EXPECT TO REMEDY BEER LAW ABUSES

Austin, Sept. 8. (Special)—County officials were urged this week to check closely into the qualifications of applicants and use extreme care in determining that applicants receive the right type of license, as the Liquor Control board began a campaign to correct abuses of the beer licensing law.

Reports from tax collectors who keep records on all beer licenses which are issued by county judges, have revealed a total disregard for the law in many instances. Liquor Administrator Charles R. Miller asserted, "Now that there are county records available to check against our own investigations, we have definitely determined the nature of the beer law abuses and expect to remedy them as quickly as possible." Miller said, "This should ultimately mean an increase of between $75,000 and $100,000 in fees to be shared by the state and local governments."

Declaring that it is "manifestly in the interest of the communities, which receive a fee amounting to one-half that paid the state, to assist in halting these abuses," Miller said one of the major violations uncovered in the investigations was local distributors doing a general distributing business.

Local distributors pay $50 for a license and may sell only to retailers and consumers inside one county. General distributors, on the other hand, may sell outside the county but their license costs $200.

Both general and local distributors also must have been a resident of their county for two years in order to qualify for a license. This phase of the law has been flagrantly disregarded, Miller said the board learned.

Another gross violation, he revealed, was the practice of obtaining general distributor's branch licenses, costing $50, by persons having no connection with the original general distributor.

The investigations also brought out that a number of foreign corporations were operating under various types of beer licenses in Texas, which is strictly prohibited by the liquor act.

"Foreign corporations must obtain a state charter, pay franchise taxes and become subject to state regulation the same as any other domestic firm, before they may do business under the liquor law," Miller asserted.

The administrator said he wished to impress strongly upon county officials the need and importance of their assistance in correcting the abuses he outlined. "They can be eliminated," Miller declared. "We can stop these practices before they start, with the help of our county judges. And it will mean more revenue for our local county and state governments—which certainly should be an incentive."

Miles Kelton has returned to Oklahoma City after a visit with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Kelton.

PIONEER CLUB RESUMES WORK FOR YEAR

The official year of the Pioneer Study Club was begun last Thursday, when members and their husbands gathered at the home of the president, Mrs. W. E. Bogan, for a program on Pioneer Days.

Through the program was planned for the lawn and many unique features had to be omitted or changed when the party was compelled to hunt shelter from the downpouring clouds, not one voice was raised in protest. So while the welcome rain pattered on the roof, the men grouped in one room where they recounted experiences of by-gone days, and the ladies held a short business session and heard the history of the club told by Mrs. Bogan, and a resume' of the study for the past five years, by Mrs. Butler.

The dining room took on the form and shape of a covered wagon, a wheel of which was transformed from a kitchen chair and footstool. Mr. Bogan helped the ladies into the wagon in "the old Southern custom." As each mounted the wheel, a toast was read by Mrs. Bogan.

When all were in, the men acted as horses and drew the wagon to the kitchen, where a genuine pioneer supper was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Bogan, Mrs. Ercy Cubine and Mrs. S. A. Cousins.

Present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Thurman Adkins, C. B. Batson, Claude Brooks, J. W. Butler, H. W. Finley, C. O. Greene, Roger Powers, S. A. Cousins, W. E. Bogan; Mesdames S. D. Shelburne, J. H. JOE GLASS, Aviator

JOE GLASS HAS MANY FLYING HOURS

Joe Glass, son of Mrs. J. T. Glass of McLean, and a former McLean high school graduate, has nearly 13,000 flying hours to his credit, having covered a million and a half miles by the sky lanes. For the past six years he has been flying regular mail and passenger routes in the Southwest.

Joe Glass joined the U. S. Army Air Corps during the World War, trained and learned to fly at Kelly Field, Texas. When he resigned in 1921 he turned barnstormer in Oklahoma and Arkansas, but this proved too tame, and he next found himself in Mexico, where he became one of the first commercial operators on the continent. His flying during six years below the Rio Grande found him transporting heavy cargos of nitro-glycerin in the high isolated mountain mine and oil well sites, as well as being one of the first military pilots in Mexico when he flew for the Federal Forces during the de la Huerta revolution in 1923.

HIGHWAY MEETING HELD HERE LAST FRIDAY

A meeting of chamber of commerce executives from Miami, Hedley and McLean met here Friday to discuss plans for a north and south highway connecting the three towns. Following the discussion, the meeting adjourned to the Meador Cafe for lunch.

Work on this highway has been in prospect for several years, and the outlook is bright at this time for a hard surfaced road in the near future.

OPTOMETRIST URGES STUDENT EYE TESTS

A 1935 school survey shows that about two-thirds of all school children as the result of vision defects, need glasses, says Dr. V. R. Jones, Shamrock optometrist, in calling attention to parents that, with schools opening, this is a good time to have their children's eyes examined.

Scientific instruments and modern methods enable Dr. Jones to fit children with glasses that will correct any weakness or defects of sight and enable them to pursue their studies without the handicap of poor vision. Improved school grades and better health results from corrected vision.

Dr. Jones' office, located in the McFann Drug Store in Shamrock, is equipped with precision instruments for the proper examination of the eyes of persons young or old, and to remove all guess work from the fitting of glasses.

If there is the least doubt about the vision of children of school age, Dr. Jones urges parents to bring them for examination. He will give them painstaking examination and faithfully advise whether glasses are needed or not.

See half-page advertisement on another page of this paper.

BCD Agrees to Pay $100.00 on Band Uniforms

At a meeting of the board of city development held Monday evening, it was voted to pay $100.00 on the new band uniforms being bought by the city.

The new uniforms will be similar to the ones used by the Amarillo high school band, and several individuals are paying for uniforms as a help to the city band fund.

It was also voted to finance the down payment on a new school bus, to the amount of $450.00, by buying school warrants to be issued in amounts of $10 and $25, bearing 4% interest, and to be paid after two years. Practically all of the warrants were subscribed by those present, and President Witt Springer appointed the following as a committee to raise the balance: Harris King, W. W. Boyd, L. E. Ward, Earl Stubblefield and Dewey Campbell.

It was voted to designate Thursday, Sept. 24, as McLean day at the Amarillo fair, and a committee consisting of C. S. Doolen, M. C. Davis, and Creed Bogan was named to arrange for transporting the band to the fair and urge the attendance of as many people from this community on that day as possible.

Members of the city council and the school board were present, making the meeting the best attended in many months.

NEW SOUND EQUIPMENT AT LONE STAR THEATRE

A battery of new loud speakers has been installed at the Lone Star Theatre, that bring out natural tones of the actors and musical instruments.

The new equipment represents an outlay of around $1000, and according to E. Hudgins, manager, is the very latest word in sound equipment.

Not only do the high sounds reproduce perfectly, but the low notes and overtones are heard in all their purity.

The new speakers have been installed this week by factory experts, and patrons of the theatre are very much pleased with the improved conditions.

Mr. Hudgins says that the new theatre is getting lined up with the producers for the latest hit releases and a number of fine pictures are scheduled for this month.

BOSWELL VISITS HERE

G. C. Boswell, president of Weatherford College, was in McLean Monday, shaking hands with old friends.

Mr. Boswell complimented McLean by saying that in the 14,000 miles he has traveled among the smaller towns this summer, no town shows the fine yards and gardens that are seen in McLean. "There are more beautiful yards in McLean and they show more care than in any town visited," said Mr. Boswell.

In speaking of advertising the college, Mr. Boswell said he spent $9.75 for an advertisement in a large daily paper and never received an inquiry; however, he spent $4.50 for four small ads in as many home town papers and received 14 students as a direct result. "The students came in with their parents and said, 'We saw your advertisement in our paper,'" said Mr. Boswell. "There is no question as to the fact that people read their home town papers."

While Mr. Boswell did not tell us so, we note that he has an article on "Appraisal of Correspondence Instruction" in the current number of The Texas Outlook. We also note that his name is carried in a list of Weatherford chamber of commerce members, that is printed monthly in the home paper in order to show who is supporting the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Boswell spoke at the First Methodist Church Sunday evening, and at the high school Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Tinnin and daughter, Mary Edna, visited in Erick, Okla., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Yeldell and children left Saturday for various points in East Texas and Louisiana.

Arle Carpenter of Lefors was in McLean Saturday on business.

Lloyd Hunt left last week for Olney, where he has a position in the school.

Bryn turned. "How much, Tubby?"
"Bryn, if you aren't the damndest fool!"
"How much?" Bryn said inexorably.
Tubby's dimple wavered in and out wildly. "I said I thought she was a darn nice girl," he muttered. "You crazy idiot."
"Madeline, he says he thinks you are a darn nice girl."
"Well," Madeline said with a bounce of the springs, "that isn't anything to get up and get dressed over. G'night."
Peeling better, Bryn pulled Tubby's door shut with a last pleasant smile, and sauntered down the hall.
"Deborah," he said softly, without knocking.
She was awake. Her voice came, low and clear, on the instant. "Yes? Has anything . . . happened?"
"Nothing. I just wanted to say . . . pleasant dreams . . . and good-night."
For an instant she did not answer. Then, "Good-night, Bryn."
"Good-night, darling," he replied, and went quickly across the room to his own door.

CHAPTER IX

The breakfast table was spread on the small terrace at the side of the house, where Bryn and Deborah had eaten their first breakfast together. There were six places laid, but Sally was still upstairs, sleeping, as Simon explained, like a dormouse; and Bryn had not yet returned from his early errand to the farm down the road. Deborah, in freshly starched blue gingham, sat erect on her chair behind the silver coffee pot, and poured out a third cup for Tubby. Beside her, Madeline sat quiet, gazing dreamily out through the trunks of the tall pines, and tossing, from time to time, small crumbs of toast to a greedy chipmunk who sat up and begged for them with bright expectant eyes.
"Well," Simon sighed, "I wonder if today will be the big day."
"Oh, probably not," Tubby said comfortably. "I give him until about Thursday noon."
"It doesn't make any difference when he comes, does it?" Madeline inquired. "The sooner he comes, the sooner it will be settled. I wish he'd come now and get it over with."
As she spoke, Bryn pushed open the dining room door and came out to the terrace. He put a hand on Simon's shoulder, tweaked Tubby's hair, let his eyes rest on Deborah's lowered eyelashes, and spoke to Madeline. "Who, me?"
"No, Graham."
"He'll come," Bryn said cheerfully, and pulled up his chair. "And there's one sure thing, he won't get past Joe. I left Joe on a box high up on the seat of a wagon box, where he can see the road coming up the mountain for about two miles. He's got the wagon pulled under a shady tree, and he's got an old pair of spy-glasses, and the horn. When I left I heard him making arrangements with his mother to bring out his meals. I'd like to see as much as a caterpillar get past him. And I've locked the gates, so we're all set."
Deborah handed him his cup, and as she did so, she lifted her eyes and met his upon her. She felt herself flushing, and the cup trembled in her hand so that some of the coffee spilled over. But Bryn did not seem to mind. He took it and put it down, and his eye was still upon hers. Deborah turned resolutely away.
Bryn finished his breakfast, and he and Tubby and Simon left the table. They were going, Tubby informed the two girls, to inspect the dungeons and see that the chains were in good order.
When they were gone, Madeline put out her hand and patted Deborah's lightly. "Deborah," she said after a moment, "would you do something for me?"
"Of course."
"It's about Tubby. I don't know what to think." She looked up. "With any other man in the world, I'd just exercise my feminine charm and . . . wait. But that isn't safe with Tubby. Tubby isn't exactly shy, but he doesn't have any idea that he's so attractive that anybody might want to marry him. It's one thing I like about him, his absolute lack of conceit."
Deborah considered. "Tubby wouldn't marry just anybody," she said comfortingly.
"I don't mean just anybody." But I can think of half a dozen girls in our own crowd who could make quite a dent in him, Deborah, if they set about doing it. And, of course, there's one in particular."
"Pilar?"
"Pilar."
"What's she like?" Deborah asked curiously. "I never knew any girls but you and Sally, and I understand you two pretty well. Isn't she like us, this Pilar?"
"Not in a hundred years, innocence. Not in a thousand years. She's one of these hot-headed stamping beauties. If you know what I mean, Pilar isn't much more Spanish than I am, although she has a Spanish name and a Spanish look, which she takes very good care to intensify. Pilar has huge flashing black eyes, and smooth black hair . . . she sticks it back and pins a red rose in it, you know . . . and she makes her mouth very red and doesn't use rouge on her cheeks. And one's tall and graceful and buys wonderful clothes, the kind other people can't get by with."

"Is she very beautiful, Madeline?"
"Very. Almost as beautiful as you, honey, only quite, quite different."
"Have she and Tubby known each other long?"
"Years and years."
"Then . . . surely you needn't worry, Madeline. He would have married her long ago if he'd been going to, wouldn't he?"
Madeline hesitated. "No," she said finally. "Something new has just occurred in Pilar's life. She wouldn't have married him until now."
A cold finger touched Deborah's heart; but the touch was so light that it was gone in an instant, and she had forgotten it.
"What can I do, Madeline?"
Madeline brought her gaze back from the distant eastern horizon. "Tubby likes me," she said. "I know he likes me. We get along beautifully together. If I were sure he didn't love Pilar I'd just simply set about making him love me."
"But could I find out about Pilar? Is that what you want me to do?"
"I thought you might ask Bryn. Bryn knows. Bryn knows everything about Tubby, just as Tubby knows everything about Bryn. And then you could tell me."
Deborah was silent, her eyes on the cloth. Madeline was supposing that she and Bryn had long hours together, long hours alone, as Simon and Sally did, hours when nobody else heard what they said to each other. . . .
She looked up. "Do you really love him, Madeline?" she asked softly.
Madeline smiled, a slow smile. Her eyes were tender. "Yes, honey. Really."
"Well, then," Deborah said with a sigh, "I'll see what I can do, Madeline."
It was only an hour or two later when she saw her chance. Tubby was sitting alone on a stump down by the brook, whittling industriously at a willow stick, trying to make himself a whistle. Deborah went down the path and perched herself on a mossy log in front of him.
"Do you like it up here, Tubby?"
"I think it's great. I'm crazy about it."
"Don't you miss all the excitement in the city, and all the rest of your friends?"
"Not a twinge of missing do I get."
"All the things you do sound very exciting. I mean, all of you, of course. Madeline and Sally have been telling me a little, about places, and people. Yesterday they told me about Pilar. I think she sounds fascinating."
Tubby looked up. "Pilar?" he said incredulously.
"She sounds marvelous. So tall and beautiful. Even her name is lovely, isn't it? Pilar."
"Do you mean to say those women told you about Pilar?"
"Yes. Why not? I was awfully interested."
"Well," he said with a heavy sigh, "women are the funniest things in captivity. I should think that would have been the last name they would have mentioned. And, if somehow you had heard about Pilar, I should've thought she'd be the last person you'd be happy about. I never would have dared open my mouth about her, but then, who am I? Just a mere man."
"I don't see why you feel that way," Deborah said, but her smile began now to feel a little stiff and queer. "There isn't any reason why I shouldn't want to hear about Pilar, is there, or wouldn't like her?"
Tubby was silent for a moment. Then, "I suppose not," he said slowly. "Not under the circumstances. After all, everything went spang right by the board for you, didn't it?" And you know it. So why should you worry about Pilar or anybody else?"
Deborah tore a little piece of green velvet moss off the log, and spread it on the back of her hand. So Tubby didn't know, either. Tubby thought that Bryn had fallen in love with her in Mr. Holworthy's office. Tubby didn't know everything about Bryn, after all. Suddenly Deborah thought she understood why Bryn had told all these people the same story, the story about falling in love with her. It was to save his own self-respect. He didn't want any of them to know that he had just found a new and interesting way to earn money. Oh, that wasn't fair. That wasn't like Bryn. And last night . . .
"From the sound of Pilar," she said at last. "I couldn't blame anybody for thinking she was wonderful."
"I suppose she does sound all right," Tubby said dubiously. "But she's no good, Deborah. I'm warning you, in case she ever comes near you. But what's been handed to her is hard to take, and it isn't agreeing with her very well."
"Did you hear somebody calling?" Deborah said suddenly. "It sounded like Grandmother. Excuse me, Tubby," and she got up and ran swiftly up the path to the house. Grandmother was not calling. But Deborah knew she couldn't bear to stay with Tubby another second. Her heart felt as if it was breaking. She went up the stairs to her own room, and shut the door behind her.
The girl he loved . . . she would be Pilar. Beautiful Pilar, with her black eyes and her black hair and her red mouth. They all thought Bryn had given her up, forgotten her, for Deborah. That was what they had to think. They couldn't possibly understand, when they didn't know the truth; when they didn't know why Bryn had married.

Hear the Noble Lord
He Sees a New Germany
A Must for the U. S. A.
Strength Alone Protects

An association called "The Anglo-German Fellowship," a name which shows that men forget wars as easily as they do seasickness, gave a dinner in London in honor of the Duke and Duchess of Brunswick, who are Germans, as was the British royal family originally.

Arthur Brisbane

Among other speakers at the dinner, Lord Lothian talked about war, the importance of doing something to satisfy Germany, now that Germany is strong enough to fight back.

Lord Lothian has discovered that it is one thing to deal with dissatisfied populations when they are unarmed, and a very different thing to deal with the same dissatisfied populations when they are fully armed.

The British made that discovery for themselves long ago, before Lord Lothian was born, in the process of building up their great empire. If the Boers, Hindus, Zulus and some others had been as thoroughly armed as they were thoroughly dissatisfied, the British empire would be smaller.

Americans who want to know what Europeans, including the English, are thinking and planning, will be interested in the following statement by Lord Lothian concerning Germany. It has been suggested that England and France should pacify Germany by giving back some of the colonial properties taken from Germany at the end of the war. Lord Lothian is one of the numerous Englishmen who do not believe in "giving things back." Said he:

"Personally, I do not believe that the problem can be solved along the lines of the restoration to Germany of the old German colonies. That would not solve Germany's difficulties, and things have changed since 1914. The question must be considered on much wider lines. All the colonial nations must be willing to make their contribution to a transfer of territory. The new world as well as the old must be willing once more to reopen its doors to trade and migration."

The statement of the noble lord that "the new world as well as the old must be willing," etc., has no pleasant sound in American ears. The word "must," especially, is one that a wise Englishman could hardly apply to the United States after 1776. Lord Lothian probably meant that the United States "ought," not that it "MUST," once more reopen its doors to trade and migration.

There is nothing like being strong and prepared for trouble. You notice how differently Germany appears in the eyes of France and other nations surrounding her today, as compared with the years after the war. Hear Lord Lothian on that subject:

"Germany now has both equality and strength. Reparations have gone. Part V of the Treaty of Versailles has gone. The demilitarization of the Rhineland has gone, and the sooner that recovery of her natural right to self-defense is accepted without further discussion the better. Germany is rearmed. It only remains for the British government to abandon once and for all the fatal system whereby she first has a conference with her friends and then presents the results as a kind of ultimatum to Germany—the system represented by the recent questionnaire—and to substitute for it free and equal and frank discussion around a table. The old system is not equality, either for Germany or for ourselves."

What telephone girl in America has the softest, most beautiful, most easily understood voice? That question was asked in England and a Miss Cain won the competition arranged by the British postoffice, which owns British telephones and telegraph. The finest voice having been selected, a robot was manufactured to imitate that voice by phonographic process. Now, when you want to know the time in London, you dial "Tim" and the soft voice of Miss Cain, perfectly reproduced, tells you: "At the third stroke it will be four twenty-seven and fifteen seconds."

Build Quick Meal Around Salad for One of the Late Warm Days

Not Only Satisfies Hunger, but Acts as an Appetizer as Well.

Doubtlessly we have a number of warm days in store for us yet, even this late in the season. On these warm days the quick meal may often be built around the salad, crisp and cold, which is not only satisfying itself but which at the same time often acts as an appetizer. The makings for it should, of course, be chilling in the refrigerator for a time previous to the making.

Into your salad bowl should go first the lettuce or romaine which, if you are wise, you wash before you put it into your covered pan in the refrigerator to crisp. On this you may slice slivers of cucumber and sweet onions, perhaps a few radishes. With this may go sliced peeled tomatoes or avocados. Your dressing may be mixed in the kitchen or at the table, when ready to serve it. If the family is educated to garlic the bowl may have been rubbed with this pungent seasoning or a bit of bread impregnated with it may be added to the salad. Hard cooked eggs may be sliced over the salad or the yolks may be rubbed through a strainer and the whites sliced. Instead, you may like to use deviled eggs as an accessory.

Another addition may be bits of cooked bacon or ham or bits of anchovy. You will also like these with potato salad dressed with mayonnaise or a cooked dressing. Cold salmon with mayonnaise to which ripe or green olives or capers have been added, served on a platter and surrounded by sliced cucumbers with a French or sour cream dressing is another supper salad suggestion.

Mussolini Takes Part in European War Dance

IT WAS Benito Mussolini's turn to go into the European version of the Indian war dance, following Hitler and Stalin, and he gave a great performance. At Avellino, center of the Italian army maneuvers, Il Duce announced to a cheering throng that he could mobilize 8,000,000 soldiers "in the course of a few hours and after a simple order." The premier declared the world is in the throes of an irresistible re-armament race and Italy must reject the idea of eternal peace, which he said is "foreign to our creed and to our temperament." He asserted that the armed forces of Italy are more efficient than ever as a consequence of the Ethiopian war and that the 60,000 men engaged in the maneuvers are but a modest and almost insignificant part of the country's actual war strength.

"We must be strong," cried Mussolini. "We must be always stronger! We must be so strong that we can face any eventualities and look directly in the eye whatever may befall!"

Germany's new army of a million men, created by Hitler's order doubling the term of compulsory military training, is to be financed by increased taxes on all companies and corporations by 25 per cent for 1936 and by 50 per cent for 1937. This increase brings the corporations tax up to a minimum of 25 and 30 per cent on new profits.

A government communique carefully explained that corporations which have enjoyed heavy earnings due to government orders frequently pay "only a tax of 20 per cent on reserves they accumulate while private business men pay up to 50 per cent."

Germany is rapidly increasing naval armaments. It was announced that a second U-boat flotilla will be formed in addition to the first flotilla named for the former submarine commander, Otto Weddigen.

Polish Army Chieftain Visits the French

SHOULD war break out in Europe, France counts on having the powerful Polish army on her side. Consequently the week long visit of Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly, inspector general of that army, and a Polish military mission to France was made the occasion of elaborate ceremonies. The train carrying the Poles crossed the border at Belfort and there General Rydz-Smigly was received by the commanding generals of the area and reviewed thousands of troops of the frontier regiments. Going thence to Paris, the Poles were accorded the highest military honors and the crowds in the decorated streets cheered them lustily.

Gen. Rydz-Smigly.

Dinners for the guests were given by President Albert Lebrun, Premier Leon Blum and Foreign Minister Delbos. Later they were taken to the Franco-German frontier where they inspected the famous Maginot defense line of concrete and steel strongholds and passages. A great military review at Nancy ended the tour. The Paris press is sure that Hitler's action in lengthening the term of German military service has drawn Poland closer to France.

American Destroyer Periled by Spanish Bombs

SIX bombs dropped from an unidentified Spanish airplane fell perilously near the American destroyer Kane, which was en route from Gibraltar to Bilbao to help in the removal of Americans from the war zone. The Kane fired several rounds from an anti-aircraft gun at the plane. Naturally our government was roused to protest. Secretary of State Hull instructed his agents abroad to request both the Spanish government and Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the rebel forces, to "issue instructions in the strongest terms" to prevent another "incident of this character."

The rebel forces in the north were making a powerful air attack on Irun, scattering many bombs on that border city, and an assault by land and sea forces was expected at any moment. The government troops there had refused to surrender and their officers said rightist prisoners, including some prominent men, would be exposed in the most open places during the bombardment.

The Madrid government admitted its troops had sustained an "important reverse" in a battle at Oropesa, 100 miles southwest of the capital and were driven back to Talavera. Later a loyalist victory at that place was claimed, though London heard the rebels had scored another victory there. The fighting in the Guadarrama mountains continued indecisively, and in Toledo the loyalists were still hammering away at the ancient Alcazar in which about 2,000 rebels were besieged.

Ten foreign envoys accredited to Spain sent a note to the Madrid government calling on it to "humanize" the war, and they expressed the hope that "both parties" would stop the killing of hostages and non-combatants and refrain from bombarding non-defended cities. The American and Japanese representatives did not sign the appeal.

Ruth Owen Resigns as Minister to Denmark

MRS. RUTH BRYAN OWEN, now the wife of Capt. Boerge Rohde of the Danish king's royal life guards, has resigned as American minister to Denmark in order to be free to campaign as a private citizen for the re-election of President Roosevelt, and the President has accepted her resignation. This was done in an exchange of telegrams, that from Mr. Roosevelt saying:

Ruth Owen.

"While I am very loath to have you discontinue the very fine services you have been rendering as United States minister to Denmark, I appreciate your reasons for wanting to resign and the motives that prompt you. I therefore reluctantly accept your resignation."

Mrs. Rohde, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, has had a long career of public service. Before entering the diplomatic service she served in the Seventy-first and Seventy-second congresses, 1929 to 1933, from Florida. Captain Rohde, to whom she was married in July last, is her third husband. She divorced her first husband, William Homer Leavitt. She entered politics after the death of her second husband, Maj. Reginald Owen of the British Royal Engineers.

American Bar Association Against Court Limitation

RESOLUTIONS adopted by the American Bar association at its meeting in Boston declare firmly against any attempt to limit the power of federal courts to pass on the constitutionality of laws. The association avoided what had been expected to be a lively debate by taking a noncommittal attitude on the report of another committee which denounced in great part the alleged invasion of the rights of citizens by the New Deal. This report, to which there was a minority report appended, was received and filed by the assembly, but not accepted, and the committee which filed it was discharged from further duty.

Frederick H. Stinchfield of Minneapolis was unanimously elected president of the association for the coming year.

Farmers' July Income Best Since 1929

PERHAPS the farmers of America don't realize it, but during July they enjoyed the largest cash income they have had since 1929. Figures given out by the Department of Agriculture show the sales of farm products brought them $711,000,000 against $582,000,000 in June and only $451,000,000 in July, 1935.

To their income from sales, the farmers added $24,000,000 in various forms of government benefits, bringing the total cash at their disposal to $735,000,000. The rental and other benefits totaled $57,000,000 in June and $19,000,000 in July, 1935.

Transfer of W. C. Bullitt to the Paris Embassy

TRANSFER of William C. Bullitt from the embassy in Moscow to that in Paris is not surprising. He it was who was chiefly responsible for the recognition of the Soviet government by the United States, and when he was rewarded with the ambassadorship it was expected he would be able to swing a lot of Russian business to American concerns.

Also it was hoped he could persuade his Russian friends to keep their promises not to disturb this country with communist propaganda. In these respects at least Mr. Bullitt has been a disappointment. But he retains the confidence of President Roosevelt and will not be out of place as ambassador to the leftist French government.

Some observers think Mr. Bullitt is sent to Paris for the purpose of secretly sounding out the major European powers on the possibility of reconvening the world economic conference in 1937.

Death of George H. Dern, Secretary of War

SECRETARY OF WAR GEORGE H. DERN died in Walter Reed hospital, Washington, of heart disease and other complications resulting from influenza. He had been ill since last spring but part of the time had insisted on attending to his official duties, keeping this up even from his sick bed. Mr. Dern, who was sixty-four years old, was formerly a brilliant mining engineer and was the second non-Mormon to be elected governor of Utah, serving two terms.

Funeral services for Mr. Dern were held in Washington, with many high federal and army officials and private citizens in attendance. The body was then taken to Salt Lake City on a special train aboard which were Mrs. Dern, her three sons and two daughters, and a cabinet delegation, including Secretary of Commerce Roper, Acting Secretary of War Woodring, Attorney General Cummings, Acting Secretary of Navy Standley and Acting Secretary of Labor McGrady. Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff, headed a delegation of the army high command. At Salt Lake City final rites were held in the great Mormon tabernacle with President Roosevelt attending.

President Roosevelt's Trip to the Drouth Area

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S special train made a quick run to Bismarck, N. D., and the special committee on the drouth, headed by Morris L. Cooke, reported to him on its inspection of the afflicted area. The President then took an automobile tour through the countryside to see for himself some of the effects of the long dry spell. He conferred with Acting Governor Welford and Senators Nye and Frazier of North Dakota and Acting Governor Holt and Senators Wheeler and Murray of Montana. Next day Mr. Roosevelt's train carried him down to Pierre, S. D., and thence into other drouth stricken states.

Mr. Roosevelt's original schedule was changed to permit him to make a quick run to Salt Lake City for the burial services of Secretary of War Dern.

Secretary Ickes' Stepson Commits Suicide

WILMARTH ICKES, stepson of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, shot himself to death in the Ickes home at Winnetka, Ill. He was thirty-seven years old, married and the father of three children. The suicide, on the anniversary of his mother's death in an automobile accident, was attributed to despondency over illness. The young man had just been informed by a physician that he had tuberculosis. Secretary Ickes, informed of the tragedy, went to Chicago at once by airplane.

Stalin Warns Red Army That War Is Near

REICHSFUHRER HITLER has injected a little more ginger into the international armament race by suddenly announcing that the terms for compulsory military service for Germans was doubled—two years instead of one. As matters are just now in Europe, this appeared to be aimed directly against soviet Russia, and if the London newspapers are to be believed, Dictator Stalin recognizes this and reacts as might be expected. The London Evening News and Daily Mail both assert that Stalin, in a secret radio address to the red army, said:

"Comrades of the red forces: We are on the very eve of momentous events. At any moment now you may be called upon to lay down your lives for the defense of the proletarian birthland.

"This is the moment you have been anticipating, and now your birthland is expecting you to do the duty you have so eagerly awaited.

"I have no doubts about you, and I am convinced you have no doubts about us, your leaders.

"Our enemies are getting into position. So be ready. The enemies are on the frontiers of our great land. Keep watch.

"Everything money could buy, everything the genius of man could invent and everything the loving labor of the workers could make have been given into your hands for the defense and glory of the Soviet land."

Food Supply Near Normal, Says Federal Bureau

ACCORDING to estimates of the federal bureau of agricultural economics, the food supply of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1937, will be only 3 per cent below that of 1935-'36, and 1 per cent less than in 1934-'35. The reason is that the exports of food products probably will be less than during the last fiscal year.

The drouth has been unusually severe on feed crops, spring wheat, potatoes, and vegetables for canning. The short feed supply is expected to result in considerable liquidation of live stock during the first half of the marketing year, and these increased marketings, together with the larger spring pig crop of 1936, are expected to maintain meat production slightly above the level of 1935-'36. Supplies of poultry and eggs are expected to be larger, but dairy products will be less than last year, as will be fresh and dried fruits.

"Hand-Made Inferno"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

GATHER 'round the soda fountain, boys and girls. Mike Foley is standing treat. Mike lives at Jackson Heights, N. Y., and he's going to treat us to a swell yarn. Mike's an old hand at this treating business. He was doing it professionally as far back as June, 1884—the month and year in which he had his big adventure.

But don't get the idea that Mike went around handing out ten-cent cigars like a guy that's trying to be elected alderman. Not on your life. Mike was an OIL treader—one of the lads who processed kerosene so it could be burned in lamps. And a mighty dangerous job that was, too.

Mike worked for the Standard Oil company at a big refinery and storage yard that was then located in Long Island City.

Lightning Strikes Huge Oil Tank!

The tanks in which the oil was treated, and on which Mike worked, were huge affairs twenty feet in diameter and thirty or more feet high. You got to the top of them by wooden stairways. And up the side of each tank ran a pair of six-inch pipes that carried the chemicals with which the oil was treated.

Well sir, to get down to the story, Mike Foley was up on the top of one of the big tanks giving its contents a good, thorough treating. Part of that job consisted of blowing compressed air through the oil, and that was often a messy procedure. Oil would slop over the side of the tank and saturate the wooden staircase. That was not only messy, but dangerous—as subsequent events amply demonstrated.

A thunderstorm was brewing while Mike was inside, under cover of the tank's sheltering top. The storm broke, about quarter after two in the afternoon, and about two-thirty he heard a loud crack. Lightning! It had struck the tank.

Mike Moves Swiftly to Close Trap Doors.

Mike's two bosses had gone to the office to give in their reports. Mike was all alone in the tank, so it was up to him. He ran out from under the shelter-roof to see what had happened. The lightning had struck all right. The oil-soaked, wooden stairs were on fire. The blaze, starting apparently from the top, had spread down four or five steps by the time Mike got there.

There was one thing that had to be done, then—done mighty quickly, too. Around the top of the tank were five trap doors, wide open to let out the gases that formed in the tank during treatments. Those doors had to be closed before the fire got through them and the whole tank went up in flames.

Mike dashed for the doors. He got one closed—then another. At that point he turned and took a look at the burning stairway. The flames had spread down four or five more steps. The fire was blazing with even greater fury.

Casablanca Really Had Nothing on Mike

And that wasn't all that was worrying Mike, either. Any minute now—doors or no doors—the tank might take fire and go up with a big WHOOSH! And where would that leave Mike? Not much of anywhere, to tell the truth about it. Just let that tank get going good, and Mike would be trapped. There wouldn't be much left of him but a few cinders when it was all over.

The thought put new energy into him. He got the next three doors closed in jig time. And then he went back to the stairway that was his only avenue of escape. But when Mike got to the stairway, he stopped. No use trying to get down there. Not only the whole stair, but likewise the platform leading to it, was a raging inferno of flame. The timbers that supported it had been eaten through by the blaze. If Mike wasn't burned to death on the way down, he'd be killed in a fall when the weakened supports broke and sent him crashing to earth.

"So there I stood," says Mike, "forty-five feet from the ground, like young Casablanca—the boy who stood on the burning deck. A crowd had gathered down below, and about eight hundred men who worked in the loading sheds near the dock were yelling to me to jump. I didn't want to do that—it would have been almost as bad as burning to death. Still, I couldn't stay up there, either. Most any minute that tank might go up with a roar—and take me along with it."

Mike Was a Good Hand on the Flying Rings.

It looked pretty bad for Mike—but he still had a trick or two up his sleeve. "At that time," he says, "I was a member of the Star Athletic club of Long Island City, and I was pretty good on the flying rings. So I swung over the edge of the platform."

What followed after that brought gasps from the men down below. Like a circus acrobat, high overhead, he began swinging himself along on the braces that held the platform up. He had traveled eight or ten feet around the side of the tank before the spectators saw what he was aiming at. Then they set up a cheer as Mike reached one of the six-inch pipes that ran down the side of the tank and began sliding to safety.

"That pipe was so close to the tank," says Mike, "that I couldn't put my legs around it. I had to grip it with my knees and slide down in jerks about two inches at a time. But I got down all right except for some skin I lost off my hands, and a new pair of pants I had to buy to replace the ones I was wearing. They were ruined."

Prescott's Writings

William Hickling Prescott was born in Salem, Mass., in 1796, where he continued to live during the years he won his fame. He wrote 16 thick volumes which are classics without reading a word of them. One eye was destroyed, another made useless, by a school-fellow's prank when he was 16 and a freshman at Harvard. Nevertheless he completed college and chose to make history a profession. Assistants read to him six hours a day the vast sources of material which he assimilated—memorizing as much as 50 pages of printed matter at a time and dictated into enduring accounts of Spanish conquest in the Americas. His first volume was completed a century ago.

Helgoland, Germany

Helgoland, Germany, takes its name, Holyland, from having been a center of Christian activity in the seventh century, but it later fell into evil ways as a haven for pirate merchant traffic of the North Sea. To this Hamburg put a stop, joining the island to the neighboring Schleswig, whence it passed to Denmark and finally to England about the beginning of the last century. The trading of Helgoland to Germany for the island of Zanzibar off the African coast brought on a storm of popular protest in both countries. In England, the transaction was explained as the wish of Queen Victoria to grant a favor to her nephew, the young Emperor William.

RADIO PROGRAM GIVEN AT FORT WORTH

Following are the talks broadcast at the Fort Worth Centennial on McLean-Wheeler-Shamrock day:

McLEAN

McLean is situated in the southeast corner of Gray county, which is located in the heart of the Panhandle oil and gas field. The crops of this county are: cotton, 7,500 bales; wheat, 2,200,200 bushels; oats, 125,000; corn, 70,000 bushels. Cattle raising, dairying, poultry and hog raising have all made rapid progress.

The county has 1,190 oil wells, 159 gas wells, 10 carbon-black plants, 16 casing-head gasline plants, 5 refineries, 1 booster plant and one fabricating steel plant.

McLean is a wide awake, growing little city, altogether modern, and has more than doubled its population in 10 years. It is a banking, ginning and trade center for the southeastern part of the county.

WHEELER

Wheeler is another county lying within the oil and gas belt of the Panhandle, the largest natural gas field in the world.

Wheeler is a thriving city, having increased its population over 500% in the last 15 years, a marvelous increase for any city.

Although Wheeler is noted for its oil and gas production, it is fast forging to the front as a great agricultural area. Indeed, the Wheeler slogan is: "Where Farming Really Pays."

Wheeler is the fruit and vegetable center of the Panhandle. The soil is very productive even in dry weather. Here is briefly, a conclusive proof that farming pays in Wheeler county: Last year there were 250,000 cattle, 36,000 bales of cotton, 1,000,000 bushels of grain sorghums, 450,000 bushels of corn, 130,000 bushels of wheat, and 60,000 bushels of barley, oats and rye produced in Wheeler. And still, almost 300,000 acres of law land are available for crops! But most amazing ing of all is the fact that the farmers of Wheeler county, in spite of five years of depression, reduced their indebtedness 28%. No greater record has been made by farmers in any other county in Texas.

SHAMROCK

Shamrock is the oil center of Wheeler county. Fort Worth should be very grateful to Shamrock for she secures her natural gas from her. Figures are sometimes tiresome, but there is no better way to tell you Shamrock's story than to state that. In the Shamrock area there are 337 oil wells producing 250,000 barrels daily; 7 billion cubic feet of gas flows from 281 wells. In this section surrounding Shamrock are 100,000 acres of proven oil and gas land, only one-third of which is developed. From here radiate four major lines serving Texas cities. Shamrock also produces 18,000 pounds of carbon black per day. Large crops of cotton, corn and wheat are grown. At least half of the county is used for grazing 75,000 cattle.

From this little city of Shamrock, which has tripled its population in the last 10 years, goes a constant flow of its great natural resources. Thoroughly modern in every respect, Shamrock is destined to grow in wealth, influence and culture. Her citizens are alert to the possibilities of future growth and are unitedly engaged in building a greater Shamrock on the sweeping plains of the Panhandle.

Have you noticed that all the 15c magazines are now back to the 25c price? It is only an indication of the steadily rising costs of every thing that enters into the publishing business.

This paper, in the very nature of its business, has more regular customers than any other business in town, but a nice thing about it is that any other business can talk to all these customers for a few cents a week, with a gain in prestige for both.

Summer is officially over, according to the big town merchants, and it is now taboo to wear straw hats and ice cream trousers, but when we remember that they opened the season about a month too soon last spring, guess we will wait until the weather man has his say about it.

This newspaper has tried to give its readers a good paper regardless of the poor business conditions the past few years. That the paper has kept faith along with other progressive concerns is evident from its appearance each week with 3 pages and up of news and features of interest to hundreds of those who continue to pay cash for their subscriptions each year.

It was mentioned at the BCD meeting Monday night that the Amarillo radio station, regardless of the changes in ownership, has all along been kind in extending courtesies to McLean. This community has been invited many times to put on a program of any nature, entirely free of charge; at no time have the merchants or anyone else been asked to sponsor the program. The radio time offered during fair week is entirely free for the taking.

The fact was brought out at the BCD meeting Monday night that the present embarrassment for lack of funds by both the city and school district is caused by delinquent taxes.

The delinquent tax problem is getting serious, not only in this community but all over the country. So many people have not paid taxes for years, that others are taking the position that they should not be required to pay either, with disastrous results to the budgets.

Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, assistant physical director of New York University, has an article in this month's issue of the Physical Culture Magazine, in which he says that within the next ten weeks there will be 55,000 injuries and deaths from playing high school football, 10,000 from the colleges, and many more thousands from ex-players' games and back lot games.

Dr. Eastwood says that a few changes in the rules of the game could save some 20,000 of these injuries. He also says that most of the accidents occur during the first three weeks of the season. This article is authoritative and illuminating and well worth great American game. reading by followers of the

BARRELS FULL

A social worker with more enthusiasm than tact went to call upon Terrence Shea, night watchman, at his home.

"I hope, Mr. Shea," she said, "that you don't squander your money in liquor and riotous living. I'm trying to interest the people of the neighborhood in the new savings bank which has just been started. May I ask where you deposit your wages?" "I'd just as soon tell ye as not," replied Mr. Shea. "Tis $15 a week I make. When I've paid the rent, the provisions, and the grocery bill and the milkman, and bought what's needed for Maggie and me five children, I deposit the rest of the money in barrels. Mostly, ma'am, I use sugar barrels. They're bigger and hold more. But when I can't get them, I make shift with plain flour barrels."

PESSIMISM

Exactly 100 years ago, Ralph Waldo Emerson, the great essayist, was so sure that the United States had gone to ruin he wrote:

"Society has played out its last stroke. Young men have no hope. Adults stand like day-laborers idle in the streets. None calleth us to labor. The present generation is bankrupt of principles and hope, as is of prosperity."

The United States outlived all of the troubles of which Emerson wrote. But in 1850 he became worried again regarding the state of the Union, and wrote:

"The United States can never pay its debts. Nothing is left but to put it in chancery and sell it to the highest bidder."-From "Impressions," published semi-occasionally by the McCormick Armstrong Press, Wichita, Kan.

THANK GOD FOR IGNORANCE

Of the late Bishop Ames, the following anecdote is told: While presiding over a certain conference in the West, a member began a tirade against universities and education, thanking God that he had never been corrupted by contact with a college. After a few minutes, the bishop interrupted with the question, "Do I understand that the brother thanks God for his ignorance?"

"Yes," was the answer, "if you want to put it that way."

"Well," said the bishop, "all I have to say is that the brother has a good deal to thank God for."

Fair for Hand-Quilted Fashions

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

UP TO comparatively a short time ago handquilting was regarded as a form of needlework to be utilized and reserved for luxurious intimate apparel, robes, bed-jackets, negligees and such. The thought no longer holds good. The emergence of hand-quilting from outdoor environs becomes a highly-styled event—the dawn of a new era in this exquisite needle work.

That faithful perennial back-to-college clothes problem is with us again. By way of a new and interesting approach to the subject suppose we talk about the perfectly fascinating hand-quilted sports coats and evening jackets such as are now pridefully showing in shops that make boast of being "first" in fashion.

Tuck away one or more of these cunning and chic hand-quilted garments in your back-to-school wardrobe. Wear 'em on the campus and to parties and proms and you will excite the admiration and envy of the whole college. If you think this is an exaggerated way of putting it, please take one long look at the hand-quilted fashions here pictured. The argument is closed, 'est-ce pas?

Hand-quilting really dates back to early history, some of the oldest pieces originating in China and India. In the general art revival of the Renaissance period Trapunto quilting came into existence, the same accomplished by quilting the design in double lines, raising the space between into a bas relief effect by drawing through wisps of soft wool to form a padding.

Women especially in north of England and in northern Italy created unusually artistic and original pieces of hand-quilting. Via the English route the art of quilting was brought over by the English settlers whose descendants, farmers' wives, living in the mountains of Kentucky carry on the work today.

Visioning the possibilities in this attractive handiwork, current style creators have put experts in vogue costume design at the service of native workers and thus is added to hand-quilted garments now showing in the shops.

The new sport coats and evening jackets now featuring in the fashion picture are made mostly of hand-blocked linens, cottons, smart satins, sheer woollens and dainty challis. There are flowery prints, geometrical designs, checks and plaids as well as plain colors in flattering combinations.

The stunning swagger coat in the picture is made of hand-blocked challis in brilliant plaid. It is lined with plain linen. Just the thing for campus wear or to stroll about town on an early coolish autumn day.

The good-looking model to the right at the top makes an ideal knockabout country club coat. The original was done in brown lines. The pronounced vogue for satin this fall bespeaks the appeal of a hand-quilted coat thereof fashioned in like manner.

The sports cardigan "set" shown in foreground is of bright monotone fabric lined with a gay print, the complementary waistcoat being of match-color pique with silver coin buttons to add to its lure. The evening jacket (in panel) is in a Trapunto design on silk-finished linen with contrasting lining. This model comes in exquisite Chinese colorings. A perfect accessory to complete an autumn campus frock is shown to left above. This roundabout jacket is reversible and has contrasting lacing.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Honoring Amos 'n' Andy. SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— Because Amos 'n' Andy paid a mythical visit to this community, the grateful populace will dedicate a bronze tablet in Palisades park, which is not only a beautiful park but is regarded by some enthusiastic citizens as being practically the main entrance to the Pacific ocean.

That's California pride for you—the kind that inspires us to pass resolutions endorsing the sunsets.

Well, I don't believe there's a small city in this country that has finer sunsets than Santa Monica. And when better ones are available for towns of this size, Santa Monica will have them. Our boosters' clubs will attend to that.

What I'm getting at, though, is that any fellows who've given as much joy to the world as Amos 'n' Andy deserve a whole set of plaques. If they don't wear out, thinking up their stuff until I get tired of hearing it, they'll go on forever. "Hello, Kingfish."

Irvin Cobb.

Vocal Contortionists. WHY must tenors make such funny faces when they sing? And why must a lady vocalist clutch both hands to her tum-tum when she reaches after a high note, as though she'd just felt the first pangs of cholera morbus? And why must there ever be any professional pianist who also is a professional dandruff fancier and looks as though he should be gone over with one of these sand-blasting machines that they use to clean off office buildings. Just ordinary soap and water wouldn't do.

And, oh, why does a basso insist on singing at great length of the joys of life at the bottom of a coal mine and, for an encore, ro-hock me in the cra-hadle of the dachup until I'm as seasick as a cow? Hasn't anybody since Rutherford B. Hayes was President, thought up a new song for bassos? And isn't anybody going to do so before the sands of the desert grow cold? It looks like years and years to wait.

France's Diplomatic Game. WHILE France was asking us to enter into a "neutrality pact" as regards Spain, it would appear she even then was extending very material "sympathies" to the loyalist side. Anyhow, Italy thinks so, and Germany, too. And now Portugal sprouts unrest and Great Britain issues threats.

Since we already were neutral—and, if we have any sense, will keep on being as neutral as a stop-and-go signal—America didn't need to enter any pacts. And if we continue minding our own business we'll have neither a sick headache nor a fresh batch of uncollectible foreign loans when the present mess is over.

The point is that France seemingly has been caught playing a double diplomatic game.

Wholesale Mercy. WHO killed Cock Robin? Who cares? Dead, isn't he? His widow and orphans can go on relief, can't they? But how about pretty Boy Sparrow? There's the one to think about—so young and so gifted and ambitious.

The Women's Aid Society for the Freeing of Criminals—How soon can we get that poor lad out into the sunshine once more? He takes aim so much better in the sunshine. Must we wait until he breaks out?

The state parole board—Not at all, ladies, not at all. Just be patient a little while, then leave it to us.

Gov. Mushy J. Sapp—But why wait? When I think of that bleak Alcatraz and that hard-hearted Uncle Sam I'm proud to have some wholesome sentiment in my soul. Pass me that pardon blank.

Pretty Boy Sparrow—Well, happy days are here again. Say, I never did like that canary much either. Where's my Tommy gun?

The Wisdom of Frogs. A LADY naturalist at the Smithsonian in Washington has been experimenting and she says that frogs not only listen to political speeches on the radio but, by their croaks at the finish, indicate a deep appreciation of same. This helps to confirm an opinion I've had all along, that the only end of a frog which should command my entire approval is the end the legs grow on—especially when fried in cracker crumbs.

On second thought, though, maybe the frog has more brains than I'm giving him credit for. When I'm applauding at the end of a broadcast there's no chance for an encore.

SYLVIA CRACKS THE WHIP!

Comic strip panels showing Sylvia and a man talking about coffee and Postum. Sylvia says: "SID, I CAN STAND YOUR BAD TEMPER, BUT YOUR INDIGESTION AND LOSS OF SLEEP WILL MAKE YOU MISS THAT TRAPEZE SOME DAY—AND I'LL BE A WIDOW!!". The man replies: "YEAH? BUT WHY DID YOU HAVE TO TELL THAT ANIMAL TRAINER ALL ABOUT IT? WHAT BUSINESS IS IT OF HIS?". Sylvia says: "I WANTED SOME ADVICE ABOUT YOU! ONCE HE GOT NERVOUS AND JITTERY, JUST AS YOU ARE NOW, AND HE LOST CONTROL OF HIS LIONS!". The man replies: "YEAH, BUT HE GOT OUT ALIVE—WHICH PROVES THAT LIONS WON'T EAT HAM!". Sylvia says: "HE'S NO ANIMAL TRAINER! WHY, IT TOOK THOSE LIONS THREE WEEKS TO TEACH HIM THE 'ACT!!'". The man replies: "THE DOCTOR WHO DRESSED HIS TORN ARM SAID HE HAD COFFEE-NERVES—MADE HIM QUIT COFFEE AND SWITCH TO POSTUM!". Sylvia says: "THAT'S A LOT OF BUNK!". The man replies: "—AND NOW I SUPPOSE A LION WOULDN'T BITE HIM EVEN IF HE BIT IT FIRST!". Sylvia says: "IT'S NOT BUNK! YOU DO DRINK TOO MUCH COFFEE—AND I'LL BET YOU'VE GOT COFFEE-NERVES! WHY DON'T YOU TRY POSTUM?". The man replies: "OH, ALL RIGHT, I WILL! IF YOU'LL KEEP QUIET ABOUT THAT ANIMAL TRAINER!". Sylvia says: "CURSES! I'M LICKED AGAIN!". Sylvia says: "30 DAYS LATER". The man replies: "SAY—THAT'S A WONDERFUL NEW LION ACT HE'S DEVELOPED THERE!". Sylvia says: "WHY, THAT'S NOTHING COMPARED TO YOUR OWN NEW ACT! YOU CERTAINLY ARE A CHANGED MAN SINCE YOU SWITCHED TO POSTUM!".

TAILORED SILK

Emphasis is on the tailored theme for pajama costumes. The pajamas pictured is typical. This two-piece is tailored of gray silk shantung with glove stitching to give it fine finesse. This model is not only good to wear at a resort or at countryside, one may even drop in to see a friend and wear this conservatively styled pajama costume with perfect propriety.

LOOKING AHEAD TO COATS FOR WINTER

Those who prefer to ignore the heat by focusing their thoughts on the winter and fur coats will find sufficient different styles in the shops to keep them guessing for hours as to which is the most important. If they're wise they'll choose the most becoming silhouette and forget about the others.

Outstanding in fur fashions is the flared silhouette, the width of hemline contrasted with the slenderness of the waistline. A coat of this type is obviously dressy, so the busy woman may prefer to pass it by in favor of a straightline "top-coat" model which proves serviceable from morning until night.

Fall Hosiery to Glisten in Bright Copper Tones

A penny—or rather a copper—for your thoughts if you're thinking of colors that are good in hosiery at the moment. The copper tones are important—shades that glisten with the bright bronze of a new penny, or of your burnished copper teakettle. The copper casts will continue into the fall, the fashion makers tell us, because they consort so well with the new autumn colors in fabrics and shoes. New taupes and grays are also coming into the picture.

Wine Tones Are Popular in Fashions for Autumn

The prominence of wine tones, grapes and vintage greens in the first fall fashions springs from the Exposition Vinicole at the Tuileries in Paris.

American women have already caught this Bacchanalian note in fashion. Evidences of its presence are seen in clusters of grapes worn in the hair for evening, wine colors in the first fall hats and leaf motifs in trimming.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

THE COUNCIL AT JERUSALEM

Lesson text, Acts 15:22-29; Gal 2:1, 2, 9, 10. Golden text, "For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; use only not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another." Galatians 5:13.

The incident to be considered in the lesson for this Sunday came following the completion of the first missionary journey of Paul. Since the earliest days of Christianity there had been a group of Jews who had been saved who believed from the depth of their soul that only a Jew could be saved. Therefore, when reports came that Gentiles were being saved they always began the controversy anew. They demanded that every Gentile whom as saved, first become a Jew by the provisions of the old Hebrew law. After that, they were ready to accept him as a Christian.

This matter had been settled once when Peter was called upon to preach to Cornelius. But matters that are settled do not stay settled with some people. Therefore, when the report came that there were many Gentiles being saved in Antioch of Syria, the Jerusalem church sent Barnabas up to investigate the situation. But when Barnabas arrived and saw the wonderful work that was going on there among the Gentiles, he forgot the report to the Jerusalem church and went to work helping to win the people of Antioch. He went after Paul to assist him in this task. Then God sent the two out on a missionary journey among the Gentiles.

This missionary journey of Paul and Barnabas probably caused great concern among the Jewish Christians in Jerusalem. The matter had gone too far. They sent a group of their strongest men to Antioch to denounce such profane teaching. But the apostles to the Gentiles and the many Gentile Christians could not find in the teachings of the apostles themselves anything that would justify the unjust position of the Jerusalem Christians. Therefore, they sent a delegation of their own down to Jerusalem to work the thing out. Paul and Barnabas were among that number.

When the Jerusalem church was assembled they heard the evidence of the great work that had been done among the Gentiles. After long discussion, the Jerusalem church decided that no man had to become a Jew in order to be a Christian. There was but one thing necessary and that to trust in Jesus Christ. To this effect the church sent a written document back to the Antioch church, along with others to testify by word of mouth, that the church had given no one right to spread propaganda among the Antioch people. The church did ask that the people abstain from those things that would lead to temptation, and from open sin. These things they felt were necessary for the Gentiles to grow strong Christian lives.

The plan of salvation is a simple one. It is a spiritual plan and not one that is put into effect by material applications. If one will read closely the words of the Master he will perceive that according to His conversation with Nicodemus, salvation is a work of God and not of man. Man must be willing and ready for God to work the miracle of salvation in his heart. God does the working. Then after God has worked that miracle in the heart of a man he has a new heart. No man knows just how that is done, but the knowing how is God's business, for God is the only one who does it.

While the miracle of a new heart is the work of God, and makes one an heir of God and a joint heir of Jesus Christ, God expects service from the changed heart. Jesus leaves us to understand that only God can change a heart in regeneration, but the works of the life guided by a changed heart will prove the change. Jesus said that men could know whether our hearts had been changed or not by the way we act and live. It ought to be the duty of each one who claims the grace of God to invoice his life every few months as faithfully as a merchant invoices his stock, and see if he has there the requirements in stock of service that God expects. The world may make fun of religion, and sometimes justly so, but the world will never despise a sincere Christian life led into paths of service for mankind by the heavenly Father.

INHERITANCE THROUGH GOD'S PROMISES

Text: "For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise." Gal 3:18.

INHERITANCE THROUGH GOD'S PROMISES

Forgiveness of sins, eternal life and salvation are heavenly gifts given to sinful mankind through our Savior and Redeemer, Jesus Christ. This same Jesus, the Messiah, was called the seed of the woman in the promise of redemption given to fallen mankind in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 3:15). The promise of salvation was renewed and given to Abraham. Four hundred and thirty years later, God issued His law through Moses. From that time on many were confused as to the purpose of the law. Some knew the purpose of the law while others thought that salvation may be gained and earned by a strict observance of the law. If that were the case, the Bible would contradict itself and would be of no value. But the Christians know that the Holy Bible does not contradict itself; Christians also know that the law and Gospel must be rightly divided. The law has its purpose as well as the Gospel.

Why, then, was the law given by God? St. Paul answers: "It was added because of transgressions, till the seed (Jesus) should come, to whom the promise was made." Gal. 3:19. Because of sins and transgressions God gave His law as a disciplinary measure. However, the law was not issued to take place of the promise of the Seed, the Messiah. St. Paul explains thus: "And this I say, that the covenant, that was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect." Gal. 3:17. St. Paul continues with his inspired explanation "For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise." Gal. 3:18. In other words, if we could inherit spiritual blessings through the law of God, then all of God's promises of the Messiah, all of our Savior's work would have been in vain. Salvation would have been through the works of the law and not through faith in Christ Jesus by the grace of God. Our heavenly Father made a promise of the Savior to sinful mortals and has kept His promise. Later, when He gave His law to discipline mankind, He did not overthrow His promise. Our heavenly Father was entitled to discipline His disobedient children. But the children of God, under this discipline, could not earn their salvation. Let us consider the following example:

"If a rich man, not constrained, but of his own good will, should adopt one to be his son, whom he knoweth not, and to whom he oweth nothing, and should appoint him to be the heir of all his land and goods, and certain years after that he hath bestowed this benefit upon him, he should lay upon him a law to do this or that; he cannot now say that he hath deserved this benefit by his own works, seeing that many years before, he, asking nothing, had received the same freely and of mere favor." (Dr. Martin Luther).

Accordingly, the heirs of promise, the heirs of God's kingdom, receive spiritual blessings from God through Christ's merit and not by their own merit by the observance of disciplinary law. "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law." Rom.

3:28. St. Paul also explains: "Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." Gal. 2:16.

From the Bible passages cited so far we can readily see that in order to inherit the promise of God, eternal life, forgiveness of sin and salvation, a person must be justified before God. This justification is given by God through Jesus Christ by faith and not by personal merit of sinful mortals. "For by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." Justification before God is given to all as a gift, and all those that accept this gift become children of God and the children of Abraham. "Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham." Gal. 3:7. "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gal. 3:29. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal. 3:26, 27. And the Lord Jesus says: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark 16:16. God grant that all may believe the promise, the Gospel of God, and li-berit the heavenly blessings of eternal life and salvation.

CAN-OPENER BILLS

The first grade was having a lesson on birds.

After some discussion, the fact was established that birds eat fruit.

One little girl, however, was unconvinced.

"But, teacher," she asked, raising her hand, "how can the birds open cans?"

"Say, Bill, if you had five bucks in your pocket, what would you think?"

"I'd think I had on somebody else's pants!"

Face powder 400 years old, found in a woman's tomb at Corinth, Greece, has about the same chemical analysis as that of modern manufacture.

"I should worry and get a wrinkle-me for a smile and have a dimple."

MAKING IT DRAMATIC

A class in English was given the task of writing four lines of dramatic poetry. The results were various, and selecting the verse of a usually bright boy, the teacher read:

"A boy was walking down the track,
The train was coming fast;
The boy stepped off the railroad track
To let the train go past."

"This verse is very well done," said the teacher, "but it lacks drama. Try again, Johnny, and make it more dramatic." Whereupon, in a surprisingly short time, Johnny produced the following verse:

"A boy was walking down the track,
The train was coming fast,
The train jumped off the railroad track
To let the boy go past."

TRICKING THE SERGEANT

"Com-paa-nee atten-shun!" bawled the drill sergeant to the "awkward squad." "Com-paa-nee, lift up your left leg and hold it straight in front of you."

By mistake one member held up his right leg, which brought it out side by side with his neighbor's left leg.

"And who is the galoot over there holding up both legs?" shouted the hard-boiled sergeant.

NO DIFFERENCE

"But," said the would-be-son-in-law to the girl's father, "what is your objection to me as a suitor for your daughter's hand?"

"My chief objection is that you cannot keep her in the style in which she has been brought up," replied the irate father.

"At any rate," said the enamored youth, "I can start her on bread and milk, the same as you did."

HIGHBROWS

The American Indian, Dr. Hrdlicka has found, is possessed of an unusually high forehead. If this doesn't make him a highbrow it at least gives a hint as to the origin of his unpleasant practice in the way of scalping. When an Indian warrior took the scalp of another warrior he got a big spread, on account of the high brow, provided the operation was lesurery and included the entire covering. The Eskimo, who is an Indian of sorts, no doubt needs a lot of scalp. The more the hair, the more protection against winter, and the more forehead the more space for the bangs to hang over. Like any other nut, the head is to be judged by the kernel, not the shell.
