IN THE FAMILY

For about an hour a man from Denver had been boasting to an Irishman about the magnificence of the Rocky Mountains.

"You seem mighty proud of them mountains," the Irishman observed. "You bet I am," replied the man from Denver. "And I ought to be, since my ancestors built them."

The Irishman thought this over for a few moments and then asked: "Did you ever happen to hear of the Dead Sea in—in one of the old countries?"

"Yes," replied the man from Denver. "I know all about the Dead Sea." "Well, did you happen to know that me great-grandfather killed the thing?"

At a territorial camp a battalion was being instructed on "How to take a convoy through open country." One company was told off to represent a convoy, the men being told that they were to represent horses, cows, and wagons. When the order to advance was given, the convoy moved on, but the major noticed that one man continued to lie down. He galloped up to him and said, "Why don't you advance?" The man replied, "I can't, sir." "You can't? What do you mean?" "I'm a wagon, and I've got a wheel off."

"SIT-DOWN" SAGA

Sing a song of "sit-down," the pocket full o' lunch. Who's the guy that started this awful sit-down hunch? For auto workers' unions and even five and ten. Are just sittin' and waitin' for the big word "when."

When Nero sat and fiddled while Rome was all ablaze, Did he really start it or is "sit-down" just a craze? Now judges "sit" and PONDER, juries "sit" and THINK. Darwin "sat" and WONDERED about the missing link!

The guy who "sits" and SITS is classed all by himself, For he is doing nothing for good old pantry shelf! Why don't he take up knitting and purl a stitch or two, He then can sit and KNIT . . . and have a job to do.

The principle of Archimedes proved that he's no dub, While "sitting" he discovered DIS-PLACEMENT in his tub! The old, old law of gravity while "sitting" soon was found By Newton, watchin' apples swiftly hit the ground.

"Sitting Bull" was famous, Rodin's "Thinker," too, Wonder what they THOUGHT about. Is SITTING really new? Chic Sale was a "specialist" . . . the "sit-down" architect. That guy made sit-down glorious, for those in "retrospect."

On "sit-down" boys we ruminate, and history's pages view To see Napoleon sitting down while losing Waterloo. Paul Revere was sitting down when he raised the call, "To arms!" Our flag was born a-sitting from Betsy Ross' charms.

The "squatters" had the idea when they SQUATTED for their rights, They won on technicality by "sitting down" for sites. Man Mountain Dean while rasslin' is certainly no quitter, He subdues foes quite easily with his scientific "sitter."

Old biddie in the chicken coop, she sits in expectation, Lays an egg for profit's sake and beats mere contemplation. "We're sitting for a principle," the boys on strike all say, But who will sit in judgment on good old judgment day?

"Let's not establish precedent, it's harmful for the future, Let's arbitrate and cogitate and not be too darn raise-sure." (I'm quoting from the leaders, brimful of analyses, And wondering who'll furnish salve for all the callouses).

So when the battle's over and the boys stand up and cheer, Remember the FAMOUS sitters from Nero to Paul Revere. The "sit-downers" made history and raises, they sure got 'em; They'll tell of many battles won by sitting on their bottom!

—Claude M. Howser, in Greater Detroit Realty News.

THE LIGHT TOUCH

A man learning to fly invariably holds the "stick" too lightly. He may even "freeze" onto the controls and cause a crash. He is tense, nervous, fearful. The instructor's task is to teach the student the "light touch"—the light, relaxed, confident touch that marks the master aviator.

Many business crashes have been caused by men who tried too hard—who "froze" onto the "stick" of their business planes. A man who is personally acquainted with many of America's most successful executives says that practically all of them are "easy going" fellows. They do not fret and worry and fear. They have applied the "light touch" to their jobs. They do their tasks with quiet faith.

It is when we try too hard to hit a golf ball that we top it. It is when we try too hard to make a strike that we have our worst hits in bowling. When we forget ourselves, take our time and relax, we get the best results.

The worried, hurried, anxious man makes the most mistakes. He has less to show for his efforts in sport or business. Mastering the art of the "right touch" is one of the big secrets of achievement and happiness.

PATRIOTS

By Wright A. Patterson

On Monday, May 31, I watched a Memorial Day parade as it passed along Michigan Avenue in Chicago. To me it depicted epochs and periods in American life since 1861. The many thousands of people along the route applauded the men who fought America's wars for the past three-quarters of a century.

As I watched the passing of that parade I thought of another group to whom the nation owes more than the people realize—the editors of America's country newspapers, past and present.

The country newspaper is one of the pre-eminent American institutions. Its service dates back to before the days of the Revolution. It was a material aid in cementing together the colonies in their struggle for independence. It was an outpost at Bunker Hill, at Valley Forge and at Yorktown. It has been enlisted in every struggle of war or peace that has confronted the nation.

It led the vanguard of American advance westward from the Atlantic Ocean. It helped to found and build Ohio, Kentucky, and on to the Pacific. It pioneered in covered wagons onto the plains west of the Mississippi. Around it communities were built, counties organized and states created.

The country newspaper represented the advance of American civilization, the taming of the wilderness and the plains.

The country newspaper has been, and still is, a typical American institution, representative of intelligent American freemen. It has been, and still is, a bulwark for American ideals. From the ranks of the men who have produced it there have been drawn a large number who have served with distinction in many lines.

The American country newspaper is today doing its job as it has done it in the past. Around it communities are maintained as cultural and business centers. It is preserving the American country community, and that is the part of America that is most truly American.

The country newspaper, and the men who made it and are now making it, have a definite place in American history.

IF THINGS KEEP ON

This country is headed for one grand mess, if the drift of today continues into a succession of tomorrow. The decline in the courage and responsibility of legislative bodies is matched by the rise in the appetite of hordes of relievers for easy money out of the public treasury. But the apathy of the supposedly informed and substantial citizenry is more alarming still.

If you are too partisan in your affection for the President to realize the situation at Washington, you are at least aware of the condition at Austin. The law-makers of the state are making all haste to throw away millions of revenue at a time when the deficit is greater already than ever before in the history of Texas. Members of the Legislature frankly confess themselves helpless in the presence of insatiable demands from pensioners, social-security suckers, and vote-bearing tax parasites in general. That is going to get worse if it does not get better—it cannot stand still.

The whole sit-down, bank-night, gimme-ratic, panhandling, something-for-nothing spirit of our times is wrong—vitally wrong. And it is all tied up together. Those of our so-called political leaders who have not encouraged it and traded on it are running from it in cowardly stampede. You know that is true.

The most dangerous part of it all is not that we are throwing money right and left, not that we are growing a generation of incompetent unemployables shepherded by an army of taxeaters, not that microphone crooners of abracadabra formulae hold the public ear, not even that the whole program of boondoggling leaves as its principal monument piled up debts and deficits. The most dangerous part of it all is the vacuous pride of dumb indifference of the people who are going to have to pay the fiddler—and don't know it.

Wings Are Handy Things

A bird's wings are not just for flapping and flying. Among uses some birds find for their wings, J. W. Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.
If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses head and lungs, making life miserable.
You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.
Thousands of sufferers have found in Adlerika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adlerika rids you of gas and cleanses four poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleaning with Adlerika. Get rid of GAS. Adlerika does not grip and is not habit forming. Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eye—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, seamy or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

PRIZE WINNING ESSAY

"Why I Want to See the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition at Dallas"

(By Doris Rigdon, 6th place winner.)

Nothing I could do, no place I could go, no scenes I could see, would seem so inviting as those at the "Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition." Right now I can see the long arm of Dallas rising above her skyscrapers and beckoning me on to her fair city.

The history section would be very interesting to me because I like history. Some of the scenes in the Cavalcade to which I look forward are: Columbus discovering America, Austin bringing the first immigrants into Texas, the cultivation of Texas soil and crops, Samuel Morse's invention of the telegraph which caused the world to grow smaller and made everybody neighbors. The progress of transportation, the improvement and evolution of Dallas itself from a log cabin to a city of skyscrapers, which houses over 300,000 friendly Texans who are striving to bring the people of the New World together as one big family, would mean a lot to me.

I would like to see the animals that live in North America, South America, and Central America, such as: the bear, elk, tiger, lion, deer, buffalo, mink, beaver, and moose. I would like to see the coyote which howls at night while he lies in wait for the chickens that are locked in the barnyard; the skunk—that pretty animal whose odor is certainly not Evening in Paris perfume—the beaver, builder of dams in which each is an artist in his trade—whether he be felling the trees, laying the framework or mixing the mortar of mud and water with his broad flat tail; the snake around the tree trying to get the old mother bird's eggs while father bird is attempting to charm the snake. All these, and more, I'm told I can see in the museum of natural history, and how I should enjoy several hours in this building!

A trip to this exposition would make my school work easier and more interesting. It would broaden my horizon in the history, science, and home economics fields. It would develop my desire for travel. In fact, a trip to the "Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition" would be worth nearly as much as a trip through the three Americas—and a lot easier and less expensive.

Automobiles are very interesting to me, so I would like to stay in the automobile buildings for a long time. I would enjoy seeing the first car that was made, which was thought to be a very nice one in the early days. I should find it interesting to view the progress of transportation and look at the artist's conception of what transportation will be like in the future. How I would enjoy ordering a new car and watching the workmen assemble it there in the building, then getting in it and driving home! But, alas! That is only a dream and could not come true in 1937, but perhaps in 1947 or 1957. Who knows?

"Ranchmen and farmers in Northwest Texas are calling on county agricultural agents for aid in the work of improving their ranges and pastures."

Colin Walton of Castro county, who harvested 48 pounds of buffalo grass seed during the fall and winter, sowed the seed in March on 70 acres of land which was covered with a heavy growth of wheat. Walton used a wheat drill, with the discs barely touching the ground, to scatter the seed evenly over the tract. He also has on hand 90 pounds of gramma grass seed which he will plant later.

In Scurry county, 53 ranchmen have entered 135,968 acres of range in the range conservation program. Most of these ranchmen plan to construct earthen tanks and a number will build contour ridges to hold moisture and prevent loss of native grass seed.

A seven acre pasture on the W. L. Hawk place near Lakota, Jones county, has been contour ridged. Hawk removed mesquite and prickly pear before terracing, and will defer grazing.

FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER
FLOYD GIBBONS
ADVENTURERS CLUB
How Everybody

"Cherchez La Femme"
 By FLOYD GIBBONS

THROW another log on the fire, Uncle Mike, call all the neighborhood adventurers in, light the old pipe, settle back and I'll tell you the story of the doggondest adventure I've heard in many a moon.

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the Malamute saloon when out of the darkness and into the light there stepped—a blond.

Oh! Oh! I'm getting ahead of myself. Allan J. McDonald now lives in Chicago. But a couple of years ago he was a reporter for a paper in El Paso, Tex. That's right across the Rio Grande from Juarez, Mexico.

Well, sir, it was Al's night off and he and a bunch of the boys went across the Rio Grande to Juarez. They went into a couple of bars, had a few drinks and along about midnight decided it was time to start back to El Paso.

Out Ran the Blond Girl.

As they stepped out of a bar onto the dimly lit street a tall blond American girl went running past them. Close at her heels and cursing in Spanish was a swarthy Mexican. The girl was screaming and it didn't take Al and his friends long to realize that the girl was in trouble.

With a yell they were off in hot pursuit.

Up unpaired alleys they dashed, slid around dusty corners onto dark streets, shouted and yelled. No one paid any attention to them nor did anybody else join the chase. Suddenly they came to the banks of the Rio Grande and then the girl and the Mexican disappeared into thin air.

Al and his pals looked around a bit but couldn't find a trace of the girl or the Mexican. So the boys started back toward the center of the town. They hadn't gone half a block when from behind them came fifteen Mexicans on the run waving all kinds of weapons in the air and shouting at the top of their lungs.

Al tells me that in the glance he gave over his shoulder before he started to beat it he saw, lead pipes, old boards, knives and razors strapped to hammer handles.

Great Battle in the River.

Well, sir, Al and his two buddies started. They started right for the Rio Grande and the good old U. S. A. The river at that time of the year was practically dried up. There was only about twelve inches of water in it so it was possible to wade across. They hit the river a few feet in front of the Mexicans but the mud slowed them up and one of the party fell. The Mexicans were on top of them and the fun began.

Boy, oh boy, what a battle royal! Three against fifteen. Al and his friends had no arms. They were trapped properly.

It was darn tough to defend yourself in that slippery, muddy river bottom. Every time you took a swipe at a guy your foot would slip and five Mexicans would be on top of you. It was easy then to slice an ear or klunk you over the head with an iron pipe.

Al wrestled with one Mexican and succeeded in getting a lead pipe away from him. Then Al swung that lead pipe left and right. Every head he saw that didn't look like his own he brought that lead pipe down on it with gusto and then it was a case of cracks.

Pat Was Mortally Wounded.

There was one Irishman with Al of the name of Pat Stacy. Pat knocked three of them that gents down before somebody shoved an old-fashioned hat pin clean through him. Pat died three weeks later from lobar pneumonia.

The other friend of Al was knocked out early in the fight and fell into the water. Why he didn't drown Al doesn't know.

For twenty minutes they fought in the Rio Grande that night before help came. But to Al, those twenty minutes felt more like twenty years. The border patrol finally heard the commotion and broke up the affair. Al was minus part of an ear, his head and chin were slashed up and both his lapels were cut completely off.

The fellow that was knocked out and fell in the river didn't have a scratch on him. Was he lucky? And were you lucky, Al? Believe me, I've been in Juarez and I know they used to get pretty rough over there.

All right, Uncle Mike, I'll tell you about the blond. She was the comelon for the Mexicans. They pulled the same stunt often and it is said that it was a profitable business, although Al never could figure out how it could be so good when the take had to be split fifteen ways.

Judge Extols Dog From Bench in Damage Suit

In rendering an opinion in a damage suit in which a man lost his life trying to rescue a drowning dog, a Georgia supreme justice devoted a half hour to extolling the virtues of dogs and two or three sentences to his decision, states a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Part of the justice's remarks were as follows: "From the dawn of primal history the dog has loomed large in the art and literature of the world. In metal and in stone his noble image has been perpetuated, but the dog's chief monument is in the heart of his friend, man. As a house pet, a watchdog, a herder of sheep and cattle, in the field of sport, and as the motive power of transportation, especially in the ice fields of the far north, the dog has ever been a faithful companion and helper of man. In the trackless forests of the new world he was on the firing line of civilization in the task of subduing all enemies, whether savage man or wild beast.

"Literature is enriched by the story of Ulysses' dog, Argos. After twenty years of war and wandering this king of Ithaca returned, unrecognized in his beggar rags, but as he entered the courtyard his hound raised up his head and pricked his ears.

"Among many of the most beautiful of nature's plants and trees we have the dogwood, dog daisy, dog laurel, dog rose, dog violet, and the like.

"Baron Cuvier considered the dog 'the most complete, the most singular, and the most useful conquest man has gained in the animal world.'

"Alexander H. Stephens wrote for his sagacious poodle, Rio: 'Here rest the remains of what in life was a satire on the human race and an honor to his own—a faithful dog.'

"Tributes might be multiplied almost without number. Like man, not all dogs are good dogs. They have left behind them records showing every degree of good and bad."

Lesson for June 13

THE BROTHERLY LOVE OF JUDAH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-34. GOLDEN TEXT—Let brotherly love continue. Hebrews 13:1. PRIMARY TOPIC—Benjamin's Big Brother. JUNIOR TOPIC—Big Brothers. INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Loving as a Brother. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Self-Sacrifice in the Family.

The fundamental unit of society is the family. It is of more importance than the state, the church, and the social order of which it is a part. The breakdown of the home and the sacred relationships sustained between parents and children, or brothers and sisters, points to the destruction of society itself.

God established the family in the garden of Eden. His plan and purpose have never been changed, nor have his laws for the protection of the home, for the sanctity of marriage, for brotherly love, been set aside. Men and nations may devise other plans and follow the dictates of the flesh, but that road always leads to ruin.

The continuation of our story of the life of Joseph and his brethren brings before us today the filial and paternal love of Judah, and affords us an opportunity to stress true brotherly devotion. No one should fail to review the connection between the chapter before us and the lesson of last week. Joseph had been dealing with his brethren who had failed to recognize him as the one they had sold into captivity. He was bringing them kindly but definitely to that point of repentance at which he could show himself gracious to them. In doing so he had brought disaster upon them. Being happily on their way homeward with a new supply of food, they were overtaken and Benjamin, the beloved of Jacob, stands accused as a thief, and by their own words condemned to die.

In this crisis the mouths of the ten others are closed, but Judah, who had really saved the life of Joseph (Gen. 37:26, 27), stands forth to make an eloquent and pathetic appeal to Joseph. It presents him as a brother who is

I. Courageous

Easy rests the yoke of family life as long as all is joyful and prosperous. But when adversity strikes, when sorrow comes, or sickness, or sin, then the true test of devotion is at hand.

It was a brave and manly thing for Judah to stand before the one whom he knew only as the man who was "even as Pharaoh." The circumstances were all against him. He expected the flaming anger of the offended ruler. His brethren had collapsed in despair. It was one of those dark hours which come to every family when someone must demonstrate true love by being strong-hearted and steady.

II. Intelligent

Crises call for more than a cheerful smile or an encouraging word, much as they do mean in such an hour. But we must be prepared by our close contact with our loved ones to speak and act with vigor and assurance.

The plea of Judah is a masterpiece of logic, argumentation, and appeal, demonstrating that Judah was not only well-informed about his family and its problems, but ready to use his knowledge skillfully and effectively.

III. Sacrificial

One step deeper goes the devotion of this man to his father and his brother. He has done no wrong that merits punishment, but evidently his brother has been guilty. Had he been of the spirit of Cain he would have said "Am I my brother's keeper?" and let him answer for himself. Why should he suffer for another? Why should he allow himself to be imprisoned in a strange land to save his father from sorrow and his brother from what seemed to be the just reward for his deeds?

Thus reasons the man of the world, but such is not the language of love. "Let thy servant abide instead of the lad as a bondsman"—so speaks the true brother. And this is but a faint prefiguring of the One "who sticketh closer than a brother," who "though he was rich, yet for your sakes became poor that ye through his poverty might be rich" (Prov. 18:24; II Cor. 8:9).

Let us improve the opportunity to review our relations with our own family, to determine whether there is aught that is in intelligent and courageous self-sacrifice should do for our own.

An Aim in Life

We want an aim that can never grow vile, and which cannot disappoint our hope. There is but one such on earth, and it is that of being like God. He who strives after union with perfect love must grow out of selfishness, and his success is secured in the omnipotent holiness of God.

HOW PARENTS MAY MAKE SURE SCHOOL CHILDREN SAFE

How can parents find out whether the school their children attend is safe?

Since the explosion in New London, Texas, the Office of Education has received thousands of requests from parents wishing to find out how they can make sure their children's schools are not open to the same dangers. To meet the demand for information on safety hazards in schools, the office has prepared a bulletin called "Safety and Health of the School Child."

This bulletin contains a list of more than 200 questions which parents and school officers should ask themselves about conditions in their schools.

"Is your school building considered fire resistive by your insurance company?" "Are the fire escapes in the school adequate?" "Is the school nurse trained in first aid work?" are some of the questions suggested.

School officials themselves can consult directly with the experts on the subject in the Washington office of the Office of Education. Parents who want the bulletin can obtain a copy by writing to the Office of Education, Washington, D. C.—United States News.

The News is indebted to D. H. Kerr for a fac-simile copy of "The Daily Citizen" of Vicksburg, Miss., published July 2, 1863, printed on wall paper.

You don't buy an awning—you buy shade.

You don't buy life insurance—you buy education for the children, cancellation of the mortgage, and income for the wife.

You don't buy membership in the chamber of commerce—you buy cooperation of the most able business men of the town.

Big business men, men of national and international influence, are strong believers in the importance of the functions of a chamber of commerce and the invaluable service which it renders to business and the community as a whole. We hear these men of prominence continually testifying by deed and work to the value of organized community cooperation.

Your membership in the chamber of commerce buys vital, active co-operative force which is making a better city in which to live and do business. It buys the cooperative efforts of your fellow citizens to do the things for your interest which you cannot do alone!—Amarillo C. of C. News.

A woman went to see a doctor. "Doctor," she exclaimed loudly, bouncing into the room, "I want you to say frankly what's wrong with me."

He surveyed her from head to foot in his best professional manner. "Madam," he said at length, "I've just three things to tell you. First, your weight wants reducing by nearly fifty pounds. Secondly, your beauty would be improved by freer use of soap and water. And, thirdly, I'm an artist; the doctor lives on the next floor."

The nation's capital is said to be the largest tree city in the world, what with 121,625 trees on its streets. If planted in one row with their average spacing of 52 feet, they would extend for a distance of 1,200 miles.
