President Roosevelt Is Renominated by Acclaim

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT was renominated by unanimous acclaim by the Democratic National convention in Philadelphia, receiving the convention's entire 1,100 votes on the first ballot. Vice President John N. Garner was likewise renominated for that position by acclaim.

At a great public massmeeting in Pranklin field, Philadelphia, attended by 110,000 people on the evening of the convention's adjournment, President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner were officially notified of their selection and responded with acceptance speeches.

The President sounded the battleery of his campaign for re-election by denouncing "economic royalists who hide behind the American flag and Constitution."

The convention unanimously adopted a strong New Deal platform and voted the abolition of the historic two-thirds rule.

The sessions were marked with extreme enthusiasm. Party harmony and a determination to President Roosevelt stand militantly on the administration's record in the past three years and present a united front in the coming campaign characterized the convention.

The abolition of the two-thirds rule for the nomination of candidates was one of the significant achievements. This rule, which has been in use for more than 100 years, was superseded by the adoption of the rules committee's report recommending that at future conventions only a bare majority be required for nomination. While some southern and the eastern and western states opposed abrogation, they were reconciled to it by the committee's rcommendation that changes be made in the apportionment of delegates.

The platform pledged continuance of soil conservation, benefit payments to farmers, a sound currency, a balanced budget and a constitutional amendment if necessary, to achieve the party's broad social program. It praised the accomplishments of the New Deal in a preamble, declaring that it planned to continue them in the interest of the nation. The platform's keynote was that the Roosevelt administration has put and will keep the nation "on the road to recovery and prosperity."

Regarding the Constitution, the platform declared that while the Republican platform proposes to meet national problems by action of the separate states, the Democratic party recognizes that minimum wages, maximum hours, child labor, monopolistic and unfair business practices, dust storms, drouth and floods could not be handled by states. It stated:

"If these problems cannot be effectively solved by legislation within the Constitution, we shall seek such clarifying amendments will assume to the legislatures of the several states and to the congress of the United States each within it proper jurisdiction, the power to enact those laws which the state and federal legislatures their respective spheres shall find necessary, in order adequately to regulate commerce, proect public health and safety safeguard economic security. Thus we propose to maintain the letter and spirit of the Constitution.'

In addition to soil conservation and benefit payments, the farm plank pledged the Democrats to nancing share-croppers and tenants in buying lands; favored commodity loans on farm surpluses and retirement of ten million acres of submarginal land from production and rural rehabilitation.

Railway Pension Acts Declared Unconstitutional

DENSIONS for railway workers received a setback when the District of Columbia Supreme court ruled unconstitutional two acts passed by congress last year.

The court held that the government had no right to levy or collect taxes to finance the rail pensions and invalidated as "inseparable" a companion tax measure providing for payment of the pension

Both acts were passed last year under the sponsorship of the administration and with the support of railway labor leaders after the United States Supreme court had held unconstitutional the 1934 railway retirement act. They were deigned to meet the high court's ob-pied considerable of his attention. When the Kansas legislature reconvenes a proposed amendment to the state constitution will be introduced, giving the state broad power to provide far-reaching legislation for social welfare and to co-operate with the federal government. Governor Landon was quoted as describing the proposed amendment as "satisfactory." The amendment, which may be the basis for similar action in other states, reads:

"Nothing contained in this constitution shall be construed to limit the power of the legislature to enact laws providing for financial assistance to aid infirm or dependent persons; for the public health; unemployment compensation and general social security and providing for the payment thereof by tax or otherwise and to receive aid from the federal government therefor."

Charles P. Taft and Ralph W. Robey, two members of his research and advisory staff, were scheduled to join the Republican Presidential nominee and to provide him with further data for the notification ceremony speech-the first major political statement since his Cleveland nomination.

In the meantime, John Hamilton, newly elected chairman of the Republican National committee, was on a tour of the East conferring with political leaders.

Strikes in Provinces

Continue French Unrest

DERSISTENCE of strikes in the provinces kept France in a state of unrest. A gain of 225,000 new members was reported by the general confederation of labor, organized labor's official body.

Altogether it was estimated that 100,000 workers were still absent from their jobs, in spite of reports of strike settlements in scattered sections throughout the country.

The French Riviera witnessed general exodus of foreign tourists from 450 hotels and resorts following a lockout by the proprietors. The hotels were closed indefinitely after the employers declared they could not meet workers' demands for more pay and shorter hours. Severe Drouth Damage Brings Federal Action

WITH thousands of acres of spring wheat destroyed through drouth and with vast corn-growing regions threatened, the federal government undertook a comprehensive campaign to alleviate human distress and property loss, and stricken areas were placed in the hands of a special drouth committee by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, with instructions to proceed immediately with a plan of co-ordination.

Secretary Wallace named Jess W. Tapp, assistant agricultural adjustment administrator, as chairman of the committee. Four others appointed were: C. W. Warburton, director of the Agricultural Extension Service: Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service; A. G. Black, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics; and W. F. Callender, assistant agricultural adjustment administrator. Joseph L. Bailey, assistant resettlement administrator, will also serve with the committee.

The committee's attention was turned immediately to drouth conditions and relief need in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming, but officials were watching anxiously the increasing drouth damage in South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and parts of Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

The work of six government agencies will be supervised and co-ordinated by the committee in its work on drouth relief. These are: the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the Public Works Administratlement Administration, the Relief Administration, and Rural Rehabilitation and Soil Conservation

Steel Industry Resists

DEFYING a drive to force unionization of its 500,000 workers, the steel industry in a strongly Although Governor worded statement issued by the American Iron and Steel institute preparatory to the declared "it will oppose any attempt to compel its employees to join a union or pay tribute for the right to work *

Although the statement did not mention him by name, it was regarded by observers as the first official response to the recent announcement by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, of a campaign to unionize steel employees.

In order to prevent the "closed shop," the industry said it "will use its resources to the best of its ability to protect its employees and their families from intimidation, coercion and violence and to aid them in maintaining collective bargaining free from interference from any source."

Reasserting its belief in the principles of collective bargaining, the industry's statement pointed out that employees now pick their own representatives for collective bargaining by secret ballot. The statement declares:

"The steel industry is recovering from six years of depression and huge losses and the employees are beginning to receive the benefit of increased operations. "Death Straddles the Fences By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

ODAY, boys and girls, Dave Sherin takes the floor. Dave I lives in New York city. "I met with my adventure in Ireland," he writes, "and strange to say," it didn't have to do with the Black and Tan revolution or anything like that. I had my adventure with a

A horse. That's the answer to almost anything in Dave's life. Dave doesn't remember the time when he wasn't on a horse and going somewhere. Back in 1924, when his adventure happened, he was a steeplechase rider. And a more dangerous sport doesn't exist, unless it's playing post office with a roomful of man-eating tigers.

Dave had been riding steeplechases and hurdle races for two years over in England when, one September day in 1924, he set out for Ireland for a two months' vacation and a whiff of good

His home was in Kilmallock, and he'd only been there a couple days when a neighboring farmer brought him a high-spirited, half-bred colt and asked Dave '> break him to the saddle.

Unbroken Colt Has Wicked Gleam in His Eye.

"The horses I'd been dealing with for the two years before had all been full-blooded 'chasers,' " says Dave, "and I looked on this new horse as being a very soft job indeed. I was wrong. My first inkling of the mettle of that colt came the first time I entered the stable. I was no sooner inside than he began to lash out in all directions. He practically kicked me out the door

"I decided then that ne'd been spoiled by bad handling, and set about coaxing him into a better frame of mind. After a few days he seemed to respond to my efforts and I put the 'tack' or breaking-in equipment on him. By that time I had forgotten the first reception he gave me. I should have been warned, though, by the wicked gleam that was still in his eye."

Well, sir, Dave had the harness on him, and for a few days he let him buck all the hellishness out of his system around the corral. Then one day, he saddled the colt and took him for a canter. For all of three miles, that animal was gentle as a lamb. But finally they came to a field where three or four young horses were grazing, and the sight of those horses seemed to infuriate Dave's mount.

Dave Goes for a Wild Ride Upside Down.

"He quivered a moment," says Dave, "and pushed his head down as far as he could. Then, suddenly, he swung it sharply around, ending up with it under my right stirrup, and at the same moment he plunged sideways, to the left. His sudden action unseated me, and as my left foot slipped from its stirrup I fell across his back to leftward.

"But my right foot held fast in its stirrup, and there I was, slung at the furious animal's side, my right leg sticking up in the air and the back of my head hanging an inch from the ground." And with Dave dangling at his side, standing on his head on empty air, that wild colt started. Off he went, hell-for-leather across the open field.

Dave's Cranium Bumps the Ground at Every Stride.

"At each long stride he took," says Dave, "my head hit the ground and his hoofs grazed my skull. I have never been in a tighter corner in my life, but strange to relate, my head remained clear and my thoughts connected. I knew he was heading for the boundary fence at the other side of the field, and I never expected to cross it alive. Dangling at his side as I was, I must inevitably hit that fence. Then, if I wasn't smashed lifeless, I'd be a lot tougher than I ever thought any human could be.' On the colt galloped, crossing that field in a length of time that was all too short to suit Dave. Now the fence loomed up be-fore him. Now the colt was falling back on his haunches for the

It all took place in the twinkling of an eye, but to Dave, whose mind was racing with the agony of the doomed, it seemed like slow motion. The colt rose into the air-and the incredible happened. That horse didn't jump that fence. He flew over it like a bird, carrying Dave's head well over the top of the barrier and letting it down on the other side.

Colt's Somersault Saves Rider's Life.

"Then we were in the open again," Dave says, "and he was galloping faster than ever. Across another fence and another he went, clearing them with room to spare every time. And still he kept on, as I swung under his belly, my head brushing the tops of the blades of grass and his hoofs beating a tattoo on the side of my cranium. Then, through the lashing legs I caught a glimpse of a solidly built wall ahead and knew that the most dangerous leap in County Limerick barred his way.

"It was a stone wall, five feet high that dropped away six feet on the other side to a dyke 20 feet across. It's all over now, I thought to myself, and I still remember that I forgot to say a prayer. Then the wall seemed to be rushing toward me and I could feel the colt bracing himself for a great effort. He rose in the air, and the last thing I remembered was a crash like a ton of bricks falling about my ears-"

Dave awoke three days later, and they told him of the miracle that had saved his life. The colt's front feet had struck the wall, and he had turned a complete sometsault-the one sort of spill that could possibly have saved Dave.

Llama, Beast of Burden,

Used by American Indian

The llama has the distinction of being the only beast of burden that the American Indians were in possession of when America was discovered, observes a writer in the Rural New-Yorker. The peculiar conformation of its feet enables it to tread with security over rough and steep slopes where other animals would find it difficult walking. And then, camel-like, it is capable of making long journeys without

She slipped into a teagown, bought because it reminded her of a passionate love scene in the movies, and she sighed a little as she noticed that it made her thickening body take on even heavier curves than showed in a dark business dress. Of course she didn't have one of these lead pencil figures like that young stock girl, for instance, but she wasn't fat! And men liked these lacey, frilly things. What always happened in the movies when the heroine donned a tea gown or a negligee? Lord! A ring at the door started that funny feeling around her heart. All through dinner her heart continued to thump and flip over when the kid ooked into her eyes. After dessert, Miss Maginley lighted a long goldtipped cigarette, drew little puffs into her mouth and spat them out again. The smoke got into her eyes, as it always did, and reddened her

"About that Levy proposition," he began abruptly. And they talked about the Levy preposition until they had exhausted all angles of it.

A silence fell between them. A perfumed silence, thought Miss Maginley, who knew her captions. Perhaps the boy was shy. After all she had never given him much encour-agement. Might he not be a little overawed by her position and salary. She moved her hand across the plush davenport until it touched his fingers, which closed over hers. She moved closer and her head dropped to his shoulder. He slipped his free arm around her.

She rehearsed the scene dreamily the next morning, as she sat before her desk, making curlicues on her blotter. The boy hadn't said much; neither had she. They sat there like a couple of bashful kids. Lord! At her age! She smiled as she thought that he might be rehearsing the same scene in his cubbyhole of an office that adjoined hers. Two souls with but a single thought and just a thin wall between them. She arose and started towards the door. At that moment she heard voices on the other side of the partition.

"Well," said a flippant young voice that she recognized as belonging to the little stock girl. "How's the old lady's darling this morn-

As she stood speechless Mason walked out of his cubbyhole, looked at her with his level gray eyes, and smiled in his grave friendly way. Lord! How it got to her, that smile! Prehistoric Crematory Found by Kansas Men

G. H. Wood and Mark Reeve, Friends university professors and experts on Indian lore, believe that a prehistoric crematory vault 12 miles southeast of Wichita, Kan., may be the key to an unknown civilization existing in Kansas centuries before the American Indian. The vault was discovered recently by Lyle Cherry, Derby, Kan., farmer, when his plow dislodged a large slab, revealing a crypt, according to a United Press correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. In the interior were rocks and a considerable deposit of charcoal. The scientists dug to the floor and discovered fine ashes, believed to be those of human bones. The kiln was ten feet long, seven feet wide and six high. There are five similar mounds within 150 feet of the original discovery. The kiln was walled up and roofed with stone slab.. A narrow passageway wound downward around the clay pit. Wood pointed out that the burial was marked by high honors because the rock used for the tomb is found only at a site twelve miles away. A geological map of the vicinity shows the tomb was located on the banks of a stream, although it is impossible to see any indication of the vanished stream today. Silt marks were found on the walls of the vault, indicating the stream must have flooded that region once and seeped into the crypt.

The Union Party

A T CLEVELAND there was harmony and a quiet interment for the old Guard. At Philadelphia the proceedings moved along on greased rollers. But for real excitement, wait until that new Union party holds its convention.

Then will be the signal to remove the women and children to a place of safety. Just consider who'll be

The inflationists who think that, as long as we have government engraving plants and printing presses, money should be plentiful. The group committed to the idea that, if the farmer won't do something for himself, something should be done for the farmer. Doctor Townsend, with his project to provide old age pensions for everybody over sixty except Congressman McGoarty. Father Coughlin, calling for social justice and better radio hookups. Huey Long's successor, who'd share the wealth and make every man a king.

Al Smith's Strategy

A litical vaudeville, Al. Smith should have known better than to pull that ancient wheeze-shooting at Philadelphia letter carriers on a Sunday afternoon.

And besides, think of the desperate chance he and his supporting quartet of sharpshooters took: come between a mother panther and her cubs; come between a Frenchman and his fracas; come between a radio announcer and his elocution, but never, right on the eve of their national convention, try to come between a flock of officeholding Democrats and the prospect of four more uninterrupted years of the same.

Trouble of Travelers

OUTSIDE the larger cities, when a hotel manager wishes to show a special guest special attention, he assigns him to the bedchamber of state which usually is on the second floor, invariably is at the front of the house and nearly always on the corner where electric signs twinkle merrily till daylight in the poor sleepless wretch's eyes.

And along toward 2 a. m. a party named Dewey, standing in the street below, will start telling a party named Pink, about sumpin mighty comical that's come up Sad'day night whereupon Pink will be moved to recall a few social reminiscences of his own.

Convention Invocations

A LTHOUGH a southerner—however, not working at the trade as steadily as some-I have to snicker when a Democratic senator walks out on his own convention because a colored preacher asks the divine blessing on its deliberations. Which reminds me:

The first time that great Texan, Jim Hogg, ran for the governorship his party split. The bolters joined with the Republican outfit-mostly black-to put up a fusion ticket. At this pinto convention, the Rev. 'Sin Killer' Griffin, a famous black' evangelist, delivered the invocation. In concluding, he threw an unexpected bombshell into the piebald ranks by earnestly urging the Lord to Put Hogg in the governor's

A Charming Sports Frock

Trim modish raglan shoulders no sleeves to set in, make this attractive dress easily fashioned by even an amateur sewer. And the neckline is extremely flattering and youthful. Equally lovely for office wear or busy shoppers, it answers perfectly, too, for general daytime functions.

You'll appreciate the two roomy pockets, and the back yoke will enable you to "bear your burdens' lightly. Try making it in tub silk, shantung, printed crepe or linen. Whichever fabric you choose gives a silhouette that is universally flattering and a touch of sophistication.

Newspaper men should be glad to Judge Newton P. Willis. Ennis C. put their considerable influence behind the movement of the Association of Teachers of Journalism in opposition to the indiscriminate offering of inadequate "journalism courses" by high schools and minor colleges.
