F. F. A. BOY'S PROJECT PROVES PROFITABLE

By Dr. A. A. Tampke

Tom Jack Wade, F. F. A. student of the McLean high school, who has one of the finest purebred Hampshire brood sows in the community, is showing that pig production is profitable.

He recently sold seven of his ten pig litter for $40 cash. These pigs are just nine to ten weeks old. He plans to keep the other three pigs and the sow for his own use. Most of the feed used was garbage secured from the city cafes, which gives him a very nice net income, holding the cost of production to very low figures.

The pigs were all large, healthy and thrifty from the start and continued rapid growth, which is a very good illustration that good purebred stock pays better.

NEW STOCK LAW IS EFFECTIVE AUGUST 11

W. J. Van London, division engineer of the state highway department at Amarillo, in a letter to The News, encloses the following interpretation of Senate Bill No. 143, as written by Tom Sealy, assistant to the legal investigations division:

"The Legislature of the State of Texas this year passed a law providing that any person owning or controlling any horse, mule, donkey, cow, bull, steer, hog, sheep, goat, or any other livestock, who permits the same to run at large unattended on that portion of any designated State highway in this State which is inclosed by fences on both sides shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Each day such livestock are allowed or permitted to run at large is a separate offense. The punishment for each offense shall be a fine of any sum not more than two hundred dollars ($200.00). The law further provides that State highway patrolmen as well as local sheriffs and other local officers shall have the power to enforce said law.

"This law will become effective on August 10, 1925, and thereafter will be strictly enforced upon the complaint of any citizen of Texas.

"During the past few years livestock roaming at large on State highways have become a dangerous menace to the traveling public. Because of the carelessness and neglect of those who own or control such livestock, numerous accidents have resulted by reason of the collision with such livestock by automobiles lawfully operated upon the said highways, and a large number of people have been killed and others have been so seriously injured as to be maimed for life. In addition, untold property damage has resulted.

"The State Highway Department asks that every citizen in this locality cooperate with this department, with the local peace officers and with the State Highway Patrol in the enforcement of this law to the end that the State highways in this locality may be made more safe for the traveling public."

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

TRADE TREATY WITH RUSSIA STIRS SHARP ATTACK ON SECRETARY HULL

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

TWENTY months of apparently futile moves to revitalize the commercial relations between the United States and Russia, and then suddenly

Washington announces that the two nations had concluded a one-year trade agreement under which the Soviet Republics agreed to increase their American imports by 150 per cent. In return for purchases of $30,000,000 worth of American goods Russia is to be granted wide tariff concessions by the United States.

Russia will buy railroad equipment, machinery for making new automobile models and other products of heavy industry. In addition the Soviets will buy cotton. The railroad equipment is needed badly for modernization of a weak transportation system.

In return Russia expects to sell sausage casings, certain grades of iron ore, manganese, furs and dairy products in large quantities to the United States.

The pact, concluded by the exchange of notes between Ambassador Bullitt in Moscow and Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, provides for no further loans to Russia and makes no mention of the more than $700,000,000 in debts contracted by former Russian governments. It is in line with Secretary Hull's policy of trade agreements. For these two reasons especially it is attacked by many Republicans and not a few Democrats in congress. Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada was one of the angriest of these gentlemen. He declared Secretary Hull was a "prize diplomatic dupe" and announced that he would demand an immediate modification of the reciprocal tariff act to rescind powers under which Hull is negotiating such treaties. Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, also is earnestly opposed to Hull's trade program.

WHEN one witness before the house ways and means committee, opposing the President's new tax program, called congress a "rubber stamp," Chairman Doughton and other Democrats declared they had been insulted and would hear no more from the witness. Nearly every one else who heard was as insistent in denouncing the proposed tax bill but more tactful. Most of them represented various sections of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Then the committee apparently decided that it really would be a rubber stamp, for it quit work on the tax measure for the time being and, according to report, left the writing of it to certain brain trustees of the Treasury department. The public hearings had been noisy, full of bickerings and probably of no use whatever.

Administration leaders then began planning for postponement of the proposed tax legislation until the winter session. It was said President Roosevelt had consented to this course provided a bill can be agreed upon before adjournment that shall be acceptable to all the groups whose objective is redistribution of wealth by taxation. The prospect of an early adjournment was so pleasing to the house that one member, Dean of Georgia, was given a veritable ovation when he made a speech telling how tired the legislators were.

FIFTY thousand dollars was appropriated by the house for investigation by the rules committee of lobbying for and against bills affecting utilities interests.

Representative Rankin of Mississippi declared that Representative O'Connor of New York, chairman of the committee, was unfit to conduct the inquiry because he was antagonistic to the administration. O'Connor, rising to reply, was given an ovation by the house, and promised the investigation would be thorough and impartial. Already the committee has begun its work, the first witness being Representative Brewster of Maine, who declared Thomas G. Corcoran, New Deal lawyer, had tried to force him to vote for the "death sentence" provision in the utilities bill by threats of stopping work on the Passamaquoddy project. Corcoran was then put on the stand and denied the main features of Brewster's story, whereupon the Maine congressman shouted, "You're a liar." Corcoran explained with facility his activities in behalf of the utilities measure. He said he was assigned to help with the original drafting of the bill "through a direct request from the President." Senators Wheeler and Rayburn, he said, asked him to help bring about passage of the bill.

UNOFFICIALLY and informally, the general opinion seems to be that the Wagner labor disputes act is unconstitutional and will be so declared by the United States Supreme court when that tribunal is called on for a decision. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urges labor leaders to pay no attention to claims that the law is invalid.

"Leading legal authorities of the nation are of the opinion that the act is Constitutional in every respect," he wrote, but added in a letter that he expects a court test and that the American Federation of Labor will get "the best legal talent."

Even if the Wagner law is knocked out by the Supreme court, the administration believes it has a plan that will avert at least 90 per cent of the usual number of strikes, walk-outs, lock-outs and other disorders. It is being launched in Toledo, Ohio, and has been called the "Toledo plan" because it was conceived by Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady when he was trying to settle a dispute in that Ohio city.

It has no sectional characteristics; carries no federal compulsion, and rests solely upon the willingness of workers and employers in every city that adopts the plan, to abandon the harsh economic weapons of old and substitute peaceful discussion for violence.

Mr. McGrady explained the plan this way:

A panel of business and labor leaders of equal number is chosen with a federal official to act as chairman. This official presumably would be one who has made a record in the regional labor service setup under the national labor relations board.

The employer would continue to bargain with his workers as usual. In event of a disagreement between them the workers agree not to strike and the employer agrees not to lock out or discriminate against the men as the issue is carried to the panel.

This group debates the problem and if it is unable to agree the heads of the business and labor representatives on the panel and the federal chairman continue seeking an avenue of settlement. If they are unable to agree then an appeal is made direct to the owner of the business involved and the head of the union controlling the workers.

SENATOR HUEY LONG has the political fate of his chief opponent, Mayor T. Semmes Walmesley of New Orleans, in the palm of his hand. But he is forcing the people of the city to put the mayor out. A majority of Walmesley's followers, tired of the conflict, formally deserted him when the commission council adopted a resolution endorsing recent statements of two commissioners calling for the city to make peace with Long. The mayor, standing almost alone, declined to yield. He told the council he "would not deal with men who have been called 'crooks and thieves' by every member of the commission council."

In a caucus preceding the council session, 13 of Walmesley's 17 ward leaders voted for his resignation "for the good of the city." The mayor told them he was "going to stick from here to breakfast." Senator Long received a committee of the seceders and said he would call a session of the state legislature to force Walmesley out of office within 24 hours after the "old regulars" obtained approval of a majority of the city's voters for a petition requesting the mayor's removal.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT led various of his cabinet members, leaders of the majority in congress and captains of the New Deal on a weekend outing that was at once dubbed "the kiss and make up excursion." For a lot of these men had been snarling at one another in the physical and political heat of recent days in Washington and the Chief Executive evidently thought it time the quarreling was ended. The entire bunch went to Jefferson island in Chesapeake bay, Mr. Roosevelt on his yacht Sequoia and the others on a fleet of boats.

Cabinet members included were Vice President Garner, Postmaster General Farley, Attorney General Cummings, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of War Dern, and Secretary of Commerce Roper. Speaker Byrns headed a congressional delegation including Senators Tydings, Pittman, Robinson, Copeland, Dieterich, Walsh, Gerry, Duffy, and Radcliffe.

Relief Director Hopkins, No. 1 Brain Trustee Tugwell, and Treasury General Counsel Oliphant also were in the party.

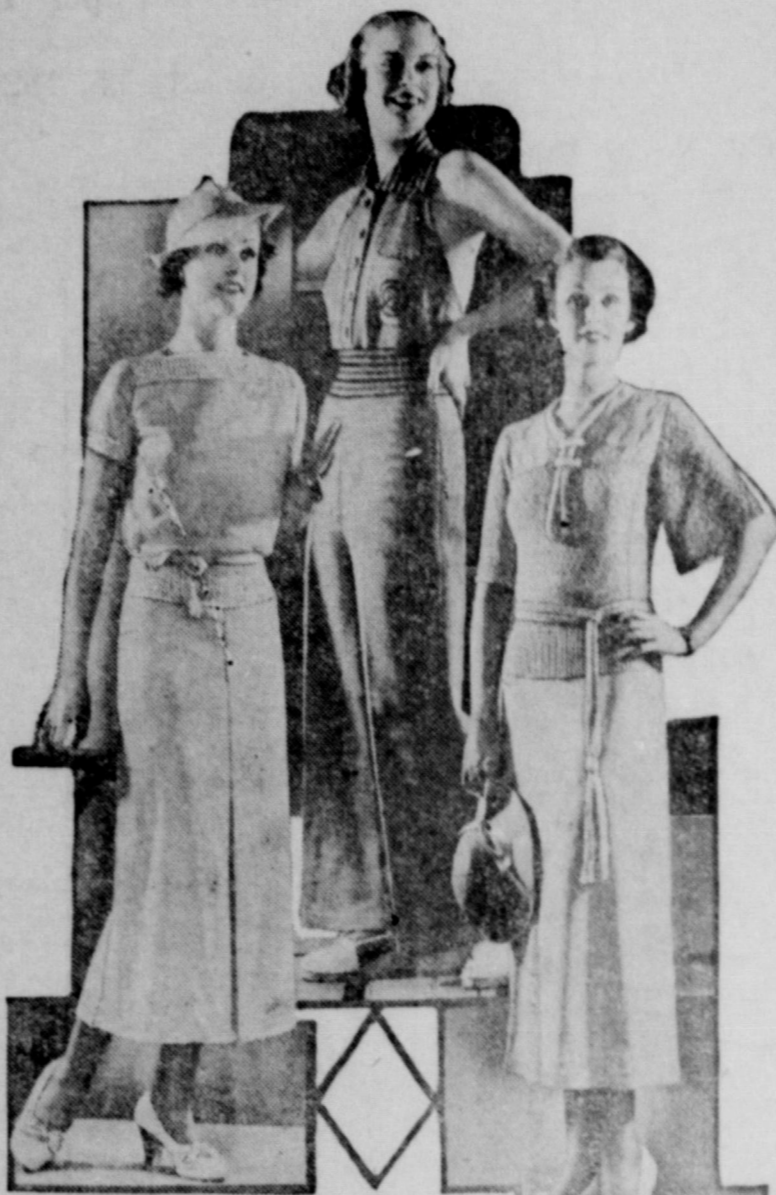

NEWSPAPERS of northern Italy intimated that Premier Mussolini might abandon his projected war with Ethiopia if he could find a way of backing out without losing face. But the Roman public was quite sure the duce's aggressive policy would be unimpaired. This opinion was strengthened by the sending of more troops to East Africa.

Secretary of State Hull entered the picture again with a rather mild statement expressing America's abhorrence of war and confidence in the Kellogg pact. The Italians didn't like this at all.

WHEN Chinese rivers overflow they do the thing in a big way. The Han, which joins the Yangtze near Hankow, broke through the dikes and rushed through the densely populated land, drowning about 10,000 men, women and children. The city of Hankow was imperiled and soldiers and civilians were working desperately to keep the levees from breaking.

Knit Outfits Are Ideal for Vacation

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHETHER you spend your summer in town or in country, on the golf course, or at the beach you will find it the better part of wisdom and good taste to have at hand one or several of the prettily colorful, porous, airy knitted outfits that have been developed in wide variety to keep you cool as the mercury mounts. They'll keep you fashionable at the same time because of their graceful, silhouetting lines, smart tailoring and casual appearance.

For vacation purposes knits are ideal. Throw them into your valise at home and take them out ready to wear when you reach your destination, as crinkles and wrinkles disappear with a shake. Their sporty appearance, too, tunes them to practically all daytime requirements whether your program calls for active recreation or just lazing about.

The vast majority of these creations for warm weather wear are two piece dresses coming in linen, feather-weight zephyr, silky and cotton knits. Sweater blouses in openwork effects, many with self belts and novelty tie girdles, are undeniably in the lead. These are generally set off by skirts in plain stitches. A new touch, which is seen with increasing frequency is a match of sleeves with front blouse panels. Sleeves, by the way, are usually short and of the puffed type.

Ideal for bridges and teas on sultry afternoons and suited as well to spectator sports is the two-piece ensemble, knitted of a silk frill, shown to the right in the picture. Hand fashioned throughout, it is marked by a lacy knit bosom which matches split umbrella sleeves. A novel touch is provided by a braided neckline running into a tie effect, with two crystal clips for adjustment purposes. The neckline theme is carried out in a braided cable cord ending in a long graceful tassel. Other details of interest include the rib bottom of the blouse and the novelty rack hemline of the skirt. Dusty pink is a becoming color for this smart, serviceable costume and it is also definitely modish in bijou blue, wheat gold, antique mauve and white, also other summery shades.

Simpllicity is the keynote of the two piece cotton knit, shown to the left rendering it perfect for golf and tennis and just as good for morning shopping on these joyous summer days. It is an almost imperceptible bird's eye knit with a unique straight collar line developed in a rib effect, similar to the treatment of the brief puff sleeves and the bottom of the blouse. Ample freedom of action is permitted by semi-concealed pleats, front and back, which make walking no battle against skirt restrictions. At the same time the skirt is fashioned so as to retain its trim effect. A decorative touch is introduced by a self-belt which may be casually and even negligently, tied at either side in accordance with your whim.

As a pert addition to your beach wardrobe you will find that a knit pajama outfit, as centered in the illustration, will give you endless comfort and satisfaction. The garment, which is in a corduroy stitch, is distinguished by the wide knit rib waistline which assures close fit. The contrasting stripes of the waist are carried out in the wide opening club collar, which is also in a rib knit. Interesting details are the button closing in the now-so-voguish shirtwaist effect, the pocket monogram, the wide pants and the backless treatment. Gray is an unusually effective shade for this pajama, the contrasting stripes being red and blue.

LACE AND CHIFFON

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Lace and chiffon make a charming combination and one that is most fashionable at the present moment. For the model pictured silk lace goes partner with navy silk chiffon, the matching jacket being entirely of the lace. The V-decolletage in front can be adjusted high or low.

SUMMER PARTY TOGS NOW HOLD INTEREST

Summer party dresses are absorbing the attention of the younger set these days. Steek sophistication is out for summer evenings, so far as the youngsters are concerned, and fluffy ruffles are the rule of the day. Sheer confections of lace and net and organdy are blossoming in shop windows, with plenty of frills and furbelows.

Consider, for instance, an evening gown made entirely of diagonal ruffles of Chantilly net lace, mounted on tulle. In petal pink or baby blue it is about as fetching a costume as ever was donned by a dewy debutante.

White also is on the up and up for summer evenings, what with the new epidemic of organdies and organzas and such. Ruffled white net is a sure-fire summer dance frock number, with a black net jacket, if you must be sophisticated.

"Something Different" Is Slogan for Accessories

"Something different" is the slogan for the accessories which accent the new clothes. Almost every one has changed its shape and design a bit.

Gloves are shorter, bags are deeper, belts are wider, handkerchiefs larger and all marked by new touches and trims. Short gloves of pigskin, doe-skin or suede are the last word in chic accessories to the new tailleur. They extend only about one inch higher than the wristbone, sometimes slashed briefly up the back and buttoning on the back of the hand.

Button Trim

Tiny buttons of croquet or pearl are part of the dainty detail of sheer lingerie blouses. Rows of them range down front frills or along the sides of cuffs.

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS.—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see here and there. I have been working pretty hard (laugh) on some movies. It just happened that I almost had three right in a row. Now that don't mean that they will be released as fast as we made em. They only come out about every four months, but we got a couple ahead already made and that means that I will have little time off to do a few things I been planning on, and that I wont look like I am trying to get in front of every camera that is grinding.

We run one the other night called, "In Old Kentucky," and its got a lot of laughs. Had a lot of awful fine people in it, and they sure made good. You know the old idea of one person trying to be the whole thing in a picture is all washed up. Pictures are like a ball team, the pitcher cant do it all. Its got to be the whole team. You just watch pictures close and see how well done are just small parts, or what they call "bits." Its because they are done by real actors, actors that anyone of them could go in and play the leading part. They may only get two or three days work out of it, but they do it like it was a star part, and you never hear em whining either about the part not being in keeping with their ability.

No sir, I believe there is more real nerve and gameness under the most discouraging circumstances in the picture business than any other place on earth, course the stage is not far behind, its a heart breaking racket but they dont sit and tell you about it. Their heads are always up. They keep neat, they hide a lot with a great smile.

Well after I finish a long siege I sorter begin to looking up in the air and see what is flying over, and Mrs Rogers in her wise way will say, "Well I think you better get on one. You are getting sorter nervous." Well this time the Fourth of July was a coming on I had had a lot of invitations to a lot of places where I would have liked to have gone on the Fourth.

So I went to a real cowboy reunion in Texas on one of their most famous ranches. Not a professional rodeo like you see everywhere else, but a real celebration in a real cowtown by real old timers. I wouldent have missed it for anything. You know the way planes run, its almost impossible to think of a place that you cant be to by morning or at the latest next day at noon. It was getting along late in the afternoon, I had just played a little polo game at my place. Jimmy, the youngest, was "Hot," and he made a sucker out of me. I was on the other side. Bill had the measles, and had to stand off on the side of the hill in front of the house and watch it. He was just a-getting over what they call the German Measels. (Irvin Cobb said they were now called Liberty Measels.) He was a mighty big old boy to be measlesing.

Then the Mother who had been taking care of him thought she had em, and wanted me to get away to keep from catching em, so I say it was late in the afternoon about five thirty and I called up the plane company and booked me space to leave at seven. And it takes an hour to go to the field. I wasent right sure it was going back to these celebrations but I can be ready to go to Africa in ten minutes. Left at seven, arrive at Abilene Texas at six the next morning, and its only forty miles out to the town where the reunion is, Sanford, Texas.

Why you can leave California in the evening on any one of the three lines, and arrive in New York and see a matinee the next afternoon and a night show and leave after the night show and be home by the next night for dinner. But they are moving plenty fast in cars too, and the trains are picking up and their business is picking up. Its going to be one of the biggest prowling summers we have ever had.

There is so much to see and so many good places to stop, and cheap. I never in my life saw as many out of state cars as there is in California this summer. That big fair out there is drawing a lot of em, but every state has something that everybody ought to see. From what I can gather from everyone I talk with, things are definitely picking up. If they just get more folks to working which they are doing now too, there is no way to stopping this Country. Just quit listening to the politicians. They have to make a noise the nearer it comes to next year. Roosevelt aint going to ruin the Country. The Constitution will remain as is. The Russians are not going to take us. Everywhere I have been on this trip there is a fine feeling. Let folks quit arguing over who did it, or didnt did it. Just join in it.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff, Pastor First Baptist Church

AMOS PROPHET OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

Lesson text, Amos 7:7-17. Golden Rule. Let judgment run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream. Amos 5:24.

Amos was a native of Tekoa, a village six miles south of Bethel in Judah. He was a wool grower and a tender of fig trees. He was an educated man as the priests were, yet he had the average education of the ordinary business man of his day. To be sure he was much closer to God than many of the priests. He was close enough to his maker that he was chosen to be a prophet of Israel.

Amos was called to go north to Ephraim during the reign of Jeroboam II. Jeroboam reigned 41 years, immediately before him Jehoahaz had reigned 16 years and Jehoahaz 17 years, all wicked beyond description. Amos had never really been a God-fearing man. He was a God-fearing man in name only. He was a man worse than others and the three mentioned were all as evil as it was possible for them to be. Jeroboam was a skilled warrior. He extended the borders of his realm and ruled with an iron hand. During his reign was what we might call a season of prosperity such as is brought by war and the growing wealth of a country they menace. One is at the social and economic structure of the land is crumbling with its feet lying ahead. The other is that God Who loves His creation will not, but if His warning is not heeded, He will not spare the punishment that must eventually come to all who willfully disobey God's eternal law principles.

God called Amos to leave his own land and go to that of his kinsmen, Israel. God gave him a message. He did not go with his own ideas and conceptions. He went to condemn the things which met with the disapproval of God. God knew the situation. He knows all situations. He had the intention of letting such a condition go unpunished, just as He ever intends to permit any nation to go on through the years in sin unpunished.

Circumstances took place today very similar to those in the days of old when Amos was prophesying in Israel. Naturally his message was displeasing to those in authority. It was especially displeasing to the priests of the state religion who were being hated by the court. The religion of the land was merely a matter of maintaining something to ease the religious interests of the people. It was established by the state and maintained as a puppet of the state. So is the case always when there is a union of state and church—one dominates and the other is its meek servant for good or evil.

When Amos came proclaiming a spiritual message of warning against sin there was an immediate cry against him. He was a prophet of God crying out against the sin of the people and state. The prophet ought to let politics alone. How familiar that cry is. Whenever the evil forces of the land are hindered in the carrying out of their evil, vile, God-dishonoring and humanity-destroying operations by the cry of warning from God through His called men, we immediately hear the cry of "preaching in politics." If Satan and his cohorts could succeed in closing the mouths of all God's called men of warning they would have the world rolled up in a bag of him and walk with it into hell in a short while. The cry is not really against the activities of Christian men in the field of politics, but in truth it is against the power that raises a prophet's voice against the operations of dirty and low-principled politics.

For 41 years Jeroboam reigned, a wicked, driving king. His reign in the main seemed prosperous. But there came that peace-disturbing prophet in the latter part with his scathing message of sorrow and destruction. They tried to scare him, then to drive him out. Why will men refuse the warnings of God? They come from His heart of love. Yet today our public and government daily place less trust in God, despite the many warnings and even the punishment He has sent in the mild form of depression, drought, dust and flood. God will not always strive with men. This lesson is a timely one.

God is calling for the hearts of men today. He is calling for the reverence and worship of men to be in spirit and truth. He calls for the dropping of the superfluity of ritualism. Paraphrasing the words of Christ, he that loveth his kinfolk and business more than Christ is not worthy of Him. God has warned us. We go on in our lethargy and indifference at our own risk. God kept His word in those years ago, and He will today.

communistic propaganda in our high schools, colleges and universities; and the shattering of the spiritual inertia that has fallen upon so many thousands of churches.

How may we best advertise Christianity? In the daily and weekly newspapers? By handing out pamphlets on Christianity? Yes, that is a very good way. But—there is a more important way which must come first, and that is, by advertising Christianity with our Christian lives. The Holy Bible teaches us: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." "We must lead a God-fearing, God-pleasing life. If unbelievers, unchurched people see us, get to know us and become convinced that we are living a decent Christian life as a result of our Christian training, they will be drawn to us, yes, drawn to the Christian religion which is the only religion that saves from sin and damnation. We must let our light, our life, habits, customs shine, stand out before the Children of this world. We must advertise the Christian religion in such manner first of all.

Other methods follow. If we are good Christians we will invite non-Christians to our church services, to lectures and sermons on Christian teachings; we will tell them of Jesus Christ; we will provide them with Christian literature; we will help them in every possible way to know Christ crucified.

Can you point to one or two people whom you can honestly say you brought to Christ? Are YOU a good advertisement for Christianity? God grant that we become and remain aware of our Christian duty in regard to God and our fellowmen; may He keep us mindful of the sacred words: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Amen.

Figures Reveal Marked Decline in Birthrate

The United States is fast becoming a nation of oldsters, Dr. O. E. Baker of the bureau of agricultural economics reports.

With fewer births every year and immigration constantly lessened, "there are now about 10 per cent fewer young children in the country than there were five years ago and about 17 per cent more persons over sixty-five years of age," according to Doctor Baker.

Continuation of this trend will bring about a decreased population after the 10-year period ending in 1945, the doctor predicts.

"Decline in births has been from nearly 3,000,000 in 1921 to about 2,300,000 in 1934," Doctor Baker said, but added: "A temporary blossoming in 1933 of many marriages postponed because of the depression might have caused more than the average number of births in 1933."

However, he said, weddings in 1934 were back to pre-depression numbers and "births seem unlikely to increase after 1935."

The birth decline is greater in cities than in rural areas, the investigator found, because of the greater monetary outlay necessary to raise a child in the city.

The most backward group about having children is the "so-called middle and upper classes," Doctor Baker decides: "Families of professional classes have 5 to 10 per cent fewer children than those of business men, business men about 25 per cent fewer than skilled workmen and skilled workmen 30 per cent fewer than unskilled laborers."

ROUSES SLEEPY DRIVERS

Automobile drivers who fall asleep at the wheel will be awakened and their car stopped if they have equipped it with a device just introduced in Germany. According to reports from Hamburg the device consists of a false rim or covering for the steering wheel which is connected by electric wires with the horn and ignition and arranged in such a manner that the removal of the pressure of the driver's hand on the rim will instantly sound the horn and shut off the ignition. The operation is based on the assumption that drowsiness in the driver relaxes the muscles of the hands on the wheel. A switch is provided to shut off the device in case it is not needed.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

HOW TO GO CAMPING

It seems that there are no unmixed feelings. Parents send their boys to a summer camp to make them healthy, and two are brought home with infantile paralysis. Dad takes the car and family on a two weeks' camping trip, and shortly after they return home one of the children develops typhoid fever.

The Lure of the Outdoors

It is not to be wondered at that people long for the great outdoors after being housed in all winter. They want a change. They want pine needles instead of feathered, starchy ceilings instead of calcimined ceilings, and so they roll by the thousands to the wide open spaces for a camping sojourn.

People are forgetful of the fact, however, that their organism may not be able to adapt itself to such a sudden change of environment. The diet changed, the water is different, the air habits are not the same, the climate is different. No wonder that many times such a vacation fails to do for them all they had hoped for.

Dangers of Camping Out

In selecting a camping site one should take several points into consideration. The location should be high and dry, in a region where the climate is equable. The spot should be more or less isolated, not a little way by four space surrounded by hundreds of other campers. The facility should be free from mosquitoes. Pure water for drinking and bathing should be available.

Though it may have been all right for pioneer ancestors who had become inured to hardships through years of contact with the elements, the life "we moderns" lead during the weeks of the year is a poor preparation for the rigors of camp life. Which explains why many people who have invested three or four hundred dollars in a camping outfit are ready to sell out for a third on the dollar after using it one time.

A two weeks' session with spoiled canned goods, unflit water, ambitious mosquitoes, sleepless nights, inclement weather, and other dangers and discomforts is not what one would call a wonderful vacation.

Benefits of Camping Out

Camping out is, however, a healthful diversion, if properly done. But it is its elements of danger that makes residence in a crowded city, where sanitary regulations are enforced, a far healthier place by comparison, in many instances.

The biggest benefit in camping lies in the complete change it affords. If this change does not involve dangers of tremendous benefit. On the other hand, if it means exposure to inclement weather, fighting insects, drinking unclean water, eating spoiled food, then the stay-at-home vacation has chosen the better part. He may not be able to send out any post cards saying: "Having a wonderful time; wish you were here." Either will be spending six months in an effort to get over the effects of an ill-advised vacation.

THE STATE AMENDMENTS

Seven proposed changes in the Texas Constitution will be voted upon Saturday, August 24. Briefly, the amendments are as follows:

Repealing the state dry amendment, making it legal to sell alcoholic beverages under state monopoly, providing the open saloon and providing for local option.

Providing state adopted text books to be used in all schools of the state, including sectarian schools.

Providing that amendments to the constitution may be proposed at special sessions of the State Legislature.

Providing that courts having original jurisdiction in criminal cases may withhold imposition of sentence and place defendant upon probation.

DEPRESSION HITS THE CHURCH

A minister in a certain town in Alabama took permanent leave of his congregation in the following manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say goodbye. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are mouldy fruit and wormy apoles, and 'By their fruit ye shall know them.' " "Brethren, I am going away to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. Where I go we cannot come, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls."

The beautification of farm and town homes on the highways in Texas, as part of the Centennial plans, will mean much for the future. It is seldom that a home is allowed to go back to mediocrity after it is once beautified. The extension service of the A. & M. College is doing a fine piece of work in sponsoring this plan.

According to figures released by the state repeal forces, there were 1200 places in Texas licensed to sell hard liquor in 1918, the last full year before state-wide prohibition, while now more than 1700 licenses were issued last year, in only 66 counties in the state. And yet they promised us that if beer was voted in, there would be no more saloons.

Voters of Texas should swat the free text book amendment. Religion and politics should be kept separate, if we are to avoid trouble. If the amendment is adopted the next step will be to furnish free teachers and free buildings for church schools. Then there is the feature of the amendment that would allow a change in the distribution of state school funds that would throw the public schools of Texas directly into politics.

A CLEAN JOB OF IT

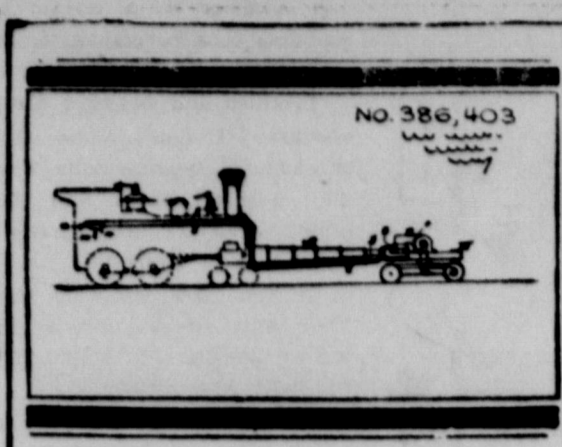

Little Louise had been out in the yard investigating the wonders of nature and she came running in to her mother, all excitement. "I ate a worm!" said she.

Her mother, thinking that it was probably a case of imagination, decided to appeal to the child's finer feelings, and she said: "Oh, that wasn't kind, was it? Just think how sad the mamma worm felt to have her little baby swallowed up."

The little girl hastened to reply: "I ate she's mamma, too."

"YES-MEN"

In an educational journal, "The Social Frontier," Dr. William H. Kilpatrick, of Columbia University, says that laws such as the Ives oath-of-allegiance measure, requiring oaths of loyalty to the Constitution, are "sowing the seeds for a crop of yes-men" in American public schools. He sees danger lurking in this, believing that it will cause the rejection of the better educators who will refuse to become yes-men and the supplanting of this type of teacher with the "culs and left-overs after the daring and capable souls have gone to other professions." He goes on to say that "loyalty oaths inherently assume that American institutions will not bear scrutiny and criticism and that they must be maintained even where honest criticism finds that changes should be made. Teachers must show intelligent loyalty if democracy is to be preserved, rather than subservience to a ritual or oath. Efficient teachers of youth must recognize change as a significant factor of life."

Without knowledge of the professor's qualifications as an American citizen who cherishes the honorable past, who values his citizenship and hopes to see American liberalism survive, one can say that he is somewhat mixed in his reasoning. It will take more than an oath of allegiance law to make yes-men of American teachers. The Ives oath-of-allegiance law was aimed at the present trend to make yes-men of us all, after the Russian pattern.

No intelligent person may reasonably object to changes in the Constitution brought about in an orderly way. The author of the Ives law would never limit the right of Americans to change their constitution. What he and other good Americans object to is the deliberate undermining of American liberty by the hired servants of the state. Your true American does not believe that to require public school teachers to be loyal to the Constitution implies that American institutions cannot stand scrutiny. On the other hand they believe that teachers might well scrutinize the Constitution and examine into American tradition and principle before they openly advocate violent changes which are impracticable, un-American and unworkable. Talk of an American body of pedagogic yes-men is silly. However, if the pinks have their way we will have a body of professorial yes-men who will take their orders from some bloody dictator. We need some plain thinking on this subject.—News, Bainbridge, N. Y.

 Mrs. Alice Bell, Mrs. Ed Clark and Miss Ruth Bell, who have been visiting Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Clark's uncle, C. A. Watkins, and family, left Sunday for their home at San Diego, Calif. Tourists are finding the scenery more beautiful than ever this year because many states have caused the removal of thousands of highway signs which were either objectionable as traffic hazards or spoiled the attractive scenery.

COST PER LINE
 The 12,000 weekly newspapers in the United States have figured out the actual cost in cash per line of every line of editorial, local and news matter that goes into a newspaper, no matter how large or small the paper, and that cost varies from 1 1/2 cents to 2 1/2 cents per line. So when you feel like cussing the editor for not publishing your spring poetry, just stop and think that it is going to cost him 2 cents per line in cash to put it in type, make it up in the newspaper forms, run the papers thru the press and distribute the article or poem back in the case again. And it has happened many times that the author of the poem became quite peeved when the editor hesitated on handing out a dozen free copies of the paper. This newspaper game is a great game—yet there are scads of both men and women (who were never in a printshop in their lives, and wouldn't know a newspaper press when they saw it) who could—or think they could—run the newspapers better than they are being run.—Bowie (Ariz.) Tribune.

THE WHY OF EARLY COPY
 The advertiser is unfair to himself when he sends his advertising copy to the newspaper office just before the deadline.
 Early Copy: No errors, time for correction, good typography, prompt delivery to readers, fair to mechanical staff, advertisements well written, illustrations correct.
 Late Copy: Risk of typographical errors, no opportunity for correction, risk of poor typography, risk of late delivery, unfair physical and mental strain, advertisements hurriedly written, risk of misplaced cuts.
 While a newspaper's mechanical efficiency, there are many things on what can be done to help the mechanical department. Advertising may be the best way to assist merchants in the promotion of their advertisements.—(Ill.) Republican.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

"The fairest woman golfer, At this mid-season date, Gets sunburned or is freckled Which is an awful fate!"

Perhaps it is because I wakened early this morning or, perhaps it is the sunny weather, but I just had to burst into verse. And you have read (I hope) the result above.

But, to get back to the subject, the sun does injure most skins. The tan is all right until one wants to don a frock with a different neckline than that of the one worn when she was burned. But sunburn and freckles are most unattractive at all times and the first named is painful into the bargain.

Protect Your Skin

The best way to get rid of these blemishes is to prevent them. This may be done by wearing a large brimmed hat or using a protective lotion on the skin before venturing out.

It may take a little care but the resultant lovely white skin should be sufficient reward.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

1. Paint should not be thinned or brushes cleaned near a flame?
2. Cake can be kept moist after it is thoroughly cooled by covering it with the pan (also cool) in which it was baked?
3. The water in which meat or vegetables are cooked is splendid for soup?
4. Mutton is too strongly flavored to be used as a basis for soup stock; it may be disguised by combining with other meats and vegetables whenever used?

FINLAND'S ISLANDS

Making Hay in the Alands.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W.M.U. Service.

IN THE north of the Baltic sea, where the breast of Finland swells towards the Swedish coast, there are 6,000 islands, to which belong all the surviving big sailing ships in the world; or, to be more exact, there are 6,554 islands, rock islets, tree-sprinkled specks of sea-encircled territory whose name is Aland and in whose small ports are registered 26 of the surviving square-rigged ships in commission in the world. Altogether there may be 31 now, counting a German, two Swedes, an American, and a Dane.

Aland is Finnish; but its people are Swedes, speaking Swedish. Their colors are the blue and gold of Sweden, though the white and blue flag of Finland floats officially from Government House. The strange cadences of the Finnish tongue are little heard here, though by law Finnish is taught in the schools and in the nautical academy.

The Finns have their own name for the islands. In their own language; to them they are Ahvenanmaa, and their capital of Mariehamn (which is Maryport in English) becomes Maarianhamina.

Sailing into Mariehamn one sees first a low island, and on it a lighthouse—nothing else. It is so low it looks as if an angry sea might sweep right over it and obliterate it from sight. Were the lighthouse not there, by night it would be invisible. It bears no trees, no habitation. Beyond are more islands, low and rocky; then pine-clad ones ahead, astern, abeam, all around. Still one can see no houses. The islands are low, the highest not a hundred feet above the sea. The pines come down to the water's edge. This is Aland.

What Mariehamn Is Like.

Around a point between two islands is Mariehamn quay. On the slope above it are houses and a wood; then some more houses and a great wood, down each side of which a road, has been made. This parklike forest with lanes is the Esplanade, main street of Mariehamn. There one may walk in the cool shade of the trees, past rows of clean spacious houses. It is all ships, this street, with shipowners living there and sailors walking up and down, and at the bottom the harbor, on both sides for Mariehamn crosses a narrow peninsula, with the masts and yards of the barks growing there above the pines, as if they, like the pines, had begun there and grown there and always belonged there.

At one end of the Esplanade is the town's hotel, Societetshuset, where the visitors live when they come from Sweden. The summer business is good, and at week-ends a special excursion steamer from Stockholm brings hundreds more visitors to the little town. The tourists dance, eat, swim, and bathe, and the Alanders, bent over their tasks in the fields, pay them no attention at all.

These Alanders might be the original sailors, descendants of Vikings—there are Viking graves at Godby, on the main island, and elsewhere—who stayed there on raiding trips to Finland because they liked the place, with its peace and its woods, its good earth and its good fish that teemed in the waters. Viking blood still predominates here.

In a group of 6,000 islands even a small farm, away from the principal large island, would ordinarily include several islets. The plowman, if he would not swim, must boat to his fields; the farmer's wife going to market must go by sea. It was natural in these surroundings that a race of mariners should arise. Taking so much of their food from the sea, finding the materials for shipbuilding so close at hand, they early built fine vessels.

Built Up a Merchant Marine.

There were always timber and fish in Aland, and these, with the surplus products of the farms, were the first cargoes. After a while, when the restrictions imposed by rival ports had been broken down, the Alanders were allowed to send their vessels out into the Baltic. Now they build larger ships, schooners, and brigs. They carried their own goods so successfully that soon they began to carry other people's; and so the beginnings of their merchant service grew. For a long time it was only in the Baltic and the Gulf of Bothnia. Politics still kept the world trade the monopoly of a few nations and no Aland ship was seen beyond the Danish sound.

In 1854 the British sacked Bomarsund; for Aland, like Finland was Russian then, and the British were at war with Russia. That was a sad blow. But the Alanders, many of their vessels burned and their port destroyed, soon began again. They founded the town of Mariehamn where there had been two fields, stretched across a narrow peninsula, with harbors at both ends. With their new port, the Alanders began to build their fleet again. They built better vessels and found more trade. Gradually the hated steamship was rising. Suez was opened in 1859, and the clippers passed. Steam grew and grew.

In the great discard of sail the Alanders, unworried by steam, bought up such vessels as appeared to be good bargains. They acquired Nova Scotian barks, Blue-nose barkentines, Down East full-riggers. They bought ships cheaply and they bought good ships. One of their principles was that a ship should return her cost in three years. If freights did not pay, they laid their ships up and waited for better times. Wherever sailing ships went, the Aland ships were seen; but still no one dreamed that here sail would last when it had died in all other waters.

Through the World war Aland ships suffered heavily. Eight were lost in one month. After the war some of the older shipowners had had enough and bought no more ships. But new ones arose; and one of these was Gustaf Erikson. In 1920 he began building up what now has become the largest fleet of sail in the world.

Erikson's Fine Ships.

Erikson bought up the beautiful German training ship Herzogin Cecilie, paying some $20,000 for her as she lay in a French port. He sent her to Australia for grain and to Chile for nitrates, and in two years she had returned her purchase price and more besides. He bought the big Lawhill, and with one lucky freight from Buenos Aires cleared $200,000. Now he has a corner on all the commissioned sailing ships of the world, and those Cape Horners which do not fly his house flag may be counted upon the fingers of one hand.

His ships carry crews of boys, even the officers are very young, and many of the masters are younger than 20 years. Some of the ships are school ships, carrying premium-paying apprentices as crew. So many people wrote from all over the world asking to sail in his vessels that he equipped two of them especially to take passengers—the Viking and Herzogin Cecilie; and, not content with that, bought L'Avenir from the Belgians. He fitted her to take 80 passengers, of three classes, and in the summer now she makes Baltic cruises with the Erikson tug fussing along behind in case of need.

Ordinarily a small Aland boy can pull a boat almost as soon as he can walk, and sail one not long afterwards. At the age of ten or so he makes a Baltic voyage, helping in a "sloop" taking firewood and fish to Stockholm or to Turku. From there he graduates to the Baltic schooners, and so to the North sea barks; thereafter it is an easy step to deep water, Cape Horn, and the grain trade from Australia.

A Finnish law restricts berths before the mast to Finnish nationals, and the forecastles of the ships are ordinarily filled with Alanders. But the half-decks, where the apprentices live, contain all the nationalities of the world. He who wishes to become a sail-trained sailor now must sail in Aland ships—and pay $250 to the owner for that privilege.

To the Alanders deserved promotion is comparatively easy. A nautical academy is provided free through the winters in Mariehamn; here, after two years of service, candidates may sit for their second mate's papers, first spending six months at school. Tuition and books cost nothing; the boy must provide only his board, and in Aland that costs little.

Quiet, Careful People.

They are quiet, these Alanders. It takes a long time to know them. They are not given to the utterance of long dissertations upon the burning problems of the day. They are a quiet and careful race, hard-bitten, hard raised. To them waste is shameful and a loud mouth an abomination. They have little time for progress that means only change.

The crews of the ships are steady boys, blue-eyed and competent. When the Australian voyage is over and the grain discharged into some English mill, they bring the ships home to Mariehamn, to lie there while the new grain ripens in Australian fields, new grain ripens in Australian fields, 12,000 miles away, and make ready for their vessels and take ready for another voyage.

EVERYDAY NEW YORK

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK.—Thoughts while strolling: Dudley Field Malone suggests the rubleund, portly fellow on the Worcestershire sauce bottle. I had a sort of Walt Disney idea of Noah until a recent study of Genesis. Never talked to anyone who understood business so well as Thomas Watson. Look alike: T. Markoe Robertson, society fellow, and Osgood Perkins. The eternal juvenile—Oscar Shaw. No one has equaled Roxy's flair for the spectacular in movie shows. Or Gil Bog's 1922 night club polish. Grandest of the current mimics: Norma Terris. What became of Ray Goetz?

Add frequent dinner companions: Jos. P. Kennedy and Herbert Bayard Swape. At 60, Irving Caesar should be a ringer for Joe Weber. The boardwalk has losses the dog owner trade for Atlantic City. What long eyelashes Jim Flagg has. Nobody wears royal blue so becomingly as Margaret Whitman.

Overcoat Bill wearing his six overcoats the year around and picking up pins. Bud Kelland, who never wrote a suggestive line in his life, is the reputed ace in popularity in the fiction field. Celebrities a cinch to caricature: Alexander Woolcott, Edna Ferber, Harold Ross and Bob Sherwood, the playwright.

Made up simile: "His confidence in women was as pathetic as a sailor home from a three years' cruise." Bob Garland and Will Hays could swap ears and no one would notice. Lesser enthusiasts No. 2—Bob LaFollette. A lady inquires: "What do you mean arabesque?" You'll die at this one: Esque me another?

Wanted: A murder mystery where you give a dash whether he was killed or not. And understand just how he was killed and don't want to kick the detective. And don't believe the love interest was just jugged in and with a plan somewhere near the fatal scene. And with intelligent police. And a jacket without a horrid, bloody corpse. And one that isn't the author's Best Yet!

In a tiny shop on 42d street today the single window was decorated with fly paper. It attracted no attention and I was the lone pauser for a quiet chuckle. No matter how many, many myriads of gag men have used it in no matter how many comics, fly paper has never lost its sense of humor. Whenever I'm in a funk, I think of a sheet of fly paper and all sorts of pleasant imaginings romp along to cheer me. Sometimes in a mad mood I force a few of our loud-mouthed Messiahs to devour four sheets each.

Out of the William Lyon Phelps story bag: A female admirer of Einstein, strolling with him in the evening, said: "Isn't Venus beautiful up there in the sky tonight?" He said: "It isn't Venus, it's Jupiter." She replied: "O, Prof. Einstein, aren't you wonderful, you even know the sex of stars!"

Aland, alas, how many adventurous glances from admiring males, the eyes of a pure and beautiful maid have to dodge along the streets. I noticed one yesterday in the steps of the Plaza for a turn into the avenue. She had, like so many of her sisters, cultivated the art of apparently seeing nobody. Yet I felt certain there was not one glance she missed. Not even mine.

I have a friend who is an European correspondent. In his most confidential letters he underlines his u's and overlines his n's. As though to be ready for the printer of his Life and Letters!

Louis Bromfield in a literary magazine manifesto trumpets the hand-picked dinner parties of Edna Ferber. To his notion they are the peak in charm, hospitality and excellent food.

They are prepared by a colored cook, Rebecca Henry. At Miss Ferber's the guests are as good as the food and a high light of such an adventure in dining is the presence of Mrs. Julia Ferber, the writer's mother. The two are inseparable. Among distinguished that may be found at her festal board now and then are Noel Coward, Jed Harris, Marc Connelly, the George S. Kaufmans, Harold Ross, Alexander Woolcott, Margaret Pulitzer and Dorothy Parker.

I wonder how many others feared their grandfathers. One of mine was kindly but gruff. Once he thought he mislaid his glasses. He had me looking for them and I ran about like a headless thing. Finally he took me to task for not observing what he discovered; that he was wearing them all the time, pushed up. The fact was I was always too scared to look him in the face.

EXPERT EXPLAINS HEAVY RAINFALL IN CLOUDBURST

Why a "cloudburst" may yield many times as much rain as all the water in the cloud when the rain begins is explained by Charles F. Talman, well-known meteorologist of the United States weather bureau, in an account for the American Nature association of Washington, says the Baltimore Sun.

Even the densest clouds never contain more than about one part of water to 30,000 parts of air, which is far much less than the water in many so-called cloudbursts, which have been observed and measured, even if every bit of cloud condensed and fell as rain at the same instant. It is a usual experience, also, that the clouds do not vanish during a cloudburst, but are apparently just as thick and dense afterward as before.

Mr. Talman explains that a cloudburst really is an especially sudden and violent thunder storm, in which great currents of warm, moist air from close to the ground rush rapidly a mile or more up into the atmosphere, are cooled suddenly by this rise and give up their load of moisture in the form of raindrops.

The rapid up-currents of air may keep most of these raindrops aloft for a while, but presently the upward air currents slacken and billions of the suspended droplets fall as a violent rain.

The water in one of these sudden falls may have been drawn from the low air for many square miles around the spot where the cloudburst happens. What may have been the world's record cloudburst is described as 24 inches of rain falling in less than five minutes, but Mr. Talman is skeptical. The maximum acceptable record is one of about an inch of rain in a minute, which fell in California in 1923.

Swords Made History

Two historic swords have been made national treasures in Japan. The first is that worn by the late Fleet Admiral Togo at the Battle of the Japan sea, originally the gift of the late Emperor Taisho when his majesty was crown prince. The second is a samurai sword called "Bizen Fukuoka Ichimonji," which was presented to Viscount Chokel Okabe, formal feudal lord of Kishiwada, by the city of Kishiwada. Both will be displayed in museums in Tokyo.
