Weekly News Review American Political Tradition Decreed Republican Upsurge -By Joseph W. LaBine-

REPUBLICAN GAINS IN NOVEMBER ELECTION

States shown in black showed definite sucing away from Democratic party by giving victory to Republicans in two out of possible three divisions (governor, senate, house); states shaded gave Republicans minor victory in house or guber-natorial election; states shown in white failed to record substantial change in political status or (Maryland, California, North Dakota) showed Democratic gains.

Politics

Like all natural phenomena and many not so natural, U. S. political fortunes run in cycles of liberalism and conservatism. Thus every lengthy Republican administration has been succeeded by a shorter Democratic one, attesting to the American people's inherent conservatism. Since the Republican party reached its latest low ebb under Candidate Alfred Landon in 1936, none but the most optimistic expected anything but a minor gain so early as 1938. But it has proved otherwise, thanks to (1) a growing belief that the Roosevelt administration's expensive recovery efforts have been unsuccessful, and (2) a fear that New Deal policies were encouraging the growth of radicalism.

Moreover, it has been apparent that the public must eventually protest against the political corruption which unavoidably gathers around so large a financial project as WPA. Though the Roosevelt administration may be blameless in this respect, such political machines as that of Pennsylvania's Gov. George H. Earle have unsavory reputations.

Another consideration, one that received less attention than eventually proved justified, was dissatisfaction among America's numerically important farmers. Since the agricultural vote can control congress, it looked bad for the administration when this year's highly touted farm program failed. Despite Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's sincere efforts, New Deal farm legislation has left producers in north-### ered a likely candidate. If the 1938 election has created any new presidential possibilities, they are Ohio's Republican Sen. Robert Taft and Missouri's Democratic Sen. Bennett Champ Clark.

What the Republican upsurge will do for the U. S. remains conjectural, but post-election stock market activity has been encouraging. To aid industry, the American Federation of Labor is already banking on G. O. P. congressional aid in amending the Wagner labor relations act. The outstanding fact is that 1938's Republican party has emerged a liberal entity, well-spanked for its former ultra-conservatism.

Foreign

That a state visit can hold much international importance is sometimes hard to believe, since state visitors make a studied effort to avoid shop talk with their hosts. But diplomatic Great Britain refuses to minimize the significance of King George's visit to the U.S. next summer, and every sign indicates the English reasoning is correct.

Coupled with the U.S. visit is an invitation for French President Albert Lebrun to drink tea in Buckingham palace next spring, thereby returning the honor accorded by George's visit to Paris this past summer. While all this sounds like social pother, it really means that France and England are desperately trying to give the world a spectacle of democratic solidarity, offsetting the trumpeting of Premier Benito Mussolini and Chancellor Adolf flexible price structures and coerern states without permanent relief. The McLean News, Thursday

Government prosecution of combinations in alleged restraint of trade was known as "trust-busting" in the days of President Benjamin Harrison. In 1890 the Sherman anti-trust law began hacking at financial octopi in what was shown to be a legitimate campaign to keep Ameri-can industry from killing itself by mushroomed growth. Modern trust-busting is an out-growth of the New Deal. Its inended victim is not the monopolistic trust of bygone days, but usually a group of powerful corporations which dominate an industry. But though the 1938 model trust buster can be credited with success (17 victories, 12 cases still pending, out of 42 filed since March 4, 1933) he might also be charged with making political capital of his job.

Thus it has been hinted that Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, once an assistant attorney general, joined the anti-trust crusade last year largely in the hope of winning New York's Democratic gubernatorial nomination. If politics was the inspiration for some anti-trust suits, these same suits have now become such hot potatoes that a vanished political purpose does not justify the justice department's dropping them.

One possible example may be the trust case against the Aluminum Company of America.

To date this year-old investigation has failed to uncover much except a re-hash of testimony and evidence from the 1935 federal trade commission's probe, and a private litigation of a decade ago from which the company emerged with a clean bill of health

Today's anti-trust division of the justice department has 90 lawyers compared with 15 in 1933, handling

The Beast at the Door

ELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's Oskar Baradinsky of Yonkers, N. Y., come to join the Adventurers' Club and to furnish us with still another illustration of how truth can be stranger than fiction.

If you were reading a story in a magazine and came on a passage that described how wolves killed a calf on a Pennsylvania farm, not more than sixty miles west of Philadelphia, and in the year 1926-well-what would you think of that story?

If you are like me, you'd probably say the author was crazy and turn to another story that sounded more true to life. A fiction writer just couldn't put an incident of that sort down on paper and get away with it. But Old Man Fact doesn't go by the rules that govern fiction writers. It's actually true that wolves have killed calves in eastern Pennsylvania, and that isn't the bit of the bit o Pennsylvania-and that isn't the half of it, either, as Oskar Bradinsky is here to tell you.

In the fall of 1926, Oskar was taking a motor trip from Boston to Louisville, Ky., and stopped overnight at his uncle's farmhouse on the Lincoln highway, 10 miles northeast of Coatesville, Pa. It was Oskar's first visit to the farm in several years, and his aunt, who came to the door, was surprised to see him. And when, presently, his uncle came in from feeding the chickens he seemed to be not only surprised but worried about something as well

Worried About Wolves.

They all sat down to supper, and during the course of the meal Oskar found out what was worrying his uncle. He told Oskar that the night before a young calf had been killed by wolves that came from the surrounding woods. It wasn't the first time that sort of thing had happened, either, he said. Time and again he had set traps for the beasts, but never had he been able to catch any of them. Now he was at his wits' end, for one by one the animals were killing off all his most valuable live stock.

After supper they went into the parlor. Oskar's uncle continued talking about the wolves. He had just about decided to sit up in the barn all night and see if he couldn't get some of them with a rifle.

He fired as one of the wolves sprang at the horses.

were all sitting around the stove," Oskar says, "for it had been cold all day and after dark the wind started to blow ominously. We could hear it whistling about the house and the warmth of the fire was comforting.

About nine o'clock there was a knock at the door. Oskar's uncle got up to see who it was and Oskar could hear him say "Hello Donald," to someone and invite him to come in. The visitor was one of the local Dutch-American farmers, and he said, "I ain't got much time. Just thought I'd drop in and find out if you were going into town tomorrow."

Why, yes," Oskar's uncle answered. "I'm going over first thing in the morning. Are the missus and the kids with you?

"They're outside in the wagon," the farmer replied. And scarcely were the words out of his mouth when they heard a woman's scream accompanied by the terrified whining of the horses!

vember general election has therefore made the U.S. return to its most normal political alignment in 15 years. (See Map). Always Democratic, the "solid South" has clung tenaciously to tradition. But this tradition does not mean the South will line up 100 per cent behind President Roosevelt, for South Carolina, Georgia and Maryland elected senators partially unsympathetic with the New Deal. Several other southern senators and congressmen, not up for re-election this year. are also unsympathetic.

Though in many cases the Republican trend is not so great as the above map might indicate, practically all northern states have shown a surge back to conservatism. This was especially marked in Minnesota and Wisconsin, where Farmer-Labor and Progressive partisans were ousted after long incumbencies. Michigan swung away from Democratic Gov. Frank Murphy largely because he sympathized with the radically tinged Committee for Industrial Organization. In all northrestern states the swing to Republicanism was due partly to agricultural dissatisfaction. New England's industrial population rebelled against allegedly oppressive taxa-tion and the C. I. O., while this territory's traditional conservatism also played an important role. Substantially the same explanation can be made for votes in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The only important New Deal ins have come in California, where a rock-ribbed Republican overnor was ousted; in North Dakota, whose notoriously unsettled political situation has freakishly aced a Democrat in the governor's chair, and in Maryland.

But such a resume does not tell the entire story, for even those tates which remained Democratic have shown an amazingly strong Reublican upsurge. New York's Gov. derbert H. Lehman won by only 70,000 votes over his Republican op-ponent, youthful Thomas E. Dewey, whereas two years ago Mr. Leh-man had a 500,000 margin. Illinois, which remains predominantly New Deal, increased its Republican house representation and returned a much rger conservative vote than in reason to believe the Fascist-Nazi nations appreciate this and realize they must gain their concessions from France and Britain within the next six months. That is why Hitler is pressing his demands for a return of British-mandated colonies, and why Mussolini is urging internationalization of the Suez canal.

People

The death of Turkey's dictator, President Kemal Ataturk, removes the most colorful totalitarianist of our era. A man whose passion was violation of every accepted rule of human behavior, he customarily stayed up all night, ate every food that disagreed with him, had an amazingly large capacity for raki liquor and champagne, was Turkey's champion cigarette smoker and drank gallons of coffee every day. He detested exercise. More benevolent and less anxious for selfaggrandizement than most dictators, Mustapha Kemal established a model nation out of the post-war debris of Turkey. At his death, the nation he founded looks in bewilderment for a successor, while Eu-rope fears southeastern-bound Adolf Hitler may seize the opportunity to establish his economic strength in the Dardanelles.

Much interest now centers in the justice department's newly inaugurated suit against Delaware's Columbia Gas & Electric corporation for allegedly "conspiring to monopolize" the natural gas industry of Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia and Michigan. But in accordance with his probe of price policies, Thurman Arnold is probably more interested in oil. Since crude oil prices recently plummeted in the wake of alleged over-production by refineries, both the President and Mr. Arnold favor a program for state control over oil production and refin-

Harking back to the trust-busting days when Standard Oil's case first made the U. S. monopoly-conscious, the new probe will examine every phase of the oil industry from production to marketing. Though oil men will welcome an intelligent government program to stabilize crude oil prices, observers fail to see great consistency between this program to raise prices, and other monopoly quizzes which prosecute men for allegedly raising prices.

Religion

After 31 months of strife, four months of which cost 1,317 lives and left 1,150 wounded, Palestine's "holy war" is still not ended. The British-mandated territory has been Arabic for centuries but was set aside as a homeland for Jews following the World war, only to arouse Moslem fears that Hebrews would soon dominate the land. Using terrorism as their weapon, Arabs have attempted to force an immediate settlement on slow-moving Great Britain, but London has just announced its refusal to make an immediate decision. Great Britain proposes to call a conference of Jewish and Arab leaders whose compromise agreement would wash Great Britain's hands of all responsibility for the Holy Land. This would be fine except that Arabs refuse to arbitrate in this fashie which leaves Palestine's problem still a hopeless muddle.

Farmer Feared for His Children.

In an instant the little farmhouse parlor was a bedlam. Oskar's aunt started up from her chair. The visitor, rooted to his own chair, cried, "Good Lord, what's that?" Oskar's uncle was on his feet running "That's wolves!" he shouted over his shoulder as he across the room. reached behind a bureau for his rifle. "Wolves!" In the light of the small electric bulb, Oskar could see the color leave the farmer's face. Outside the wind howled. The horses were still screaming, and now the cattle and the chickens joined in the terrible din. "Wolves," the farmer repeated. "Oh my God. My kids are out there!"

He was out of his chair and across the floor like a shot. He jerked open the door. "He and my uncle," says Oskar, "went through the doorway at the same time. But my uncle carried a rifle and the farmer was unarmed. Over the din of the animals and the howling of the wind I could hear their footsteps crossing the porch-clumping down the four wooden steps. Then I got up and followed."

The horses were still screaming dreadfully, but after that first woman's shriek, no sound had come from the occupants of the wagon. A lithe, dark form sprang at one of the horses and the horse reared. Oskar's cumstances. ### Wolves Scared Away by Shots.

The sky was almost pitch black, and the road was so far away from the house that it was impossible for the men to tell if the shot had been effective. Oskar's uncle fired again-then all three of them ran toward the wagon

As they ran they could see black forms scurrying away across the fields. The shots had frightened the wolves away. When they arrived at the wagon they found the farmer's wife slumped unconscious in the seat. The children, in the back of the wagon, were awake and crying. The horse, his skin torn and bleeding and his neck bitten in several places, was rearing and kicking and trying to break away.

It took Oskar's uncle a long time to quiet the frantic animal. Meanwhile the farmer carried his wife into the house and gave her a few drops of whisky. When she came to she told a harrowing story of seeing three enormous wolves appear suddenly out of the darkness and jump at the horse's neck and flanks. At the sight of them she had screamed and fainted.

"My uncle loaned his friend another horse and a rifle to get home with," says Oskar, "and after the children were calmed and the mother felt better they started off again. They got home safely, and several weeks later my uncle wrote me that he'd shot one of the marauders-a little fellow weighing 145 pounds."

At a fold in the tundra where scrub spruce, we've got to have a big cache of deer bush and berry heath had made a stand against the fierce winds of winter, Napayo suddenly stopped and pointed. Three crossed poles marked where a deer skin tent had once stood. A spruce twig, an Indian date record, hung at the intersection of the poles. Napayo and Noel studied the dried twig then Noel reported to Alan who held the dogs on thong leashes:

"Deer hunter camp here many sleeps-a moon ago.

"They were Fort Chimo hunters," explained Napayo in his native tongue. "They came across from We'll circle and work up wind along the other side of that hill."

The dogs whom Alan had carefully trained to silence when on eash thongs, were taken with them. Cautiously, behind the protection of the ridge, the three men with the silent but excited dogs approached the hill above the swale where Alan had seen the bear. Leaving Noel and Napayo with the huskies, Alan worked along taking cover behind boulders and rises in the ground until he commanded a view of the little valley.

Two hundred yards beyond him, feeding on the ripening berries, was a large, barren-ground bear. Here was the meat they so badly needed. He began to stalk for a closer shot, for bear will carry much lead. At fifty yards he fired at the shaggy, black shoulder in the heath and ground juniper.

With a bellow of rage the bear turned, bit savagely at his side, then started to run. Again the whip-lash explosion of the 30-30 waked the tundra. The shot went true to its mark. The bear stumbled, slid into the berry heath and lay still.

"Yes," said Alan, watching the angered huskies milling over the carcass of their dead enemy. "He's a great dog, Noel-one in a thousand! He'd die for me, and I'd die for him!"

While the dogs had their first full meal in days, the men cut up the bear meat and back fat and, lashing their tump-lines to the heavy loads packed them down to the river. Their caribou hunt was a failure, but they now had food to tide them over until the salmon run without touching their emergency rations. So they started for camp for Alan was worried.

That night in their camp down the river Napayo talked of the life of his people-the northern Naskapi who traded at Fort Chimo. From his boyhood, life had been very hard. When they met the caribou migration in the summer and could dry quantities of meat, there were no terrors in the withering winds that swept the interior in the moons of the long snows. But often the deer changed their route in the late summer and the hunters watched in vain at the old trails at lake and river crossings. Then there was wailing in the tipis before the long winter's end, for, unless they had cached a huge supply of salmon, they were sure to starve. No one ever knew where the deer were. They were like the wind, now here, now there. When they found the migration, the deer were like the leaves of the forest and the Naskapi were happy. The spring before, Napavo said.

THERE is an amusing story about the mittens and scart shown here. They were not hand knitted. They were purchased rather hurriedly and sent to a young miss who was away at school. She had wanted something rather gay and a bit foreign looking to wear for skating and these were perfectly plain and pretty drab. She didn't take her disappointment lying down, but decided to brighten up that scarf and mitten set and make it speak a foreign language as well! She found the Swedish cross-stitch design shown here and copied it in all its gay colors on the ends of the scarf and backs of the mittens. Hand knitted mittens and other knitted things in plain colors may also be decorated with this pert flower pattern. Start at the upper right corner of the large flower and make the cross stitches as at A and B. This flower is a brilliant red, the small flowers

A Trade Mark Is an Honor Badge and Newspaper Advertising the Sentinel

Substitutes today are the illegitimate children of business. They are fatherless and unknown and they come to the consumer with a "Just as good" label on them which indicates clearly to the thinking buyer that she is buying something which is only "Just as good." The unknown product, the substitute parasite, has no reputation at stake. It is merely advertised for sale on a price basis and if the consumer does not like the quality, the manufacturer has suffered no injury because he is unknown and because he rarely links his name-with a product as a standard of quality and a measuring stick of buying. It merely competes on a "take a chance" basis.

The manufacturers of well-known quality merchandise today place their names upon it and advertise it as the best they can offer to the consumer. The name of a manufacturer on an advertised product says this: This is the best product I know how to make. It is pure, good and worthy of your purchase. I think so well of it that I place my name upon it as a guarantee to you of its goodness. If it does not fulfill your wants I will gladly make good its failure.

There is no good reason why you should accept the unknown There is no good reason why you should accept the unknown instead of the known; the untried instead of the tested; the doubt-ful instead of the sure. To refuse unknown substitutes is a guar-antee to yourself of positive satisfaction in buying. If every pur-chaser will confine his or her purchases to known, advertised quality merchandise there will be little cause for complaint. Trade mark products tell their own story. It pays to look before you buy. Reading the advertisements in the newspaper, looking at trade marks, labels and names on products has purse interest.

Honesty in all things would seem Armistice day to be what one should have a right ceremonies in to expect without question. As a Washington, has matter of fact, dishonesty has become so common wherever man is found that people look on the person who is strictly honest as a pethat he visit that country next culiar individual. Try reporting an undercharge (everyone complains about an overcharge) or returning excess change, and you will see how unexpected honesty really is today. Under such circumstances the Christian needs to be vigilant lest he also accommodate his own ideas of honesty and begin to justify little evasions rather than being absolutely upright.

I. Honesty Respects Property Rights (Exod. 20:15).

The very commandment against stealing implies that men have a right to that which they have made, earned, or saved. If no one had property rights there could be no stealing. Some of our modern isms himself the sobriquet, "Cuba's Strong Man." And, also, "The Na-poleon of the Caribbean." Christian.

"Thou shalt not steal" forbids every kind of theft. It includes robbery, burglary, safe - cracking, housebreaking; but it covers far more than those obvious wrongs. It refers to such things as loafing on one's job, "borrowing" money from the cash drawer, taking goods from the stock with which one is working, stealing another man's sermon and preaching it as one's own, "lifting" material out of another man's book without credit, contracting debts which one can never pay, using false weights and measures, adulterating food or other material, "watering" milk for sale, selling worthless stock, dodging taxes or lying to the tax assessor, using a slug instead of a nickel in the telephone to escape proper payment It really means something to be honest, and it is a great testimony to the unregenerate world. II. Honesty Restores Stolen Goods (Luke 19:1-10)

Profoundly believing that civilization is conditioned by biological limitations, Dr. Blakeslee thinks the way to get rid of congenital killers, war-mongers, dolts and other laggards in the life-parade is to work over the basic stuff of life-mainly genes. He has plenty of jimson weed and reports progress.

A native of Oswego, N. Y., now 64 years old, he was educated at Wesleyan and Harvard. His experiments in biological regimentation have given him high standing in his profession.

Dr. Klemin, 50 years old, is a native of London, here in 1913, a former student at M. I. T., naturalized in 1917, with the research department of the army air service and thereafter chairman of the Guggenheim School of Economics. He has been one of aviation's boldest prophets. he had obtained unjustly, and that in fourfold measure.

Insofar as it is possible to do so, the honest person will make right any known injustice. To be right with God must mean that we are to be right with men. The testimony of many Christians could be presented to show that they have only entered upon real peace and usefulness as they have made consistent effort to right every wrong, to pay every debt. Often such actions open opportunities for Christian testimony and point others to the redemption in Christ, which makes a man live right as well as talk right.

III. Honesty Resents Crookedness (Luke 19:45, 46).

In sharp contrast to the prompt restitution by Zacchaeus, the converted publican, was the stubborn disobedience and dishonesty of the priests in the temple. Jesus had already cleansed the temple of the traffic in money-changing and the sale of animals for sacrifice practiced there (see John 2:13-17). On that occasion He rebuked them because they made His Father's house 'a house of merchandise." Had they known the change of heart of a converted Zacchaeus they would have heeded His admonition. But they did not believe in Christ and went on with their ungodly desecration of the temple area until it became "a den of thieves" (v. 46). The Lesson Commentary of the United Lutheran Church makes an unusually apt application of the truth to "the goings on in our own churches" in the following paragraph. Read it, ponder it, pray about it, then act, if it describes your church.

"Is a church honest when it as sumes obligations that it cannot meet, and is then forced to use all sorts of questionable means to raise money for the benefit of the church

Is a church honest when it turn a building consecrated to the work ship of God into a restaurant or theater, regardless of whether it done to make money for the church or to attract people who are more interested in eating and drinking or playing than in the preaching of the Word and the worship of God? Is a church honest that turns its pulpit into a lecture platform for the discussion of current events or the review of popular books or plays while the world is destroying itself because it does not know the time of its visitation? The answer is that the church is dishonest that permits any such things, because it robs God of the honor and glory due to Him, and it robs people of their chance of salvation by giving them stones when they need the bread of life."
