Shower and Program Honor the Murdocks

One of the social events of the season was the shower given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Murdock, recently married, at the basement of the First Baptist Church last Thursday evening.

The basement rooms were prettily decorated in honor of the occasion, with a soft, intimate lighting arrangement.

Mrs. Cecil G. Goff was mistress of ceremonies, paying a glowing tribute to the bride and groom in a short speech, after which she announced the program numbers consisting of the following: a piano solo by Mary Abbott, a musical reading by Vada Appling, Willie Louelle Cobb, playing the piano accompaniment.

A girls' sextet sang two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Goff at the piano. Sextet members were Misses Georgia Colebank, Dorothy Sitter, Juanita Hancock, Ermadel Floyd, Naomi Gunn and Willie Louelle Cobb. Dorothy Sitter gave a reading.

Following the program, the girls' sextet brought in a number of nice gifts, marching to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mrs. Goff, who made the presentation. The gifts were placed at the feet of the honorees, who responded with short talks of appreciation.

Refreshments of punch, wafers and cookies, with Easter favors, were served, after which the gifts were placed on the table for the admiration of those present.

The following names of individuals and organizations were taken from the gift cards, many of those being in attendance at the shower: Messrs. A. Dotson, C. H. Leeds, R. L. Appling, Reep Landers, M. H. Lasater, John Cooper, Murray Boston, Norman Johnston, Geo. Colebank, J. P. Corbin, W. H. Floyd, C. J. Magee, W. F. Wilson, Perry Roby, P. E. Stewart, D. L. Graham, R. T. Dickinson, J. A. ## FOOD PRICES DOWN

In spite of rising prices everywhere, McLean grocerymen announce low prices on many foods in this issue of the home paper.

Many subscribers say that they save the subscription price of the paper many times over during the year, from the bargains offered.

Turn to the advertising pages and note the many nice bargains offered in single food items.

Your grocer will appreciate your remembering the fact that you saw these bargains in the home paper. He will do his best to give you the most and take it.

SAFETY FIRST

National Safety Council

CLEAN-UP NECESSARY FOR FAMILY HEALTH

Austin, March 23.—The accumulation of winter's debris represents a distinct menace to the health of adults and particularly to little children, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, who urges every one to clean their houses and yards at this time. It is not only good housekeeping, but ordinary sanitary principles indicate the necessity of prompt removal of waste matter in and around the neighborhood of yards of homes, but the definite lessening of the spread of diseases, especially those affecting infants, is vitally connected with this procedure.

Flies spread typhoid fever, dysentery, diarrhea, tuberculosis, anthrax and cholera. They breed, live and feed in filth. To prevent their increase all refuse should be disposed of at once, garbage kept in covered containers, privies made sanitary, and houses screened. Every neighborhood raises its own flies, so that their number is an index to the sanitary conditions.

Mosquitoes are responsible for the spread of malaria, dengue, and yellow fever. Malaria is spread by the bite of the Anopheles or malarial mosquito. Dengue fever and yellow fever are transmitted by the Aedes Aegypti or Tiger mosquito. The best way to prevent these diseases is to destroy the breeding places of the mosquito. They breed in standing water, therefore, one should drain, ditch or fill such places, spray oil on water each week, or stock the water with surface minnows, as they will eat the wigglers. Houses should be well screened to protect against these insects. After the spring cleaning is finished, it should be kept in this condition at all times.

Reporter—Mrs. C. B. Batson.

RED CROSS TAKES CHARGE SCHOOL DISASTER

According to W. W. Boyd, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, the national organization took active charge of the New London school relief funds immediately following the disaster, and due to the generous response in the flood relief, will make no special call for funds.

However, Mr. Boyd says that many people are assisting in the relief work for the school, and the local chapter will be glad to accept any amount that local citizens may want to donate to this cause.

RICE HAS OLD PICTURE

C. S. Rice showed the News editor an old picture Wednesday that was taken in McLean about 30 years ago, showing a melon shipping scene at the loading dock at the depot.

A wagon loaded with crated cantaloupes, with J. R. Phillips holding the reins, is in the picture, and a lot of watermelons are stacked on the dock.

R. S. Jordan is in the picture. He was inspector for the Farmers Co-operative Melon Association, and W. C. Phillips was also standing in.

There are a lot of people in the picture that might be recognized by old timers.

McLean in an early day was a recognized melon shipping center, one year shipping over 400 carloads of watermelons alone.

Peb Everett made a business trip to Pampa the first of the week.

L. S. Tinnin was in Pampa the first of the week.

Ed Turner of Alanreed was in McLean Friday.

DISASTER PICTURES IN THIS WEEK'S ISSUE

Expedited service permits The News to give its readers in today's issue pictures of the New London school explosion late last week, which snuffed out the lives of more than 425 school children and teachers.

This tragedy is the most disastrous in many years and we are pleased to be able to furnish these graphic pictures for you.

A special corps of photographers was moved to the scene immediately—the pictures in today's issue are the result of their work—giving you a vivid birdseye view of the catastrophe.

Lions Carnival Pleases Large Crowds Here

The Lions carnival staged by the local club and the McLean schools, under the efficient management of W. K. Wharton, director general, pleased large crowds Friday and Saturday.

The carnival was held in the building formerly occupied by the Leader Store, on South Main Street.

In making a financial statement to the club Tuesday, Secretary Holloway stated that the total receipts were $299.46, with expenses of $106.04. One-fourth of the profit went to the schools to pay interscholastic League expenses, the remainder going into the club treasury.

In commenting on the success of the carnival, Boss Lion Batson said that it was understood that the proceeds were in the nature of a donation, and that the club will use the money as all club money is used, for the benefit of the community. President Batson pointed out the work of the club in underprivileged children, the buying of glasses, and the many civic improvements sponsored by the club.

Many expressions of appreciation for the splendid cooperation given by the public were heard.

SEWING CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. RICE

The 1934 Sewing Club met with Mrs. S. W. Rice last Friday for a pot luck luncheon and quilting.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

They Have Gone On

the hill, cold and gray.
long procession is making its battered bodies, bruised and wracked, over four hundred to never come back.
Quick was their exit from this temporary world.
Like a crash at midnight, in one big swirl;
With never a warning or word of farewell.
Those teachers and children met fate
in its quell.
Such was the horror, indescribable
scene.
Like a mad nightmare that comes in
a dream;
Like a flash of lightning with thundercloud black.
Came the catastrophe with death in its track.
What of the records, the grades they made?
What of the fees, are they all paid?
What of the souls at Eternity's bar?
Do they have "permits" to the gate
that's ajar?
Are they prepared for that kingdom
on high?
Were they all ready when time came to die?
Is heaven made fairer by taking them
in.
Away from all sorrow, away from all sin?
The fathers and mothers left in such and distress
Must take their burdens to the One who knows best;
Our heavenly Father doeth all things
well.
He knows our sorrows, He hears the death knell.
Take hope for the future, be ready to go
When time comes to depart from this world below;
May God's richest blessings abide with you all Till you meet with your loved ones at heaven's great call.

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuby
Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Vol. 4 No. 8
Text: "The blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us
from all sin." - 1 John 1:7

THE PRICE OF REDEMPTION

Tomorrow is Good Friday. In modern English the term would read:
God's Friday. The Christians on that day commemorate the death of Jesus Christ, true God and true man, the Savior and Redeemer of the whole world. Jesus was not a mere man.
But the true God Who came into the world in the form of a true man to redeem fallen mankind from the curse of the law and from eternal damnation. About noon on Good Friday, Jesus gave up His last breath on the altar of the cruel and shameful cross for us - that we might live peacefully with Him in His spiritual kingdom.
The price of our redemption was very high. We could not be purchased with silver or gold, corruptible things, but with something beyond all price - the blood of Jesus Christ. We learn of this in the Holy Bible where we read: "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold... but with the precious blood of Christ, as a lamb without blemish and without spot." (1 Peter 1:18, 19). St. Paul also informs us: "In Whom we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace." (Eph. 1:7).
Without the shedding of blood
there would have been no remission of sins. This we learn from the New Testament: "Without shedding of blood is no remission." (Hebrews 9:22). Scripture also teaches us that "The blood of Jesus Christ His (God's) Son cleanseth us from all sin." (1 John 1:7).
Some people point at the Christians and say they teach a "bloody" Gospel. How else can such expect to be saved? Who are we to be?

Jesus how He was to save the world? and at Lefors with her sister, Mrs.
Man had sinned. God's justice had Seago.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Cunningham of Quail spent the week end with relatives in this community.
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Johnson and daughter of Elk City, Okla. visited
Mr. and Mrs. Buster Stokes Sunday.
They were accompanied by Miss Faye Carroll, who visited home folks
north of McLean.
Mrs. Howard Hardin gave a birth-

It is impossible to accomplish much good under a false leader

Old Aesop had a fable for it long ago. The fox who got his tail burned off could not wait until he had persuaded all his brothers to have their caudal appendages removed. The same thing is true today; most of us want everyone else to believe just as we do, forgetting the fact that we all have just as much right to disagree on any question as we have to agree.

More and more people are taking up gardening each year as a hobby. Many other hobbies are of a transient nature, but once one takes up gardening he is a gardener for life, and many of the new plant introductions are introduced by amateur gardeners. Most large cities have business men's garden clubs with their weekly luncheons. There is no more healthful or more pleasant hobby to be had anywhere.

Lawmakers do foolish things sometimes. Right now the legislature is considering prohibiting dentists from advertising. Such tactics date back to the Indian medicine man who profited from the ignorance of his patients. Some of the professions have made great strides but could make much greater with the assistance of a trained advertising man. And it might be stated that the advertising profession is just as ethical and as needful as any other profession in the world today.

The newspaper is the mirror of the town, and a paper well filled with advertisements and news makes a good impression on anyone. In every town there are men in some lines of business who seem to never need the services of the newspaper, but they do not stop to think that their trade is in a large measure due to overflow attracted to town by the advertisers, and that the territory of any town does not reach much farther than the circulation of the home paper.

A bill is before the legislature to submit to the people the question of investing not to exceed a million dollars a year for a five-year advertising campaign. The bill passed the senate with a vote of 23 to 4, and must receive 100 votes in the house to be voted upon this fall. If this plan is voted by the people it is predicted, with little question of doubt, that Texas will soon become more noted than California or Florida, as the advantages of these states were publicized by advertising and Texas has more advantages to offer than any state in the Union.

The editor enjoys an advantage true in no other profession—the chance to know human nature. Doctors, lawyers and preachers get to know human nature in their particular fields, but to the editor is given to know human nature in all fields.

The study of human nature is a fascinating one, and the knowledge of just how any one particular person will act under given conditions is a valuable one. The editor learns to be tolerant of others' opinions and amused at the intensity of thought displayed by many people in matters of little moment. The newspaper field has a broadening influence seldom approximated by any other profession.

Two a sheep, not a lamb, that strayed away. In the parable Jesus told: A grown-up sheep, that had gone astray.

From the ninety-and-nine in the fold, Out on the hillside, cut in the cold, 'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd sought.

And back to the flock, safe into the fold, 'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd brought.

And why for the sheep should we earnestly long, And as earnestly hope and pray? Because there is danger, if they go wrong. They will lead the lambs astray.

For the lambs will follow the sheep, you know, Wherever the sheep may stray; When the sheep go wrong, it will not be long.

Till the lambs are as wrong as they, And so with the sheep we earnestly plead,

For the sake of the lambs today, If the sheep are lost, what terrible cost Some lambs will have to pay.

A MAN I KNEW

I saw a man I used to know Come sliding down the street Where we'd both lived in days gone by. And often used to meet. The man had prospered, but 'twas plain He'd now no soul to save— I do not think he knew that he Was walking on his grave.

His grave—not of the man he was, Of one he'd hoped to be. When on those evenings long ago He'd sit and talk with me. He raised his stick and called his car And went in all his pride, And as he went I watched him go And wondered when he died.

LIDA LARRIMORE

SYNOPSIS

Jim Fielding, one of the "lost generation" who left college in the depression and unable to find a job, arrives at Glendale to visit his friends the MacPhersons. Mac is formerly been gardener at his late father's estate and now works for T. H. Vaughn of "Meadowbrook." Jim is tired of being supported by his married sister Kay, who he still can marry Lenore, an attractive divorcee who is in love with him and has an easy life because of her wealth and mind rebels. Stopping at the village inn where she is staying, she meets Dolly, pretty soda fountain girl. When she inquires about the Vaughns, she asks if he is a friend of "Cecily's." She also entrusts a message to Tommy, young son of the family and tells him how to reach the Vaughn's estate. Approaching the house, she discovers Cecily is her older sister. He is a tomboyish little girl, fast, up. She is startled and falls in the brook. Cecily, however, she discovers she likes him and he learns that she is Susan Vaughn, the daughter of Cecily's father. Jim is a young man, a youth of eighteen who imagines he is in love with Dolly. Jim explains his impressionable position to the MacPhersons. They tell him that Mr. Vaughn is recovering from a nervous breakdown and has been a widower since Sue was a little girl. Mrs. MacPherson suggests that Mac go to Jim to get a job as a handyman. Jim goes to see Mrs. Vaughn, who is an angry scene. She tells him to get a job. Cecily, a lovely young girl, appears, riding a limping horse. Jim falls for her when he sees the animal has been a shoe. There is an angry scene. Jim is cool and he is intrigued as he thinks about her. He tells the MacPhersons he wants to stay and assumes his duties as a handyman. He sees Dolly again. She explains that she has been seeing Tommy, but regards him with amusement. When Cecily returns from a house-party she asks him why. "I wonder how long you'll stay?" Jim asks Mr. Vaughn's part-time secretary. He opens a letter for Vaughn by mistake and learns it is a love message to Cecily from Jeremy Clyde, a young actor of Broadway fame. Cecily tells Jim of being hired to spy on her. Jim comes upon Sue sobbing rebelliously after an encounter with Cecily. Everybody is helpless to quell her. Jim soothes her. Jim writes Lenore, asking to avoid attending a house-party to which she has invited him. Tommy is afraid his father will be wrathful if he discovers his attachment for Dolly and asks Jim to intercede with her to get back letters he has written. Jim decides to use the supposed affair with Dolly as a club over Tommy to make him catch up in his studies.

"Where are we going?" Dolly asked. "Have you been to 'Dutch's'?" Jim asked. "Dutch's? Whew!" The exclamation was a whistling sound of pleasure and surprise. "Is it that sort of place?" Jim asked. "I've never been there in the evening." "But I'm not wearing my emeralds," Dolly objected. "Don't you want to go?" "Oh, yes!" He knew that she was pleased. Excitement bubbled in her voice. But, after a moment, she said, "You needn't, you know, I mean it's expensive at 'Dutch's.' I'd just as soon go somewhere else. Maple Grove or 'Greenie's' or just ride." "Hush up!" Jim said, pretending to be offended. "I told you this was an occasion. I have a week's wages in my pocket. Fifteen dollars! Let's shoot the roll!" "Okay, Mister!" Excitement bubbled again in her odd husky voice. Jim liked having her there beside him, warm and friendly, as undemanding as a kitten. He was touched by her consideration. If fifteen dollars would buy her a handsome evening, certainly she should have it. They left the highway, presently, and turned into the road that led through Cherry Hollow. The borough, set in a wooded depression between gently rolling hills, lay before them after a time. In the moonlight it was charming, a village from Hans Christian Andersen, a stage-set for the Pied Piper of Hamelin. The artfully quaint houses, located apparently at random among dogwoods and pines and wild cherry trees, were inhabited by artists, more or less successful, writers, musicians, a sprinkling of less-gifted individuals who enjoyed living in an unconventional community. A stream ran through the hollow, crossed by bridges, dammed, here and there, into pools rimmed with iris and splattered with lily pads. "This is a cute place, isn't it?" Dolly remarked as the MacPhersons' coupe followed a winding lane. "Crazy," Jim replied. "The house couldn't have been built according to an architect's blueprints. I think they sprang up like mushrooms some morning after a heavy rain. This road seems to end in a garden wall. Where do we go from here?" They had some difficulty in finding their way out. Eventually, however, after an interval of bumping along picturesque but rutty lanes and around the road they had lost. "That's right," Dolly said encouragingly. "There's the theater over here." Cherry Hollow theater was situated at the end of the borough.

she asked. "About Tommy, I mean. Or is he part of your job?" "He seems to be. I don't know. He's a nice kid." Dolly looked away. "You're losing interest in me," he said plaintively. "You keep looking off over there. Who is it? Somebody you know?" "It's Cecily Vaughn," she said. "Over there in the booth beside the orchestra. She's with the Clyde fellow from the theater." Cecily sat with her elbows propped on the table, her chin resting in the cupped palms of her hands. Jim, from his position, at the other end of the dance floor, saw her profile, the curls over her ears under a small soft hat, her straight nose, her firm round chin, her long slender throat melting into the ruffled blouse. His eyes turned from Cecily to her companion. Jeremy Clyde was a dark romantic-looking young man with a beautiful profile and hair a ripple too wavy. He was slight but well-built and not much taller than Cecily. He didn't look "artistic." He was immaculately dressed in clothes conventional in material and cut. But he did look "pretty," somehow, and, somehow, again, well aware of the fact. The orchestra made preliminary sounds. In a moment the melody of a waltz floated out into the night. Jim realized, then, that the MacPhersons' coupe had been advancing at a snail's pace, that in the moment Dolly spoke he had stalled the engine. "Sorry," he said, a little disconcerted. "It's interesting, isn't it?" The car, its motor purring again, picked up speed on the open road. Dolly told Jim of a "show" she'd seen once when she went to visit her aunt in New York. She recalled the comedian's jokes and sang the hit number of the musical score in her engaging voice. The rhythm was perfect. She remembered all of the words. By the time they had reached "Dutch's," Jim had lost the feeling of being a little out of sorts. They drew up before the roadhouse, singing in a jovial and discordant duet—"Sing hallelujah, hallelujah! Sing hallelujah, all the day!" Jim parked the car and opened the door for Dolly. The orchestra wore Bavarian costumes. The drummer looked like Old King Cole in suspenders and bare pink knees. The dance floor in the garden was dimly lighted and moonlight sifted down through the branches of lofty trees. Dolly danced with spirit and faultless rhythm, the white beret pressed against Jim's shoulder, the red sandals twinkling across the floor. Her cheek pressed his shoulder. Her slim rounded body felt firm, buoyant, held lightly in his arms. There was something about Dolly, something piquant, something moving. They sat in a stall, separated from other stalls by sapling screens covered with vines. A bulb in a swinging lantern made a rosy pleasant light. "Skool!" Jim lifted his mug and smiled at Dolly across the tablecloth checkered in blocks of red and white. Dolly glanced about the garden, her eyes shining, her cheeks naturally pink under the film of raspberry rouge. People were coming in crowds, smart looking people, Jim observed, his eyes following Dolly's; dowagers and debutantes, men with a ruddy country look and perfectly tailored clothes, college boys and boys of Tommy's age. "There's the Patton girl who's to be married soon," she informed Jim, indicating a party just entering the garden. "The redhead?" Jim asked, not particularly interested. "No, the dark one. And that's the man she's going to marry. They're friends of Cecily—of Miss Vaughn's. She's to be a bridesmaid at the wedding." "Yes?" Jim was still apparently indifferent. But the small vivacious brunette held his attention now. She had, or was to have, a homespun counterpane for a shower gift. Cecily had seen Mrs. MacPherson unpacking his trunk. Cecily! Where was she now? He brought his straying attention back to Dolly. "You know," he said looking at her intently, "you don't look like the sort of woman who drives young men to the ends of the earth." The flax-blue eyes, rayed with mascaraed lashes, widened in surprise. "I?" she asked. "The ends of the earth?" Jim nodded. "But who?" she asked. "You're kidding. You've got me mixed up with Greta Garbo. I'm laughing." "It's no laughing matter, young lady." Jim maintained a grave expression. "A young man confided in me tonight." He took a crumpled envelope from his pocket. "Here's his farewell message. I hope it will teach you a lesson." She took the envelope from Jim, glanced at the inscription. "Oh, Tommy!" Amusement glinted in her eyes. "What's it all about. I thought he'd jilted me." "He wants the letters he's written you. You've kept them, I suppose." "Oh, yes!" She laughed. "They're tied up with pink ribbons and pressed forget-me-nots. Why does he want them?" "He's afraid you may sue him for breach-of-promise." "Well I'll—!" A sort of amused tenderness replaced the startled expression in her eyes. "I guess I shouldn't have gone out with him. Didn't you tell him? I mean, you don't think I'd do anything so—so crazy, do you?" "No to both questions," Jim replied. "Why not?" "If you don't mind, I'm going to use you to make Tommy work off his school conditions." She slipped the letter, unopened, into the pocket of her coat. "I'm a girl scout. No, I don't mind." She glanced at him quickly, shrewdly. "What do you care?"

here. Drive on up to the garage." "You drive for me." It was scarcely a command. Her voice was as soft as silk. "It's so hard to steer with a flat on the front wheel." And taking his acquiescence for granted she moved over from under the steering wheel. Jim opened the door and took the place she had vacated. "You don't sound very-clubby," she said. "Are you hungry or sleepy or anything?" "No." "That's good. I want to talk." "But why to me?" "Oh, enemies intrigue me. May I have a cigarette?" Jim supplied a cigarette and a light. In the flare of the match he saw distinctly the golden lights in her eyes. His hands were aware of her. He flicked the match into the drive. "Thank you." She made herself comfortable again. "Did you have a pleasant evening?" "Very pleasant." "Dutch's is fun. Good orchestra. I didn't know that the girl in the drug-store was a friend of yours." "She's a nice kid," he said. "Amusing. Good dancer." "I'm sure she is." Cecily's voice was silken. "I meant no disparagement. You needn't get out your duelling pistols." He deserved that, Jim thought. He needn't have defended Dolly so vigorously. "Jim," she said, breaking a lengthening silence. "Will you do something for me?" "I'm afraid I can't," he said briefly. He'd thought that to put her in her place would give him a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. It wasn't working out that way. He felt a little embarrassed, instead. He'd sounded like a prig. "It isn't what you think," she assured him. "I don't care if you tell Father that I was with Jerry tonight. That isn't important. Father knows how I feel about Jerry. What I want you to do for me is important." Jim continued silent. "I mean, will you hear my side of the story?" she continued, in earnest now, the bantering tone gone out of her voice. "Even if we are enemies—Let's call it a court-room confession. The prisoner at the bar has a right to be heard, hasn't he? You know only Father's side. Jim," she said, "it isn't infatuation. I'm awfully in love with Jerry."

"You've Got Me Mixed Up With Greta Garbo."

Jim remained seated at the table, his eyes, almost without his knowledge and certainly without his full consent, fixed upon the stall in which Cecily sat with Jeremy Clyde. Presently they rose, pushed back their chairs, walked out upon the floor. They danced well together, silent, perfectly synchronized, absorbed in the music and in each other. Jim watched them, held in a curious suspense, as Cecily and her partner approached the end of the floor. Would she see him, speak to him? It may have been the intensity with which he watched them that attracted her attention. It may have been that she had seen him previously and knew where he was sitting. At any rate, as her partner turned her rhythmically at the end of the floor, Cecily looked directly at Jim, smiled and lifted her hand in an almost imperceptible gesture. Jim returned the salutation. A sharp exclamation came from Dolly. When he looked at her Jim saw that her eyes were glittering. "Did you see that?" she asked. "See what?" Jim shook himself out of a mild sort of daze. "That Jeremy Clyde!" Dolly snapped open a vanity case with a vicious thumb nail. "What about him?" "He gave me the run-around. Looked right through me, the bum!" "Do you know him—well?" "Well enough!" Dolly slapped powder against her nose. "I've had a couple of dates with him and when he comes over to meet Miss Vaughn, he hangs around the store. I don't like him, understand. I think he's a lizard. But he can't high-hat me and call it a day. I'll—!" Her expression changed, softened. She laughed shakily. "The storm's over. Forget it. I'm awfully sorry. She snapped the lid of the vanity case and smiled across the table at Jim. "Well, Uncle Ambrose," she said, "if your rheumatism isn't too painful tonight, let's hobble around the floor." But her handsome evening was spoiled. Her gaiety was forced, and, sooner than Jim had expected, very soon after Cecily and her escort left the garden, she suggested that it was getting late and he'd better take her home.

CHAPTER VI

Cecily was waiting for him when he returned to "Meadowbrook." The instant he saw her car standing in the lower end of the drive, Jim felt that he had known she would be there. The fawn-colored roadster blocked his progress. "Good evening," he said distantly. "I have a flat tire," she announced. "You could have run up to the garage on the rim." "Could but didn't," she said airily. "Why didn't you?" "I thought you would be coming along this way soon." "Oh! Well, I won't try to fix it

End of the Holdout Season. THE baseball season couldn't start off properly unless a certain catastrophe impended beforehand. Every self-respecting player who made a hit last year insists on more salary for this year, else he'll never spit in the palm of another glove. This makes him a holdout. The manager declares the player will take what's offered him and not a cent more. This makes him a manager. But fear not, little one. They'll all be in there when the governor or the mayor or somebody winds up to launch the first game and tosses the ball nearly eighteen feet in the general direction of the continent of North America.

Changing Style Capitals. HOLLYWOOD and not Paris is now the world center for fashions, if you can believe Hollywood—and not Paris. At any rate, both for men and women, we do originate many style creations which, in the best movie circles, frequently make the women look mannish and the men look effeminate, maybe that's the desired effect; an oldtimer wouldn't know about that. However, there's a new hat out here for masculine wear which fascinates me. It is a very woolly hat—a nap on it like an old family album—and the crown peaks up in a most winsome way, and there's a rakish bunch of tail-feathers at the back which makes it look as though it might settle down any minute and start laying. I think they got the idea for it from the duck-billed platypus.

Civilizing Ethiopia. CONQUERED Ethiopians attempt to assassinate their new overlord, Viceroy Graziani. Nobody is killed, but several individuals get bungled up. So the conquerors arrest all natives of Addis Ababa in whose huts weapons are found. They round up 2,000 "suspects" out of a total population of 90,000. So promptly 1,800 of these black prisoners are put to death in batches. In former days the firing squads would have worn themselves to a frazzle in a rush job of this sort, but no—well, who would deny that the machine gun is the crowning achievement of white culture? Poison gas is also much favored for pacifying rebellious savages, and plane-bombing likewise has its advocates.

The Public's Short Memory. FINANCIER, whose exposed debaucheries are as a bad smell in people's nostrils, summarily is ousted from his high place and the shadows swallow up his diminished shape. A little time passes, and, in a new setting, he bobs up, an envied if not an exalted personage. So-called exclusive groups welcome him in; newspapers quote him on this and that; he basks again, like some sleek and overfed lizard, in the sunshine of folks' tolerance—yes, the admiration of some. No evidence that he has repented of his former practices; no sign of intent to repay any broken victim of those fiduciary operations. The private fortune which he took with him when he quit is still all his. And maybe there's the secret of this magical restoration to the favor of the multitude. IRVIN S. COBB. WNU Service.

Budapest Catacombs The Budapest catacombs date back to the days when the Fort of Buda was held by the Turks, marking the farthest fortified advance of the forces of Islam into Christendom. They were probably intended as avenues of escape for a beleaguered garrison, but they also have fresh water wells in them, and some of the chambers were used as repositories for great numbers of human skulls and bones, as in the case of the catacombs at Rome.

OFF WITH THE OLD,
 ON WITH THE NEW

The sophomore class has been forced to give up their beloved sponsor, Miss Mallow. She has been very faithful and cooperative in her work with the class the past two years, and has influenced its success in everything it has undertaken. Each member would like to express individually his feeling of loss at her departure. However, words cannot express it, and they can only wish her happiness and success in her new life.

Now they turn to their new sponsor, Miss Deal, receiving her with open arms and offering her their full cooperation just as they gave it to their former sponsor. They hope that Miss Deal will enjoy working with them as much as they will with her. "Welcome, Miss Deal! We are glad to have you with us!"

AGGIES TO FORT WORTH

Leaving Thursday afternoon on a bus from White Deer, Jack Bogan, Roy Kiser, Kid McCoy, W. L. Shelton, William Wilkins, Clyde Carpenter and Ray Humphries, along with several White Deer boys, attended the Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth. Roy Kiser and Jack Bogan went as members of the Texas state-wide F. F. A. band which consists of sixty-five members. On Friday it led a parade which was witnessed by ten thousand people.

It seems that the boys had a general good time as well as learning a great deal. At the stock show they saw the world's champion rider ride the world's champion broncho. One William Wilkins was reported missing when he returned he said he had been at the show. However, it must have been the shows, for he saw several while gone. The group arrived home on Sunday evening, with everybody practically "broke" and nearly starved to death.

In June of 1937 the F. F. A. band will meet again. McLean should be proud to have two representatives in this great Texas organization.

THE SENIOR PLAY CAST

According to Mr. Cryer, the senior play is the high point of interest during the school year. Whether or not it comes up to the set high standard depends upon the seniors themselves. The senior class of 1937 is trying to produce a play that will not disappoint the people who support the school.

A cast of seventeen characters has been selected and is working constantly, with Miss Cousins and Mrs. Kennedy directing.

INTERESTING PERSONS

Earl Moon was born in Hobart, Okla., May 10, 1917. He has attended schools in Yeager, Shawnee, Amarillo, White Deer and McLean. He is a "cut-up-from-away-back," and plays the part of Shorty Long in the senior play, "College Town." His most cherished ambition is to be president. (He did not state what he wanted to be president of, but it might have something to do with his association with Alice Dowell). All the time when he is not doing something else he likes to eat. In other words, eating is his pet hobby. Next year, after graduation this spring, he plans to go to work. (Just fancy that).

Frances Tidwell is a mid-semester entrant to the senior class, but she is really a loyal supporter of all class activities. She was born in Baird, September 24, 1918. She has attended schools in Groom, Grandview, Hopkins and McLean. She is a good basketball player and was high point girl in several of the games last season. She plans to take a business course after completing her school work and make someone a good stenographer.

TIGERETTES WORK HARD

All this week the Tigrette girls have been practicing every day on the songs which they will present for the between-act entertainment at the junior play Friday night. They plan to sing some songs of 1937 and some that were popular ten years ago, and thus give a variation from the usual popular numbers. Jesse Dean Cobb, Willie Louelle Cobb and R. L. Floyd will help with the musical accompaniment.

HERE COMES CHARLIE

Charlie will arrive Friday night at 7:45 at the high school auditorium.

Many Times This Scene Was Repeated

Volunteer rescue workers bringing out the body of one of the victims of the school disaster.

Spectator Tells of Awful Blast

One spectator thus described the scene of the Texas school disaster: "In the middle of a ring of about 5,000 persons lay the remnants of the huge structure. The center portion had only a bare split wall at the rear still standing. The brick and stones were piled about 15 feet high in a quarry-like effect. From the ponderous oil trucks to the mass of debris covering the children were stretched stout cables. Sweating oil field 'roughnecks' turned errands of mercy—many seeking their own sons and daughters.

"In the manner of stevedores, they lined up on the rock and passed debris hand-to-hand to a clearing. "Blood smeared an upturned brick. With a shout, the workers gathered available shovels and lights and stretchers were called. An arm, a head appeared—terribly crushed. In a few minutes it was on the stretcher, carried to a waiting ambulance and speeded to the nearest temporary morgue.

"The scene was repeated over and over. Finally the worst of the shock was over and the men and families settled down to a quiet, organized effort to get out the bodies as quickly as possible—not actually in the hopes of life but to spare the anguish of ignorance of their children's fate—which the rescuers know too well."

With her will be a hilarious troupe of amateurs who will endeavor to present a worth while entertainment. The junior class and Tigerettes will appreciate a large audience.

Work has been done for the past month on this three act comedy and the play is a comedy which will please the most exacting critic. The setting is modern and in the living room of Mr. Larry Elliot, who adopts Charlie. Larry is played by Jeff Coffey and Charlie by a very capable young person. Who is Charlie? Larry expects a four year old, or fourteen, son. You be here when Charlie arrives and enjoy his discomfort. Mrs. Carolyn Smythe Larsey, played exceptionally well by Mollie Turman, has much trouble managing her obedient daughter, Vivian, played by Shirley Johnston, and her sleepy son, Mortimer, played by Woodrow Patrick. Mrs. Fanny Farnham, played by Wanda Estes, does not relish the idea of turning the home into an orphan's home. She very capably manages her servant, Nora, played by Leta Mae Phillips. R. L. Floyd is the obliging Cop. Kid McCoy brings the part of Ted, the chum of Larry. The probable star of the cast is Stanton Gardner, who will keep you laughing from his first entrance to his last, in the role of Uncle Aleck Twiggs, who, by the way, came from Arkansas, with Bob Burns.

This play will entertain you well. By attending you will help two worthy organizations.

Peasant Trend in Children's Clothes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BE AS colorful as you will in fitting out the little folks in new spring togs for fashions both adult and juvenile have gone madly, wildly, gaily peasant this season. Vivid colors, quaint and naive silhouettes, amusing details, wealth of embroidery done in bright yarns or metal thread, applique of wee posies cut out of gay felt after the manner of Tyrolean and Dalmatian costumes—what more could designers ask in way of inspiration in creating clothes to fit into the scheme of childhood's realm!

It lends to the glamor and romance of this all-pervading peasant influence in costume design for little folks that many of the fashions are authentically reproduced in current style collections. The specialty shops and children's sections in the larger stores are in many instances showing actual reproductions of the picturesque dresses and boleros and gay little hats and caps as worn by the peasant folk of the Tyrol and in Dalmatia. Even when not a faithful copy there is almost sure to be a touch of embroidery or a bright little feather or novel painted buttons or some one accent or another that bespeaks peasant origin.

You can see by the attractive fashions pictured that the younger generation is looking its cunningest in its new peasant-inspired clothes. The enthusiasm of a vast audience knew no bounds when the little folks who modelled these winsome outfits came shyly, prettily, smilingly down the runway at one of the series of breakfast style clinics held recently in the spacious Merchandise Mart in Chicago, that huge structure which is so alive with throngs of merchants, manufacturers, designers, buyers and sight-seeing out-of-town guests the very air vibrates with activity.

No end of applause greeted the child who wore a colorful Dalmatian costume featuring a gaily embroidered hat-and-bolero ensemble—see it shown to the right in our illustration. The dress is of natural colored linen, the bolero in bright blue enlivened with typical Dalmatian embroidery.

Under her Tyrolean coat the older little girl centered in the group wears a typical Tyrolean skirt with embroidered shoulder-strap top together with a sweater in green. Her Scotch cap of blue straw with a green feather complements her princess-cut coat held over her arm. Princess coat plus peasant dress thus do both princess and peasant influences reflect in current vogue. The sweater worn gumpie fashion, is ever so Tyrolean with its touches of bright embroidery at the neckline. This is a fashion of utmost practicality.

The tot with her beloved bunny in arms wears a peasant-type dress of Venetian wine dimity. It is fashioned to create the impression of two pieces. The full skirt suggests the much-talked-of dirndl dress which is being so widely exploited in connection with Austrian peasant fashions. Of course, to catch the true Tyrolean spirit there must be hand-embroidery on the waist which there is together with wee pearl buttons that adorn the front of the dress.

Your young daughter and son may not be twins but if they are to be correctly dressed moderns this spring they'll be costumed alike in gay peasant fashion. Note the youngster sketched below who has gone as authentically Tyrolean as a native in his gaily embroidered suspender suit. Every little girl's wardrobe is supposed to include a sweater. This season sweaters that are outlined with colorful yarn-embroidered little flowers.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for March 28

JOHN'S RECOLLECTION OF THE RISEN LORD.

LESSON TEXT—John 20:19-29, 21:20-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death. Rev. 1:17, 18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Living Lord.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Eating Breakfast With Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Who Saw Jesus After His Resurrection?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ's Resurrection a Glorious Fact.

"The best authenticated fact in all history"—that is what competent historians have called the resurrection of Christ. One of America's greatest legal authorities used it as an illustration of how properly to prove a fact in court. If anyone comes to this lesson with doubts about the bodily resurrection of our Lord, let him give himself to a study of the evidence. He will find it overwhelmingly satisfying and complete. That is as it should be, for the resurrection is vital to the completeness of man's redemption. Had Jesus died and remained in the grave, his claims would have been nullified; we should indeed have been "of all men most miserable" (1 Cor. 15:19). But Paul goes on in triumphant faith, "Now is Christ risen from the dead." We have a resurrection faith, a living Saviour.

Our lesson brings before us our Lord in his post-resurrection appearance to his disciples, and a subsequent conversation with Peter. These verses fittingly tie up the resurrection of Christ with the life and service of his followers. Those who serve the risen Christ have an inward peace and an outward authority and power. Their convictions are based on the best of evidence and carry them forward to a life of personal responsibility and service.

I. Peace (20:19-21).
Peace of Soul is absolutely essential to useful and satisfied living. Only as we are "steadfast, immovable," can we be "abounding in the work of the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58). Steady at the center, active at the circumference.

II. Authority (vv. 21-23).
Commissioned and sent by the Son of God, clothed with Holy Spirit power, the Church of God has his authority. While some have read too much into verse 23, others have read out of it the real authority that God has given.

III. Conviction (vv. 24-29).
Thomas made the serious error of being absent from the gathering of the disciples when the Lord Jesus stood in their midst. Let those who commonly absent themselves from the place and hour of worship take heed lest they miss a blessing, and coming later add nothing to the spiritual life of the church, but rather become troublers and doubters. But God graciously turns the doubt of Thomas into a means of blessing to all of us who since then have read of his experience. Thomas was an honest doubter. God is always ready to meet such with satisfactory proof. The trouble is that there are so many in the world who use professed doubts to cover a life of sin.

Doubt may come to any man. In itself it is no sin. But to cherish it and hold to it in unbelief—that is a different matter. One wise spiritual leader rightly counseled his people, "Believe your beliefs and doubt your doubts. Never make the mistake of doubting your beliefs or believing your doubts."

When Thomas saw the Lord, doubt rapidly changed to strong personal conviction and abandonment of himself to his Lord and Saviour.

IV. Responsibility (21:20-24).
This incident took place at a later appearance of Jesus to a smaller group of the disciples. The irrefragable Peter has, as usual, a question to ask, "What shall this man do?" It is a right thing to be concerned about the welfare of others, to see to it that they live right and do right. But there is in our relationship to God a primary personal responsibility, our own lives. The writer of the Song of Solomon (1:6) spoke a profound and deep-cutting word when he said, "They made me keeper of the vineyards; but my own vineyard have I not kept." Perhaps Jesus is saying to me, or to you, the solemn words that he spoke to Peter, "What is that to thee? follow thou me."

Personal responsibility should be one of the most resultful factors in the making of manhood, as in the finding of salvation.

Duty and Honor
Despise danger and self-interest where duty and honor are concerned.—Selected.

The Music of Life
All one's life is a music, if one touches the notes rightly and in time.—Ruskin.

Comforters
God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.

It's a Party Sure Enough!

AND the girl holding the curtains back, just looking on, might be joining the fun except for her misconception that "party" clothes are hard to sew. She made the neat sweet house model she's wearing with no trouble at all—but—

And Here's the Story.
"Marge, did you really make your pretty dress all yourself? It looks so elaborate; I'd be afraid to cut into chiffon like that for fear I'd ruin it."

"Be yourself, Rose. It doesn't take a bit more skill to make my dress than yours. The pattern explains everything. You can't go wrong. I got a double kick out of making a party frock—I feel important sewing it and elegant wearing it. I couldn't begin to have so many party clothes if I didn't belong to The Sew-Your-Own!"

"Joanie, dear, aren't you beginning this party business pretty young?"

"No, Auntie Rose, of course not. I've another one just like it that Grandma made for me. It's red and it has blue bands around it. I'm going to wear it to school tomorrow."

"Well, I see where I've got to get some silks and crepe, pluck up my nerve, and have clothes like other people. I wanted to join the Jolly Twelve but I just felt I didn't have anything to wear. Now I've decided to join

Silent Power of Books

A book that is to live with you—to be a companion, an instructor—must have something better than polished words or well-wrought sentences. It must have thoughts and sentiments that touch the head and the heart. Then a book becomes a silent power more and more influential.—Henry Ward Beecher.

BROWN AND BEIGE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Choose beige for your spring costume, for beige is a fashion-first color on the new season's program. Here is an ultra smart ensemble. This suit is fashioned of lightweight cloth in the new beige for which everybody is calling just now. To give it a high-style accent this young woman chooses to contrast her beige costume with brown touching shell catlain jewelry. As our Parisian sisters who are past masters in dress have long pointed out the detail is the real secret in achieving style prestige.

TWO TONES OF ONE COLOR IS LATEST

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion's latest move is to use two tones of one color for the costume ensemble. Per example a navy blue cloth three-piece has the skirt and cape of the navy with a lighter blue for the blouse and the cape lining. In the same manner light gray is worked with dark, brown or perhaps rust with beige, dubonnet with a related pink and sonon.

The light-top dress which is such a general favorite is often designed this season with a skirt of the dark color, the top bodice developing in a lighter tone of the same color.

Then again the scheme is carried through with the suit, say in brown smartened with lighter brown or beige accessories, or in navy with light blue scarf, gloves and perhaps a chiffon scarf veil in the lighter blue on the hat for the scarf hat is very smart style for spring.

Wear Flowers
A flower corsage or boutonniere is almost inevitable this spring with your dress or suit. Smart vogue calls for large flowers to correspond with the huge florals in printed fabrics.

Sports Jewelry
Light, natural colored wood, inset with narrow strips of catalin in four different bright colors provides a really smart accessory for strictly sports clothes.

BOASTS AND BARS

By Delectus
One of the select hotels in New York boasts of having the largest bar in the world.

Nearly all of the inn-keepers of New York have gone on a boasting rampage about their bars.

I have occasion now and then, to pass through the lobby of one of the grand hotels in New York that cater to the swells and the imitation swells.

Moved by a curiosity which I never believed could ever have lowered me to the level of snooping, I strolled along the outer circumference of the bar a few evenings ago.

It was while I was engaged in this hoof-snooping that I heard a crackling voice that sounded like the cackling of a hen.

The scene and incident which I have here described is commonplace and as a story, is hardly worth telling. But behind it is the thought that if adult and elderly women stand up against a bar and drink liquor as though it were eminently proper and respectable.

YOUR OWN NAME

Write your name on a piece of paper, and look at it for five minutes. It is the most precious thing you have.

Your father gave it to you. He had in his youth many temptations to soil his name, but he wore it even like a white plume over his heart.

One day your father went and offered his name to a beautiful young woman. She blushed and hesitated.

Finally your mother accepted your name, and she did not wear her engagement ring with half the pleasure that she did your name.

Your father looked into your pudgy little face and breathed a sigh of pride as he thought, "Now I have given my name to a human soul."

More than all earthly possessions is an untarnished name. Yet how easily a good name is lost. It is harder to regain than it is to find again the lost gold in sunken ships.

How do you treat your name? Is the local merchant glad when he sees your name on his account book?

How does the banker feel when you induce him to loan you some money? Will he have to discount your paper because your name is not worth 100%?

If the pastor of your church ever wrote a line after the names on the church roll, what would he put after yours?

The Bible says, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." If you and I in our poorest moments were given the choice of riches to anything else, we might take the riches at the sacrifice of our good name.

You are not done with your name until it will be given to another. It may be your own child, or perhaps some man and woman will honor your life and name their child after you.

The Scriptures say that we shall have names in heaven, and talk about the Lamb's Book of Life.

Treat your name as you do soil and inner honor, for what soils our will blast the other.—Selected.
