Rev. E. R. Jones Writes About Good Old Days

McLean, N. M., March 6.
By T. A. Landers, Editor,
McLean, Texas.

Dear Mr. Landers:

The McLean News is coming to me from each week and we enjoy reading it. While reading it this week I was able to realize that for approximately thirty years we had been reading the McLean News. We have known it under the supervision of different editors, but as best I remember the paper has been a regular visitor to readers during this period of time. On March 13, 1907, we moved to McLean. At that time it was made of one concrete block building and the rest were frame buildings scattered about on different blocks and with them all it made a very small town of three or four hundred people. I wish to say here that Rev. W. A. Win was the first preacher I ever heard in Texas. At that time he was holding services part time in the Methodist Church. Bro. Harris was pastor of the Methodist Church. Thirty years ago the public well was located in the center of the town, where the red and green light w hangs. A cistern nearby with a pump made it possible for us to get water at any time, which was used for several blocks to the different homes. Later many homes in town had their own wells until they were put in the waterworks. At that time McLean did not have an open road out of town. At the end of the town section were gates which would let you out into trails leading through other gates. Over let-downs until you got to your desired place. Often the roads would be changed after heavy rains; old ones would be washed out. Bench racks were established at different parts of town for the teams, when our men came in horseback, dropped their reins and those horses would stand all day waiting for the rider to return. It is hard to tell the younger people others who did not know them, those men who rode in on those horses. They were not men to be feared or dreaded. They were courteous, honest men, as a rule. We did not need to take in locks or lock store doors from those; they were men who could rope the wildest steer or ride the worst of us. Thirty years has made a change of those old timers, both men and women, have passed on out of life. Others have moved to other parts, some are here yet, enjoying the coming of new citizens with modern, progressive programs have brought about developments in the old western town into a town with modern conveniences and a good place to live. I can't wonder what you see in your care about, but to me, it's my town. I try to appreciate it as you very truly.

S. R. JONES.

AMATEUR NIGHT IS ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

The "Amateur Night" sponsored by the P. T. A. last Friday was a very enjoyable affair.

First prize was won by the 7A-1 class with their "television" skit at the Mallow-Murdock wedding.

Second place was won by the junior class of the high school who presented Jesse Dean Cobb and R. L. Floyd in an instrumental duet.

A tap routine by Jo Ann Campbell won third place.

Some 19 numbers were entered, and the judges stated on their official ballot that "We wanted to place No. 4 first, but public opinion is against us." No. 4 was a bubble dance put on by Attorney Thurman Adkins for the chamber of commerce.

W. W. Boyd, in charge of the gong, only had to use it on one number, the Lions Club stunt getting the roog. Mr. Boyd also announced the comedy to be presented by the junior class and pep squad on March 26.

Mrs. Dewey Campbell was in charge of the entries, and there was variety of talent enough to please all.

Pioneer Club Honors Husbands at Dinner

A St. Patrick's Day dinner given by members of the Pioneer Study Club honoring their husbands, was an outstanding social event of last week.

Members and their guests gathered at the Methodist Church basement where a lovely banquet table was spread. The centerpiece was a wishing well flanked by lakes of Killarney surrounded by moss cobbles and shamrocks. The place cards of Irish design were found, and each guest then drew a wish from the well.

As all present joined in singing "Wearing of the Green," favors of Irish hats and ties were given to all and much merriment took place as the green was worn.

The dinner was an Irishman's treat consisting of corned beef and cabbage, baked potatoes, Erin salad, shamrock rolls, pickles, coconut custard and coffee. Irish songs were sung in unison between courses.

The program was strictly Irish. Mrs. Goff sang "Danny Boy" with Mrs. Boyett at the piano. Mrs. Adkins gave a humorous number, "localizing" her characters. A quartet consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Greene, Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Shelburne, with Mrs. Shelburne at the piano, sang "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen."

Mrs. Black read, in costume, "The Maid at the Country Club," which was heartily applauded. Mrs. W. E. Bogan welcomed the guests and closed the program.

Wise and Otherwise

THE POWER OF A LIE

A certain famous preacher when preaching one Sunday in the summer time observed that many among the congregation were drowsing. Suddenly, then, he paused, and afterward continued in a loud voice, relating an incident that had no connection whatever with the sermon. This was to the following effect: "I was once riding along a country road. I came to the house of a farmer and halted to observe one of the most remarkable sights I have ever seen. There was a sow with a litter of ten little pigs. The sow and each of her offspring had a long curved horn growing out of the forehead between the ears." The clergyman again paused and ran his eye over the congregation. Everybody was now wide awake. He thereupon remarked: "Behold, how strange! A few minutes since, when I was telling you the truth, you went to sleep. But now when you heard a whooping lie, you are all wide awake."

NOT THAT KIND OF DAWG

On one occasion the minister delivered a sermon of but 10 minutes' duration—a most unusual thing for him. Upon the conclusion of his remarks he added: "I regret to inform you, brethren, that my dog, who appears to be inordinately fond of paper, this morning ate that portion of my sermon that I have not delivered. Let us pray." After the service the clergyman was met at the door by a man who as a rule attended divine services in another parish. Shaking the good man by the hand, he said: "Doctor, I should like to know whether that dawg of yours has any pups. If it has, I want to get one to give to my minister."

FOR THE LAND'S SAKE!

A political office in a small New Hampshire town was vacant. The office paid $250 a year and there was keen competition for it. One of the candidates, Ezekiel Hicks, was a shrewd old fellow and a neat campaign fund was turned over to him. To the astonishment of all, however, he was defeated. "I can't account for it," said one of the leaders of Hicks' party, gloomily. "With all that money we should have won. How did you lay it out, Ezekiel?" "Well," said Ezekiel slowly, milking his chin whiskers, "ye see the office only pays $250 a year salary; an' I didn't see no sense in paying $500 out to git the office, so I bought a little truck farm instead."

DEAD LOSS

"Have you ever made a serious mistake in treating a patient?" asked the friend of the famous surgeon. "Never but once," replied the surgeon. "Was it fatal?" "Almost. I charged a man $75 for an operation, and I found out later that he had $200."

TWO MORE HEADS LOST

Uncle Josh was comfortably lighting his pipe in the living room one evening when Aunt Maria glanced up from her knitting. "Josh," she remarked, "do you know that next Sunday will be the 25th anniversary of our wedding?" "You don't say so, Maria!" responded Uncle Josh, pulling vigorously on his corncob pipe. "What about it?" "Nothing," answered Aunt Maria, "only I thought we ought to kid them two Rhode Island Red chickens." "But, Maria," demanded Uncle Josh, "how can you blame them two Rhode Island Reds for what happened 25 years ago?"

NOT HIS FAULT

"Rastus," said the white man who delighted to give advice to the colored men of the community, "you can't prosper, if you keep all sorts of hours. I know you go to dances and lodge meetings all of the time, and keep up all hours of the night. Now, I go to bed at sundown, and rise at dawn. You'll never make a success of things, till you go to bed with the chickens." "Yassir, dat's so. An' I'm willing to go to bed wid de chickens, any night in de week; it's de white folks ar owns de chickens ain't sufficiently trustful."

TRUE TO FORM

"How much is that rat poison?" asked the customer. "That AAA poison costs you 75c." "Haven't you got any cheaper?" asked the customer. "Yes, here's a pretty good poison, the OCC brand, that I can recommend for 50c." "Anything still cheaper that you can recommend?" "Well," said the druggist, "here is our WPA brand that will not kill them, but it will make them so lazy that you can stomp them."

WHY, OF COURSE

"Now, children," said the visitor minister who had been asked to question the Sunday school, "with what did Samson arm himself to fight against the Philistines?" None of the children could tell him. "Oh, yes, you know!" he said, and to help them he tapped his jaw with one finger. "What is this?" he asked. This jogged their memories, and the class cried in chorus: "The jawbone of an ass!"

LET ME FEEL YOUR PULSE

"Nothing the matter with you at all," gruffly spoke the physician. "You are in perfect health. Why your pulse is as steady as clockwork." "But doctor," whined the patient, "you've got your fingers on my wrist watch."

FOOLS LIKE ME

I think that I shall never see A billboard lovely as a tree. Perhaps, unless the billboards fall, I'll never see a tree at all.

DON'T LOOK FOR THIS IN THE GOOD BOOK

The negro preacher had successfully concealed the fact that he had served a term in prison, but long years of upright living had not destroyed his fear of exposure. One Sunday on rising to begin his sermon, his heart sank on seeing in one of the front rows a former cell-mate. Quick thinking was necessary. Turning the Bible around a couple of times to gain time, he fixed his eyes on the stranger and delivered himself slowly and impressively as follows: "Ah takes mah text dis mawnin' from de sixty-fifth chapter an' de fy' hundulth v'ise ob de Gospel w' Saint John, which says, 'Dem as sees me an' knows me, an' says nothin' dem will Ah see later.'"

SOMETHING IN THAT

A strapping negro woman was brought before the juvenile court at Knoxville, charged with unmercifully beating her boy, a saddle-colored imp. "I don't understand," said the judge sadly, "how a mother can have the heart to beat her own child so cruelly." "Jedge, I wants to ax yo' a question. Is you ever been de mother ob a wuthless culud boy, like dat pesky cub ob mine?" "Good gracious, no! Never!" The judge grew suddenly red in the face as the audience snickered. "Den don't yo' talk; you don't know nothin' about it!"

IF IT DOES

Wilkins—You hair will be gray if it keeps on.
Watson—If it only keeps on, I don't care what color it becomes.

THE FICKLE SEX

"Men is so fickle," mourned Miss Miami Brown. "You can't trust 'em an' not. Dey goes back on you an' de slightest prevarication." "What's been happenin' now?" asked Miss Alicia Jefferson Thompson, her lifelong confidante. "It's dat no-account Rastus Pinkham, Licia. He come round t'ryin' to kiss me, an' so as not to seem too willin' I give him a little one wid a flaire—an' for dat he is gone an' gitted me."

GRACIOUS YES!

A stranger entered the church in the middle of the sermon and seated himself in the back pew. After a while he began to fidget. Learning over to a white-haired man at his side, evidently an old member of the congregation, he whispered: "How long has he been preaching?" "Thirty or forty years, I think," the old man answered. "I'll stay, then," decided the stranger. "He must be nearly done."

HELL BENT

The deacon had been dead a week. A parishioner, meeting the parson of his church on the street one day, inquired: "When do you expect to see Deacon Jones again?" "Never, never again!" the minister declared solemnly. "The deacon is in heaven."

The reason that ad valorem taxes no longer swing the big part of governmental cost is that the cost has far exceeded former figures. A labyrinth of new departments, new bureaus, and new state activities has greatly increased the cost of government.—Texas Tax Journal

DEPUTY STATE SUPT. VISITS McLEAN SCHOOL

Deputy State Supt. Gunstream visited the high school on Thursday, March 4. A special assembly was called to enable him to hear the high school band give a short concert. Mr. Leeds directed the band in three beautifully played numbers, including two marches and a medley.

Mr. Gunstream made a short but interesting talk. His pleasing personality and natural wit enabled him to please his listeners.

County Supt. Weathered accompanied Mr. Gunstream and introduced him to the student body.

The honor roll for the first six weeks of the semester was announced by Supt. Crier.

Jesse Dean Cobb and R. L. Floyd presented the junior number in the amateur contest last Friday night and won second place for their class. The prize was $2.00.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTERS CONTEST

The high school entered several numbers in the P. T. A. amateur contest on last Friday evening. The seniors presented in a beautiful setting a campfire singing group of cowboys. The juniors presented an instrumental duet. The sophomores presented some popular songs with action, accompanied by Frank Wharton. The freshmen presented a negro stunt. The pep squad presented some popular songs and two readings. The Future Homemakers presented the wedding of Mr. Homer Economics to Miss Aggie Culture.

A radio has been added to the clothing laboratory, and the girls are trying a new experiment. The purpose of this experiment is to see whether or not the girls will work faster when there is rhythm in the air.

SENIOR BUSINESS

The senior class of 1935 was the first class of McLean high school to go to Carlsbad. As the senior class of '37 has been different in all other activities, they debated on going to some other place, but as they are only allowed to miss school one day, they decided to go to Carlsbad, too. They will leave Friday, April 30, and be back with you again late Sunday afternoon.

With assistance from Miss Kennedy, Miss Truitt and Miss Cousins, the seniors elected "A College Town" as their play of the year. The play is highly recommended and will be given in the latter part of April. Miss Kennedy and Miss Cousins acted as judges in selecting the cast.

INTERESTING PERSONS

Hershel McCarty was born in McLean, July 5, 1918. He is noted for playing the important position of center on the Tiger football team. He played on the team four years, was captain one of those four, and acted as junior coach this year. He is generally known as "Puff." His hobby is sleeping and his ambition is to sing in grand opera. He has a good chance to realize this ambition, because he is one swell crooner. Next year "Puff" plans to attend either Texas or Tulsa University.

Ramah Lou Rippy was born in Branson, Colo., June 9, 1920. She, like the above mentioned "Puff," has red hair. It seems that they both have theatrical ambitions, for Ramah Lou aspires to be a tap dancer. Her hobby is collecting souvenirs. (You should see some of the things she brought back from Abilene last year). For all these sixteen years she has been sauntering through life with the very uncommon nickname of "Red" attached to her. She has attended schools at Heald, Electra and McLean. Next year she plans to attend business college in Oklahoma City.

SHERLOCK SNOOPINGS

Well, guess who I saw for the first time Sunday night. I think the lady's name was Mrs. Murdock.

Why was Harold Rickard so mad Sunday afternoon? Really is it not a good thing that the Kemper boys only have a furlough about three times a year?

Somebody remarked that Paris must have been out of town Sunday afternoon, because he, she, or it did not see him driving anybody new around.

Did you notice how well Ruth and Naomi did their parts in the sophomore amateur skit last Friday night? It takes practice to be that good.

The other day Miss Kennedy asked Stanton Gardner where Eula Fay was. Stanton said, "She was out at the band hall a little while ago."

"Is she enroute?" asked Miss Kennedy.

"I don't know whether she is in that or not, but she's coming," was the bright reply.

Jim Fielding, one of the "lost generation" who had left college in the depression and is unable to find a job, arrives at Glendale to visit his friends the MacPhersons...

"What in thunder is this?" Mr. Vaughn asked testily. Jim glanced up attentively, but made no reply. Mr. Vaughn read from the sheet of stationery in his hand— "Darling, running to retrieve it, flushed and bright-eyed, her hair curling about her temples from under a band of yellow ribbon. "Here's the ball," Jim said briefly. "Thank you." She lingered for a moment, breathing rapidly, smoothing the damp curls back from her forehead with the palm of her hand...

vegetables, lightly, gracefully, her chin tauntingly tilted. Benedictine! Lynn Fontanne!— Cecily, obviously, was not unob-serving. But how had she made such revealing discoveries? The riding breeches, the telegrams, the songs he whistled—no black magic in her possession of those facts. Benedictine! Lynn Fontanne? Jim puzzled over the possible source of Cecily's information. The intriguing question was never far from his thoughts. How could she have known that he was addicted to the "New Yorker," that Conrad was his favorite author?

"Here's a Picture of That Actress You Were Talking About."

The actress was Lynn Fontanne. "When did I speak of her?" Jim asked, frankly puzzled. Mrs. MacPherson supplied the information. "One day when I was talking about Miss Cecily," she said. "Don't you remember? You said she walked like this actress, or moved her hands or something?" Jim remembered. He remembered, also, that he had observed to Mrs. MacPherson that Cecily's eyes were the color of benedictine. The observation had been jokingly made in the light of a great discovery. He'd thought they were sherry-colored.

Supreme Court Packing Controversy Increases

WITH only four votes in the negative, the senate passed the Summers house bill for voluntary retirement of Supreme court justices at the age of seventy on full pay. The four who opposed the measure to the last were Bridges of New Hampshire, Bulow of South Dakota, Johnson of California and Moore of New Jersey. During the debate Senator Johnson declared that "a Supreme court justice who would retire at this particular time, by virtue of the bait that was held out to him, would not be the sort of individual for whom I would have the greatest respect."

The retirement bill was favored by the President but, as Senator Fat McCarren said, was not a part of Mr. Roosevelt's bill for enlargement of the court. The controversy over the latter measure grew more bitter day by day and to the surprise of the administration, it was found that it was likely to be defeated in the house. Therefore the majority leaders decided to let the senate act first. In that body the decision rested with some twenty-five senators who had not yet announced their position.

Mr. Roosevelt forced firm in his determination to force the bill through congress, and announced he would deliver a radio speech in its defense on March 9, the day before the one set for the start of senate judiciary committee hearings on the bill. The President denied a report that he would make a tour of the country in behalf of his plan.

Senator George of Georgia, Democrat, stepped into the fight with an assertion that the Supreme court enlargement proposal is a repudiation of the party's 1936 platform pledge that it would seek a clarifying constitutional amendment if it could not attain its social-economic welfare program by legislation.

In defense of the measure various members of the cabinet and heads of federal agencies began a speaking campaign.

Vidal Quits as Head of Air Commerce Bureau

EUGENE VIDAL has resigned as director of the federal air commerce bureau and says he will re-enter private aviation. His conduct of the bureau has been subjected to much criticism at times and a committee headed by Senator Cope land of New York has recommended the reorganization of the bureau. Recently the bureau and representatives of the air transport industry have differed sharply over causes of the series of major air crashes.

Vidal's successor is Prof. Fred D. Fagg of Northwestern University law school. He became associated with aviation during the war when he served as a second lieutenant with the ninety-second aero squadron in France. After the war he returned to the United States and specialized in air law. His assistant in the bureau will be Maj. R. W. Schroeder, also of Chicago.

Hughes and Jean Batten Get Harmon Awards

THE International League of Aviators announced in Paris that Howard Hughes, the wealthy American speed flier, and Miss Jean Batten of New Zealand had been awarded the Harmon trophies as the outstanding man and woman in aviation for 1936. Hughes' landplane records in flights across the United States won the honor for him, and Miss Batten was rewarded for her spectacular solo flight across the south Atlantic.

The league awarded the special Harmon hero medal to Jean Mermoz, French airmail pilot who disappeared with his crew after making twenty-four crossings of the south Atlantic, carrying mail to South America.

Ernst Lehmann, chief pilot of Germany's ocean-flying Zeppelins, was voted the world champion dirigible pilot, and Ernst Demuyter, Belgian, world champion for spherical aircraft.

Louise Thaden was voted the outstanding woman flier in the United States, and it was announced that President Roosevelt would present trophies to her and Hughes.

Farm Experts Approve AAA as Co-ordinator

THREE specialists in agricultural economics have been studying the modified Agricultural Adjustment Administration as it has operated in relation to such important products as wheat, cotton, hogs and tobacco and their report, published by the Brookings institute, says it is a desirable addition to the nation's economic institutions.

The report concludes that a permanent adjustment agency should prove useful as a central co-ordinating body, or board of strategy, for an occupational group composed of small and loosely organized operating units such as in agriculture. It recommends the continuance of the federal agency in order to assist farmers in adjusting their industry to changing technical and commercial conditions and to cushion the shock of disasters such as drought and flood.

As for crop insurance, the belief is expressed that a system of all-risk insurance under government sponsorship would prove financially sound and beneficial to farmers if premiums and indemnities could be kept on a true actuarial basis. It insists, however, that crop insurance should not be mixed up with the ever normal granary proposal.

To the whole ever normal granary idea in general the Brookings report is unfavorable.

"Peace Before Colonies," Eden Tells Ribbentrop

JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP, German ambassador to London, had a heart-to-heart talk with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden about Germany's desire to get back some of her lost colonies, and was told plainly that as present British public opinion was against such restoration.

Moreover, Eden said, the question was not one for Britain and Germany to settle alone but could only be dealt with by the League of Nations.

According to informed sources, the foreign secretary then went on to declare that before Great Britain even could consider returning the reich's colonies or yielding League of Nations mandates over former German overseas possessions, the security of Europe must be established by a general accord.

Eden said the question of raw materials for Germany was one in which all the great powers who had control of principal raw materials were interested. In this connection, he said that while the league should settle the colonial matter, he could envisage an alternative method of approach through diplomatic channels.

President Asks State Soil Conservation Laws

IN IDENTICAL letters to the governors of the 48 states President Roosevelt called on the state legislatures to enact soil conservation laws which would supplement the federal measures designed to lessen the ravages of floods and dust storms.

Along with his letter the President sent the governors a copy of a model soil conservation bill prepared by the Department of Agriculture. This provides for the organization of soil conservation districts to carry on erosion control projects with federal aid and regulations for use of land.

According to the plan the suggested state laws would have no bearing on federal soil conservation benefits, but enactment of state laws would be necessary before a state could receive any federal conservation funds.

Panama Canal Tolls Rate Revision Is Proposed

ABOLITION of the dual system of measurement of vessels passing through the Panama canal was asked by the President in a special message to congress, in accord with a report of an advisory committee. Nothing definite was said about raising the revenue of the canal.

The War department recently assailed the present dual system of collecting tolls as permitting inequalities, manipulations, and endless reductions in charges, resulting in losses to the United States and unfair advantages to shipping interests. At present the canal, a $46 1/2 million dollar investment, is losing almost a million dollars a year.

Manufacturers and other shippers of the Middle West have long maintained that the Panama canal toll charges are so low that the effect is to subsidize shippers of the East and West because it is cheaper to ship by water from either coast than by rail from the Middle West. The middle westerners have urged that the rates be raised to give them equal footing with seaboard competitors and also to give promise of amortizing the canal investment.

Ex-Navy Officer Sentenced to Prison as a Spy

JOHN S. FARNSWORTH, former lieutenant commander in the United States navy, who had pleaded guilty to charges of conspiring to sell naval secrets to Japan, was sentenced by Justice Proctor in the District of Columbia court to serve from four to twelve years in prison.

Congress Gets Billion Dollar Housing Bill

SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER of New York and Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama introduced simultaneously in the senate and house the bill setting up a program for the construction of homes for "families of low income."

Under the measure the government may lend to state or local housing authorities $1,000,000,000, from July 1, 1937, to July 1, 1941, the money for this purpose to be raised by bond issues and the loans to be supervised by a new department, the United States Housing authority. To supplement the loans congress is asked to appropriate $50,000,000 to be paid in outright grants. The loans are to bear interest at not less than the going federal rate and are to be payable over such a period, not to exceed 60 years, as the authority may determine.

The four year program calls for the construction of 375,000 family dwelling units at an average cost of $4,000 a unit. Wagner and Steagall insisted that the bill called for "decentralization."

News of the Strikes, Sit-Down and Otherwise

HAVING virtually countenanced the sit-down strike in the case of the General Motors controversy, the administration found itself embarrassed by that favorite maneuver of John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Out in Monica, Calif., about 200 employees of the Douglas Aircraft corporation went on strike and "sat down" in the big plant, completely stopping work on $24,000,000 worth of airplanes the company is building for the government.

Finally the strikers were indicted for conspiring to violate two old California laws against forcible entry and trespassing, and when 300 armed deputies appeared at the plant, they surrendered and were taken to Los Angeles for arraignment.

Another big government job was halted for a time by a sit-down strike of employees of the Electric Boat company at Groton, Conn., which is building submarines for the navy. There, however, the local and state police soon evicted the trespassers and arrested them, and the rest of the employees, a large majority, resumed work.

Sit-down strikers in the plant of the Finsteel Metallurgical corporation at North Chicago, Ill., who defied court eviction orders, were routed by a force of deputies and police armed with tear gas guns, and were arrested for contempt of court. Also taken into custody were the strike leader, Max Adelman, who had fled to Wisconsin. The strikers and their friends insisted they would prevent the reopening of the plant by strong picket lines and the corporation obtained an injunction against such procedure. The sheriff said he was prepared to deal with any act of violence. This is another C. I. O. strike, and Governor Horner of Illinois gained no glory in his efforts to settle it.

Among the many strikes in the Detroit district was one of 150 employees, mostly girls, of the largest Woolworth store in Detroit. They planned to extend the strike to all other units of the company there, meanwhile keeping the big store closed by the sit-down method.

Japan had two strikes that at a distance seemed amusing. A large number of geisha girls struck for collective bargaining and "sat-down" in a temple on top of a mountain. Then the merchant marine officers employed by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, largest Japanese shipping company, struck because, when the emperor was reviewing the fleet last October, the company did not order the raising of the national flag on all its vessels. This, said the officers, was an insult to the emperor and the nation, and they demanded an apology.

Start of Bonneville Power Sale Asked by Roosevelt

OPEN warfare by the government on private power interests will be started soon if the recommendations of President Roosevelt to congressional leaders are acted upon favorably. In letters to Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead, the President urged that prompt action be taken to provide for the sale of electric power from the $51,000,000 Bonneville project on the Columbia river in Oregon; and he intimated this might be taken as the forerunner of a national power policy. The recommendations were in accord with a report from the committee on national power policy and also with the position Mr. Roosevelt took in the controversy with Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chairman, who favored co-operation with existing power companies and consideration for their investment.

Hello Everybody

"Business Card"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

IT WAS just a business card—a square of pasteboard with a Spanish sounding name printed on it. But it gave Nat Schwartz some of the most terrible moments of his life. Nat lives in Brooklyn, N. Y. His business is flying, and here's how he got hold of that card.

On the eighteenth of April, 1935, Nat flew to Cuba on business. Three days later he flew back and landed his plane at Miami, Fla. The next day, while he was going over his ship a man who was out at the field taking flying instruction came up to him and said:

"I hear you were over to Havana with your plane. Did you have any trouble getting in or out of the country?"

Cuba Was Having a Revolution.

It was a natural enough question, for a revolution was going on in Cuba at the time. Nat discussed the question with his questioner, who said his name was Delgado. When the conversation was ended, Delgado gave Nat his card. Nat stuck it in a pocket with his other papers and forgot about it. But he was to remember it again—not quite a month later.

On May 4, Nat had to fly to Cuba again. He had to go in a hurry this time, so he didn't go through the formality of getting clearance papers. "I thought that if I got caught without them," he says, "I would probably have to pay with a small fine. But little did I know what lay ahead of me then."

Nat landed at Key West and refueled. It was too late to get weather reports, so he had to take a chance on the trip across. His compass and charts showed that he was headed straight for Havana, but when he reached the Cuban Coast he found he had been blown forty-odd miles off his course, and he landed near a town called Hershey. He was running short of gas and thought he'd better land as soon as he had a chance. He saw a likely looking spot, and set the plane down.

"And then," Nat says, "the fun began." His plane had no sooner hit the ground than it was surrounded by the RURALES—the Cuban version of our State Police. Nat says he never saw so many rurales together in one place in his life. It looked as if the whole Cuban army had come out to meet him. HE NEVER SAW SO MANY GUNS IN HIS LIFE, either—and most of them seemed to be pointed straight at the little pocket in the left side of his flying jacket.

Thought It Was Guetterras' Plane.

It seemed as if they were making an awful fuss about one plane landing for lack of gas. Nat had half a notion to give her the plane try to take off again. But another look at those guns convinced him that he'd be riddled before the plane could leave the ground. He shut off his motor and gave himself up.

The rurales took Nat to a nearby town and brought him before their commandante. Then Nat began learning things. It didn't look so good for him. A revolutionist by the name of Dr. Antonio Guetterras was located nearby at Matanzas with a flock of his rebels, and the Federal forces were on the watch for him. Guetterras was supposed to have three hundred thousand dollars collected as ransom for a kidnaped landowner and the Federales suspected that he would try to get out of Cuba with the money. They had a hunch he'd try to sneak out on a plane and—well—here was a plane. More than likely it had come to take away Guetterras.

And to top it all, Nat had no papers to show what his business was in Cuba. It might take weeks for him to establish his identity and get him out of that scrape.

But still Nat didn't know the worst of it—didn't know that he might never get out of that scrape alive.

They Found Delgado's Card.

The Commandante of the Rurales began going through Nat's papers and belongings. And suddenly he came across that business card Delgado had given him. He turned on Nat, his face red with anger. "So," he cried, "you are a rebel—and you came to get Guetterras!"

Says Nat: "You could have blown me down with a feather duster. I didn't know what he was talking about. Until a few minutes ago I wouldn't have known whether Guetterras was a fan dancer or a side dish on a Spanish menu. I insisted I was an American. They wouldn't believe me, for I am dark and look like a Cuban. Besides that, the commandante pointed out that so was Guetterras an American. He was born in Philadelphia.

"I swore I did not know him—that I did NOT come to get him in my plane. But I could have sworn until I was blue in the face for all the good it did me. I was threatened with the fifth degree—told that I would be put through the mill at the Cabannas fortress if I did not talk. And I couldn't say a word, for I was not implicated, and wouldn't have known what to say even if I'd wanted to talk. I did find out, though, why the commandante became so excited at the sight of Delgado's card. Delgado was GUETTERRAS' AGENT IN THE UNITED STATES!"

It Looked Very Bad for Nat.

They put Nat in jail. It looked mighty bad for him. Caught in Cuba without clearance papers. Caught in a neighborhood where a plane was expected to land to smuggle out a rebel whose pockets were full of kidnap money. Found with the card of that same rebel's agent on his person. Why the evidence was so dead against him that Nat doubted if even the United States consul would intervene to save his life. For three days Nat lay in jail with his mind full of visions of the firing squad. They were shooting plenty of people in Cuba in those hectic days. But on the third day, Lady Luck came to the rescue.

On the third day, Guetterras was caught up with and killed. Then the Federales learned that he had a yacht waiting in the harbor to take him to the States—that he wasn't planning to escape by plane at all. No matter how bad the evidence against Nat looked, it just wasn't evidence at all.

They let Nat go, and he lost no time getting back to the United States again. "I never wished Guetterras any bad luck," he says, "but on the other hand I couldn't feel very bad about what happened to him. If they hadn't caught and shot him I wouldn't be sitting here writing this yarn today."

The Trocadero

The Trocadero was a palace on the chaillot slope of the right bank in Paris. It was an ugly building, a poor version of the Hispano-Moresque order—an ironic fact, since it was named to commemorate a French victory in Spain. It was built for the Paris exposition of 1879. It was torn down to make way for a new Trocadero.

No such word as "alright" is recognized in modern English usage. For a period during the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries, before the invention of printing, the form "alright" was used to some extent by English writers, but the phrase "all right" had been previously preferred and it has been regarded as the correct form ever since.

Household Questions

When blankets are to be washed for the first time they should be soaked over night in cold water and then rinsed. This is to remove the sulphur used in bleaching. After this they should be laundered until clear in a lukewarm lather made with boiled soap and water, and then rinsed well in clear water.

Using Beef Fat — Pour off the fat from the pan in which the roast of beef has been cooked. Put it in a bowl and let cool until it starts to harden. Then beat with a fork. Afterwards it may be used in place of lard.

When cream will not whip, add the white of one egg and thoroughly by chill before whipping.

Chocolate stains may be removed by washing in cold water or by soaking in boiling water in which borax or a little glycerine has been added.

One gallon of coffee will serve 25 medium sized cups. The size that would accompany a dinner after a dinner.

Dishes that have contained sugar or greasy articles should be soaked in hot water before washing.

To make lace look new, squeeze in hot, soapy water, then in cold water, and then in milk to stiffen it. Press on the wrong side with a fairly hot iron.

Wool Tailleur for an Early Easter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE calendar announces an early Easter. Supposing the weather should happen to go temperamental. Just merely supposing it should by any chance happen to cloud a bit, rain a bit, possibly send down a snowflake or so, then, oh then, comes that ever haunting "what-to-wear" question.

And the answer? A practical, ultra-modish tailored wool outfit is the logical answer if you want to be ready for rain or shine. Smartly, simply fashioned, it must be of a swanky wool weave in latest approved color with fashion-right accessories that add the final accent of chic. The illustration pictures what we are meaning to say. Perfect is this trio of "what-to-wears" for Easter or for any spring day, be it sunshiny or cloudy.

Before we describe in detail the stunning tailleur pictured we want to say a word in regard to outstanding colors for spring. We are going to talk mostly about black, navy, beige, gray and the new pastels. Many best-dressed women are selecting black cloth suits with which they plan to wear frilly lingerie blouse or neckwear, adding white doekin gloves and a white boutonniere. As to navy, it's big news for spring, navy wool twills especially for the classic suit. And there's beige! It, also, is staging a most exciting comeback. In the pastels you'll adore the new "dusty pinks," also various soft blues, "rusty" yellows and misty greens.

You will be hearing the expression "softly tailored," frequently this season because most suits have lost their mannish lines and the trend is to graceful, subtle silhouettes. Note, for example, the charming youthful suit to the right in the picture. No femininity is sacrificed. Smart in either black or navy is the lightweight wool that styles this distinctive spring model. The skirt is short and slim and the cutaway jacket buttons up to a "young" round collar. The short blouse is of white satin. The pillbox hat with jaunty quill and piquant face-veil is decidedly chic.

Pastel blue wool kasha makes the three-piece cape costume centered in the group. Capes are very important this season, emphasizing as they do the softly tailored theme. A slightly flared skirt is topped by a short-sleeved, front-buttoned jacket with body of jacket and sleeves made in one piece, stitched onto a yoke. The matching cape with fitted shoulders ties at the chin under the jacket collar.

It is to be expected that the three-piece tailored ensemble to the left be in the smart widely-exploited beige color, for as we said before beige is definitely "in" this spring. With the jacket this very lovely three-piece becomes a smart suit, just such as will fit into the Easter style program admirably. Without the jacket you have a winsome light wool dress which will come in perfectly for mild spring days. The matching beige fur is a smart detail for the fur-trimmed suit is conspicuously present in advance style displays. Note the off-face hat of Breton influence, for this is the very latest for hat and hairdress. The black doekin gloves and strap-handle bag "say it" with fashion emphasis.

SMART PLAID TWEED

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Plaid woollens for spring! You'll be "tops" in fashion if you come out in a full-length reefer coat, a picturesque cape suit, a classic jacket suit or with a short box coat of plaid woolen. It's English, it's Scotch, it's both. Due to the interest shown in the coming coronation, woollens take on a decidedly English accent this spring. The coat pictured is of imported tweed with a pattern red prominent in its coloring. The white toya hat has a grain inserts in complete red in the plaid.

GLOVES PROMINENT IN SPRING STYLES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Soft, oozy glaze kidskin, that makes the hands look long and slender, is very much in fashion now. The styles shown by Aris for formal afternoon wear are exceedingly chic and those marvelous 16-button evening gloves in glaze kid or suede reach the nth degree of extravagance.

Mokado, the superlative quality French doekin, is the supreme in that leather. It is washable, which accounts for its continued popularity. Nothing could be handsomer than a pair of six or eight button handsewn doekin gloves. The longer lengths, by the way, are smarter this season than the short, either in white, black or fetching new colors.

While the plain, classic slip-on remains most acceptable, the costume glove is more interesting and more fun to wear. Then, there are all sorts of touches, such as hand-whipping, embroidery, stitching, thong lacing and so on, that give the new gloves distinction.

Pendant Earrings
Earrings have regained prestige and since ears are sometimes covered by the coiffure this means the pendant type will be worn as well as the clip. Simple necklines add to the possibilities of earrings.

Silver Threads
The current coin of fashion is silver gleaming on crepe or satiny backgrounds. A blouse with the glitter of silver—needn't be expensive at all—will turn your suit into a five o'clock tuxedo.

Berets High in Back
Some of the new berets are high in the back and notched at the edge.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Streamlined Grandmothers.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—All along I've been wondering what has vanished from the city landscape.

I'd grown reconciled to service stations where blacksmith shops used to be and a beauty parlor where once the livery stable spread its fascinating perfumes. So it couldn't be that.

All of a sudden it dawned on me. Since coming here I've seen mighty few 1912-model grandmothers bearing in the movies, and then, with the exception of dear May Robson, they had to wear makeup.

We don't so much mind the young girl who has gone prematurely old—we're accustomed to her—but the old woman who has gone prematurely young, so young that she seems to be advertising the approach of second childhood by dressing to match it—well, that's different.

So now I know what I miss. It's the old-fashioned lady who was neither streamlined nor a four-color process.

Penalties of Old Age.
IF, MENTALLY or physically, or both, a man of seventy has so slowed down he no longer can function usefully, what are we going to do about Secretary of State Hull and Senator Roper, and Senator Glass and Senator Norris, and both California's senators, and a sizable proportion of the outstanding membership of either branch of congress?

And, to avoid cluttering up the words, so to speak, what disposition should have been made, at seventy, of Thomas A. Edison and John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and Henry Ford and Queen Victoria and Cardinal Gibbons and Von Hindenburg and Clemenceau and Professor Eliot and Carrie Chapman Catt and Mark Twain and Elihu Root and Melville W. Fuller, just to mention a few names that come to mind?

Going still further back, one gets to thinking, among others of Henry Clay and Ben Franklin and Gladstone and Bismarck and Victor Hugo and Alexander Humboldt.

Open Season on Bears.
NEW BRUNSWICK is granting free license for sportsmen to kill bears this spring. I regard this as an error. It reduces bears, which are picturesque features of forest life, and increases amateur gunners barging through the wilderness plugging away at every living object they see, including guides. A greenhorn might miss a sitting union depot—probably would—but he garners him a guide nearly every time.

On all counts, the black bear should have game protection. For every shot he steals, he eats thrice his weight in grub and ants and bugs; and he's a fine scavenger, for he likes his dead meat high. If he were a veteran member of a Maryland Duck club, he couldn't like it any higher.

Even so, he has been preyed on until, in parts of our north woods, he's practically extinct. Yet, next to a Vermont Democrat, he's probably the most inoffensive mammal found in New England.

Tyranny of the Soviets.
SEEPING through the Soviet embargo on free speech and free press and even free thought, stories came out that the five-year plan shows signs of utter collapse and also that, in their striving for absolute despotism, Stalin and his-for the moment—intimate lieutenants are preparing to "liquidate" by execution or remove by a wholesale campaign of exile all such of their recent ruthless associates as might, through private ambitions, stand in the way of this latest desperate tyranny.

Of course, we hear all sorts of tales about the real inside of the Russian situation, some inspired by hostile prejudice and some by sympathetic partisans.

Women's New Freedom.
EVEN in olden days, before they broke loose, women envied us every masculine perquisite we had, except the moustache cup and possibly chewing tobacco. Since emancipation, seems like they've taken over practically everything we ever had.

The bars are crowded with women, and the smoking rooms and the barber shops and the gambling clubs and the prize-fights and the wrestling matches and the political caucuses. If it weren't for them, the race-tracks and the night spots would languish and the cocktail mixers might get an occasional rest. Maybe, as a distinguished scientist now arises to proclaim, they could have excelled us in our then exclusive fields, only before this they didn't get a chance to prove it.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for March 14 JESUS PRAYING FOR HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT — John 16:5-7; 17:14-26.
GOLDEN TEXT — That they may be one, even as we are one. John 17:22.
PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus Prayed for His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC — Did Jesus Pray for Me?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — Jesus Praying for Us.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — Unity with God and One Another.

The assurance that someone is praying for us is an anchor in a time of storm. Many a man or woman has been on the point of giving up in despair, of yielding to temptation, and has been carried through to victory by the intercession of a godly mother or father. Just to know that someone prays for us is to find strength for the knees that have weakened and for the heart that has all but failed.

Infinitely more precious is the truth of our lesson, that the Lord Jesus himself prayed for each one of his followers. John 17:20 makes clear that while he prayed for those who were with him at the time, he also included in his petition all who since that day have come to believe on him because of their testimony.

Before entering upon his inexpressibly precious and beautiful prayer, the Lord gave to his followers a promise which was of vital importance.

I. A Promise (16:5-7).
Persecution is coming, and Jesus will not be with them to meet the trying hour. He is about to enter upon that final scene in his earthly life, which will bring it to its end in "a place called the place of a skull."

How then can he say to them that it is expedient for them that he go away? Because he will send the Comforter, the Holy Spirit. Students of the Scriptures recognize in the Holy Trinity an inscrutable mystery, but receive the teaching of the Bible concerning the ministries of the three persons in the one Godhead with glad and thankful hearts. It is a subject which cannot be entered into here, but which richly rewards careful study. Suffice it to say that while the Holy Spirit has always been active in the earth, he did enter upon a ministry of a special nature when Jesus had gone to be with the Father.

The essence of the work of the Holy Spirit is to glorify Christ (16:14), and in so doing he convicts the unbeliever of sin and guides the believer into all truth. The mark of a Spirit-filled Christian is that he permits the Spirit to glorify Christ in him and in his service for God.

II. A Prayer (17:14-26).
When one enters the sacred precincts of John 17 he feels that he has come into the holy of holies, and that he would not only lose the shoes from his feet, but also stand silent in worship and in praise. He prayed for me—for me!

Each student of this lesson will wish to enter fully upon the meaning of these words as he re-reads them, in the illumination of the Holy Spirit. May I suggest three things which Jesus sought for His children?

1. Consecration (vv. 14-16). No one is Christ's child without regeneration, but, sad to say, there are many children in his blessed household who are not obedient, not spiritually well and strong. They are in the world, they must be here, but alas too many of them want to be as much like the world as possible. He prayed that we might be kept from evil, separate from the world, kept by God even in a world that hates him and his truth.

2. Sanctification (vv. 17-21). This means to be set apart and cleansed for God's service. How is it accomplished? Through the truth. His Word is the instrument of sanctification. Little wonder that there is so little holiness of living when the Word has so little opportunity to touch and cleanse the life.

This separated life brings God's people into that unity of love—all in Christ, and he in the Father—all bound up in that "one great bundle of love."

3. Glorification (vv. 22-26). When Jesus came into the world in the flesh he voluntarily laid aside the glory which was his, and which still is his, and which he prays that we may behold. "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image" (II Cor. 3:18). Thus in beholding his glory we also may enter into his likeness.

City Versus Country
It cannot escape even a casual observer that the Bible begins with a scene in the garden to end in a city: one may be "nearer God's heart in a garden than anywhere else on earth"—but certainly "the dwelling-place of God is with men."

Giving and Taking Orders
He who will not accept orders has no right to give them; he who will not serve has no right to command; he who cannot keep silence has no right to speak.—Hubbard.

Experiences of Life—

Their Significant Interest and Some Ways to Meet Them

THE journey through life is filled with experiences from the time we are born to the day we die. Without them life would be dull and uninteresting. The more experiences are crowded into our lives the fuller and more interesting they become.

When we are in the midst of events that have elements of danger or when they are of momentous proportions with matters at stake that may be disastrous, should things turn out differently membrances of what were breathtaking events when they happened.

No Age Limit.
Since life is so full of experiences some of which turn out felicitously, and others not so satisfactorily, there must be a good reason for our having to go through the events. I remember when I was a little girl and there was something which, to me, seemed very important to decide rightly, how I envied grown-ups. They always knew just what to do! The fallacy of this assumption we all know, but we do not all appreciate how dull life would be if it were true, and how development would be retarded. There is no age limit to the series of experiences.

Learning by Experience.
The benefits of our life experiences come through our way of taking them, and on our wisdom of decisions when these require our consideration. If we think of ourselves only we become selfish, hard, and difficult. If we decide with a larger vision of results, and of the best good to others as well as to ourselves, we become fine and strong characters. By the exercise of good judgment and by making the best of things we learn to develop well by experiences.

from our wishes, the mind is too excited or too much engrossed with results to grasp anything but the immediate moment.

Reviewing Experiences.
However, on looking back over the past, we discover what thrilling times we went through, and how the experiences stand out as dramatic and of significant interest. Often we find ludicrous features entered into the experience but we had no eyes to see them at the time. We can laugh over them and actually enjoy the re-

The New Deal professors took a leaf from their algebraic in some cases—letting a letter represent an unknown quantity.

Names in the home paper mean something to your friends and neighbors. Names in the big town paper mean nothing to most of their readers.

The News is anxious to publish all the news of the community. A phone call will take care of any function you may have, or any visitor in town. A little thoughtfulness in this regard will be appreciated by the editor and your friends.

It is high time to insist that the proper men offer themselves for city and school offices. Voters should have a choice on the ticket, and the practice of writing in last minute names should cease. There is little excuse for the write-in practice, as any name may be filed as a candidate by anyone, which insures everyone having a chance to vote on the candidate.

The fact that the offices are thankless jobs should make the choice more particular, for we need men of keen business ability to oversee city and school affairs, if our community is to prosper in a financial way.

It's certainly amusing to watch some of the government agencies attempting to justify their existence by a constant stream of "publicity" stories to all the newspapers and magazines. For instance, I'm quite sure that at least one agency is firmly convinced that if and when the dust is stopped the agency will be promptly discontinued. For that reason they delight in keeping the spotlight of publicity turned on what they term the "dust bowl" and in spite of the efforts of the soil conservation service to prove that their work has resulted in saving the soil and to a certain extent stopping the dust, the other agency is having better success with its publicity, and we all remain in the dust bowl—Dalhart Texas.

"WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?"

It might be well for us to pause occasionally and ask ourselves this question.

The answer must be, it seems to us, that we are drifting as fast as tides and tide can carry us, into a sea of socialism.

Why do we say so?

Well, let us take a look at this list of legislative enactments and proposed enactments, nearly all of which were advocated by the Socialist party long before they were adopted by us Democrats.

An unemployment insurance law compelling all employers of eight or more persons to pay a federal tax to provide a fund for insurance of employees against unemployment.

An old age insurance law, compelling all employers to pay a federal tax to provide a fund out of which to pay a pension to retired employees after they reach a certain age.

Old age pensions, entirely distinct from the above, now being paid jointly by the federal and state governments to needy people over 65 years of age.

A proposed minimum wage scale for labor, to regulate by law the wages paid to labor.

A proposed maximum hour week for labor, to regulate and limit the number of hours an employee may work each week.

A proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution, which would give the federal government power to regulate and prohibit labor by all persons under 18 years of age.

The NYA set-up, whereby students throughout the country are being employed and paid out of the federal treasury for the purported purpose of enabling them to attend school.

Appropriation of federal funds thru WPA and PWA for the building of school houses, public parks, public roads, and innumerable other projects.

The maintenance of a system of so-called adult education, financed by the federal government.

The proposed establishment of a federal department of education, the head of which is to be a member of the President's cabinet.

Resettlement work, whereby the federal government undertakes to re-establish workers on farms, through the purchase of lands and the establishment of resettlement colonies, and by loans and donations to such persons.

The now outlawed AAA, whereby rental payments were made to farmers to induce them to reduce their acreage in the major farm crops.

Several different agencies through which federal funds are loaned to farmers and others.

A federal soil conservation program.

A federal water conservation program.

A nation-wide rural electrification program.

A proposed system of crop insurance, now pending in Congress.

A proposed plan to virtually fix the prices of the principal farm products.

A nation-wide housing program to be financed and carried on by the federal government.

And other projects and programs almost without number.

Most of these proposals have real merit, and we have approved and advocated many of them, not stopping to question if these activities on the part of the federal government might not be entirely outside and above the powers granted to it by the Constitution.

And suppose we adopt all of these measures, with or without amending the Constitution, it is to be supposed that we would stop there?

Hardly.

It is but a step further to the government ownership of all public utilities, government ownership of the means of transportation, government ownership of the big industries, government confiscation and redistribution or lease of all lands.

We may never go all the way, but we certainly are being swept rapidly and by a strong current toward a sea of socialism.

And possibly it is all for the best. Who knows? Possibly a purely socialistic program is necessary to solve the problems of this modern day.

The "horse and buggy" days are gone forever. Possibly we should all get on the New Deal boat and row with a current into the limitless sea of socialism.

But if so, we should first quit calling ourselves Democrats, and we should first change our Constitution to suit the new day—not junk it.—Lynn County News.

A STEP FORWARD IN HIGHWAY SAFETY

It has been a practice for drivers of trucks to "sleep on the haul," that is, to turn the wheel over to a helper and rest or sleep on a bunk on the truck, but the Department of Labor explains that the use of such a bunk or cot on the vehicle does not comply with the provision for rest and relaxation. The relief driver, moreover, is considered on duty from the moment when he boards the truck or bus, or begins to work, not from the time he takes the wheel.

The act may be difficult to enforce, but it is a step forward in the promotion of highway safety. It is the type of regulation which may depend largely for enforcement on the complaints of employees. It may be abused by unions to achieve some end entirely apart from better working conditions. Yet the disclosure of numerous instances of excessively long working hours for bus and truck operators has convinced the public that the hazard of accidents arising from fatigue has not been exaggerated.

Some drivers of passenger automobiles, keeping in mind the existence of this law affecting truck and bus drivers, may themselves guard against the hazards of fatigue on the road by curbing a tendency to drive long distances without adequate rest.—New York Sun.

GAS PRESSURE MAY CAUSE DISCOMFORT. RIGHT SIDE BEST

If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adierika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly. Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. Dr. H. L. Shubb, New York, reports "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not rest or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. The first dose of Adierika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUL, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. CARDUL, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

SCHOOL TEACHER

It seems if anyone who has never been a teacher realizes the precariousness of a teacher's job. One may be dismissed for almost anything: for spending too many week ends out of town, for not going to church, for not playing favorites with children of school board members, for holding a position coveted by some home town teacher, for being the victim of a circumstance when a new faction secures power, or for many other things that have no connection with either the rectitude or the teaching ability of the teacher. We teachers are living in hopes of a day when we may be normal human beings, just like other people, and not be forced by an indolent condition to become unhuman and eccentric.—T. E. Edmondson, in Texas Outlook.

SKETCH IN BLACK AND WHITE

A couple from Boston spent a winter in August, Georgia. During the period of their visit, they became fond of an old colored woman and invited her to visit their home at their expense. In due time after their return to Boston, the visitor was entertained. Every courtesy was extended to the old colored woman and she took her meals regularly with the host and hostess. One day at dinner, the host remarked, with a certain smug satisfaction in his own democratic hospitality: "I imagine that, during all the time you were a slave, your master never invited you to eat at his table?" "No, sah, dat he didn't," replied the old darky. "My master was a nigger man. He never let no nigger eat at table 'long side o' him."

SO HELP ME

"Bill, you were here when the man was shot?" the lawyer asked. "I wuz dere when dey started shootin' him, white man. I didn't try." The lawyer smiled. "How many jobs were fired?" "Jes' one. I heard it twice, an' I ought to know." "Heard it twice? Why, how in the world was that possible?" The negro smiled shrewdly. "I heard dat bullet fuist when it passed; an' den again when I passed it."

THE YANKEE DIPLOMAT

Alert? Why he's alert as a Providence bridegroom I heard of the other day. You know how bridegrooms starting off on their honeymoon sometimes forget all about their brides, and buy tickets only for themselves? That's what happened to the Providence young man. And when his wife said to him: "Why, Tom, you bought only one ticket!" he answered without moment's hesitation: "By Jove, you're right, dear! I'd forgotten myself entirely!"

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER

"Is there anyone present who wishes the prayers of the congregation for relative or friend?" asked the minister of the little New England church. "I do," said an angular lady arising from a rear pew. "I want the congregation to pray for my husband." "Why, sister Abigail!" replied the minister. "You have no husband as yet." "Yes, but I want you all to pitch in and pray for one for me, just the same!"

TRUE RICHES

A negro man was slowly rambling down a deserted pike road in Mississippi. His clothes were worn and patched in a hundred places, his shoes stuck out of his shoes, and his hat had holes in it like a shrimper. He was whistling a joyful Blues with a blissful smile on his face. A white man saw him pass, and called after him to stop. "Rastus, you want to make a quarter?" "Now sah, boss, than'ee. Not to y. I got a quarter."

SUMMARY REMARKS

The Yankee congressman was assigned the topic for an after dinner speech, "Honesty in Politics." When he was called upon, he arose, bowed and said: "Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: honesty in politics—there ain't no such thing."

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN

First Village—Hello, Aaron! Heard you've got married. What kind of a cash did you make? Second Village—"Well, neighbor, I can't do as well as I expected, but I got you the truth, I don't think I'll do any better."

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

A noted Eastern judge while visiting the West went to church on Sunday; which isn't so remarkable as the fact that he knew beforehand that the preacher was exceedingly tedious and long-winded to the last degree. After the service the preacher met the judge in the vestibule and said: "Well, Your Honor, how did you like the sermon?" "Oh, it was wonderful," replied the judge. "It was like the peace and mercy of God." "Oh, I scarcely hoped to achieve that," said the skyplot, much flattered. "How can you make such a comparison?" "Why, very easily," replied the magistrate. "It was like the peace of God because it passed all understanding, and like His mercy because I thought it would have endured forever."

DOWN IN TENNESSEE

The new minister drove his two-horse rig up to the mountain ranch of one of his congregation. There had been some difference of opinion as to his qualifications. At the gate he was met by a small boy of the family, who was evidently cogitating a matter of deep perplexity. "Be you our preacher?" "I am." The boy eyed the preached and then the horses, his brow puckered with growing perplexity. "That's queer," he drawled. "I hern Pap tell the neighbors you was a one-hoss preacher."

LOVE'S YOUNG NIGHTMARE

"I hear you married dat slick yaller barber las' week, Mamie." "Dat Ah did, Ida. Mo' dan dat, Ah give him all mah money—$280—to start a barber shop wid." "Whar is he now?" "I dunno. I'se just waitin' for him to come back from his honeymoon."

NOT IN HIS CALCULATIONS

A civil service examiner had hold of Erasmus Smith, a colored applicant for the position of mail carrier in Washington, D. C. Gazing sternly at the negro, he asked, "How far is it from the earth to the moon?" "Lawdy, boss, if you's gwine to put me on dat route, I don't want de job."

By now about all the guarantees given by prohibition repeals have become just so many scraps of paper. The saloons are back, drunken driving is on the increase, taverns are cashing pay-checks, police again look for brooks in tap rooms, and the "good old days" are back. The amazing increase in drinking is a natural sequence of making it easy to buy drinks. Unless the people come to their senses shortly, one may expect someone to propose as a national slogan, "A Bottle in Every Home."—Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot.

We can see little or no objection to the Summers bill recently passed by Congress and signed by the President which would permit Supreme Court judges 70 years of age or over who have served on the court for ten years to voluntarily retire on full pay. That is just and fair. There is no purpose in such a bill to force the retirement of a majority of the court in order that it may be stacked for a purpose.—Lynn County News.

"Whiskey caused my downfall"—thus spoke Roy House of Garland county, only 22 years old, as he was strapped in the electric chair at the Arkansas prison farm and electrocuted for killing an aged recluse of his home county. "Whiskey caused my downfall"—just ponder over that powerful sermon and justify, if you can, the Thorn liquor control act which restored saloons to Arkansas.—Cimway (Ark.) News.

The man who strives to educate himself—and no one else can educate him—must win a certain victory over his own nature. He must learn to smile at his dear idols, analyze his every prejudice, scrap if necessary his fondest and most consoling belief, question his pre-suppositions, and take his chances with the truth.—Everett Dean Martin.

More than three-fourths of the state's income now goes to highways and education, both of which are regarded generally as well worth their tremendous cost of nearly one hundred million dollars a year.—Texas Tax Journal.

The great end of education is, to discipline rather than to furnish the mind; to train it to the use of its own powers, rather than fill it with the accumulations of others.—Tyron Edwards.

It would take more than nineteen hundred years to spend one billion dollars at the rate of one dollar a minute.

THE RIGHT WAY

Recently a young negro was brought up in court on the old, old charge of stealing chickens. The case against him had been closed, and no testimony was forthcoming for the defendant. The judge turned to him impatiently. "Where are your witnesses, Wyatt? Haven't you any witnesses to produce in this case?" "Witnesses? Not me," came the vigorous answer. "I never takes along witnesses when I goes after chickens, Judge."

In a Vermont town where two brothers were engaged in the retail coal business, a religious revival was held and one of the brothers got converted. For weeks he tried to persuade his partner in business to join the church. One day he asked: "Why can't you get religion and join the church like I did?" "It's a fine thing for you to belong to the church," replied the other, "but if I join the church wholl weigh the coal?"

LILAC TIME

The juryman petitioned the court to be excused, saying: "I owe a man $25 that I borrowed, and as he is leaving town today for some years, I want to catch him before he gets to the train and pay him the money."

"You are excused," the judge announced in a very cold voice. "I don't want anybody on the jury who can lie like you."

Snoopin' Around

By D. A. Davis

Folks, I've got the spring fever and I'm down in the dumps. And for the next two months I'm going to be grouchy. I just can't help it. I was born and grew to manhood down in Central Texas where all nature bursts out into a glorious array of beauty and grandeur just about this time of the year. The bluebonnets and the violets, with the dogwood and sumac, the box elder, black locust with the wild plum are in full bloom. The birds of the air and the beauty of the forest are building over with their cheerful songs, chirps and whistles. The fish are leaping for joy and the frogs are croaking loudly and the beet beet are "beet" and the worms are crawling and the slugs are crawling and the snails are crawling and the quails are qualling and here I am away from here in the Panchhandle thinking of death or dust or chasing my hat all over the country because of the wild Duggone this doggone country in the spring of the year, anyhow.

There's strictly one thing I would do if I could afford it, and that is to spend ten months of the year in the Panchhandle and two months in old Central Texas or down on the coast or over in California, or just anywhere. Lord, except in West Texas during the months of March and April. I love the fine summer months, the balmy fall months and the rugged winter months just fine, but when the spring comes around I just get the jitters and count the days, hours and minutes until it's all over with.

I've never been in jail or condemned to the electric chair, but I can imagine just how I would feel if I should happen to have ten months of such an experience. I just pace the floor and look out the window and wonder what's going to happen or when the ordeal will come to an end. I can't sit down and I get that standing up. I can't eat nor sleep. I can't laugh or cry, talk or remain silent; all I can do is moan and sigh, grunt and groan until it's all over with, and when it is eventually all over I can hardly enjoy the rest of the year from thinking what I have to go through with when March and April come around again.

But folks, it's just about time to get out our spade and hoe, the rake and the plow and begin planting flowers and garden. Of course, we men know that it's no use to start for at least thirty days yet, but our wives will just keep dig-dog-dog, nagging and fussing and fussing until we do, so men, get your paraphernalia out and get busy, confound your lazy bones, and get that ground up to shape, and go to planting the garden seeds and the flower seeds, because if you don't, you won't see a single hair of heads unless you die.

And while you are doing your seeds, just as well get enough to plant all over again about the last week in April, because you dead men will have it all to do over, but just take my advice—there's no use starting any arguments, you just as well be meek and mild and courteous about it and just take your medicine like a good fellow and go right ahead just like you thought it was the most opportune time possible to do the spring planting. And you farmers, just as well get ready to go to plowing and in a week or two start plowing, because you know good and well the fever will strike you right over and although you've been up here for twenty years and you should know better, you don't, but just go ahead and plant your corn early and at the late freeze come along and kill your stuff off and then go right back and do the job all over again.

Folks, we're a most peculiar kind of human beings, anyway. I just don't see why we can't learn something to our experiences. Why are we so dumb? Why don't we use a little common sense and wait until winter is over before we start planting and plowing us here in West Texas? Just because they do it in come from East and Central Texas where they start planting and plowing in March, we still think we can start to here around the north pole at the same time, and the funny part of it is we just WON'T LEARN from experience but just go ahead in the same old rut and do the same thing over and over again and again.

Which reminds me that we're just a bunch of idiots after all. There is just about one human in every thousand that ever really does any thinking. I just happened to think of this myself, but it won't do a bit of good. So come on, folks, let's get busy and do our spring planting early.
