Whoopin' Around

By D. A. Davis

I'm mad this week. I think people are unjustly accusing me of things that he don't have the least idea of doing. I've got complete confidence in his ability and judgment. His intentions are good and he's got us into worse conditions than we were in before. We need remedial conditions that are necessary where by all of us are glad of our station in life and we have a chance to at least exist as a normal human being.

I am not the least uneasy of a citizenship like Hitler, Mussolini or Stalin in the United States so long as we have statesmen of our President's type to champion the cause of the masses. I am more uneasy of a citizenship unless we do make some changes than I am if we don't. I don't believe any reasonable thinking man or woman can deny that we do need some changes, not only in our court procedure but in just a whole lot of other procedures. A man with no more ability than I have, even so, can see without very much looking that some changes have got to be made if we continue to exist as a real nation, and I for one ain't going to tear my shirt sending the president or Congressmen or Senators any telegrams telling them what "think" should be done. I've got plenty of confidence in Marvin Jones, Tom Connally and Morris Shepherd, even the President, that they will give these problems for us. Let's let it "hoo" them, but on the other hand let them give all the encouragement possible.

And another thing; I'm not going to participate in any "straw votes," but, because I don't think a straw vote is worth a whoop in hades, just the simple reason that only a voted few will be permitted or will be. The daily papers never do take a majority of the masses. There's millions and millions of good nest, everyday Americans that do take daily papers and still millions of others that cannot even afford to take weekly papers, therefore, a straw vote will be restricted to people that are able to subscribe to our daily paper. And, if folks, is class legislation, which is absolutely opposed to, and which our Constitution very plainly is not sanction.

And another thing. I've got over dozen letters addressed to "The Wretched Mayor," requesting me to vote or write Gene Worley and Clint Hill, "opposing" such and such a that has been introduced down Austin. And do these letters burn up! I've got plenty confidence am perfectly satisfied that the above gentlemen down in Austin got gray matter enough in their heads to handle all legislation to the interest of all concerned, and, and, what the heck do I know it house bill number so-and-so is so "vitaly important" that be passed or not passed? And hermore, just how much attention these gentlemen pay to my telegrams or letters when they "know" that these bills are all about and I know that I know absolutely what it's just a lot of bosh. The only "court proceedings" I've had any experience in are our district courts, and I can just plenty of reforms that could made. We all know that it's getting so good average American mens hesitate to go before the district court or are unwilling to appear witnesses in any kind of case, for the simple reason we are treated to a more cruel grueling cross questioning by a lot of other lawyers that results in more punishment to us than to the actual criminal. I've seen so all kind mad at the merciless way I have seen witnesses go through in some of our court trials. I could hardly restrain myself from running amok and committing my vengeance myself. It's a damn shame that us American people get into such conditions or tolerate such indignities to be foisted upon good law abiding people who have no other way of being absolutely satisfied but to be persecuted for doing what is some smart aleck and, folks, I'm mad.

Mrs. Bogan Hostess to Garden Club

Mrs. W. E. Bogan was hostess to the Garden Club at her pretty landscaped home in Floral Addition, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. H. W. Finley, president of the club, called a short business session before going into the set program.

The secretary, Mrs. Geo. Colebank, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Mrs. D. A. Davis was elected reporter.

The matter of park improvement was discussed, and Mrs. Bogan, Mrs. O. G. Stokely and Mrs. Lee Wilson were appointed as a committee to contact the city council for park landscaping plans.

Offering prizes for the best landscaped filling station was also discussed.

T. A. Landers talked on "The Home Flower Garden," text of which appears in another column, and Mrs. W. E. Ballard spoke on "Selection and Care of Evergreens."

Mrs. Ballard said, from her experience, the most satisfactory evergreens are from the spruce and juniper families, and that much care in watering and spraying is necessary for best results.

Following the session, Mrs. Bogan served refreshments of tea and cookies to those present.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Finley, on March 1.

Among those present were: Mrs. W. L. Campbell, Mrs. D. M. Graham, Mrs. O. G. Stokely, Mrs. Geo. Colebank, Mrs. Lee Wilson, Mrs. H. W. Finley, Mrs. W. E. Ballard, Mrs. W. E. Bogan, and T. A. Landers.

SCHOOL PLAY HERE TODAY AND FRIDAY

The McLean ward school will again present their entertaining operetta, due to the public demand. There will be two performances: a matinee this (Thursday) afternoon, at 2:15, and the night performance will start promptly at 7:30, Friday night, Feb. 19.

The operetta proved to be very successful, and many people have asked to have the performance repeated. A new stage setting will have to be built, as the old one was destroyed. However, Mrs. Vogle states that it will be reproduced just as nearly as possible like it was first presented.

Some of the children are sick, but they are being replaced and the "show will go on." The tickets have been reduced to 10c for grade school and high school pupils, and 20c for adults. Some 135 high school students expressed their desire to see the operetta when a count was taken Wednesday morning. Those having children in the performance will be issued passes.

The rhythm band will play between acts.

NUTS AND BOLTS

Listen, brother, you keep on doing that and you'll keep your appointments for the next few weeks in the hospital.

There's a place for you to cross the street in safety. It's down at the corner, just a few steps away. No business is quite so important that you should risk your life to save a couple of seconds.

Thirty-three thousand pedestrians were injured last year doing just what you are about to do—stepping out from between parked cars. More than 1,100 were killed that way. These figures are taken from insurance records. Maybe in the rush of business you're forgetting to give enough attention to the business of living.

Ward School Play Pleases Large Crowd

A large crowd saw the operetta, "A Day in Holland," presented by the ward school last Friday evening, many saying that it was the best play ever staged by the ward school.

Loud speakers were installed at each side of the auditorium, which added much to the acoustics of the building. The stage was decorated with a large Dutch windmill and cottage, and the footlights were shaded with some 35 flowering potted plants.

The operetta was directed by Mrs. Marie Vogle. Miss Idabel Newman was costume director, and Mrs. Willie T. Boyett was musical accompanist. Principal Sam Branch and the boy scouts built the stage settings.

The following were the principals in the cast: Eric Fulbright, Evonne Floyd, Frances Sitter, Mary Evelyn Foster, J. B. Waldrop, Billy Carpenter and Oran Back.

The first grade rhythm band furnished a couple of numbers between acts.

Shelterbelt Plantings in Wheeler

A meeting was held at Heald Friday, at which time D. S. Miller and A. G. Schattenberg, who have their headquarters at Wellington, were present and talked to the farmers.

Several farmers, including the News editor, made applications for shelterbelt trees.

The Forestry Service will furnish trees and set them for any landowner who will use as much as a half mile stretch of either seven or ten rows of trees, with 10 foot space between rows, and agree to fence and cultivate the trees.

The trees will belong to the farmer and posts may be cut from them, or used in any way the farmer desires.

Where farms do not permit of a half mile of trees, a neighbor may connect with the belt, just so there are half mile lengths.

A farm may have more than one belt, but they must be separated by at least one-half mile and must protect cultivated land from the prevailing winds.

Several varieties of trees adapted to this section will be used in each belt, including some apricots.

Most any kind of two-wire fence may be used and the service will include moving and erecting the fence.

The court also approved the settlement in the Thos. W. Barnes case, where the county was suing for $5,000 in excess fees collected during Barnes' term of office, the settlement being for $3,000. Commissioner Newman voted against the settlement, holding that the court should receive all the money due.

KITCHEN NEEDS

Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, county home demonstration agent, after making individual visits to the homes of the members of the Home Demonstration Club, said, in a report to the members, that the greatest needs found in kitchens were refinishing walls and floors.

Two kitchens need nearly everything done, including water piped in and out, which is necessary to save time and labor. Several cabinet tops need refinishing, and Mrs. Kelley gave the following method: Use a scraper to scrape the old finish off, apply two or three coats of hot linseed oil. Plastic wood or putty may be used to fill cracks, and finish with valpar, then the top will look like new.

The next meeting of the Home Demonstration Club will be held Feb. 19 at the home of Mrs. W. E. Andrews. All interested are urged to attend.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

The School Cafeteria

D. C. Carpenter runs the grade cafeteria. She serves the plate lunches with a well balanced meal at lunch, for only twenty cents. Every morning, the office boy, Boy Back, makes the rounds of the rooms and gets a list of the pupils who want plates and also the number of the pupils who want sandwiches. Her hamburgers are five and a half cents, and are they good? They have all the fixin's on them. They are right off the stove, too. Most of the pupils come back for a second one. She serves a glass of good old milk with the plate lunch, either sweet or buttermilk. Most of the children like to get a soft drink to go with the hamburgers. She also serves cocoa colas, orange crush and other soft drinks. Also, she carries a good line of candy. Some of her candy has little rings for the primary folks. The writer saw one little girl in the primary room today with three of the rings on. (Two of them were her own). Mrs. Carpenter has an up-to-date stock of school supplies. This is a great convenience to the school.

The school cafeteria is doing its bit in making the school click. Mrs. Carpenter's genial smile is always seen at lunch time when the teachers and kiddies file up to the counter to be fed. She understands the hungry school boy and girl, and the dear teacher, wants to be served in a hurry; so she usually has two or three helpers to wait on the rush. She is doing a fine service to the school and the community.

WARD SCHOOL OPERETTA

REPORTED SUCCESS

The grade school operetta Friday night was a grand success in every way. The receipts were $40. This money will be used to pay off some debts the grade school owes. Miss Newman planned the costumes of the Dutch boys and girls.

The advertising was done by Mr. Murdock, Mrs. Beck and Mrs. Harris. They made pretty posters and distributed them in the business houses down town. The ticket sale was in charge of Mr. Dotson, Miss Noel and Miss Essare. The programs were made by Miss Still and Miss Heath. They were very attractive ones, with pictures of a Dutch boy and girl.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Future Homemakers met last Tuesday evening. Plans were discussed and completed for the district club meeting which will be held in McLean on Saturday, Feb. 20, at the high school building. Mobeette, Wheeler, Shamrock, Briscoe, Allison, Groom, Lefors and Kelton will send representatives to this meeting.

The Future Homemakers held their regular Dutch luncheon meeting at noon Tuesday. A picnic lunch and a social hour was enjoyed by twenty-five girls.

The homemaking department recently acquired two new members Jack and Jill, white rats. These rats will be used by the third year girls in a nutrition experiment to determine the causes and effects of malnutrition, and the immediate and remote effects of unbalanced diet. A balanced diet has been worked out for Jill, in he will grow and develop normally. Jack is eating an unbalanced diet, as to many people, and when the desired effects have been produced, the girls will attempt to remedy his nutrition and make him as nearly normal as possible.

The first year girls prepared cereals, fresh and dried fruits for breakfast last week. They are studying breakfast breads this week, and will make biscuits, muffins, popovers, waffles, griddle cakes and toast after they have solved the problems involved in the preparation of each.

TIGER EXHIBITION

Last Tuesday afternoon at the war school gymnasium, the McLean Tigers gave a basketball exhibition. The line-ups were as follows: First string, Dwight, Floyd, Hell, Overton and Humphreys; second team, Bond, Trimble, Patrick, Terrell and Hess. Capt. Joe Bogan was unable to participate due to a sprained ankle.

The Tigers lost their chance of winning district honors to Lefors. Even though they lost, here's hoping that Lefors brings the victory back to Gray county.

ENGLISH FOUR HAS FUN

Every since Miss Elizabeth Kennedy has been teaching English four in McLean, she has carried out an interesting custom. In the study of social letters she asks the student's to write a letter to her, dating it ten years in the future. The letters tell what the pupils are doing ten years after graduation. It is very interesting to read them. Most of this year's letters were addressed to Mrs. Edward Kennedy, away up in old Wyoming. In most of them, everybody had a different husband or wife, and always a new occupation. In at least half a dozen letters, Capt. Roy Laswell was either making, selling, or drinking beer. Everybody said that Wilson Show was up in Wyoming with Miss Kennedy, herding sheep. Marietta Young, in the letters, had married so many different husbands that it must have made her confused. One of the funniest letters said that Hazel Dyer was the champion doughnut maker in America. There were numerous movie stars from the '37 graduating class, and some said that Averill Christian would be president within ten years' time.

It is very surprising what high school imaginations can think of.

SENIORS TO GIVE AWAY QUILT

Late Thursday afternoon everyone will know who is to be the proud owner of the senior quilt. If you have not yet investigated this, you had better get busy.

Preparations are being made for a senior play. Just listen in and you will soon hear more about the great event.

INTERESTING PERSONS

Wilbur Lee Wilson was born in McLean, March 11, 1920. His entire school career has been centered in McLean. Some of his pet hobbies are reading, sleeping and eating. He is tall, has black hair, blue eyes and a way of making you think that he knows something funny, whether he does or not. ### ANDREWS SPEAKS TO ASSEMBLY

At 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 10, Rev. W. B. Andrews spoke to the high school assembly. He was accompanied by Mr. Smith, who led the group in singing "Work for the Night is Coming." Rev. Andrews' message was built on the familiar passage, "We are workers together with God." Those who heard the message received an inspiration to do better work.

Townpeople are always welcome to the high school assemblies, as well as outside speakers. The weekly chapel exercises with a local minister in charge is always a bright spot in the day.

Scientific research has exploded and outmoded many ideas about eyes and seeing, which are so important in our daily lives. For example:

The idea that seeing is done with the eyes alone...

The fact is that seeing affects the entire body. Just using your eyes for a long time in poor light may be as tiresome as digging a ditch. Even the rate of your heartbeat is affected by the amount of light you have on your book or work. Experiments in the world's most famous lighting research laboratories proved that a person reading a book developed very much less nervous muscular tension with 100 footcandles of light than with one footcandle. Much nervous tension and wasted energy result from working in poor light. Many cases of headache and indigestion are now known to result from eyestrain due to inadequate and improper lighting.

The idea that every pair of eyes requires the same amount of light...

The fact is that children and old people need more light than average adults. The child's eyes are not fully developed until he is seven years of age or older. When he is learning to read, he must look at each letter or word, whereas an adult reads whole phrases or sentences at a glance. Older people need more light because the pupils of the eyes have become smaller with age; because sight has been dulled by use and abuse; and because parts of the eye have lost some of their strength and flexibility.

The idea that one bright light on your book is all you need for comfortable reading...

Many a headache is caused by this improper method of lighting. The fact is that eyes are most comfortable in diffused light, without violent contrasts. When you read or work under a bright light, with semi-darkness all around you, your eyes are not only bothered with glare from the working or reading surface, but must repeatedly adjust themselves to light and darkness. When you have sufficient light on your work, an appreciable portion should come from the general surroundings.

The idea that glare is only caused by headlights or bright sun...

Actually there may be almost as much glare indoors as out. Glare from bare bulbs, for example. What we do not realize is that this indoor glare is very bad on our eyes and nerves and mind. When you drive your car against glaring headlights on a dark road, you know how hard it is to see. At home, though you may not be so conscious of it, the effect of glaring light from a bare bulb is also bad for your eyes. Yet it is easy to have good lighting without glare.

The idea that a home is well lighted just because it has electric lights...

If we compare nature's light with the light in the average home, the difference is astounding. Here are approximate figures:

Light outdoors on a sunny summer day
 ... Approaches 10,000 footcandles.
 Light under a shady tree on same day
 ... Approximately 500 footcandles.
 Light on a shaded porch, same day
 ... 250 footcandles.
 Light next to a window, indoors, on same bright day... 100 footcandles.
 Light in the average living room at night... Often under 5 footcandles.

The idea that you can read safely in almost any light, even with proper glasses...

It has been proved that nervous muscular tension increases as light intensity decreases, even if your eyes are doing nothing more difficult than reading a well-printed book. Proper lighting means less effort in seeing—less strain on eyes, nerves and body. It is just as necessary as proper glasses. Light and glasses are good friends.

We will gladly help you find out whether or not your lighting is adequate by making a lighting survey of your home without charge. Just telephone us and ask for a free lighting survey.

Hello Everybody!

"The Burning Crypt"

By FLOYD GIBBONS,
Famous Headline Hunter

IT'S always the little things that cause the most trouble. Jimmy Pezalano of Maspeth, L. I., can tell you that. It was a pencil that brought him the big adventure of his life. And while plenty of people have got into trouble for being too handy with their pens, I don't think they went through half as much grief as that little stick of wood and graphite brought to Jimmy.

It all happened on December 17, 1931, when Jimmy was working for a drug manufacturing concern in Long Island City. Jimmy was a stock clerk, and one of his duties was to check over the shipments of whisky and alcohol as they came in, and store the stuff in a big, 200-foot square, steel-lined, burglar proof vault.

That vault was the danger spot of the whole plant. In it were stored all the explosive and inflammable chemicals in the place. There were tons of such stuff as chlorate of potash, and gallons of collodion, naphtha, ether and the like, in addition to hundreds of steel drums full of alcohol. "And I was responsible for the combination that would open the massive door."

Just a Pencil Started the Trouble
On that fateful December 17 that we're going to hear about, Jimmy was finding that responsibility pretty heavy. A shipment of foreign whisky had arrived just an hour before quitting time, and Jimmy couldn't go home until it was all stowed away. He and his helper hurriedly wheeled the cases into the rear of the vault and started to open them and unwrap the bottles from the straw in which they were packed. They worked rapidly for half an hour, but—

"Doesn't something always happen when you're in a hurry?" Jimmy wants to know. And I've got to agree with Jimmy. Something always does. This time it was a pencil—the only one they had. It dropped to the floor and rolled into a dark corner between two stacks of cases. They didn't want to go back to the office to get another one, so they did something that was strictly against the rules. Jimmy's helper lit a match to look for it.

That match was hardly lit when footsteps sounded outside the door. Could it be the boss? If he ever saw that lit match in that vault full of explosives—well—somebody would get fired. Quickly, Jimmy's helper threw the lit match into what looked like a puddle of water. Then, in an instant, that "water" had burst into flame. The "water" was a puddle of highly inflammable collodion that had leaked out of a faulty drum.

Flames Crept Toward the Explosives
"Instantly," says Jimmy, "the flames caught in some of the loose straws he had taken from the whisky cases. Tongues of fire began to lick out toward the leaky drum the collodion had come from. For a second I was scared stiff. There was enough explosive in the vault to blow the place to bits, and on the upper floors there were more than 300 people getting ready to go home.

"I leaped for a rack of sand pails, grabbed two of them and yelled to my helper to get the others. The flame was creeping up the side of the drum less than an inch from the plug hole when I threw the sand over it. Grabbing the other two pails from my helper I yelled to him to run outside, ring the alarm and hurry back with an extinguisher. Then I threw the rest of the sand. It barely sufficed to put out the collodion still burning at the base of the drum, but now the straw was burning furiously, setting fire to the wooden whisky cases."

It looked bad for Jimmy, but in another moment it was worse. He heard a loud slam—glanced at the door—and his heart almost stopped. In running out, his helper had kicked away the stick used to keep the heavy door open. It had banged shut. Jimmy was TRAPPED IN A BURNING VAULT full of explosives and the only other person who had the combination was the boss, WHO USUALLY LEFT THE FACTORY EARLY!

Jimmy Made a Gallant Fight
"I was stunned," says Jimmy. "For a moment I stared blankly at that locked door, but the acrid smoke brought my attention back to the rapidly spreading fire. There was a bare chance and I jumped for it. Like a maniac, I rolled the steel drums away from the flames. With blistered hands I pushed and jerked away heavy cases of potash until I managed to clear a small space around the flames. Every few seconds I had to stop to stamp out flying sparks that threatened to set off some stored explosive, but in the end I had cleared the space and pushed all the burning straw and wood to the center of the fire. Then, with fear inspired strength, I dragged up heavy steel plates, used as a runway for hand trucks, and set them like partitions around the blaze.

"None too soon. In another minute hell popped. Cases of whisky in the center of the blaze began falling apart. Bottles went off in a series of shattering explosions. Thanks to the steel plates, none of the scattering glass and flame struck me, but I had a busy time stamping out the flying sparks and burning splinters of wood."

For a full 25 minutes, Jimmy fought that blaze. Then, overcome by heat and smoke, he was beating a reluctant retreat when the door opened and men came running in with sand and fire extinguishers.

"With my hair singed, hands scorched and my face as black as coal," says Jimmy, "I must have made a sorry figure. But boy, did that air feel good! And I was glad that my helper had enough presence of mind to run and catch the boss JUST AS HE WAS LEAVING THE BUILDING!"

Lightning Takes Course
The ancient Greeks believed that lightning consisted of heavy spear-like projectiles which had been heated white-hot and cast at offending mortals and objects, with none too accurate aim, by their head god Zeus.

The primitive Germans attributed lightning to bolts thrown by a malicious god named Loki while the dull-witted war god, Thor, pounded on the sky with a hammer to make thunder. In fact, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune, almost all primitive peoples believed lightning was a sort of material missile hurled by a vindictive god. This theory died out in Europe with the rise of Christianity, since it was difficult to reconcile the idea of lightning as a manifestation of divine wrath with the observation that it seemed to strike France where it destroyed more often than anything else.

Still we should not smile too much at the mistaken beliefs of those long-dead Greeks and Germans. We are not very different informed on it ourselves. The average man knows that it consists of electricity, that it zigzags in Z-shaped straight lines, and that it never strikes twice in the same place. Armed with this knowledge, he is two-thirds wrong. Lightning is certainly a discharge of static electricity, as Benjamin Franklin showed many years ago. But there is nothing at all straight about a bolt of lightning, although apparently this fact was not known until lightning was actually photographed. Actually it follows a meandering course like that of a river as shown on a map.

This figure is correct in other respects than appearance, for lightning is actually a river of electricity. Just as water follows the course of least resistance in flowing from a high altitude to a low, so does electricity move from a high to a low voltage.

In a Velvet Gown
It is a fact far cry from the Arabs at El Fustate near Cairo to the looms of velvet on this continent, says the Montreal Herald. More than 2,000 years have elapsed since our earliest records of velvets among the Persians and East Indians. From the Arabs the art of velvet weaving went to the Spaniards, then to Sicily, and, in the Sixteenth century, into France where it developed under the skill of the most creative and intelligent hand-loomers to power-loomers, to meet the volume of demand, the process of weaving has gone on. Velvet is woven in two pieces at a time—face to face and cut with a knife afterward, leaving a straight erect pile—the test of all pile velvets.

First, heavy thick velvets were made, later finer types of velvets known as Lyons, then chiffon velvets and after that the slenderizing, draping material known as transparent velvet.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

The Plight of Spain.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—In the bloody task of utterly destroying herself Spain cannot complain that she lacked for hearty co-operation on the part of some of her sister countries.

Openly or secretly, half of the great European powers are contributing to the bloody ruination, so that, when the finish comes, they'll have spoils or dubious prestige or both and that ill-fated land will be a burying ground and a desolation.

A fellow gets to wondering why this or that government chooses for an emblem some noble creature when the turkey buzzard or the grave-robbing hyena would be so appropriate.

Fierce winters and devastating floods may be curing us here on this side of the water, but at least we have been spared the affliction of having for our next-door neighbors certain nations.

Kidnapers' Ransoms.
IT'S all well enough to pass an act making payment of ransom to a kidnaper a criminal offense—as though heartbroken parents would hesitate to pay ransoms to get their babies back, no matter what the penalty for so doing might be!

And can you see any American jury convicting those parents? The author of the law is no doubt well-intentioned but there is another law, called the law of human nature, which most surely would defeat his purposes.

By the way, a person who should know what he's talking about, tells me that three out of every four known kidnapers during recent years have been ex-convicts with records as repeated offenders.

So, instead of trying to penalize agonized parents for obeying a natural instinct, how about a natural law to curb certain parole boards which seem to delight in turning 'em out as fast as the courts can clap 'em in?

Optimism De Luxe.
I LIKE the spirit of a gentleman in New York who started dredging operations in East river. He set out to dig up a minimum of $4,000,000 in gold and silver from the ooze, and to date has salvaged 96 cents, two rusty frying pans and a penknife—and is still probing.

For gorgeous optimism I can think of but one case to match this. I was on the French Riviera one summer. They'd been shifting the railroad tracks along the Grand Corniche. This left a disused tunnel. So, week after week, a bearded gentleman sat at one mouth of the empty bore with a sign over his head reading: "This property for sale." When I left he was still there, waiting for somebody who was in the market for a second-hand tunnel.

South American Explorers.
OF RECENT years, those hardy adventurers who set forth to invade the last great unexplored area, interior South America, seem to follow a regular routine, to wit, as follows:

First—They start off.
Second—They get lost.
Third—They are rescued.

But wouldn't it save wear and tear and nervous strain if the rescue expedition went on ahead so it could get settled down on camp so it could be comfortable and they waited for the explorers when they staggered in, exhausted from toting all those tons of material for future lecture tours? The modern discoverer is gallant, but apparently has no more sense of direction than an egg-borer and seemingly could get lost on top of a marble-top table.

Or possibly the tropic sun has an adding effect on the human brain.

Anyhow, since nearly always he is in an intact state when rescued, this would seem to indicate that the head-hunters of the Amazonian jungles are now getting fussy about the types of heads they collect.

Charms of Music.
ACCORDING to a medical professor in Pennsylvania, samples of whisky, when subjected to a musical sound treatment for seven hours, produce a liquor which equals one that has been aged in wood for at least four years. But why get excited about this? I've known certain brands of classical music which, in one evening, have aged a grown man to a point where he figures the present Christian era must be a few weeks over.

Only a few weeks ago, being soothed by the spirit of the approaching holidays, I suffered myself to be lured to a Chopin recital and got jammed in and couldn't escape and finally staggered forth into the night feeling that Methusalem had little if anything on me.

Being Afraid of the Dark

By Audrey C. Hayden

AS FAR back as I can remember I never was afraid of the dark. When I became a mother, I believed that there was no reason why any child should be afraid, and that if fear were never suggested in connection with darkness, it wouldn't occur to the child to be afraid. Darkness is a natural phenomenon, I reasoned, and one of which babies are not afraid.

Applying this theory, all went well with my own little girl, until something unfortunate happened. Either someone complimented my little three-year-old on her bravery, shown in going up to bed alone, or someone told an alarming story, or someone—well, no matter I don't know how it happened. This I do know: Jane began to say she was afraid of the dark—that frogs would get her.

Believe Fear Is Expected.
Now I really believe that most cases of fear of the dark on the part of children have no deep-rooted reason. When there is such a reason, if it can be found, of course very careful consideration should be given to reconditioning.

But most children fear the dark because they have somehow imbibed the idea that it is rather expected of them—that if they are not afraid they are very brave, but if they are afraid it is nothing to be wondered at.

I tried to reason with Jane, and showed her pictures of frogs to let her see how small they are, and also made a lot of "brave talk" about "a great big girl like you." But my efforts had no effect. Jane just cried and clung to my dress, and pulled me along with her to bed or the bathroom. She wasn't brave and wasn't going to be talked into it.

Imagine With Child.
It seemed best to accede quietly. I took her to the bathroom and to bed for two or three weeks, and I did it as a matter of course. I made it a point, also, to walk from room to room without a light as soon as she was in bed. After going downstairs I would come up on an imaginary errand, and walk about again in the darkness. On several occasions, a little before bedtime, we took walks together, and sometimes we went down cellar in the dark, but always without any mention of its being dark.

When she spoke of frogs I said yes, I could see them too—that it was fun to be able to imagine things, wasn't it? And the best part was that since they weren't real, you could stop imagining them whenever you wanted to. Once we got down and hopped around the room, playing we were frogs ourselves. I got some polliwogs for the fish bowl, and I bought a celluloid frog—but we were very matter-of-fact about it and frogs and darkness and fear were never connected in our conversation.

Darkness Is Ordinary Condition.
Then one day I felt very ill and spent the day lying on the couch. When night came and Jane wanted to go to the bathroom I called her over and said, "Now, Jane, Mother is sick, so you will have to go alone." And she said, "Yes." "It will be dark in there, do you understand? And I cannot come in if you call me to turn on the light," I explained. She thought a minute and then said, "All right." When bedtime came, I undressed her and sent her up to bed alone, and then casually sent another member of the family up on an errand. Jane had the idea, though, that I was sending her alone to bed, and that the company and the light were merely incidental.

The next night I went to the bathroom, ostensibly to get something, making it appear accidental that I went when Jane was there. Then I sent her off to bed alone casually. The next night I sent her to the bathroom and to bed in the dark without comment, and it has been a regular occurrence ever since. Did we get at the root of the trouble? That's hard to say since I never found out whether she made the dark into a very ordinary, matter-of-fact condition.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus, Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the trial package, ten cents for the final package. (Adv.)

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuhy
Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Vol. 4. No. 5.

Text: "Praise the Lord with the sound of the trumpet, with psaltery and harp!"—Psalm 150:3.

MUSIC—A GLORIOUS GIFT OF GOD

Not everyone is a talented musician. But it may be said that every good person loves good music. Shakespeare said: "The man that hath no music in himself, or is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils." Martin Luther said: "Music is one of the fairest and most glorious gifts of God, to which Satan is a bitter enemy, for it removes from the heart the weight of sorrow and the fascination of evil thoughts. It is a kind and gentle sort of discipline; it refines the passions and improves the understanding. Those who love music are gentle and honest in their tempers. I always loved music and would not for a great matter be without the little skill I possess in the art." Carlyle is often quoted as having said: "Music is well said to be the speech of angels." It is also said that instrumental music is the daughter of vocal music.

Fritz Kreisler says: "I was born with music in my system. I knew musical scores instinctively before I knew the alphabet. It was a gift of Providence. Music is too sacred to be sold; and the outrageous prices the musical celebrities charge are truly a crime against society. I never look upon the money I earn as my own. It is public money. It is only a fund entrusted to my care for proper disbursement."

In view of these choice quotations we can readily see that good music and musical talent are genuine gifts of the Lord. This gift also should be used in praising God and in glorifying Him. Music—speech of angels, a glorious gift of God. The Psalmist also exhorts us to praise the Lord with musical instruments when he says: "Praise the Lord with the sound of the trumpet, with psaltery and harp!"

Well do Christians know that they are under obligation to their Savior to carry out His great Commission: "Go, and preach the Gospel to every creature! The Word of God is effective not only when it is preached, but also when it is sung. Church services to the Lord can be enhanced, beautified, with good music. Everything we do should be done to the glory of God. And so with music. The musical talents of Christians should not be buried in the ground or under the bushel, but should be used to glorify and praise God, the Lord of heaven and earth, the Giver of all good gifts, the Creator of everything that is beautiful and useful. Luther stated: "Next to theology, I give to music the highest place and honor." The Word of God must always be placed first. Music can rightly be given the second place of honor, and especially basic, profound, substantial, conservative choral music written especially to praise and glorify God at home and in the house of worship. Let us praise the Lord with speech, singing and instrumental music!

JOYS OF MOTORING

TYPICAL EFFECTS OF A STRIKE IN ANY MAJOR INDUSTRY

The chart above shows how the chief effects of a strike begin immediately to spread in all directions. Back at the supply sources, cancelled orders for raw and semi-finished materials and equipment tend to create additional unemployment and lost business in ever-widening circles. In distribution channels, sales, employment, and income fall off more or less sharply. Transportation revenues shrink. Curtailed business and thin pocketbooks at the strike center, in the supply sources, and distribution and transportation channels result in generally reduced retail trade, smaller tax collections, increased relief burdens. This picture of the long trail of losses, even much simplified as it is, indicates why economists cannot estimate in advance the total cost of a strike. Studies of the losses from previous strikes show that their total cost amount to anywhere from 6 to 700 times the value of wages lost by men thrown out of work at the strike center itself.

Diner—Did you serve me this cherry pie today because it happens to be Washington's Birthday? Waiter—That's right. Diner—Well, get me his hatchet so I can cut it.

Sambo—Were you sick with the flu, Rastus? Rastus—Boy, was I sick? Why, every night I looked in the victim list for my name.

The mistress of the house heard the door bell ring and saw standing at the open front door a Chinese hawk. Quickly retreating, she called to the maid: "There's a Chinaman at the door. You go, Ella." This was too much for the Chinese, who stuck his head into the hall and shouted indignantly: "You go 'ella yourself."

One of the men spoke: "I dug this hole where I was told to and began to put the dirt back like I was supposed to. But all the dirt won't go back in. What'll I do?" For a long while the supervisor pondered the problem. Then: "I have it. There's only one thing to do. You'll have to dig the hole deeper."

"What happened to your face?" "Had a little argument with a fellow about driving in traffic." "Why didn't you call a cop?" "He was a cop."

Percy Speed of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, Canada, tried to jam a big piece of coal through the small door of his furnace. To make it fit, he broke it into pieces and found inside a 10-inch stick of dynamite apparently put there for a mine blast.

"I understand," said a young woman to another, "that at your church you are having such small congregations. Is that so?"

"Yes," answered the other girl, "so small that every time the preacher says 'Dearly Beloved,' you feel as if you had received a proposal."

Dodging work is hard work

Too much display means little merit.

Praise is as necessary to right living as fault finding.

Most people would rather be amused than instructed.

Some men's lives talk so loudly that you cannot hear their words.

A man's actions are his own business until they begin to influence others.

We note that a number of towns have declared war on stray dogs and are ordering stock pens out of the city limits, preparing for the summer season. Ordinances against dogs and unsanitary stock lots need to be enforced in all towns, as a health measure.

The health department of New York City is said to have a secret black list of some 48 medicines and 71 cosmetics that are known to be dangerous. Some of the articles are advertised everywhere, yet seemingly nothing can be done about it. However, it is a pity that such a list must be secret.

MAYOR GROWING BALD

Mayor Davis had grown prematurely bald. All that remained atop his scalp were six lonely hairs.

For years he pampered these six little hairs like the nurses fuss about the Dionne quintes. Three times each day he combed the six hairs very briskly. He had the barber massage his scalp regularly so that the hairs would have plenty of life and vigor.

One bright morning, then, Mr. Davis stepped out of bed with a smile on his face. He was feeling tops. He sang merrily as he dashed cold water on his face. He put on his clothes and then stepped up to the mirror. Suddenly, his face blanched as he eyed his reflection. He tottered, and had to grab a chair for support. For there in the mirror he had noticed that one of his six hairs had mysteriously dropped out while he was sleeping.

He began to sob brokenly.
 "My God," he blubbered, "I'm growing bald!"

News from Alanreed

Alanreed, Feb. 15.—Miss Pauline Crisp entertained the senior class of Alanreed high school with a dinner party Saturday night. Decorations of red and white were used to carry out the thought of St. Valentine Day.

After dinner, parlor games were played until about ten o'clock. Then the party journeyed to McLean to a midnight movie.

Guests were: Messrs. Billy Crisp, Nartille Stapp, Judson Tibbets, Coach Palmer, class sponsor, and Buss Ben- ton of Pampa; Misses Euline Sher- wood, Lulu Mae Dunkle, Faye Pettit and Marguerite Crisp. Miss Crisp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Crisp, acted as chaperones.

The seniors received their class rings, making the occasion a com- plete success.

Mrs. Ruth Thomas, formerly of Alanreed, has bought a beauty shop in Shamrock.

Mrs. Jennie Chapman and son, Bud, of Pampa were Alanreed visitors Sunday afternoon.

Robt. Crisp, T. E. Crisp and Mr. Nichols made a business trip to Clarendon Saturday.

Mrs. C. P. Hamilton and son Scooter, returned Saturday from an extended visit in Arkansas.

Paul Stauffer of Head is to speak at the Alanreed Methodist church Sunday morning, Feb. 21, from 11 to 12.

The Epworth League reports a very fine meeting Sunday night, with Coy Palmer in charge of the program. There were eight members and one visitor present. At the beginning of the church year, the young people resolved to buy new song books for the church. They are now beginning to raise the money and will appreciate outside help. The leaguers are hav- ing their monthly social Friday night with Mrs. J. P. Elms. All who are interested in good wholesome enter- tainment are invited.

Rev. S. T. Greenwood was unable to fill his place at the Baptist church Sunday on account of illness.

Rev. J. P. Cole of the Alanreed Methodist church is conducting a study course at the church. The book being studied is "What Every Methodist Should Know," by George R. Stuart. Meetings will be held Tuesday night and three nights next week. Anyone is invited to attend.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

One of the reasons why so many people in this country need old age pensions and social security may be found in their lack of management and thrift. The other evening we saw a young man stand up before a marble machine and shoot away a dollar and a half before he relinquished his position to another young man who repeated the process. I may sound petty to comment on this fact, but a leak like that on a relative basis would sink any business. The dollar and a half represented the young man's wages for a day, and such being the case, there is nothing that can be said in justification for his throwing it away in twenty minutes. In fifty years from now he will, in all probability, be seeking aid and claiming that he has not had a fair chance in the world, and that success belongs only to the privileged class. He belongs to a group in whose presence the word thrift is a sign of pettiness and is spoken of with contempt. He does not know that the competence of many an old person that insures them independence in their old age, and the feeling that they have paid their own way in the world, was built up by saving of less amounts than he throws away with such gestures of false self-sufficiency.—Lefors News.

CLAIMS

"Can you make me twenty-five again?" said the rich old miser to the monkey-gland professor.
 "Yes," replied the professor, "or eighteen if you like. But it'll cost a thousand dollars."
 "That's all right," replied the miser. "I'll have the operation to make me eighteen."
 Some time afterwards the professor called for his fee.
 "Nothing doing," said the miser. "I'm under age, remember, and if you say I'm not, I'll sue you for fraud."

TOO MANY CHURCHES?

Twentieth century Christendom faces many problems. One of the most serious and most baffling is the multiplicity of religious organizations calling themselves churches. Our mis- sionaries find it impossible to ex- plain to a pagan why there should be so many brands of Christianity on the foreign field.

To thinking people the situation is equally embarrassing at home. Travel where you will, you see in every ham- let two to a half dozen church houses, grim evidence of as many religious denominations, each manifesting a semi-belligerent attitude to all the others. And where there is co- operation, an honest, sensitive man almost feels that it is superficial and not hearty. Often they are hotbeds of envy, prejudice and strife. They do not help but positively hinder each other—sometimes unintentionally, but sometimes deliberately and designedly. May I show you a few samples?

12 Churches in Hamlet

Sample 1—A few years ago I was in a town of 800 inhabitants, not 60 miles from Fort Worth, and learned that they had 12 church organiza- tions. Six of these were Baptist churches—three white, three colored. I think all things considered, there is a good reason for having a separate church for colored people. But no man can justify six so-called Baptist churches in that community, to say nothing of six other church organiza- tions.

Sample 2—Within 30 miles of Fort Worth there is a village of 700 people. When I investigated a few years ago, they had seven churches, six of them having houses of worship. The Pres- byterians had two, Methodists one, Disciples two, Catholics one, Baptist one. Within five miles of this village there were four other little Baptist churches barely able to keep house. Does any thinking man feel that such a condition can be pleasing to Him who prayed that His people might be one?

Another Sample

Sample 3—In Central Texas I found a beautiful little city of some 10,000 people. In a certain section of it, within a radius of two blocks there were 14 religious organizations, four Presbyterian, two Methodist, two Dis- ciples, one Catholic, one Episcopal, one Baptist, one Christian Science, one Jewish, and one Y. M. C. A. costing $75,000.

Now, these are not exaggerated. They may be a little above the average, but they are cross-section samples of waste of religious forces by which we are causing Israel to sin. In many communities little idea organizations called churches by courtesy are so thick that they are in each other's way, treading on one another's toes, often spitting and quar- reling and clawing at each other like cats in a basket. The honest man who can thoughtfully look this situa- tion in the face and not be made sick at heart is either a fatalist in his philosophy or a pachyderm in his sensibilities.

The Tragedy of It

The tragedy of it is that while devout men in all denominations are thinking about it, nobody has offered a practical solution of the problem. Personally, the more I study the question, the more I feel like a little child lost in a wilderness. There are three things of which I am absolutely sure. The first is that these petty denominational tribes are in violation of the spirit and will of Jesus Christ. The second is that they shamefully hinder the progress of His kingdom; the third is that the various remedies proposed—amalgamation, federation, co-ordination, community church, etc.—are superficial, inadequate, imprac- ticable. I find that many people are distressed over this situation and are daily praying that God will raise up a modern Moses who, under Divine guidance, will lead His people out of their bondage to outworn traditions and personal egotism from which most of these divisions spring, and turn their hearts to the authority of the Holy Scriptures and the absolute lordship of Christ as the one hope of curing these devastating tribal distinctions.—Jeff D. Ray in Star-Tele- gram.

WASTE LAND

A mountaineer and his son made a trip to town for the first time. The old man was greatly interested in the pavement. Scraping his foot on the hard surface, he remarked to his son: "I don't blame them for build- ing a town here. This ground is too hard to plow, anyhow."

A storekeeper had for some time displayed in his window a card in- scribed "Fishing Tackle."
 A customer drew the proprietor's attention to the spelling.
 "Hasn't anyone told you of it be- fore?" he asked.
 "Hundreds," replied the dealer, "but whenever they drop in to tell me they always buy something."

HE TAKES PAPER TO READ ADS

A good friend of the Herald, we are not calling any names, remarked lately that he took the Herald just about as much for the price quotia- tions as for the reading matter, and that since there were fewer quota- tions in it, the paper had become less valuable to his family than formerly. This man was "cussing" no one, but was just giving his opinion. He fur- ther remarked that there were more of his neighbors trading in other towns than at any time since he came here.

On an average more people read the home paper, and read it more closely than any paper they get, be- cause they are personally acquainted with most every person mentioned in the columns. They are also interested in the progress and upbuilding of the town and community, and the local paper gives many times more of such than any other outside paper. Sometimes deliberately and designedly. May I show you a few samples?

If it was possible to compute it in dollars and cents, it would easily be found that the home town paper gives more of its time and money to public and private enterprises than any other two or three agencies in the town. Take most any average week, and there are from 15 to 25 columns of reading matter about the town and community, their progress or heartaches.

"Well, says one, it don't cost you anything, and it's your duty to do it." We'll admit the latter, but when you think it does not cost anything to operate a linotype machine, or that white paper the reading matter is printed on, you are badly off.

We have never asked any merchant here to "support" the Herald, because it happened to be a semi-public in- stitution, asking only for support be- cause we believe that it pays the ones that use our columns.

But no paper can successfully do business without the support of the business men of the town. It must be and is a half-hearted fight—Terry County Herald.

EATING RATTLESNAKES

Rattlesnake killing and canning has become a profitable business since a farmer on the edge of the Florida everglades introduced the white, gli- scening meat to a hesitant public a few years ago. Started as a fad, the meat is now in demand in many markets. Don't be surprised if rat- tlesnake meat in a few years, replaces chicken salad, tuna fish, and other popular "snack" fillers.—Snyder Times.

Guess that we are not much of a faddist, so we'll never be guilty of eating a bite of any kind of wriggling coiled reptile, unless it is disguised on us as something else, and then we'll be tempted to shoot the bird that perpetrated the "joke." For the same reason, we never could eat a damned eel, as we always suspected them of being a double-half-uncle of the snake. And we never could eat a shrimp, as they looked too much like a grubworm which in turn in the infant of a tumblebug. We may be finicky about our eating, but we have lived too long out here in West Texas on red beans and saw-belly to be changed to questionable "grub." Come to Terry!—Terry County Herald.

RULES OF THE GAME

A kind hearted gentleman saw a small boy trying to reach a doorbell. He rang the bell for him, then said, "What now, my little man?"

"Small Boy—Run like blazes; that's what I'm going to do."

A family visiting in Rome were driving past St. Peter's Cathedral, when they were stopped by a great traffic jam occasioned by a magnifi- cent religious ceremonial that was about to take place. They saw a most im- posing procession coming out of the church. At its head walked a group of men in glittering ceremonial garb. The colored chauffeur gazed in open- mouth admiration at the magnificent display, and he said to his boss: "Cap'n, who is dem grand-looking men wid dem red hats?"

"Those are the cardinals," replied the gentleman.

The darkey's interest rose to fever pitch.
 "Sho nuff, boss?" he said. "Ah been wantin' to see dem all mah life. Which one is 'Diszy' Dean?"

The candidate was rather surprised when he faced the "audience" to find it consisted of one solitary person. Realizing, however, that an election may be won by one, so to speak, he braced himself up and delivered his address as to a "packed house."

After an hour and a half of pledges, and promises, he wound up with:
 "And now, my dear sir, I will not encroach upon your valuable time any longer—"
 "Oh, it's all right, gov'ner," inter- rupted the "audience." "Fire away! Don't mind me; I'm only your taxi- driver."

SLEEPY HOLLOW

A successful business man, after eight years of absence, alighted at the station at the old home town. There was, despite his expectations, no one on the platform whom he knew. No one.

Discouraged, he sought out the station master, a friend since boy- hood. To him at least he would be welcome, and he was about to extend a hearty greeting when the other spoke first.

"Hello, George," he said. "Going away?"

"Do I really need brushing off?" asked the passenger in the Pullman.
 "Does you?" exclaimed the port- er with great emphasis. "Boss, I've broke."

"You ignorant dope, you borin' kid. I hope I never see your ugly face again. I hope you drop dead. I'd like to push you off a cliff."

"You mean you don't like me?"

Companion squares in fllet croch make the loveliest household accessories. A square at a time made in spare moments—time you'll never miss—and before you know it you'll be ready to join them for a cloth or scarf. As a bedspread, too, this design will be a winner. Use string—it's easy to work with, inexpensive, lovely when done, and wears like iron. If it's gifts you're thinking of, use a finer cotton and make a pillow top, vanity set or other small articles that take but a few squares. In pattern 5738 you will find instructions and charts for making the squares shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backaches, persistent headaches, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Prevent, remedy or burning poisons may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the majority of leading medical authorities on all drug stores.

THE HOME FLOWER GARDEN

(From talk by T. A. Landers, at the McLean Garden Club).

It would seem to be presumption to try to talk to the Garden Club about flowers, and after hearing the talk you might be tempted to say just what the polite minister said when the amateur soloist asked him if he thought her singing good.

There is something about a flower garden that tends to bring out the best in people. Perhaps it is because we are nature's children after all, and our hands move as if by instinct to digging in the ground and to the planting of things that grow and blossom.

We all love flowers from childhood. Little children instinctively pick flowers as soon as they are able to walk. Even the untaught savage adorns his person with flowers, and a garland of flowers is the oldest form of votive offering.

Garden Clubs and Better Yard Contests as a part of the American Green Cross movement, are teaching us that our home grounds can be made livable and attractive at little cost—in fact, the cost of the garden means little, as one can have a place with the proper planting and care at very little cost, that will compare very favorably with places costing much more.

Living in the clean air among beautiful trees and flowering shrubs will bring you health, happiness and peace—what more is there to be desired? Will you not then feel with the poet:

The kiss of the sun for pardon, The songs of the birds for mirth, One is nearer God's heart in the garden Than anywhere else on earth."

It is hard to estimate the real value given the home by the well-planned garden. It is claimed that the trees in the yards of Greenwich, Conn., are worth not less than one-fourth of the town's assessed valuation. Dr. E. B. Felt says that the refusal to part with a tree for $10,000 is not unusual and that he knows of 50 fair-sized elms which sold for $5,000 each.

Those who love gardens know the meaning of true happiness. James Oppenheim once said: "The foolish man sees happiness at a distance, the wise man grows it under his feet."

There is a life-giving tonic in the sun-washed air and strength in the freshness of the upturned earth. There is peace and contentment in the great harmony of growing things from the buds of spring to the ripe fruits and red-gold leaves of autumn.

Living in the clean air among beautiful trees and flowering shrubs will bring you health, happiness and peace—what more is there to be desired? Will you not then feel with the poet:

The kiss of the sun for pardon, The songs of the birds for mirth, One is nearer God's heart in the garden Than anywhere else on earth."

SAFETY OR THIS? DEATH, in the guise of heavily loaded motor trucks, rides the highways of Texas every day and every night. The toll of human death and injury of these vehicles is appalling. In the five-year period, 1932 to 1936, inclusive, trucks in Texas have participated in 8,416 highway accidents in which 2,195 persons were killed and 11,962 injured. In 1936 alone, their record stood 2,208 accidents with 3,323 persons injured and 376 killed. These actual records of people killed, as shown by Texas newspapers, compared with the number of deaths resulting from all motor vehicle accidents, as given by the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Austin, show that the average Texas truck participates in twice as many fatal accidents as the average passenger car. Likewise, as might be reasonably be expected from their greater weight and size, and as shown by the records of the Texas Railroad Commission, the Carrier-for-Hire truck accidents, during 1936, have resulted, vehicle for vehicle, in three times the number of fatalities as for the average passenger car. Increased liability to highway accident forms an inseparable result of BIG truck operation. But even now, the threat of greater highway hazards hangs over the people of Texas. Newspapers report that operators of BIG trucks have organized for the purpose of securing an increase in weight and speed limits, already too large. These are the elements, weight and speed, which, in highway accidents, spell D-E-A-T-H. The right to grant, condition or deny the use of the highways for profit, belongs to you, the people of Texas, notwithstanding the attempts of the operators of BIG trucks to take it away and give it to the federal government instead. Your present laws, limiting the size, weight and speed of trucks, were enacted by reason of your insistence, and by your insistence they have remained on the statute books. Their amendment would serve the sole purpose of increasing the profits of operators of BIG trucks, with the certain results of also increasing the mounting toll of injuries, deaths and property losses now taking place on your highways. Public welfare and public safety demand that existing highway regulations shall be retained and enforced. THE TEXAS RAILROADS

Chic Hats with Chic Spring Suits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A TAILORED suit season is predicted, with interesting news in regard to blouse and accessories which, it is said, will be frilly and fluttering and utterly feminine no matter how severely tailored the suit. A further important message is navy twills for the smartest suits; also comes forward that beige will be a big color factor this spring.

Of course chic suits call for chic hats and milliners were never more up and alert in answering the call. What with sailors, berets, bretons, pillbox types, callotes (those wee caps French milliners adore), hats a la Rembrandt or Rubens, shapes that turn definitely up at one side, and a riot of turbans with countless variations, it is going to be a most exciting millinery season. You can see that from the very start.

Then too, the startling innovations that are taking place in the matter of hairdress is having a tremendous influence not only on the hats themselves but equally so on the way we wear them.

As to trimming, this is to be a feminine season, flowers, ribbons, bright colors, feathers, lace and all that, with veils of devastating coquetry to give glamor to the occasion. There will be veils of every description from long scarf effects that drape dramatically about the shoulders as you see at the top to the right in the picture, to perky little crisp affairs as centers the group here shown.

The models pictured indicate the far-flung scope of ideas that are influencing the new millinery program. The hat on the seated figure conveys the message that shallow sailors will be worn, welcome news to many women who always dote on this type of hat. This clever sailor tops an exceedingly smart and practical ensemble of beige wool. It is taffeta in a soft brown with coral-rust grosgrain bands and bow. These rust and brown and coppery shades together with beige have been voted as high-style coloring.

The young girl standing wears a five-piece ensemble of herringbone tweed. It is an ideal outfit for cruise and southern wear and to bring back north for spring. The general tone of the woolen is grayish pale blue (all blues are especially smart just now) with multi-color flecks woven through it. Note that the cone-crowned breton is worn back on the head to show the youthful brush-off-forehead hairdress.

The little pillbox hat as shown above to the right is a winning number and in shiny black straw is proving a midseason favorite. The chiffon scarf-veil draped about it which is effective for afternoon is detachable at the back leaving a trimly tailored hat for general wear. Another popular trim is a military silk tassel falling down over one side.

For the utterly feminine model centered in the group three American beauty silk roses are posed atop a tiny off-face toque that is based on the cap fashion which is just now a reigning favorite in Paris. This one is of navy blue felt and is worn far back on the head in latest approved manner. The stiff flaring wide mesh navy veil is indicative of the types that will be worn this spring.

Milliners are giving versatile interpretations of the breton. Centered below is a new adaptation tuned to the new high headdress. It is of black milan trimmed with bluish violet belting ribbon. The suede gloves match the ribbons on the hat—which is well worth remembering for colorful gloves are still tres chic.

BOLD FLORALS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It is the fashion to get print, it behooves milady to be fully selective in choosing the print for the right occasion. Formal gowns the logical choice are huge florals spaced few and between. The dinner ensemble is of white silk crepe print with exotic flowers. It has a chic bolero jacket with ruche trim.

STRIPES IN EVERY PHASE OF FASHION

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion places definite emphasis on stripes for spring and summer. Stripes are as important for the evening mode as for sports and daytime wear.

Dine and dance frocks made of handsome striped crepe or taffeta or colorful metal weave are among the outstanding successes on the current style mode.

For afternoon and informal dinner events the jacket blouse fitted to perfection or the simple girlish over blouse of gaily colorful stripe registers among the smartest items of the season.

Bold, bizarre stripes in Roman and candy-stripe variations, also novelty stripes that have flowers and fruits and other design worked into the stripe are going big in the southern resorts. They are particularly good in linens and cottons, and are made up into evening gowns, full length beach coats, blouses, sports dresses and accessories of every description.

Fur-Trimmings With Coats to Match Popular

Suits with fur-trimmed, full-length coats to match are just as popular as they have ever been. A grand suit, with a jacket that is buttoned high in the neck, is being shown in blue, brown and beige herringbone tweed. The matching topcoat has a huge, notched beaver collar. Another three-piece model, in a very vivid blue nubby woolen, has the topcoat enhanced by a full-length stole collar of gray kimmer.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 21 THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT — John 11:23-28, 32-44. GOLDEN TEXT—I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25. PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus' Friends Stopped Crying. JUNIOR TOPIC — With Jesus at Lazarus' Tomb. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death.

Life, even to the follower of Jesus Christ, has its hours of sorrow, suffering and bereavement. While the Christian is not "of the world," he is "in the world," and here he must meet the problems of life, including the evils to which the flesh is heir because of sin.

The fact that Jesus is our friend and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust Him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he does not come.

Why does he delay? Such is the heart-cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need but to trust him and abide his time. Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (11:7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part, he knows all. Let us trust him. Job in his darkest hour said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." (Job 13:15)

It is suggested that the lesson for today be studied and taught by considering three pairs of words giving cause and effect.

I. Death—Sorrow (vv. 32-35; also vv. 19-21).

Try as we may to temper its cruel blow, the fact remains that death is the enemy of man. It came into the world as the result of sin (Rom. 5:12), and only in Christ is it "swallowed up in victory" (1 Cor. 15:54). Until the glorious day of Christ's returning when the redemption of the body will be complete (Rom. 8:23), death will still be the enemy which brings sorrow to the heart and tears to the eyes.

But let us not fail to notice that as the friends of Jesus we do not sorrow alone. He is with us. "Jesus wept" (v. 35) with Martha and Mary. He weeps with us in our trying hour. He is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

II. Faith—Hope (vv. 23-28).

Those who believe in Christ have more than the comfort of his sympathizing presence—they have a sure hope. Read I Thessalonians 4:14-18. Sorrow and unbelief would becloud our faith and thus rob us of our hope. Martha needed to have her faith stimulated by the gracious words of the Lord, and then she triumphantly puts her hope in him as "the Christ of God." Once we recognize him as God, we have no hesitation in believing in his miraculous power.

III. Christ—Resurrection (vv. 25, 28, 38-44).

Majestic and authoritative are the words of Christ, "I am the resurrection and the life." He it was who gave life, for was he not "in the beginning with God"? And it is not said of him that "all things were made by him"? And Paul tells us that "by him all things consist." He is the only one who could say, "I lay down my life. I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17, 18.) So it can rightly be said that if we have Christ we have everything—both in this world and in the world to come. But if we do not have Christ we have nothing. We are without God and without hope.

One can sense the urgency of the soul-winner's task, when this truth is known and realized.

Happiness and Love

Happiness is the legitimate fruitage of love and service. It never comes and never can come by making it an end, and it is because so many persons mistake, here and seek for it directly, instead of loving and serving God, and thus obtaining it, that there is so much dissatisfaction and sorrow.

Life and Freedom

That life is only truly free which rules and suffices for itself.—Butler.

"SURE SHOT" ADVERTISING

The chamber of commerce made a wise move, we believe, last week when an "advertising committee" was appointed to pass on all out of town peddlers of various and sundry wares.

Every business man should demand the OK of this chamber of commerce committee before trading with the fly-by-night stranger. Of course, there is nothing compulsory about it, and the business man who likes to be bothered with all kinds of grafts and schemes may continue to handle his own cases, but as a general rule it will be a safer plan to demand the C. of C.'s OK.

Business men are human like all other people and do all they can to keep the good will of the citizens of the community, but we see no good reason why they should be the legitimate prey of every "solicitor" who comes along.

We have had several complaints registered during the past few weeks by business men on so many solicitors with local people helping in the projects. Business men of Monahan are the best we have seen anywhere to contribute money to worthy causes.

One business man expressed the sentiments of this writer pretty well when he said he was perfectly willing to donate to any church that needed song books, but had no desire to use a church house for advertising his wares.

The News commercial printing department does a lot of printing for out of town men and women who "work the town." As we set and print many jobs we are made to wonder why we continue to give our money to the fellow who is here today and gone tomorrow.

There will never be an ideal situation, but it can be helped a great deal with friends cooperating with regards for the rights of others. Give the man who comes along with something worth while an OK and insist on others going their way or making it without the chamber of commerce committee's approval.

HIS WILL

An old negro woman and her small son had come to a government lending agency to attend to the mortgage on her house, after her husband's death.

The government agent asked, "Maudy, did your husband leave a will?" She answered proudly, pointing to her son, "Yasuh, Will, Jr."

SOLID IVORY

Before they wed She often said He had a "marble brow." After a year All you'll hear He is a "bonehead" now.

No stronger argument that advertising pays could be found than is revealed by the study of the enormous sums spent last year by the most successful business institutions of this country for publicity. General Motors heads the list with $7,231,260 spent for advertising in 1936.

Only 1 out of 100

By Bruce B. Brewer

As I write this I have before me a big city daily newspaper having a circulation of 200,000. Here is the advertisement of a grocer in an outlying residential section. Not more than 10,000 families live within trading range of his store.

Only one of every 100 readers of that big city paper is useful to that merchant! He pays for 99 others—99 out of every 100—which are wasted readers to him.

Contrast this with your weekly newspaper. Everyone is a prospect. Everyone is within trading range. Everyone reads every page because on these pages is the most interesting news in all the world: news about people they know.

No city newspaper can compare on a basis of page-to-page readability. No city merchant has the advantage you have, Mr. Merchant, in the advertising columns of your weekly.

I asked the city grocer mentioned above if his advertising is profitable at the high rate he has to pay. At first, he said, it was not, but after using it regularly he finds that it pays. I told him then of the opportunities small city merchants are passing up to use, at low rates, local weekly circulation that is 100% useful, with no waste.
