McLean Boys Make College Class Praxies

Three McLean high school graduates have been presidents of their senior classes in college. Orville Cunningham, a member of the McLean high school faculty, was president of his senior class at West Texas State College at Canyon.

Frank Cunningham, brother of Orville, now principal of the Quail school, is president of this year's senior class at Texas Tech. He is vice president of the Educators' Association and a newly organized teachers' association.

Charles Waters is another McLean who was president of his senior class at Tech in 1937. Frank Cunningham was sponsor of the senior class here last year, and served as basketball coach. The girls won the regional championship under his leadership, defeated Spearman for the annual, and held Allison, state winners, to the same score that won the championship. McLean was unanimously declared second best in the may be possible that Cunningham will be boxing coach at McLean this year. Five of the eight men he coached won first place in the A. A. tournament at Amarillo. Three championship titles are held by Cunningham, two at Lubbock and one at Canyon.

The Cunningham brothers are sons of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Cunningham of the Liberty community.

CHARTER MEMBER NEWS READERS' CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Rice are charter members of the News readers' club having taken the paper every day since it was first published in 1904. McLEAN TO TAKE PART SOUTHWEST CELEBRATION

At the regular monthly meeting of the chamber of commerce held Monday evening, it was suggested that the Geo. W. Sitter buckboard be offered to the Amarillo committee as a part of the Southwest celebration, with possibly T. L. Lovelace, aged 100, and Mrs. Martha A. Rogers, 96, riding in the parade.

T. A. Landers, chairman of the McLean committee, was asked to communicate with John McCarty, general chairman, on this matter.

C. O. Greene of the local highway committee, reported the state designation of the McLean-Pampa highway, giving full credit for the good work of his committee. Mr. Greene also stated that the state highway department might take over the bonds issued to build the road.

Much favorable comment was made on the Fourth of July rodeo, and plans are already forming for next year's celebration.

The Lions convention at Oakland, Calif., came in for discussion, and the body adjourned at a late hour, with the following present: W. T. Adkins, W. E. Bogan, T. N. Holloway, C. O. Greene, C. J. Magee, Jesse J. Cobb, Boyd Meador, Creed Bogan and T. A. Landers.

McLEAN-PAMPA ROAD A STATE HIGHWAY

Culminating many months of effort on the part of Gray county citizens to have the McLean-Pampa highway designated as a state highway, the matter was accomplished Friday when the State Highway Commission accepted the road and will maintain it as a part of the state highway system hereafter.

The new set-up will save the county many thousands of dollars in repair bills each year.

A SLUMBER PARTY

Miss Vada Appling was hostess at a slumber party at her home Thursday evening, July 21, to the following girls: Misses Jackie and Margaret Foley, Evonne Floyd, Glenda Landers, Julia Mertel and Viola Appling. Refreshments were served at midnight, after which the girls made candy.

HAIL DESTROYS CROPS

A heavy hail fell northwest of town Saturday, destroying all crops in its path. The hail strip was about three miles wide and around 10 miles long. A similar hail fell in Wheeler county, from Twitty to Allison, at about the same time.

CARPENTER-WHITTEN WEDDING MONDAY

Married Monday morning, August 1, 1938, Miss Vera Carpenter of Lefors, and Mr. C. B. Whitten of Matador.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's brother, D. C. Carpenter, of McLean. Rev. W. B. Swin, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiated before an altar banked with palms. Baskets of white gladioli, and white tapers in cathedral candelabra were used as decorations. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, and the wedding march was played by her niece, Miss Juanita Evelyn Carpenter.

The bride wore a navy crepe dress with net ruffles on the short sleeves and bottom of the flared skirt. Her only ornament was the bridal corsage of lilies of the valley and rose buds. Her hat was a navy blue model, very small and chic, with matching accessories.

An informal reception was held after the ceremony, with members of the immediate family attending, after which Mr. and Mrs. Whitten left on a motor trip to Mexico City.

The bride's going away costume was light blue-grey suit with navy blouse, navy hat and accessories, and a long blue-grey crepe coat.

Mrs. Whitten received her bachelor of science degree from West Texas State College at Canyon. She has been teaching in the Lefors schools, having formerly taught in McLean.

The groom received his A. B. degree from Commerce College and his LLB from Lebanon, Tenn. He is county attorney of Motley county.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitten will be at home to their friends at the Matador Hotel in Matador, after returning from their trip.

McLAUGHLIN SELLS INTEREST MOTOR CO.

Scott Johnston and son, Elton, went to Pinson, Okla., the first of the week.

Cap Humphreys was in Kermit on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Thomas were in Pampa Saturday.

District Office Shelterbelt May Be Here

According to Junior Foreman W. J. Grigg, of the shelterbelt district office at Shamrock, a similar office may be had in McLean this fall, if as much as 100 miles of new shelterbelt plantings are secured within a ten mile radius of McLean.

Mr. Grigg made the announcement at the Lions Club luncheon Tuesday, and the matter was turned over to the major activities committee to work with a similar committee from the chamber of commerce. County Agent Ralph R. Thomas and Vocational Teacher C. J. Magee also promised close cooperation in presenting the matter to local land owners.

Mr. Grigg says that there are only about 13½ miles of plantings around McLean at the present time, with some 200 miles available, if consent of the land owners can be obtained.

For 100 miles of trees, some 100 WPA workers will be employed and some $25,000 spent in the McLean area.

Mr. Grigg insisted that no belts are wanted on farms where the farmer is not sold on the shelterbelt idea, for those not fully interested will not be likely to give the young trees proper care. The speaker also stated that it is not the purpose of the shelterbelt plan to plant orchards, despite the fact that some fruit and nut trees are included, and while some choice of trees is allowed, the choice must of necessity be confined to the trees that the government has on hand.

Mr. Grigg was presented by Lion Tamer Joe Dowlin, who also presented Ralph R. Thomas, Norman Trimble and W. T. Wilson as club visitors.

The set program feature included a talk on preventable diseases by Dr. H. W. Finley, who was introduced by Dr. C. B. Batson, chairman of the day's program committee.

CHALLENGES THE N.L.R.B. Hoffman of Michigan Will Test Freedom of the Press ... Texas Democrats Nominate a Yankee

David E. Lillenthal, TVA director, at left, trying to explain to the congressional investigating committee the methods by which TVA "yardstick" rates for power were established. Next to him is J. A. Kurg, chief power planning engineer; and at extreme right is Dr. A. E. Morgan, the deposed head of the authority.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

CLARE E. HOFFMAN, republican congressman from Michigan, has challenged the National Labor Relations board in the matter of constitutional guaranties of freedom of speech and of the press. He sent to the board a letter recalling that the body recently declared the circulation of a house speech by Hoffman constituted an unfair labor practice under the Wagner act. In the speech Hoffman declared that known communists were active in the Committee for Industrial Organization and denounced C. I. O. sit-down strikes as communistic methods.

"This speech," Hoffman's letter said, "was republished, with illustrations, by the Constitutional Educational league of New Haven, Conn.

"I am now offering, and intend to continue to offer, to furnish to any and all interested persons, including employees, employers, or others, copies of this address for circulation at the actual cost of printing, and to recommend that employees might well read this address before joining the C. I. O."

Commenting on the letter, Representative Hoffman said that the board's ruling would preclude the distribution of newspapers containing news items or editorials critical of any organization or of activities of the labor board.

The American Federation of Labor charged in its official organ, the American Federationist, that maladministration of the Wagner act is threatening American democracy. The publication printed an editorial bluntly accusing the National Labor Relations board of promoting the rival Committee for Industrial Organization "which seeks to set up a dual labor movement despite all the social and economic waste which dualism involves.

"Every agency of the government that gives status to the C. I. O. gives the same recognition," it continued. "Surely this is not freedom for workers to choose their own unions and representatives for collective bargaining, but union development under government patronage."

Texas Picks a Yankee TEXAS Democrats in their primary selected a Yankee to be the next governor of the state. W. Lee O'Daniel, born in Ohio and raised on a Kansas farm, received a clear majority over 11 other candidates for the nomination which is equivalent to election.

O'Daniel is a four jobber. He campaigned with a hill-billy band and a platform that included the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, ridicule of professional politicians, promise of a business administration and more liberal pensions for the aged.

More important nationally was the fact that Rep. Maury Maverick, leader of a considerable bloc in congress, was defeated for renomination by Paul Kilday, a San Antonio attorney. Maverick is an enthusiastic New Dealer. Kilday says he will not be a rubber stamp.

Two other administration backers were defeated for renomination. They were Representatives W. D. MacFarlane and Morgan Sanders.

Third Term Boost

GOV. FRANK MURPHY of Michigan told Democratic leaders of the state that Michigan must keep its mind open on the possibility of a third term for President Roosevelt. Said he: "The welfare of the nation and continued success of the New Deal must come first. If the success of the New Deal depends on President Roosevelt running for a third term, then we must be prepared for that."

Murphy's statement is only another indication that the third term movement is growing rapidly. Various groups have petitioned Roosevelt to run again in 1940, and Republican National Chairman Hamilton says WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins launched a third term boom the other day when he asserted that 90 per cent of those receiving relief would vote for Mr. Roosevelt again.

Of course Mr. Roosevelt says nothing about all this, but political observers seem to agree that if the 1940 convention does not appear ready to get together on a candidate who would and could carry on the New Deal, the President might well consider it necessary for him to accept another nomination. Breaking a precedent wouldn't worry him.

To Expand Business Loans

CHAIRMAN JESSE JONES of the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced a new policy for forcing the expansion of business loans, by which competitor banks will be pitted against each other. When a loan applicant approved by the RFC is turned down by his local bank an RFC agent will contact the bank and try to persuade it to participate in the loan. If it refuses the RFC agent then will contact a competitor bank.

In its most optimistic monthly business survey of the year, the federal reserve board said industrial production is on the increase and available data indicate that in July the index will show a considerable rise.

The business summary particularly pointed out healthy business signs, noting that activity in many industries was on the increase contrasasonally.

Hull Prods Cardenas

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL, out of patience with Mexico, sent to President Cardenas a sharp note protesting Mexico's failure to pay for American owned farm lands that the Mexican government has seized. Mr. Hull asked that the matter be submitted to arbitration. The secretary has in this the full approval of President Roosevelt, for the administration feels that Cardenas is endangering the "Good Neighbor" relations between the two countries.

Sen. Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee also backs up Mr. Hull, asserting that if Mexico refuses to arbitrate she will be subject to economic penalties.

"Mexico," he said, "then would forfeit all the financial and other voluntary aid we have given her through our spirit of friendship and desire for peace, prosperity, and upbuilding of that country."

Spanish Rebels Gain

SPANISH insurgents started a drive in Estramadura region in the southwest as a feint to prevent reinforcement of the loyalist eastern front, and found the loyalist defenses were astonishingly weak. So they went ahead in a whirlwind attack that gave them possession of 23 important towns and villages.

The Barcelona loyalist government announced acceptance of the international plan to purge Spain of its foreign forces. Insurgent General Franco was expected to follow suit shortly and accept the plan framed by Great Britain and sponsored by the 26-nation non-intervention committee.

RUTH: ADVENTUROUS FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Girl Named Ruth. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Ruth. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth's Wise Choice. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—An Adventurous Faith.

Out of the dark fastnesses of an underground dungeon into the brightness and warmth of God's sunshine—such is the transition we make when we turn from the moral and spiritual failures of Samson to consider the lovely story of Ruth. She lived in the midst of the travails and the sorrows of life, in fact we find her at the beginning of the book which bears her name, a widow who has lost all that the world would hold dear. Yet she, because of her purity of life and devotion to God rises higher and higher, while the one of whom we spoke last week, starting with every advantage, slipped lower and lower because of his sin.

Ruth was the great-grandmother of King David, and thus this Gentile woman became one of the ancestors of Jesus. (See Ruth 4:22 with Luke 3:22.) Many folk are greatly concerned about their ancestry—one could wish that more were concerned about living such lives and developing such characters as will make them good ancestors.

Teachers and classes will do well to read and study the entire book of Ruth—only about three pages long in most Bibles—and give attention to the full story of her life, especially the picture of the kinsman-redeemer, to be later fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ. We must confine our comments largely to the printed portion which reveals Ruth first as a loyal and thoughtful daughter-in-law, then as one whose love was not to be denied by sorrow or circumstance, and finally as one so bound to her mother-in-law in unity of spirit that she became one with her and her people.

I. Commendable Loyalty (vv. 6-10).

Tragic misfortune had visited Naomi, who with her husband and two sons had gone from Bethlehem to Moab in a time of famine. Not only had her husband died but also her two sons, who had married Gentile women, leaving three widows in one family to mourn together. Naomi craved the fellowship of her own people in her hour of trial and arose to return to her own land.

Her departure brought out in the two daughters-in-law the expression of kindness and loyalty which should exist in every family, but which is all too often lacking. Her own testimony concerning these girls of Moab is that they had dealt "kindly" with her and with the dead. That word speaks volumes. There is so little genuine kindness in the world. Both Orpah and Ruth went with her on the way—protesting their loyal purpose to go with her all the way. Thus far the two sisters were not differentiated—but the next incident reveals Ruth as the one who had an

II. Undeniable Love (vv. 11-14).

No one could for a moment condemn Orpah for yielding to her mother-in-law's entreaty that she return to her own people. She affectionately kisses Naomi and in tears turns away. "But Ruth clave unto her."

Such love cannot be denied. It is the most precious possession that a man can have, apart from his fellowship with God. The love of a devoted father or mother, of a noble helpmate, or of a little laddie or lassie, these are the things that really make life worth while, that stand out as an oasis in the desert of life, as a light in the darkness.

But Ruth takes one more step. Her kindness and loyalty, her unswerving love lead on to a confession of her faith in the true God, and the declaration of an

III. Inseparable Unity (vv. 15-18).

Literature knows no more beautiful gem than verses 16 and 17. It was the Great Commoner, Bryan, who said, "We cannot hope to contribute to literature a sentence so exquisite and thrilling as that into which Ruth poured the full measure of a noble heart, but we can imitate her devotion."

The story is told of a fine young Englishman who left his betrothed sweetheart to go to California during the great gold rush. He was going to make a fortune and then send for her. He sent her his first gold nugget. But alas, there were none to follow and soon he became not only poverty stricken, but ill. In noble sacrifice he decided to release her from her promise, and wrote to tell her so. She (and one could almost believe her name was Ruth) took the treasured nugget, had it made into a ring engraved as a gift from her to him, with the additional words "Ruth 1:16, 17." In due time it reached the young man with its tender and inspiring message—"Treat me not to leave thee," and the assurance of her devotion until death.

May this dizzy and bemuddled world have many more situations like Ruth.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HAVE your door space going to waste? There is always the inside of a closet door—even in the tiniest apartment. A pocket like the one shown here gives a place for shoes, whisk broom, hat brush, shoe brush and even a dust cloth to have within easy reach when tidying up the bedroom. A large pocket at the bottom takes care of small pieces of laundry.

as well as suggestions for making are given here in the diagram.

There are other doors in every house where pockets of various types and sizes may be used to good advantage. The broom closet door offers a place for cleaning brushes and bottles of furniture polish. Two large pockets on the pantry door—one for clean dish towels and one for soiled ones, have been in use in my kitchen for years. A large pocket of heavy ticking on the inside of the door leading to the basement makes a place for old newspapers that are so useful for many purposes. Pockets on the inside of a door leading to the attic often make a place to keep small cleaning

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Don't Wrap Ice.—It is poor economy to save ice by wrapping it in heavy paper or cloth; such a covering insulates the ice from the rest of the refrigerator.

Keep Peas From Burning.—If a slice of bread is put in the kettle when making pea soup the peas will not sink to the bottom and burn.

Dry Picking Chickens.—Dry picking is better than scalding when plucking a chicken or turkey. Unless done very quickly, scalding will harden the skin.

For More Light.—Keep your electric light bulbs and lamp shades clean if you want to get the most light from them. A film of dust on a bulb will reduce the intensity of light. Dust or dirt on a shade will dim it.

Humble Work

It is a great mistake to suppose that the best work of the world is done by people of great strength and great opportunities. It is unquestionably an advantage to have both these things, but neither of them is a necessity to the man who has the spirit and the pluck to achieve great results. Some of the greatest work of our time has been done by men of physical feebleness.

SURGERY FOR PLANTS

"What's the idea of tying the sticks to the top of that evergreen?" asked neighbor Brown.

"Accidents will happen with plants just as they happen with people," I replied. "The leader uppermost vertical branch of evergreen was broken last year by that Cannard juniper, and I am helping the plant form a new leader. The cane tied to the central stem of the plant is similar to the doctor's splint. It is holding one of the vigorous lateral branches near the top in a vertical position. This lateral branch will form the new leader. Several years from now you would never guess the leader had been broken."

"What would happen if you didn't perform this bit of plant surgery?" asked Mr. Brown.

"The plant would probably grow in an irregular, shrubby type of plant rather than the pyramidal form. However, these junipers sometimes form new leaders, although it takes from two to three years, and where they are given, the leader is established the first year.

"This spring the April freeze killed the leaders of many of our young specimens in Oklahoma. Nurseries have had to assist thousands of plants in the formation of new leaders. In their operations no splint is used, the two uppermost laterals on opposite sides of the main stem are tied together. This pulls both upright. Eventually one of them will be removed, leaving the other vigorous upright branch.

"Examine your evergreens—if the leader is gone, you can be the doctor."

HUNTING REGULATIONS TEXAS WILDLIFE

Aug. 3.—Dove hunters of this state will not be subjected to a series of conflicting regulations such as they had last year. The Game Department has announced that compared to those of last year, the regulations are fairly uniform.

Combined state and federal laws governing both mourning and white-winged doves provide the following seasons:

From September 1 to October 31 in counties of Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Rockmarton, Young, Jack, Wise, San Collin, and Hunt, and all counties north thereof; and the counties of Parker, Tarrant, Dallas, Kaufman, Johnson, Hopkins, Delta and Franklin.

The remainder of the state the season on both species is from November 15 to November 15. Because the Texas-Mexican Railway in the Rio Grande Valley, however, only days of shooting each week of the open season will be allowed on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays—but this exception is not applicable to Webb and Garza counties.

Hours for shooting mourning white-winged doves during the season are from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Other species may be shot with any other than a shotgun, and the shot shall not be larger than No. 10.

If it is a repeating or automatic shotgun it must be permanently limited to a three-shell capacity.

The daily bag limit is 15 in the aggregate of both mourning doves and white wings. The possession limit is also 15 in the aggregate of both species.

Shooting of doves of either species is prohibited by federal regulations.

The new federal migratory waterfowl regulations announced recently, duck hunters will have a 45-day open season this year compared to a 30-day open season in 1937. In addition may shoot a limited number of species hitherto protected.

The open season on ducks and Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe, and on coot, is from Nov. 15 to Dec. 29.

The open season on rails and gallinule coot, is from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31.

Only has the open season on mallards and geese been lengthened, but possession limits have been increased.

The bag limit on ducks, except the mallard, is 10 in the aggregate of all kinds, the same as last season. The possession limit has been increased to 20 in the aggregate.

Season hunters may take three ducks, redheads, buffle heads or mallards in their daily bag, or a mixture of three birds of the same species. The possession limit on ducks is six of any single species or six in the aggregate.

The daily bag limit on geese and mallards is five in the aggregate of all species. The possession limit has been increased to 10 in the aggregate

The daily bag limit on rails and gallinules, except sora and coot, is continued at 15 in the aggregate of all kinds. The possession limit is the same.

Bag limits for some of the other migratory game birds are: Sora 15, coot 25, Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe 15. In each case the possession limit may not exceed the daily bag limit.

A new federal regulation added this year forbids the rallying of coot for hunting.

As was the case last year, waterfowl and coot may be hunted in season from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Not more than two days' bag limit of lawfully taken and lawfully possessed ducks and geese may be transported in one calendar week. Transportation last season was limited to one day's bag.

Chief restrictions in this year's federal regulations that have been continued from last year are:

Baiting of waterfowl and doves and the use of live duck and geese decoys in hunting waterfowl are not authorized, regardless of the distance between the bait or decoys and the shooter.

FIXING IT UP

When the newlyweds boarded the train, the embarrassed groom tipped the porter liberally not to disclose that they were just married.

On the way to breakfast next morning the couple was the object of many grins, stares, and craning of necks. Furious, the groom upbraided the negro porter.

"Nossuh, Boss," George replied, "Ah didn't tell 'em. When dey asked me if you was just married Ahs ays, 'No, Suh, dey is just chums.'"

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who has about lost her appeal to men, who want speed, nerves and snappy spirit. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Life E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, especially for women. It helps Nature speed up physical resistance, thus helps give you vitality to enjoy life and avoid nervous, pitiful nervous and disturbing symptoms of often unnecessary change of life. WORTH TRYING!

"GONE-WITH THE WIND"

A western farmer stopped at a bank to see if he could get a loan on his farm.

"It might be arranged," said the banker. "I'll drive out with you and appraise it."

"You don't need to bother," said the farmer, noticing a huge cloud of dust rolling up the road. "Here it comes now."

The amateur band practice was in full swing but something had gone wrong. The conductor glared at the cornet player.

"Why on earth did you leave off playing just as we got to the chorus?" "Well," retorted the cornet player, "on my music it says 'Refrain,' so I did."

"OVER THE TOP"

with CARY for

DISTRICT ATTORNEY

CARY is a married man with a family to support. He led the ticket in his home county, where his opponents also live. He is a mature man, and a practicing lawyer of recognized ability.

CARY stands squarely against "Public Gambling Joints," "Liquor-by-the-Drink Joints," and all other "Law Violating Joints." He believes that such places tear down the efforts of our schools, churches, and civic organizations to build up a better citizenship. He believes that allowing these joints to operate means that the men whose duty it is to enforce the law simply did not do their duty. He also believes that such conduct on the part of law enforcement officials destroys respect for all effort to enforce other laws. Why enforce some laws and not others? The answer is "MONEY." Who gets it? A few favored law violators enjoying "Special Privileges."

CARY'S slogan from the beginning of his campaign has been, and is now, "Justice for All" and "Special Privileges for None."

"Over the top" with CARY for District Attorney, August 27.

"WASN'T DAD SWELL TO GIVE US

THIS ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR?"

It's a grand gift for any young couple, or for a middle aged couple, for that matter. Because it's a watchdog of the budget. It doesn't let anyone waste things. It's a help in other ways, too. Entertaining, for example, is so much easier, so much more fun, can be so much pleasanter, when there's an electric refrigerator to make all kinds of delicious cold foods, and to provide plenty of clear, pure ice cubes. And there's the money saving in shopping less often, buying in larger quantities and taking advantage of bargain prices. But don't wait for someone to give you an electric refrigerator. Buy one yourself, out of income, the way Dad's buying the one he gave.

And Dad's Pleased, Too!

He has to pay is a small monthly installment. He thinks that's a mighty way to give a present. And it is.

Our Imprint

We consider our imprint is the equivalent of a guarantee; it's not mere advertising. It doesn't appear on much of the printing that we produce, because it is not intended to intrude.

But when you see it you may be sure that the firm on whose printing it appears may have suggested it themselves. They know that it is the Hall Mark of a printing house that has earned the reputation of honest work well done. That is why they like to be identified in their business dealings with the imprint of The McLean News.

To us this is a constant challenge. It's one thing to have earned a reputation—it's another thing to continue to merit it. And that is what we strive to do in all our dealings with the list of clients to whom we send statements monthly.

Readers of this paper may well look for the words "Printed in McLean" on their favorite dealer's advertising matter. It is a symbol not only of quality printing, but it also identifies the merchant who is practicing what he preaches, in dealing with home institutions, in the effort that the whole community may grow and prosper.

SYNOPSIS

Alan Cameron, young trapper, Noel, his Indian partner, and Rough, husky Ungava dog, look in vain for the Montagnais trappers camp in the desolate Big River...

"Tonight we'll eat, Noel; tonight we'll eat!" Dizzy from weakness Alan started for the cabin. Reaching the slab door he struck it with his mittened hand and called out: "Hello! Hello there, inside!"

For answer the door slowly swung in and the two pinched faces in the hoods stared into the black muzzle of an automatic pistol.

In all the wide north, starving men were not greeted in this fashion. Alan Cameron's hollow eyes flamed with anger as he met the cold stare that probed his.

"You don't need that gun!" he rasped. "We're starved out. Our trap-lines are up on the Mad River. We trade at Fort George. A wolvenine got into our cache and destroyed every bit of fish and flour we had."

The threat slowly faded from the cold eyes and the gun went back to its holster. "Starved out, eh? You look it!"

"We're on our way to the Sinking Lakes to find the Montagnais."

"Well, you'd have been out of luck if you hadn't struck this place. There are no hunters on the Sinking Lakes this winter."

Alan and Noel exchanged peering glances.

"Now, boys," continued the giant. "I've got some caribou stew in the kettle that'll wipe that hungry look of your faces. Come in!"

"My dog, here," said Alan. "You'll give him something, too?"

"There's plenty of stew for you all. Unhitch him and bring him in."

Dropping to his knees beside Rough, as he threw off his collar and belly-band, Alan whispered into a hairy egr: "You hear that, Rough? No more tough wolf!"

"Drop your coats and moccasins and make yourselves cozy, boys," said their host, as the two starved men sucked in the appetizing odors emanating from a huge copper kettle, perched on a sheet-iron folding stove which stood at the side of the clay-plastered fireplace.

The giant filled two aluminum cups and a pan from the kettle. "You'll get just one cup apiece, now. It'll knock you out, if you hog it in your condition. I guess the dog can stand a panful."

The speaker placed a dish, cooled with a handful of snow, before the ravenous husky, dropped some snow into the cups and handed them to Alan and Noel.

"Steady, boys—not all at once!" he warned, as the two feverishly drank the nourishing and palatable broth.

"We've been living on wolf the last week—what there was of it," said Alan. "I got two but they were like rawhide—no strength in them."

"Timber wolves!"

"No, white arctic wolves."

"That explains it—hunting south for the caribou, and most of the deer have moved east out of this country."

"That's why the Montagnais did not winter on the Sinking Lakes," nodded Alan.

Seated on a chair made of split spruce shabs, Alan threw curious glances about the interior of the cabin while the big, yellow-haired man offered Noel a plug of smoking tobacco and cut fillings for the huge pipe he held in his hand. The spruce walls were carefully chinked with moss plastered with mud. Two small windows made of caribou parchment through which the last rays of the sun dimly entered were used in lighting the room by a large candle set in a horn stick. On a wall a pair of caribou antlers held three rifles, while from their bows hung two belts with sheathed skinning knives. Built into the corner of the room was a double-decked bunk, matted with spruce boughs and covered with Hudson's Bay blankets and dressed caribou and bear skins. Near the bunk a ladder of spruce poles reached to a trapdoor in the loft over the main room, and, at the end of the room, for the chimney was on the side of the building, a closed slab door, hung on rawhide hinges, communicated with a second room.

where were the others? For what were they here? As the giant turned to him when he had lit Noel's pipe and his own, Alan pleaded: "Just one more cup of that stew!"

"No more, now," was the answer. "I'm boss here! Lie down, you two, and get some rest like the dog there. He's asleep already."

"Onlee-wan more drink?" teased Noel.

"No, not a mouthful!" The bearded man lifted a big hand in a gesture of refusal. "In an hour you'll have more. Then, when you get some strength, we'll talk. You're weak as rabbits, now."

So Alan and Noel stretched upon the lower section of the slab and almost immediately the warmth of the cabin and the food in their stomachs brought sleep.

CHAPTER II

An hour later Alan and Noel rose from the bunk, their drawn faces beaming at the thought of food. Smacking their cracked lips, they drank the nourishing liquid and asked for more.

"Hello, dad! Where did this sled and dog harness come from?"

"No, not yet!" refused their host. "It won't do to eat too fast. When did you lose your grub?"

"We left our camp ten days ago, with three rabbits."

The cold eyes softened. "Tough!" Then Alan suddenly demanded: "Rough?"

"He's out by the sled. Call him in."

Alan opened the door and the husky limped stiffly inside, emptied the pan offered him and sprawled on the floor with a contented grunt.

"Mind telling me where you got that dog?" asked McCord.

"I got him as a pup from a north coast Eskimo."

"He's a beauty," said the man with the scar, admiring the massive head with its black and white markings, the great frame, with white chest and socks.

"Since we're going to see something of each other before you head for home," went on the giant, "what's your name?"

"Alan Cameron. My father was factor at Fort George. My partner's name is Noel Leloup."

The big man extended a calloused hand to each of the boys. "My name is John McCord. Welcome to Castle McCord!" he added with a laugh.

Alan's mind was busy with the mystery of how this yellow-haired giant had found his way to the Talking River whose headwater lakes lie on the frontier of an unknown country. Who was he? Why did he come? Where were his men and dogs?

"You know where you are?" asked Alan. "On the edge of an unknown wilderness. No hunter knows what lies beyond the Sinking Lakes. The Montagnais will not cross the divide."

The bearded man threw back his head with a great laugh. "I suppose there are evil spirits there, too, and giant Windigo who eat men alive?"

Into the dark eyes of Noel stole a look of uneasiness. Among his people belief in the supernatural was universal and to them the unknown heart of Ungava had, for generations, been a taboed land, the home of demons.

"It's simply a question of grub," Alan replied. "To go far into this country, a man would have to winter there and find the caribou—or starve."

The big man nodded. "That's it! It's always a matter of grub in the bush. Ever hear of the River of Skulls?"

"Riviere of Skulls!" gasped Noel. His small eyes wide with fear. "De spirit riviere, far een de lan' of de Caribou People!"

"The old Montagnais have many tales of this unknown country," explained Alan. "This River of Skulls is supposed to be haunted by spirits. No one has ever been there. It is old men's talk."

The man with the livid scar looked hard at the speaker, as he said: "How do you know no one has ever been there?"

Alan answered coolly, "No one from Fort George has ever been there."

"Guess you're right, lad! And it's supposed to flow into the Koksoak—this River of Skulls?"

"I don't know. It may flow into the Koksoak. Gabriel Dessane, at Fort George, says that all the rivers northeast of here must flow north into Hudson's Straits. He was once trader for the Revillon Freres at Fort Chimo, on the Koksoak."

The eyes of the giant burned with sudden interest. "On the Koksoak, eh! At Chimo, and he's now at Fort George? By glory, that's interesting!"

The sudden rising of Rough who moved to the door, a low rumble in his throat, checked the speaker. "Someone is coming," announced Alan, watching the face of the big man slowly expand into a smile.

McCord threw open the heavy slab door of the shack.

"Hello, dad! Where on earth did this sled and dog harness come from?"

from! I noticed the trail on the river."

Beside the boys' sled, with a 22 caliber rifle in one hand, the other holding three snowshoes rabbits, stood a slender, hooded figure clothed in white Hudson's Bay duffel.

"We've got some visitors," replied the man in the doorway. "Hang those rabbits up and come in before these boys eat up all of your supper." Then he closed the door and turned to his bewildered guests.

"I didn't tell you I had a partner wintering with me," he explained, with a chuckle. "In fact I wouldn't have known what to do without her. I see from your face you think I'm crazy to bring a girl into this country," he added to Alan, who shook his head doubtfully.

"But she wouldn't let me come alone. I know I was wrong, but what could I do? She's as strong and able as a boy; good shot, handy in a canoe and can walk me off my feet. Well, here she is!"

The door opened and the girl closed it behind her and stood leaning against it. With a toss of her head, she threw back the hood of her parka. Her face, browned by sun and wind, was framed in a tumbled mass of gold.

"Heather," said the giant, with a wave of the hand, as the questioning eyes of the girl sought his, then curiously met the embarrassed gaze of the boys, "Alan Cameron, here, of Fort George, with Noel and Rough, walked in today, starved out."

"Gosh! That's too bad!"

"She's John McCord's daughter," thought Alan, as he noted the tall, symmetrical build of the girl which even the parka coat and the heavy duffel leggings failed to conceal. "She has it all, the blue of his eyes and the yellow hair."

The girl gave her hand to each of the boys then, as Rough nosed tentatively forward, ears pricked, brown eyes watching her closely, she cried: "What a beautiful dog! Dad, if we only had a team like—what did you say his name was?" She turned to Alan, painfully aware of his ten days' growth of beard and his winter-worn clothes.

"Rough."

"Come, girl, get off your coat and those heavy moccasins and socks and have some supper," broke in the giant. "It will soon be dark and we have no candles to waste."

The girl left the men and went into the connecting room while her father started a batch of corn bread and filled a tea-pot. Then he set a small slab table with aluminum plates and cups and moved it to the center of the room.

Embarrassed, Alan and Noel heated water from the river and did their best to make themselves more presentable but without marked success. When Heather McCord appeared, Alan refused a seat at the table, where he could not eat, and placed his stool back in the shadows of the room lit by the single candle and the fire.

"I'm sorry," she said to Alan, "that you cannot eat with us."

"I'm living high on this deer broth, thanks. In a day or two Noel and I'll make up for lost time."

She seemed to Alan hardly more than seventeen or eighteen. But she was a head taller than Berthe Dessane, down at Fort George, and the sweater she wore accentuated the clean lines of her shoulders and bust, and well developed arms. Still, he told himself, as he watched the candle-light pick up the deep gold in the unruly hair, bobbed at the nape of her round neck, lovely as was the picture she made, she was not lovelier than the raven-haired Berthe.

Dogs Are Used in Palestine to Track Outlaws; Dobermanns Prove Efficient

Murder is no longer safe in Palestine, due almost entirely to the natural ability of the animal which for hundreds of years has been despised in the Holy Land—the dog, writes a Jerusalem United Press correspondent in the New York Herald Tribune.

Six hours after two kilted youths had been shot down from behind by local terrorists while walking outside the walls of the "Old City," the suspected murderers were arrested. Jan and Elsa, two dogs belonging to the Palestine police, had scored the latest feat in a series of spectacular triumphs which has thrown fear into the hearts of Palestine's hitherto confident "organized" killers.

For years brigands and terrorists have laughed at the efforts of the police to track them down. Outlaws felt safe as they hid in caves and crannies of the mountains of Judea and Galilee, in the sandy wastes of the Mediterranean coastal plain, or with kinsmen in the countless villages dotting Palestine.

Exasperated by the mounting list of unsolved crimes, the Palestine police sent detectives to South Africa's police-dog training school at Quaggaport, near Pretoria. The two policemen spent six months learning the African language, which is the only one the dogs understand. They also studied how to work the dogs. Then they returned to Jerusalem with two Dobermann pinschers.

Within a few weeks everything changed. The outlaws began to fear and respect these four-footed detectives that were so phenomenally successful.

In no way do the Dobermanns resemble the bloodhounds of detective fiction, but they are just as efficient in following a scent. They stand about three feet high, have sleek, brown, wire-haired coats and rippling muscles. When properly trained, these hounds can follow even a faint human scent for days over dry, sun-baked terrain.

Use for Auxiliary Valve

An auxiliary valve on a steam pump is a supplement to another valve. In case of a steam turbine-driven pump it is the extra nozzle valve to take care of low steam conditions. In the case of a reciprocating pump, it may be the valve in the by-pass around the governing mechanism.

C. Houston Goudiss Interprets the Modern Conception of Meat

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains Why It Rates As a Top-Notch Food.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City

AMERICANS spend from one-fourth to one-third of their total food budget for meat. In order to discover whether this expenditure is justified, let us examine the nutritive value of meat, and consider its contribution to the diet.

Almost everybody likes the flavor of meat, from the man who considers that no meal is complete without it, to the child who instinctively eats the meat on his plate before he touches the other foods. The desire for meat is one of the strongest human appetites.

For centuries, man accepted this craving for meat as an indication that it was essential to his well being. But with the advance in civilization, there was an increase in many diseases, and for a period of years, meat was blamed as being a contributing cause to kidney trouble, rheumatism, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and gout.

In recent years, there has been a careful investigation of the possible association between meat and disease. In the light of our newer knowledge, the old notions have been discarded. And in many cases, meat now has a place in the treatment of the diseases that it was once believed to cause!

This Free Chart Makes It Easy to BALANCE YOUR DIET

YOU will find it a simple matter to safeguard the health of your family by serving a balanced diet if you send for the Homemaker's Chart for checking Nutritional Balance. It lists the foods and the standard amounts that should be included in the daily diet. Contains skeleton menus for breakfast, lunch and dinner or supper to guide you in selecting the proper foods in each classification. A post card will bring you this valuable aid to good menu planning. Just ask for the Nutrition Chart. Address C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

meats, but liver is also much richer in this vitamin than muscle tissue. Vitamin B is present in lean meat, especially lean pork, which has a considerably higher content than lamb, mutton or beef.

Value of Meat Extractives. Meat contains small amounts of extractives. It is partly because one misses their savory flavor that a meal without meat often fails to tempt or satisfy the appetite.

The extractives indirectly aid in the digestion of meat proteins because they stimulate the flow of the digestive juices. Experiments have demonstrated that meat induces a flow of gastric juice in direct proportion to the amount consumed.

This calling forth of great physiological activity of the stomach is one reason why meat is said to be the most satisfying of all foods, and to "stick to the ribs" longest.

Digestibility of Meat. In considering the nutritive worth of any food it is necessary not only to analyze its contributions to the diet, but to determine how well its nutrients are utilized by the body. Meat has a high food value because its protein is digested rapidly and thoroughly. Tests show that 97 to 98 per cent of meat protein is digested and absorbed. The length of time meat remains in the stomach will depend upon various factors, such as the amount of fat present, the method of cooking and the degree of mastication. But there is no marked difference in the thoroughness with which the different kinds of meat are digested.

Since it is so completely digested, however, meat supplies little bulk, and it is therefore essential that an abundance of leafy vegetables and fruits should be eaten at the same time.

Meat in the Child's Diet. There has been considerable discussion regarding the place of meat in the child's diet. There are the same good reasons for using meat in the diet of the child as in the diet of the grown-up. Moreover, the child's protein requirement is greater than that of the adult, in proportion to his body weight.

At the beginning of the second year, many authorities advise that small servings of tender and finely minced beef, chicken, lamb or liver may be given about three times a week. As the child becomes older, he may have meat more often and as his ability to chew increases, he may be given larger pieces.

Some Fallacies Regarding Meat. Many people believe that veal is less completely digested than other meats. But it has been demonstrated that even very young veal digests as rapidly and as completely as beef. It has also been held that red meats are less digestible and, therefore, less desirable than white meats. There is no evidence to support this point of view.

Someone with a gift for concise expression once remarked: "No meat—no man!" His point was well taken. For considering its delicious flavor, essential food value, and ease of preparation, it is easy to agree that THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT.

Leisure for Planning Ahead

By T. C. Richardson, Secretary Breeder-Feeder Association

At this season, between final cultivation and fall harvest, there is more leisure for both pleasure and profit than for many months to come.

Nobody can convince E. C. Davis, tenant farmer of Conway county, Arkansas, that it doesn't pay to plan far ahead and set down the steps necessary to reach certain goals.

It would have been too late to "plant two acres of grain for chickens" if the Davis family had waited until after Christmas to plan the year's work.

Every farm family and its farm is a different problem. Some families are satisfied with less than others, some want one thing, some another, and the problem is to make the farm give the family what it wants.

else beyond control may defeat the best of plans, but working without a definite plan is responsible for more defeats than weather.

Do we want a fall garden, a good table and full pantry next winter? It's time to get the ground ready and buy the seed. Do we need winter grazing for livestock and poultry?

Nearly all farm families plan ahead to some extent, but too few take the time and trouble to work out their needs and the plans to meet them in definite form.

A great deal of help can be had from county agents, home demonstration agents, farm management specialists in extension service, and vocational teachers who are technically trained in the many matters that enter into a complete home and farm management plan.

THE PREACHER'S CASE

A Pampa Methodist pastor, in a classification talk before the Pampa Lions Club last week, mentioned some of the temptations that beset a minister, mentioning: Dominance, or "bossism," intolerance, irritability, irresponsibility, yearning for applause, jealousy, and resentment.

The preacher lives in a glass house. He must appear to be austere sometimes when he would choose to be playful. He must always point a moral when he would prefer to tell a tale. He must be a community exemplar many times when he would wish to be just an ordinary come-and-go citizen.

Talk about being in a tough spot. Here's just about the toughest one I ever heard of. Suzanne Mathias of New York City contributes this tale to the column and becomes a Distinguished Adventurer on the strength of it.

As far as Suzanne is concerned, the only redeeming feature of this experience is that a number of other people shared it with her. It was down in Miami in December, 1929. A crowd of Suzanne's friends had clubbed together and chartered a boat for a week-end fishing trip. It was an old boat of the cabin cruiser type with plenty of bunks in it, and the party sailed at midnight on the captain's assurance that, by morning, he'd have them at a spot where there'd be plenty of good fishing.

When they awoke next morning they were out of sight of land. The only thing that showed on the horizon was a small island that looked as if it might be one of the Florida Keys. Suzanne asked the captain where they were, and he told her they were about 90 miles from Miami, but he didn't say in what direction.

Their Captain Was Crazy.

And shortly after that, things began to happen. "The first inkling we had that anything was wrong," Suzanne says, "came from my mother who was chaperoning the trip. She came up and asked us what we knew about the captain. She had been talking to him, she said, when suddenly he began raving—saying that his son was 'The High Priest of the Temple,' and that his father was the right hand man to the king of Sweden. A couple of us decided to investigate, and started a casual conversation with the captain. After talking with him a few minutes we were left in no doubt. He was CRAZY AS A LOON!"

That didn't look so good. Ninety miles out at sea—out of sight of land—and totally at the mercy of a crazy boat captain. The whole crowd agreed that the best thing to do was to put back in to Miami. But the captain didn't agree with them. He flatly refused to move the boat, and said a few things more, too. He told them that not one of them knew anything about navigation and couldn't run the boat by themselves—that they didn't even know where they were—and what was more, he was in absolute authority while at sea and not even the President could tell him what to do with his ship.

They tried to cajole him, but that didn't work. The men started to threaten him, but he walked away, and five minutes later appeared in the companionway with a gun in his hand. After that, nobody cared to argue with the skipper.

Planned to Kill All of Them.

The day wore on slowly. No one fished, for every one was too scared to fish. The captain's raving didn't make them feel any better, either. He had suddenly got the idea in his head that the whole crowd was just a bunch of sinners and that he'd be taken straight to heaven if he killed them all then and there.

The night was even worse. None of the crowd could sleep. They huddled together in one of the cabins while the captain prowled about the boat. Early in the evening they found he had let out the fresh water supply—that they had nothing to drink. There was a little ice in the refrigerator and they melted that. What they were going to do when it was gone, they didn't know.

Still the mad captain prowled restlessly about the boat. Late that night one of the men saw him slinking along the deck, a flashlight in one hand and a heavy wrench in the other. He followed him below. The skipper crept into a dark cabin, walked noiselessly to one of the bunks, raising the wrench high in the air and brought it down with crushing force on the pillow. Then he turned on the light, looked at the bed, and grunted his disappointment when he saw there was no one in it.

The man who had followed him went back to the main cabin and told what he had seen. By that time, half of the company were ill. One girl was having hysterics, another had developed a nervous hiccup, and Suzanne, who had acquired a bad case of sunburn during the day, was down with chills and fever. Toward dawn, the hysterical girl quieted down, and they sat in silence to await the rising of the sun.

Lord Told Him to Go Back to Miami.

Daylight made them feel a little better—but what would the day bring? About eight o'clock the engine started chugging. What did that mean? Were they going back to Miami? Or was the mad captain taking them still farther out to sea? One of the men ran up to the bridge to see what came back with good news. "The Lord told me not to bother with you," the captain had said. "He'll take care of you himself. We're going back to Miami."

They reached port early that evening, and reported what had happened, to officials at the dock. The officials weren't especially surprised, for another boatman had already noticed the skipper acting queerly and had told them about it. If the boat hadn't come in that night, they said, they were going to send a coast guard cutter out to look for it.

Outside a little hysterical reaction, Suzanne says, everyone in the crowd was all right. Suzanne hasn't been out in a boat since, she claims, although she might be induced to ride on a ferry boat sometime, if she could have the captain examined by an alienist before she started.

Extending an Olive Branch
"I once taught school," said Uncle Ben, "jes long enough to realize that when you are extendin' an olive branch you want to select one that can be used de same as a birch."

King Spoke No English
George I spoke no English. Because of this and the fact that he had little interest in his kingdom, the government was virtually in the hands of his ministers, notably Sir Robert Walpole.

A City for 2,600 Years
Rome, Italy, has been a city for 2,600 years. The city that stands on the "seven hills" is the acme of a series of other Romes that reached their zenith of glory and then faded, leaving beautiful monuments to emphasize their departed splendor.

"Not snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds." is one of the inscriptions on the main postoffice in New York city. It is adapted from Herodotus.

Favorite Fruit in Jamaica
The favorite fruit in Jamaica, British West Indies, is called an "ugli." It is a cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine, combining the virtues of each.

Hyrax Related to Elephant
The hyrax is related to the elephant and the hippopotamus in structure but not in size. In appearance it resembles a guinea pig. The fur is brown. Its feet resemble those of an elephant and it has minute tusks.

The Isle of Orchids
Jamaica is frequently called "the Isle of Orchids," because of the gorgeous blooms of this flower that may be seen growing wild throughout the colony.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The British lion has been taking kicks from all-comers lately, but it stiffened up and began looking a lot more heroic when the ancient bill of rights seemed to be infringed. It was no rubber-stamp parliament which reacted angrily to the army's summary action against young Duncan Sandys, conservative member, who had revealed undue knowledge of air defense secrets. The government was embarrassed and backed up considerably.

The swift parliamentary kick-back was an instance of the latent staying power of the British democratic tradition, as the representative body rattled the bones of its late and great libertarians in telling the executive where it got off.

The row overflows into important political by-ways, as the tall, handsome, loose-gear Mr. Sandys is both a son-in-law and political ally of Winston Churchill who is pot-shotting the government just now in a political no-man's land.

There is a threat of conservative defection to the side of the still ambitious and powerful Mr. Churchill, with labor and liberal recruits, and, according to close observers of British politics, some important new alignments may result.

Mr. Sandys, thirty years old, is still just a rookie in this league, and, like Mrs. O'Leary's cow may not have intended to start anything in particular. He is, however, an energetic and capable young politician and there are those who say he may be another Anthony Eden in a few years. Running for parliament in 1935, he was assailed by the comely young Mrs. John Bailey who was leading the fight for the opposition. She is a daughter of Winston Churchill.

He won the election in a rock-and-sock battle and then, in the chivalrous Eton and Oxford tradition which is his background, he married Mrs. Bailey. She, incidentally, is a granddaughter of the Jennie Jerome of New York who became Mrs. Randolph Churchill and the mother of Winston Churchill. Jennie Jerome's father was one of the fighting editors of the New York Times in the 1860s.

Mr. Sandys, studious and somewhat ministerial, was with the diplomatic service until 1933. He is a second lieutenant in the London anti-aircraft force, a son of the late Capt. George Sandys.

GREECE never had any luck in trying to get the Elgin marbles back from England. Judging from this precedent, American aviators have a long fight ahead in trying to bring back from the Kensington Science museum in London the Wright brothers' airplane of the historical Kitty Hawk crow-hop of December 17, 1903. Such will be the endeavor of the newly formed association of men with wings.

They will appeal to Orville Wright, who let the plane go to England in 1928, after the Smithsonian institution had tagged the Samuel P. Langley plane as "the first machine capable of flight carrying a man." There is as yet no word from Mr. Wright, who lives and works somewhat aloofly in his office and laboratory at Dayton, Ohio.

That twelve-second flight put him in the history books, brought him a string of honorary degrees and gathered more medals than his plane could lift, but all this was marred by the misunderstanding about who flew first.

He had been trained in science at Earlham college when he and his brother made their plane in a bicycle shop. He continued his studies in aerodynamics and his later contribution was the stabilizing system which has made modern aviation possible. Wilbur Wright died of typhoid fever in 1912.

STIFF-NECKED, hard-boiled General Alexander von Falkenhausen, German sparring partner and coach for the Chinese generals until recently, stirs excitement in Shanghai by predicting Chinese victory.

He says, "I feel sure that China is gaining a final victory and that Japan will fail in both war and peace."

The general and all others of the German military mission to China are homeward bound, suddenly recalled by their government, although their contract, with $12,000 a year for General von Falkenhausen, was to have run until 1940.

SIX GUNS and CARPET TACKS A Gallos County Story

MOST times, here in Gallos county, a six gun's a-got just a leetle the best of the argument, but there was one time when the difference between two gun toters was a box of carpet tacks.

See that tree a-standin' out there, there at the bend in the road. Well, that's where they finally lynched Butch Manton.

Folks just heard that some of Butch's friends was a-plannin' to ride in to town and take him out o' jail. And Butch a-bein' a cow thief like he was, they just up and taken him out and strung him to that tree. And Butch'd been livin' right, like as not, if it wasn't for them carpet tacks.

It was right here in the Happy Hour where things was a-beginnin'. Butch was at the bar when Johnnie Rucker comes in and was a leetle slow when he said some-thing 'bout Butch stealin' 50 head of steers from Johnnie, but Johnnie did nick Butch's right foot as the lead from Butch's gun went a-tearin' through his own heart.

Course, Butch'd shot Johnnie without givin' him a chance, but Butch still had that gun in his hand when he backs out of the Happy Hour.

'Fore long after the shootin, Sheriff Tom rides into town and hears bout the shootin'. It kinda hits him hard on account of Johnnie bein' a pal of his'n, and he don't wait for reason why there ain't been no posse after Butch. He lights out for the Diablo canyon country down close to the border where Butch and his gang has holed up for years.

Butch oughta gone right on to the border, but he don't. He stops by the shack, sends them riders of his'n on with them steers he stole from Johnnie and waits back to see if he can't do somethin' 'bout that foot of his'n.

He's a doin' a leetle doctorin' of his own when Tom rides up. Tom ain't never been a fool 'fore, but a-thinkin' 'bout Johnnie musta got him off, 'cause Butch gits the drop on him and takes Tom's gun but Tom does manage to kick a table over and put out a candle,

Along the Highway

Don't let ownership of an automobile rob you of your politeness.

Probably the worst fault in driving a car is believing you haven't any fault.

In these days, on the roads, it's a case of the survival of the fittest.

Thinking about one thing while doing another causes accidents.

The only light that's in the room. No sir, Butch don't get away from Tom and Tom lives to bring Butch Manton right to the jail from which he was taken and hung on that tree at the bend of the road, down yonder.

You see, Tom, he's been out a-tackin' up signs when Johnnie was shot. Well he'd just bring them tacks long with him, and them tacks is how he caught Butch.

He just spread them on the floor quiet-like while he was movin' around there in the dark and a-fore long Butch steps on one with his foot that ain't got no boot on.

Butch's kinda surprised and lets out a hoop and Tom just grabs it the direction of that hoop.

Women Turn Confidently to
CHERIE NICHOLAS
Nationally Known Fashion Authority

CONCERNING styles and fashions, women desire only that information which they know is authentic. They demand accurate reporting of the new clothing trends, with candid portrayals of the described garments through truthful illustrations. They seek the correct, the latest and finest—but never the bizarre, the extreme or sensational. They wish their fashion writer to speak of smartness and good taste, of what is practical for the average woman, and [a very important item] of garments and hats they can find in their own local stores and shops.
Small wonder, therefore, that women turn confidently to Cherie Nicholas, whose illustrated fashion articles appear regularly in this newspaper. Miss Nicholas tells what the nation's foremost designers and creators of fine styles decree shall be right for the weeks to come.

You will benefit greatly through reading these authoritative articles. Tell your friends about them.

Goodbye, Mr. Gloom!
... We're a jolly bunch of renegades ... our sole purpose in life is to give Old Man Gloom the gate and usher in Mr. Sunshine by way of a million laughs. Turn to the Funny Page in every issue and let us help dispel those troubles!
• No man can really live by bread alone. Yes, we admit he'll EXIST, but there will be heavy lines of care running down his face, he'll forget how to smile.
• Verily, we humans need a few hearty guffaws now and then to chase away those wrinkles of care and give our spirits a lift. That's why this newspaper runs a collection of laugh-provoking comic strips on the Funny Page. Amid the depressing news of floods and earthquakes, crime and war, economic troubles and a host of other maladjustments on the face of Mr. World, it's a pleasant relaxation to shut your eyes on the day's bad tidings.
• You can get a joyful lift in spirit from the comic. We invite our readers to take a big swallow of this bottled sunshine. Turn to the Funny Page right now and forget your troubles!
• Our comic characters are a wattle lot, as you'll notice by glancing down the accompanying panel. If you want to chuckle over real troubles, turn to C. M. Payne's strip "S'Matter Pop," and see what a whale of an order he has to keep these boys of his under control ... Or glance at the adventures of the intellectual Adamson, as drawn by O. Jacobson.
• Something that will truly draw tears—of laughter—are Gluyas Williams' mischievous but lovable youngsters, Junior and the Baby ... Then there's "Finney of the Force," by Ted O'Loughlin, as comical and as true-to-life an Irishman as ever slipped a night stick ... Life out in Cactus Center, as described in S. L. Huntley's "Mescal Ike," has its exciting moments when its rip-roaring citizens are on the loose ... And when it comes to "The Featherheads," by Osborne, they speak for themselves. In fact, that's the best thing they do!
• Let these bearers of fun whittle your blues down to dust. Toss trouble right out the window and get a new lease on life through the comic page—turn to it right now!
