Boss Lion Is Presented as Key Member

Boss Lion Creed Bogan was presented a gold key as a token of key membership in Lions International, the regular weekly luncheon held Tuesday.

Past Deputy District Governor C. A. Ayer made the presentation speech. Lion Springer acted as Lion tamer and presented County Agent Ralph Thomas, County Health Officer A. Webb, County Supt. of Schools B. Weatherred, and County School Committeeman C. M. Carpenter as guests.

Lions Davis and Springer reported a trip to Austin, and a visit with Hillsboro club.

Secretary Holloway read a report on Prof. Branch on underprivileged work at the ward school.

Lion Crews announced the basketball sponsored show.

Supt. Weatherred announced the tuberculosis tests and urged acceptance by the people of this community.

Mr. Webb reported the smallpox vaccine campaign and made a short talk on the importance of the syphilis campaign. "It is no disgrace to have syphilis," said Dr. Webb, but it is a disgrace to keep it." Lion Cryer announced $6,000 state aid on teachers' salary, making a total of $35,000 per year received in the state here.

Lion Crews reported a boy scout camp at his ranch.

WEATHERED OUT FOR COUNTY SCHOOL POST

W. B. (Red) Weatherred, Gray county school superintendent, has authorized the News to announce his candidacy for reelection to the post, subject to the Democratic primary election July 23.

Mr. Weatherred stated that he is seeking the office again on the basis of his service given to the public during his first term, and stated that he appreciates the opportunity of serving in his present capacity.

The candidate has been one of Gray county's most ardent school workers, keeping in close contact with teachers of the system and with parents through his activities in P. T. A. work.

DINNER HONORS BELLS AND ROBYS

Mrs. Dick Dickinson, assisted by Mrs. C. P. Callahan and Mrs. Bryan Burrows, entertained Tuesday evening with a covered dish dinner, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Hulon Bell, who are leaving for Drumright, Okla., where Mr. Bell will have charge of a variety store; and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Roby, who are leaving for Pampa, where Mr. Roby has a position with the Fidelity Monument Co.

After the lovely dinner was enjoyed the rest of the evening was spent in playing 42.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Hulon Bell, Perry Roby, Ray Trimble, Elmer Ayers, A. W. Brewer, C. P. Callahan, Bryan Burrows, R. T. Dickinson; and Glen Brewer.

UNEMPLOYED SHOULD CLAIM COMPENSATION

According to Paul M. Branch of the Texas Unemployment Commission, with offices at Pampa, all unemployed who are covered by compensation should immediately get in touch with the commission when they are laid off.

The compensation is a form of insurance and no worker should hesitate to call for it.

Any firm that employs eight or more persons is a "covered" employer.

BASKETBALL GIRLS SPONSOR PICTURE SHOW

The basketball girls are sponsoring a picture show, "Of Human Hearts," to be given at the Avon Theatre Friday night of this week.

Admission will be 10c for children and 25c for adults. The girls state that they will appreciate the patronage of everyone. See announcement in another column.

COTTRELL FOR SHERIFF

TO THE VOTERS OF GRAY COUNTY: I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Gray county, Texas, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held July 23, 1938.

In asking the voters of this county to elect me to this office I wish to state that I regard it as the highest and most important office in the gift of the people of Gray county. In asking for the position of chief law enforcement officer of the county, I realize that there is a great responsibility involved and it will always be my aim to enforce the law without fear or favor to anyone.

In view of the fact that approximately 85% of the taxes paid in this county are paid by oil operators, drilling contractors and people connected in one way or another with the oil industry, it will be my intention to appoint on my staff, one man whose duties it will be to devote his entire time to the enforcement of the law for the protection of the various oil interests.

I was born in Texas and have resided in Gray county for eleven years, during most of which time I have been engaged in the enforcement of the law in some capacity or another. I feel that I am fully qualified, both by education and experience, to perform any and all of the duties which may be incumbent upon me, should you see fit to elect me to the office of Sheriff of Gray county.

I have always stood for what I regarded as good morals in the community in which I live and have been a believer in the work of civic clubs, schools and churches of the community. Should I be elected your sheriff, I invite the counsel and the support of these organizations to assist me in upholding and supporting the law.

Should I be elected your sheriff, I pledge you now that I shall appoint only bona fide resident citizens of this county as my deputies. It will be my purpose to see each and every voter in the county between now and the primary, but should I fail to do so I am asking you now for your support and influence. All that I ask is honest consideration for the office, and "Win or lose," I still expect to be a citizen of Gray county.

Thanking you for your consideration and support, I am,
Yours very truly,
H. C. (Bud) COTTRELL.

HORSE DRINKS MILK

E. C. Crews has a 17-year-old horse at the ranch that drinks two quarts of milk every day. Mr. Crews says the horse keeps fat and saucy on the milk diet.

City Council and Garden Club Make Park Plans

A meeting of members of the city council and the Garden and Civic Club was held at the city hall Tuesday evening to discuss park plans.

Mayor Vester Smith presided, and Mrs. W. E. Bogan, president of the Garden Club, outlined the planting material needed for the city park.

Mayor Smith announced that some $600 was available for park use, and it was agreed to purchase $50 worth of shrubs to add to those already set this spring, and use the balance of the money to sod the park, build a pergola, and install a sprinkler system.

The building of a drainage ditch was discussed, and it was brought out that this work would likely be done this spring.

Cooking units for the park were mentioned, but general discussion was unfavorable.

Staking stock, loose stock, camping and driving through the park was agreed as out of the question, and steps will be taken to prevent these abuses.

In the matter of the highway roadside parks, it was brought out that the state highway department has agreed to hard surface the driveways in both parks if the city will put down a caliche or gravel base in the west park. The east park is already prepared for the topping.

Those present included Mesdames H. W. Finley, W. E. Bogan, C. B. Batson, Geo. Colebank, D. A. Davis; Messrs. Vester Smith, Pete Fulbright, W. E. Bogan, C. B. Batson, Geo. Colebank and T. A. Landers.

MRS. SMITH HONORED AT BRIDAL SHOWER

Mrs. J. T. Hicks was hostess at a bridal shower last Thursday afternoon honoring Mrs. Ernest Smith, the former Miss Lydia Moore.

The following were among those present: Mesdames Vester Smith, Ruel Smith, C. S. Doolen, Alice Smith, Porter Smith, Ted Woods, S. J. Dyer, Lucy Smith, Chas. E. Cooke, S. L. Humphreys, Roy Franklin, F. H. Bourland, Travis Stokes, S. R. Jones, Edgar Smith, Woodrow Wilkerson, W. T. Eldridge, Pete Graham, T. N. Holloway, Kid McCoy, Frank Moore, John B. Vannoy, W. M. Smith, June Woods, Raymond Glass, T. J. Coffey, Jim Back, Maude Maxwell, Walter Bailey, Forrest Switzer, Y. B. Lee, L. S. Tinnin, E. L. Sitter, O. G. Stokely.

Misses Nancy Maude Maxwell, Enid and Wilda Joyce McMullen, Roscoe Smith, Juanita Smith, Willie Smith, Violet Keeton, Reba Smith, Dorothy Smith, Margaret Hess, Imogene and Audie Myatt.

PIONEER STUDY CLUB HONORS MRS. BROOKS

Members of the Pioneer Study Club gave an informal 9 o'clock coffee Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. C. O. Greene, honoring Mrs. Claude Brooks, who is moving to Vernon.

The club president presented Mrs. Brooks with a pair of hand painted plaques.

Those present were: Mesdames Bob Black, Jim Back, Creed Bogan, W. E. Bogan, C. A. Cryer, Thurman Adkins, Frey Cubine, S. A. Cousins, T. A. Massay, J. B. Hembree, H. W. Finley, C. B. Batson, W. B. Swin, Magee, Stokes, Bob Thomas, C. J. Magee, Claude Brooks and C. O. Greene.

CITY ELECTION TUESDAY

The annual city election will be held at the city hall Tuesday of next week, with T. N. Holloway as official judge.

Three aldermen are to be elected this year, and no names have been submitted as candidates with the exception of the present ones who will stand for reelection.

SCHOOL ELECTION SATURDAY

The annual election for school trustees will be held here Saturday. Two trustees are to be elected, with five names on the ballot.

Following are the candidates: Dr. H. W. Finley, H. W. Brooks, F. E. Severt, C. S. Doolen, C. O. Greene.

Miss Hazel Dyer of Denton visited home folks here over the week end.

LITHS YIELD TO POLES

One War Threat Removed . . . Mexico Seizes Foreign Oil Concerns . . . Hull Says We Arm for Peace

Here in confidential conversation are Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana (left), chairman of the senate committee investigating lobbying, and Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington. The committee's inquiry at present is directed particularly to a campaign against the government reorganization bill and its activities aroused Publisher Frank Gannett to demand its abolition.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Victory for Poland

ONE immediate threat of European war seemed to be dissolved when Lithuania yielded to the demands of Poland for resumption of normal diplomatic and trade relations and virtually gave up its claim to Vilna, former capital of the country, which the Poles seized 18 years ago. General Smigly-Rydz, chief of the Polish army and "strong man" of Poland, had mobilized his troops on the Lithuanian border, and Polish warships were cruising off Memel. So there was nothing for the Liths to do except give in. Polish troops that had been concentrated in Vilna paraded in celebration of the bloodless victory, but in Warsaw the celebration was distorted into a "pogrom" in which riotous throngs attacked all the Jews they could find, killing several and wounding scores. Hundreds of Jewish-owned shops were smashed before the police could restore order.

The mobs were made up largely of National Democrats, opposed to the government, who protested that the settlement with Lithuania was too lenient. They demanded that Poland invade and annex Lithuania. Col. Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister, declared that Poland would guarantee Lithuania's independence. The Liths, however, were extremely bitter over the concessions they had been forced to make to their more powerful neighbor.

Mexican Oil Seizures

PRESIDENT CARDENAS of Mexico announced the expropriation of oil properties belonging to American and British companies and valued at some $400,000,000. Wells, refineries and tankers were seized and workers took control of all company offices in the republic. The American and British employees and their families fled. For the present the oil industry in Mexico was paralyzed.

The companies concerned began legal action attacking the constitutionality of Cardenas' decree, and it was said would carry the case to the highest court. Both the United States and Great Britain were expected to challenge the seizures and similar action threatened in the case of mines as violation of treaty obligations.

The action of the Mexican government was not entirely unexpected for it was the culmination of a long and bitter controversy between the oil companies and Mexico's board of labor conciliation and arbitration over a $7,300,000 wage increase ordered by the board.

Armed Peace: No Alliances

AMERICA must pursue its quest for world peace, but must follow a policy of arming for protection of its rights against "international lawlessness."

So declared Secretary of State Cordell Hull in an exposition of America's foreign policy and a discussion of all aspects of the world situation. He spoke at the National Press club in Washington and his address was broadcast over the land and to other nations by radio.

In brief, he set forth a policy of peace, no alliances, collaboration with peaceful nations, military preparedness, and opposition to the "seclusionist" viewpoint. "It is my considered judgment that, in the present state of world affairs, to do less than is now proposed would lay our country open to unpredictable hazards," he said, referring to the naval expansion program.

"The momentous question," he said, "is whether the doctrine of force shall become enthroned once more and bring in its wake, inexorably, international anarchy and a relapse into barbarism."

He did not refer to any nation by name, but his implication with regard to legal recognition of Austria's absorption by Germany and Japan's expansion in China was clear when he said:

"The catastrophic developments of recent years, the startling events of the past weeks, offer a tragic demonstration of how quickly the contagious scourge of treaty-breakings and armed violence spreads from one region to another."

He disclaimed "the slightest intention to entertain any such notion as the use of American armed forces for 'policing the world.'"

He specifically opposed the proposal of the United States retire from the Far East.

In the Far East crisis, Hull said, the United States has "consistently collaborated with other peace-seeking nations."

The triumph of the "seclusionist viewpoint," he said, "would inescapably carry the whole world back to the conditions of medieval chaos, conditions toward which some parts of both the eastern and the western worlds are already moving."

House Passes Navy Bill

WITH only a few votes in opposition, the house passed the administration's billion dollar navy bill. The measure authorizes construction of the largest battle fleet in American history by adding 46 combat ships, 22 auxiliaries and 950 airplanes.

The War department announced that army and navy officers were about to study plans for an enlistment program that would put more than two million men under arms within four months of a declaration of war. For this the army would require 1,250,000 recruits and the navy 500,000.

The first 300,000, under existing plans, would be sought as volunteers in the first month, before selective draft machinery like that of 1917-18 was put into operation. Already prepared for quick submission to congress is a draft of a selective service law.

Morgan Defies F. D. R.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ordered Chairman Arthur E. Morgan of the Tennessee Valley Authority to recant charges against his colleagues or face suspension or ouster, but Mr. Morgan challenged the President's powers to remove him and said flatly that he would not resign.

The chairman asserted: "I challenge this action by the President and deny his right to remove or suspend me. I stand on that. If I sum up my attitude I can say that I do not choose to run away."

He then took a train for Yellow Springs, Ohio, for a visit with friends.

Morgan told newspaper men he has obtained legal advice on his conflict with the President. At the same time it was learned Mr. Roosevelt uncovered a law under which, advisers assured him, he is empowered to oust the chairman.

Row Over Lobby Inquiry

FRANK GANNETT, publisher of a chain of newspapers, called on the senate to abolish its lobbying investigating committee and to apologize publicly for that committee's "viciously illegal activities." Gannett made his demand as head of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government whose executive secretary, Dr. Edward A. Rumely, faced a contempt of the senate citation for refusing to surrender the organization's private records to the lobby investigators.

Condemning as "infamous" the committee formerly headed by Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black and now directed by Senator Sherman Minton, Democrat, of Indiana, Gannett charged that its renewed activities are prompted by a desire to "smear and intimidate" his and other organizations fighting the government reorganization bill.

Minton, in a radio debate with Representative James Wadsworth, Republican of New York, struck back at Gannett, declaring that he directs his "propaganda machine from his sunny villa in Florida" and that "he hasn't any more idea of saving you and your Constitution than the Liberty League had." He cautioned listeners not to be misled by press dispatches on administration activities "since 98 per cent of all the metropolitan newspapers are opposed to the administration and do not hesitate to misrepresent it."

Quick work by administration leaders saved the reorganization bill from emasculation in the senate. Six senators shifted and brought about the defeat of the Wheeler amendment requiring congressional approval, by joint resolution, to make effective all executive orders transferring, consolidating or abolishing bureaus and independent agencies.

Would Keep Philippines

PAUL V. McNUTT, high commissioner to the Philippines, has come to the conclusion that if we turn the islands entirely free in 1946 they will become the ground of bloody and long continued warfare. So, with the apparent approval of President Roosevelt, he proposes that the question of their fate be reopened for careful consideration.

McNutt's plan was offered by prearrangement with Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine commonwealth, and that veteran nationalist gave it his instant indorsement. Later he added that there should be no question about the ultimate independence of the islands.

Being convinced that the United States would not undertake protection of an independent Philippine nation from Japan and would not continue a free trade relationship, Quezon has been maneuvering for some time to revise the independence grant and obtain a dominion status.

Seek to Curb Franco

REPEATED and intense bombings of Barcelona by Spanish insurgent planes, that killed hundreds of civilians aroused the British and French governments to protest against what they asserted was violation of international law and the principles established by civilized nations. It was said the British asked the Vatican to bring pressure to bear on General Franco to end the bombing of unfortified towns.

The great drive of the insurgent forces toward the east coast was brought to a temporary halt 40 miles from the Mediterranean

Move by Litvinoff

WAR clouds over Europe were growing dense and alarm increased throughout the world. Securities experienced sharp breaks on the exchanges in America, London, Paris and elsewhere because of the disquieting reports. Cabinets and diplomats everywhere were trying desperately to find a way to peace.

The danger seemed to involve at the moment chiefly Czechoslovakia, the civil war in Spain and the possibility of Nazi aggression against Hungary.

Maxim Litvinoff, wise commissar for foreign affairs of Soviet Russia, put forth an invitation to the great powers other than Germany, Italy and Japan to confer on joint action aimed at "checking further development of aggression and eliminating increased danger of a new world massacre." The United States was asked to participate in this action.

France and Russia formally notified Czechoslovakia that they would give that nation armed support against any aggressive action by Germany. Great Britain, while not going so far as this, warned Hitler that it expected him to observe the assurances he had given that he would not attack the Czechs.

WHAT TO EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Precious MINERAL SALTS

That You Must Have in Order to Build Strong Bones, Sound Teeth, Healthy Nerves, Rich Red Blood

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS 6 East 39th Street, New York.

THE human body is often compared to a machine, but it is far more wonderful, far more complex, than the most intricate machine ever designed to run without stopping, day in and day out, for upwards of 70 years, is also a fully equipped chemical laboratory. For if a chemist should grind a man to bits and analyze the pieces, he would find at least 18 chemical elements, and possibly traces of several others.

In addition to oxygen, carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen, the body contains a wide variety of mineral materials, which are necessary to its proper functioning—and even to life itself. The list includes calcium, phosphorus, potassium, sulphur, sodium, chlorine, magnesium, iron, manganese, iodine and copper. All these substances must be furnished to the growing child—through food and drink—and generous amounts must also be supplied daily in the diet of adults, to replace the minerals that are constantly being used up.

Minerals Necessary to Life

It is vitally important that the homemaker understand the function of these various salts and where they can be found. For if certain minerals are lacking in the body, the heart will stop beating. Without others, the bones cannot form properly. Still others are responsible for the rich red blood that makes the difference between a healthy person and a sickly one. Laboratory experiments have proved that if you leave out the smallest trace of the mineral known as manganese, you destroy the love of a mother for her child. And nutritionists—be well aware that less than a thousandth of an ounce of iodine makes all the difference between a normal man and an imbecile.

Calcium—Captain of Minerals

Calcium deserves its ranking position as the captain of the minerals, because it builds the bones, or body framework. And the bony skeleton is to the human being what steel is to a building. Calcium is also the chief constituent of the teeth and upon healthy teeth rests the health of the digestive system and, in turn, the entire body. For food that is improperly masticated is imperfectly digested and fails to nourish properly.

About 99 per cent of the calcium in the body is found in the teeth and bones. If the body does not receive an adequate supply of this mineral in pre-natal life and during the growing years, the bones will be porous, distorted and easily broken, and the teeth will develop cavities and eventually may fall out.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Fresh Orange Juice.—It is best to squeeze the orange juice just before breakfast rather than the night before so that the air won't have a chance to attack the vitamin in the juice and also change the flavor.

Tasty Baked Potatoes.—After baked potatoes are "done," gently crush the potato open and then return it to the oven to dry out for a few minutes.

Cleaning Parchment Shades.—Wipe off parchment lamp shades with a cloth dampened with olive oil. It will remove all soil and will restore the former freshness.

Sewing on Snaps.—When sewing snaps on a garment sew them on by means of buttonhole stitches and they will not pull out like plain over and over stitches.

Small Towels for Children.—Small size bath towels which are light in weight but firmly woven are easier for children to handle and are easier to launder.

Frying Fish Filets.—Try dipping fish filets in yellow corn meal, in milk and again in corn meal. Then fry them in deep fat until they are well browned.

Add Acid to Milk.—To help prevent curdling when acid and milk are combined, add the acid to the milk rather than the milk to the acid.

An Invaluable Aid To the Housewife

IN THIS issue you will find the fourth of the series of articles written by C. Houston Goudiss, famous food expert whose books, radio talks and lectures have made him known all over the country.

In this article Mr. Goudiss discusses the vitally important subject, "Mineral Salts." He shows the necessity of these materials in the diet, and their relation to the building of a strong heart, healthy nerves, rich red blood, strong bones and sound teeth. He also gives the food sources of these salts.

Read each one of these articles as they appear weekly in this newspaper. They will prove invaluable to the housewife in assisting her to keep the entire family mentally and physically fit.

because it is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood. And it is the hemoglobin which carries purifying oxygen to every cell in the body. Recently, it has been discovered that copper is required for the proper utilization of iron.

"Red blooded" is a term understood by everyone to denote health and strength, and it is iron that makes us red blooded. When your children grow pale and listless, lose their pep and lack of appetite, it is likely that they are starving for iron. If you become short of breath and "pant" when going up hill, or upstairs, even though there is nothing wrong with your heart or lungs, the chances are that there is insufficient red pigment in the blood—not enough to take up an adequate supply of oxygen and carry it to the millions of cells throughout the body.

There is no excuse for cheating yourself or your children of a fair measure of iron, for this mineral can easily be obtained from liver, egg yolk, whole grain cereals, molasses, dried fruits, dried peas and beans, nuts, lean meats and green vegetables.

Iodine—Molder of Men

Almost everyone has heard that iodine is the mineral which helps to prevent that disfiguring enlargement of the neck, known as simple goiter. But few people realize that it is the principal constituent of thyroxin, secretion of the thyroid gland, and that the thyroid functions normally only when sufficient iodine is available.

A wide variety of physiological disorders have been laid to iodine hunger. Obesity is frequently the result of thyroid disturbance. Specialists contend that stubborn skin diseases are associated with disorders of this gland. Many people are accused of laziness who are really suffering from thyroid deficiency. And competent authorities claim that the thyroid likewise influences mental make-up and emotional tendencies.

Iodine is found chiefly in sea food and in fruits and vegetables grown near the sea. In inland regions, where soil and water are poor in iodine, health authorities frequently add it to the drinking water. And the use of iodized salt is also recommended. By these simple measures, thousands of growing children can be saved from the disastrous results of iodine deficiency.

In general, it can be said that if the minerals calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine are supplied in adequate amounts, the other minerals will be automatically furnished.

But every homemaker should make it her solemn responsibility to provide these four in abundance. For only in that way can you insure optimal growth in children, develop vigorous health in adults, and maintain the highest possible tone of every organ in the body.

YEAR GIRLS FINISH DRESSES

The second year girls completed their dresses last week, and are ready for their style show, which will be held some time this week. The girls worked hard on their dresses for eight weeks, and every dress is well made and attractive. The winner of the style show will be chosen as a representative of the local Home Economics Club at the state club rally to be held at Antonio the first week in May. The Home Ec Club is working very hard to make enough money to send representatives to the rally. One from each class in first, second and third year home economics will be chosen to go, together with a representative and the instructor, Miss Betty Farley.

SENIORS PRESENT PROGRAM

The seniors showed their acting ability in an assembly which was held in the high school auditorium Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The program was as follows: a negro play, taken from "Alley Daffodil," senior play; a baritone and alto duet entitled "Dipsy Doodle," by L. L. Floyd and Jesse Dean Cobb; piano solo by Louise Biggers; a play entitled "Shoes for the Family" acted by members of the class; last number being a reading by McCreary, entitled "The Shooting of an McGrew."

TENNIS CONTESTS

The majority of the tennis finals were played off in McLean school. The junior boys' doubles, Junior Tom and James Finley are the winners by default; in junior boys' singles, Sunny Boy Back will play against to see who wins. In the girls' tennis, Opal Thacker won the first over Bennie Mae Wade, 6-2, 6-0. The senior girls' tennis, Velma and Wanda Estes won over Len and Viola Clemmons, 6-4, 6-3. Julia McCarty won over Esterson and Naomi Gunn for the senior boys' singles, Vester Lee Smith defeated Truitt Stewart. Turner got into the finals. Jesse Dean Cobb defeated Jack Bogan and Clyde Carter to get in the semi-finals with R. L. L. Floyd defeated a Wilkerson to get in the final with the winner of the Smith-Thacker match. The senior boys' doubles, Bill and Norman Trimble defeated Esterson and Stanton Gardner, 7-5. If they beat Lefors they will go to Pampa for the championship. Students who have won will return next week sometime, to play at Pampa.

LOCKERS GET CLEANED

Lockers, Western story magazines, and many other things were found in the lockers of students in McLean school last Thursday afternoon. The lockers were cleaned out and checked.

Book cards were issued to each student, who then went to his locker and took his books out to let a teacher check them to see if he had his own books. Some students were "short" of books, while others had too many. Many students found books that had been lost since the beginning of the term. One person found two important English papers that had been lost for a long time. This is only one of the spring cleanings that are going on or has been done.

After cleaning his locker, each student was supposed to return to his sixth period class. Many tried to leave, but were disappointed by being stopped at the doors of the building.

MOVIES MADE IN McLEAN

Want to be a movie star? Then you should have been around the school house Monday or Tuesday. Just walk out the front door, and you got a picture taken of you, no matter what you looked like. The photographers were from the National Association of Talent Scouts, wanting to get photographs of new faces in their natural background. The pictures were shown at the Avalon Theatre. They had pictures of everything, from the oldest man in town, to the sheriff wrestling in the street. They had the band in full dress parade. Even the man with the longest beard in town got his picture taken in slow motion! These pictures will be used in a search for new faces. If they think your face unusual or different from the ordinary "pan," you may get a chance at the movies.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

Coming as a main attraction to McLean sports this week, a golf match was played between the Pampa golf team and McLean Friday morning, at the McLean Country Club. The entries for McLean were Billy Cooke, Jack Bogan, Jesse Dean Cobb and Vester Lee Smith. Out of the four matches played, Pampa won every match but one, which was won by Jack Bogan. At the end of the match, the club members had the boys as their guests for lunch.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW BOOKS

The McLean high school library received a shipment of twenty-four new books of fiction, valued at $19.66, last week. These books help replace worn-out books. Many of them are copies of books we have never had before. They were checked out to the junior class.

HOME EC GIRLS IN STATE FHA

The first week in May the representatives from the first, second and third year home economics classes are going to San Antonio to compete in the state F. H. A. contest. Registration will begin Wednesday morning, May 4. The contests will begin Thursday morning, lasting until the following Saturday, May 7, at noon. The home ec girls are selling candy and ice cream at school to make money to pay expenses for their representatives. They are planning a style show and book review for a later date.

DECLAMATION TRYOUTS FRIDAY

Tryouts for the junior and senior declaimers were held in the high school auditorium Friday. Miss Julia Slough had charge of the assembly. Mabel Back and Georgia Colebank won first and second respectively, in the senior division. Mabel read "So They're Talking War Again," and Georgia read "The Unknown Soldier." Madge Burrows, reading "The Boy Who Didn't Pass," was winner for the junior girls' division. Winners of both divisions will compete in Lefors of the Gray county interscholastic league meet on April 8. Others declaiming were Lettie Jo Wardlow and Marie Brooks.

SPRING FEVER

By Oleta Tidwell. Humm! Humm! I'm sleepy. What's wrong? I have lost my energy. Then all at once someone speaks up. "Well, don't you know it is spring?" How amusing to sit idly by and watch the victims gradually become wrapped in a cloak of spring fever. It's everywhere. The students are dull and lifeless. They lag about the halls, hang onto the lockers, rub their eyes, yawn, and examine their vaccinations. The teachers, too, show a tendency toward joining the diseased. One of the teachers will be sitting at the desk pretending to write an important epistle, then I see her look gingerly, all around the room, and if the coast seems to be clear; that is, if she is not being watched, she puts forth a mighty yawn.

Spring fever seems to be the most contagious of all diseases, yet the world of medical science seems wholly indifferent to the matter, for they never find a cure, nor even a remedy.

GET IN THE GAME YOURSELF

By Opal Thacker. Are you in the game of school? Can you honestly say you are one of the players? Are you training? School is played like a game. It takes all the pupils' cooperation to make a successful team. It takes students who can work and not cheat! The different classes are the positions on the team. If one of the players steps out of his position or goes out of bounds, something is lost. If one player get behind the whole team will follow.

Today if you are one of those who are behind and lagging, pep up and save the team! Let us try to keep in the game of school and make this year's team a success. This is your chance to play the game! Why not take advantage of it now? Do you want to be a first stringer or a substitute?

PERSONAL COLUMN

Miss Jewel Williams, a teacher from the Silverton schools, was a week end guest of Miss Rosalie Carter. Frankie Mullen was brought home from the Groom hospital March 23. Friends are glad to hear she is improving. Mr. and Mrs. George Cobb and son, Thomas, of Allison were guests in the Wheeler home Sunday, March 20. Audry Terrell was a week end guest of Iona Batson. Frances Hudzelt has been ill the past week. Louise Biggers spent the week end at Pampa, in the home of Oleta Tidwell. Sally Jo Alexander of Kermit spent the week end with Vada Appling. Mr. Bralley was in Lefors Friday. Wynema Lamb was a week end guest of Marguerite Wheeler. Norma Lee Rickard gave a slumber party for a number of friends last Thursday evening. Laura Ellen Kunkel has been ill. James Hallobaugh of Shamrock was a guest of Sam Ellerbee, March 18. Jackie Foley and Jewel Allen visited friends in Pampa one day last week. Mr. and Mrs. Leamon McIntyre of Clovis, N. M., were guests of Loyce Landers, March 18.

SENIOR PLAY GOSSIP

In the senior play, "The Alley Alley Daffodil," you will see many astonishing sights. Can you imagine Molita Turman wooing a fake count who is none other than "Pee Wee" Turner? Stanton Gardner, the "hen-packed" husband, gets an understanding from his wife, Wanda Estes, who has an ambition to be on the social register. Jeff Coffey is now mastering the art of love making; Margaret Kennedy happens to be the victim. She is also the heroine and the best yet. Jeff should take a few lessons from Romeo. A little derby hat is planted on Woodrow Patrick's head. We imagine he sleeps in it. Leta Mae Phillips is quite a sensation in the role of a business woman. Paris Hess is a big, over-grown negro servant with a thirst for punch, which is prepared and served by his best negro gal, Julia McCarty. They are a riot! Shirley Johnston is a French maid and can she roll her "Es"—pardon, I mean her "Rs." For an evening of pleasure and laughter, come to see "The Alley Daffodil," April 5, 8 p. m., high school auditorium.

FOOTBALL SCRIMMAGE

The McLean Tigers, after having divided their squad into two teams that are equal, so that neither team is referred to as first or second team, had a scrimmage Friday afternoon. The team known as the Whites defeated the Golds 13 to 0. There was a lot of hard tackling and blocking in the game, but both offenses were weak, due to the fact that neither team knew their assignments very well. Next Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock they will meet in another contest which will be covered by a moving camera. Coach Allen says that the boys work harder when someone takes moving pictures of the game, because it is easy to pick the good boys on the screen. Mistakes are easily corrected by the moving pictures and it is an interesting way to teach.

The Whites and Golds will play three games, and the losers will give the winners an ice cream supper at Coach Allen's home about two weeks from now. The spring training session will end with a scrimmage between next year's team and the Exes, an annual game which has always resulted in a win for the Exes. The Whites team consists of Cadra, Glenn Bogan, Roach, Norman, Smith, Trimble, Hugg, Bond, Mantooth, Combs, Dwight, Bailey, Masterson, Wilkerson. The Golds team consists of Cooke, Wells Jones, Wehba, Wingo, Carpenter, J. Braxton, Humphreys, L. Braxton, Anderson, Finley, Windom, Clark, Mills and Lee.

TOUGH SCHEDULE NEXT YEAR

The Tigers face a tough schedule next fall. They will meet the regional champions, Panhandle, Sept. 9, and the Wellington Skyrockets, who played Panhandle for the regional championship last year, on Sept. 30, as well as their regular schedule.

SHERLOCK SNOOPINGS

Ruth must not like parties. She and Marvin stayed only about five minutes the other night. Billy, if you aren't careful, Vester Lee is going to beat your time with Dorothy Sue. We wonder why Horsecollar has given up drinking soda pop? Paris' nickname seems to be changing from "Popcorn" to "Four-eyes." Did you notice everyone going to the show over the week end to see how they looked on the screen? And were they disappointed? Wonder why Mr. Bralley was so late to the basketball banquet Saturday night?

Leta Mae certainly can tell you a lot of things about Paris that you don't know.

It seems that Kid's smile is a little brighter since that freshman (M. G.) is back in circulation. What's holding Marvin home from school these days? Mr. Cunningham surely tried to be a wit at the banquet the other night. The reason? That "eligible" teacher from Matador. Snooper saw Stanton crying because Harry had taken his lollypop away from him. Naughty, naughty, Harry. Shirley says that exercise is a cure for any ill. Wonder what kind she means?

Editor's note: The pep squad banquet jokes were omitted this week for lack of space.

Jack Bodenhammer visited his family at Paducah Sunday.

Your Eyes Consume Enormous Energy

Laboratory tests have shown that 80 percent of the average person's consumption of energy is used by the eyes. When your eyes aren't right—when you have to strain to see well—the drain on your nervous energy is much greater than you realize. Don't lower your efficiency and use up vitality through neglect of your eyes. Keep them right by having them examined regularly.

FUNERAL FOLLY

A story that comes back to me, time and again, is one that my father had often told his pupils to illustrate his point in a subject on which he was discoursing. It was about an old man in the village of his youth—a man who had been a teacher, a philosopher and guide to whom all in the village turned for sympathy and advice when in trouble.

But even to great men—and this old village philosopher was truly a great man—there must come an end. And as he rested in his bed, his soul impatient to leave on a new adventure, he slowly opened his eyes and saw that those standing about his bedside were heavy with grief. Drawing on the surplus of his waning strength, he lifted himself upon an elbow. In his eyes there now twinkled a spark—the spark they knew so well and loved.

And so departed the beloved teacher and philosopher, leaving to his people as a heritage, a joke into which is written the wisdom of a thousand sermons.

A friend from my old town ran into me. We had not seen each other in years and were glad of the meeting. After the usual greetings and the "how y' getting along," he asked about my father. I told him that my father had died just two weeks ago. My friend looked me up and down from sole to crown and back again. His face took on an expression of open amazement. "And you're not wearing mourning?" he asked in a half hushed tone that sentenced me to everlasting perdition.

The richest man in our town died. He was also the laziest man in our town. But being the richest, nobody thought anything about his being lazy. He came by his riches honestly having inherited the wealth of a rich father who, in his day, became the richest man in the community. There is no telling where he inherited his laziness, but that doesn't matter. Except for Fatty Clark, who eked out a bare living selling pocket knives in the market-place, the richest man in our town was also the fattest man in town. And next to Fatty Clark he was the most estingest man in town. He delighted in being called an epicure by the townfolks, which was really the same as their calling Fatty Clark a glutton.

And so one day, the superimposed layers of fat in his pouch, which had been growing stratum upon stratum and moving northward, plugged into the valves of his heart, and the richest man in our town went the way of all fat.

His funeral was the most magnificent that the town had ever witnessed. Everybody who could get away from work or school, turned out to see the big show. I had a front row view. Just behind me were two young men in overalls, evidently farm hands who had brought a load of truck to market. As the gorgeous casket heavily ornamented with silver and blanketed with beautiful flowers, was being carried down the front steps, one of the young men who stood back of me remarked in a tone of envy, "Gee, I wouldn't mind dyin' myself if I could be buried in a casket like that."

In the day and glory of Solomon, funerals were occasions of splendor. The rich spent fortunes in making the event of a death in the family one of grandeur. They clothed their deceased in expensive apparel and carried them to the cemetery in a costly coffin resting upon an imposing catafalque. And the poor, as always, aching and envious of the rich, spent money on funerals of their own, far beyond their means. And for the very reason that they were poor, they suffered more deaths in their families, as a result of which they were in perpetual debt to the undertakers. This condition had become so great an evil that the Wise Men of Israel decreed that all funerals be simplified to a single bier and the coffin be of plain wood. There is an unconfirmed report that the Morticians Association issued a big holler, complaining that they were being discriminated against and that their business would go to ruin. But the Wise Men had them dead to rites and the decree went into effect nevertheless. And after nearly twelve centuries this wise decree is being faithfully followed by millions of faithful descendants.

I believe, as my parents believed, that grief is too personal—too sacred a thing to be publicized—that to publicize your grief is degrading to that grief. To me, the wearing of mourning bands and widows weeds has always been as though it were shouted from the house tops, "Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Come one and all and see how I grieve!" But Fashion is dictatorial and demands totalitarianism of body and soul. And Fashion has decreed the conduct of funerals, and the attire of mourners for specific periods—that mourners on the masculine side shall wear black hatbands of double the normal width throughout the first half of the year, this to be reduced by one-third during the second half. The mourning band on the hat was in wide vogue when most men wore the stiff derby hat. But when the derby gave way to the soft felt, or touch hat with squeezed, crown, Fashion deferred the band to the left sleeve of the coat.

On the feminine side, the decree to widows for the first half of the mourning period was solid black garb topped by a headgear of heavy black veil, known as widows weeds, extending to the waist-line. For the second half of the period, the weeds were reduced to reach the shoulder and the neck of the dress was to be trimmed with a narrow edging of white. Many a young widow, particularly during the second half of her mourning, felt a secret delight in the knowledge that she was the envy of other women. For the half-mourning garb seemed to cast a glamorous halo over her and I do not doubt but that, gazing into her mirror, she found there solace for her suffering.

It is my sincere hope that the time is not far distant when Civilization will awaken to the folly of ostentatious funerals that do the dead no good and only add misery to those who can ill afford the expense, yet are made to feel that unless they do arrange a showy funeral, they have displayed a lack of respect for their lost one. I hope the time is not far distant when the strange-hold of Fashion will be prised loose so that there need be no more synthetic sorrow and that we may carry our grief in our hearts instead of on our garb. And I hope that even before all this comes to pass, the preachers who officiate upon these solemn occasions will have learned to confine the services to prayers for the departed instead of eulogizing them with exaggerated panegyric and, as they so often do, tell downright lies in their praise of them.

And I do believe that when the old philosopher, the one who could joke with his last breath, looks down upon us and sees these funeral follies, he turns to another great sage, and smiling sadly, repeats the other's words, "What fools these mortals be."—Delectus.

THE ADVENTURES OF OZZIE

Snoopin' Around

By D. A. Davis

Folks, I'm just back from a trip down state and I'm all enthused with pride and devotion.

I'm proud that I'm a native Texan and am more devoted to this United States of America of ours than I've ever been. Leaving the Panhhandle just at this time, which is the drabest and most objectionable time of the whole year, and by going a few hundred miles away and running into paradise just makes one bubble over with enthusiasm and joy.

Right now Central Texas is a veritable wild flower garden. Some of the most beautiful pictures of nature to be seen anywhere in the United States are to be found between here and Austin and San Antonio, and it's worth a thousand times the price and time it takes to visit down there at this time of the year.

I was born and raised down in that country, and while my childhood memories of the beauty of that part of Texas are still fresh to me, I have never enjoyed it so much as I did this past week.

We went down through Abilene,
Coleman, Brady, Mason and Schuleburg, to San Antonio; drove it in 10 hours, stopped at several places and visited a few minutes with those folks along the way, and found them delightful and interesting.

The bluebonnets, rebuds, black haw and box elder, along with hundreds of varieties of wild flowers, were in full bloom; the trees and grass were green; and the cattle, goats and sheep grazing along in the pastures, with abundance of hills, rivers and small brooks, presented to me a picture too vivid and enjoyable to describe. Folks, if you've never been down there in the spring, you've missed the best thing in your life.
It's simply grand.

And I enjoyed stopping and having a few words with the people of those towns. It gives you a better understanding of folks. I love to hear them talk, and get their angle of things. Most particularly was I interested in conversing with an old German and his wife at Schuleburg.
They were native-born Americans, and just to find out, we asked them
"What about Hitler?" The expression on their faces did not require an answer, but they very quickly gave us to understand that "dictatorship" was repulsive to them.

And as we drove into San Antonio where live a people of at least a dozen different nationalities, they were all happy and free and contented.

And as we drove out to Randolph
Field, which is called the West Point of the air, I was amazed at the vastness of that field and the substantial and modern buildings and grounds Uncle Sam has provided for his flying men. We got to talk to C. W. Bogan a little while. He was doing fine and was enjoying his work.

And when we drove up to Austin, looked over the capitol grounds and the Texas University, and inspected those beautiful modern buildings and grounds, I just could not help swelling out my chest and giving three cheers for grand old Texas and good old Uncle Sam. For the past thirty years I've visited Austin several times, but it's been almost ten years since I was there last. And was I surprised at the changes that have taken place!

Those old shacks that were on the campus of the University are all gone and in their place are large fine modern buildings, beautiful lawns, trees and flowers. The state capitol has been remodeled, beautiful floors have been put in and the entire interior redecorated beautifully; the lawns, parks and grounds are well kept, presenting a very pleasing picture to the eye, thus creating a spirit of enthusiasm and patriotism in the heart of any American who strolls over the grounds and through the building, and to a native-born Texan it swells you up to the bursting point with pride.

I wish every man and woman, boy and girl in Texas could go to Austin and San Antonio, and could stay long enough to see everything there is to see that pertains to the fight those patriots made for Texas liberty, and then see what has been accomplished down through the years as a result of their sacrificing their lives that we of today might enjoy this liberty. I believe it would make us all realize more fully the duty we owe the heroes of Texas independence
—it would make us better citizens.

FORESIGHT

The salesman had sold everything that was necessary for the furnishing of the lawyer's office, when he had a happy thought.

"Oh, yes, I nearly forgot," he exclaimed, "you need a doormat."
"Fine! But bring me one that is well worn," replied the lawyer.

ECONOMY

"It's absurd for this man to charge us ten dollars for towing us three miles."
"That's all right; he's earning it—
I have my brakes on."

TOONERVILLE

From the many expressions we have heard up and down Main Street and from folks throughout the county, we are convinced that those that pay the taxes want to see annual audits of all public funds and that they want to see this information published, also monthly statements of receipts and expenditures.
Now if you are really sincere in wanting this information, then tell the commissioners, aldermen and school trustees. They are elected by you and will welcome any suggestions concerning public affairs.
In the past this newspaper has expressed our opinion many times and as a result we have been praised and also cursed not a little. We have ad-

We are also against center parking

The Death Stampede

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Meet Andy Grob of Freehold, N. J., today's Distinguished Adventurer. He's going to tell us the story of how he went hunting and got hunted himself.

It was in the late fall of 1932, and Andy's dad, who is a great hand at rambling through the fields with a shotgun, took him for a little prowl across the field to see if they couldn't bag a rabbit or two for supper. Brownie went along, too. Brownie is a hound dog and his job is to scare up the bunny and drive him out into the open so Andy's dad can get a shot at it.

Andy Went Out Hunting Rabbits.

It was a nice, brisk autumn day, and Andy took a tip from Brownie and began searching through the thick grass along fences and around tree stumps to see if he couldn't scare up some game for his dad. Everything went along nicely until they came to a fence. Andy's dad climbed the fence and started across the next field. But Andy saw a pair of mules and a horse on the other side and he was a bit afraid of them. He figured he would walk along the fence a few yards and cross at a spot where those animals wouldn't be so close to him.

Andy intended to follow close by that fence, but he turned aside to investigate a few clumps of grass and got quite a way out toward the center of the field. He wasn't paying much attention to anything but the grass clumps, but suddenly he heard a sound of hoofs on the turf.

"I looked back toward the mules," says Andy, "but they were grazing peacefully on the other side of the fence. Then I saw Brownie coming toward me, growling and showing his teeth. I turned around then—"

Andy Knew He Had to Reach That Fence.

Stampeding Herd of Young Cows.

And what Andy saw then just about scared the life out of him. Behind him was a herd of young cows—stampeding—coming full tilt in his direction.

"Their heads were down," says Andy, "and they were making a funny noise. A terrible feeling came over me. I couldn't move my legs and felt like I have in dreams when something was after me and I couldn't move. I knew this wasn't a dream, though, because those cows were getting closer and closer. I turned and ran toward daddy."

As Andy ran he saw his dad start running, too. He heard him shout something, but he was so far away that Andy couldn't catch what he said. He did know, though, that he had to get to that fence—and over it—before the cows caught up with him. If he didn't he'd be smashed to a pulp beneath those panic-stricken animals' hoofs.

"I was so scared," he says, "that I guess I almost flew. I was close to the fence now, but those cows were close to me, too. I could hear them breathing as I ran, and I knew I'd never get over that fence in time. I was winded and my breath was coming in sobs. I tried to run faster, but I couldn't."

Mad Race to Reach the Fence.

It was about the toughest spot any kid has ever been in, and even Andy, at that moment, didn't realize how close to death he really was. Nothing short of a miracle could get him over that fence in time to escape the pounding feet of those fear-crazed cattle. And it was only a matter of seconds, too, before they would be on him.

Then, suddenly, they WERE on him, and things began to happen all in a bunch. "I heard a shot," he says, "and looked up to see Daddy standing with the gun to his shoulder. But, as I looked up, I tripped on something, stumbled and fell. As I went down I dived headlong toward the fence. At the speed I was running I must have rolled over and over. Something sharp struck me in the back. I saw Brownie fly past me, his teeth bared. Then I shut my eyes and waited."

Everything happened so quickly that Andy was bewildered. He heard the cows' hoofs pounding, almost at his ears. He kept his eyes shut tight, afraid to open them. But, strangely, no hoof crashed down on his body. Even more strangely, the sound of hoofbeats came no closer. He felt Brownie jump on him and he heard his dad call his name. Then he opened his eyes.

His Escape Almost a Miracle.

Andy hardly believed what he saw then. He was on the other side of the fence. How he got there he didn't know, but there were the cows, separated from him by strands of wire, pressing against the fence, trying to hook him with their horns. Then his dad came over and showed him what had happened.

It really was a miracle, in a way. When Andy fell he had rolled right through a small broken space at the bottom of the fence. A strand of barbed wire had caught him in the back and that had caused the stab he felt as he rolled through. His dad had fired a shot just as he went down, but he had fired it in the air, because he was afraid of hitting Andy.

Use of the Silver Skewer

In the early part of the Seventeenth century a silver skewer was used by the cutting squire to hold meat in place while it was cut into slices. Having cut off a slice it was placed on a slice of bread and then served to a guest. This manner of serving is practiced in many of the older countries of Europe. In time the skewer used for holding the meat gave place to a fork, which was a great improvement. One, two, three and four-pronged forks came into use in the latter part of the Seventeenth century. By this time each guest was supplied with a fork and helped himself instead of being served by the cutting squire.

Chippendale's Career Traced

Although Thomas Chippendale was an English cabinet-maker who had never visited the Orient, Chinese art had a great influence on his creations. So says the Standard American Encyclopedia. It was during the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries that Chinoiserie, fanciful decorative work showing the influence of Chinese art, was brought to Europe. In the middle of the Eighteenth century chinoiserie became noticeable in every decorative craft. Prior to that time the furniture had been heavy and severe, but under Chippendale's use of Chinese art, the style became rather delicate with classical tendencies.

President Son of Judge Tyler

President John Tyler was the son of Judge John Tyler, Revolutionary patriot, judge, governor of Virginia, who was the son of another John Tyler, marshal of the colonial vice-admiralty court of Virginia.

"Larboard," Obsolete Word

"Larboard" is an obsolete word in nautical affairs. It refers to the left-hand side of the vessel as you stand facing the bow. This is now known as "port." The right-hand side is called "starboard."

How We Are Saved From Meteors

The earth would be pelted to pieces by meteors if it were not for its layers of atmosphere around it. Friction, caused by air resistance, burns up most of the "shooting stars" before they reach us.

The "Robinson Crusoe" Story

Daniel Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe" story was founded on Dampier's voyage "Round the World" (1697), the adventures of Alexander Selkirk, a Scottish sailor, and other sources.

Lesson for April 3
SERVING OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:24-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Good Will to Other Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending his mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader in the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still further. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened . . . and he spake plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Temper

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-and-twenty hours after it has happened.

Forgive Your Enemies

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Among his companions in barnstorming, Glenn L. Martin was known as "The Dude," although his carefully tailored flying suits were always black, including their elaborate braid trimmings.

Martin Had Get-Up of Mortician

His somewhat mortuary get-up and behavior gave an impression of great conservatism, and it is not surprising that he got backing from the bankers when other aviators failed.

A few months ago, he said his Glenn L. Martin company, of Baltimore, making planes, had a backlog of $15,500,000.

He told the house naval affairs committee there should be a 100 per cent increase in air armaments, that foreign nations are spending ten times as much as the United States. He would build a 250,000-pound bomber, carrying 30 men and a 4,000-pound bomb load 11,000 miles.

In 1912, this writer saw him put an inflated inner tube around his neck, strap a compass on his leg and take off to sea, at Avalon bay, Los Angeles, in a flying laundry wagon on which he had rigged a single wooden pontoon. He was bound for Catalina island, 20 miles away. It looked like suicide.

He not only made it, but picked up again at Catalina and finished the round trip, blanking Blierot, whose flight over the British channel was a one-way excursion. He had made the plane in an abandoned church.

The flight got him world attention. Then he staged a plane coyote hunt, dropped a ball into a catcher's mitt and a bouquet into the arms of a beauty contest queen.

This air extravaganza did not last long. In 1913, he built and sold two model TT war planes to the army, and has been building fighting craft ever since, with the exception of trans-Pacific Clippers.

He grew up in Mackburg, Iowa, built a pusher plane in his backyard and flew it in 1908. He is fifty-two.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, in his seersucker suit and his rumpled hat, frequently looked as if he had been sleeping under a bridge, especially in the midst of a hard campaign.

Bryan, Jr., Fastidious About Dress
His son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., is fussy about his dress, severely and fastidiously groomed, with a jaunty little moustache and a nice collection of malacca sticks, sports clothes, and varied haberdashery.

He is in the news now as he becomes collector of customs at the port of Los Angeles, his first recognition by the California Democracy, in whose vineyard he has labored for years.

When his father laid down his staff and scrip at Dayton, Tenn., he picked from the legacy only two things—free silver and anti-evolution. He is quite unmoved by oratory, speaking with calm, legalistic precision, with no gift for the resounding or oracular.

He has made spirited forays against this or that, notably Upton Sinclair's "Epic" heresy of 1934, but with no such impassioned fervor as that which inspired his father. But, when occasion offers, he puts in a word for silver, or against evolution.

After the Dayton trial and his father's death, he made a knightly vow that his lance always should be leveled against this ignoble theory of man's origin. But nobody seems to be bringing that up now. The argument is shifting to where man is going.

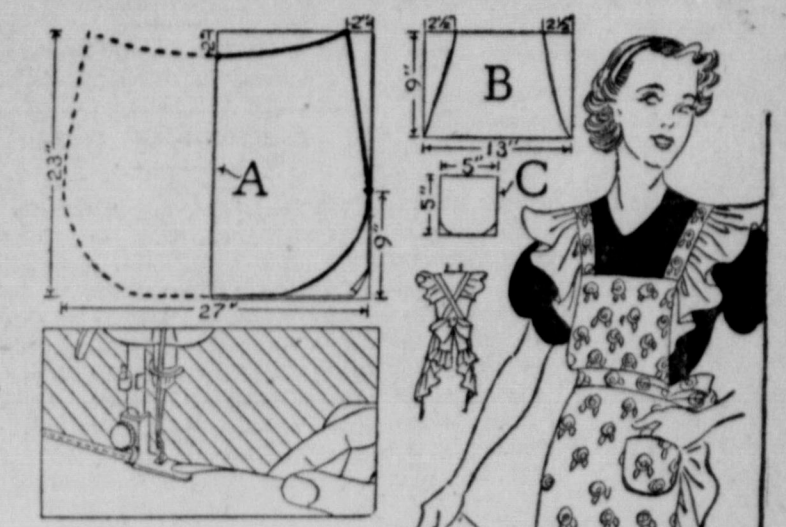

He attended the University of Nebraska three years, studied law at Georgetown university, went to Arizona on account of his wife's health, and practiced law, first in Arizona and then in Los Angeles. He is fifty years old.

Origin of Word Assassin

The word assassin originated in Persia in the Eleventh century. It derives from hashish, the intoxicating Indian drug which at that time was used by notorious murderers under one Hasan-i-Sabbah to work themselves into the high state of ruthlessness required for their crimes. As a tactic in attacking vested authority assassination is as old as man. It is notably the most ubiquitous and immediate of dangers to autocratic government, as has been proved by the violent deaths of a high percentage of dictators from Julius Caesar to those of modern times.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THIS pink and white chintz apron with pink gingham frills should inspire anyone to make long strides towards the kitchen. It is easy to cut. The material required is 1½ yards of 36-inch-wide chintz or cotton print and one yard of plain material.

For the skirt of the apron, cut a piece of paper or cloth 27 inches wide and 23 inches deep. Fold this lengthwise through the center, as at A, then measure down from the top of the fold and in from the corners the distances indicated in the diagram and mark the dots. Using the dots as a guide, mark the outline of the apron skirt as you see it in the diagram. The dimensions for shaping the bib are given in the diagram at B. The pocket is a 5-inch square with lower corners rounded as shown here at C. The apron ties are cut 6 inches wide and 36 inches long. The strip for the belt should be cut 2½ inches wide and a facing strip the same width should be cut for it. The shoulder straps are cut 4 inches wide and then creased lengthwise through the center.

The strips of the plain material for the ruffles are cut 8 inches wide. The material before you could be of the pre-

AN EARLY season flower pest is leaf beetle, a chewing insect whose presence is indicated by holes in the leaves. Found most often on Alyssum, zinnia, marigold and annual phlox. Remedy: Use stomach poisons in the form of sprays containing arsenicals or pyrethrum.

Snappedragon, aster, petunia and verbena are the principal victims of the cutworm, a chewing insect which cuts off plants at the ground. It should be combated, says Gilbert Bentley, flower expert of the Ferry Seed Institute, by placing about a spoonful of poison bran bait around the base of each plant.

Aphids bother almost all the popular flowers except zinnia. They cause wilting, crumpling and discoloration of the leaves. Spray or dust with pyrethrum or nicotine sulphate. Downy mildew shows up white all over a plant and discolors to black, killing leaves and rotting stems. Remedy: Dust regularly, but lightly, with flowers of sulphur.

LECTURE TO EMPTY PEWS

By Rev. Troy A. Sumrall
The lecture to Empty Pews was taken from the Baptist Standard of 1910 and revised and delivered in the First Baptist Church Sunday evening, March 20.

I wish first of all to commend you empty pews for some things which cannot be said of all church members:

1. All of you are always present, no matter the weather. In fact, the worse the weather the more numerous you are.

2. You are exceedingly decorous. This cannot be said of all church members. You are quiet all through the services, never turning your heads to gaze at someone who suffers the embarrassment of being late.

3. You never change. Church members sometimes change. What pleases one or most of you pleases all. I know exactly where you stand and how to find you again.

4. I heartily commend you because you never say a word if the pastor does not visit you as you think he should. You never dictate to the pastor as to how you think a pastor should be.

Now as I commend you, empty pews, I have hinted that I have some few things against thee. With all of your excellencies there are some things I certainly do not like about you.

1. My preaching does you no good at all. I can preach the Bible that all of you hear and understand, and yet you sit unmoved and do nothing about it.

2. You have not prayed yet, for the church. Evidently you expect the pastor to do it all. You want him to preach great sermons, lead the lost to Christ, yet you never pray, you never speak to a lost soul about his dangerous condition.

3. You never contribute one thing for the support of the Gospel. Seems that you think the others should do all the work and you enjoy the ride.

4. Empty pews, you are regular sermon killers. I prepare a sermon led by power from on high, and as I stand before you, your empty zeal and uninteresting look freezes my enthusiasm.

Now, empty pews, I am confident that you will not repeat what I have said to anyone, because you never tell the good things you hear, but always anxious to tell the bad.

my members, not affected in the least by this sermon, but exactly as you are today. You are dismissed.

PATCHING UP LAWNS

Well, sir, the foundation for my outdoor living room is completed. Now, all I've got to do is watch the walls grow. Wouldn't it be fine if houses could be built that way?

It's somewhat misleading when I say I have nothing else to do but watch it grow, because the room must be furnished. In fact, only about half of the rug is down.

Bermuda grass is the most reliable grass for Oklahoma lawns. The vigorous growth of bermuda grass in our shrub and flower beds should teach us that our patchy lawns are due to improper care.

New lawns are established by the sprigging method, that is, placing small pieces of the roots in well prepared ground four to six inches apart and two inches deep.

Old lawns become sod-bound, starved and packed, all of which makes them appear patchy. They may be plowed and disced now, or perhaps a vigorous raking and an application of fertilizer will be sufficient.

The only fertilizer needed, as a rule, is nitrogen. This may be secured in ammonium sulphate. It should be applied dry at the rate of three pounds to 1,000 square feet of lawn area, and should be watered in soon after being placed on the grass.

I mentioned I was laying the rug in my outdoor living room. I am trying some of this fine textured bermuda—commonly known as African bermuda. It makes a beautiful lawn where watering is possible. It doesn't spread into the flower beds, nor does it grow as tall or coarse as the common bermuda.

In Germany, in Italy, in Russia and in other countries where war is again glorified, the youth does not know that when he marches away to martial music, with flying flags and with applause from the populace, he will be marching to human suffering beyond description of words.

THE SUCCESSFUL FARMER

Discussing the risks and costs of buying a farm home, A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank of Houston, summed up his talk at the recent meeting of the Texas Agricultural Workers' Association, Houston, January 14, 1938, by saying:

"The farmer or ranchman who usually succeeds in spite of the risks is an industrious, home-loving man. You know him—he and plenty of others like him are found in all sections.

"He is honest and thrifty and his neighbors know him as a man who keeps his word and pays his debts. His wife and children are his partners. He may not be rich—often he is not rich in the common meaning of the term—but he has a comfortable living, he is happy in his work, and he will not be an object of charity when he grows old.

"Usually you will find that he keeps a small herd of milk cows, a flock of hens, and a pen of growing pigs. His grocery bill is small, for most of the abundant supply of food found on his table is grown at home. His wife knows how to can and preserve the products of the garden and orchard, and his children have plenty of fresh milk and eggs to keep their bodies growing straight and strong.

"In short, his farm or ranch is his home—he plans to spend the remainder of his life there. He knows that it is to his advantage to conserve the fertility of his soil, and that improvements made to the place increase the value of his holdings. Being an individual of considerable acumen in practical affairs, he usually keeps books on his operations.

"He is not afraid to try something new, but his records show the results of his operations and help him to keep on the right road to success. Put a man like this on a good farm and you have a combination that is almost sure to succeed."

YOU CANT DO IT!

No matter what you may have to say in praise of the radio as compared with the newspaper, there are a lot of things you can't do. For instance, you can't put a radio broadcast in your pocket and read it at your leisure.

NO DIFFERENCE TO HIM

There are a lot of people who do not believe in signs—especially the signs on a street car's direction and destination. And so they climb aboard the first car that comes along, drop their fares into the box and then annoy the passengers with questions. If they should happen to be on the wrong car and you should, upon being questioned, tell them so, they will not believe you but will turn to another passenger and make you feel like a fool.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Newman visited at Miami Sunday, the occasion being the birthday of their son, J. W.

SYNOPSIS

James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade his beautiful foster-daughter Leonora from marrying Don Mason, young "rolling stone," whom she likes but of whom she disapproves according to her conventional business-man standards. He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the death of her mother, abandoned by her Italian baritone lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story, of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the return trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's show-down. When Nora suggests the possibility of running away with Don, Lambert threatens disinheritance. Don agrees to the job.

CHAPTER II—Continued

By the end of the first month Don's nerves were taut and he had lost his appetite. At the end of three he had lost ten pounds. Later still, when a strained expression gathered about his eyes, Nora began to worry, though, scolding himself for this reaction to "a steady job," Don had not complained. Then came an evening when he telephoned that he was too tired to come out, and heard her quick-drawn breath of disappointment.

"But, Don, it's the night of the Careys' dance and I'm all dressed!"

"It is!" Dismayed surprise showed in his tired voice. "My dear, I forgot completely; but if you don't mind being a bit late I'll—"

She broke in then with sudden understanding: "Of course we won't go if you're used up, Don."

"But you wanted to go, Nora!" He spoke in genuine distress. "You've been looking forward to it—a lot. See here, would you go without me? Tag along with Corinne and Ned? Honestly, darling, I'm all in. Too tired to eat."

Said Nora, very quietly: "Are you keeping something back, Don? Are you sick?"

A reassuring laugh came over the wire. "Of course not! But I haven't been sleeping well for weeks, if you want the truth; and last night was rather the worst on record. I didn't close my eyes till daylight. I'll be O. K. tomorrow; but—don't think me a piker, will you?"

"And you'll go to the dance with Ned? Promise?"

She laughed and told him to sleep the clock around; but she didn't go to the dance.

Next evening the girl said out of a silence: "Don—it's appalling."

Watching her lover closely she had observed, with something of a shock, how those months of confinement had changed his whole appearance. It had been a gradual change, of course, and seeing him daily Nora had not realized the growing hollows below his cheek bones, or that the tan born of years in the open was quite gone, leaving his face with an unnatural pallor.

Even his sea-blue eyes that made her think of sun-lit, dancing water, were more opaque, more lifeless; and his feet which always seemed to touch earth lightly, dragged now as he crossed the room to sit beside her.

"What's appalling, beloved?"

"You," said Nora. "I—" (her voice trembled) "I'm not worth the name, Don."

He kissed her, not pretending to understand.

"I'm the best judge of that, dear. Why to me, won't you—something that'll make me believe there are things in the world like brooks, and birds, and wind on the prairie? I'm asked."

It was the first admission of the fact that he'd allowed himself to be asked.

Nora played for an hour, lilted Gypsy strains at first that led Don's troubled spirit far away to the green pastures and still waters where which it hungered.

The music grew quieter. . . . Old things—things one remembered—Rubinstein. . . Mendelssohn. . . Ah! Beethoven! The Moonlight Sonata, played as only Nora played it. . . . So quiet; so sure; so firm; yet so tranquil. . . .

When the last note of that matchless lullaby had died away, Don was asleep, his head pillowed on one arm, his face more peaceful than it had been for many weeks.

CHAPTER III

Nora grew noticeably thoughtful that evening. Don had slept a long time while she sat before him gazing into the fire, as if slowly fading glow might light her way. It was all so futile—this little experiment, she mused. The worn simile of the round peg in the square hole came back to her. . . . It was Don, poor boy! She knew well that the year's sentence James Lambert had imposed on Don would make no difference in the future; yet unless he stuck it out the older man would look upon him as a failure—a ne'er-do-well.

What was her duty? The girl pondered. It was useless to expect a product of the metropolis like her father, to understand or even make allowances. His whole world was the well-ordered world of the successful business man. His horizon was bounded by city streets. What more should one ask of life than a steady job and a salary which supported in comfort those one loved? Was his sole argument. He saw no other. He could not comprehend what such an existence meant to Don, nor dimly vision that call of the Gypsy trail which tugged at the young man's heart, leading him onward, making of life a glorious adventure.

So the girl grew more thoughtful, more quiet in the days that followed. Don said: "You've lost your pep, darling. What's happened?" and Nora laughed at him. But when her father questioned her one evening, a night when Don, pleading a dull head, had gone home early, she made no effort to evade the answer. He said: "Something's upset you lately. What's the matter, child?"

"Life," said Nora. James smiled. "What's wrong with life, dear?"

"What's right?" countered the girl, shrugging. Her father's eyes grew puzzled as he regarded her.

"Have you and Don been quarreling?" he asked. Nora laughed softly.

"It would be hard work to pick a fight with Don," she answered. "No, we haven't quarreled; but—I'm worried about him, Dad."

"There's nothing to worry about, my dear. Things are not going badly. I'll make a business man of Don Mason yet, Nora, if you'll give me time."

"You'll make a corpse of him more likely," the girl retorted with so much bitterness in her voice that James raised his head, looking at her in blank amazement.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that all his nerves are raw—on edge, Dad."

"Nerves!" The contempt in her father's exclamation cut Leonora to the quick.

James said, after a tense silence: "See here, Nora, it's absurd to think that a year in a well ventilated, modern office can cause a breakdown such as you hint at. That young man is, was anyway, the picture of health. If there's anything bothering him now it must be, as you say, a case of nerves, which seems, to my mind, almost nonsensical. If he'll make an attempt to pull himself together—get the best of the trouble instead of dwelling on it—"

"Dwelling on it!" broke in Nora with indignation. "Why he's never mentioned it! But I'm not blind, Dad, and the signs are there for anyone to read. I think you ought to call 'time up,' don't you?"

"Time up?"

"I mean it, Father. This simply can't go on. Don's lived in the open since he was eighteen. Office life stifles him; and Ned. . . ."

She paused, while her father observed gravely: "We'll leave Ned out of this discussion, if you don't mind."

"How can we?" the girl demanded with intrinsic honesty. "Ned's half the trouble. He makes Don frantic, pouncing on him unexpectedly—watching everything he does—snooping—"

"That's both insulting and unjust," James interrupted angrily. "Ned means to be helpful. If his methods are upsetting to this young man it's not your brother's fault, Nora, but his own. And considering that—that—"

"That Ned would welcome an excuse to throw Don out the door?" finished Leonora. Then, as her father snorted, she went on: "Now don't explode, Dad. It gets us nowhere, besides being bad for you. Perhaps I have no right to ask a favor anyway, but I'm asking one now: If you've any love at all for me, darling, and I know you have, I ask you to show it by putting an end to this experiment."

But James was obdurate. He was also angry.

"I gave him a year, Nora. I don't like a quitter."

Two red spots flamed like twin banners on Nora's cheeks.

"That's not just, Father. Don's never suggested giving up. But there's something in him that you and Ned can't understand, I suppose. He's not impatient, Dad. I think he scorns himself a little for chaffing at things which other men accept so naturally. And that's bad for him too. Don't you see, Father, it's like whipping a tired horse to keep a man of Don's sort tied to a ledger. It stifles him. And I warn you now that rather than see his spirit—the thing I love about him, crushed and broken unnecessarily, I'll go away with him."

The man's lips tightened. "And forfeit all I mean to do for you, my dear?"

"Money's not everything, Father." "How should you know, who've never been without it?" he retorted. "Ned's right. I've spoiled you, I suppose; and now I must pay the penalty." Then, because he was hurt and angry James said something he regretted later. "Well, take your choice; but if the fellow quits, and you quit with him, I'm through with you, Nora. And when the cupboard is bare—when the lack of silk stockings and silver slippers becomes hateful and you're tired of your bargain, don't come to me for help. Remember that."

Had he struck the girl, he could not have hurt her more.

Never before had her father felt such anger at Leonora. That she should even contemplate the idea of eloping with Don Mason, after what he considered his forbearance in giving the young man a place in his own office, was utterly beyond comprehension. Since that long-gone, tragic day when the girl discovered their real relationship, her foster-father had felt that she was grateful for everything he had tried to be to her. Now he wondered; and, wondering, grew bitter. Yet in a pathetic, lonely way James could not bear to be at odds with Leonora, his wife's last gift to him. Tossing restlessly on his bed that night, he longed to go to this dearily loved daughter whom he could not always understand—to make his peace and ask her to forget his harshness; but because of a stubborn streak deep in his nature, the man could not do it; and this illuminated moment which would have brought them infinitely closer, passed and was gone.

It was, however, no small measure of comfort that the girl's morning greeting was unchanged. If Nora's night had been as restless as her father's, nothing revealed the fact. She kissed him as usual; poured his coffee and chatted amiably of nothing in particular. But that evening James, who had been thinking, invaded the room where Leonora was playing to her lover, and sat for a half hour watching the young man closely.

Nora was right, he admitted. The fellow had changed deplorably. Queer that he hadn't observed it sooner. Don looked what James called "peaked." And he was very pale; not paler than Ned, perhaps, but shockingly paler than he had been six months ago.

Still, was there any reason for alarm? James thought not. Don's pallor was merely the result of an indoor existence. Absurd for Nora to worry about his health. In another month or so he would become acclimated—get used to it—stop champing at the bit as he did now. And there was no doubt that Don Mason needed discipline. He'd been his own master since he was eighteen. It was high time he learned to meet responsibilities, or how was he to take care of a girl like Leonora? And they were both young enough. It wouldn't hurt them to wait a little longer. He'd give them a trip abroad as a wedding gift if Don would agree to settle down after they got back.

James smiled to himself, pleased at this new idea. It should be a trip de luxe, by George! A trip such as that young vagabond had never dreamed of. Trust Nora for that! She appreciated the luxuries of travel. Only a few months to wait; and unless Don proved himself a quitter. . . .

He arose, roused by the cessation of Nora's music. She said: "Want something, Daddy?"

"No. I've left my book 'round somewhere; but it's not here."

"Don, too, had risen. He said, smiling: 'Won't you stay for a while, sir? I haven't the exclusive right to Nora's evenings.'"

"Perhaps not," responded James, "but I haven't entirely forgotten my own youth! Besides, I want to turn in early. Lost sleep last night, and the music has made me drowsy. Good-night, daughter."

He kissed her; nodded pleasantly to Don, and went upstairs.

"I don't wonder your father hates to give you up," said Don. "If ever I have a daughter as sweet as you, Nora, I'll be forced to stifle murderous intentions toward any fellow who makes love to her."

"And yet," she answered, "Dad hurt me last night, frightfully."

"How, dear?"

She told him, not all, but part of that momentous conversation.

"It was cruel, Don. I—I almost left him. I came near going straight to you and begging you to run away with me."

"I'm not the sort that runs, Nora," he said. She considered that.

"Not even if I asked you to, my dear?"

Don shook his head. "Never—unless things get more desperate than they are now."

"But you're nearing the end of your rope, Don," she protested. "What good will it do us to stick it out if you lose your health?"

The young man laughed, confessing: "I'm a lot more likely to lose my temper! Sometimes—"

He stopped abruptly, and Nora asked: "Has Ned been bothering?"

"Oh, let's forget it!" Don said in an attempt to end the discussion. "I'm going home, Nora. I seem to sleep better when I turn in early. I don't see how you put up with me—a girl like you. I never show you any sort of a good time. I even forget when I promise to take you to a dance! I—honestly, dear, I've wondered lately. . . ."

"What have you wondered?" she questioned as he looked away.

"I've wondered if it might not be better for us to—part, Nora."

The girl caught her breath, then said, her voice steady: "Better for you, or—for me, Don?"

Sensing her hurt he took her into his arms with tenderness. (TO BE CONTINUED)

"I don't wonder your father hates to give you up."

Very Smart New Fashions

A HOUSE dress with long slender lines, a dress and apron for little girls, and a popular bolero frock for slim young figures! You will certainly want one of these, and more likely will want all three. With each pattern, you receive a complete and detailed sew chart specially planned to help beginners, so that the making will be easy, and save you money besides.

Popular Bolero Frock. Make it up of silk crepe or a pretty print, and see how expensive, how flattering, it looks! The short bolero and wide shoulders make the slim lines of the frock even more graceful. Notice how cleverly the dress is shirred into the front panel at the waistline. This is one of the prettiest afternoon dresses you could choose for this spring.

Dress and Apron for Tois. Your little girl will be so proud of having this heart-shaped apron to put on over her best dress when she plays house! And the puff-sleeved, square-necked dress is adorable. You can make the two of them in no time. For the dress, choose dimity or organdy for dress-up; gingham or percale for every day. Dimity or lawn for the apron.

House Dress for Large Figures. This is such a becoming, comfortable, good-looking dress to work in, round the house. The lines are so straight and unhampering, and pleats in the short sleeves give plenty of room for stretching and reaching. It takes inches off the figure, too. Make it up in seersucker, gingham, linen or percale printed in small designs.

The Patterns. 1478 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 6 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. 1468 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for the dress, with 6 yards of narrow ribbon to trim and 1 yard wider ribbon for the belt. Size 4 requires 3/4 yard of 35-inch material for the apron, and 2 1/2 yards of ruffling. 1476 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5 yards of 35-inch material without nap.

Spring-Summer Pattern Book. Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Pattern Book which is now ready. It contains 109 attractive, practical and becoming designs. The Barbara Bell patterns are well planned, accurately cut and easy to follow. Each pattern includes a sew-chart which enables even a beginner to cut and make her own clothes.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Walker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

A Splendid "Service" for Floors

Floors receive rougher treatment than any other part of the home—and it is floors that show up to poorest advantage when neglected—best advantage when properly cared for! Up to now, attractive floors have required some little time and attention, but this is no longer necessary. For into the field of domestic preparations has come "self-polishing wax"—liquid-smooth, simple to apply, lovely to see. This remarkable preparation goes on easily, quickly, and dries in 20 minutes! Its results are 4-fold: The floors are protected—they are preserved—they stay freshly-clean longer—and they are beautified! A quality self-polishing wax protects and preserves, by forming a film over the surface—hard enough to withstand friction and grinding wear—and-tear. It induces floors to stay clean longer, because dirt and grease cannot become imbedded in the wood. It beautifies, because it is shimmering, transparent, and brings out the natural beauty of the wood. And what more could the home-maker ask for? There are, however, various qualities of self-polishing wax available. Only the best should be used, for both the appearance and condition of the floors. But the finest self-polishing wax is a joy to use—its lasting results a joy to see!

A General Quiz

1. Which of our states has only three counties?
2. What is the record made in the major baseball leagues for circling the bases?
3. When was paper money first issued in this country?
4. Why is the stage referred to as the legitimate stage?
5. Were any decisive battles fought on German soil during the World war?
6. Is the new San Francisco-Oakland bridge high enough to permit all boats to pass under it?
7. In the expression, "Poor as Job's turkey," is the Job of the Old Testament meant?
8. Was Edward Everett Hale related to Nathan Hale, the patriot of the Revolution?

The Answers

1. The state of Delaware has only three counties. It has only one city (Wilmington) with a population of over 100,000.
2. The recognized record for circling the bases is 13.4 seconds, made by Evar Swanson of the Cincinnati Reds, September 15, 1929.
3. In 1690 by the Massachusetts Bay colony. It was gradually issued by other colonies until in general use by all.
4. It is so called in the sense of its being normal, regular, conformable to a recognized standard type.
5. No.
6. The vertical clearance at the center of the bridge is 220 feet above mean high water, so boats can easily pass under it.
7. As turkey is American by origin, it seems incorrect to associate this Job with the ancient Hebrew. Poor, of course, refers to a thin and weak fowl, not to the lack of money.
8. He was his grandnephew. Edward Everett Hale's father, Nathan Hale, was a nephew of the Nathan Hale who was hanged by the British as an American spy.

America's Greatest Food Authority Now
Writes for This Paper

C. Houston Goudiss

We announce with pride a new feature in this issue, "What You Eat and Why," by C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, radio speaker, author and lecturer, famous as the man who knows food "from soil to serving, from table to tissue."

One of these articles will appear each week, and we know housewives and mothers will look forward to them for the accurate, worthwhile information they contain on foods and their relation to health. This is not a recipe column. Mr. Goudiss has designed it to serve as a link between laboratory and layman in the food field, interpreting modern scientific knowledge in the language of the home maker, giving her the elemental facts regarding new discoveries and the part played by food in building and maintaining health.

Every woman wants to know what foods will benefit her family and why, and that is just the information that Mr. Goudiss will give. Watch for the articles each week, make a scrap book of them for ready reference. They contain valuable information every home maker has been wanting.
