotiate for 11 more, launching the navy's 1935-36 construction program within 20 hours after receiving the required funds from congress. Included in the program are: Two new cruisers of 10,000 tons each, equipped with six-inch guns and at least four airplanes apiece; one aircraft carrier, three heavy destroyers, twelve light destroyers and six submarines.

CITIZENS everywhere were urged by Attorney General Cummings to assist the federal government in "cracking down" on bucket shops which are swindling the public out of millions of dollars. He declared that a nation-wide chain is operating. Most of their victims are doctors, lawyers, professors and business men, he said.

"We know the names of the ringleaders," said Mr. Cummings, "but it will take co-operation of both the public and legitimate brokers to put them where they belong—behind the bars."
Most of the victims believe that they have lost their money legitimately, he said, and are afraid of complaining to federal officers because they are in debt after they have been "cleaned."

SOVIET Russia, through its ambassador in Tokyo, warned the Japanese government that Japanese Manchukuo boats must keep out of Soviet waters in the Far East, or the consequences will fall on the shoulders of the Japanese Manchukuo authorities. The ambassador listed a series of alleged violations of Soviet territory, adding that "these violations may bring serious consequences in the relations between the U. S. S. R. and Japan in the cause of peace in the Far East."

He spoke of attacks on the Soviet guard which were maneuvered to appear as if they had taken place on Manchukuo territory. It was alleged that four Soviet guards had been attacked and killed, that Japanese guns had played on Soviet settlements from the Manchukuo side of the Amur.
"The Soviet government expects the Japanese government to adopt urgent energetic measures to prevent further provocative action by local Japanese Manchukuo military authorities," said the ambassador.

HANK O'DAY, veteran National League baseball umpire, who has been calling 'em as he saw 'em as long as any player in the game today can remember and before that, died of pneumonia in Chicago. He had been player, manager and umpire in his long and memorable career. He will doubtless be remembered in sport until the end of time for calling the famous "bonehead" play in which Fred Merkle, in a world series game failed to touch first base, a play known to every fan in the country.

Russian newspapers, speaking officially, accuse Japan of stirring up trouble along the Russian border, to "bring on grave complications."

A protest carries Stalin's warning to Japan that a continuation of these incidents "may have serious consequences in the relations of Russia and Japan, and peace in the Far East."
If Russia and Japan should have a serious disagreement, Russia's equipment in the way of submarines and airplanes, all within 400 miles of Tokyo, would probably enable other countries to stop worrying about Japan's military plans.

England does not approve of Mussolini's plans in Abyssinia, and the question arises, Would England close the Suez canal, the short cut for Italian troops and supplies to Abyssinia? Will Italian airplanes be forbidden to fly over the Suez canal area?
The answer as to closing the Suez canal by Britain would probably be no. England would not voluntarily provoke hostilities with Italy. She really wants peace. But, how easily war could come—French against German or English against Italian or Japanese against Russian!

Germany undertakes to establish a "family tree" for each of its 60,000,000 inhabitants, which means asking, answering, writing down ten thousand million questions.
The sensible answer would be, "I descend from Adam, with heaven knows how many mixtures in my blood on the way up," but Hitler would not accept that. Young couples getting marriage licenses are questioned:
"What were your eight great-grandparents like? Did they have any Negro or Jewish blood?"
"Were they fond of telling the truth? Did they have imagination, driving power?"
Ten thousand million foolish questions would seem to set a new record.

The "greatest" country in the world, supposed to be the most intelligent, owns some tons of gold, called "worth" nine thousand million dollars.
We do not use the gold, or even invest part of it in adequate national defense, that would protect it. We are afraid some one may come, with better airplanes and submarines than ours, and steal it; so the government will dig a deep hole, far from the coast, put in it a huge safe, and hide away the gold lump, that is used only to impress the financial imagination of the world and keep foreigners from knocking down our currency.

Dolores Anne Diamond, only four, surprised teachers in a Schenectady kindergarten. She said the games for little children bored her, and she could recite the alphabet backward.
Dolores was moved to the first grade, and could have gone higher. She has the intelligence of a child of fourteen.

Usually it is better for a child to develop slowly and normally. The infant prodigy is usually dull later. Perhaps little Dolores will be an exception, like Mozart, and, at eighteen, as wise as Hypatia, with a happier ending.

Lloyd George, in spite of his seventy-two years, returns to active politics. He hates the "arid atmosphere of political controversy" and returns to active politics only because he believes that world conditions are growing worse, and "from the point of view of peace are worse than before 1914."

Miss Koutanova, Russian, twenty-one years old, jumped 25,426 feet from an airplane without oxygen apparatus and landed in a cabbage field after turning over four times before her parachute opened. She claims the female record.

Russia is teaching millions of young people to use parachutes, the first step in curing nervousness in flying. Here we have only a small handful of excellent pilots, but the masses of our population know as little about aviation as they do about "geometry in space."

Mr. Werner Kahn, district leader of "Hitler Youth," says Nazi doctrines have become Germany's real religion and "the time must come when entry into the Hitler Youth organization will take the place now occupied by Catholic or Protestant confirmation." Furthermore, the young gentleman says, "I declare to all enemies of Hitler Youth that the fuhrer is our faith and national socialism is our religion."

Millions of us go through life getting little sunshine, rarely if ever looking at the stars, our interests not unlike that of the entomologically interesting tumblebug, that spends its life in the field, rolling little balls of manure into a burrow. He doesn't even realize that there is a sun, or stars, and many men are like him, although they may "own fine country places."

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS.—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see or hear here at home. Just tonight take for instance, I was sitting down stairs after returning from kinder late work at the Studio, and Mrs. Rogers had gone out to the graduation of some of our sons or neeces. (We're going to have an awful smart family the first thing you know.) One boy was in Stanford graduating class and Mr. Hoover made them quite a fine speech, but it was just a little political.

I didn't get to go up as I was working, but Bill told me over the phone that it was awful hot in the big football stadium, and that Mr. Hoover kept them all there in the sun till they promised to be Republicans. Said he promised early and got out.

But all this is not what I was starting to tell you. I was sitting down stairs all alone, in a great big high ceiling old board room, that I had raised the roof on while Mrs. Rogers and Mary was gone to the Holy Land. She said I did it just so that I could rope in the house without hitting the ceiling. Well many she was right. Anyhow I got an old stuffed calf in there that I got out and practice on. I am without a doubt the best dead calf roper in the World, but when I try it on a live one it don't work. But I am death on dead calves.

Well as I started to say away awhile ago, I was sitting there after supper reading—Time—the magazine, it was telling about some theatre movement that was supposed to be sponsored by the workers, and there had been a big hullabaloo about some piece called—Waiting For Lefty—I don't know anything about it, I haven't seen it. Some say it's propaganda, and some say it's just good. Well in come a couple of fellows, one of 'em said he had met me in Russia last summer, and I think he had. He was an aviation man. The other was a Beverly Hills real estate man.

Well they had an arm full of technical maps and drawings, and you know what it was that of that parachute jumping thing they had over in the big Park of Culture and Rest in Moscow. I think many I told you about it away last summer, if I didn't I ought to, and if I did I will again. You go up on a high platform about 80 feet, and there is a captive parachute that works from an arm that hangs out from the oil derrick looking stand. You put the chute on and you just jump out into space, pull the cord and down you come. But the top part is fastened to the top of the umbrella part and too the pole that sticks out away from the high platform so you can't get hurt, and it's quite a sensation. My kids tried it. It was one of the main amusement things in this big Park. Well these fellows was trying to get it into the San Diego Fair, but it seems Zack Farmer who was really responsible for the great success of the great Olympic Games here in 32, well Zack kinder claimed that a Russian wasent really human, and that he might just want to commit suicide purposely, (and there is some justification in what Zack says.) I have always claimed that that's why they was such great parachute jumpers, was because they was disappointed when it opened. But these boys wanted me to wire Zack and tell him that it was a great attraction, and that it would not make us communistic.

Well I sent Zack the wire. That was just now. Because I know Zack, and because I know this contraption I don't know how they come to think of me on weird schemes. I don't want any of you to get the idea that because I did try to help out these guys that I am open to any and all plans that come along. I have no interest in this, or don't want any, and also have none in any aviation company, either stock, or kin folks. I just ain't in nothin' but some vacant property, but I must be just a sort of a cracker on a buggy whip to a soft-pointed hat pin, they come to me.

They had another concession in that about some time. Remind me of it, will you?
Well, Irvin Cobb come over to visit us on the movie set this afternoon. When he ain't working he comes around anyhow. We sure was glad to see him. He's awful entertaining. I was over to his house the other night. He has the most beautiful place, out here in Santa Monica, right down the hill on to a gold hole. You step right out of my place into a gopher hole. Max Fleishman the Santa Barbara philanthropist, and his charming wife were at Irvin's. They are old friends, Santa Barbara has some great men live there, and Max is the main cog. He has given millions to that place. He is a great fellow is Max, and he gave me such political angles on the Country. When you make and sell a national commodity, you know the Country pretty well. He thinks much will happen in the next year or two. Well anyhow we are living in great times. A fellow cant afford to die now with all this excitement going on.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

PREVENTION OF HYDROPHOBIA

Hydrophobia is an infection of some of the cells of the brain. The poison is injected through an opening made in the skin, usually by a bite. The same poison rubbed on the healthy unbroken skin is entirely harmless. Men with the disease do not infect other men. But infected animals—dogs, cats, horses, cows—can infect other animals as well as man.

The poison having entered travels along the nerves to the brain. It travels slowly and this makes the incubation period (the time elapsing between the injection of the poison and the appearance of the disease) longer than in any other infectious disease. The shortest incubation period is about two weeks; the longest is a year. The average is 30 to 40 days.

Symptoms of Hydrophobia
The first symptom is a mild fever and some pain on swallowing. The throat soon becomes more affected and whenever the victim tries to swallow, the throat muscles go into a spasm. This spasm later affects the entire body and may be evaded by any irritant—even a drop of oil—that its health department is equipped Animals are inclined to chew up wooden articles. During the maniacal stage the animal is driven to run wildly about and fight. In both man and animals paralysis closes the scene.

Prevention of Hydrophobia
Hydrophobia can be prevented by a variety of measures. Dogs may be vaccinated against it either before or after being bitten. Dogs should be kept under control. They should be registered; they should be muzzled; there should be an "Ellis Island" for dogs. Every case of dog-bite should be reported. This spasm later affects the entire body and may be evaded by any irritant—even a drop of oil—that its health department is equipped to diagnose hydrophobia in animals both before and after the death of the diseased animal.

When a dog is suspected of having been infected, he should be kept under restraint and the fact reported to the health department or a veterinary surgeon. If the dog dies, his head should be cut off, wapped in a cloth soaked in formalin solution, and sent to a health department laboratory.

A human being who has been bitten by a rabid animal can be protected by a prompt vaccination. This may be done in a Pasteur institute or at home. Most of the leading pharmaceutical houses now provide vaccine against rabies in a convenient form for administration by the physician in the patient's home.

WHY POPCORN POPS

Popcorn pops because the moisture contained in the hard, dense starch of the kernel explodes when heat is applied. In ordinary corn there is considerable soft starchy material, and grains containing this kind of starchy material will not pop. The entire kernel must be made up of the horny form of starch.

Bosses Won't Hire People with Halitosis (BAD BREATH)

People who get and hold jobs keep their breath agreeable

With the best to choose from these days, employers favor the person who is most attractive. In business life as in the social world, halitosis (unpleasant breath) is considered the worst of faults.

Unfortunately everybody suffers from this offensive condition at some time or other—many more regularly than they think. Fermentation of food particles skipped by the tooth brush is the cause of most cases. Decaying teeth and poor digestion also cause odors.

The quick, pleasant way to improve your breath is to use Listerine, the quick deodorant, every morning and every night. Listerine halts fermentation, a major cause of odors, and overcomes the odors themselves. Your breath becomes sweet and agreeable. It will not offend others.

If you value your job and your friends, use Listerine, the safe antiseptic, regularly. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo.

NO OCCASION TO BE ALARMED BY FEARSOME NAMES

If you are one of those nervous folks who get upset and frightened when the family doctor spouts off some of those jaw-breaking names, just make yourself familiar with the technical terms for some of the more ordinary aches and pains. Many times the old saw—the bark is worse than the bite—is true enough. For instance, if the doctor said the baby was affected by "advanced octaegia resulting in lachrimation" it would only mean that a severe earache was making the child cry. Just for fun memorize the following medical terms and spring them on your friends:

An earache is otalgia; backache, notalgia (do not confuse with nostalgia, meaning homesickness); headache, cephalgia; toothache, odontalgia; rib-pains, costalgia; an thigh-pain, meralgia. Any painkiller is an analgesic. Also, smallpox is variola; chickenpox, varicella; whooping cough, pertussis; and measles, morbilli. Near-sightedness is myopia; far-sightedness, presbyopia; crossed eyes, a strabismus, while total blindness is amaurosis.

If you blister, it is vesication, and if you have difficulty in speaking or swallowing, it is dysphonia or dysphagia, as the case may be. Anorexia means that you suffer from loss of appetite; a cacochelic condition designates merely a bad disposition, or a valguis signifies knock-knees. Anyone who drinks milk is galactophagus. A fat person is adipose, but puffiness denotes tumefaction. A condition of laziness or relaxation is nothing to be alarmed about. It is only atony.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WATCH THE CURVES

By RICHARD HOFFMANN Copyright by Richard Hoffmann WNU Service

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Barry Trafford, middle-aged Giles Kerrigan, Sister Anastasia, a nun; and an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reticence annoys him. To Kerrigan he takes at once, but he is unable to shake off a feeling of uneasiness. He distrusts Crack, although finding his intimacy with Kerrigan ripening, and he makes a little progress with Barry.

"Well, we don't have to die afterwards—unless we want to," Kerrigan went on. "And it's no fair dying either till each of the others asks one question. We draw lots to see who starts." He broke matches to different lengths, offered them in his fist, the ends protruding evenly. He said, "Or don't you want to do this?" glancing at Barry. "Mm," said Barry, and held out her hand. "Who goes first—long or short?" "Long."

There was a thin air of excitement about it, as in a game of Truth or Consequences. Barry studiously kept her eyes on Kerrigan's. Hal rummaged in his mind for the right question to ask her when his turn came. And the little tenseness stayed about them after Barry had drawn the middle-length match, Hal the short, with Kerrigan to begin.

"Frankly, I don't know why I started this," said Kerrigan, his eyes cheerful and warm, "so I'll make it dull as possible. I was born in Chicago, fifty-one years ago, with a caul. My mother wanted me to go into the church, my stepfather wanted me in a bank, so I decided to be a cowboy. I entered the University of Chicago at the age of seventeen and came out of it again at seventeen and a quarter for a job on the range in Wyoming. I wrote up a barroom shooting and had the misfortune to get it printed in a Cheyenne paper. Since then I've worked on nineteen newspapers, being fired from one and resigning from eighteen in the nick of time. I am on my way to the twentieth, and last, run by an old friend in Southern California. I like horses, shad roe, and derby hats; and I never take old brandy except when I can get it. So there."

"Ah, is that all?" said Barry, her brows raised, her blue eyes tenderly disappointed. "Enough for today," said Kerrigan. "Now it's—"

"But I get a question," said Barry. "So you do." "Any question?" Kerrigan said. "The more personal, the more flattering," in quiet courtliness. She looked at him, looked down at the knife she fingered in her firm, dexterous hand, then up again gently. "Have you been married?" she said. "Never," said Kerrigan. "I used to keep coming down with love, but there was always something happened."

She watched him a second longer, the gentleness draining reluctantly from her eyes. Then for the first time since they'd sat down she turned to Hal, incuriously, and said, "You get one."

as if she were going to tell his fortune. Then in quiet leisure she said: "I'm twenty-three. I was born in Massachusetts, in Deerfield. Both my parents are dead. I finished high school and was secretary to a country lawyer for two years. I'd always wanted to go on the stage, so when I—when things changed, when my father died, I got a job in stock. I had three years of that round the East, without getting to Broadway; and now I'm going to try to get into pictures." She looked down thoughtfully, perhaps relievedly, at the knife in her hand, to show she had finished. "Thanks for listenin'," she added, with a brighter glance at Kerrigan. "You get questions, too."

"What do you like best—to do?" said Kerrigan at once. "Read," she said. "You've read a lot?" he said. She smiled easily. "I learned to read when I was six, and I've read ever since. I've learned darn-near everything I know from reading—what I like, what I don't like, what I want. I copied characters in books until one day I found I didn't have any ideas who I really was at all. And that frightened me a little."

Lunch came then, and she seemed to stop sooner that she had at first intended. Hal hoped the obituaries would be ended too—including his question to Barry. He couldn't ask her any of the things he found he really wanted to know; and such passable questions as he thought of sounded silly. But when the dishes were settled and the lead-tea and coffee situation straightened out, Kerrigan looked at him and said, "Now your question."

Barry looked up at Hal with a frank, quiet confidence that gave him unexpected pleasure. "If you—when you make good in the movies, and have lots of money," he said, "what will you do?"

Her eyes were faintly surprised by interest and they stayed on his, appraising the picture he'd provoked for her. "I hadn't thought," she said. "If—if I should arrive. . . ." That picture was dubious, but the light in-gered gently in her eyes, neither reckless with hope nor intimidated by disappointment. "If I should arrive and they plugged me and finished me, I'd go to England—France, to see it, to see if it's the place I've thought it might be. I'd live there for a while, and then . . . I don't know."

He Looked Expectantly at Barry.

Her lighted eyes came back slowly and without bitterness to the fragile, cheap tearoom, strayed expectantly to the table opposite, where Mrs. Pulsipher's account of Niagara Falls had struck a snag in her husband's doubt that it was there they'd been charged sixty cents for tough steak with yesterday's onions. Whatever Barry hoped to see, she didn't see. Hal wondered if the loneliness in her look was accidental: he felt that if she'd been aware of it, she wouldn't have let it appear. "Now it's your turn," she said to him.

"I'll tell you," said Hal. "I'm twenty-six. I was born in New York, but if I had it to go over again, I wouldn't be born there; I'd only go there when I felt like it. I went to school and college in New England, and then was sent abroad—to decide what I'd do. I nearly decided on a career of just being abroad, but one dark, rainy morning I was carrying a sort of headache past a steamship office, when I suddenly went in and bought a steamer ticket home. I was a runner in Wall Street for a while. Then I got a chance at a job about three thousand miles away from the Stock Exchange, and took it. That's where I'm going now—San Francisco."

had a son, I'd put him in that. Twice a year I give myself a good kicking at not having gone into railroads, at your age." He looked expectantly at Barry.

Her eyes were incurious—as if she hadn't till then thought of anything she could want to ask. And then, without more than the most superficial apology in her tone, she said, "Please don't answer if you'd rather not. The reason I'm asking—the reason stops and I forget I had it, whether you tell me or not. Are you Frederick Ireland's son?"

He tried to force from her clear, polite look a hint of why she wanted to know; but all he could see was confirmation of what she had said: she didn't ask out of idle curiosity and yet the answer wasn't momentous to her.

"Yes, I am," he said. She believed him, but it gave her nothing to think about. And Hal swore he would find out why she had asked that of him if he had to back her into a corner on the last day and shake her firm shoulders till she told him. No, not shake them: hold them, perhaps, but not shake them. And it should be before the last day, too. I wonder, he said to himself, if you'd tell me why you wanted to know that, without my even asking you. If you weren't so good to look at, Miss Trafford, you probably wouldn't be making so much trouble for yourself.

"I've met your father," said Kerrigan, without especial significance. "Have you?" said Hal. "Where?"

"In Paris," said Kerrigan. "When Wilson came over the first time. Were you with him?" "No," said Hal; "I wasn't." But Hal was wondering why, when it had never come hard to take challenge, he should shy at the prospect of later pretending to this girl that he was in love with her. She knew her way round; he had never seen her before and would probably never—Hal interrupted himself with a fresh wonder: why couldn't he easily conceive of not seeing her again? A little more than twenty-four hours it was, since they'd started; he didn't even know what she looked like with her hat off. Oh, the hell with it; just remember how easily she can make you mad and don't go Traveler's Aid till you have to.

Straight roads long-laid across the flatness of Ohio, with the sultry, flat afternoon in a hazy layer between the land and the stubbornly moving sun. Then Kerrigan saw "Detroit" on a signboard at less than a hundred miles. Pulsipher hummed a vague, contented piece of tune over to himself; Barry and Mrs. Pulsipher were discussing Florida oranges, mail-order shopping, red hair, and railway travel, with Sister Anastasia's gentle surprise and inquiry into them; and Kerrigan pored over his pocket atlas, puffing away the smoke from his short cigarette, to identify each strand in the web of railroads that converged upon Toledo.

Perhaps two hours more; and even if the ease of relief was rolling in now with every mile, the thing to do was push straight on without stopping, whether stark hunger overtook the Pulsiphers or not. "Say," came Crack's drowsy, confidential whisper near Hal's ear. Hal turned his head a little, his attention in alert suspense. "We could eat in Detroit," Crack said in softly impish conspiracy. "Run right through, we could—not give this bird another chance to try a quick one." Hal made himself ignore the coincidence: he nodded briefly and said, "Good idea."

If Crack, basking in the secret sunshine of his own little schemes, could be made uneasy, there must be something more to Miller's influence than Hal liked to allow. In the next rising of talk behind them Hal leant a little toward Kerrigan and murmured: "Is there anything about that fella that—?" He thought he saw understanding in Kerrigan's eyes and turned back to the road without finishing.

But Kerrigan said, "Which fella?" curiously. Hal glanced at him again quickly; the brown eyes still seemed to understand what he meant. And Hal dismissed the subject gingerly, muttering, "Later, later."

Across the Maumee and through the fringes of Toledo. It grew dark slowly; then the sprawl of a city began to infringe upon the openness, gradually and in disorder. "Dearborn," Crack suddenly whispered, and Hal wondered why it sounded exciting, even faintly sinister. Crack seemed to know Detroit, and to invest the names he spoke with undertones of leashed significance: Telegraph road; Michigan road that went straight into the dark behind them for two hundred and eighty miles to become Michigan boulevard in Chicago; River Rouge—a dark-gleaming creek that curled under the highway and gave its name to the plant where had worked more people than it took to build the Pyramids or sail the Armada.

"You sorta feel things goin' on here," said Crack quietly behind Hal's head. "Don't you?" "Yes, you do," said Hal. "I like Detroit." Crack said in shy complacency. "I used to work here." Hal had a quick curiosity to know what it was Crack had worked at; but something suggested that if he asked, the lazy, immature voice wouldn't tell him the truth. It was nearly ten o'clock—the night breathless, the pavement still remembering the sun's implacability—when they rolled into Cadillac square.

Spiritual Democracy Man's Debt to Christianity.

Two impulses divide the more vivid among us human beings: one, the will to excel; the other, a desire to share. These, as life is organized in successive periods of history, come now the one, again the other, uppermost. Nature herself is a confirmed aristocrat. The word democracy is not in her vocabulary. The children she favors are the men and women born with a force of intelligence which raises them above the common lot. But man is not content with this verdict. He perceives that there may be qualities in obscure persons which dignify them above worldly rank and, although nature may have no mercy on the weak; men frequently have. Both impulses—the will to excel and the desire to share—belong in any complete life, but in practice they clash a good deal and the puzzle is how to keep them reconciled.

An eminent scholar of our time has given long thought to this, and in the Hibbert Journal, under the title of "Christianity and Hellenism," appear certain conclusions of Sir Richard Livingstone, the president of Corpus Christi college, Oxford.

Two small peoples, utterly unlike, are, taken together (he says), the source of nearly all the worth of western civilization. They approach the problem of life from different ends. Greece starts with man, with the seen, and rises to the conception of divinity. Palestine begins at the opposite end and works from God down to man. Greece has given us all our literary forms, from drama to history, from oratory to the epigram, from the novel to the essay; the origins of our philosophy, our law, much of our political democracy; the first steps of many of our sciences, and it has formed much of our art and architecture. "If Greece had never existed, if we descended in a straight line from Greece and Rome, if no Jewish or Christian influence had ever touched us, Europe, at least on the surface, might not have been very different from what it is today."

Then what is left for Palestine? "It was Christianity," he answers, "that made the masses something more than 'supers' on the stage of life, by insisting that the highest virtue in man is love. . . . This love is within the reach of every human being. The philosopher and artist may achieve it. But so may the illiterate and unintelligent." In the Christian view the best thing in life can be enjoyed by the most obscure. . . . We are too accustomed to this idea to be surprised by it, but to the ancients it would have sounded like nonsense. Thus while Greece is the mother of political democracy, what Christianity brought into the world was spiritual democracy."—"Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Sunday Globe.

Historic Edinburgh Edinburgh, one of the finest cities of the world, is rich in historic, literary and artistic memories. John Knox, the Scottish reformer, lived and died there. Sir Walter Scott was born in an alley of the Old Town, where one may still see some of the first "skyscrapers." These are houses built very high because the space within the city walls was so restricted. In Howard place is the birthplace of Robert Louis Stevenson, and at Edinburgh academy he went to school.

By IGNACE PAWLOWSKI Pianist

"I VERY seldom play any gambling games. I have not the time, neither have I the inclination to gamble," said the great pianist "with a graceful and sweeping flourish of his hand." "But one day in Monte Carlo I awoke with an irresistible impulse to play roulette and a premonition that luck was running my way. Always, my work has been based on exactitude and study. For once I wanted to play with a premonition.

"I went to the roulette table and won seventeen times in succession. The next morning I awoke with the same impelling hunch. I returned to the table, and won thirty eight times. Confirmed gamblers tore their hair because I would not place more than the small 5-franc note.

"The third day my luck was still strong. Again I went to the tables and won thirty-four times. The Casino was in an uproar. The gamblers decided that Pawlowski had a system. The musician with his knowledge of intricate mathematics had evolved a system! Of course, I had no such system. They crowded to my side, and they wanted to place their money on my numbers, but I always waited until the last moment to place my note, so no one would know what number I was going to play.

"The fourth day I awoke with a distinct premonition that my luck had run out. I wanted to test the validity of this premonition, so I strolled to the Casino and placed a few francs. I lost I played a few rounds and then stopped."

Becoming Garden Spot

Cranberra, Australia made-to-order capital, is rapidly becoming one of the garden cities of the world. Three million trees and shrubs, 40 miles of hedges and 20,000 roses have been planted. Every tree and flower have been placed like a piece of mosaic according to a pre-conceived plan.

Balances Its Budget

"The worm is always regarded as a rather miserable creature," a naturalist tells us "but actually it has no use of pity at all."

For one thing, it can always make both ends meet.—Humorist Magazine.

DULL INDEED

The country weeklies of Texas have given hundreds of columns of information and propaganda provided by the government relief agencies during the past two years. It was only through the weekly press that the farmers could be effectively reached—and the country press has been always anxious to help the government in its program. But when the relief agencies need printing (and they use many hundreds of dollars worth of printing in each county) they have all the work done in Austin—leaving the country papers to hold the sack. It's a darned shame that this work is not distributed among the papers of the counties where it is used. There would be a hard from headquarters if the papers quit publishing the dope sent out by the various departments of government work—but these white collar boys should be taught their duty in some very effective manner.—Farmersville Times.

A native of a western town, which had had a remarkable boom some years ago, moved away. Recently he happened to run across one of his old neighbors when they were both on a trip to Washington. The first man asked the second how things were in the old home town.

The friend replied: "You can't imagine how dull they are. You remember Bill Watson? Well, he dropped dead in front of the post office Sunday and they didn't find the body until Thursday."

Food Safety

In various bulletins, the United States Department of Agriculture recommends that meats, vegetables, milk, and other perishable foods be kept at temperatures below 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

Electric refrigerator manufacturers once had difficulty in producing this temperature along with other features demanded by the American housewife, especially in warmer parts of the country.

But better refrigerators were made each year. Now you may expect much of an Electric Refrigerator. Beauty, economy in operation, positive below 50 degree temperature control, rapid freezing of ice cubes and desserts, and quietness, are general features found in all Electric Refrigerators. Each manufacturer has many worthwhile conveniences.

Boy! wouldn't it be nice if we owned a business that we could shut down and go fishing until about September first?

And now school authorities are advocating training pupils to be employers instead of employees. Maybe this will solve the unemployment situation.

It is much better to compromise with a neighbor over a difference than to let a minor grievance develop into an open breach with long time bitterness.

We note a long poem written supposedly by a lady, in an exchange, that takes the name of the Diety in vain in various places. It is strange that with as many words as there are in the English language, it would be thought necessary to be profane in order to get one's thoughts on paper.

It is estimated that the descendants of a single fly through a summer season of nine generations will number five and a half trillion. As flies breed in filth and never roam very far from their breeding places, it should be easy to account for any flies around the place this summer.

It is easy for smaller towns to accuse Amarillo of "hogging" things, but when it is remembered that there must be a center, and Amarillo is the logical center, the accusation does not stand up. In the road program, it was generally understood that gaps in the present systems would be paved first, and the fact that all roads lead to Amarillo should have had nothing to do with the matter.
 Given a little time, perhaps all road problems will be worked out to the satisfaction of all towns concerned.

THE WORLD'S HONORS

The world has always honored highly the people who do things the world values. To carry out this thought, the schools publish lists of honor students. Such recognition is useful, since these students are frequently retiring young folks, who are scarcely appreciated outside their own neighborhoods.

The colleges distribute honors in the form of learned degrees. The statesman who has solved national problems, is made a Doctor of Laws. The master of social science is made a Doctor of Philosophy. The world does not pay much attention to these learned degrees. Yet in millions of humble homes, the working hours are shorter and the children better fed, because of the labors of these men of research.

Meanwhile the pitcher who can twist a baseball so the baffled batter can't locate it with his swishing stick, may be better known in his home city than the constructive statesman or the patient man of research. The eccentric path of that baseball does not do much to make daily life more livable.
 But the results thrill the bleachers to frenzies of excitement.

The laborious scholar sits alone in his silent study, and communes with his books. But the football player who can worm his way amid the tackling opponents is carried off the field on the shoulders of his comrades, while the stadiums echo with the thunder of the rosters.

The highest honors ought to go to the people who teach us to think, because it is through thought that the world escapes its troubles. We honor the people who can throw a baseball faster than the competing athletes. But we fail to pay equal honors to the men of science and philanthropy, who remove the fetters that hold men down to earth, and thus enable humanity to make use of its wings.—Enterprise, Norwood Ohio.

THE PUBLIC FRIEND

We have heard much of late about the Public Enemies. The United States government is pursuing certain suspicious characters whom it declares to be Public Enemies, and it has disposed of several conspicuous figures in that class. There is a whole army of Public Enemies with whom the country has to content, and many of them have never seen the inside of any prison.

Meanwhile we should recognize that we also have a great many Public Friends, as well as Public Enemies, and warm tributes should be paid them, and people should be encouraged to qualify for this class. What are the characteristics of the Public Friend?

The Public Friend believes he must make some share of the labors of carrying on community work in his home town. If he is asked to take some office in some good community organization, he does not say, "Oh, no, I could not possibly do anything like that." You find him taking up tasks that are more or less distasteful.
 You will probably see him at your for some night, offering you an opportunity to give money to some good home town cause.

The Public Friend is interested in everything that promises progress for his home town. He attends meetings and gatherings considered to discuss local problems. He offers suggestions when he can see things that should be done.

The Public Friend makes his purchase at home whenever he can,
 which is practically always.

The Public Friend always speaks good words for his home town. He does not think it smart or funny to take a superior attitude and point out its defects, but he always speaks of its kindly and friendly spirit and the public institutions built up over years of labor. We have many of these Public Friends in Royal Oak.

IS THEIR FACE RED?

It happened at the Home Products dinner. Everything served was made or processed in this community. The big object of the whole program was to stress the buying of home products. Four men orated too long and with much emphasis on the value of buying home products. A Topeka speaker fanned the air mightily in praising Kansas made products. A number of baskets of home products were given free to the holder of the lucky numbers. And here is why the faces of the chamber of commerce officials are red—on the bottom of the tickets given to the people at the Home Products dinner was the imprint of a Kansas City printer! The Home Products boosters used printing made in Kansas City! All during the mighty flow of oratory the little tickets were passed up and down the tables and the people smiled as they looked at the Kansas City printing—that is, everyone but the printers, they laughed out loud and are still laughing. Great stuff, this using home products.—Douglas County

A citizen informed us this week farms and at least $5000 loaned out.

The dollar or so that a skunk hide brings a trapper, or the few cents a weasel pelt brings, will not com-of 300 field mice a year and many rats. The skunk feeds largely on field mice and injurious insects. Their value in controlling pests must be weighed against their destructive tendencies in the poultry yard before they are sentenced to death and

PATTERN 2198

This is the type of dress that gives a lot of real pleasure. Those perky sleeves with the unique shoulder and yoke arrangement do the most amazing things—made in taffeta or organdy, for example, they stand right out with a lot of "ginger." But do them in a soft crepe, voile or crinkly chiffon, and they fall caressingly upon the arm, which means, of course, that they're becoming to anyone. The frock is as easy to make as it is lovely—you'll like the notion that little skirt panel gives when you walk—the easy fit of those little tucks at the waist, with their ensuing softness. The skirt panel may be omitted if you prefer the skirt plain.

Pattern 2198 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 takes 2 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for the pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Text: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," make His paths straight."—Matt. 3:2b.

PREPARATION FOR CHURCH

When the President of the United States is scheduled to appear in a certain city many preparations have to be made: hotel accommodations, banquet hall radio hook-up, appointments for interviews, private detective protection, etc.

Preparations are also made for holidays, reunions, Sunday dinners and outings. Ladies are very careful to have their best wearing apparel prepared for church wear and the Sunday walk or ride. But one factor is often overlooked: preparation of one's heart for the church service. That, after all, is the most important preparation. It is a fine and necessary thing for one to have clean clothes for church—not necessarily expensive, for we are to appear in the house of worship in clean clothing. But the heart must also be clean.

We are to prepare the paths of the Lord in our hearts just as John the Baptist prepared the hearts of the people for Christ. He spoke: "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight."

In this statement we have an allusion to an Oriental custom. When a king or ruler was to make a trip to see his subjects, the way had to be prepared for him. All paths roads, had to be straightened. If a mountain was in the way a road was cut through it; if the road would lead over a swamp or a valley, men were hired to fill in the gaps to make a straight road for the exalted ruler.

Likewise, in spiritual life, we are to prepare the road for Jesus Christ in our hearts. We are to cut down the mountains of jealousy, the hills of self-righteousness, drain the swamps of conceit and uppishness and fill in the valleys of anger and discord.

How can we do this? By reading the penitential Psalms of David and the Gospel of Jesus Christ. We need no other book for our guidance in this respect than the Holy Bible. We must admit that we are sinners, repent of our misdeeds, feel sorry for having committed them in our weakness, ask God for forgiveness and promise to lead a better life in accordance with the help of the Holy Spirit. In this manner we are to prepare our hearts before we go to church. Then we will be able to appreciate the sermons of our pastors and take their admonitions to heart. We are referring to Gospel sermons of true pastors and not sermons on politics and economics. The Gospel is to be preached to all creatures and not politics.

Let us prepare our hearts very carefully with the Word of God before we go to church to hear it preached. Then we will derive the full benefit of the sermons preached to us.

Mrs. C. C. Sloan and Miss Mollie Richardson of Pampa visited the former's sister, Mrs. Roy Campbell Friday.

ACQUIESCENCE

By Aileen Williams

They wandered through pleasures, hand in hand. Carefree of man's time up on this land.

But the kindest heart is not free of sadness and care. When mortal man is needed there.

Now she ponders in dreams that are alive. Dreams with her life to survive. Slowly enumerable time dragged away.

'Twas beauty with wrinkles and hair of gray.

The time woven path that she had made—

Hurriedly grew in grass and soon should fade.

As her aged feet should slower and lesser tread.

To that grandeur mound above the sod.

A girl, who grew old and her life is spent—

She passed her time alone and does not lament.

Her pure heart is not sad on Decoration Day.

For her time is near at end, on earth, shall stay.

So up the path with flowers in hand she went—

And at his head and foot a flower inward bent.

"I shall go now, dear, and the flowers I placed above you—

Are cheap indeed but to let you know—I still love you."

All you mothers who have sons to donate to the liquor demon should vote to repeal prohibition in Texas.

God knows, we do not need the liquor flood-gates opened in Texas any wider than they are now.—Farmersville Times.

"You must be growing tired of me," said Mr. Newlywed.

"You never call me cucky, honey-bunch or funny-face, as other men's wives do."

The little bride bridled up and shot back at him: "Do they call you such loving names 'as that? Well, I'm going right home to mamma."

Say it with ink; flowers die.

Government Officer—"Are you married or single?"

Novelty's the Word for Swim Suits

and shakes out and dries, moisture injuring its appearance not in the least. See the velvet suit pictured in the center of the group.

JUST what, do you suppose, "are the wild waves saying" in regard to the whimsical, colorful and sometimes amusing water sports fashions which are so merrily splashing, dashing, swimming, bathing, diving and floating and frolicking in ocean blue, or lake or river or new fangled swimming pool or wherever enthusiastic water fans happen to be?

Well, one thing is certain, if they are saying anything, they are undoubtedly holding an exciting conversation as to the trend to novelty which is so outstandingly characteristic of the latest in swim and beach suits. This is especially true in regard to media and materials, which are that novel they deny the theory that there is nothing new under the sun.

There's lace, for instance, which as a charming innovation, so far as bathing suits are concerned, has set the fashion world abuzz this season. Dilkska, a youthful French designer of renown, conceived the idea. The lace makers obligingly followed along with a fabric that could be used with assured modesty and pleasing effect. Comfortable to swim in, attractive in appearance, lace threatens to be a leader in the race for beachwear popularity. In the picture, the suit to the left is fashioned of lace of firm dependable quality. Even the bathing clogs are of lace, closely woven and snug-fitting.

Another sensation is the debut of velvet as medium for the bathing suit. Of course the velvet has been processed to resist the ravages of water. Then, too, it is crinkled instead of smooth the idea of the bathing suit which is knitted yet there is everything new in knitted effects as brought out this season. Their chief claim to novelty is in the daring and bizarre colorings and patterned effects instead of plain solid tones. The new print or jacquard knits are so spectacular that they easily add as much color to the beach panorama as do the gaily striped parasols and deck chairs.

The style tide in knitted suits is running strongly to the mallot, or skirtless swim suit, because it permits the greatest freedom of action and exposes a maximum of skin surface to healthful sun rays. Mallots are also most flattering to fine figures, which is another argument in their favor. A smart version of the mallot, in a jacquard knit with a deep U-back, halter neck and the fitted uplift (characteristic of the majority of 1935 suits) is shown to the right in the illustration. Huge bubble dots, alternating outline and solid, contribute splashes of striking color to its patterning. Among the beguiling combinations are white dots on a skipper blue ground, sulphur yellow on brown, rouge on glory blue and white on tropic green.

Many fashionwise water-fans will do their swimming and sunbaking in skirtless or skirted, if you so prefer, one-piece suits which have backs formed by adjustable straps drawn together at the back in a ring or some other ingenious and attractive device surrounding the waist as a self belt, carelessly tied at the front to give the smart and casual touch.

BEACH TOWEL WRAP

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Immense bath towels with fantastic designs, fish, lobsters, and palm trees being their decorative motifs done in eye-appealing colors are being used at leading summer resorts as rugs and beach wraps. The picture shows how smartly and artfully they wrap themselves about scanty bathing suits. Measuring 38 by 72 inches as they do, these enormous bath-and-beach towels serve as ample rugs on sandy shores, lending color and tone to the scene.

NEWEST STYLES IN OUTFITS FOR BEACH

From tailored severity to lacy laziness, the newest beach clothes range, with in-between numbers of quaint pastoral quality and daring modern themes.

There's a gay nineties air about a swim suit of polka-dotted red latex woven with white ruffles around the top and bottom, and forming the shoulder straps, which cross in the back. Then there is the English schoolboy outfit, so popular with beach lollers this season, which usually consists of tall shorts and shirt of navy or polka-dotted twill, a matching ascot and a tailored white pique or linen jacket.

The Havarian note is with us, too, in pastoral beach frocks of flowered glazed chintz, with lace bodices and sometimes even milkmaid aprons.

There is the Tyrolean trend, in gay chintz shirts and skirt-length slacks, with suspenders and gay belts. You wear these with a plumed Alpine hat.

Summer Prints Are Using Flowers as Big as Plates

Prints splashed with the biggest figures Paris has ever used—flowers are next to a large dinner plate—are next on the summer style scene.

Black or white crepes printed with huge plate-sized yellow and green sunflowers fashion slender gowns whose hemlines and trains are encircled by diagonal flourishes. Their tops are sometimes without shoulder straps, leaving shoulders and back bare, the neckline often rimmed by a big ruche of the flowers cut from the material and strung with loops of horsehair ribbon. More prints, this time patterned in saucer-sized tulips, fashion other gowns cut along similar lines.

Gaudy Ornaments

Ornaments for afternoon and evening wear are gaudy and often introduced a contrasting color. Quaint jeweled belts are daring and sometimes feature bracelets or other ornaments to match.

EVERYDAY NEW YORK

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK.—Thoughts while strolling: When better tunes come along, they are usually by Jerome Kern. His "Sally" score is still something to shoot at. I'll never be able to dissociate Henry Hull from that "rummy Jester" Lester. Nobody looks dandier in a colored shirt than Tullio Carminati.

Look alike: Hendrik Van Loon and Buddha. When I first saw his name in a magazine I thought Nunnally Johnson was a girl. The tired business man doesn't care for revues with Marxist message—hence the flop of "Parade." No one has been able to imitate Floyd Gibbons's breathless excitement on the radio.

Lavender's the color for ladies. Wonder if Joseph Wood Krutch ever met Thomas Steele Cain? Name for a Boston: Pop-eye. Add rarely see one without the other married couples—Pat and Rupert Hughes. Lois Long's sun-up of the Normandie: "Some hunk of ship."

What was so bad about the horse and buggy days? Still another name surging up like a hiccup: Jouett Shouse. And Cecil Sisson in Houston would be swell for a seltzer bottle manufacturer. Jimmy Savo is always bearing down on one of those long, twisted Italian stogies.

Overheard: "He'd give you the shirt off his back—if you'd wash it for him." Louis Calhern certainly marries gorgeous women. The first days of that Tacoma kidnaping all I could think of was "Karpis Delict." Fred Allen and Tony Wons could swap voices and nobody would know.

A fine professional howdydo has sprung up between the Octavus Roy Cohens. Some months ago Cohen was called to a Hollywood studio to do an original. He did it and moved to another studio. In the meanwhile his wife, who used to write under her maiden name, Inez Lopez, joined the writing staff of the first studio to which her husband was called and was assigned with Frank R. Adams to work on the shooting script of her husband's story. The comic strip complications are endless—if the picture isn't so hot Mrs. Cohen can blame it on the story and her husband can lay it to the scripting. Etc., etc.

A rather bewildered drunk, who had just received a punch in the jaw, weaved up to Harry Richmond in a cafe and inquired: "Pardon mister, but do I still appear to be smiling? My mood is frolicsome!" Then there's one about the night club owner calling to the doorman juggling a drunk to a taxi: "Put a card in his pocket. He might want to come back some time." Also that famous bathing beauty who was always found, ho, ho, in a dive.

The gentleman looking least a part of the sophisticated first night scene he graces so conspicuously is Percy Hammond. He has a pontifical manner and with a pie pan hat and a Belasco collar he could pass for a curate of the English countryside. One to whom the ribald mot might be effront. Indeed none of the critics, save perhaps George Jean Nathan, express the glossiness a stranger might expect. The erudite Brooks Atkinson, among other high gifts an ornithologist of note, would not look out of place as an attendant at a Diocourt of culture known as the shooting gallery and pin ball hall. Yet in aisle seats all suggest a group of savants attending a post graduate lecture at the Sorbonne. Although they see each other in close communion many successive nights, year after year, there are no petty jealousies among them. Between acts they chat under the sidewalk marquee to discuss almost every subject under the sun—save the play they have come to see. There's an unwritten law about that.

Two of the most consistent first nighters in my years of intermittent premiereing—I thrill to the theatre in stretches and suddenly find it deadly—have been Robert Rubin and Clara Bell Walsh. Mr. Rubin casts a practiced eye over the movie possibilities for his organization. Mrs. Walsh is generally a friend of every player in the cast. The more auspicious openings, such as Lunt-Fontaine, Noel Coward or Katherine Cornell operas, have among the front rowers Jules Glaesner, Bernard Baruch, the Irving Berlins, Tony Bludde and the Frank Storrs. No offering since has brought out the notable fine-feathered audiences of the Follies.

From a home-town weekly: "The girls of that era remember how Odd McIntyre, when dancing, stepped all over their feet."

I was rather good at hopping upon ankles and sliding down too.

Two-Wheeled Car Predicted

Automobile of the Future Likely to Differ Greatly From Present-Day Models; Perfect Stream-Lining to Be the Main Objective.

Are the third and fourth wheels on our present-day autos as need as a fifth wheel on a wagon? Will the automobile of the future roll over roads with the greatest of ease on two large spherical wheels? Instead of the four now in vogue?

These are the questions that may be popping up in the minds of auto engineers as they study the recent patent granted to Boris von Loutzkoj, of Berlin, Germany, for what he calls a "Monotrack Vehicle."

Von Loutzkoj's main object is to get perfect streamlining, and he wants to streamline the tires, too. Ordinary tires do not give such perfect streamlining and then by using four of them you have to provide mud guards which also create problems in cutting down the wind resistance.

Two large, pneumatic spherical wheels, like big rubber balls, one at each end of the body, would do the trick, he reasons. You can shape the body over these wheels so that body and wheels co-operate or merge to form a streamlined unit. It looks much like a bullet, with front wheel and windshield forming the nose. Air currents skim off this car with a minimum amount of resistance, claims the inventor.

Mud guards are eliminated, so are springs. The large wheels themselves give you spring action as well as knee action. Of novel structure all around, their hollow interior is subdivided into compartments or chambers, each of which is blown up with air through suitable valves. It's like having a number of inner tubes in a sphere. If one of these compartments gets punctured, it doesn't mean you have a flat tire, because all the other compartments expand correspondingly and fill up the space. Thus danger of overturning as a result of a blowout is eliminated.

"The volume of air of such hollow spheres," points out the inventor in his patent, "surpasses the volume of air of the usual tires by ten times and more, so that the usual leaf or helical springs may be dispensed with. In consequence the weight of the vehicle is considerably less, the cost of manufacture is reduced and through the elimination of the spring elements all deficiencies inherent in such devices are avoided."

"Vehicles equipped with such hollow spheres do not require mud guards," he states, "and the hollow spheres also serve as the customary buffers (like bumpers, shock absorbers, knee action gadgets) and in consequence they insure desirable protection against accidents of all kinds."

Not only do you get all these, claims the inventor, but due to the large surface of the hollow sphere and the single-track arrangement, skidding on asphalt pavement when slamming on the brakes is avoided. Then with his car, you can get around curves much better than you can on four wheels. And you don't need such a powerful motor to make it run.

The inventor's auto recalls recent reports from Russia of experiments with a monorail train built along these lines. The train would be mounted on large steel spheres for wheels, which instead of speeding on rails, would roll along in a narrow specially built concrete trough-like channel or road.—Harry Goldsmith, in the Washington Post.

New Instrument Speeds Up Work of Surveyors

A scientific device which speeds up surveying and map-making and renders unnecessary a lot of computations has been invented and is now part of the instrument which surveyors call the Abney level. The inventor is Prof. John Samml, of the department of forest management of the New York State college of forestry at Syracuse university, says the Scientific American.

The Abney level is the most efficient instrument for making maps and running boundary lines for forestry purposes and Professor Samml has made it still more efficient. In fact, it will now solve problems in geometry for the surveyor that only the human mind was believed able to do, leaving only a few resulting calculations which can often be made mentally. The new device consists of an extra set of graduated marks inscribed on the metal face of the arc of the Abney level.

By means of Professor Samml's device it is now possible to measure to any fixed point on a slope of land and find the horizontal distance to the point by consulting the graduations on the arc of the level. It is necessary to have this horizontal to find out the height of the point on the slope, a feature essential in making topographic maps.

YOU ALWAYS GET BETTER QUALITY AT NO HIGHER PRICE WHEN YOU BUY A FIRESTONE TIRE WITH FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE

Tires may look alike on the outside, but on the inside where blowouts start, they are different. Firestone Tires are made blowout-proof by Gum-Dipping, a patented extra process which soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. In fact, every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight additional pounds of liquid rubber. This special process prevents internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped, yet you pay no more for Firestone blowout-proof protection than you are asked to pay for tires built without this patented safety construction feature.

The make of tires you buy for your car becomes a matter of vital importance when you realize that there were 882,000 automobile accidents in 1934 injuring 954,000 people and killing 36,000 and that 43,000 of these accidents were caused by blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Firestone High Speed Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for safety, speed, mileage and endurance. These records emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof but give greatest protection against skidding.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Kelly Pettilo won the race and broke the record over this 26-year-old rough brick track without tire trouble—in fact, not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind. Ab Jenkins drove his 3,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles in 23½ hours, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. This is made possible by the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This thick, rugged, scientifically designed tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped layers of cords under the tread. This is a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.
